A remarkable value at $4.98. Worth at least double.

Samples FREE

EDWARD B. GROSSMAN & CO.
170-172 STATE ST. CHICAGO
THE GREAT MAIL ORDER CLOAK HOUSE

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

9 USEFUL PREMIUMS FREE 9

To introduce our "CALUMET PERFECTO" CIGARS we give every person buying a box of cigars for $2.85, a superbly engraved "GOLD" WATCH. GUARANTEED FOR 20 YEARS. 1 gold-laid chain, 1 charm, 1 necktie holder, 2 sleeve buttons, 2 cuff buttons, 1 ball-top collar button and 1 stud. Send this to us and we will send you the cigars and premiums by express to examine. If you are satisfied, pay $2.85 & exp. charges. Calumet Mfg. & Importing Co. Dept 412 Chicago.

4 BUGGY WHEELS, $7.60

HIGH GRADE, SARVEN'S PATENT, tired and banded, height 3 ft. 4 in., 3 ft. 8 in. or 4 ft. Spokes 1⅛ or 1¼ inch. For any other sizes send for catalogue. Cut this ad. out and send to us with ONE DOLLAR, state size wheel wanted and we will send them by freight C. O. D. EXAMINE THEM at your freight depot and then pay freight agent balance, $6.60 and freight charges. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago.

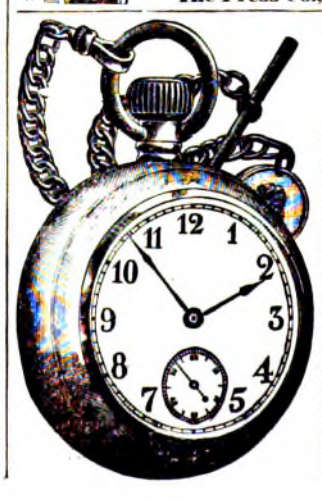
You Dye in 30 minutes

Soiled and faded carpets, dresses and clothing of all kinds to look like new. No experience necessary to get beautiful colors that won't Fade, Rub, or Wash Out with Tony's Fadeless Dyes. Each package colors from one to four pounds according to shade. To introduce them give name of your dealer and we will send you 6 packages for 40c or 1 for 10c. Say whether for wool or cotton. Address,

FRENCH DYE CO., Box 451, VASSAR, MICH.

Money Maker

And saver. Print your own cards circular, book, newspaper, with, our $5 or $18 printing press. Type setting easy, printed rules sent. For man or boy. Send for catalog, presses, type, paper, to factory.



The Press Co., Meriden, Conn.

AGENTS WANTED BOTH SEX...

Goods sent to reliable persons to be paid for after selling. The Electricity from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures rheumatism, liver and kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes will give one belt free to one person in each locality. Address E. J. MEAD & CO., Dept. No. 258, Vineland, N. J.

$30 WEEKLY PAY, Positive sure. New Plan. Nothing like it. No Canvassing or Peddling, but a business that just suits everybody. Don't miss this. It's a business that will fill your pockets with money. Address. WORTH & CO., 181 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MASS.

WE GIVE THIS WATCH
FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not waht you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nice chain. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE month of January proved an exciting one in the Boer campaign and every move has been followed in the telegraphic reports to the press. As has been indicated in previous articles in COMFORT on the Boer war, it is not our intention to give a complete history of the various events which necessarily happen nearly a month before the publication of each number; but rather our design is to note some of the features and characteristics of the people and campaign that may interest our readers and enable them to more intelligently read the daily dispatches as published in the newspaper press. Should any interested reader desire information on any particular point a letter sent to the editor asking the question will cause the answer to be embodied in the next article.

The initial cut shows the difficulties of the present warfare. This picture is from a photograph of a Boer detachment getting a gun placed in a commanding position on one of the numerous "Kops", or hills, commanding the passes in the mountains leading to Ladysmith. Reading the accounts of these desperate conflicts, we are apt to underrate and forget the difficulties of the struggle. The Boers are strongly intrenched in a mountainous region and are armed with the most modern and destructive weapons. For a long time they were on numerically even terms, which gave the Boers in the defensive a great advantage. As February enters we find that, notwithstanding immense reinforcements for the British, the superior strategy of the Boers has more than made up for want of men; and, that the three British armies have been soundly thrashed and are now completely held at bay.

The Briton is never in better shape than when meeting with reverses, and as was expected the whole British population, dismayed and aghast, grimly prepares to make the best of it and fight it through to the end. It is a very noticeable fact that even the strongest Boer sympathizers expect that England will eventually win, which in part shows how generally the Bulldog tenacity of the Saxon race is admitted. But aside from this, Great Britain to save herself must win, no matter at what cost. Her defeat in this war would be the commencement of her struggle against all Europe for her very life.

A very common comment on this war is concerning its great death list. The world has been much impressed by Gen. Methuen's despatches in which he calls his defeat at Modder River "the bloodiest fighting of the century." This has caused many interested writers to make comparisons. Without looking at statistics one would naturally accept the statement, considering the great effectiveness of modern armament; but the claim is at once dispelled when figures are produced. Gen. Methuen had 6500 men and his losses in killed and wounded were 475, seven and a half per cent. In fifty battles of our own Civil war the Union loss was an average of sixteen per cent., while the Confederates lost eighteen. Where small bodies such as Methuen had engaged, the average loss was twenty per cent. In the Union army Hancock lost fifty per cent. at Fredericksburg and Longstreet the same at Gaines Mills.

And yet the newspapers speak of a General in full retreat after a loss of six or seven per cent. as not knowing when he is beaten and of the fire having been such as no man could resist. These troops have neither been in "the bloodiest fighting of the century" nor have they begun to show the fighting qualities and the endurance of the American volunteers on both sides in our Civil war. Newspapers are largely responsible for the exaggerations of modern warfare. Even in our late Spanish war slight skirmishes were called bloody battles, and every soldier was a hero in the newspaper column.

THE HIGHLANDERS AFTER BATTLE.

Just at present there is being held a series of pro-Boer meetings in different parts of the States. These are largely intended to work up sentimental feeling to such a pitch as to cause political action and recognition of the independency of the Transvaal. Every citizen has a perfect right to think as he may please; but no good citizen will try to have our government intervene. We always stood out against England or any other country interfering in our quarrels, and as a matter of consistency we should be very careful how we move. Every reader should remember that, should the British Empire fall, Russia will be the leading nation of the world and instead of the Anglo-Saxon domination in civilization we should have the Muscovite directing the world's affairs.

In our own country there has lately been some discussion as to the propriety of giving something beside the numerical name to a regiment, and it is pointed out that in reading of foreign wars such as the present, and especially in foreign novels we become accustomed to certain designatory names of regiments in the foreign armies, which unconsciously gives them an interest to us when we read of their deeds in the press.

No more familiar instance of this can be found than by the press despatches from the Transvaal recounting as they continually do the movements of the Gordon Highlanders, until this regiment is as familiar to the newspaper readers on two continents as that of any general in either army. To give American readers a clearer idea of this remarkable body of fighters we will reproduce in concise form the extended histories of this regiment given in English pe iodicals.

With due regard to the wild scenes of enthusiasm which have attended the departure of many British military organizations for the front, nothing has equalled the demonstrations which attended the march of the Highlanders. Nor is it to be wondered at considering the high estimation this sturdy body of men holds in England's public estimation; and that above the passing regiment fluttered flags proudly bearing all of these names of British victories: "Egmont-op-Zee" "Mandera," "Corunna," "Fuetes d'Over," "Almavas," "Vittoria," "Pyrenees," "Nive," "Orthes," "Peninsular," "Waterloo," "Delhi," "Lucknow," "Kabal," "Kandihur," "Afghanistan," "Nile 1884-5," "Chitral," "South Africa" and "Tel-el-Kebir," which certainly comprise the most notable of modern English battles.

Before the present system of attaching popular names to regiments prevailed, they were known as the 92nd Infantry. In the year 1794, the Duke of Gordon, popularly known as "The Cock of the North," reorganized the regiment. His letter of instructions empowered him to enlist such of his own clansmen as cared to accept the King's shilling, and in less than a month he had a regiment of over 1000 men. They were immediately enrolled in the service and sent to the Mediterranean coast on garrison duty and it was not until five years after this time, in the war which was intended to wrest Holland from the French Republic, that they went into their first battle at Egmont-op-Zee. When an English army was sent to purge Spain of the French, the Highlanders were sent to the front and served most efficiently, losing their commander, Col. Napier, towards the close of this eventful Peninsular campaign, which first shook the power of Napoleon. Not only did they win victories in Spain; but with Wellington in Portugal won new laurels.

In the Waterloo campaign at Quatre Bras the Highlanders were brigaded with the Black Watch and Royal Scots, and made the famous charge against the French with bayonets putting them to flight. A shot from a solitary farmhouse on the field killed Col. Cameron and immediately his men charged the house killing every one of the French soldiers there.

Two days later at Waterloo with the Scots Grays they were hurled in a desperate and successful charge against the flower of the French army after having held the ground all day against a larger force. Forty years of peace folowed before the Crimean war when the regiment was again called into action. Since then, as the names of battles above indicate, the Highlanders have taken part in nearly every campaign that Britain has carried on, and have not been absent from a single one of the more important ones.

GENERAL WARREN.

A recent article appeared in an English financial paper showing the prepared state of the Transvaal and incidently showing Oom Paul's foresight. It was stated that never since all nations were at constant warfare had there been such an example of preparation and precaution. He created dynamite factories at Larfontein, which are the largest and finest in the world. They are on the line between Pretoria and Johannesburg and can turn out the finest high explosives known to science. The entire equipment is German and the work is done by Dutch and Kaffir help. Besides this Pretoria is surrounded by an unexcelled system of fortifications, equal to any in Europe. It is said with its resources and trained men the only way Pretoria could ever be taken would be by starvation after a long siege.

The most notable movement of the British army during this campaign was Gen. Buller's attempt to crush the right flank of the Boer army blocking his way for the relief of besieged Ladysmith. After a long halt following his defeat at Colenso, Buller threw out his left wing under Gen. Warren. On the Tugela river, January 11th, he occupied a position at Potgieter's Drift (ford) on the river north of Springfield, and about twenty miles west of the bridge at Colenso. Five days after Gen. Lyttleton's brigade forded the river. Gen. Warren's division forded the Tugela on a drift six miles further west the following day, but was met with a very heavy fire. Then the British captured Spion Kop (spy hill) by a night charge and for a moment felt they had the key of the position. In the morning, for a full day, they were mercilessly shelled and met with great losses. A night retreat followed and at least a portion of Warren's division crossed the Tugela in full retreat.

The news of this fresh disaster was received with dismay in England. Immediately a storm of criticism and resentment broke forth in press and parliament. The ministry and the generals came in for a great amount of serious questioning. The general opinion seems to be that the war council at home have tried to make Buller do impossible military feats. While at this writing Buller is the scapegoat, attention should be called to the marvelous defense Gen. White is conducting at Ladysmith. Cooped up since the beginning of the war with his whole army in an insignificant town, and one easily invested, he has against all odds and every prophecy held out for far over one hundred days. It seems an impossibility for him to hold out many days longer, and, if he capitulates, he will still be honored. Clearly, so far in the campaign Gen. White seems the only hero General the whole British army has produced. After a debate on the Queen's speech in Parliament a test vote showed an overwhelming majority supported the ministry and favored a fight to the finish with the Boers.

GENERAL WHITE.

As the writing of this article closes the British army seems to have been unable to push forward toward Ladysmith in a third attempt by Gen. Buller, who seems to have been met by an army too brave and too well handled to be beaten by him in their present position of advantage. In all probability Gen. Roberts, the Commander-in-chief, has already entered upon a campaign on an entirely different line, which will probably be an invasion and gradual advance through the Free State by a combined movement northward of the British troops now in Cape Colony. The press will now be full of most important war news although the scene of active war affairs will undoubtedly shift to a new part of South Africa's map.

FREE

Dr. Slocum's New Cure For Consumption

Tell Tale Signs

Consumption does not steal in like a thief in the night. The deadly germs may be developing for months or years, burrowing deeper and deeper until the whole system finally breaks down and succumbs to the final attack.

Do you know the tell tale signs and what they mean?

Do your lungs pain you?

Are they weak and delicate?

Do you have a stubborn cough?

Do you spit up phlegm?

Are you subject to colds that "hang on"?

Are you pale and thin?

Is your throat sore and inflamed?

Is your appetite variable and poor?

Are you losing flesh?

Do you lack stamina and endurance?

Does your head ache?

These symptoms call for quick relief if you would spare yourself the consumptive's lot.

There is but one treatment known to science that will cure consumption and all diseases leading to it—a never-failing treatment that is doing a grand work throughout the land—the Slocum Treatment.

Four progressive remedies acting together, killing the germs, healing the raw inflamed surfaces and building healthy flesh. Write for Free Treatment.

Every sufferer can have a Full Free Course of the famous SLOCUM TREATMENT, consisting of the Four Preparations, by sending his name and post office and express address to Dr. T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York.

Send to-day.

Weak Lungs Catarrh Asthma Bronchitis Coughs Lung and Throat Troubles

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Slocum System is medicine reduced to an exact science, and this is a genuine offer made by America's foremost medical specialist in pulmonary and lung diseases. We urge every reader of COMFORT, who is afflicted, to send for the Four Preparations (The Slocum System), because we know the proposition to be an honest one. It would also be generous on your part to notify all suffering friends of this great free offer, and thereby be instrumental in restoring them to health. It is a pleasure to do our part.

SPECIAL REQUEST.—Our readers are requested to state that they read Dr. Slocum's announcement in COMFORT when writing him for his generous free treatment.

Do You Want a Buggy?

If you have any use for a fine open or top buggy, surrey, phaeton or spring wagon at the lowest price ever heard of, a price that will surprise you, privilege of free trial and payable after received, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, Ill., and they will mail you their very latest and extremely interesting vehicle offer and special catalogue.

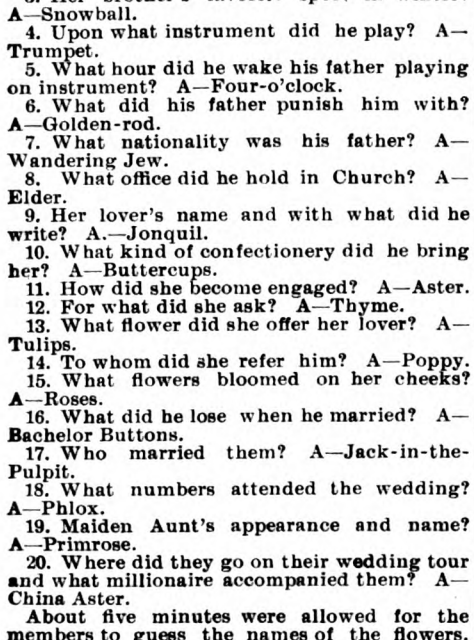
I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over PostoMce, COHOES, N. Y.

WANTED Agents for a wonderful washday article of great merit. Free sample for the asking. Shaver, Blake & Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE following suggestions were sent to us by one of our readers, and we are sure they will be acceptable to all who are in search of something out of the ordinary way of entertaining. The first one took the form of a "Floral Love Song." The hostess provided the members with a sheet of writing paper and pencil. On the outside of the paper was an embossed purple pansy, the emblem of this circle. Any flower may be substituted. There was also the title of the affair written in purple ink "A Floral Love Story." On the inside were twenty questions as follows:

1. What was the maiden's name and the color of her hair? Answer. Marigold.
2. Her brother's name and an adjective applying to herself? A—Sweet William.
3. Her brother's favorite sport in winter? A—Snowball.
4. Upon what instrument did he play? A—Trumpet.
5. What hour did he wake his father playing on instrument? A—Four-o'clock.
6. What did his father punish him with? A—Golden-rod.
7. What nationality was his father? A—Wandering Jew.
8. What office did he hold in Church? A—Elder.
9. Her lover's name and with what did he write? A.—Jonquil.
10. What kind of confectionery did he bring her? A—Buttercups.
11. How did she become engaged? A—Aster.
12. For what did she ask? A—Thyme.
13. What flower did she offer her lover? A—Tulips.
14. To whom did she refer him? A—Poppy.
15. What flowers bloomed on her cheeks? A—Roses.
16. What did he lose when he married? A—Bachelor Buttons.
17. Who married them? A—Jack-in-the-Pulpit.
18. What numbers attended the wedding? A—Phlox.
19. Maiden Aunt's appearance and name? A—Primrose.
20. Where did they go on their wedding tour and what millionaire accompanied them? A—China Aster.



About five minutes were allowed for the members to guess the names of the flowers. And the person naming the largest number was rewarded with a beautiful bouquet of Jonquils.

A unique and novel manner to entertain guests in March was seen by the writer a few years ago. It is called "A Shamrock Party." The invitations were plain white squares upon which was inscribed in green ink:

The Misses Stone
at home
St. Patrick's Day.
Progressive ——

The missing word, the principal occasion for conjecture, was supplied by a small bunch of shamrocks held in place under a stiff bow of bright green ribbon, and in connection it came to light that not every one recognized the historic Irish emblem, twin sister of our own white clover. The envelopes were sealed with bright green wax stamped with a harp or clover.

The rooms were decorated with pots and jars bright with fresh green, the chosen color, and here and there were draped scarfs of the same tint. Upon the mantel was a large paste-board staff gilded, with trained crisp green smilax along its lines, while on the shelf were a number of golden notes reminding the guests "The harp that once through Tara's halls the soul of music shed."

SHAMROCK PARTY BOOKLET.

The flowers used were Jonquils. Near the entrance flourished a green plant that originated in a paper but was now much improved through transformation.

As the guests came in each picked a leaflet. Those for the ladies were of goodly size and fair shape, but the gentlemen had to be satisfied with inferior ones, nibbled about the edges. On the back of each leaf was an inscription varying according to circumstances: Table 1—A.

This indicated that the holder was to play at the first table and with the one who held a shamrock lettered to form a duplicate. The curiosity of the guests was at its height when the cards for the game were brought in.

The scores were booklets with Irish sketches on the backs and the inner leaves firmly secured by strands of green baby ribbon. A small brass ring was tied with the bow knot.

On each table was placed a toy pot of loose shamrock leaves which had been cut from a mucilaged sheet of green paper. At the signal all the players closed their eyes or were blind folded and each tried to properly place a leaflet on the green stem which appeared on the first page of each booklet. About one minute was allowed for this. Shamrocks were chosen for a second attempt and a third trial.

BISCUIT SOFA PILLOW.

The couple showing the best branch of shamrocks went up to the next table, first fastening some unique marker to the ring. These markers were ebonized pots, effigies of Master Piggie, tiny shillalahs, harps, etc., swinging from green silk cords.

A black board was then produced and the guests drew Irish scenes. In the midst of the merriment sounded some Irish melodies, "The meeting of the Waters," "Erin! Oh Erin!" etc. They were then ushered into the dining room where green and gold predominated.

The mantel was banked with Jonquils and ferns; shades of yellow enclosed the lights and across the table was a floral bar of music. Strips of green wood held the five smilax twined wires, while Egyptian moss was twisted about the treble clef.

The golden notes were Jonquils. On either side of this was a crystal candelabra with green wax candles. Green flags showing the harp fluttered here and there.

Now for some fancy work.

We show illustration of a Biscuit Sofa Pillow, which is odd and very pretty, and is made of small pieces of silk, ribbon or velvet. Each puff is made on a square of cotton cloth. This cushion has one hundred and forty-four puffs. Cut the linings two and a quarter inches square and the silk three inches square.

Form the puff by taking a little fold in the silk on each side and insert a bit of wadding to hold the puff up. Sew the squares together, blending the colors nicely, and it well pays for the work one puts in it. The lining of the cushion may be any color which harmonizes; finish with cord or double ruffle.

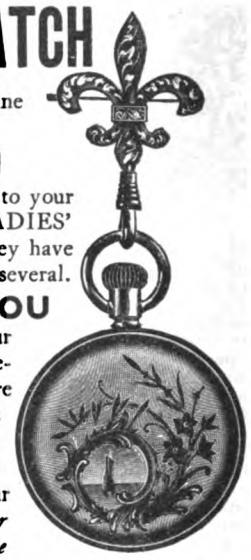
A large bed quilt made in this way is very lovely.

It is astonishing how many pieces may be found that are suitable for this sort of thing and for nothing else. Soiled neckties, which are usually made of lovely silks, may be cleansed and used for this purpose. The work is pleasant to do and is very satisfactory when finished. A small quilt to lay over the foot or back of the couch or sofa in the family living room is very convenient, and if one finds fewer pieces of silk than expected, a quilt about half the usual width may be made for just this purpose. It should be full length—say two yards long by one yard wide.

Agents, Perfumes etc. on credit. Big Profit. Express Pd. Terms free. Herbene Co., Box 4, Station L, New York.

This is Our Premium Watch

A BEAUTIFUL GOLD FILLED WATCH



Stem wind, stem set, beautifully engraved, with a genuine American movement, warranted for two years,

AS A PRESENT TO YOU for a few minutes' work. All we ask is that you sell for us to your friends and neighbors 100 of our famous 14 kt. gold filled LADIES' BEAUTY PINS at 5 cents each (regular price 10 cents.) They have only to be shown to sell—every lady and girl in the land needs several.

SEND NO MONEY — WE TRUST YOU

If you would like to have the watch, just send us your name and address, saying that you will sell the pins or return them, and we will forward them at once. We are selling a million a month of these pins, and everybody is more than pleased with them. This watch is the best premium ever offered, and is easily earned on account of the small amount to be sold—only 100 pins at 5c. each. Send in your name to-day. Don't wait. We have other premiums for smaller sales. You get our beautiful premium list with the goods. If you don't sell them all, you get a premium for what you do sell.

Showing Front

Showing Back

The publisher of this paper will vouch for our reliability. Be sure and write to us to-day.

LADIES PIN CO., 877 SCHILLER BUILDING, CHICAGO.

NOTE. Don't waste your time trying to sell trash. Our goods have merit and people want them. It costs you nothing to have us prove this.

THE initial shows a remarkable specimen of an animal which recently arrived at Philadelphia from Brazil. It is called the Boogum, and is a powerful animal, being nearly five feet tall. When captured it was found sleeping with head downward, hanging from a tree. Its future home will be at the Zoo, where a cage of metal will be necessary as it can tear wood into splinters. There was great difficulty in bringing this animal over on shipboard.

Tobacco Cure

How a Mother Banished Cigarettes and Tobacco With a Harmless Remedy Given in Tea, Coffee and Food.

Anyone Can Have a Free Trial Package.

Some time ago a well known business man whose stomach and nerves were ruined by the tobacco habit was secretly given a remedy by his wife and he never knew what cured him of the habit. She then treated her son who was a cigarette fiend, inhaling the deadly fumes almost constantly and he too was made sick of the "weed" and quit.

The remedy is odorless and tasteless can be mixed with coffee or food and when taken into the system a man cannot use tobacco in any form. The remedy contains nothing that could possibly do injury. It is simply an antidote for the poisons of tobacco and takes nicotine out of the system. It will cure even the confirmed cigarette fiend and is a God-send to mothers who have growing boys addicted to the smoking of cigarettes. The remedy is called Tobacco Specific and a free trial package of the remedy will be mailed prepaid upon application to Rogers Drug & Chemical Co., 745 Fifth and Race Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Spotted Calla. Begonia.

20 Packets SEEDS. FLOWERS 10 Choice Bulbs.

For 25c. we will send the following choice collection for 25c. post paid.

1 Pkt Double Chrysanthemum, hardy, great novelty
1 Pkt Polyantha Baby Rose, blooms in 90 days from planting
1 Pkt Tree Aster, new and very attractive, giant flowers
4 Pkts Pansies, yellow, black, red, white, separate colors
1 Pkt Ageratum, new and very choice, blue and white
1 Pkt Poppy Bractæatum, very brilliant colors and hardy
1 Pkt Japanese Morning Glories, beautiful markings
1 Pkt Carnation, choice
1 Pkt Sweet William
1 Pkt Smilax, old favorite
1 Pkt Sweet Lavender
1 Pkt Schizanthus, grand
1 Pkt Brachycome (Daisy)
1 Pkt Nigella, Love in Mist
1 Pkt Bush Sweet Pea, new
1 Pkt Verbena, Sweet Scented
1 Pkt Petunia, fringed, mixed

10 Bulbs 1 Spotted Calla, 1 Begonia, 1 Amaryillis, 2 Montbretias, 1 Cinnamon Vine, 1 Madeira Vine, 2 Gladiolus, brilliant colors; 1 Tuberose, double.

All the above Seeds and Bulbs, together with our new colored plate catalog, sent postpaid for 25c. NOTICE.—A return check good for 25c. sent with each collection.

J. ROSCOE FULLER & CO., Floral Park, N. Y

FREE 1900

You can easily and quickly earn a BICYCLE, CAMERA, WATCH, SEWING MACHINE, Mackintosh, Ladies' Shoes, Jacket, Cape, Dress Skirt or some other premium by selling a few boxes of our high-grade Toilet Soap to your friends and neighbors. It sells on its merits. NO MONEY REQUIRED IN ADVANCE. We have the best plan for Boys, Girls and Women. Our premiums are absolutely the best. Large illustrated list of premiums including Ladies' and Children's Clothing, Furniture, Guns, Guitars, Mandolins, etc., mailed FREE. Write to-day for full particulars.

DAWSON SOAP CO., 56 Fifth Ave., Dept. 72, Chicago, Ill.

HAIR SWITCH 65 CENTS.

WE SELL HUMAN HAIR SWITCHES to match any hair at from 65c to $3.25, the equal of switches that retail at $2.00 to $8.00.

OUR OFFER: Cut this ad out and send to us. Inclose a good sized sample of the exact shade wanted, and cut it out as near the roots as possible, inclose our special price quoted and 5 cents extra to pay postage, and we will make the switch to match your hair exact, and send to you by mail, postpaid, and if you are not perfectly satisfied, return it and we will immediately refund your money.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE AS FOLLOWS: 2-oz. switch, 20-in. long, long stem, 65c; short stem, 90c; 2-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.25; 3-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.50; 3-oz. 24-in. long, short stem, $2.25; 3½-oz. 26-in. long, short stem, $3.25. WE GUARANTEE OUR WORK the highest grade on the market. Order at once and get these special prices. Your money returned if you are not pleased. Write for Free Catalogue of Hair Goods. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

$5.85 Im 17 JEWELED

adjusted, patent regulator, stem wind and stem set, genuine

NATIONAL SPECIAL

movement. Ladies' or Gents' size. WARRANTED 20 YEARS. 14K. Gold plate hunting case, elegantly engraved. Fit for a king. No better watch made. Must be seen to be appreciated. Special Offer for next 60 days, send your full name and address and we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent $5.85 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and charm sent free with every watch. Write at once as this may not appear again.

NAT'L MFG. & IMPORTING CO.
334 Dearborn St., B 318, Chicago, Ill.

$34 BUILT for SERVICE

We Ship Direct to the consumer At Lowest Wholesale Prices the most reliable line of vehicles, etc. to be found anywhere. Built substantially of honest material—workmanship the best—one of them will outlast two of the ordinary kind—Guaranteed as represented or your money back.

We will ship C.O.D. with privilege of examination. You risk nothing. Reliable Top Buggy, $34.00; fine spring Wagon, $39.00; strong two horse Farm Wagon, $44.00; handsome Surrey, $54.00; well made Portland Cutter, $17.25; Carts, $9.50 up. Single harness $4.50; Farm harness, $12.95. Send for free illustrated catalogue.

CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158 W. VanBuren St., B- 5, Chicago

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

Free

This magnificent Solid Gold shell ring, set with a brilliant simulation Diamond free, if you will sell 6 sets of our Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) at 25c. a set. Send name & address. No money wanted. We run all risk and take back what you cannot sell. Also an extra handsome present if you write to-day. The Maxwell Co., Dept. 210 St. Louis, Mo.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

1st.	For the best original letter	$3.00
2nd.	" " second best original letter	2.50
3rd.	" " third " " "	2.00
4th.	" " fourth " " "	1.50
5th.	" " fifth " " "	1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least one new Cousin into the COMFORT circle; that is, they must send one new subscriber with each letter, together with 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Maud B. Rogers,	$3.00
Mary W. Early,	2.50
Mrs. F. R. Shurte,	2.00
Mrs. Lewis Flemer,	1.50
Louise Snow,	1.00

DEAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

Lo! here again is old March, bringing promises of spring to all inhabitants of our land, but how various is his mien, and how differently is his message worded as he flies! To our northern cousins he comes with furious howls, with bitter cold and falling snows, and some of winter's worst storms he drags shrieking in his train to pour out their fury during his brief reign. But to the dwellers in the sunny southern states he brings a smiling face, warm, gentle breezes, flowers, and all green things.

Ah! he is a two-faced fellow, is March, with smiles for some of his subjects and frowns and harsh treatment for others; but, as with many a human being in this varied world, we must e'en take him as we find him and make the best we can of him.

Our first letter this month is from California, and describes a novel way of utilizing discarded street cars.

"A very short distance from streets and avenues of costly houses, and close beside the ocean beach entrance to Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, there have very recently been erected some of the most extraordinary homes in the state. The dense park forest and the few high hills lying between the city and the ocean are all that divide the thickly settled streets from this new and isolated region and when one has been swiftly carried hither by the electric cars it is hard to realize that he is yet close to the bustle and life of a great city. The building site too is extraordinary, among the countless and ever shifting sand dunes so close beside the ocean that the boulevard alone separates it from the wash of the surf.

"From a distance the houses have a very peculiar appearance owing to their being partially constructed of the horse cars left here when electric cars were added to San Francisco, and with their many small windows, their low height and solid build remind one, especially when lighted up at night, of the ships passing by a little way off. Within all is cosy, and the wind which every day blows in from the sea with blustering vigor, shifts the sand and seems to make the snug dwellings seem all the more secure.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.

"In one particular dwelling somewhat more capacious than the rest the street cars are used for upstairs bedrooms. On the lower floor under the front car is the parlor, extending on each side a few feet wider than the car above. Behind this is a smaller room with steps leading into the upstairs hall which separates the cars, and behind this the kitchen, underneath the back car bedroom, the same size as the parlor. Books line the walls, potted plants stand in the windows and within all has the aspect of a snug interior. The residents are already setting out plants similar to those growing in that part of the park nearest to them, and in time they will make as fine a showing as these, but at present there is no wind-break and the sand remorselessly covers them over many times a day." MAUD B. ROGERS, Menlo Park, California.

Now we have a foreign letter which is especially interesting this spring, when so many are planning to visit, the coming summer, the places here described.

"I always read the letters in COMFORT with great interest and am tempted to offer you a short account of my visit to Orleans, France.

"Twilight was deepening when our train stopped at that beautifully situated city—Orleans—on the Loire, some seventy or eighty miles from Paris. Calling a carriage we were driven to the best hotel—Hotel d' Orleans—which proved to be a very antiquated affair, surrounding a circular, grass-grown court, in which we alighted.

"Everything connected with the establishment, even the chicken served at dinner, could be nicely described by that one word 'ancient', and it was only youthful energy and good teeth, urged by hunger, that enabled us to accomplish the utter annihilation of that hen. That feat accomplished we sallied forth on a little tour of inspection by lamplight.

"We passed the house of Agnes Sarrel, which seemed to be deserted and dark. The little grass plot in front was entirely overgrown with weeds. After passing the houses of Diane de Poitiers and Francois I. of Pothier, we found our way back to the Hotel d' Orleans.

"In the morning we visited first the famous Cathedral, with its two high towers. It is situated on a large 'Place' and is indeed awe-inspiring seen from within. It was begun in the early centuries and finished by Charles VII. in commemoration of Joan of Arc. How little did the French people appreciate her while she lived! And now the whole city seems filled with her spirit and souvenirs of her abound in the stores. The tall house situated in an unfrequented street, where she is said to have lived, is not conspicuous for anything except it be its narrowness. We were directed to the equestrian statue of Joan by a peasant who spoke altogether a different 'patois' from what we had been used to hearing in Bordeaux. We found that statue the best of three which have been erected in her honor."

MRS. LEWIS FLEMER, Washington, D. C.

Now back to our own country again.

"About five miles from old Tioga Point, a place of great historic interest in Pennsylvania, is Spanish Hill, a spot of considerable celebrity, but whether natural or in part artificial, we of to-day are left in doubt. This hill is two hundred feet high and one mile in circumference, but it seemed much more when we clambered laboriously, in a slanting, round-about way, up its steep, rocky sides. At the northwest it is covered with a deep forest of evergreen, through which the ascending path winds, the pine needles thickly strewing the ground and filling the air with their spicy fragrance. The curving path brings us out at the top of the hill at the southwest, where from its summit there is a fine view of the far-reaching ranges of foot-hills and mountains that seem to almost surround the beautiful, wide valley below. At the right the shining Chemung, and at the left the beautiful Susquehanna flow through well cultivated farm lands, the rich fields of differently colored grains making a charming piece of Nature's mosaic.

"Only faint indications of the old fortification can be seen on the hill's summit, which is now a nearly smooth plateau, with not a tree, and but few shrubs and wild flowers growing on its grassy surface.

"The Indians had a superstitious fear of this hill-top, and though their hunting ground lay in this vicinity, they seldom went nigh it. There was a tradition that a chief once went to the summit and the Manitou caught him by the scalp-lock and hurled him hence to regions unknown. His real fate is supposed to have been that he was made away with by the Spanish buccaneers, or refugees from Florida, who gave to the hill its name. There is a generally accredited legend that an Indian chieftain wedded a Spanish maiden and rescued and guided the refugees in safety to the distant West. A wild fable once existed to the effect that this hill was the spot where the notorious Captain Kidd had secreted his much sought treasure, and credulous persons delved and searched long and arduously, but vainly for it, though pieces of Spanish coin have been picked up on its surface."

LOUISE SNOW, Athens, Pa.

Emily Hunter, of Wrightsboro, Texas, sends us a story for which I thank her, but I cannot make use of it beause, as I have said a great many times, we do not use stories on this page. Her description of the Mexicans, which I print below, is, however, very readable.

"The Mexicans live in little huts made of grass, poles, brush and dirt. They have no stoves, but cook in skillets and set their dishes on the floor while they eat. On Saturday nights they get together, for miles around, and dance all night. Sundays they spend in visiting each other. All the remainder of the week during the autumn months, is spent in picking cotton, and during the spring and summer months in hoeing corn and chopping cotton.

"They seem to be happy, for they sing most of the time. Some of the Senoritas are very pretty and others are horribly ugly."

J. J. Tumlin, of Atlanta, Georgia, sends me an article "for the little folks" on rabbits; but as this is not a children's page I am sorry to say I cannot use it. He also offers me poetry, but as we do not use poetry I must decline that also with thanks. I hope he will try us again soon with something we can use.

Our next letter is from an Ohio cousin, giving us a peep at the city of Columbus. She says:

"The city of Columbus, Ohio, was named for the great discoverer, Christopher Columbus, and is the only large city in the United States bearing his name. The streets are wide, well-lighted, and many of them are paved with either brick, stone or asphalt. But let us hie away to the parks. Not the little ones that are scattered here and there over the city, but real, carefully kept public grounds. First is Franklin Park, situated in the extreme eastern part of the city. As we enter the northwestern gate we find a cosy home for the caretaker. The western half contains large trees, with seats, tables, swings, etc. The lake and boat-house also belong to this part. Nearly in the center stands an immense greenhouse, which furnishes all the summer plants for the park, and many others for private decorations in winter. The eastern part of this park is new; the trees are small but the driveways are carefully kept. The Southern Park is given up to the use of the Germans.

"The one most popular for all classes is situated in the northern limit of the city. Nature has been lavish in beautifying its grounds and art has aided. A stream of water passes through the western side and is embanked by high hills on one side and a beautiful wooded valley on the other which in early spring is strewn with golden buttercups and dainty violets.

"The park rejoices in the Indian name of Olentangy, as the Olentangy tribe had their home at one time on the banks of this stream. Their chief, 'Cornstalk', fished, trapped and hunted in the vicinity, while the faithful squaw found the fertile valley suitable for all domestic gardening. We can be entertained here afternoons and evenings in the theater, the merry-go-round, rowing on the river, or racing up and down the stream in the little steam tug. Refreshments are obtainable at all hours. Crowds of pleasure seekers are to be found here from early morning until closing time, every day in the week.

S. A. SMITH, Columbus, O.

Here is a very interesting account of a visit to Niagara Falls written by a cousin who lives in a region which most people consider "the wilds of Maine." By the way, I wish our cousin, John Erickson, would write us some description of the country in which he lives and the occupations of the people. I am sure we should enjoy such a letter.

"I had occasion, last March, to visit the Invalids' Hotel of Buffalo, N. Y., of which Dr. R. V. Pierce is the proprietor, and can truthfully say it is all that they advertise. While there I visited the wonder of the world, Niagara Falls. Our way took us along the shore of historic Lake Erie and on through the fertile valley of the Niagara river. On either side large orchards of apple, pear and plum trees and large vineyards testified to the fertility of this region. On our arrival at the city of Niagara we proceeded at once toward the falls whose roar filled our ears. A hackman carried us over on Goat Island which is situated between the two falls. Here we ascended a long flight of stairs to the edge of the American falls, where there are stands surrounded by iron railings for the accommodation of visitors, and I shall never forget the magnificent sight which I enjoyed while standing there on the very edge of the precipice looking down into that fearful abyss of wildly churning, leaping water, whose spray rose over one hundred feet in the air and descended in showers upon us, while through it rainbows flashed in brilliant colors.

"We crossed Goat Island and viewed the Horseshoe falls, which are shaped like a gigantic horseshoe. Seven times as much water flows over the Horseshoe falls as over the American falls, though the latter are four feet higher. Imagine a stream of water forty feet deep and nearly a mile in width, leaping one hundred and sixty feet in one mighty plunge, causing the very ground to tremble. We also crossed the little bridges to the Three Sisters Islands. They are only large masses of rock above the falls, but Goat Island is covered with beautiful elm, maple and beech trees. We crossed the suspension bridge below the falls and viewed them from the Canada side, then we went a mile down the river and visited the battlefield of Lundy's Lane, but found only a ploughed field and some elms growing on the ground made rich by the blood of many an American and English hero who met in deadly conflict on these green slopes on the fifth day of July, 1814." JOHN ERICKSON, Number One, Aroostook Co., Maine.

Now for a peep at scenery in old Virginia.

"One of the most interesting points which Virginia offers to the tourist is the Peaks of Otter, two beautiful twin peaks, three thousand nine hundred and ninety-three feet high, situated in the Blue Ridge mountains in Bedford County, Virginia. Although these mountains have a good many elevated points, commanding fine views, yet the Peaks of Otter are the most famous and generally visited of them all; and although the view is said to be as fine from one of these peaks as from the other, yet travellers have fallen into the habit of going exclusively to one, possibly because its ascent may be somewhat the easier. The summit of this peak commands a view of such extent and magnificence as can scarcely be surpassed in the whole world, not even by the famous Rigi, or the Jungfrau. It is considered particularly desirable to see this view at sunrise, hence travellers generally make their arrangements with this aim, spending the preceding night at a house at the foot of the mountain, or on the side, and rising at daybreak to make the ascent. They can go about two-thirds of the way on horseback, or in a vehicle, but as they near the summit of the mountain, they begin to encounter great boulders, so they are forced to dismount and toil up the remainder of the way on foot.

PEAKS OF OTTER.

"'Laborious, indeed, at first ascent, but else so smooth, so green, so full of goodly prospects and harmonious sounds that the harp of Eolus itself was not more charming.'

"A large boulder crowns the very summit of the mountain, and climbing up this, the traveller beholds stretched out before him a view vast and grand as the boundless ocean and far more diversified. Great forests, interspersed with meadows and stretches of cultivated land, little towns and villages, ranges of hills and other mountains, silvery streams meandering through the landscape, all these lie extended before him like a vast and splendid panorama, and giving him glimpses of three or four states.

"A legend is told that on one occasion, long ago, a party of frolicsome young college students, visiting the peaks, conceived the idea of rolling a boulder down the mountain, and that at length they got it started, and it rolled down with a tremendous and ever increasing impetus, uprooting great forest trees in its path, and cutting a deeper and deeper channel for itself in its downward course, till at length it settled a little beyond the foot of the mountain."

MARY W. EARLY, Lynchburg, Va.

I have a pleasant letter on the Natural Bridge in Virginia written by J. W. Robinette, for which I thank him, but which I cannot use because the subject has been so often written up. I also thank Edwin Brown for a letter on the Natural Bridge of Kentucky.

A very well written letter from our old friend and cousin, Mrs. E. J. Britton, of Omaha, Nebraska, cannot be used, I am sorry to say, because I have recently published several accounts of cyclones. I also have a pleasant letter by Charles Honeg on a trip to Springfield, Illinois.

"We are nestled down on the Ohio river forty-eight miles south of Wheeling, between two ranges of high hills, one range in Ohio and the other in West Virginia. The Ohio river at this point is not more than a block in width and we are so surrounded by hills that we can scarcely see a mile in any direction except overhead. We have a large pumping station here which pumps the oil from the surrounding country in two large tanks holding thirty-five and forty thousand barrels each; thence it goes to Pennsylvania to a refinery.

"During an electric storm the other evening lightning struck one thirty-five thousand barrel tank which contained fifteen thousand barrels; a terrific explosion followed, and column after column of dense black smoke arose and hung over the city like a cloud, while now and then a tongue of flame shot up and was reflected in the clouds. Some oil was saved by draining, but most of it was burned.

"Let me describe to the cousins how we build a country house in the oil regions. First, we get some lumber for the foundation; saw off four pieces and stand on end, then lay other lumber from corner to corner and nail. Next we take rough hemlock and nail two pieces together like a trough, and stand this up for our corner; after we have four of those we take a ladder, if we cannot reach, and nail a plate from one to the other on top. Then we fill in the sides with rough hemlock, and then come the rafters and roof. Some of the roofs are of tar paper, but most are shingles. Now we have a huge box with a roof; and we proceed to cut out holes for doors and windows, and weather board it and then run our partitions, which are rough hemlock boards, put in our doors and windows, build a porch and put on trimming. For the plaster we get unbleached muslin, sew together and stretch tight for ceiling, then we tack it all over the walls, then we paper, and the result is a nice cozy house without laths, plaster, or studding. Some have joists or sills across the top, and some only have a piece to tack muslin on, and a few pieces to nail the partition to, but with gas for fuel we are as comfortable as can be and as happy as if we lived in elegant mansions." MRS. F. R. SHURTE, Sistersville, W. Va.

The next letter I find very interesting, and think my readers will also enjoy it.

"I would like to tell your readers about a journey I once made across the Sioux reservation. After driving all day through a hilly, sandy country we stopped at a log cabin whose owner was a 'squaw-man,' that is, a white man who had married a squaw. There are a number of these squaw-men in the Sioux reservation. The cabin was of good size, all in one room, with a ground floor. A stove, table, and two iron bedsteads curtained off in the back part comprised the furniture of this home in the wilderness.

"Our hostess would not say one word to us for fear we would laugh at her broken speech, although she could understand us. She was a good cook, however, and served us at breakfast, next morning with fried eggs, ham, nice bread and butter and good coffee. As soon as the meal was over we hitched up our ponies and were soon on our way through that far-stretching, streamless, verdureless plain. That night we lodged in the open prairie, and were disturbed by nothing but a few howling coyotes, which, however, did not come near enough to keep us long awake.

"All next day we drove on without seeing a house, tree or living soul, and at dark reached the Missouri river; a light ahead led us to a cabin similar to the one where we stayed the first night, only this time our squaw-man was a widower, his squaw having been dead several years and his children being away at school. He told us we had taken the wrong road; we should have gone twenty miles further south, where there was a ferry boat. As it was late we concluded to stay there all night.

"Early next morning, while we were preparing our breakfast our widower surprised us with a plateful of boiled beaver meat which he said was a great Indian delicacy, but good enough for anybody. We found it tasted like beef tongue, and if we had not known what it was we could have eaten it all and wanted more.

"Our first step at starting was to get across the river which was here quite deep and half a mile wide. Mr. Buschall had a boat that would hold about ten people, so we took our buggy apart and took it over, led the horses into the water and let them swim across, and then we were once more in a civilized land. RAY HENZLIK, Lone Tree, Iowa.

And now good-by until April calls us together once more. AUNT MINERVA.

BOYS WANTED.

We pay boys and girls for used postage-stamps and rare coins. For further particulars send two unused two cent stamps to EASTERN PHILATELIC CO., Department 1, Boston, Mass.

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

ANY ONE CAN EASILY EARN A WATCH-CHAIN AND CHARM—LADIES' OR GENTS' STYLE—GOLD PLATED, NICKEL OR SILVER WATCH, (not a big clock called a watch), CHAIN BRACELET with lock and key, 56 PIECE TEA SET (full size for family use), GOLD FINISHED INITIAL RING. We mean every word we say. To quickly introduce our house and goods we will give away thousands of the above presents ABSOLUTELY FREE. Send us your name and address (no money), and we will mail you, postpaid 15 beautiful stamped DOILIES, different designs, with 15 exquisitely perfumed love charms. Sell the Doilies at 10c. each and give one charm free with each. When sold send us the $1.50 and we will at once send you for selling 15, one Watch-Chain and Charm and a Ring with any letter you wish, together with our offer of a 56 piece Tea Set, etc. PARIS ART CO., B. 5 MONTCLAIR, NEW JERSEY.

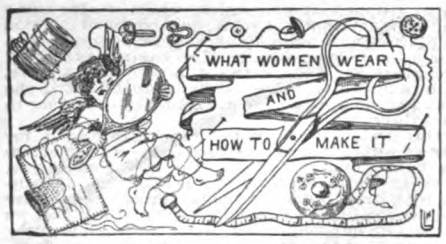
SPANISH NEEDLES, GOLD-ometers, etc., for gold hunters and treasure seekers. Latest improved. Circulars 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

696 New Sample styles of Envelope Silk Fringe CARDS, &c., 20 New Songs, 100 Rich and Racy Jokes, 1 pack Escort Cards, 1 pack Fun Cards, 1 pack Acquaintance Cards and Standard Beau Catcher. ALL FOR TWO CENTS. CROWN CARD CO., Box 26, CADIZ, OHIO.

Solid Gold or Silver plated bracelet sent free to anyone for selling 5 sets of our LADIES GOLD plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set; (each pin set with an exquisite jewel.) Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you the Bracelet. The chain is beautifully engraved and the lock opens with a dainty little key. We trust you and will take back all pins you cannot sell. Write to-day. Address The Maxwell Co., Dept. 535. St. Louis, Mo.

SILVER WATCH FREE! These Watches are Solid Silver, Ladies' or Gents' size, and at retail would cost upwards of $8. or $10, but to introduce our Persian Petrified Perfumery we will send you this Watch Free if you take advantage of our marvelous offer. If you want one CUT THIS OUT write to us without delay. With your letter send us your name & postoffice address and we will send you on consignment, to sell for 5 cents each, 20 cases of Persian Petrified Perfumery and our offer. After you receive the beautiful Watch we shall expect you to show it to your friends and call their attention to this advertisement. The Watch is sent Free, by Registered Post, on your complying with our advertisement, and the marvelous offer which we send, and it is Fully Warranted. You will be more than satisfied. Address at once, PERSIAN PERFUMERY CO., 19 Warren St., New York.

$25.00 IN GOLD GIVEN AWAY.



FLOWER SEEDS WITHOUT MONEY FREE. Magnificent Solid Silver plate Bracelet, beautiful Solid Gold filled ring set with 2 Regent Diamonds and handsome Emerald, American Watch, Autoharp, or a Sewing Machine Free to any one selling 18 packages of our Bouquet Flower Seed Collections. (23 different kinds in each colection) a whole Flower Garden all for 10 cents. "Sell like hot cakes" and you can earn one of these beautiful presents in one day. Order quick. No money required in advance. Send for Seeds, sell the 18 Packages sent you, and return us $1.80. Then we will mail you the Beautiful Present promptly. Address U.S. SEED CO., Box 1540. Boston, Mass. Mention COMFORT.

Diamonds Come High

but we have at last got a good sure glass cutter and while it is not a diamond it works to perfection. It will pay for itself in half an hour's time. How many times one wants to cut down glass to use in windows or picture framing etc. This cutter both cuts and separates very nicely. We will send one free postpaid for every 12c. four-months' subscription. Address, SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

A SILLY fad in dressing the hair has the part on the left side, and brought in a loop across the forehead. It is then gathered in a wavy mass upon the top of the head where it is held by a big shell comb, which serves to tip the hat well over the face, an aid the Spring millinery seems to require, especially the large flat turbans which would otherwise look most ordinary and dowdy. The home milliner must find the style of hat quite simple to make, especially if the frame itself be of coarse straw, so decorative in itself as to require little trimming. A smart turban has its rolling brim draped with a figured black lace veil, the ends tied in a small knot at the back, exactly as if worn for use instead of mere beauty. Around the low crown is a wreath, as it were, of tucked black mousseline de soie, the tucks being about half an inch in width and as close together as they can possibly be set, the threads all evenly drawn so that instead of flat tucks, they present a shirred mass impossible to describe. This is crushed down in front by means of a handsome buckle. Entire hats of this shape are made up of shirred tulle and chiffon so rich in themselves as to require little in the way of decoration.

For rainy day wear there are any number of sensible rigs being worn, among which is one I have especially admired because of its graceful lines as well as its utility for both early Spring and mid-summer wear. It is built of light weight cravenette, in black, the skirt reaching to within an inch or two of the ankles and cut in circular fashion with a broad sweep at the bottom; very free and easy towalk in. Several rows of stitching finish it smartly. The short box coat is double-breasted and fastened with large pearl buttons, four in number. The sleeves are small but easily fitted so as to give play to the arm, in fact the whole rig is built with a view to comfort. With it is worn a round felt hat of black over which a veil can easily be arranged.

The length of all outing skirts for the coming season is considerably longer than usual. Four inches from the ground is the approved length which is just four inches longer than we have been accustomed to, a fact which shows we are influenced by the English fashions to a certain extent.

An unusually up-to-date blouse is made of black taffeta, in spencer style having no yoke, and with but little fullness at the waist, back and front. The entire waist is laid in the tiniest of pin-tucks an inch apart, each stitched heavily with white silk. At the opening in the front is inserted a bit of gorgeous Panne velvet, giving the appearance of a tiny vest, while at either side are arranged the smallest of brass buttons in groups, five at the top and one at the bottom. This, with a satin crushed belt, and a white satin stock drawn through silver rings at the front and tied with narrow scarlet velvet go to make up a stunning bit of finery. The same young woman who designed this waist has built herself another more elaborate garment for theater wear composed of snow white broadcloth and white satin, which is worn with a stunning skirt of palest tan broadcloth, tucked all over, commencing with the finest pin-tucks at the front, gradually widening until the box-pleat at the back is reached.

Many of the new skirts made with a circular flounce have the drop skirt from the flounce only; this latter being of silk while the upper skirt is lined with percaline.

Pleated skirts are especially adapted to the soft silks and Liberty satins so much in vogue. I saw a smart little frock of claret red taffeta, (the pattern a coral design running all over it,) the narrow skirt trimmed fluffily at the bottom with three rows of accordion pleated flounces, laid closely over one another, and lifted slightly at the sides to give the effect of a tunic. The round bodice was softly fulled at the waist, both back and front, and opened widely across the breast with a finish of wide revers in sailor collar effect finished with an edging of point de' sprit and three rows of white velvet ribbon set on in small scallops. A soft scarf of the point de' sprit crossed the breast under the revers and was tied at the left in a big soft bow. The guimpe showing only at the front is made of point de' sprit laid in tiny tucks. It is a gown built on extremely simple lines yet it is wonderfully effective.

Gruesome tales of murder by means of the innocent-looking hat pin will gradually diminish now that the French have invented a new means of adjusting one's hat securely. The new arrangement, which by the way is called a fixette, consists of two little four-pronged forks, slid into guides. These guides are securely sewn to the inside of the hat, on the edge, one on each side. Before placing the hat on the head the fixettes are drawn out to the fullest extent, and when the hat is in position, they are pushed in, fastening the hat in the hair.

No lady's jewel box is complete without the high comb for the back of the hair, either of tortoise or silver richly set with real jewels; a combination of turquoise and diamonds being much in favor.

One of New York's swellest dressmakers assures me there is no more durable sort of material for a "best" black dress than net, much as we may be persuaded to the contrary. It is certainly a good material with which to freshen an old black silk, using it for the foundation.

Baby ribbon velvet in colors as well as in black is seen on all the newest gowns and is always an effective trimming.

A sweetly pretty gown of green and white taffeta has accordion pleated frills of white bordered and headed with rows of black velvet.

There is a fancy for numerous little flat collars on cloth gowns, overlapping each other, and all very nearly the same width.

High heels obtain for all dress occasions; especially is this a fact with the Oxford tie. The low flat heel is correct for all ordinary wear and is the only safe thing for weak ankles. The demand for rubber heels is increasing daily. They have proved a great blessing to mankind and make walking a positive joy. They are easily adjusted to the shoe-heel.

A new Eton jacket has its seams outlined with inch wide straps of the goods, pointed on both ends, the lower end extending an inch below the edge of the coat.

A novelty to accompany the new pleated skirt is in the form of knickerbockers that fit closely about the hips, and are covered with ruffles placed one above the other to within seven inches of the waist line. Made up in ponge or china silk they are suitable for the dark colored summer garment, and may be trimmed alternately with flounces of silk and lace if a dressy effect is desired.

The return of the earring so long predicted has at last become a fact, and we now observe their use is almost universal. At present the one permissible form for this ornament is the "screw," always a solitary stone, diamond, pearl or turquoise, the latter often surrounded with small diamonds. Once in a while is seen an earring having two stones, one suspended from the other by means of the old-fashioned wire catch, but they are rare, and not likely to obtain favor.

THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and fifty-six popular songs sentimental, pathetic and comic with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains.

S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES

Female Weakness, Stooping Posture, Prolapsus, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness, Constipation, and other ills.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset. We have over 15,000 letters like this: Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.

Your Brace did all you said about it and more for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, bearing down pains, lung disease, weak stomach, constipation, painful menstruation, whites and falling womb.

MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain, sealed envelope. Address

The Natural Body Brace Co. Box 27, Salina, Kansas.

Especially adapted to those anticipating motherhood and to nursing mothers.

FREE with every trimmed hat, a pair of fancy curved hat pins.

$1.69 This Very Stylish SPRING HAT value $3 for $1.69

Your money's worth, or your money back.

BE STYLISH, SAVE MONEY.

No. 1900—Black short back sailor effect, brim of fancy straw and crown of Dongola chip. Trimming of stitched black taffeta silk, scarf of heavy white guipure lace over taffeta, a large bow of black taffeta across the front; in the center a very large bunch of shaded violets and foliage. Tab in back so arranged that it will set perfectly on the head. Can be ordered in black, white or colors. For 25c extra we deliver any trimmed hat express charges pre-paid to your nearest express office. Safe delivery guaranteed.

Write for free illustrated Spring and Summer catalogue for 1900.

CHICAGO MAIL ORDER MILLINERY CO., Chicago, Ill. 45-55 E. Jackson Boul.

$3.50 ELGIN A $25.00 Watch

in appearance. The handsomest genuine gold plated watch on the market. Double hunting case, superb SOLID GOLD PATTERN of engraving. Fitted with one of the following celebrated movements, Elgin, Waltham, Century, or genuine imported works guaranteed for

20 YEARS

Cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch to you by express for examination, you examine it at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $3.50, and it is yours. Only one watch to each customer at this price. Mention in your letter whether you want GENTS OR LADIES SIZE and order to-day as we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only.

R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE You can get this Gold Watch, Chain & Charm for selling my remedies. (I give splendid premiums or cash commissions. Write me and I will send six vials of Carson's Liver Pills to sell at 25 cents a vial. Send money when sold. If unsold return pills. My letters will explain all. A. M. CARSON, 3118 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

DOES AWAY WITH GLASSES. EYE NOURISHES, STRENGTHENS SIGHT. EYE FOOD CURES. CO. CINCINNATI, O. WRITE FOR DESCRIPTION. FOOD DISEASED VISION.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR ON THE FACE

We will send FREE securely sealed full information how to remove permanently superfluous hair from the face, neck, arms or any part of the person, without the slightest injury to the skin. Write today. Enclose stamp. It is FREE. Address.

TOILET IMPORTING CO., C. 79, Kalamazoo, Mich.

FLAVORING POWDERS FREE

The Non-Alcoholic Flavors and Spices are twice as strong as the Liquid Flavors and are used by every family. Thousands of boxes of Non-Alcoholic Flavoring Powders, used to flavor Custards, Cakes, Candies, Deserts, etc. to be given away free by W. H. Baird & Co., 516 Century Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars and how to get one dozen boxes absolutely free.

FREE TO BOYS, GIRLS

AND LADIES, FOR ONE DAY'S WORK, Watch, chain and charm, stem wind, sunk second dial, nickel, by selling 20 pkg. XXX Bluing at 10c per pkg. You can have choice of many other valuable premiums: solid gold rings, cameras, tea sets, musical instruments, bicycles, etc. Send no money, send name and address; we will forward bluing and premium list prepaid. When bluing is sold, send us the money and select premium. Write now.

Brockstedt Mercantile House, 806 N. Bdwy., B 5, St. Louis, Mo.

Ladies' or Gents' size FREE

WATCHES, RINGS, WATCH-CHAINS AND CHARMS, &c. As a grand premium, any one can earn this Beautiful Gold Plated Hunting Case Stem Winder Watch, Charm and Chain, a perfect time-keeper, by selling our ELECTRIC LAMP WICKS. They can be sold in a few hours. They are practically indestructible. No trimming; no smoke; no smell.

OUR SPECIAL 90-DAY OFFER, which is apart from the above: Send us your name and address (no money); we will send you 20 wicks, postpaid; sell them at 5 cts. each and remit us $1, and we will mail to your address, free, a Beautiful Gold Plated WATCH-CHAIN AND CHARM, also a Handsome Gold Finished Ring.

ELECTRICAL WICK CO., Dept. B, Orange, N. J.

SEND NO MONEY WITH YOUR ORDER, cut this ad. out and send to us, and we will send you OUR HIGH GRADE DROP CABINET BURDICK SEWING MACHINE by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest freight depot and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, equal to machines others sell as high as $60.00, and THE GREATEST BARGAIN YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay your freight agent Our Special Offer Price, $15.50 and freight charges. The machine weighs 120 lbs. and the freight will average 75 cents for each 500 miles. GIVE IT THREE MONTHS' TRIAL in your own home, and we will return your $15.50 any day you are not satisfied. We sell different makes and grades of Sewing Machines at $8.50, $10.00, $11.00, $12.00 and up, all fully described in Our Free Sewing Machine Catalogue, but $15.50 for this DROP DESK CABINET BURDICK is the greatest value ever offered by any house.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS by unknown concerns who copy our advertisments, offering unknown machines under various names, with various inducements. Write some friend in Chicago and learn who are RELIABLE AND WHO ARE NOT.

THE BURDICK has every MODERN IMPROVEMENT; EVERY GOOD POINT OF EVERY HIGH GRADE MACHINE MADE, WITH THE DEFECTS OF NONE. MADE BY THE BEST MAKER IN AMERICA FROM THE BEST MATERIAL MONEY CAN BUY.

This shows the machine closed to be used as a center table, stand or desk.

This illustration shows the machine open, ready for use.

SOLID QUARTER SAWED OAK DROP DESK CABINET, PIANO POLISHED. One illustration shows machine closed, (head dropping from sight) to be used as a center table, stand or desk; the other open with full length table and head in place for sewing. Four fancy drawers, latest 1899 skeleton frame, carved, paneled, embossed and decorated cabinet finish, finest nickel drawer pulls, rests on 4 casters, ball bearing adjustable treadle genuine Smythfirons stand. Finest large High Arm head, positive four motion feed, self threading vibrating shuttle, automatic bobbin winder, adjustable bearings, patent tension liberator, improved loose wheel, adjustable presser foot, improved shuttle carrier, patent needle bar, patent dress guard, head is handsomely decorated and ornamented and beautifully Nickel Trimmed. GUARANTEED the lightest running, most durable and nearest noiseless machine made. Every known attachment is furnished and our Free Instruction Book tells just how anyone can run it and do either plain or any kind of fancy work. A 20-YEAR BINDING GUARANTEE is sent with every machine. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING to see and examine this machine, compare it with those your storekeeper sells at $40.00 to $60.00, and then if convinced you are saving $25.00 to $40.00, pay your freight agent the $15.50. WE TO RETURN YOUR $15.50 if at any time within three months you say you are not satisfied. ORDER TODAY. DON'T DELAY. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin

REMNANTS

FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK.

A Silken Shower from a Necktie Factory.

ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in odd pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPULAR. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in. Bright, handsome, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast at all NECKTIE FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they have been the past season and they are now burdened with remnants of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand which we are going to give YOU a big trade on. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts, etc., and we can help you out now. We are going to dispose of this immense lot RIGHT OFF. Our packages contain from 99 to 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home; then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONEY doing our work and helping yourself also. Remember these pieces are carefully trimmed, and especially adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Many ladies sell tidies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great price made from these remnants. Order one sample lot now for only 25c. It would cost many dollars bought at a store.

Grand Offer: If you order our great assorted lot AT ONCE, we will give you several rich, bright and beautiful stamped satin pieces; each piece contains nine square inches and being stamped by hand with a graceful design for embroidery, is a great bargain.

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped satin and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroidery silk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price we ask for the remnants; but we know if you ORDER ONE lot we will sell many in your locality, so make this liberal offer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of S k Plush containing 36 square inches.

BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE to all who send 25 cents for 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" the best Home Monthly now published, and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will send free with each package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ornamenting the seams of Crazy Patchwork, or for other ornamental work where Fancy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how pieces for patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join edges, etc.

The book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides directions for taking ART EMBROIDERY STITCHES, comprising the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

Remember we send one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remnants, the assorted stamped satin piece 5 Skeins Embroidery silk; 36 square inches s k plush, and a great 15c. book on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT," all for only 25 cents. Three lots and one year's subscription, 65 cents; five lots $1.00. Address,

COMFORT, Silk Dept. B, Augusta, Maine.

A MIGHTY HEALER

Prof. S. A. Weltmer Brings a Message of Life, Health, Strength and Power to Mankind.

WELTMERISM THE NEW SCIENCE WHICH CURES ALL DISEASE.

PROF. WELTMER.

The mysteries of disease have been transformed into the joys of health by a new science that is as mysterious as it is efficacious. This new science, which is known as Weltmerism, as it takes its name from Prof. S. A. Weltmer, of Nevada, Mo., who originated it, is now endorsed by the press and pulpit. This universal endorsement came about from the fact that this wonderful curative power, which cures disease at a distance just as readily as it does those cases that are personally brought to Nevada for treatment, has been tested in the past two years on more than 100,000 cases of every disease known to man or woman, some acute, others chronic; some were cases of women who suffered every agony from diseases common to their sex; and others from men who suffered debilitation from indiscretions; in fact there is no affliction known that was not tested by this wonderful method of Magnetic Healing and it is recorded that in every instance relief was almost instantly brought on and in more than ninety per cent. a permanent cure was effected. So tremendously successful has been Weltmerism in the curing of disease that all skepticism has been dispelled and scientists throughout the civilized world proclaim that on account of Weltmerism it can now be said for the first time in the history of the world that the curing of disease, is brought into the domain of an exact science, and in all diseases, no matter what their nature, a cure can be effected. We have received from the hands of Prof. J. H. Kelly, the noted scientist, who is a co-laborer of Prof. Weltmer, a few of the many testimonials that are in his possession.

T. T. Rodes, of Paris, Mo., the Prosecuting Attorney for Monroe County, suffered for years from Sciatic Rheumatism. Tried everything without benefit. Was instantly cured through Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. Mr. Rodes has recently won fame as the attorney in the celebrated Jester case. Mrs. C. R. Graham, of Boise City, Iowa, was afflicted for nine years with rheumatism; she could not walk without crutches or lift her hands to her head; she paid out $3,000 with doctors before coming to Nevada. She now proclaims herself cured and a happy woman, through Weltmerism. Mrs. D. H. Allen, of Aurora Springs, Mo., was in a hopeless condition, as she suffered from consumption in its worst form. She could not sleep without the aid of morphine. Tried everything without relief. Fully restored by Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. D. E. Alford, of Reubens, Jewell Co., Kan., suffered for three years with Kidney and Stomach troubles; tried the best medical authorities but was told that his case was hopeless. Took Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment and in three days was cured. Mrs. Jennie L. Lynch, Lakeview, Mo., was for two years afflicted with ulceration of the womb, heart and stomach troubles, and general debility, was reduced to a mere skeleton. After taking gallons of obnoxious medicines without relief, she tried the Weltmer Absent Treatment. In less than thirty days she was entirely relieved and gained fifteen pounds.

Anyone writing to Prof. S. A. Weltmer, Nevada, Mo., will receive free of charge a 40-page illustrated magazine and a list of testimonials from men and women who owe their health and happiness to Weltmerism; also, much information on this science of healing.

Teaches His Method to Others.

The method of Magnetic Healing (Weltmerism), while a mysterious force, is at the same time a natural one, it is a power lying dormant in every human being brought into the world, and only needs to be brought to the surface. Prof. S. A. Weltmer in an interview stated that anyone who wished could learn this grand profession, and any one who learns it can practice it. This has been abundantly proven by the many students of the American School of Magnetic Healing, of which Prof. S. A. Weltmer is President; and Prof. J. H. Kelly is Sec'y, for students of this school are now practicing with grand success, the healing art, through Weltmerism. It can be said without hesitancy that this is the best paying profession of the age for the students who are now practicing, report that they are earning from $20 to $50 per day; this is not strange, when one considers that disease is the greatest enemy of the human race. It is a foe to success, happiness and contentment, and this wonderful power, known as Weltmerism, dispels disease and vanquishes this foe without the aid of either medicine or the surgeon's knife; and then again, all other professions are overcrowded, while it is impossible to overcrowd a profession that cures disease, especially when statistics tell us that over eighty per cent. of the human race are suffering from diseases of every nature. Prof. S. A. Weltmer is very anxious to have others take up his noble profession and assist him in his grand work, for his method of healing has now become so famous that he must call upon others to assist him; he will, therefore, teach his method of Magnetic Healing, known as Weltmerism to any man or woman who will write him. He will teach them by mail or personal instructions, he makes the statement that a student becomes as efficient in the curing power as himself in ten days time. Any one who wishes to take advantage of this grand offer and become possessed of not only the grandest, but at the same time the best paying profession of the age, can do so by addressing Prof. J. H. Kelly, Sec'y, Nevada, Mo., who will send you full instructions free of charge.

PROF. KELLY Sec'y and Treas.

How Sugar is Made from Trees.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE first white settlers landed on the bleak shores of New England in December. When the warm days of the next spring began to melt the snow which covered the ground, the new comers discovered, among many other strange things about this wild country, that the native Indians had a way of making sugar from the trees of the forest. This art the white men soon learned from the red men, and their descendants in New England, Canada, and almost all of the northern United States have followed it to this day.

The Indians hacked the bark of the maple trees with their axes, and caught the sap which bled from the cuts in rude wooden troughs. This sap they boiled until it thickened into sugar and then they stored it in little baskets of birch bark. The product was scanty and dark in color. The white men have changed the process and utensils by many ingenious inventions, so that the product has been improved in quality and the crop increased in quantity, until now the annual yield is hundreds of thousands of tons. In two respects, though, white men and red men have worked on equal terms. No tree but the maple has been found to yield sugar sap, and this sap will run only when the conditions of climate and weather are favorable.

The sugar maple tree grows to the best advantage in northern New England and Lower Canada. The best flow of sap will not be found so far south that the ground is not covered with snow throughout the winter. With the first warm days of February and March, as the snow begins to soften beneath the more direct rays of the sun, the sap in the maples begins to flow from the roots to the branches, on which the buds will soon be swelling.

The largest sugar orchards are usually back on the sides of the mountains, where the first growth of trees has not been cut. The maple trees in such a forest are often well towards a hundred feet tall, of enormous girth, and with their huge trunks extending far up among the tops of the other trees before they begin to branch. Other orchards of what are called "second growth" trees have sprung up in the pastures, nearer the villages, and these, although the trees are not nearly so large, are quite as productive, since the easier access to the sunlight which they afford seems to make the sap sweeter and more plentiful.

The sugar maker's work begins with shoveling out the road into the sugar place, for often at that time of the year the snow will be four feet deep there. The snow must also be shoveled off from the roof of the sugar house, and away from the door, so that an entrance can be made. The sugar house is a small, wooden building, placed nearly in the center of the sugar place. In it is a large brick arch, and there will also be stored the buckets and other necessary utensils. A fair sized sugar orchard will contain five hundred trees, scattered over about twenty acres of ground. More than five hundred buckets will be required for that number of trees, since two buckets can be placed at each of the largest trees. The buckets are made of wood or tin and hold about four gallons each.

SUGAR WOODS.

Two or three men will work together in a sugar camp, for after the work has commenced it is often necessary for the pans to be kept boiling night and day. This is because the sap will sour and spoil if allowed to stand for many hours after being gathered. The man who boils nights sleeps days on a bed of hemlock boughs in one corner of the sugar house, and his companions who work during the day, occupy the same bed at night. After the run fairly begins the men rarely go home, except for food, especially if they are working in one of the more distant mountain sugar places. It is a life with all the charm and invigoration of camping out. Potatoes are baked in the ashes before the arch, and meat broiled on a crotched stick held out before the glowing fire of wood. Tea and coffee made from maple sap are just sweet enough to be palatable, and eggs can be boiled in a tin pail hung by a string from a rafter to a level where it will just swing in the boiling, bubbling sap in the pan. The air of the sunny mornings is heavy with the moisture of the melting snow. At night the stars shine through a tracery of branches, and the frost stiffens the soft snow into a crust stout enough to bear a man. In mountain orchards the owls hoot at night their calls and answers to one another, and sometimes the ugly scream of a lynx is heard far off in the darkness. If there comes a light fall of snow in the night, the men, when they first go out in the morning may sometimes find the tracks of a bear.

The trees are tapped by boring a half-inch hole through the bark, to a depth of about an inch into the live wood. A small, tubular, metal spout is driven into the hole and through this the sap flows into the buckets, hung either from the spout or from a nail driven into the tree. There are now many different kinds of spouts and fastenings, but this description explains the general principles. Some buckets have movable covers to keep out the dirt, mice and squirrels, for these small animals as well as raccoons and bears have a sweet tooth which makes them active in the sugar place. Mice and squirrels usually get drowned in the sap, if there is enough in the bucket: bears will often knock down the buckets from a dozen trees.

The sap falls a drop at a time. It flows fastest on a sunny morning after a sharp frost the night before. Sometimes it will stop running almost entirely for days at a time, and as the snow melts and the warm days of spring come it ceases. As the sugar-makers say, "The trees dry up."

If the snow is very deep when sugaring begins the men are obliged to work on snow shoes, bringing all the sap to the sugar house in two pails, suspended one at each end of a wooden "sap-yoke" worn across the shoulders. It requires no small degree of skill to carry such a load down a steep mountain side, through underbrush, and over treacherous snow into which even a snow shoe may sink at any minute. As the snow melts, roads are broken out among the trees and a steady horse drags a rude sled on which is chained a big "draw-tub." The sap is poured into this tub and drawn to the sugar house, where it is transferred to "holders" in which it is stored until it can be boiled. A blazing fire of wood is kept roaring in the arch. On the arch will be a "heater", a capacious tank of tin or iron, and a broad, shallow iron pan. The cold sap is first put into the "heater." As soon as it is brought to the boiling point it is drawn into the pan, the broad surface of which rapidly hastens evaporation. Half a day's boiling brings the contents of the pan, which have been frequently replenished from the heater, down to the consistency of thick syrup. This is removed and set aside to cool and settle. The settling process will often deposit at the bottom of a tub containing several gallons of syrup, as many pints of a minutely fine, brown sediment called "nitre," or "sugar sand." Where this comes from no one knows, but its origin is not half so mysterious as the fact that on some years this foreign substance will be absolutely wanting, while again, from the very same trees, with exactly the same treatment, quarts of it will be present.

Much of the product of the orchards is marketed and eaten as syrup, an average price being one dollar a gallon. If sugar is to be made, the syrup, cooled and settled, is put back into the pan for another boiling. It is necessary to watch the fire more closely now, as the thicker the contents of the pan become the more likely it is to scorch. It is also apt to boil up and run over the sides of the pan, but if it threatens to do this a few drops of sweet cream sprinkled into the golden mass breaks the cohesiveness of the bubbles and the mass settles back to its proper level. The sugar maker takes a birch branch and ties a knot in the slender end of the twig. When he wants to know if the sugar is "done enough" he dips the end of the twig into the boiling contents of the pan and blows quickly through the knot. If the film of sugar which adhered to the opening flies out in a string of golden bubbles he knows that the sugar has boiled long enough. The pan is removed from the arch and the contents poured into tin or wooden buckets. Although still a boiling hot liquid, the sugar hardens as it cools until it becomes a rich brown, granular mass, delicious to eat, and convenient and wholesome to use for sweetening food. Maple sugar sells for from fifteen to five cents a pound, depending upon quality and the earliness with which it can be put upon the market. The amount made varies greatly from year to year. An orchard of five hundred trees ought to yield a crop worth from fifty dollars to one hundred and fifty dollars. The annual yield of the Northern United States and Canada is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Chinese are said to have used clocks 800 years before the Christian era.

A WORD TO ADVERTISERS.

Many advertisers get discouraged attempting the placing of their own advertisements. They forget that there is an infinite amount of detail work when they first order and it soon becomes too burdensome to give a proper amount of attention to the regular routine of business. All this care and much money may be saved by putting the whole advertising business in the hands of experts who make it a business to know how and what to do in advertising. The agency of Nelson Chesman & Co., St. Louis, Mo., has had twenty-five years' experience and has been the foundation of success in the life of many advertisers, who have had the good sense to appreciate the greater value of expert work over their own amateur efforts. Every advertiser should write them on this subject.

$500.00 IN GOLD FREE.

E	O	W	A
X	R	A	C
I	K	H	A
C	Y	O	G
O	N	C	A

HERE is a chance to use your Brains and Win $500.00 in Gold. We want you to try and arrange these 20 jumbled letters printed in the block square to the left which properly arranged will spell the names of 3 large cities in the World, two of these cities being in the United States, the other one being a Mexican City. In making the 3 names the letters can only be used as many times as they appear and no letter can be used which does not appear. After you have found the 3 correct names you will have used every letter in the 20 exactly as many times as it appears. If you cannot find the 3 correct names but only find 2, you will receive a special prize for your trouble worth $1. If you answer this puzzle at once you will not be disappointed. Some one is going to win the money and it may be you. Anyway it does not cost you any money to try. All we ask is that should you be a successful contestant that you will secure for us one yearly subscriber to our Handsome Illustrated Monthly Magazine. This we can truthfully say is the very hardest puzzle ever advertised, so get out your Geography and look for these 3 cities. The correct names are only known to the President of this Company. The envelope containing the three names has been sealed and deposited with a leading Banking Co. in Boston, and will only be opened the day after the contest closes, April 26th. This we believe is the only honest way of conducting a contest, as everyone has an equal chance. In case more than one person succeeds in finding the three correct names we will divide the money equally. In addition to the $500.00 in gold we will give you an opportunity to Win

$5.00 A WEEK FOR LIFE FREE

-- OR --

$250.00 A YEAR FOR LIFE FREE

WITHOUT ANY LABOR OR EXPENSE.

We are going to give to some one who has entered this contest and who complies with the conditions as stated above an opportunity to win and secure from us without any labor or expense on their part $5 every week during their natural life. We mean just what we say. There is no deception and no trickery about this offer. If you are the lucky one, and we hope you are, for some one will get it, we will send the winner every week during their natural life $5, or else $250 every year in advance for life, whichever way they prefer. Do not throw this contest aside and say, Oh, pshaw! I have answered puzzles before and never got anything, or else only secured a few cents for my trouble, for if you do this you will regret it as long as you live. Someone is going to win the money, and it may be you. No one can tell, anyway it does not cost you one cent, as we do not want any money from you. Are the prizes worth trying for? We think they are, for $5 a week paid to you for life will keep one from the Poorhouse, and to those who have a small income, it will supply them with many a necessity which one has to do without in these hard times. Of course we are strangers to you, and you have no assurance except our word that we are financially able to carry out the promises we make. If you have the least doubt, we would be pleased to have you look us up. We are a responsible company, with a paid up capital of one hundred thousand dollars, composed of honorable and well known business men of Boston. We want to secure a large list of subscribers to our Magazine, and will leave no stone unturned to accomplish by honest methods only, our object. Every one entering this contest will receive honest treatment, and you will have the same chance whether you live in California or Massachusetts. Distance makes no difference. After you have carefully arranged the twenty jumbled letters into the three cities which you think are right, send your answer to us at once, enclosing a two-cent stamp for reply and you will immediately receive an answer telling you whether you are a successful contestant, and we will also send you full particulars how you can win $5 a week for life. Don't delay as this is positively the last time this advertisement will appear in this paper.

The Bernard-Richards Co., Ltd., 102 E. Broad St., Boston, Mass.

We Defy the World to produce as good a wheel as the Arlington & Oakwood. Strictly high-grade, quality, material and construction unsurpassed. A marvel of beauty and strength, thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Shipped anywhere at lowest wholesale prices Money refunded if not as represented. No money in advance.

$16.50

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 "Arlington" $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

We belong to no trust or combine—employ no agents. You pay but one small profit—and our enormous cash sales enable us to give the best value ever offered. Illustrated Catalogue Free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

$10.00 TO $30.00 and expenses can be made EVERY DAY with OUR NEW IMPROVED GRAPHOPHONE TALKING MACHINE. PRICE REDUCED TO $5.00. You Can Make Big Money with our exhibition outfit. We furnish Talking Machine, Advertising Posters, Admission Tickets, and Book of Instructions telling you how to conduct the business, how to make $10.00 to $30.00 every day. YOU CAN EXAMINE THE OUTFIT before paying for it. For full particulars cut this notice out and mail to us. Address SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.), Chicago, Ill.

Know Thy Fortune

You can learn in one hour, by printed instructions, to tell your fortune, and others, with the world-famed ZENOBA (Queen of Gypsies) fortune-telling cards. Each playing-card has its meaning printed upon its face. Amusing, interesting, sensational, instructive and profitable. Mailed sealed for 54 cents in stamps.
GYPSY CARD COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA.

LADIES WANTED to canvass, and appoint agents, for Corsets, Bustles, and great variety of Skirts, from muslin up to silk. Splendid profits. Samples free. J. E. WOOD & CO., 312 So. Warren St., Syracuse, N. Y.

RUPTURE CURED while you work. You pay $4 when cured. No cure, no pay. ALEX. SPEIRS, Box 17, WESTBROOK, MAINE.

RHEUMATISM IS DEAD!

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy for Rheumatism and it made a record of absolute cures in Acute Rheumatism, frequently called rheumatic fever, Pericarditis (inflammation of the investing membrane of the heart), Endocarditis (inflammation of the living membrane of the heart), subacute rheumatism, sometimes applied to the less severe attacks of the disease, chronic rheumatism, which swells and twists the joints and sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. In fact Oxien is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism in any form. Thousands jump for joy and many write as follows:

Received OXIEN O. K. Found it far superior to what you represent. Have tried everything I could hear of for rheumatism. For ten years I have been crippled up with this terrible disease. Laid in bed one whole year. Could not turn or feed myself and when I was able to walk on crutches (which I did for four years) was crooked and unable to straighten up, but Oxien did it and you can imagine how happy I am now. Yours sincerely, Geo. F. Lawton, Olympia, Wash., Feby. 9th, 1898.

FREE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.

This momentous offer we make in order to more thoroughly introduce this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us their word that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered entitled to free treatment. Therefore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.

THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

COMFORT

THE KEY TO

A Million and a Quarter Homes

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World

Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.
Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 50c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.
POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions.
COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.
New York Office, Tribune Building. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Guaranteed Circulation:
ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,
Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

A suggestive bit of news is found in the statement of the sale of the original manuscript of Kipling's poem "The Absent Minded Beggar." This was written to aid the wives and children of the soldiers ordered to South Africa. Mr. Beecham of England has paid $521 for the manuscript. His name is well known to all newspaper readers in connection with a famous patent medicine. Pills, poetry and philanthropy are a peculiar combination in fact as well as alliteration, but the three "p's" seem to meet through Mr. Beecham's act.

The well-known English dramatic critic Clement Scott wears a gold bracelet very much in evidence upon his left wrist. Men of the Latin races adorn themselves with jewelry that seems exclusively feminine and wear an ear ring or a bracelet for seeming love of display. With us of the Anglo-Saxon race such a display always presents two possibilities. We either suspect a peculiar mental twist or the possibility of a romance. When a plain middle aged Englishman, who seems the personification of common sense startles us in this way, we waver between a verdict of personal vanity or of hidden romance. It is much more entertaining to think that the bracelet is a keepsake with a history, for romance not ashamed to show its record of a capacity for feeling is rare enough in this prosaic age. The other possibility for such display shows such a trivial side to a man that the curiosity that the novel adornment excites develops into mirth at the mental gauge of a man who finds bracelet wearing his only hold upon public attention.

The unwritten side to the Boer war and the war in the Philippines is the side of the women who wait with silent unspoken dread for "news from the front." The tragedies of waiting and of strained expectation of heart-breaking news are too real to be expressed volubly. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe appreciated this to the full. The woman who could write the glorious swinging jubilant lines of the Battle Hymn of the Republic could also appreciate what war means to women. Her most ambitious work was the proposal to call a congress of the representative women of the world—in the interest of discouraging war. The congress never met but the credit for the idea lies with the woman whose name is associated with one of the most famous war poems. The English poems relating to the Boer war indicate two things—First, a wholesome admiration of the stubborn bravery of the little Dutch republic shown in hundreds of poems, and secondly a feeling that the prophecy of Kipling's Recessional is being realized in the sternest manner.

The movement toward building a memorial arch to the Navy has aroused a fresh interest in our naval heroes. One outcome has been the wish to bring to America the body of our first naval hero John Paul Jones. His story is a stirring romance, full of wild adventure; he was the first to raise our flag, the Stars and Stripes, over a craft that was launched in the waters of the Delaware. His daring conquests when he commanded the Bonhomme Richard are matters of well-known history. He died in Paris in semi-obscurity and the knowledge of his last resting place has been lost for years. Recent investigations have fixed the place without the shadow of a doubt. It is a fitting and gracious recognition of his service to the nation to bring home his ashes to the land that he helped make great. We have won great distinction through the navy but John Paul Jones was the pioneer in our victories by sea.

It is an old proverb that republics are ungrateful but fulfillment of this purpose would go far to disprove the truth of the statement. By all means let us bring the body of our victorious naval commander to rest in the land he fought for so bravely.

Occasionally the people of America give evidence of the fact that all sense of beauty is not lost in a struggle for wealth. The many critics of our manners and our ideals continually assert that we are purely commercial and mercenary. One of the best arguments against this idea is the growing purpose to preserve historic buildings, mark historic sites and preserve natural beauties. All readers of our daily papers are aware of the growth of this sort of interest. No one project of the many in this line has met with warmer support than the attempt to save the beautiful Palisades of the Hudson from total destruction by a company of contractors who are blasting the rocks into oblivion. The club women of New Jersey have kept up a constant agitation in the subject. A commission urges that the land be made into a National park and placed under Federal jurisdiction. New York will be asked to contribute a large sum while the state of New Jersey does the same to compensate private property owners. The project should meet with universal acceptance, for the Palisades are an old historic landmark as well as a piece of majestic scenery.

It is a trite saying that history repeats itself. We become so accustomed to the idea that we fail to realize its truth and force until some definite illustration is given. Away back in the reign of George II. the ideas of speculation seemed to develop. France had a wild scheme known as the Law plan by which fortunes were to be made in a minute. England had its South Sea Bubble in which shares in a slave selling project rose in a few days from $500 to $5000. Hundreds of similar schemes developed from making butter from beechnuts to selling shares in a company the object of which was to be disclosed later. Of course the crash came in each instance. We smile patronizingly at the credulity of the victims and yet we find practical proof of the fact that history repeats itself because human nature does not alter. In Brooklyn a concern called the Franklin Syndicate promised to pay a dollar a week interest on sums of ten dollars and over. This was a rate of 520 per cent. a year. Did the shrewd people at the century's end show any better common sense than those of the earlier days? No, they flocked to the offices and deposited their wealth in sums from dollars to thousands. They even scorned the investigation by postal authorities and police. The old story of credulity and greed was repeated over and over again. Millions passed into the hands of the head of the "Syndicate" and history repeated itself. The bubble burst. Humanity has progressed greatly during the century. Improvements and inventions have changed the aspect of the world. The one unchanged thing is human nature and it is that human nature that causes history to repeat itself.

One is sometimes led to wonder what peculiar conditions produce the statistical mind. We are all familiar with paragraphs like the following: "The quantity of beer consumed annually throughout the world would form a lake three and three-quarters miles long, one mile wide and six feet deep and would have a commercial valuation of one billion and eighty millions dollars." Now what must be the mental characteristics of a man who will spend some hundreds of the precious minutes between the cradle and the grave in such intellectual gymnastics as that! If he were a human lightning calculating machine he might get the cold facts in figures of the annual consumption of beer or the size of the vault that would hold the Vanderbilt wealth in bullion. He might give facts and figures in regard to a thousand and one things that can be measured in arithmetical terms. But no, this statistical fiend must mix fancy with his facts and figures and summon up weird nightmares by the grotesque pranks that his fancy plays with his figures. He tells us that the oysters consumed in New York in one week laid end to end would reach around the world. Not content with this slippery circling of the globe with bivalves he contemplates the problem of the length of time it would take a man to swallow this equator of eatables. He deduces the figures that if the man swallowed two a minute it would take him until he was one hundred years old to dispose of the globe circling oysters. There seems to be a conspiracy among the newspapers to encourage this maddening process by using the paragraphs to fill in stray space. So whether one wishes it or not he finds himself the possessor of some such quaint and curious production of integers and imagination. The effect on the human mind is disintegrating. There is a strong temptation to verify the figures or else there is a haunting wish to indulge in idle speculation as to the facts and fancy of anything that will lend itself to figures. On the whole the statistical mind is probably an intensely egotistical one. It is the desire to astonish someone; to hear wonder expressed that a fact may be so curious; it is this that leads these imaginative arithmetical fiends to render life a burden to casual readers.

$2.98 A SNAP! A BARGAIN.

This beautiful dress skirt, worth $6.00 for $2.98

SEND NO MONEY with your order.

Cut this out and send with order, giving waist measure, length of skirt and color and we will send you this beautiful dress skirt to your nearest express office. Examine it, and if as represented and the biggest bargain you ever saw, pay agent $2.98 and expressage, and the skirt is yours, or will send by mail, prepaid, on receipt of $3.38. This is the new 1900 style skirt, tailor made, of black or blue Storm Serge, silk stitched seams, double box pleated back, trimmed with silk cord and satin applique braiding, well lined, well bound. Sizes up to 30 in. waist and 45 in. length.

FREE—Write for our handsome Spring & Summer Catalog, No. 200, of Jackets, Capes, Suits, Waists, etc. A postal brings it free.

M. PHILIPSBORN, 158 State St., Chicago.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

Suits to Measure $6.00 to $12.00

BIG LINE. $6.00 TO $12.00.

GOOD ASSORTMENT up to $18.00. We send them to anyone, to be paid for after received, tried on and found perfect in fit and entirely satisfactory; a class of fine tailoring possessing a distinctiveness in Style, Workmanship, Finish and Fit seldom found outside of the most fashionable city tailoring establishments. FOR SAMPLES OF CLOTH of our ENTIRE LINE of CUSTOM TAILORING Suitings, Trouserings, Fancy Vestings, etc., also tape measure, fashion plate, plain, simple self-measurement blanks, cut this ad. out and send to us with 2-cent stamp to pay postage and COMPLETE OUTFIT WILL BE SENT TO YOU POSTPAID.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) CHICAGO, ILL.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT HOME; $1.50 a day; four months work guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

Thin People Colethia cures extreme leanness and makes MADE thin people plump in a natural healthful way. PLUMP. Every ingredient is health-giving and fat producing. Send $1 for package or 20c. for trial package and particulars to LEABEG CO., 154 Nassau St., New York.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

★ FULL SIZE ★ ★ GOOD PAPER ★

2½ cts. SHEET MUSIC a Copy

★ LARGE TYPE ★ ★ UNABRIDGED ★

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFERED AT THIS TIME.

No.	PIANO OR ORGAN.
165	American Liberty March	Cook
101	Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step	Cook
247	Artist's Life Waltzes	Strauss
181	Auld Lang Syne. Variations	Durkee
187	Austrian Songs. Op. 69, 1	Pacher
215	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive	Anderson
179	Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands	Streabbog
227	Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes	Strauss
65	Bells of Corneville. Potpourri	Elson
213	Black Hawk Waltzes	Walsh
221	Bluebird Echo Polka	Morrison
199	Boston Commandery March	Carter
109	Bridal March from Lohengrin	Wagner
229	Bryan and Sewall March	Noles
133	Cadences and Scales in all Keys	Czerny
1	Catherine Waltzes	Stroh
237	Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands	Behr
145	Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step	Missud
217	Cleveland's March	Noles
81	Coming from the Races Galop	Wheeler
211	Corn Flower Waltzes	Coote, Jr
41	Crack Four March	Ashton
71	Crystal Dew Waltz	Durkee
235	Day Dawn Polka	Cook
163	Dewey's Grand Triumphal March	Marcel
117	Echoing Trumpets March	Noles
121	Electric Light Galop	Durkee
91	Estella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Robinson
107	Ethel Polka	Simons
155	Evergreen Waltz	Stoddard
231	Faust. Selections	Durkee
77	Fifth Nocturne	Leybach
233	Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz	Lasaide
239	Flower Song. Op. 39.	Lange
97	Fresh Life	Spindler
177	Frolic of the Frogs.	Watson
49	Full of Ginger. March Galop.	Nutting
183	Golden Rain. Nocturne	Cloy
147	Grand Commandery March—Two Step	Missud
53	Greeting of Spring, op. 21	Schultze
185	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Richards
173	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes	Jewell
139	Home, Sweet Home. Transcription	Slack
17	Impassioned Dream Waltzes	Rosas
153	Jenny Lind polka Four hands	Muller
157	Last Hope. Meditation	Gottschalk
195	Leap Year Schottische	Kahn
159	Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop	Durkee
249	Lohengrin. Selections	Durkee
141	London March—Two Step	Missua
99	Maiden's Prayer, The	Badarzewska
45	March Winds Galop	Mansfield
240	Martha Selections	Johnson
207	May Breezes. Four hands	Krug
225	McKinley and Hobart March	Turner
55	Memorial Day March	Hewitt
131	Monastery Bells. Nocturne	Wely
89	Morning Dew, op. 18	Smith
61	Morning Star Waltz	Zahn
201	Music Box, The. Caprice	Liebich
137	My Love Polka	Zichrer
125	My Old Kentucky Home. Variations	Cook
87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations
175	National Songs of America	Blake
135	Nightingale's Trill, op. 81	Kullak
123	Old Folks at Home. Transcription	Blake
171	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations	Durkee
219	On the Wave Waltz	Dinsmore
197	Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step	Robinson
245	Orvetta Waltz	Spencer
9	Our Little Agnes. Waltz	Gregoire
191	Over the Waves Waltz	Rosas
79	Please Do Waltz	Durkee
193	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	Brunner
167	Red, White and Blue Forever. March	Blake
143	Richmond March—two-step	Missud
245	Rustic Waltz	Schumann
127	Rustling Leaves. Idylle	Lange
39	Ruth, Esther and Marion Schottische.	Cohen
149	Salem Witches March—Two-Step	Missud
189	Schubert's Serenade. Transcription	Liszt
161	Silvery Waves. Variations	Wyman
169	Smith's (General) March	Martin
31	Song of the Voyager	Paderewski
22	Souvenir March Song of 1895 K. T. Parade	Dow
95	Spirit Lake Waltz	Simons
151	Storm, The. Imitation of Nature	Weber
73	Storm Mazurka	Keefer
109	Sultan's Band March.	Brown
209	Sweet Long Ago. Transcription	Blake
115	Tornado Galop	Arbuckle
103	Trifet's Grand March, op. 182	Wedel
223	Twilight Echoes. Song without words	Jewell
113	Under the Double Eagle March	Wagner
129	Venetian Waltz	Ludovic
205	Village Parade Quickstep	Allen
7	Visions of Light. Waltz	Cook
203	Warblings at Eve	Richards
93	Waves of the Ocean March	Blake
59	Wedding March	Mendelssohn
85	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem.	Howe
119	Woodland Whispers Waltzes	Stanley
105	Zephyr Waltz.	Bragg

No.	VOICE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
236	Across the Bridge	Le Brunn
2	Annie's Love. Duet for Sop. and Ten.	Winter
27	Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni
140	Beacon Light of Home	Estabrooke
134	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet	Glover
238	Bells of Seville	H. Jude
162	Ben Bolt, of "Trilby" fame	Kneass
226	Blue Eyes	Elson
246	Boyhood Days, Chorus	Fritz
200	Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow	Carew
192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keep a Secret?	Estabrooke
122	Changeless	Trotere
214	Childhood's Happy Hours	Dinsmore
138	Christmas Carol	Turner
190	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Schumann
168	Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk	Blake
92	Cow Bells, The. Boyhood's Recollection	Grimm
176	Darling Nellie Gray	Hanby
70	Dear Heart, We're Growing Old	Estabrooke
128	Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp.	Hoover
50	Easter Eve. Sacred	Gounod
220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory	Bosfeld
19	'E Dunno Where 'E Are. Comic	Eplett
72	Ellaline. Waltz song	Betts
180	Far Away	Bliss
182	Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
126	Far from the Hearthstone	Messer
152	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic	Mathiot
156	Flag, The. Quartette	Fox
144	Flirting in the Starlight	Delano
8	Flossie. Waltz Song	Cohen
138	For a Dream's Sake	Cowen
36	For the Colors. Patriotic	Wilson
66	For You We are Praying at Home	Estabrooke
166	From our Home the Loved are Going	Percy
202	Give a Kiss to Me	Percy
178	God Bless My Kind Old Mother	Jewell
204	Golden Moon	Iran
150	Gypsy Countess. Duet	Glover
198	Heart of My Heart	Robinson
184	I Can't Forget the Happy Past	Skelly
74	In Sweet September	Temple
248	In Shadowland	Pinsuti
188	In the Starlight. Duet	Glover
28	Juanita. Ballad	May
242	Kathleen Mavourneen	Crouch
196	Killarney	Balfe
132	Kiss me, but don't say goodbye	Rutledge
130	Kiss that bound my Heart to thine	Keil
164	Larboard Watch. Duet	Williams
146	Listen to the Mocking Bird	Hawthorne
48	Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet	Estabrooke
154	Little Voices at the Door	Danks
96	Lost Chord, The	Sullivan
106	Lottie Bell	Gilbert
40	Love Ever Faithful	Bucalossi
68	Lovely Little Nellie Dwyer	Casey
25	Lurline, Do you think of me now?	Estabrooke
234	Margaretta	Balfe
112	Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard	Keeler
230	Memories of my Mother. Chorus	Allen
30	Mission of a Rose, The. Song	Cowen
52	Mother's Cry, A. (Salvation Army)	Adriance
172	Mother's Welcome at the Door	Estabrooke
222	Musical Dialogue. Duet	Helmund
232	Must the Sweet Tie that binds	Estabrooke
76	My Home by the Old Mill	O'Halloran
110	My Little Lost Irene	Danks
170	My Old Kentucky Home	Foster
216	Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain.	Dinsmore
228	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber)	Foster
60	Old Glory. National	Woods
102	Old Sexton, The	Russell
104	On the Banks of the Beautiful River	Estabrooke
90	On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad	Robinson
160	Outcast, An. Character Song	Fritz
174	Parted from our Dear Ones	Keller
100	Picture of My Mother, The	Skelly
148	Poor Girl didn't know. Comic.	Cooke
56	Precious Treasure. Song and Dance	Weiler
136	Request. Sacred	Grainger
208	Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	Knight
142	Rosemonde	Chaminade
80	See Those Living Pictures	Guth
224	Shall I Ever See Mother's Face Again?	Adriance
194	She Sleeps among the Daisies	Dinsmore
124	Softly shine the Stars of Evening	Dinsmore
210	Son's Return, The	Fritz
120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive	Hullah
10	Sweetest Song, The	Denza
32	Sweet Long Ago, The	Estabrooke
46	That Word was Hope. Waltz song	Nutting
118	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds	Danks
206	There's Sure to be a Way	Delano
158	Thinking of Home and Mother	Cohen
116	'Tis True, Dear Heart, We're Fading	Estabrooke
108	Tread softly the Angels are calling	Turner
38	True to the Last	Adams
64	Vicar of Bray, The. Old English Song
62	Your Mother's Love for You	Koppt
84	What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet	Glover
58	When the Roses are Blooming Again	Skelly
86	When Winter Days Have Gone	Trayne
186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic	Randall
212	Why am I ever Watching	de Lasaide
218	Why do Summer Roses Fade	Barker

DON'T FORGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-five cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.
Any 10 for 25 cents.
Any 21 for 50 cents.
Any 43 for $1.00.
Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any six of the above pieces free as a premium, and for 25c will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

HYPNOTIZED COONS.

CAKE WALK AND TWO STEP

W. G. WILMARTH.

Copyright, 1899, by W. G. WILMARTH. Entered at Stationers Hall, London, England. Published by Henry White, Washington, D. C.

F. H. GILSON COMPANY, MUSIC TYPOGRAPHERS, BOSTON, U. S. A.

POWER IN PIANO-PLAYING.

Very seldom does a musician recognize the fact that it takes a great amount of power to play a piano or organ, but science here as elsewhere has demonstrated that successful playing is by no means as easy as it looks and that the aggregate of power expended even in a simple piece is almost incredible.

The softest note seems to require absolutely no exertion and yet less force expended was what brought about the invention of the steam engine. It was the lifting of the kettle-lid which showed James Watts the expansive power of steam, and it takes more power to sound the delicate note. You can easily prove this by taking a handful of coins and placing them one after another on a single key until it is depressed and then weighing the pile. The weight of sufficient coins to produce this result will represent the exact force expended on a light note. For fortissimo playing much greater exertion is necessary and calculations show that a force equal to six pounds weight is necessary at times on a single key.

It is more difficult to find the power necessary on chords, for there it is not necessary to expend three times the force used on a single key; for though undoubtedly a much greater force is used than on a single key it is spread out through the various fingers to the different keys. By this one readily sees why professional players so often have a remarkable development of muscles. At one time athletes were trained for contests with heavy weights but now nothing of the kind is done and light exercise calculated to develop the muscles, while, at the same time, making them flexible is the rule. With this idea in mind one appreciates that a conscientious player unconsciously takes a great amount of physical exercise of the best character in even her ordinary playing.

To give a slight idea of the tremendous force really brought into play a few scientists figured up a test, taking as an example Chopin's last study in minor C. It takes two and a half minutes to play this and most careful tests and figuring showed that the lightest playing made a pressure of two and a half tons necessary in the aggregate, while over three tons was brought to bear by the heaviest play. After several lengthened tests of the same character it was estimated that the average hour in Chopin's music would require anywhere from twelve to eighty-four tons of force expended.

When, then, we read that Paderewski has such wonderful muscular development in his fingers that he can place his hand on a plate glass as if fingering a piano and break it by striking it sharply with his middle finger, we are no longer incredulous. It is told that he has thus broken glass of half an inch in thickness.

Though not exactly in line with the above it is well for COMFORT readers to know that Bach first invented the present system by which the thumbs are used as well as the fingers. Before his day only the four fingers were used, the thumbs hanging unused down over the edge of the keyboard.

A FEW WAR SONGS.

Many of the most popular of the songs sung in the Civil war were taken in whole or in part from other pieces. In the course of time and connection with the later thought the real origin of the music or words is often forgotten. A song sung on both sides of the line was "Maryland, my Maryland." Its extreme fervor in sentiment was owing to the fiery words of John Randall who early in the war adapted a poem to the German hymn, "Laurigae Horentius." The words as well as the music fired the Southern heart and its popularity extended into the Northern lines; but the verses were changed to suit the environment in the Northern army.

Before the outbreak of hostilities Dan Emmet, the great New York colored minstrel, wrote and sung "Dixie." It was one of those tunes which are only to be described as "catchy" and proved immensely popular. It was entirely a song of peace and happiness and only by accident became a war song. But more curious than this transition was the fate of an old and much neglected camp-meeting song, said to have originated and been used in colored meetings in Charleston, S. C., long before the war was considered as a possibility.

In its present form it first came from the Second Battalion of Massachusetts Infantry, familiarly known as "The Tigers," who, at the outbreak of the war, were ordered to garrison Fort Warren in Boston harbor, for its defence. In this battalion was one of the best glee clubs in the city, and from this club the other soldiers learned the tune of this Methodist hymn. Many verses were improvised to the air. The fun concentrated on one of their number, a Scotchman named John Brown. Later a large number of the battalion enlisted in Col. Fletcher Webster's regiment, the 12th, and thus the song was carried into the war.

It has a rather varied history, being first a Methodist hymn, and then a camp song, then an abolition ode by Edna Dean Proctor and Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

WHEN YOU WISH MUSIC.

Don't feel that it is necessary to pay the usual store prices for good sheet music. COMFORT will send you the very best and most popular sheet music with full size words and notes for just about cost of sending. You can hardly believe this but read the offer on another page. There is no possible risk for we guarantee perfect satisfaction and will gladly return your money if in any way unsatisfactory or not as we represent. Thousands of delighted people have testified to the merits and low cost of this music. A trial will convince even the most unbelieving.

An Offer that is made for the benefit of music lovers appears on another page. Through this system the best sheet music comes to you through the mail at little above mailing cost. You can hardly believe such a bargain exists until you try it. Money comes back to you if you fail to find it better than we call it.

Many of our readers will recollect with pleasure the late Bishop Brooks of Trinity Church in Boston. Notwithstanding the fact that he was connected with churches all his life, and with the Episcopalian ceremonial service, he never became acquainted with the value of music, and it was impossible for him to appreciate even the rudiments of musical culture. It is said that at one time while talking to his organist, Mr. Parker, relative to a certain tune or chant that had been selected by the Bishop for a certain occasion, the organist suggested that it was inappropriate as the words should be joyous while the music selected was of a minor mode and ought to be major. This lead to the request on the part of the Bishop to be informed as to the difference between the major and minor, which Mr. Parker illustrated first by playing a major chord and then a minor, repeating each several times, until the Bishop exclaimed, "Oh, yes, I see the difference; the minor chord sounds as if the major chord had been sat upon."

Every lover of music wants a bargain in modern sheet music. COMFORT'S offer on another page tells you how to obtain it at about cost of postage alone. Read the music offer.

The Ancient and Royal Game of Golf.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

NO game has ever taken such a hold on all classes of society as Golf. A few years ago it was known only by name to the majority in the United States, and few could describe it, but now how many millions of dollars are invested in Golf Links and Club Houses and all ages and both sexes play the game believing with the ancient poet, who wrote about the time of Chaucer, but whose poem was modernized in 1710:

"To live a life, free from gout, pain and phthisic,
Athletic employment is found the best physic;
The nerves are by golfing hardened and strengthened,
And vigor attends it by which life is lengthened."

The origin of the game is lost in the mists of antiquity. It certainly was played as far back as any records exist of Scottish history, and it can be traced all through the centuries in England since the reign of Edward III. who ascended the throne in 1327.

At that time it was spoken of as the most ancient game of "cluich-dhesog," that being the old Gaelic name, but the Lowlanders called it "Cambuae."

The name "golf," may have been derived from the German Kolbe or the Dutch, Kolf, meaning a club. The Dutch game of Kolf differed very materially from the Scotch golf, but the Hollanders knew so well how to make the hard balls used in the game that the Scotch imported them in such large numbers as greatly to injure home industry. The protectionists of the day demanded a prohibitory tariff, and in the year 1618 a law was enacted prohibiting the importation of the balls, a reason being given for such legislation that "na small quantitie of gold and silver is transported yierlie out his Hienes' kingdom of Scoteland for the balles."

In 1457 the good people of Scotland became so infatuated with golf that they neglected all other amusements and especially the art of shooting with a bow and arrow, which was accounted a necessary accomplishment for all. Remonstrances were useless so the Scottish parliament prohibited the playing of golf, the enactment declaring that it be "decreted and ordained that golf be utterlie cryit doun and nocht usit."

The act became a dead letter, the people played just as much as ever, and in 1491 a very angry proclamation was issued by the king, in which he ordered that, "Futeball and golfe be forbidden. Item, it is statut and ordanit that in na place of the realme there be usit, Futeball, Golfe or uther unprofitabill sportis, under the pain of fourtie shillinges," a sum equal to a hundred dollars of our money to-day.

Whether James IV. after issuing this proclamation found it impossible to stop the game, or that he was convinced the game was not as bad as his advisers had painted, it is a fact that in the very next year he figured as a player on the links and to the end of his life was a patron of the sport.

Golf obtained a foothold in England at the end of the fifteenth century, and a club still exists near London which was established in 1608. Charles I. was so much attracted to the game that he could never go near the links without playing. He was engaged in it on the Irish links, on his visit to Scotland in 1641 when an intimation was conveyed to him of the rebellion in Ireland. He, with very great reluctance, threw down his stick and returned to Holyrood Palace.

James II. was exceedingly devoted to the sport and gave the St. Andrew's Golf Club the right to use the word "royal" in connection with the game and the club.

In his day the word was written "goff" and sometimes "gouff" and "gowff." From these spellings we get the pedantic pronunciation, so much affected, "gawf."

It was claimed that golf was the most perfect of athletic sports and that it was adapted to the weak as well as the strong, though a writer in 1743 declares that the "weak become strong, the feeble take on the strength of giants" if they play the game with frequency.

"Golf and the Man, I sing, who em'lous plies
The jointed club; whose balls invade the skies."

A poet wrote in 1742, in defence of the game, and through a long epic described all the movements from the "teeing ground" to the approach of the last hole, when the excitement became very great.

"Meanwhile the Chiefs for the last hole contend,
The last great hole, which does their labors end."

Golf was introduced into the United States ten years ago but it was not until 1894 that the United States Golf Association was established. In the short space of five years nearly a hundred clubs have been formed and affiliated with the Association, and at least as many more clubs exist which are not listed. All however play according to the rules of the Association which are practically the same as those of the oldest club, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrew.

Golf is universally played. Clubs exist in Cape Colony and the Transvaal, in India and China, Australia and New Zealand. In fact wherever the white man has taken up his burden the royal and ancient game of Golf has gone with him to beguile him in the hours of leisure.

The Golf Club of Sydney, New South Wales, recently gave a golf dinner to Lord Hampden. The menu was suggestive of the game. It read as follows:

The Drive Off: Oysters-halved in two.
A Spoon Shot—Clear Turtle Soup.
Out of the Water—Whiting—foozled.
The Approach—Fillets of beef—grassed Vol au vent—mashed.
The Bunker—Saddle of Lamb—sliced.
A Foul Shot—Spatchcock—on the green.
A Dangerous Hazard—Mayonnaise of Prawns.
Dormy Two—Ice on the ball.
The Last Hole—Gobble of Anchovies.
Dessert. Coffee.
All Down.

Unlike many other sports all can play. The old and young, mothers and daughters alike join in the sport and while amusing themselves inhale the pure air, develop the muscles and give tone to the body.

As amusement is as necessary as food, it is well to encourage healthy pastime for, as Freeth wrote in 1790:

"Mankind will ever their pleasure pursue,
The mind must be ever employ'd;
The fancy to please is the motive in vein,
And each will his hobby horse ride.
Some take up their bats and the cricket ball bang,
Some brisk in the Five Court are seen;
Of the sports in the field many fondly harangue,
And some boast the sports of the green."

Long may golf live to give healthy pleasure to our young men and maidens.

Kindergarten Piano Instruction.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

IF ever there was a time when the young mind was helped over the disagreeable paths of learning it surely is now, when all sorts of ingenious contrivances are labored over to interest and at the same time to instruct. And in many prominent cities here in our own country and abroad, there has been accepted a sort of, one might say, sugar-coated system of promoting a musical interest in mere babies without inspiring in them, at the outset, the dread of piano practice. Give a child an explanation of a theory and he will puzzle over it and then not understand, but an object lesson he can soon master and will never forget.

Miss Evelyn Fletcher, daughter of Ashton Fletcher, Queen's Council, a young woman of Canadian birth, is the inventor of the Fletcher System.

Miss Fletcher studied for five years in England, Belgium, Germany and Switzerland with the best masters, violin, singing, harmony and piano, and on her return to Canada she began a career as teacher. She immediately saw the urgent need of interesting children who had a dislike for the drudgery of studying the piano, and after studying herself children and their needs, she worked out the Frœbel principles and found an easier way to teach the little ones without having all their natural love of music crushed out by science.

Her idea is to prepare their minds with the primary knowledge so at the end of the course they can be put at the piano, the hard, uninteresting part over, with only pleasurable work ahead. Everything in the way of information is conveyed to the child's mind dressed in holiday attire, and games and stories hold the attention. There are musical note blocks; time division blocks; a tone ladder for scale building and a detachable key board. Ear training games and games for rhythm, technique and musical history.

First, the variety of notes shaped in wood the children become familiar with as with different toys. Then they draw them on the blackboard until they know each one. They are then told that the staff is the home of the notes and each note has his own room.

Fourth, an apparatus of five lines of tape, i. e. the home, is put in front of the children, on a table. Each line is named twice; 1st, when Miss Treble Clef resides there, and 2nd when Mr. Bass Clef is at home. The spaces are taught in the same way. Then the notes are put into their various rooms by the children. Later they draw all this on the blackboard and the child making the most correct reproduction of staff and notes in scale, is awarded a crown of paste-board on which is printed musical characters.

Table exercises prepare the hand positions. In teaching scales the keys of the adjustable key board are removed and put back at will. And the children play a game where a set of Majors go out to walk, starting with Major C. Then the Minor family go for a promenade, with Mr. C. Minor leading.

For time study a simple piece is played on the piano and the children mark the accent by clapping on the accented beat and only patting their hands softly on the unaccented. But the child is taught to read music and to understand rhythm before there is any attempt at the key board.

A similar idea is used in familiarizing children with notes in singing. It is called the musical family.

Do is the father. He is strong and self reliant, with a firm full voice. Mi is the mother, because she is gentle and full of sympathy. Sol is the eldest son, a young man of joyous disposition with a clear, ringing voice. Fa is the younger brother but not like Sol, for he is of a serious disposition. We like him very much, he shows such an attachment to his mother Mi. La, the eldest daughter, is often found in a sad, complaining mood, and shows more tendency to tears than smiles. The younger sister, Ra, is of a hopeful disposition with a confiding nature, and it is beautiful to see with what tender affection she turns to her mother, Mi, and to her father, Do. One other member of the family is the baby, Si. The chief thing about him is his crying habit for his father, Do, and his shrill voice.

Miss Fletcher's musical family have names much the same as these. She calls her low G. "Grandpa G.," and her high G., "G. up G.," for instance.

Through this system it is hoped a musical understanding will be implanted in the mind of young America, similar to the inborn comprehension of the German race.

THE CELEBRATED CORNISH AMERICAN PIANOS AND ORGANS. XXth CENTURY MODELS READY.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL

WE WILL SHIP A CORNISH PIANO OR CORNISH ORGAN ANYWHERE UPON THE DISTINCT UNDERSTANDING THAT IF IT IS NOT SATISFACTORY TO PURCHASER AFTER 12 MONTHS' USE, WE WILL TAKE IT BACK.

MENTION PAPER.

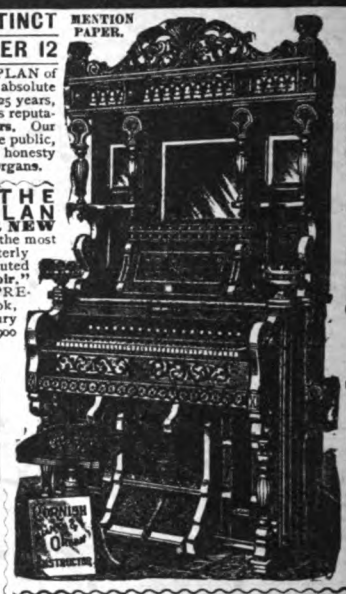
It would be impossible for us to make public this unique CORNISH PLAN of doing business were it not backed up by the strongest evidence of our absolute responsibility. The Cornish American Pianos and Organs are warranted for 25 years, and with every warrant there is our personal guarantee endorsed by a business reputation of nearly fifty years, and plant and property worth over One Million Dollars. Our success in the past has been mainly owing to the confidence placed in us by the public, and we have a quarter of a million satisfied patrons bearing testimony to the honesty of our methods and the perfection of the Cornish American Pianos and Organs.

FOR FULL PARTICULARS OF THE WORLD FAMOUS CORNISH PLAN and for a complete description of the instruments made by us, see OUR NEW XXth CENTURY CATALOGUE, handsomely illustrated in colors—the most comprehensive musical catalogue in the trade. The frontispiece is a a masterly reproduction in fac-simile of an interesting oil painting, designed and executed for us by an eminent artist, representing "St. Cecilia and the Angelic Choir." This beautiful catalogue is sent free, CHARGES PREPAID, and we also include our novel reference book, "THE HEART OF THE PEOPLE." XXth Century Models now ready. Souvenir Catalogue, Book and Description of the 1900 Time Bargains FREE.

FREE

A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10.00 on the list prices as quoted in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20.00 on the list prices if you buy a CORNISH PIANO.

PIANOS FROM 155 DOLLARS



With the Cornish Patent Musical Attachment, which correctly imitates the Harp, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Etc. This patent can only be had in the CORNISH PIANO.

REFERENCES. Our bank, your bank, any bank, or any of the multitude of patrons who have purchased millions of dollars' worth of instruments from us during the past fifty years.

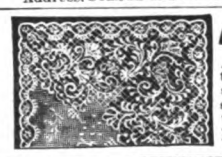
Send for particulars of the Cornish Co-operative Plan, showing how you can secure a Cornish Piano or Organ Free.

CORNISH & CO., (Established nearly 50 years.) WASHINGTON, NEW JERSEY.
MAKERS OF HIGH-GRADE AMERICAN PIANOS AND ORGANS

MENTION PAPER.

Cash or Easy Payments

ORGANS FROM $25.00!



NO ADVANCE IN PRICES

$15.50 IN SPITE OF RECENT ADVANCES IN RAW MATERIAL. Will buy our beautiful latest model Arlington Gem Drop Head Sewing Machine possessing all the known improvements, such as Self Threading Vibrating Shuttle; Self Setting Needle; Automatic Bobbin Winder, etc.; adapted to light and heavy work. Full set of attachments free. A better machine than some sold at from $25 to $35. Shipped direct from factory at wholesale prices C. O. D. or on 30 days free trial in your own home. No agent's or dealer's large profits to pay. A positive saving of $10 to $20. WARRANTED 20 YEARS. Money promptly refunded if not found as represented. We have over 50 different styles including some as low as..... $8.50

A Good High Arm Machine at $9.75.

Our New Ball Bearing Kenwood Sewing Machines are the easiest running machines on earth. A child can operate them. A $65.00 Kenwood, with decorated wood work, piano finish, $22.00. A $55.00 Ball Bearing Arlington, $19.00. 50 CENTS DISCOUNT ALLOWED ON ALL MACHINES FOR CASH WITH ORDER. As to our reliability we refer to the First National Bank of Chicago or any other Chicago Bank and Dun's or Bradstreet's Commercial Reports. Write at once for our Large Illustrated Catalogue and Special Freight Offer.

Address. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. VanBuren St., Dept. B-5, CHICAGO, ILL.

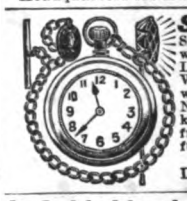
LACE CURTAINS FREE.



Any one can earn this beautiful pair of latest pattern, white Lace Curtains, with exquisite Floral Design, 36 inches wide, 3 yards long, by selling only 10 sets of our Ladies Beauty pins (each pin set with an exquisite Jewel) at 25c. a set. Simply send your name & address & promise to try to sell the pins, & when sold send us the money, & we will send you a pair of these beautiful curtains for your trouble. We run all the risk & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. This grand offer is good for 30 days only. Write to-day. Don't put it off until it is too late. The Maxwell Co. Dept. 415. St. Louis, Mo.

STOVES. WE SELL STEEL RANGES, Cast Iron Cook Stoves, Ranges and Heaters, Gasoline and Coal Oil Ranges and Burners at about ONE-HALF RETAIL PRICES. We ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for Free Stove Catalogue. Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago

WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

SEND NO MONEY. Simply send your name & address & we will send you 2 doz. Pkts. Sweet Leonin Sachets, to sell at 10c. each. When sold send us the money & we will send you this Keyless Heavy Nickle Plated Watch, (warranted to keep good time) also chain and charm free We will also send you a beautiful Scarf pin free if you write to-day.
The Leonin Co.
Dept. 310 St. Louis, Mo.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or useful as side dish or for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a moment for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address
THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT., Augusta Maine.

FANCY-LEAVED CALADIUMS

Most gorgeous in coloring and beautiful in design of all foliage plants. Cut shows a few sample leaves only. Elegant for pots, vases, window and piazza-boxes, etc. Superb named sorts only 15c. each; or 3, all different, for only 35c. Full cultural directions in our fine 64-page Catalogue, which is sent to all applicants FREE. Address, Jessamine Gardens, Jessamine, Fla.

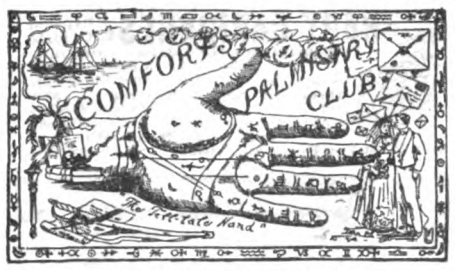
MORPHINE and Opium Habits Cured. A guaranteed, painless, home treatment. FREE trial will convince you. OPA SPECIALTY CO., Chicago

CONFECTION, FOOD, MEDICINE.

[TRADE MARK.]

Two Thousand Packages Shelled Peanuts SENT FREE.



SELL 12 PACKAGES AND GET A WATCH.

The art of shelling and salting peanuts has just reached perfection. As a confection they are peerless, as a food unequaled. German scientists have spent years experimenting with Peanut flour. It is found to contain three times the nutriment of wheat; and whole salted peanuts, being so much more palatable than wheat, have also been found with a slight addition of Pepsin Salt to be a sure cure for Dyspepsia and other stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Yes, even persons with Bright's Disease or Diabetes can now be cured. It is only necessary for old or young to eat a few of our Pepsin Salted Peanuts after meals to keep in perfect health—but they can also be eaten in any quantity as a confection without the least distress or trouble to the weakest stomach. Children delight to feast on them and they are much better than candy. They also cure Heart Burn and Insomnia.

To Form Part of the Treat or Refreshments at party gatherings, sociables, etc., they are indispensable, and to have them on the table as dessert is the best of form. Everyone, both old and young, now wants a few in the pocket at all times to nibble on—for with all the troublesome oils properly treated as they are in our special process of Curing and Roasting Peanuts, they have at last lost all terrors to weak stomachs, and are warranted not to become rancid, and to keep well in any climate.

FREE We will send two thousand packages of these Pepsin Salted Peanuts out to responsible parties who furnish proper references. You sell 12 ten-cent packages and get a watch, a guaranteed good timekeeper. But to first introduce them quickly we send one package as a sample free to any one enclosing six cents for a three months' subscription to COMFORT. You can then test them and see how many packages you want to start with. No attention paid to first orders without trial 6c subscription. Write at once and be among the first to get the free packages. FREE

Address, COMFORT FOOD DEP'T O, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to COMFORT PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

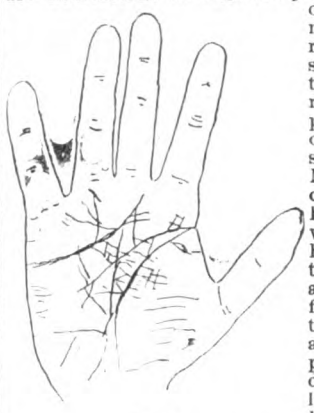
I HAVE a few questions to answer this month and I would like to have you all feel free to ask questions. I have no doubt that it is of more interest and value to most of you to have questions answered than it is to give up the entire department to readings.

What are the worry lines? They are the fine lines running across the hand principally across the life line into the palm.

What does it signify when the line of health comes down across the fate line and touches the life line half way between the center of the palm and the wrist, then returns again to the fate line, back to the life line and so on to the end of both lines? This would signify that the health would be broken up considerably at the point indicated by the juncture of the health and life lines. If the line touches the fate line I should say that the ill health would in some way affect the career of the subject.

The first hand which I shall read belongs to "Alone—Iowa." As I have many times told you a photograph, no matter how well it is taken is not as easy to read as a smoked paper impression. This one, however, shows a great many fine lines, worry lines, I should say, a long life line free from worry lines during the last half and a fairly good hand on the whole. This lady has improved in her natural disposition very much. She is inclined to be morbid and dissatisfied by nature, but she has trained herself to have courage and hope for the best. She has had or will have a good many crosses to bear until she is about thirty-five, after which her life will be exceptionally smooth and easy. There is a severe illness or a deep-seated grief that comes to her not far from that age, but from that time on, life will be much pleasanter and better in every way. There are a good many fine influences rising from her life line, but I do not see very much money for her. An early love affair comes to nothing and from the age of twenty-five onward she will have trouble with matters connected with the affections. I do not think she will ever marry, but after the age of thirty-five, as I have said, if she does not marry it will be from her own desire not to and she will be very successful in some way. She is very artistic and philosophical; she would make a fine musician; she has great tact and delicacy in dealing with others and is dainty and refined in all her tastes. On the whole hers is a fairly good hand, the worst coming early in life, so that she may look forward to a pleasant middle and old age. She will live to be very old.

ALONE—IOWA.



"T. T." shows another hand full of fine worry lines, which indicate a nervous temperament and one which will make trouble for itself all through life. The health will never be very strong and the subject will not live to be more than forty. The impression is somewhat blotted in the center, but I should judge that the marriage which takes place about the age of twenty will result in a divorce and that the subject will be very despondent and suffer a great deal during the process. He or she, I do not know which, is very imaginative, almost morbid in tendency and will be tempted to commit suicide. The temptation, however, will be resisted and the patient will die a natural death. There are very good qualities indicated which if rightly applied will make this person successful and wealthy. The greatest lack is of self-reliance and perseverance and the greatest fault is this morbid sensitiveness. If T. T. will overcome these he or she may have a long, happy and successful life.

T. T.

"K. F." shows another peculiar hand and sends only the impression of the left, which is never satisfactory for a complete reading. This hand also shows many worry lines crossing the life and the fate line. There is a lack of courage and self-reliance here, but not so noticeable as in the last hand read. This subject has a very imaginative way of telling a thing so that her enemies would accuse her of exaggeration and misrepresentation. She will not however, mean to do anything of the sort, but she loves to make herself interesting when she talks. A want of tact and weak will are indicated by the thumb. She will never marry, but will live to a good old age. She will have some money and live in comparative comfort all her days. She is religious in her tendencies, moral and upright in character, but very peculiar in many of her ideas. She will travel a great deal and one of her journeys will be a long one that will affect her after-life in many ways.

I have a good many questions asking about marriage lines. Marriage lines are not necessarily marriages that are sanctioned by law or Church rites; they are those in evidence of a love that unites heart and soul. Though there are indications in different parts of the hands on lines and mounts corroborating and substantiating them—the marriage lines proper are found on the percussion side of Mount of Mercury, running horizontally with line of heart and between that line and Mercury's finger. The intensity of the affection is portrayed by the depth and length of the line; if more than one line is in evidence you must look for sign of widow or widowerhood, or divorce. The line at its best should be clear, and well on to the Mount of Mercury, sloping slightly toward heart line. The line being close to the finger, the marriage will be early in life, between eighteen and twenty-one; midway between finger and heart line, it will occur nearer twenty-eight, and close to the heart, at thirty-five or later. The exact date is usually established by the line coming from the Mount of Venus and reaching the life line (already referred to in the reading of the line of life.) If the line is forked and one end is drooping to the heart line, there will be a divorce; and if a very fine line is traced from it to the Mount of Venus, with an island on it, a separation without process of law will take place; if the line crosses mount of Mercury and ends on Apollo, the subject loses caste by the marriage.

K. F.

Some of the modern cheirosophists hold that branches from the mount of Moon to fate line are marriages, but I do not think it correct.

Two marriage lines on the percussion will mean a love affair after marriage, unless widowhood or divorce is shown on the line. Marriage lines sending branches on Mount of Apollo, the subject marries an artist of renown; widow or widowerhood is shown by a break in the marriage line, cut by a line at end, or by a spot or point on the line, or line ending in a star on Mercury. Small vertical lines above the marriage line on mount of Mercury are children born, if line is clear; if line is faint, the children are to be born; one of the lines entering the finger of Mercury is honors for that child.

Digitus

DIVINE HEALING!

Any and ALL DISEASES Cured Without Drugs or the Surgeon's Knife through the Divine Power.

"A Work Blessed and Wonderful."

Francis Truth, Divine Healer.

POVERTY IS OFTEN A DISEASE AND IS CURED BY DIVINE POWER. Write for Full Particulars Which Are Sent Free.

THE ONLY CURE FOR DISEASE

The Divine Healer Free, Also A Book All About Divine Healing Sent Without Cost to Any One.

THERE ARE NO HOPELESS OR INCURABLE DISEASES.

"Whence hath this man this wisdom and these mighty works?"

The whole world is astounded and bewildered at the miraculous cures of diseases daily made by Francis Truth, the Great Divine Healer of Boston. He is the most wonderful and successful Divine Healer of modern times. Any and all diseases cured without drugs, medicines or the surgeon's knife, at any distance, by Divine Power. He will send you Absolutely Free a book fully explaining his Divine Power. The Divine Healer is also sent free to all who are sick and will write a letter telling about their disease. Divine Power cures when everything else fails. "The hand of God is upon all them that seek Him for Good." In permanently curing by Divine Power Distance Makes No Difference. All sick and suffering ought to read Mr. Truth's free book; it don't cost you one cent. The Divine Healer is a liberal and kind-hearted man, hence his great Power, and all sufferers from Disease or Poverty should write him for Free advice. He will gladly write you special instructions free and send his wonderful book free.

Divine Healing is not Hypnotism, Mental Healing, Faith Cure or Magnetic Healing. It is the Divine or Soul Power which heals and cures when everything else fails. Mr. Truth is the Greatest Divine Healer of modern times. He helps others to develop Divine Power. Write for free circulars, books, testimonials, special instructions, etc.

Poverty Banished

The Divine Healer is very successful in treating men and women who through lack of wisdom and vital force cannot amass wealth or succeed in their undertakings. Often poverty is a disease. Hundreds have been treated by Mr. Truth, by Absent and Personal treatments for success and are now prosperous and amassing wealth. Don't remain sick or in poverty. It will pay every sick person and those who are not prospering to write fully about their cases to Mr. Truth and receive his special instructions free and a book and the Divine Healer without one cent of cost.

Francis Truth, Divine Healer,
6 S, Bowdoin Sq., Boston, Mass.

A MAGIC FLUTE ROMANCE.

John Henderson is the luckiest man in the West. If you don't believe it ask him and he will confess it, and tell you moreover that he owes all his good luck in his life to the Magic Flute. It is a strange story, but the true facts are these: Mr. Henderson was in love. The object of his affections was a beautiful young girl of his native town, Des Moines. She was a musical enthusiast and had suitors by the score, for she was not only charming and beautiful of face and figure, but to these graces she added the talent of a superb musician. Naturally, though Mr. Henderson pressed his suit with great ardor, as he was not a performer on any musical instrument he failed to make the desired impression, however much he loved music, and dearly loved the object of his affections.

Happening in Omaha one day, quite disconsolate, he was astonished to hear sweet and tender strains issuing from the rear door of what proved to be a music store. He paused at the curbstone and listened. It was one of the favorite songs of his beloved, and so mellow and sweet were the sounds that they brought tears to his eyes. Entering the store the stranger asked what sort of an instrument it was that gave forth such magic sounds. He was shown the Magic Flute which had just arrived from New York. Thinking that the instrument that performed such tone miracles must have cost a hundred dollars or more, he was amazed to see what a trifling sum. He bought the instrument, and the next day returned to his native city and that night under the window of the maiden who had rejected him for his lack of musical abilities, Mr. Henderson poured forth his soul in the songs she loved so well. What was the result? The neglected lover was reinstated in the affections of the fair one, the rival suitors retired beaten in the game, and shortly after he was offered a large nightly sum by a celebrated impressario to appear in concert halls in the leading cities of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, completely happy and full of gratitude for the working of the Magic Flute, are at present traveling in the East, playing to large houses, Mrs. Henderson accompanying her husband on the piano. The musical world is amazed and delighted with the performances of Mr. Henderson on the Magic Flute. And yet his case is merely typical. You may not win a lovely bride by your skill on the wonderful instrument, but one thing you can do, even if you do not know one note from another, you can play a tune in five minutes and should delight your friends with it within a week.

We have made arrangements with the manufacturers to introduce these wonderful Flutes, and will send one free, all charges paid, including a trial yearly subscription to all sending 25c. to COMFORT Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine. Agents are selling large quantities of these Flutes and you better not delay in sending for a sample and getting wholesale prices.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. MEN and WOMEN. At Home or Traveling.

Mr. Smith of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222 besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—

No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. everybody buys-business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc., FREE.

World Mfg. Co., 47 World Bld'g, Cincinnati, O.

[We recommend the above firm as reliable.—Editor.]

CARPETS. WE SELL ALL KINDS OF CARPETS at lowest wholesale prices, about one-half retail price charged by retail dealers. Write for FREE COLOR SAMPLE BOOK, showing samples of our entire line of Carpets. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

$1000 YEARLY SALARY PAYABLE WEEKLY WITH EXPENSES

MEN or WOMEN to represent us in their own state. Your duties to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. No Investment Required. Send stamp for application blank. Co-Operative Co., 200 Star Bldg, Chicago

Mothers I can cure your children of incontinence of urine. Sample FREE. Address F. E. MAY, M. D., Bloomington, Ill.

A Labor-Saving device entirely new and universal in demand. Will last a lifetime and costs but Twenty-five cents. Just on the market and over 500 Gross sold last month. Every family in the land wants one or more. All you do to sell them is simply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works on his window and you will depart with one less every time, but in its place a quarter.

The Magical Sponge differs from the ordinary sponge in nature, while the common sponge is of vegetable origin and found in the ocean, the Magical Sponge is a mineral production and found in the United States, dug from the ground, carefully prepared and manufactured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Merchant, Liveryman, Metal Workers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, offices, and business places in a clean and healthy condition.

No Soap or water is needed or even used with the Magical Sponge for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time it has no equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than what is in the sponge) all trouble and hard work is avoided. For Cleaning Baseboards, Window Sills, Wainscoating and painted surfaces, it acts like a charm; takes all the finger marks, spots, grease and dirt away, leaving a Clean, Polished Surface.

Good men wanted all over the country to handle these goods, big inducements offered steady workers, and exclusive sale. To Agents, Salesmen, and house to house canvassers, who send us 25 cents for a 6 months' subscription, we will send one sample post paid, and make them a business proposition. Write at once. Secure your territory.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

DO YOU PLAY THE VIOLIN?

If so try our new importation of Violin Strings, from one of the best Makers in Europe. Full set of four strings, A. E. G. D. or 4 of any letter for only 10 cents, Stamps or Silver.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

ONE MILLION PACKAGES FLOWER SEEDS FREE.

This Mammoth Collection contains the cream of all flower seeds—just what you want to make a Magnificent Garden 23 Exquisite Varieties of elegant, brilliant, dazzling flowers, as follows:

Dewey Victory	10 col.	Zinnias	12 col.
Hobson Choice	8 "	Sweet Williams	14 "
Crown Heliotrope	2 "	Ageratum	2 "
Ten Weeks' Stock	12 "	Morning Glory	15 "
Sweet Alyssum	2 "	Forget-me-not	2 "
Four-O'clock	10 "	Nasturtiums	12 "
Poppy	18 "	Asters	16 "
Larkspur	6 "	Pinks	10 "
Portulaca	20 "	Sweet Peas	10 "
Marigold	13 "	Calliopsis	8 "
Pansy	10 "	Calendula	5 "
Verbena	8 "

A WHOLE FLOWER GARDEN FREE.

To introduce our Beautiful Ladies Magazine in new homes we will on receipt 10 cents in stamps or silver send it 3 months, also all the above Flower Seeds 23 different kinds, Order Quick.

SOCIAL MAGAZINE, BOX 3139, BOSTON MASS.

PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE RIFLE.

Here's One on the Pneumatic Plan for Just One Dollar, Made Entirely of Wood and Metal.

Stained and polished to represent mahogany, has all improvements, exposed metal parts, heavily plated. Same size as regular Carbine. Is designed for shot, which can be bought for a trifling expense anywhere. Works on the pneumatic spring scientific plan. Loads at Breech. Shoots with accuracy. Has the force and precision of any magazine gun. Can be used with perfect safety by men, women and children. No horrible accidents by careless handling. Kills birds and small game. Just right for hunting where silence is wanted. Brass tubes, air chamber, and heavy metal springs. Endorsed by officers of the Army and Navy as the best mechanical rifle ever produced, Used on practice ships in place of regular magazine rifles. Boys are delighted with it and prefer it to a larger gun. Can be kept in your room to protect the household if you dislike to have firearms around. Absolutely no danger. Perfect workmanship guaranteed in each gun. We will send this paper a year and this rifle complete and sent carefully packed for $1.00.

SPECIAL OFFER. Send us a club of five yearly subscribers to this paper at 25 cents each, and we will send you one of these rifles free as a premium, all charges paid. Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

THE newest thing in the bicycle line comes from an English manufacturer and is designed to eclipse everything yet put on the market. Our illustration shows this latest thing in the bicycling world. The designer has carried the upper tube from the seat post cluster to the lower end of the head, and has brought the rear forks from their former position to the middle of the seat post tube, whence they are extended in a new tube to the top of the head. The dotted lines in the accompanying cut show the changes.

Of this new idea the makers say:

Of scientific design and advanced principles, this model appeals at once to the mechanical mind as an object of great strength in its lightest and most direct form. It is constructed to withstand all strains caused by the driving of the machine, more especially laterally, when increased power is applied, and affords also a more comfortable seat and proper length of head.

No excess of tubing exists nor is there a deficiency in any one part. For those riders who consider the diamond frame lacking in strength or rigidity between the head and rear wheel axle, this improved model is presented. It has been thoroughly tested since Easter, 1899, proving itself a splendid hill climber and a complete success in every way.

A new bicycle tire on the cushion principle is promised for this season. The tire does not have to be inflated. This is a radical departure from the pneumatic pattern. The tire is constructed of rubber disks three-sixteenths of an inch thick and seven-sixteenths of an inch apart, held by ribs at the thread and vulcanized to the outer covering. The tire weighs more than the pneumatic, but it is said to be full of resiliency and "life". Punctures and leaky valves are impossible.

A veteran rider who has had much experience with porous tires gives a recipe for repairing them, which, he says, is all right. It is given merely for what it is worth. Most riders have found that when their tires get porous the only thing to do is to throw them away and get new ones. The recipe is as follows:

Should you have a tire that is porous and leaky, make a lather of ordinary yellow soap, remove the valve, and put some of the paste inside the tube, work it (by rubbing the outside of the tire between finger and thumb) all around the inner part of the tube, and then readjust the valve.

One of the new cyclometers promised for the coming season is so arranged that it will not record mileage when the rider is coasting. The improvement will be appreciated by those who have adopted the "free wheel".

Mr. T. J. Keenan, President of the L. A. W., when asked for his opinions recently said:

The bicycle has come like a conqueror into the field of athletics. Its swift rush into popular favor has left far in the rear the old-fashioned sports which we have inherited from our ancestors, and even the once dominant national game has been relegated to a back seat and the insidious advance of its coming rival, the silent steed, had already commenced. Distanced as the velocipede is in the first lap, gaining a little as the solid ordinary before it reached the bell, it suddenly shot out of the bunch as the pneumatic safety on the home stretch and crossed the wire with the champion neck and neck.

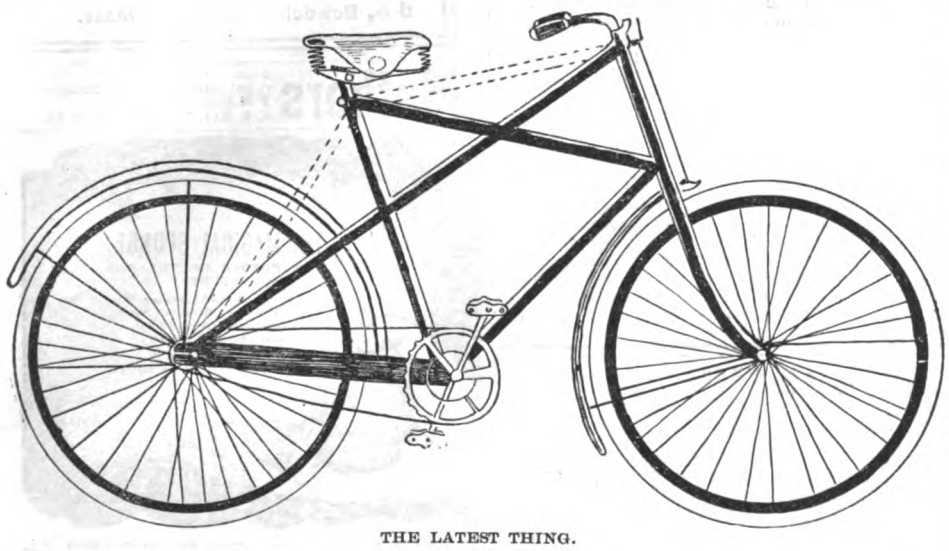
The evolution of the bicycle during the past twenty years has given to America and to the world a healthful recreation in which both sexes may equally indulge, and a new and attractive form of athletics which both may appreciate and enjoy. Cycling has exerted a forceful and far-reaching influence on recreation for the reason that it appeals more directly to more persons than any other form of exercise and pastime. Old and young, rich and poor, men and women, singly or in companies, enjoy cycling. It is good for anybody, anywhere, any time. Used as a means of recreation it will carry one around the block or around the world. It is a harmonizer of recreations of all kinds and all countries. It is American, European, Asiatic and Oceanic. It is the mechanical Volapuk in the world of pastimes. It gaily wanders by "the wild and winding Rhine" and "the blue rushing of the arrowy Rhone." It threads its way amid the reminiscent beauty of

The glory that was Greece
And the grandeur that was Rome.

A penny-in-the-slot tire pump machine is the latest and a company has been formed to place the invention on the market. An inventor who believed that the use of the pneumatic tire is increasing so fast as to open a field for an automatic pump, has perfected one which will be operated by electricity. Upon dropping a cent in the slot sufficient air will be admitted to fill one pneumatic tire. This will be as handy as a watering trough for horses and even more so as it will always be at hand.

An absolutely puncture proof tire is shown for both bicycles and automobiles. It is like the average tube except that the fabric is woven in a different manner. In tests recently made, neither tacks nor pins could be driven through any of these tires.

A new coaster brake seems to promise to go ahead of all others on the market. It can be applied to any bicycle without removing the tires, spokes, rims or hubs. All one has to do is to remove the old sprocket and lock and replace it by the new sprocket, lock-nut and brake disk. The inventor claims that it has no springs or parts which can get out of order and that it weighs only nine ounces. I do not know where it can be found, or where in fact any of the inventions described in these columns may be purchased. I should advise, however, that any one who wants to find out about them should ask his most experienced dealer to do so. Dealers are usually willing to investigate any new invention if there promises to be any sale.



According to dealers, the outlook for the chain business is very encouraging and the indications are that the season of 1900 will see many more chainless wheels than ever. 1896 was the banner year for the sale of bicycles and a Western man who has been long in the business declares that 1900 will lead that year. This dealer also says that one of the remarkable features about the introduction of wheels in the West has been the improvement in the roads. While this is, perhaps, due to a considerable extent to the farmers and the condition of the money market, there is no doubt that the use of the bicycle has created a demand for good roads all over the country.

One manufacturer says "the bicycles of 1900 will have plenty of new features, but they are simple ones which will perfect the bicycle. The modern pedal for instance, is a combination affair, but instead of a labored effort with wrench and screw driver being necessary to remove the rubbers, they can be taken away with one hand and the pedal can be changed to one of rat-trap pattern without the touch of a tool. This is effected by making each rubber pad in one piece with the central part thin enough to be slightly elastic and the edges cut so as to stretch over the teeth of the pedal and bind firmly. This style of rubber pad is also lighter than the old ones."

There have been many other things introduced to make the parts more simple and easier for the ordinary rider to understand. The increased strength in rigidity in construction is found side by side with less weight and there is a marked improvement in the methods adopted for assembling the parts which form the bottom bracket group, the cranks, axle and bearings.

Most of the crank fasteners to-day can be handled by a woman, while the increased use of ball retainers prevents the old trouble of the balls running over the floor. In the methods of adjusting the bearings, there is the same tendency towards simplicity.

The chainless wheels will show the greatest improvement the coming season. They have been so nearly perfected that they may now be handled by riders who used to think it necessary to take them to a shop every time they wanted to have then overhauled.

THE LATEST THING.

A Work on Hypnotism:

Prof. L. A. Harraden, Jackson, Mich., has an advertisement of hypnotism on another page. He has a free book in which he offers to tell readers all about hypnotism, and how easily it may be learned. It is a fascinating subject, and he would be glad to send it free to anybody who requests the same.

LEARN PROOFREADING

If you possess a fair education, why not utilize it at a genteel and uncrowded profession paying $15 to $35 weekly? Situations always obtainable. We are the original instructors by mail.

Home Correspondence School, Philadelphia.

CARDS Send 2c. stamp for ELEGANT SAMPLE BOOK of all the FINEST and Latest Styles in Gold, Beveled Edge, Hidden Name, Silk Fringe, New Envelope Cards, etc. Greatest Outfit Ever Offered. UNION CARD CO., B50, Columbus, Ohio.

SEEDS

BUCKBEE'S SEEDS SUCCEED!

SPECIAL OFFER:
Made to Build New Business. A trial will make you our permanent customer.

Prize Collection Radish, 17 varieties; Lettuce, 12 kinds; Tomatoes, 11 the finest; Turnip, 7 splendid; Onion, 8 best varieties—55 varieties in all. GUARANTEED TO PLEASE.

Write to-day; Mention this Paper.

SEND 10 CENTS
to cover postage and packing and receive this valuable collection of Seeds postpaid, together with my new Instructive, Beautiful Seed and Plant Book, tells all about the Best varieties of Seeds, Plants, etc.

H.W. Buckbee ROCKFORD SEED FARMS, Box 660 ROCKFORD, ILL.

WE PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kan.

BABY CARRIAGES Shipped C.O.D. to anyone.
Combination Go-Carts
Direct from factory at lowest wholesale prices.
Dealers large profits saved. No money in advance.
$18 Carriage, $9.00 | $5.00 Carriage.....$3.00
$12 " $6.00 | GO-CARTS from $3.00 up.
Send for free illustrated catalog and special offer
CASH BUYERS' UNION,
164 West Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

CAMERA & OUTFIT

We are giving away Telescopes, Cameras & many other premiums to boys and girls, for selling two doz. 18k. Rolled Gold Collar Buttons at 5c each. Send us your address and we will forward you post-paid two doz. buttons. When sold send us $1.20 and we will send you your premium.
HENRY BUTTON CO., DEPT. 62, CHICAGO.

$24.00

WE SELL BUGGIES, SURREYS, CARRIAGES, LIGHT and HEAVY WAGONS at lower prices than any other house in America, quality considered; issue a two-year binding guarantee, and we ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for free Buggy Catalogue.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD.
Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Handsome Silk Dress FREE Every one applying for this great offer, which is sent same day letter is received, can get a handsome dress free. The pattern is full length, 10 to 15 yards all desirable shades. We are bound to swell our annual subscription list to 100,000 names. Each one gets a dress free. Our paper, beautifully illustrated, is one of the best in all respects. We give dress to push circulation. Send 10c. coin or 15c. stamps for wrapping, posting and sending paper. Get your name on our great list. Address NASON CO., P. O. Box 2033, New York.

CLOTHING SALESMEN WANTED

$150.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES MADE BY ALL OUR ACTIVE MEN. WE PAY MANY FAR MORE. WE WANT MEN IN EVERY COUNTY IN THE UNITED STATES. If your reference is satisfactory we will start you at once. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. NO CAPITAL REQUIRED. We furnish a full line of samples, stationery, etc., and tailors-to-the-trade complete outfit ready for business. NO COMMISSION PLAN. You regulate your profits to suit yourself. NO HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS. This is not one of the many catchy advertisements for agents, but one of the very few advertisements offering a rare opportunity to secure a strictly HIGH GRADE EMPLOYMENT at BIG WAGES.

WE ARE THE WORLD'S LARGEST TAILORS. We buy our cloth direct from the LARGEST AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MILLS. We control the entire output of several of these mills. We own our materials at the lowest possible cost, and operate the most extensive and economic tailoring plant in existence, and cut to measure and make to order Suits and Overcoats from $5.00 to $15.00 (mostly $5.00 to $10.00). Pants from $1.50 to $5.00. Fancy Vests from $2.00 up. The days of ready-made clothing are numbered. AT THESE PRICES everyone will prefer to have his garments cut to his measure and made to his order. NO DIFFICULTY IN GETTING ORDERS.

OUR PLAN. If your references are satisfactory we start you out at once. We furnish you FREE a complete AGENT'S SAMPLE BOOK AND OUTFIT. Our large, handsome, leather bound Sample Book contains our entire line of Suitings, Overcoatings, Trouserings and Vestings; full instructions for taking measurements (which you can learn in 5 minutes from the large photographic illustrations in the book), colored lithographed fashion plates, full description of the material underneath each sample, and prices left blank for you to fill in, fixing your profit to suit yourself. This Sample Book is put up in a Fine Canvas Carrying Case, which also contains Tape Measure, Order Blanks, Business Cards, Stationery, Advertising Matter and Agents' Guide and Instruction Book, with Net Confidential Price List, also complete "Salesman's Talk." Our instructions are so plain, our suggestions so thorough, that any one can immediately make a success of the work. YOU REQUIRE NOTHING. Just take the orders and send them to us; we make the garments promptly and send them by express, C. O. D. subject to examination, and if not perfectly satisfactory they can be returned to us at our expense. Neither the agent nor his customer assume the slightest risk. WE TAKE ALL THE CHANCES OF THE TRANSACTION. We either ship direct to your customers, collecting your full selling price and send you weekly check for all your profit; or, if you prefer, we ship direct to you at your net confidential price, allowing you to make your own collections.

YOU CAN ADD A LIBERAL PROFIT TO YOUR CONFIDENTIAL PRICE.
NEARLY ALL OUR MEN MAKE $40.00 EVERY WEEK IN THE YEAR.

THE OUTFIT IS ABSOLUTELY FREE. We make no charge for our complete Agent's Sample Book and Outfit, but in order to protect ourselves against many who might impose on us by sending for the outfit (which costs us between $5.00 and $6.00), with no intention of working, but merely out of idle curiosity, we require each applicant to cut this ad out and mail to us, giving the names of at least two parties as reference, and further agree to pay a temporary deposit of One Dollar and express charges for the outfit when received, if found exactly as represented and really a big money maker. While this nominal deposit of $1.00 for the outfit is not one-fifth of its cost it insures the good faith of applicants, and we promptly refund your $1.00 as soon as your sales amount to $25.00, which amount you can take the first day out.

IF YOU WISH TO MAKE $5.00 TO $20.00 EVERY DAY cut this notice out and mail to us at once, giving us the names of two or more men as reference. Address,

REFERENCES: Corn Exchange National Bank / Any Express or Railroad Co. / Any business man or resident of Chicago.

AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO.
West Side Enterprise Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.
(This Company is thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

W21

FREE CURE for ASTHMA
Trial Package of three special medicines Free. DR. W. K. WALRATH, Box 505 ADAMS, N. Y.

DON'T BE HARD UP $2,000 A YEAR EASY
Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating Gents and Ladies at home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Platers. Plates, Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, and all metal goods. No experience, heavy plate, modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Guaranteed. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write Today. Testimonials, samples, &c., FREE
C. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, 8, CINCINNATI, O

FREE Send no Money. Simply send your name & address & we will send you two dozen of our Sweet Perfume Packets to sell at 10c each, when sold send us the money & we will send all of the above 7 prizes free. Here they are: One Beautifully engraved link Bracelet with lock & key. 1 Brooch, very fine & stylish. 1 Scarf pin, 3 Rings—two of them set with beautiful Jewels. 1 pair link Cuff Buttons. All of these 7 articles are SOLID GOLD plated and the latest style. This is the best offer in this paper. We run all the risk and will take back what you cannot sell. We will send you an extra present if you will write to-day. Don't let the others get ahead of you.
THE LEONIN CO., DEPT. 110, St. Louis, Mo.

FREE. NON-EXPLOSIVE NIGHT LAMP.

We will send you one of these Lamps with Nickle base, fine handsome pleated shade, chimney etc., all complete if you will send us 15 cents for a six months' trial subscription to our great monthly "SUNSHINE" either in your own or a friend's name. We want '99 to be the banner year for our list and offer this great premium as an inducement for you to take our paper right along. You can make money offering the New Lamp and Exquisite Perfumery with new subscribers. Send 15c. at once and we send sample combined Bottle Perfume and this Ornamental and Petite Lamp. Two Lamps and subscriptions and two lots of Perfumery for 25c. order quick and get agents' terms and low cash discounts in big lots. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Me.

COMPLETE DINING CHINA SERVICE FREE

Full size for family use. Handsome and Ornamental. You can get this if you take advantage of our offer sent to every person selling six packages of Fertiline—a wonderful odorless Fertilizer for home plants, put up in tablet form, for use in water; makes plants bloom. If you agree to sell six packages of Fertiline at 25c. per package, write and we will mail, postpaid. When sold, send us the money, and ½ dozen full size silver-plated Forks also our offer of this handsome China Service will be immediately forwarded. This liberal offer gives perfect satisfaction and helps introduce a valuable article among those who will appreciate its value at once. THE FERTILINE CO., Dept. A.Y.3, New Haven, Conn.

"THAT NOBLE ANIMAL, THE HORSE." YOU WANT IT.

THE GREATEST and BEST BOOK EVER WRITTEN on HORSES.

A Gold Mine of Interest and Information by Which You Save Dollars.

Prof. Oscar Gleason, the greatest horse owner, trainer and breaker that ever lived in America has at last consented to write a book on the Horse. We have made arrangement to furnish copies of this valuable work to all lovers of horses, and we call your attention to the great value of this unparalleled work which should be in every home and stable in the land. Gleason's Horse Book is a large handsomely bound book of over 400 pages, printed on pure white paper in large, clear type, bound in colored covers and richly and elegantly illustrated with 186 full plates and illustrations drawn by special artists. It is the most complete horse book ever published, produced under the direction of the United States Government Veterinary Surgeon. In this book Prof. Gleason has given to the world for the first time his wonderful methods of training and treating horses. It contains chapters on History, Education, Teaching Tricks, How to Buy, Feeding, Breeding, Breaking and Taming, How to Detect Unsoundness, Care, Complete Instructions in Proper Horse shoeing and one Invaluable Study of the Diseases and Treatment of the animal. This part alone is worth many times the value of the book and will save horse owners hundreds of dollars every year. It is a closal compendium of facts every person ought to know who is in any way interested in horses. Nothing left out. Clear, Concise and Captivating. Order one to-day and you will never regret it; it is a whole Library on Horses in itself. Gleason's Horse Book is found in the libraries of the wealthy and has always been sold as high as $3.00 a volume until now.

SEE HOW TO GET IT. To introduce our monthly paper into homes where an interest is taken in horses we will send a copy of Prof. Gleason's Horse Book, described above, to every person who will send thirty-three cents to pay all shipping charges and for a trial six months' subscription to our paper. Great Club Premium. If you will get up a club of only two yearly subscribers to this paper at the special trial subscription price of 25 cents each we will send you the book as a free premium.

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

Hezekiah Butterworth Tells How to Write a Story.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE postman had presented me with one of those bulky, long envelopes which would-be authors learn to recognize as far off as they can see the carrier. The seventh successive editor "thanked me for the privilege of being allowed to examine my story, but "regretted," and so forth, as usual. And yet I had felt sure that it was a very good story. What was the matter with it?

A neighbor's little daughter happened to bring me, that very day, a school exercise returned to her as not satisfactory to the teacher. She came to me, she said, because she knew I worked for one of the papers, and so would know all about writing. Without knowing as much as she thought I did, it still was easy to show her how the little essay could be changed so as to be more likely to please the instructor.

The experience gave me an idea. I would take my story to Hezekiah Butterworth, who is a master in the art of story writing, and ask him if I might read it to him, to have him tell me what was the matter with it.

I was fortunate enough to find Mr. Butterworth at home. He very kindly said at once that he would willingly hear me read the story, and would help me if he could. When I had finished reading he said, "That is a capital story. It is not for any fault in the piece of work itself, I think, that it has been sent back to you, but I imagine on account of your choice of a subject.

"A very distinguished editor, one of the most successful men in his profession in the country, wrote me only a little while ago: 'the day of short stories, simply as stories, has passed. Fiction, to-day, must be absolutely up to date. The stories which will sell are those which deal with some phase of the every-day life about us. The only exceptions to this rule are the stories into which an element of psychic interest is introduced, and holiday stories.' By the latter I think he meant," said Mr. Butterworth, "tales pertaining to any special day or time, like Thanksgiving, Christmas, or Washington's Birthday.

"Your story is good, but it does not meet with these requirements. Now suppose you try your hand at writing a holiday story."

"I think I will try a Thanksgiving story," said I.

"Very good," said my adviser, "only it will probably be in next year's edition that it must be published."

"Why so?" I asked, for it was then only September.

"Because the editors of the leading magazines and weeklies make up their holiday numbers months in advance. Some of them take the manuscripts for these off with them for the long summer vacation, to be digested at leisure. Others like to get the whole business out of the way before vacation. My own Christmas and Thanksgiving stories are all written and dispatched before the last of May."

"Where do you get your ideas for Thanksgiving stories", I asked. "Where will I look for materials?"

"Go to old local books and papers," said Mr. Butterworth. "Town histories, anniversary addresses and sermons. I never lose an opportunity to read over such documents. The library at Worcester has made a specialty of collecting such material, and the Boston Public Library is rich in it also. In almost every paper you will find at least one picturesque incident recounted, or anecdote told, which will give you an idea. Then you build your story up around that, having due regard for the accuracy of the historical associations which you introduce.

"Once get the central idea, the motif, and the rest will come. The characters will present themselves, and work out for you in your mind the things they ought to do. They will haunt you, and give you no rest, until the story, is written."

"Are you being haunted that way now?" I asked, secretly hoping that if I could get a glimpse of these ghostly visitors some part of their attentions might be diverted to myself.

"I've just one Thanksgiving story left in my mind," said Mr. Butterworth. "Except for that I've written myself completely out."

"Would you be willing to tell me what it is?" I asked, trembling at my own audacity, but hurrying on to say. "And then tell me how you are going to write it?"

"Why certainly," was the answer. "This is it."

Now this story has not been written yet. That is, it had not been written the last time I saw Mr. Butterworth, because he had had so much else to do. It certainly was very good of him to let me and the public into the secrets of his workshop in that way, and I hope no one will be so mean as to steal his idea and write out the story before he does. Although if anybody did this I am quite sure the manuscript would be returned in one of those bulky envelopes, because the editors would be sure to prefer to wait for the version of the same story which Mr. Butterworth is to write.

"This is the thought," Mr. Butterworth continued. "Many years ago an old Indian, living at Quinnebaug, heard that the white men had landed on Shawmut, and were building themselves houses there in which to live. Taking with him his twelve-year-old son, the two walked all the way to Shawmut, now Boston, a distance of fifty miles, carrying with them a bushel and a half of corn which they had raised. This was the first Indian corn ever seen by the white settlers of Shawmut. Quinnebaug was where Dudley now is.

"The Indian boy lived to be a very old man, and when he was a hundred years old he went to Boston for another visit. This time he was invited to come, as the guest of the town, to a Thanksgiving dinner given him in commemoration of that other visit which he had made with his father so many years before. This was when Governor Shute was in office, and the Indian visitor was no doubt entertained at the Province House, then the best known "tavern" of the place, and standing where the Boston Tavern now stands. In it was a famous banquet hall, in which the dinner was no doubt served. Cannot you see in your imagination," said Mr. Butterworth. "what a notable scene that room would present? Governor Shute and the venerable savage would be sitting at the head of the table, with the distinguished men of the colony in the picturesque dress of that time, below them. Here," he added, "is the idea and the setting for a story. Plot, characters and incidents will come to you when you begin to study the situation."

I drew a long breath, unconscious until I did so of how closely I had been following him. "How did you get this particular idea?" I asked.

"I went out to Dudley not long ago, to read a poem at a gathering there. A minister preached an anniversary sermon, and in it told of these Indians and their two visits. Afterwards I looked up the historical records of the visits."

"Which of your Thanksgiving stories do you like best?" I asked.

"I think," said the writer, stopping a moment to bring the work of other years to mind, "that I like best 'Wych Hazel, the Jew,' the story of the old Jew's money jars, and the strange tree which blossomed in the late autumn, when all the other flowers are dying or dead. That, and 'The Haunted Oven,' the story of the loaves of bread baked on a gravestone. The gravestone, you know, was an old one which had been replaced by one of newer pattern. A workman used the broad, flat stone to repair the bottom of a brick oven, and the letters on it impressed what was taken to be a warning on the bottom of the loaves of bread."

"How long does it take you to write a story?" I continued, anxious to know the whole business.

"Two or three days, when the fever is really 'on.'"

"And how do you feel after the story is done?" I persisted. "I mean do your characters take such hold on you that when you have killed off a favorite you go out and walk the streets, as Dickens is said to have done after he wrote the chapter in which the story of the death of Little Nell is told?"

"Not just that, I think. I always feel tired, though, and all worn out, and don't want to do anything for a day or two only just lie around and rest, and be let alone. While I am resting I like to have agreeable persons around me; and the less they know the better."

The last words raised in me a sudden, awful fear. When I had come he had seemed glad to see me. "Mr. Butterworth," I faltered, "have you just finished a story?"

He looked at me a moment, questioningly, and saw the point. "Oh, no! No!" he cried in protest. "I didn't mean that. I mean folks who talk philosophy, and science, and such things, when I want to rest."

I wonder if that was just his kindness of heart, trying to make me feel comfortable again.

CURED OF DRINKING

A Woman's Secret Method Whereby She Cured Her Husband who was a Terrible Drunkard by Mixing a Remedy in His Coffee and Food Curing Him Without His Help or Knowledge.

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE TO ALL.

It takes a woman to overcome obstacles. Mrs. Chas. W. Harry, 920 York St., Newport, Ky., had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering, misery and privation due to her husband's drinking habits. Learning there was a cure for drunkenness which she could give her husband secretly, she decided to try it. She mixed it in his food and coffee, and as the remedy is odorless and tasteless he never knew what it was that so quickly relieved the craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up in flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly and now they have a happy home. Mr. Harry was told about his wife's experiment and he gives her the credit of having restored him to his senses. It is certainly a remarkable remedy, cures a man without his effort, does him no harm and causes him no suffering whatever.

MRS. CHAS. W. HARRY.

Dr. Haines, the discoverer, will send a trial package of this grand remedy free to all who will write for it. Enough of the remedy is mailed free to show how it is used in tea, coffee or food, and that it will cure the dreaded habit quietly and permanently. Send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 1578 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will mail a free sample of the remedy to you, securely sealed in a plain wrapper, also full directions how to use it, books and testimonials from hundreds who have been cured, and everything needed to aid you in saving those near and dear to you from a life of degradation and ultimate poverty and disgrace.

Send for a free trial today. It will brighten the rest of your life.

A GRAND

Household Outfit FREE.

Any one can learn to repair their tinware in fifteen minutes with our new and improved Handy Soldering Set. This new Set has full directions how to work it to the best advantage and you can save enough in one day by using this Set to keep one in Boots and Shoes for six months. Everything necessary to repair all kinds of tinware or used to put up canned fruits etc., comes with this set and we will send a Set to you free, all charges paid, if you enclose 25c. for one yearly subscription. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Are You Beautiful?

If not, read this and learn how to have a Lovely Complexion.

Everybody admires women and girls with clear, healthy, spotless complexions. They are attracted by pink cheeks and soft, velvety, delicate skin. Nothing destroys happiness and beauty like Freckles, Pimples, Blackheads, Yellow or Muddy Skin, Moth, Wrinkles, Red Nose or Face, Tan, Eruptions, Discolorations or Blemishes of any nature. They make both men and women homely and make them look old. All these afflictions are quickly and easily cured by DR. BOTOT'S COMPLEXION WAFERS. This is the most wonderful beautifier that was ever made. It is positively harmless to all, and contains not a single atom of Lead, Bismuth or Arsenic.

FOR GENTLEMEN AS WELL AS LADIES. These Wafers completely and permanently remove every eruption, blotch, discoloration and blemish on both Ladies and Gentlemen. They make the old look young. They beautify Face, Neck, Shoulders and Arms. They impart the delicate tints of girlhood and youth to the complexion. A woman cannot possibly be homely if she uses DR. BOTOT'S COMPLEXION WAFERS. She will be as fair as a rose, and wrinkles will not appear until she is far advanced in life. This may seem impossible to you, but it is the plain truth. The Wafers are not a cosmetic, remember, but a food for the skin. They make ladies of 40 look to be less than 30.

You Can Try Them Free. For a short time we will continue to send a free trial package of DR. BOTOT'S WAFERS to readers of this paper. You can thus satisfy yourself of their wonderful beautifying virtues without cost. Send your name and P. O. address at once, before this liberal offer is withdrawn, and enclose a stamp to pay postage. We mail the samples in sealed, plain envelopes. Address

CAPITAL DRUG CO., Box 523 Augusta, Maine.

$1.00 SEND ONE DOLLAR Cut this ad. out and send to us, state whether you wish GENTS' OR LADIES' BICYCLE, also color and gear wanted, and we will send you this HIGH GRADE 1900 MODEL ACME JEWEL BICYCLE, by express C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine at your express office, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, the MOST WONDERFUL VALUE you ever saw or heard of, equal to bicycles that retail as high as $40.00, if you think you can sell it at $10.00 profit any day, pay the express agent OUR SPECIAL PRICE, $16.50, less the $1.00 sent with order, or $15.50 and express charges. While our Special Bicycle Catalogue, mailed free for the asking, shows all bicycles below all other houses, stripped bicycles at $5.00, $6.00, $7.50, $8.00 and $9.00, the new 1900 Cincinnatus complete at $11.75, yet OUR ACME JEWEL AT $16.50 is by far the greatest bargain ever offered at the price. It is covered by a BINDING GUARANTEE, strictly high grade, latest of everything. Famous Belden Hanger, fine equipment. Guaranteed Pneumatic Tires, high grade Saddle, Pedals, Handle Bar, Tools and Toolbag. Enameled black, green or maroon. IF YOU WANT ANY OTHER BICYCLE advertised in this paper or in any catalogue, write us and we will save you at least $2.00 to $10.00 on it. YOU CAN MAKE $500.00 THIS YEAR selling this bicycle at $25.00. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) CHICAGO, ILL.

This Cut is 1-2 Actual Size of Watch and Chain.

Watch and Chain FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

We send this Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm to Boys and Girls for selling 1½ dozen packages of BLUINE at 10c. each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, postpaid, and a large Premium List.

No money required. We send the Bluine at our own risk. You go among your neighbors and sell it. Send us the money that you get for it and we send you the Watch, Chain and Charm, prepaid.

This is an American Watch, Nickel-Plated Case, Open Face, Heavy Bevelled Crystal. It is Guaranteed to keep Accurate Time, and with Proper Care should last ten years.

BLUINE CO., Box 418, CONCORD JUNCTION, MASS.

The Old Reliable firm who sell honest goods and give Valuable Premiums.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully; remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74, DETROIT, MICH.

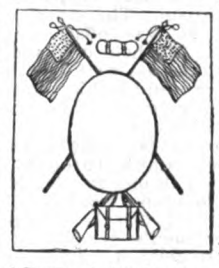
$9.00 Buys A High Arm Sewing Machine. Send your name and address and we will mail you our catalogue. Select any style Oxford sewing machine and we will send it by prepaid freight on 30 days' free trial, with all attachments and twenty years' guarantee. Easy running. Does light or heavy work as good as a $60.00 machine. Buy from factory. SHEPHERD MFG. CO., H. 294 22d St., Chicago.

SEND YOUR SIZE and 10 cents to defray mailing, etc. and we will send, postpaid, one beautiful 18K Gold Pl. Ring, 20 Fine Silk Remnants, latest colors and designs, 1 yd. Silk Ribbon, Handsome Pearl Top Scarf Pin, Fancy Silvered Hair Pin, 2 Silvered Studs, one fine Gold Plated Beauty Pin, Inlaid Scarf Pin, Outfit of Games and Pictures and our bargain list of Jewelry and fancy goods. Entire lot, postpaid, 10 cents. Address: L. E. GOGGINS, Box 31, Roselle, N. J.

LACE CURTAINS FREE



These beautiful Royal Lace Parlor Curtains are of the newest Savoy design, three yards long, 36 inches wide, are washable and will last a life time. You can get two pairs of these choice curtains, (same design as in cut), and four beautiful Sash Curtains (one yard square each) FREE by selling our GREAT COLD REMEDY and HEADACHE CURE. Cures Cold in One Day! Relieves Headache at Once! We will give the curtains absolutely free to anyone taking advantage of the great offer we send to every person selling six boxes of our Tablets. If you agree to sell only six boxes at 25 cents a box, write to-day and we will send the Tablets by mail postpaid. When sold, send us the money and we will send four Sash Curtains, unhemmed, so they may be made to fit any window, together with our offer of two complete pairs of Royal Lace Parlor Curtains, enough to furnish a room, same day money is received. This is a grand opportunity for ladies to beautify their homes with fine Lace Curtains of exquisite design. All who have earned them are delighted. Address: NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., 1010 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn. Box 290

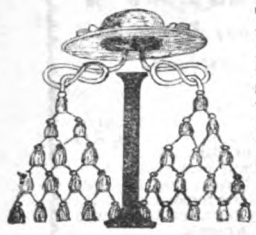
The American Stamping Outfit

A choice collection of New and Seasonable Designs for Decorative Work.

The designs we give in this outfit cannot be duplicated in any art store for less than $5. This is fact, not fiction. The Outfit contains all the following designs:

1 Chinese Alphabet, 2x2 in. high.
1 Eccentric Alphabet, 1¾ in. high.

1 Floral and bow-knot design—Violets, for sofa pillow covers or table cover decorations, buffet scarfs, etc., 13x13 in.
1 Spray violets for doilies, 4x7 in.
1 Conventional design for jewel work, for square doilies or scarf ends, 4x8 in.
1 Conventional design for Bulgarian work, for scarf ends, or doily corners, 4x8 in.
1 design for medicine glass cover, with dial, 3x3 in.
1 border design of bow-knots, 1⅛ in. wide.
1 Border design for flannel embroidery, 1 in. wide.
1 Empire design for picture frame, 6x6½ inches.
1 design for book mark, 3¼x3¼ inches.
1 design for tobacco pouch.
1 Border and corner design, Oriental, for table cover or lambrequein, etc., 7x7 inches.
1 design for lamp shade, Butterfly.
1 design, Tiger lily, 6½x10 inches.
1 Scallop border for flannel work, ¾ in. wide.
1 Empire corner design, with Fleur de Lis, 9x9 inches.
1 design for delph work, 2½x3 inches.
1 Wreath and bow-knot design for monogram, 3½x4 inches.
1 Spray of Mignonette, 6x6 inches.
1 Spray Lily of the valley, 2½x3 inches.
1 Empire design for twin picture frames, 10x12 inches.
1 Lily-of-the-valley and bow-knot design, 15x15 in.
1 design for penwiper with motto, 4x7 inches.
1 Floral spray for tea cloth or center piece, doilies, 6x8½ inches.
1 Dog's head for art work, 1½x2 inches.
1 design of Mountain pine, with motto (see illustration), 11x14 inches.
1 design American flags, 7x7 inches.
1 design Poppies and leaves, 4x10 inches.
1 design for picture frame, American flags, etc. (see illustration), 8x10 inches.
1 Ribbon and floral design for monogram, 2x8½ in.
1 design Nasturtium, 2½x5½ inches.
1 Conventional design for art work, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design, for table covers, etc., 9x9 inches.
1 Patriotic design for sofa pillow, American and Cuban flags, knapsacks and guns, 16x16 inches.
1 Set of six doily designs, conventional patterns, 4x4 inches.
1 design for Cross stitch work, 3½x3½ inches.
1 Acorn design for scatter work.
1 Ribbon and Daisy design, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design 8x8 inches.
1 Floral and bow-knot doily design, 5x5 inches.



The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 9 sheets of patterns, each sheet 14x22 inches in size. As good as can be made.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA COMPOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

FREE Send 25 cents for a year's subscription to this paper and we will forward one of these outfits free all charges paid. Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

Ancient and Mediæval Head-gear.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

It is impossible to fix upon a time in human history of which it may be positively said that members of the human family did not wear something for the protection or adornment of the head. The crown, the ancient and universal mark of kings, princes and nobles, at first a fillet of gold worn to confine the hair and prevent its being dishevelled in the wind, developed in time into a turban-like structure. It was from this symbol of power and authority that the various forms of official head-covering have been evolved—the mortar, the bicocket of the King's retainers, the bonnet of the Doges of Venice, the mitre of the Bishop, the Cardinal's hat and the papal tiara.

Among the Orientals, the covering of the head was anciently one of the outward signs and expressions of grief. And it is not improbable that the square handkerchief which the Bedouin folds so that, when placed upon the head, the three corners will hang down over the shoulders and back, leaving the face exposed, is of very early origin, and was used by the Israelites in Scripture times, at least at weddings or as part of holiday attire. The hats mentioned in the book of Daniel may have been fillets of gold to which the wearers were entitled, being nobles; or cloaks by which their heads could be covered in case of need. If the latter, they were an early form of the hood which became the wearer of all classes in many parts of Europe in the Middle Ages of Christianity. Official head-dresses were provided, with the other sacerdotal garments to be worn by the sons of Aaron. They are called "bonnets" in the King James version of the Old Testament Scriptures, and the term is explained to mean caps, probably cup-shaped, of fine texture and workmanship. They were distinct from the mitre of the high-priest, which was to consist of a coil of twisted linen covered with blue lace and ornamented in front with an inscribed golden plate.

There are certain indications that some sort of head covering was worn constantly in ancient times, both in-doors and out, and that whatever came into general use in the Middle Ages under the name of hat, cap, bonnet, or hood, was intended to be worn in addition to the other. We have for example, a representation of the Venetian Doge's bonnet in the sculptured arms of the Foscari. In a portrait of the Doge Loredano, we see this bonnet worn over what resembles a plain linen night-cap, having strings which fall down to the shoulders. In France, early in the fifteenth century, caps were regarded as superfluous articles of dress, to be worn only in wet weather, or when the wearer went from the city into the country. And we see in the paintings belonging to that century a large number of caps and hats worn over some other kind of head-dress.

HOOD—XV. CENTURY.

The term bonnet, under different lingual variations, was applied in Western Europe in the fifteenth century, and even earlier, to a distinctive kind of head-gear, probably originating in a particular kind of material, or referring to the quality of the material used in the manufacture. It soon came to be applied to a rimless cap of soft material worn both in and out of doors.

It is interesting to recall the legend accounting for the invention of felt, which has become such an important material in the manufacture of head-gear. It was used for the first caps made in France. The legend also accounts for the acceptance of St. Clement by the hatters of Continental Europe as their patron saint and for the celebration, by the hatters, of St. Clement's day on the 23d of November. That saint is generally supposed to have been the fourth occupant of the Episcopal See of Rome, holding the same about the years 91 to 100 of the Christian era. Those were times of persecution and Clement, being obliged to flee therefrom, suffered from blistered feet in his wanderings. To avoid this discomfort he put some refuse wool in his sandals. He found that after a time the wool became worked by his feet into a uniformly compact substance. He subsequently caused this substance to be manufactured (an improvement upon his process of *pedi*facture,) and applied to various articles of apparel.

It has sometimes been stated that hats were not worn in Europe until the fifteenth century. The fact is that the distinction was not made until subsequent to that period, between the various articles of head-gear. It is certain, however, that the use of what we now call hats, in contradistinction to caps and hoods, became more general in that century than ever before, albeit without at once affecting the popular use of the hood.

The hood originated in the pointed cape or capooch, the adoption of which in the thirteenth century gave the name to the religious order of the Capuchins. This order was a branch of the Franciscans, and its founder claimed that the capooch was of the same pattern as that worn by St. Francis. The portion of the hood intended to cover the shoulders was called, as its form changed by lengthening and narrowing, the tippet or liripoop. The tippet being twisted about the hood, caused it to assume the form of a turban. And some one tried the experiment of putting his head into the opening in the side of the hood intended for the face, and of wearing the hood horizontally instead of vertically as had been intended. Thence the hood drifted from a useful and comfortable article of dress into a merely ornamental appendage, and began to go out of fashion. For a while it was carried slung over the shoulders at the end of the tippet, so that it could be worn on the head if desired. It finally became the mark of a scholastic degree, as in our modern colleges. The liripoops and tippets, after they had constituted in a variety of ways a part of the head-gear, became a part of clerical and scholastic dress, surviving possibly in the stole of the clergy of the present. It is surmised that it survives also in the hat of modern times, and particularly in the long solemn hat band of crape or silk worn in some localities by ali who follow a corpse to the grave, and in other places, in the scarfs worn over the shoulders at funerals.

TURBAN—XV. CENTURY.

The Fifteenth Century probably presents the greatest variety and most extravagant fashions in the matter of head-gear to be found in our review of the subject. There were felt hats with broad brims turned up both back and front and attached to the crown by a button, often jeweled. There were caps with triangular crowns; and hats suggesting those worn at the present day by coal-heavers and longshoremen and called sea 'westets. Fur was largely used in the manufacture and decoration of hats; some were lined with it, others were entirely covered with it. Fur hats were worn even by the common people; and it was to express his sympathy with the bourgeois that Louis XI. of France wore such a hat; and to indicate his appeal to the religious feeling of the times, he kept it stuck full of little sacred images. The gallants of his day wore hats of the same style, but much bedecorated with feathers and jewels. The eccentricities of the English were illustrated by a variety of shapes in hats, among which the steeple hat of Edward IV.'s time was the most sensible, being designed to air the crown of the wearer's head.

FROM HOOD TO HAT.

The head-gear of the Middle ages may be studied best by examining the pictures painted at that time. These reveal some curious phases of the subject. In the fifteenth century lived the Italian painter, Filippine Lippi, whom Browning has done much to immortalize, though some of his paintings, altar pieces, of his, representing the "Adoration of the Magi," are extant. In these he evidently depicted some of the hats worn in Italy in his day; if not, he possessed a genius for designing fashions in millinery that would have been his fortune in these days. But we have other evidences of the luxurious ornamentation in feathers and jewels bestowed upon the head-gear in Italy in that age. We find the Italian men adopting suggestions for their hats from the vegetable world and from like sources, precisely as the women of more modern times have done. In Lippi's pictures we have hats evidently suggested by a pile of melons; others in imitation of bee-hives and conch-shells. His pictures include all kinds of fantastic hoods, and fezzes plain and ornamented. Uccello, a painter of battle scenes, decked his Italian soldiers in the most fantastic head-gear imaginable, making them appear like the bearers of so many Chinese lanterns upon their shoulders. On the other hand, Pisano, in his picture of "St. Anthony and St. George," places upon the head of the latter saint a sensible hat—a broad-brimmed straw, having only a feather to distinguish it from that of a present day Southern farmer. Altogether, it would seem that there has been no style of hat, cap or bonnet adopted since then, that had not its prototype in the fifteenth century.

ITALIAN.

While these fantastic extravagances depicted by Lippi were in vogue, the fez was imported from the East and became popular all over Europe, assuming varying heights in various countries. It was usually worn with long full hair, and proved a sensible and admirable style of head dress. But in England, where the steeple crown and other idiosyncracies were tolerated, it excited the criticism of the moralists, who were perhaps scandalized by a fashion derived from the Mahometans.

Regarding the color of hats much of interest might be said. In Italy at one time bankrupts were compelled by law to wear green hats. The white hat was the badge of a political party in Ghent once in the fourteenth century; and later at Oxford, it was supposed to be the badge of Radicalism. The severity of the form in the steeple hat was offset by its tall crown, for example. The hats depicted by Lippi, copied their colors, as well as their forms from nature, and we find in his pictures hats with green crowns, gold trimmings and rims with straw colored linings.

Probably the most curious fact among those gleaned in our desultory ramble through the various kinds of millinery in use in the Middle Ages, is this: the fashions we have thus far examined were intended for the exclusive use of men. It was for men's heads that all these extravagances were devised. The men in that age would have been the objects of the law prohibiting the wearing of tall hats in a theater, had there been such laws in those days. Precisely when these elaborate styles became the object of feminine envy, it would be impossible to decide. But it was probably as the fashions for men began to settle down to the degree of conservative simplicity which they have since maintained. We find on the other hand the styles of feminine head-gear constantly changing and ever of varied forms; and now again returning to something that has been tried in a previous age. The cavalier's hat of the age of Charles II becomes the Gainsborough in the time of the painter of that name, and has come in vogue at different periods since. And now when we have a sex distinction in head-gear generally recognized, the man's hat is again made the object of woman's aspiration, and is from time to time appropriated by her; without, however, her fully relinquishing her hold upon the elaborate styles she found in use among the men of the Middle Ages, and from which she has succeeded in varying but little. Perhaps there is the suggestion for a philosophical screed here, but upon that we shall not at present enter.

HUNTING CASE

This genuine 14k. Rolled Gold Ring or a Band Ring, Bracelet, Hat Pin, Chatelaine, Knife, Shirt Waist Set, or a Pocket book to Anyone who will sell 10 of our Roman Gold Stick Pins at 10c. each. They sell quickly at the price, suitable for ladies or gentlemen.

FREE

NO MONEY REQUIRED IN ADVANCE, just say you will sell the pins or return them and we will send pins at once postpaid with large premium list of Watches, Clocks, Chains, Opera Glasses, Bicycles, Tea Sets, Musical Instruments, etc. When sold you send us the money and we will send the premium you select. Miss Claire Tanner of Breakabeen, Tex. writes: "Thanks for the Gold Nugget Clock it is a little beauty."

B. E. Wolfe of Lapland, Md., says: "Was greatly pleased with the watch. It is very pretty and keeps perfect time."

⅔ Actual Size.

OUR PREMIUMS ARE THE BEST.

M. R. COMPANY, 79 Dearborn St., Dept. 140, Chicago, Ills

$1,000 FOR A CERTAIN OLD COIN.

WHILE there are some people who have a vague idea that coins issued 100 or 1000 years ago are worth fabulous sums, yet very few know that coins issued only a few years ago are at a large premium. For instance, the silver dollars of 1895 and many of the earlier ones. The first Columbian half-dollar, issued 1892, sold for $1,000. All the half-dollars from 1879 to 1890 are at a premium, also Isabella quarters of 1893, the old issue of the quarters and half-dollars of 1853, twenty-cent pieces 1876 to 1878; five and three-cent pieces of 1877; last issue of the two-cent copper and three-cent silver pieces; first issue of the nickel cents, all gold dollars and three-dollar gold pieces; all Territorial and California coins from 1849 to 1880, and thousands of earlier American and Foreign coins, Canadian especially. There is also a premium on some coins with MINT MARKS O, S, C, D or CC; also on fractional currency, colonial, continental and Confederate bills and old POSTAGE STAMPS. THE GLOBE reports that a coin was found in Galveston worth $5,000. THE NEW YORK JOURNAL says that a cent was plowed up at Aurora, N. Y., worth $1,200, and that Mr. Castle paid $4,400 FOR A STAMP found at Louisville, Ky. THE WORLD says: "Many people have become wealthy by looking after old coins and stamps." THE HOME JOURNAL says: "Coin and stamp collecting is a profitable business, as there are but few in it. The Numismatic Bank buys from Agents all over the country, and pays them big sums." Coins that are very hard to find in one section are often easily found in others. A Boston baker sold 116 coppers for $6,915, 29 silver coins for $4,715, and 4 gold coins for $1,700, and others have done nearly as well. MR. F. W. AYER sold recently a lot of stamps, collected since 1862, to Stanley Gibbons for $250,000. THE COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL NEWS says: "The Numismatic Bank is not only the largest institution of its kind, but as reliable, safe and trustworthy to deal with as any National Bank. The enormous business done by them is the result of SQUARE DEALING and liberality." Send two stamps for our illustrated circular on rare coins and stamps, which may prove to be your stepping stone to wealth and independence. NUMISMATIC BANK, (Dept. C, Boston, Mass.

BATES' RHEUMATIC FOOT DRAFTS and Mountain Herb Compound positively Cure Rheumatism. The Drafts can be worn in any shoes, and will draw out pain from any part of the system. One Pair Mailed FREE. Address Bates Rheumatic Cure Co. South Boston, Mass.

OUR PRICES ON ELGIN, WALTHAM and GOLD - FILLED WATCHES, Warranted 20 Years, ARE THE LOWEST.

Before you buy it will not cost you a cent to examine this great bargain; Watch and Chain, complete, $4.50. CUT THIS OUT and send it to us with your name, post office and express office address and we will send you C.O.D. for examination this beautifully engraved 14k double hunting case, gold plated, stem wind and stem set watch fitted with a richly jeweled movement, guaranteed a perfect timekeeper and equal in appearance to any $35.00 watch. A long gold plated chain for ladies or vest chain for gents and our 20 year guarantee sent with each watch. After examination if you are satisfied it is a great bargain pay the express agent our special price $4.50 and express charges and it is yours. Mention if you want gent's or ladies' size.

DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., CHICAGO, ILL. Dept. A16, 225 Dearborn Street.

CUSTOMERS ASTOUNDED AT OUR BARGAINS IN

REMNANTS OF SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

We have purchased, at recent wholesale auction sales several large lots of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure splendid bargains. These remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the finest quality of Ribbons in the market, of different widths, in a variety of fashionable shades; in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bonnet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bows, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Satin Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of our lady friends.

We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors. No remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods.

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3045, New York City, N. Y.

MAGNETIC HEALING, Personal Magnetism, Health, Beauty, Power, and $25 a day for you. Books free for stamp. Write quick. DR. P. BRAUN, Omaha, Nebr.

I USED IT

A HANDSOME MUSTACHE or fine beard grown on the smoothest face in 3 weeks, or money refunded. Baldness cured at once. Our TURKISH HAIR GROWER does it. We warrant every package. Avoid dangerous humbugs, get the genuine direct, 25 cents, 3 for 50c, by mail. Address, TREMONT MAN'FG CO., Sta. A, BOSTON, MASS.

PILES ELECTROBOLE gives instant relief. Final cure in a few days, never returns; no purge, no salve, no knife. Remedy mailed Free. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 695, New York, N. Y.

LOTS OF MAIL ..FREE.. THIS IS A BIG OFFER READ IT.

Put your name and address in our guaranteed Agents Directory which goes whirling all over America to firms, who will send you free samples of papers, magazines, pictures, cards, medicines, etc., etc. You will receive lots of mail. We must have 50,000 new names at once for our Directory, no matter how great the cost will be to us; we must have the names, and in order to obtain them quickly, we will send you by return mail, Free of Cost, all of the following named goods: One fine Map of the U. S., 36 New Songs, Pictures of all the Presidents, 25 Pictures of Actresses, 12 Comic Pictures, One Coin Value Guide, One Stamp Value Guide, 6 Best Agents' Articles, (worth $1.50) One large Catalogue, (scarce goods) and a One Dollar Due Bill, which entitles you to $1.00 worth of goods, absolutely free from our list. HOW CAN WE DO IT? This Grand Offer is made to introduce our goods. We want you to trade with us regularly, and recommend us to your friends. We know you will surely do it when you get these goods. Send your name and address today and enclose 10 cents (coin or stamps) to pay postage, packing, etc. Just as soon as we receive your letter we will send all of the above mentioned goods to you. This is a tremendous offer. Don't wait, write today. Address your letter to AGENTS DIRECTORY CO., 373 Dearborn Street, Dept. M1 CHICAGO, ILL. Agents' Directory Co. is reliable and will do as agreed.—EDITOR.

A Gold-Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our new line of Quadruple Plated Silverware we will for 30 days send either one of these beautiful gold lined fluted top Quadruple Plated Silver dishes FREE to any one sending a club of two yearly subscribers to SUNSHINE at 25c each, or send both dishes, all charges paid, for a club of three at 25c. each. These goods are made up in the latest 1899 style, are guaranteed to wear well, as they are the best quadruple plate. The very lowest store price of either article is not less than $1.00 or $1.50, and as these beautiful articles can be used for all sorts of eatables either on dining or side tables, they make invaluable household necessities as well as beautiful ornaments. We will for a short time send either style dish free to all who send 37c, for a year's subscription or will send both dishes, all charges paid, if you remit 62c. for a two years' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great home monthly. Don't delay but send at once. We can quote you wholesale rates on our new Premium goods that will get you rich. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

A REAL ORIENTAL RUG

is a very expensive article and is used extensively in the homes of the wealthy. This Rug is a Beautiful picture in itself. An immense factory employing hundreds of hands is turning out thousands and as they are made in bright oriental colors and patterns they produce an exquisite effect when laid on the floor. These Brussaline Rugs are fit to grace the floor of a Parlor, Sitting-Room, Hall, Dining-Room or Chamber and for an entry or kitchen rug or mat are simply grand; they are made by an entirely new process of Machine Rug making, and thus called Brussaline and we are anxious to get them before the people at once. Thousands upon thousands will be sold after they are shown and we offer you one free, now, in order to introduce them all over the country and after getting one you can show them around, take orders and make money selling them for us.

A MILLION RUGS

are in use; yes many million Rugs, taking the world over but in this country Thousands now use Rugs where one was used a few years ago, they are constantly growing in favor and getting more popular every day. Why? because they are practical and economical and make the House, Store or Office, more easy to take care of and give a certain dressy effect to a room that cannot be obtained in any other way. You can use them on bare floors to cover up the cold look or lay them on carpets to save the carpet.

TO GET THE RUG.

If you will send us the names of only two yearly subscribers with 25c. each, we will send you one of these beautiful Brussaline Rugs Free as a Premium all charges paid by us. This is the best Home paper published and sample copies will be sent on application, if you wish to show them to your friends and get up the club. We will send the Rug and a year's subscription for 67c. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

THE chafing dish is king, and everyone is looking for new recipes with which to regale and surprise their friends at the evening lunch.

It is said that the chafing dish originated with the Israelitish women, and that it has been used through each succeeding generation by both men and women.

For those who have plenty of money there are little silver chafing dishes about four inches square, which are used for serving a rarebit or a bird individually. There is no lamp under this small dish, but there is hot water in the boiler, to keep the bird warm; of course it is cooked before it is placed in this small dish.

A tray should always be used under the chafing dish, as there is so much danger of setting fire to the tablecloth from the overflow of the alcohol, when no tray is used.

When a recipe calls for milk or cream, the hot water pan should be used in all cases, to avoid all possibility of burning; but when something is to be sauted, or fried, this pan is omitted and the dish is placed directly over the flame; constant watching and turning and shaking is necessary, however, as the alcohol flame is hot and comes in direct contact with the metal pan. Oysters are usually cooked in the blazer only, at first, and then, when they are plump, if a sauce is to be added to them, the hot water pan is introduced underneath.

We have some good recipes for oysters cooked in the chafing dish which possibly some have not yet tried.

Put a pint of oysters into the blazer and when the edges begin to curl put the blazer into the hot water pan and add the seasonings, one flat teaspoon salt, a little paprica and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add a little of the oyster liquor to the yolks, from the pan, and then add the eggs to the oysters. Serve on slices of buttered toast.

CREAMED OYSTERS.

Parboil one pint oysters, drain and set aside in a warm place. Make a sauce by using two tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt, a little pepper and two cups of hot milk. Add the oysters, and, if desired, a teaspoonful of onion juice. Serve on buttered toast.

This sauce may be used for any creamed dish—shrimps, sweetbreads, mushrooms, fish or chicken.

FRIED OYSTERS.

Wash and drain the oysters and season with salt and pepper. Roll in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg (to which a tablespoonful of cold water has been added) and then in the crumbs again. Put some olive oil or a little butter into the blazer and when hot put in the oysters and brown them on both sides.

This last recipe should not be attempted for a large number of guests, as it takes sometime to do it, and only a few oysters can be done at a time; not more than four people should be regaled in this way, as, by the time the hostess has her own ready, every one else has finished.

LOBSTER A LA NEWBURG.

Remove the lobster meat from the shells and cut into small pieces. Two medium sized lobsters are used for this recipe. Put into the blazer four tablespoons butter and when it is melted add the lobster and let it cook five minutes. Then add one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons each of brandy and sherry wine and a grating of nutmeg. Beat the yolks of four eggs and stir thoroughly into them one cup of cream and then stir both into the lobster mixture. Serve as soon as the eggs thicken the sauce.

DEVILLED CRABS.

Make a white sauce by melting one tablespoon butter and adding one tablespoon flour and one cup hot milk. Then add the yolks of three hard boiled eggs, which have been rubbed through a sieve, and season with salt and pepper and a teaspoonful lemon juice and the same amount of wine. Add one cup of crab meat and one-fourth cup canned mushrooms cut in small pieces. Serve on toast.

Here is the French fashion of serving sardines.

Remove the tails and skins from a box of sardines and warm them in the oven. It is necessary to have two chafing dishes to make this recipe. In one blazer heat some butter or oil and in it saute some small squares or round or diamond shaped pieces of bread. In the other blazer, which should be over the hot water pan, put the yolks of four eggs, well beaten, with one teaspoon each of vinegar and made mustard, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one tablespoon butter. Stir the sauce until it is quite thick; then serve the sardines on the pieces of toast and pour the sauce over them.

CREAMED PEAS.

Drain, rinse and cover with boiling water one can of peas and set aside; melt two tablespoons butter, add one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon sugar and one-half teaspoon salt; when thoroughly blended, strain and add the peas with a third of a cup of milk and let cook until the liquid begins to bubble.

CHEESE FONDUE.

Melt two tablespoons butter and add one teaspoon flour, one-half teaspoon each of soda and mustard, a little pepper and gradually three-fourths of a cup of milk; when the sauce boils add one-fourth pound cheese cut into small pieces and one-half cup stale bread crumbs. Stir until well melted and blended and then add three eggs which have been beaten until light and serve at once.

ENGLISH MONKEY.

Melt one tablespoon butter and add one cup cheese; when melted add one cup fine bread crumbs which have previously been allowed to stand in one cup of milk; then add one egg lightly beaten.

MEXICAN RAREBIT.

Take one pint of tomato pulp from which the seeds have been removed and season with onion. Put a heaping tablespoon of butter into the blazer; add the tomato and when hot six eggs, slightly beaten, half a teaspoon of salt and a little pepper. Stir until the contents are of a creamy consistency. If possible, serve on brownbread toast.

Never serve anything on crackers when you can get toast. Almost everything is ten per cent. at least better when served on hot buttered toast than when served on cold crackers. If you must use crackers, then toast and butter them.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS.

Melt three tablespoons butter in the blazer and in it saute the mushrooms; sprinkle them with salt and pepper, add two tablespoons flour and one cup of cream gradually; stir until the sauce boils, being sure the flour is well cooked, and serve on toast.

HASHED POTATO.

Put a little butter in the bottom of the blazer and then add three cups of cold chopped potato which has already been salted. Pour over the potato a little hot stock and put some small pieces of butter over the top. Cover and cook slowly without stirring until thoroughly heated. Of course these will not be brown.

WELSH RAREBIT.

Put one tablespoon butter into the blazer over the hot water pan; when melted add one half cup beer or ale and one-half pound soft American Cheese, cut into small pieces. Mix together one-third teaspoon salt, one teaspoon mustard and a few grains paprica; add one beaten egg and mix thoroughly, and when the cheese has melted add these ingredients and let it all cook until properly thickened. Toast bread on one side only, and serve the rarebit upon the untoasted side.

CHAFING DISH, BUTTER BALLS, CRACKERS AND OLIVES.

GOLDEN BUCK.

Prepare a rarebit in one chafing dish; break eggs into the blazer of another dish, in which you have boiling salted water. When the eggs are cooked and the rarebit is served on the toast, place one egg on the top of each slice.

YORKSHIRE RAREBIT.

The addition of two slices of broiled bacon to each service of Golden Buck constitutes what is known as the Yorkshire Rarebit.

80 Square Inches Crazy Patchwork FREE.

Our Bargain book of Holiday presents and a skein of embroidery silk will be sent you, together with a lot of new and pretty silk pieces that will make over eighty square inches of crazy quilt or sofa pillow. Send six cents for a three months' subscription and we will send above, together with diagram showing latest fancy stitches. Also tells how to get a larger lot of silk and satin pieces free. Address, FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

AMERICAN WATCH

Cut this out and send address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination, EXPRESS ALL PAID one beautiful 14k gold plated watch, stem wind and set. A guaranteed timekeeper. Boys' or Gent's size. Equal in appearance to a $35 gold filled watch; warranted for 20 years. If satisfied pay agent $1.98. Ladies' or Misses' size Watch, EXPRESS PAID, $2.95. W. HILL MDSE. CO. 92 State St., CHICAGO.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker

Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove.

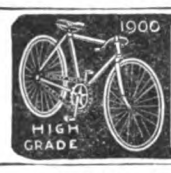
Reduces Fuel Bills One-half

Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted. TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 74, Toledo, O.

BIG COMMISSIONS TO LADY AGENTS

Lady agents for McCabe corsets and fine underskirts get generous commissions and make big money because the goods sell on sight—varying styles for different figures—prices within reach of all. Write for particulars.

ST. LOUIS CORSET COMPANY, ST. LOUIS, MO.



EARN THIS 112 PIECE DINNER SET.

DON'T SEND ANY MONEY.

Simply send your name and address & we will send you 5 doz. sets of Ladies Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) to sell at 25c. a set. When sold, send us the money and we will send you this handsome China Dinner Set, beautifully decorated and trimmed with Gold. Not a toy set, but full size for family use. No charge for packing and boxing. If you cannot sell all the sets, we will send you a handsome present for those you do sell. Don't miss this liberal offer. We trust you and will run all the risk. Write to-day.

Maxwell Co., Dept. 712, St. Louis, Mo.

YOU CAN EASILY EARN

bicycles, sewing machines, house furnishings, ladies'or gentlemen's watches, cameras, mandolins, guitars, violins, silverware, dinner sets, guns, and your choice of a hundred other articles, all guaranteed. Simply introduce a few boxes of our unexcelled toilet soaps and any of them are yours. Send no money. We trust you. Girls and boys do as well as older people. Write at once for full information. We mail handsome illustrated catalog free. Address Great Northern Soap Works, 24 Lake St., Oak Park, Ill.

DO NOT SEND US ANY MONEY

LOOK YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS THIS GRAND OFFER. FREE

A Magnificent Solid Gold-Plated Initial Bracelet or Ring Our Rings are all set with a carefully selected Ruby or Emerald Stone, mounted in a Tiffany setting. The Bracelets are in the latest style, popular Curb Link; the lock and key being exquisitely engraved. They present a beautiful appearance and will wear a lifetime. Over 100,000 young ladies are now wearing our rings and bracelets. We guarantee everything just as we advertise. Just send us your name and address (letter or postal), that's all. We will send you 10 large handsome stamped doilies, ready for embroidering (Carnations, Roses, Chrysanthemums, Pansies, Holly). Each pattern a prize-selected design. Sell these to your friends at 10c. each, send us the one dollar collected and we will promptly send you the bracelet with your initial engraved on it, or a ring; take your choice. Our reliability is established. We refer to the publisher of this paper or to any National Bank in this city. Write sure to-day for the doilies; your success is certain; sell at sight and wanted in every home. (Write to Box 50, STERLING JEWELRY CO., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

NEW CURE FOR FITS

THAT NEVER FAILS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Fits, Spasms, Spells, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus's Dance, &c., have children, relatives, friends or neighbors that do so, or know people that are afflicted, my New Treatment will immediately relieve and PERMANENTLY CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE Bottle and try it. Sent in plain package and express prepaid. It has CURED thousands where everything else failed. My 90-page Illustrated Book, "Epilepsy Explained," FREE by mail. When writing, please give name, AGE and express and postoffice address. All correspondence professionally confidential.

W. H. MAY, M. D.

MAY LABORATORY, 94 Pine St., New York City

LADIES WANTED TO SELL THE

Latest most Fashionable Petticoat made. Agents make from $15 to $60 per week. Address PARIS SKIRT CO., Dept. L. 451 Pearl St. Cleveland Ohio

BOYS AND GIRLS

Watches, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Jewelry, etc., given away for selling 18 packages of Excelsior Bluing at 10c. We ask no money. Send your name and address and get outfit and premium list with instructions postpaid. When you sell the Bluing send us the money and select your premium. We Trust You. This is an honest offer. Write for outfit today.

EXCELSIOR BLUING CO. Dept. S Chicago

You Will Get $10 IN MONEY

for every $20 worth of our goods you sell at retail prices or you get half of the amount received for larger or smaller orders. This is surely an easy way for any one with or without experience to make good wages every day of the year. Our goods need only be shown to find quick and ready sale. We are the largest dealers in the world in new and attractive Household Specialties in Tinware, Aluminum, Silver, Granite, Cutlery, and only firm in this line that manufactures goods they sell.

FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT AND CATALOGUE.

Send for our free illustrated catalogue and particulars about sample outfits which also can be secured delivered to you free of charge. We will teach you the work and make everything plain. Letters received at and goods shipped from any of the following seven branch houses, saving time and transportation charges. (Dept. 132) HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 19, 21, 23 and 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N.Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.

DYE WITH NEW PERFECTION DYES AND GET Bright, Even Colors FAST to Light, Air, Soap and Acids. Strong! Simple! Sure! A large pkg., any color, mailed for 10 cts.; 3 for 25 cts.; 6 for 40 cts. Agents wanted. New dye book FREE. CUSHING & CO., FOXCROFT, MAINE.

FREE THIS BANGLE RING

with initial engraved, warranted to wear three years, to anyone sending us 10c. for our Bargains in Jewelry. Shell Novelty Co., Dept. K, 194 Broadway, New York.

Get A Colonial Premium, worth $10 to $15 each. Particulars FREE. COLONIAL TRADING CO., Boston, Mass.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

MAGIC DIP NEEDLE for locating Gold and Silver Ore, Lost or Hidden Treasures. Circulars and testimonials 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

FREE RUPTURE CURE!

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y, and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

Dollars for Pennies.

"THE LIGHT THAT WON'T GO OUT."

Every family in America is ready to buy "The light that sells on sight"—the wonderful new invention called ARC-LIGHT WICK.

It burns a whole year without trimming. It kills a candle, discounts kerosene, beats gas, and almost equals electricity or sunlight.

It saves 20 per cent. of oil. It's clear, white and brilliant. It's the light that won't go out. It's the light in the window for thee.

The Light That Sells On Sight.

The ARC-LIGHT is something new. All need it, all buy it, all bless it. To show it means to sell it, and it yields from 100 per cent. to 300 per cent. profit to agents.

The same kind of carbon that gives the electric light its brilliancy is woven into the Arc-Light by a patent process. We hold affidavit showing that an Arc-Light burned 1040 hours, giving the last hour the same perfect, brilliant, light it gave the first.

A single lamp manufacturer in New England, who bought over 35,000 writes: "The Arc-Light beats all others. It sells our lamps, and turns night into day." Every home, store, hotel, car company will sight. We have manufacturers to covery, and we wholesale terms Medium or A for house lamps—dozen, 25 cents; wicks, for hand wide, sample, 5 gross, $2.50 hall, store, or sample, 5 cents; $3.50 D wick, 1 1-2 hall, bracket, or 33 cents dozen; parlor lamps, sam- 33 cents; per gross, accompanied by cor sample dozen, giving width desired, and see how they go. We can supply you with any style ARC-LIGHT WICK in any quantities, from a single wick to a thousand dozen.

saloon, hall, church, or buy the Arc-Light Wick on made arrangements with the introduce this wonderful dis- offer for 60 days the following to agents: wick, 5-8 inch wide—the size by mail, sample 5 cents; per per gross, $2.50, Small or E lamps, lanterns, etc., 3-8 inch cents; per dozen, 25 cents; per Large or B wicks, for table, bracket lamps, 1 inch wide, per dozen, 25 cents; per gross, inches wide, for incubators, store lamps, sample, 8 cents; $3.50 gross. Argand wicks for ple wick, 8 cents, per dozen, $3.50. On all orders for $10.00 the cash, 15 per cent. off. Send Copyright, 1896, by Morse & Co.

SPECIAL FREE COUPON OFFER. To all who send six cents and this offer for three months' trial subscription to this paper we will send 2 samples of A B or E wick. Address COMFORT, Box 959, Augusta, Maine.

Hair Like This

WE WILL MAIL FREE on application, to any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color, after all other remedies have failed. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address.

Lorrimer & Co, 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

ALL MEN AND BOYS

require a good knife that has not only got the right stuff in it but it must be strong and be large enough for all round service. The detachable and adjustable knife here illustrated is made in Sweden. This knife is made from the finest hand forged razor steel, it is very strong and made in the very best manner. It is not only an every day Pocket knife but for hunting and purposes where strength and utility is wanted it makes the most satisfactory and desirable knife in existence. The small illustration showing knife in the hand gives an idea of the open ready for use knife; the large illustration shows the brass frame which the blade shuts into before it all slides into the strongly made handle marked "Sweden." The Swedes are the most honest and thorough workmen in the world and Swedish Razors have a world wide reputation. These knives are now having a large sale in America on account of their great strength, durability and keen edge. The handle is four inches long and blade and handle together seven inches long.

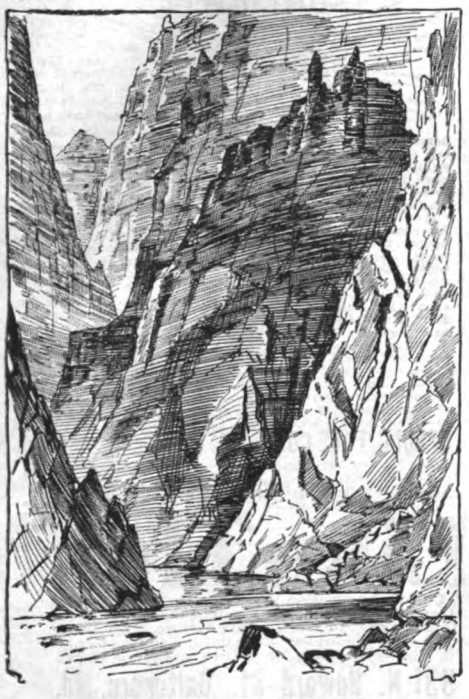
A KNIFE FREE. These knives sell in many places for $1.00 but we will give one free to any one sending us two yearly subscribers at 25c each or send 50c for a two years' subscription.

Address Family Herald, Augusta, Maine.

The Grand Canon of the Colorado.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

AMERICANS have not yet begun to appreciate the wonders and the beauties of their own country. They travel along the beaten tracks, follow the lines of railroads, and visit the cities, but few of them realize that leaving the beaten paths they may easily come upon scenes more wondrous than any to be found in the whole world. Our southwest is teeming with beauty and marvels little guessed by those hundreds of travelers who speed over the desert in railroad coaches.



There is probably nothing in the world to exceed in beauty, wonder and sublimity the trip to the Grand Canon of the Colorado. This river rises in the Rocky Mountains, and flows through Colorado and Arizona touching Utah, Nevada and California, cutting its way through strata millions of years old, until it finds the sea level in the Gulf of California.

The Grand Canon is in the northern part of Arizona and extends in a generally east and west direction. It is about sixty-five miles from the railroad at Flagstaff and is easily reached by a stage line.

The first view of this mighty chasm is truly awful. Standing upon its brink, the eye wanders first over a vast pile of mountain peaks cut into curious shapes and worn into the semblance of grotesque forms and figures. Then, as the eye becomes accustomed to the great depth, he beholds the river itself, a seemingly tiny stream, yellow as gold, and winding its torturous way a mile and a quarter beneath his feet.

To adequately describe the Grand Canon is an utter impossibility. One can but attempt to describe its impressions upon him; but the mysterious glory, the strange sensations of insignificance which one feels can only be felt—not told. It is easy to say that the Canon is a mile and a quarter deep and from wall to wall across the top the distance is thirteen miles. That all means but little. Think rather that Mt. Washington and the whole Presidential Range might be tipped into it and leave room at the top for more; the grand cataract of Niagara could be seen only with a powerful glass if it were at the bottom, while the giant redwoods of California would appear like toy trees if viewed from the brink. The river itself is larger than the Hudson, yet it looks like a tiny brook, while on either side rise the sculptured walls—sculptured by that most wonderful of all artists—Nature, and the tool with which she worked was the most wonderful chisel the world has ever known—water.

But now let us see why this Colorado River is so strange, why it so far exceeds all other rivers in the world of wonders. In the early ages of our continent when our eastern hills were young mountains, and our western mountains were in their childhood, a great sea stretched from the Rockies to the Sierra Nevada Mountains and the slopes were sandy beaches not unlike those of New Jersey and New England today. There we find to-day the mark of the ripples of that ancient sea far up the mountain sides. Now slowly all that lake was raised, together with the mountains about it. The water drained off to the sea through the present water courses, leaving a plateau eight thousand feet above the sea level, over which to-day the sand of that ancient sea is blown into drifts and in parts of which no human being is ever seen. But as the plateau was raised the rivers must find an outlet and they cut through the solid rock keeping pace to the rising land. Then great lava streams flowed out over the surface and the whole was folded and bent by the mighty forces of the internal heat of the earth. This is a large story to comprehend at a glance and as the eye wanders over the surface of the walls of the Canon, and the wonderful colors stand out before him, if he can read the story there outspread he may study the history of all the ages upon the open page, from the dark trap rock to the lighter sandstones, limestones, marbles and granites. Scarcely a color but is found there; every shade of grey, lavender, red, brown and yellow, even to pure white. These colors are often in straight parallel lines sometimes so twisted and bent that one cannot trace their beginning and end. This wonder of color does, in part, compensate for the lack of foliage and forest. This is a land of rock, not of soil.

WITHIN THE GRAND CANON.

But the river itself—that innocent-looking stream—what shall we find it like when we have climbed down those precipitous sides? Seated on its margin we find it a rushing, roaring torrent, sweeping on, in many places, more rapidly than the Rapids of Niagara and bringing with it the waste that it has torn from the mountains and which it will spread out on the shore of the Gulf.

Several times in history parties have attempted to explore the Colorado River. In 1869 Maj. Powell and his party succeeded in going down the river in boats. This expedition was attended with the greatest dangers. In many places they were swept on by the current, striking against the sharp rocks in the bed, with walls on either side so steep that it would be impossible to escape should the boats become useless.

At dawn when the rising sun dispels the mists about the temples and shrines of the Canon, or when the sunset lines touch the eastern peaks and turrets with pink and gold, the scene is one of such marvelous beauty that the soul reaches to look "through Nature to Nature's God." But it is when the white moonlight streams down into those stormy depths that the Canon takes on an atmosphere of mystery which can never be forgotten. The temples and castles of the sunlight seem tenanted with weird hosts of unknowable beings silently keeping watch and ward over this, the greatest work of our great mother—Nature.

FREE!

To convince every reader of COMFORT who has falling hair, dandruff or itching scalp that Cranitonic Scalp and Hair Food will cure these diseases, a free sample bottle will be sent by mail, post-paid, to all who will send a small lock of their hair to the Cranitonic Institute, 526 West Broadway, New York City. One of their physicians will make a microscopical examination of the hair and mail you a free report upon its condition, together with suggestions as to treatment should such be necessary. Do not neglect this opportunity. Send your hair to-day and be sure to state in your letter whether you have dandruff, itching scalp, or falling hair. There will be no charge for the microscopical examination of the hair or the advice of the physician as they are both offered as a compliment to the readers of COMFORT.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind.

A JOB 4 U $8 per 100 paid for distributing samples of washing fluid. Send 6c. stps. A. W. Scott, Cohoes, N. Y.

$5.00 CASH per 1000 paid to Distribute Circulars. Enclose 4 stamps. World Adv. Assc'n, Chicago.

COE'S ECZEMA CURE $1 at druggists. 25c. box of us. Coe Chem. Co., Cleveland, O.

BIG PAY for distributing circulars. Send stamp. Narder Advertising Co., 611 Broadway, New York.

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich. EASTERN AGENCY 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

RHEUMATISM CURED. Send stamp. Royal Remedy Co., South Bend, Ind.

SUGAR 2 1-2c. lb. pkge. Coffee 10c. Bar Soap 1c. 20 Envelopes 1c. Silk Ties 8c Knee-pants 12c. Caps 9c. Shoes 23c. Boys' suits 79c. All goods 1-2 value. Bargain list FREE. DOUGLAS COMPANY, Wonewoc, Wis.

LARGE CIGAR Firm wants permanent Agents everywhere $15 per WEEK TO BEGINNERS. EXPENSES ADVANCED. SAMPLES FREE. ADDRESS with stamp, C BOX 1216, CHICAGO

SPECTACLES at wholesale, Send for catalog. Agents wanted. COULTER OPTICAL CO. Chicago, Ill.

PLAYS Dialogues, Speakers, Amusement Books. Catalog free. T. S. DENISON, Publisher, Dept. 8, CHICAGO.

PEASE PAYS EXPENSES and $75 per month. Steady position; self-seller; no experience needed. Send 2c for contract. PEASE MFG. Co., Cincinnati, O., Dept. 32.

$2.75 buys a MAPLE AND REED BODY Baby Carriage $5.00 Buys a Beauty complete with rubber tire wheels and parasol. Full line of Sleeping Coaches and Go-Carts. 48 page Catalogue Free. Address Dept. 75 VICTOR MANFG. CO. 161 to 167 Plymouth Place, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

COMFORT FOOT POWDER makes walking easy, prevents chafing, sweating, corns, bunions, callous. Removes all odor. ¼ lb. box 25c. G. W. Burns, Chemist, Bernardsville, N. J.

MAKE $10 A DAY ON $50 CAPITAL. Easy honest work; no canvassing. Write now. Brown Lewis Co., 293 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

READY March 1. Spring Catalog, about 500 pages, for farmers and housekeepers, sent free. Send names of others Patrons Supply House, 59 Lake St., Chicago.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

SONGS ONE CENT EACH

2 HANDSOME PRESENTS FREE This elegant Gold plated Ring, guaranteed to stand Acid, and this Beautiful Pin which looks exactly like a real Diamond FREE with every 75c order for songs.

7	Old Black Joe.	480	Boston Burglar.	1128	A Mother's Appeal.	1406	While Dance goes on.
8	Home Sweet Home.	495	Spanish Cavalier.	1147	Little Annie Rooney.	1413	No Place like Old Home
12	See my grave's kept green.	535	Dying Nun.	1160	Down on the Farm.	1414	I don't want to Play.
22	Old Folks at Home.	638	Call me back again.	1170	Song that Broke My Heart.	1421	I long to see Old Home.
28	You'll remember me.	639	Milwaukee Fire.	1192	Hear Dem Bells.	1434	The Church across the Way.
30	Kathleen Mavoureen.	673	A Boy's Best Friend.	1202	Irish Jubilee.	1458	One Girl in the World for me.
77	My old Kentucky Home.	712	Ship that never returned.	1240	Picture turned to the Wall.	1459	Denied a Home.
84	I'll be all smiles to-night.	713	Why dig Ma's Grave.	1249	Sentenced to Death.	1460	After your Wandering.
95	Gipsy's Warning.	717	Some Day I'll wander back.	1260	Pardon came too late.	1462	I'll never go out with Riley.
107	Back to Old Virginny.	748	Texas Ranger.	1278	Takes a Girl to do it.	1466	She may've seen Better Days.
113	Two Orphans.	761	Dying Girl's Message.	1287	Push dem Clouds away.	1471	My Dad's the Engineer.
171	Drunkard's Lone Child.	806	Photograph of Mother.	1290	The Broken Home.	1484	I never Loved till I met You.
172	Tenting Old Camp Ground.	920	Letter that never came.	1298	Man in the Moon.	1488	If They would only Write.
222	Sherman's March to the Sea.	928	Save my Mother's Picture.	1304	In Old Madrid.	1494	Denny Murphy's Daughter.
242	Farmer's Daughter.	938	Dad's Dinner Pail.	1311	He never cares to Wander.	1497	You are my Sweetheart.
254	I left Ireland.	952	Dying Cowboys Lament.	1327	Still the World goes on.	1498	Better than Gold.
302	Butcher Boy.	972	Package of Old Letters.	1336	Kiss and Let's make up.	1500	Let Me take My Place again.
313	Old Oaken Bucket.	988	Lost on the "Lady Elgin."	1344	When Summer Comes.	1504	Malone forgot He was Dead.
331	Remember the Poor Tramp.	1000	Song that reached my Heart.	1346	Volunteer Organist.	1514	Pictures from Life.
338	Answer to Gipseys Warning.	1014	Jesse James.	1349	The Widow's Plea.	1524	A Girl in the World for us all.
409	Boys keep away from Girls.	1070	I felt it in The Dark.	1361	Fallen by the Wayside.	1540	A Hot Time in the Old Town.
422	I had but 50 cents.	1074	Ten Thousand Miles Away.	1374	The Fatal Wedding.	1561	I love Her just the Same.
454	Drunkard's Dream.	1107	Whistling Coon.	1380	The Little Lost Child.	1563	The Mother of the Girl I Love.
465	Arkansaw Traveller.	1114	Johnstown Flood.	1392	I'll take you Home.	1568	Back to the only Girl I Love.
477	Evening by the Moonlight.	1127	Three Leaves of Shamrock.	1397	The Pride of the Ball.	1581	Doris the Village Maiden.

Any 10 Songs post paid for 10c: 30 for 25c; 50 for 40c; 100 for 75c. A beautiful finger ring and scarf pin FREE with every 75c order. Not less than 10 songs sold. Order by number. Stamps taken.
STANDARD PICTURE CO., 615 OMAHA BLDG., CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE Take our Watch Take Our Money

CASH Read this advertisement and learn how to make money without investing a cent.

or any of the articles mentioned below.

PRINTING PRESS CAMERA TELEPHONE TELESCOPE VIOLIN BRASS CORNET RAZOR TYPEWRITER STEAM ENGINE RIFLE DIAMOND RINGS &c CASH

Our Watch is a good one. It is fitted with an American movement, and keeps correct time. We have it in two styles, solid Silverine and gold plated. We give this beautiful watch or either of the above mentioned articles, for selling only 15 packages of our perfume, at 10 cents per package. Our perfume is something that does sell, and you can sell it quickly, as we give a fine gold plated ring to every person who buys perfume from you. Order the perfume at once and earn one of our costly premiums. We send the perfume postpaid, also our Grand Premium List, which fully explains everything about our perfume and premiums.

Don't send us a cent. We trust you. When the perfume is sold, send us the money and we will send you the premium that you select. Cash Commission. If you do not want a premium, we will let you keep over half of the money. We mean business and we will treat you right.

Postman Trading Co. 102 Plymouth Place, dept. M. 1, Chicago, Ill.

DON'T BREATHE THROUGH YOUR MOUTH.

The Air Is Full of Microbes.

"He who breathes through his mouth takes into his lungs more of death than of life."

The breath should be taken into the lungs by way of the nose. This is in accordance with the fixed laws of Nature, and when Nature's laws are reversed or transgressed health and life are endangered.

The entrances of the nose are lined with hairs which serve as filters and free the inspired air of all dust and disease germs which would otherwise find their way into the lungs. There is no such protection in the mouth.

If your nose is "stopped up" by colds or catarrh, you at once become a "mouth breather" and your lungs are exposed to the dangers of contagion—you become a fit subject for the germs of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, and other diseases that attack the throat and lungs every time the opportunity is presented.

You will therefore readily understand why you should keep your nose in a healthy condition and free from obstruction. If you have a cold or nasal catarrh, do not neglect it.

Ozojell Cure for Catarrh

will cure it promptly and permanently. It is powerful but bland and non-irritating, soothes the inflamed mucous membrane in the nose, reduces all swelling and restores the full calibre of the breathing space, thus insuring a full and free supply of fresh air and oxygen to the lungs through Nature's channel.

Ozojell is a powerful germicide and antiseptic. It destroys germs and neutralizes the acrid nasal secretions, thus removing another fruitful source of danger to life and health.

Thousands of letters from those who have been cured attest its virtues, and all druggists sell it in Patent Ozojell Tubes for 50 cents.

FREE SAMPLE TUBE OZOJELL BY MAIL.

To prove its wonderful efficacy, we offer to send free by mail to all readers who will mention this publication, a tube of Ozojell and a book on Catarrh and Its Cure.

Simply write, giving name and full address, when the Ozojell will be sent you by mail ABSOLUTELY FREE, postage paid. Address

OZOJELL CURE, 511 Temple Court, New York.

A PENCIL THAT WILL THINK FOR YOU.

The Great Profit Maker of the Century.

All Problems Solved. Short Cut to Results. A Quick Sum Total. No Mistakes Possible With Sunshine's Calculating Pencil.

LIGHTNING CALCULATING PENCIL.

By a Twist of the Wrist this Little Wonder Solves all Mathematical Problems as Quick as a Wink.

Here is the only reliable never-failing standby. It is the neatest educational novelty of the day. This pencil is a marvel of ingenious mechanism, and a great profit maker for agents.

You will hardly believe that this pencil can figure quicker and more accurately than you can. It will calculate anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twinkle of an eye. It gives you 144 combinations and is absolutely correct. It can't make mistakes. It is made of pure Aluminum and attached to a Faber Pencil. Fits any ordinary pencil. It has a good eraser. It protects your pencil point. It is a pencil lengthener and stays in your pocket.

Let Sunshine's Calculating Pencil do your figuring and give your head a rest. A sleepy man will get more accurate results with its aid than a wide awake calculator could get without it. Simple and solidly made. Interesting and instructive to everyone. You can't think half as quickly and accurately as this pencil does it for you. Teaches children more in one hour than they learn in a week in any other way. Simple as a clothespin to manipulate, a child can learn to work it in five minutes, it never blunders, is easy to see through. Tell your friends and teachers about this wonderful device, it's the greatest educational novelty out. Interests dull pupils as well as bright ones. Creates enthusiasm in mental calculation and helps in the most difficult subject with which both teacher and pupil have to deal. We send full directions with each pencil so you can get it ready to work as quick and easy as you open a jackknife. You can multiply quicker than an expert, a lightning calculator. Get one to-day.

The Educational Value of this Arithmetical Pencil is based on the highest Multiplication Table it contains. Every person should know it. Yet many never learn it. They are thus hindered in acquiring quickness and accuracy in mental calculations so necessary to business success. It is especially recommended to young people starting in business life and to those with neglected education. Teachers recommend it to their pupils because the use of the pencil imparts a knowledge of these figures in ¼ of the time required by the usual methods. Even the Indian office of the U. S. government has recognized its educational merits and recommended that the superintendents of all Indian schools be supplied with samples.

SPECIAL OFFER. These Calculating Pencils sell for 25c. each, but we are anxious to show you how wonderful they are so will send one free to all who enclose 15c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great monthly, two pencils and a year's subscription for only 25c. Thousands are sold by agents. We send six pencils for 60c., twelve for one dollar, all charges paid by us. One hundred for $7.50, express not paid.

Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

MILLIONS OF CUCUMBERS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

WHERE do all the pickles come from?

It is told of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes that the only criticism he made upon the manuscript of a young woman's novel which he was once so kind as to read was this admonition, written in pencil upon the margin of a page which described a picnic to which a child character went, "Don't let this child eat pickles!"

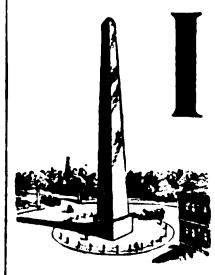
In spite of the advice of so eminent an authority, children, and grown people too, go on eating pickles. How many ever stop to wonder where the pickles come from, or to ask who raise the cucumbers packed so symmetrically into neat glass jars?

Nearly all of the pickles which the Boston market uses come from the Connecticut river valley, whose broad sunny meadows furnish just the sandy soil which seems best adapted to make cucumber vines flourish. Hail, frost, worms and low prices have driven out many of the fields of tobacco which once were a staple crop on these meadow farms, and in their place many farmers have planted cucumbers, as a quick growing substitute which yields a ready cash return. Up and down the Connecticut valley, pickle factories have taken the place of the tobacco houses in which the wilted stalks of the nicotine plant were hung to dry. In fact the pickle factory which I visited is an old tobacco house converted into this new use. Where once there were long tiers of poles on which the tobacco was hung, there are now rows of enormous tanks into each of which a hundred barrels of cucumbers can be put to pickle.

Only at this stage of their manufacture pickles are reckoned by weight and not by measure. When I was at the factory fifty tons of the year's crop of cucumbers had been taken in, but the picking of the crop had only just been begun and the yield was not proving anything near an average. Sometimes, in the height of a good year's pick, thirty tons have been taken in at this factory in a single day. A hundredweight of the green fruit would count out at least a thousand cucumbers. That would be twenty thousand for a ton, and a million for fifty tons. And this is only one of many such gathering places. This factory belongs to a Boston firm. The farmers for several miles around bring their cucumbers here. The pick must be sorted into two sizes, and is brought to the factory in bags. The smaller and more valuable size includes all cucumbers under four inches long. For these the grower is paid a cent a pound. The second size includes all between four inches and five and a half inches long. The price paid for these is thirty cents a hundredweight. The farmers' wagons back up to a platform at the broad door of the factory, and unload their bags. Those containing the different sizes are weighed separately, loaded on to a little flat car and trundled on a very narrow-guage railway back among the tanks, where the bags are emptied of their contents into the tank of their respective kind which is being filled just then. Salt is added and enough water to keep the brine of a proper strength. When a tank is filled the contents are not disturbed until wanted, and will keep for an indefinite time. Some of the tanks are still filled with a part of last year's crop, and the cucumbers in them are sound, solid and fresh looking. As fast as needed at the finishing factory of this firm, in Boston, the cucumbers are put into barrels and shipped. Many of the large ones are sold direct from the salt pickle for lunch counters, and the consumption of foreign born residents who prefer them in brine vinegar pickle. The others are sorted down more closely as to size, put into vinegar, and seasoned. The large ones are marketed in barrels; the smaller ones in glass.

Of course the income from a cucumber field does not begin to equal that from a field of tobacco, but, on the other hand, the expense and risk are not nearly so great, and the cash returns are more prompt. Most farmers who raise cucumbers put from one to three acres into the crop, which has the advantage to begin with of not requiring a heavy outlay for fertilizer. The seed is planted in hills from three to five feet apart each way, and one forkfull of dressing in a hill is all the fertilizer needed. Another advantage is that the seeds can be planted with the best results from about June tenth to June fifteenth, a time of the year when the farmer has his spring's work done and haying not begun. Planting at this time does not bring the seedlings up until the "striped bug," that dread enemy of all garden vines, is practically gone for the summer. The crop is ready to begin to harvest about August first, when haying is finished and the farmer has comparatively little work to do. The harvest lasts about six weeks. The cucumbers are picked every other day, two days serving to grow them to the most profitable length. Picking them is about as back-breaking work as can be imagined. It is neither up nor down, but a constant change from one to the other. I know, because I helped pick two acres. After the "cukes" are picked they are poured down on the grass at the edge of the field to be sorted. All that will go through a four-inch hole in a board are put into a pile by themselves. The rest are thirty-centers.

In a good year an acre of vines ought to yield a ton of cucumbers at a picking, but it is very rarely that all the conditions are favorable enough to do this. The plants need hot, moist weather, particularly at night, and many years a farmer does well who gets five hundred pounds from an acre.



MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best collection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a FREE present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

THE legend of the mistletoe is an inheritance from the religion of the Druids. The mistletoe was gathered and hung in small sprays by the worshipers over their doors as an amulet against evil. The kissing privilege connected with mistletoe during the days of Yule is probably the most familiar relic of its traditions.

IN Sidney, Australia, is one of the strangest monuments in the world. This odd spire is a perfectly plain shaft, being a hundred and eighty feet above the street level. It does not commemorate any event but is simply a vent for the sewer system of the city. The great sewers meet here, with their deadly gases, which are thrown off through this shaft. If some such provision were not made, in less than twenty-four hours the whole country round about would be strewn with wreckage and the air filled with poisonous gases, as it would be impossible to confine these foul gases in the ramified sewers until they reached the outlet into the sea.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING.

ONE MILLION CURED CASES.

You Can Be Cured Whether You Believe in Christian Science or Not.

Over a million cases of disease in every form are now to the credit of Christian Science Healing. Most of these were cases that the doctors had given up as "incurable." Many more were chronic maladies that had baffled their skill for years. All were cured quickly, some were cured instantly. The evidence on these facts is simply indisputable and the curing still goes on. There can be no mistake or misstatement about it. The healers and their work are in the public view. As a C. S. healer my many marvelous cures have startled the world. During the past 13 years I have healed diseases of almost every known kind and in every stage of severity. They included many surgical cases where operations were otherwise threatened. I cured cases that were far away from me, as well as those near at hand. And I tell you in like manner that wherever you may dwell, and whatever be your bodily ailment, or whether one or many physicians have failed to give you relief, if you report the case to me and so desire, you shall be cured. This is no vain or idle promise. My past success fully justifies it. You can be cured whether you believe in Christian Science or not. You can be cured whether in this city or thousands of miles away from me. In our Christian Science Healing distance is of no account; disbelief is not any hindrance; disappointments of the past only make stronger grounds for hope. All you really need is the wish to be healed.

I have just published a little book in regard to this blessed truth called, "A Message of Health and Healing." If you write to me I will gladly send you a COPY FREE. It gives many interesting facts and convincing testimonials. Enclose 2-cent stamp for postage.

S. A. JEFFERSON, C. S. B., 1707 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

$3.75 BUYS A $30 WATCH

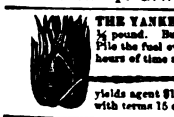
The handsomest and best watch in the world for the money, superbly engraved, double Hunting case, stem wind and stem set, fitted with a high grade ruby jeweled movement, absolutely guaranteed for

25 YEARS.

Cut this out and send it to us and we will send you the watch by express for examination. If as represented, pay our special price $3.75 and express charges and it is yours. Mention if you desire ladies' or gents' size. Order today, as we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only.

CALUMET WATCH CO., Chicago

Brass Band

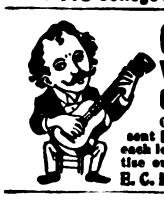


Instruments, Drums, Uniforms & Supplies. Write for catalog, 445 illustrations. FREE; it gives Music and Instructions for New Bands.

LYON & HEALY, 15 Adams St., CHICAGO.

PATENT BAKE PAN. Just out. Hinge sides. Sell a number at every house. Big pay. Samples free. 40 other articles. Randell Manufactory, Wathina, N. Y.

LADIES: Chance to Start in pleasant, genteel business of your own. Make money easy odd times at home. Send 2c. stamp. G.W.Burns, Chemist, Bernardsville, N. J.



THE YANKEE FIRE-KINDLER Length 15 inches. Weight ¼ pound. Builds 100 fires with 3c worth of oil. No kindlings. Fills the fuel over the blazing Kindler and the fire is built. Saves hours of time and gallons of oil. Warranted 2 years. Greatest seller for agents ever invented. Customers everywhere. An average county yields agent $1000 profit. Act quick if interested. Sample prepaid with terms 15 cents. Yankee Kindler Co., Block 10 Olney, Illinois.

STUDY AT HOME and prepare for A GOOD POSITION.

We teach Book-keeping, Business Forms, Penmanship, Letter-writing, Commercial Law, Shorthand, Civil Service and English branches thoroughly by MAIL. Salaried Situations secured by students. 15 Years' success. Highly endorsed. Send for FREE Catalog. Trial lesson 10c.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S COLLEGE, No. 118 College Bldg., Buffalo, N.Y. BY MAIL.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN, VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO AND ORGAN Self-Taught, without Notes, by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address

E. C. HOWE, 439 Bay State Bldg., CHICAGO

Agents Make $75-$200

A MONTH SELLING THE

Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet

Only cabinet patented, and guaranteed the best made. One agent made $300 last month, others making $200. We want an agent in every town; exclusive territory very liberal terms. Write quick as territory is being taken rapidly.—ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO., 651 Jefferson St., TOLEDO, O.

ASTHMA

FREE. If you suffer from any form of Asthma we want to send you free by mail, prepaid, a Bottle of the famous Kola Plant Compound. It is Nature's Sure Botanic Cure for the disease, and we guarantee that it will forever stop all your suffering. We are sending out 50,000 Bottles free by mail to Sufferers, to prove the wonderful power of this New Discovery, and we will be pleased to send one to you. Send your name and address by postal card or letter.

Address, The KOLA IMPORTING CO., No. 1164 Broadway, New York

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR

Ladies or Gentlemen. We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO., 149, Caxton Bldg., CHICAGO.

Boys & Girls

We are giving away Watches, Cameras, Solid Gold Rings, Sporting Goods, Musical Instruments & many other valuable premiums to boys & girls for selling 18 packages of Royal English Ink Powder at 10c. each. Every package makes 50c. worth of fine ink. We ask no money—send your name and address & we will forward you 18 packages with premium list and full instructions. When you sell the Ink Powder send the money to us and select your premium. This is an honest offer. We trust you. Don't lose this grand opportunity. Write for the outfit today. Address all orders to IMPERIAL INK CONCERN, 32 Adams St. Oak Park, Ill.

SHOEMAKER'S BOOK on POULTRY and Almanac for 1900, two colors, 160 pages, 110 illustrations of Fowls, Incubators, Brooders, Poultry Houses, etc. How to raise Chickens successfully, their care, diseases and remedies. Diagrams with full descriptions of Poultry houses. All about Incubators, Brooders and thoroughbred Fowls, with lowest prices. Price only 15 cents.

C. C. SHOEMAKER, Box 811, FREEPORT, ILL.

$600 TO $900

Per Year and all Expenses Guaranteed Our General Agents who travel and appoint local agents on our popular books. We need a few more now. Ladies or gentlemen. If interested in traveling employment, send stamp for Application Blank and full information. Local agents also wanted.

C. W. STANTON CO., 330 Dearborn St., Chicago.

THE HAIR TELLS ALL

If Sick send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex and 4 cts. in stamps and I will diagnose your case FREE and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MOUTH-HARP PLAYERS! Big Money selling The New Harp-o-chord. Harp and Zither combined. 17 inches long. 10 times louder than mouth-harp alone. Easy to learn. Our fine Mouth-harp sent for 6 names harp players and 14c postage. Catalog Free. HARP-O-CHORD Co., 21 L St., Columbus, O.

The Whole World Illustrated. Thousands of interesting views in all cities and countries, for Stereopticon exhibitions. Paying business for men with little capital. Particulars and 256 page Magic Lantern book free.

McALLISTER, Mfg. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

FREE 400 QUILT PATTERNS designs and 100 Crazy Stitches given free with a 3 mos. subscription to a 50c. ladies' paper, for only 10c. LADIES' ART CO., B 5, St. Louis, Mo.

HYPNOTISM, Magnetic Healing, &c, best $25. complete courses FREE. Pay after learning. To be well taught never pay in advance. Empire College, St. Louis, Mo.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. 2 C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind. Please mention COMFORT when you write.

DON'T SET HENS THE SAME OLD WAY.

THE NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR beats old plan 2 to 1. Little in price but a big money maker. Agents wanted. Send for catalog telling how to get one free.

Natural Hen Incubator Co., B 23 Columbus, Neb.

A. Edwards writes, would not take $100 for N. H. I. Plan

OPIUM HABIT AND MORPHINE Cured at home. Trial Free. No pain. Comp. Oxygen Ass'n, Fort Wayne, Ind.

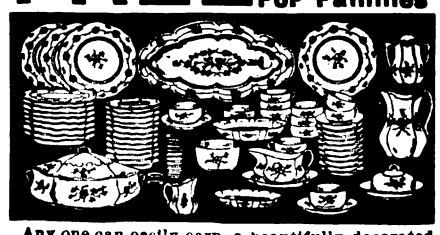
SILK FREE Large pkg. pretty piece and 100 crazy stitches free with 3 months' subscription to our paper, for 10c. or six 2c. stamps. Women's Home Monthly, B 5, St. Louis, Mo.

MORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Painless, permanent Home Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

SEND ONE DOLLAR

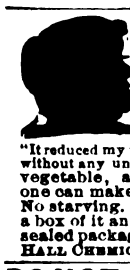
Cut this ad. out and send to us, mention No. 2104, state your HEIGHT and WEIGHT, state number of inches around body at BREAST, taken over regular coat, close up under arms, and we will send you this coat by express C. O. D. subject to examination, examine and try it on at your nearest express office and if found perfectly satisfactory and the most wonderful value you ever saw, pay the express agent OUR SPECIAL PRICE, $3.50, less the $1.00 you send or $2.50 and express charges. THIS MACKINTOSH IS LATEST STYLE, made from HEAVY WATERPROOF TAN COLOR GENUINE WHITLEY COVERT CLOTH, double breasted, velvet collar, fancy plaid lining, waterproof, sewed, strapped and cemented seams, suitable for both RAIN AND OVERCOAT. Sizes, breast measure, 34 to 48 inches.



AGENTS WANTED.

MEN AND WOMEN to take orders for Waterproof Garments. Men's Mackintoshes $3.00 up, Ladies' Mackintoshes $3.50 up, Skirts and Capes $2.25 up. WE FURNISH a big book of samples and complete outfit. Without previous experience you can make $5.00 to $10.00 every day in the year. Write for full particulars. Address,

DUNDEE RUBBER CORPORATION, Chicago, Ill.



(This Company is thoroughly reliable.—Editor.) LL

FREE 56 PIECES FULL SIZE For Families

Any one can easily earn a beautifully decorated 56-Piece China Breakfast, Dinner or Tea Set, full size for family use; also a handsome GOLD PLATED or SILVER WATCH, chain and charm—ladies' or gents' size—and a gold-finished Pearl Initial Pin. You can get these presents for selling our Bluing Powder or Thimbles. We mean what we say and will give this beautiful Tea Set, a Watch, etc., ABSOLUTELY FREE, if you will comply with the extraordinary offer we send to you. We want to introduce our Superior Bluing Powder and beautiful Aluminum Thimbles, which sell at sight. If you agree to sell only 15 packages at 10c. a package, or 30 Thimbles at 5c. each, send at once your name, postoffice address and nearest express or freight depot, and you will receive it. Send no money. We will forward the goods prepaid. When sold SEND US the $1.50 and we will send you for selling the goods one Watch-Chain & Charm, ladies' or gents' style, & a Pearl Initial Pin, with any letter you wish, together with our offer of a 56-piece China Set same day money is received. ☞ We prepay Express or Freight Charges on China Sets. These are not Doll's Sets. ☞ Remember every Set has Tea Pot, Sugar Bowl, Cream Pitcher, Teacups, Saucers, Bowls, Fruit Saucers, Cake Plates, etc., all given away to advertise and introduce our goods at once. Any newspaper will tell you that we are reliable. CHEMICAL SPECIALTY CO., Dept. 204, No. 40 W. 22d St., New York City.

FAT

How to reduce it Mrs. L. Lanier, Martin, Tenn., writes: "It reduced my weight 21 lbs. in 15 days without any unpleasant effects whatever." Purely vegetable, and harmless as water. Any one can make it at home at little expense. No starving. No sickness. We will mail a box of it and full particulars in a plain sealed package for 4 cents for postage, etc. HALL CHEMICAL CO. Dept. R, St. Louis, Mo.

DO NOT SEND US ANY MONEY.

LOOK FREE

This Magnificent Solid Gold-plated Bracelet. Don't send any money—just name and address. We will send postpaid 10 Large Handsome Stamped Linen Doilies; different designs. Sell them among your friends at 10 cts. each. Send us the $1 and we will send by return mail the magnificent Bracelet. Address AMERICAN JEWELRY CO., Corning, N. Y.

YOU CAN MAKE BIG MONEY

ENTERTAINING THE PUBLIC.

$30.00 to $300.00 and more per week WITHOUT PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE. No other business pays such large returns for the little effort required. We furnish complete outfits. The work is easy, strictly high class, and any man can operate the outfit by following our instructions. Write for particulars and copies of letters from those who are making Big Money on our plan. ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO., Randolph and Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill. (Mention this paper when you write.)

OPIUM and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Write DR. J. L. STEPHENS CO., Dept. C1, Lebanon, Ohio.

A BIG OFFER 50c. MADE IN A MINUTE! If you will hang up in the P. O., or some public place, the two show bills that we send, we will give you a 50c. cert., and send it in advance with samples and bills. This will trouble you about one minute, and then if you want to work on salary at $50 or $100 per month, let us know. We pay in advance. GIANT OXIE CO., 125 Willow St., Augusta, Me.

MUSIC IN THE AIR!

I'd leave ma happy home for you
The girl I loved in Sunny Tennessee
I don't care if you never wake up
I'm the warmest member in the land
Just tell her that I loved her too
I guess I'll have to telegraph my I'm glad I met you Mary (baby
Just as the Sun went down
She was happy till she met you
Mid the green fields of Virginia
I don't care if you never come back
A Hot time in the old town to-night
When you do the rag-time dance
When you ain't got no money you need'nt come around
When a Nigger makes 100 99 goes on his back
The home of the girl I love
I love you in the same old
Because I love you (way
Get your money's worth.
Mammy's Little Pumpkin Colored Coons
She was bred in old Kentucky
How I love my Lu (buckey
On the banks of the Wabash
Just one girl

Our new song books contain all the above songs; also many others. We will send sample song book with one piece sheet music, catalogue of 1600 songs, and our 16 page magazine 3 months, all for 10 cents. We will also send you a $1.00 Due Bill which entitles you to $1.00 worth of goods free from our list. This firm is reliable.—Editor. Song Supply Co. 373 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

SILVER CAKE BASKET

FREE FREE

We have lately taken a large amount of triple plate silverware on a debt and will send you this Elegant, Gold lined Silver Cake Basket free, all charges paid for a club of six subscribers at 25c. each. This Cake Basket is of the latest pattern and will wear a life time. It is the finest silver plate, highly decorated with beautiful patent rolled edge. We only have a few of them left so get up your club of six subscribers at 25c. each, to-day, and you will always enjoy it. You can sell this basket for $3.98 in a minute. If you can't get up the club, send us $1.38 cash and we will send the Basket by express and include one year's subscription. We also have a fine five Bottle Silver Castor and a Superb Silver Butter Dish at the same price if you prefer either one to the Basket. Address,

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

TALKS WITH GIRLS.

CONDUCTED BY COUSIN MARION.

Ugh, dears, don't the March winds blow, but what do we care if our hearts are warm, and they should ever be kept warm. It is easy to do if you will, and it is pleasant not only to you, but it is doing the good Lord's will. And let the winds blow again, for they drive out the frost and sweep in the flowers of Spring and all the world is glad and fragrant and beautiful. This for the first Spring month, and now to our letter.

The first one is from Athens, Ohio, and "Sadness" wants to know what she can do to "do something," and I can't tell her. So many girls everywhere want to know the same thing, and I can only say to them that they must do what they find to do and so work out their own salvation. She asks too about a couple, each nineteen years of age. Don't marry till the man is old enough, say, twenty-five, and they should see each other a good deal or by the time they have waited that long, the chances are that the man will have changed his mind.

H. I. F., Gatesville, N. C.—Consult the advertising pages of any of the magazines and you will find the addresses of persons who can give you all the information you seek.

L. R., Rochester, N. Y.—You may ask a young man to act as your escort when you really need his services. (2) Don't try to learn hypnotism. (3) A ring on the little finger has no especial significance.

Beatrice, Peach, Va.—Veils are worn for ornament as well as comfort, and the wearer suits her taste.

Margaret, Southbridge, Mass.—Asks me to give her some hints on an essay for her graduation and I must decline her request and all others of the kind as space forbids, and besides, the beauty of an essay is its originality. Write your own essays, girls, and they will be better than anybody can write for you.

Sissie, Jackson, Miss.—Stop writing to the soldier sweetheart and perhaps that will make him less cold. Or when you write tell him all about other young men who are coming to see you. (2) Don't pay any attention to the man who says he loves you and is careless and neglectful. He isn't the kind for a good husband. (3) Go driving only with young men you know very well. (4) You may ask a caller to call again, and you may ask an escort in if it is early, but not after ten. (5) Beware of the drummer who compliments your good looks. He is a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Iris, Howell, Ind.—It is quite natural to ask a man to call when you meet him the first time, if you are mutually pleased. Know first, however, who he is. (2) Acknowledge business acquaintances on the street only when you know them very well. (3) It is not demanded that a lady rise when a man is presented, but it is more gracious to the man.

Eileen, Evansville, Ind.—Take the man's arm—and don't call him a "gent." It is not necessary for him to ask you to take it. Just take it as a matter of course. (3) See advertisements in COMFORT.

Charlotte, Neligh, Neb.—Card etiquette is quite elaborate in the cities. You need only to leave your card and your mother's, generally only your own. (2) See answer above to Margaret, Southbridge, Mass.

Anxious, Yellow Creek, Pa.—Don't try to bleach brown hair white. Let it alone if you don't want to injure yourself permanently. (2) Don't receive callers in the parlor in negligee attire.

Alice June, Valley, Ia.—Dry your hands thoroughly over the fire after washing, and before exposure to the air. Wear gloves at night. Use almond meal, or ask your druggist for any one of a dozen preparations that are good. (2) There is no "harmless" application to make your face and neck plump.

Violet, Versailles, Ky.—The young man is silly, and you are not much better. Treat him politely and with indifference.

A. M. D., Quincy, Ills.—Dream books are utterly worthless and you are better off without them.

Purity, Creamery, Ia.—You may allow a young man to put his arm around you when you are engaged to him; not otherwise.

Success, Markley, Texas.—Do not marry the man who has lost the respect of the community, even if you do foolishly love him. Do you want to go down to his low level? You can't raise him above it. (2) It is not good form to accept expensive presents from young men.

Rose Bud, Cobb, Texas.—Yes, now that you are engaged, you should give up the other young men except in a general and formal way.

Nada, Lake City, Cal.—A year is a very proper length of time for an engagement. (2) Address Superintendent, Bellevue Hospital, New York, for information about trained nurses. (3) Give your poetry to the editor of your local paper.

Dew Drop, Rockport, Mo.—Let the young man ask you to write to him, and don't exchange rings at present.

Addie, Herr, Mont.—Ask your mother the question you have asked me.

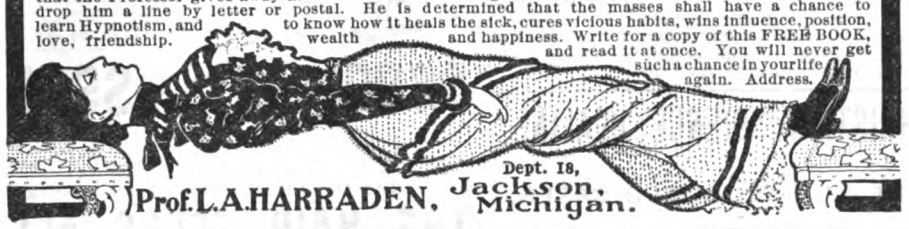
June, Leon, Ia.—There is no set form for congratulations at a wedding. Say anything that is pleasant and sincere. (2) In receiving thanks it is customary to say, "Not at all," or, "Pray, don't mention it."

Opal, Hopkinsville, Ky.—Certainly, if you love a nice respectable man with a cork leg and a red head, marry him if he wants you to. Love is blind.

Rose, Fair View, Texas.—Being engaged to the young man you are at liberty to visit at his home when he is badly hurt. (2) An arm bouquet is one worn hanging from the arm by a ribbon or chain.

Vain, Baltimore, Md.—Suppose you talk to your family physician about the color of your hands. See answer above to Alice June, Valley.

Sweet Pea, Elmdale Kans.—You did right in refusing to ride with the young man who insisted on kissing you. Your brother should give him a sound thrashing.



Madge, Platteville, Wis.—The best thing for the complexion is to wash in hot water often and thoroughly with castile soap, rubbing the skin briskly afterwards with a rough towel, and using some mild powder, talcum or arrowroot, and taking plenty of open air exercise with good plain food.

Fat Jack, Grand Rapids, Mich.—Some marriages beginning with an elopement have been very excellent and happy ones, but I should not advise it. Use your own judgment.

HYPNOTISM

The Wonder Of the Age.

Now is the time to take up Hypnotism. Do you know what marvelous strides it has lately made? Are you aware that it now stands as a vigorous and harmonious science—that the world's greatest scholars are keenly watching its developments—that it is proving itself the "right bower" of education and justice, of medicine and reform—and that hypnotists, in fine, seem personally to hold a leadership among their fellow mortals and the keys to riches, health and happiness? All this has been the progress of a very few years, and to those who desire a money-making and honorable profession the whole subject is one of most intense interest. Time was when this mysterious science held timid souls aloof. As things are now going it will soon be a positive danger not to know Hypnotism, and how to use its powers. The case is admirably stated in a FREE BOOK just published by the renowned Prof. L. A. Harraden. This book is called a "Key to the Mysteries of Hypnotism." It is the clearest, most complete and graphic review of the subject ever written. It explains the mysteries of Hypnotism from A to Z. It tells you just what Hypnotism is and what it will accomplish. It tells you how you may sway the minds of others, perform astounding feats, and produce amusement by the hour. The Professor is a thorough expert as well as a famous teacher, and he knows how to impart his facts in a clear and pleasing manner. What he doesn't know about Hypnotism you may be sure is not worth knowing. The mechanical features of the book are worthy of its precious contents. The Professor has spared no expense on it, for he wishes those who get a copy to treasure it and to read it. Besides being elegantly printed, it is adorned on every page with choice illustrations relating to the text. These cost considerable money, and some are surprised that the Professor gives away his book without charging one cent. It is free, nevertheless, to all who drop him a line by letter or postal. He is determined that the masses shall have a chance to learn Hypnotism, and to know how it heals the sick, cures vicious habits, wins influence, position, love, friendship, wealth and happiness. Write for a copy of this FREE BOOK, and read it at once. You will never get such a chance in your life again. Address.

Prof. L. A. HARRADEN, Dept. 18, Jackson, Michigan.

R. M. G., Joplin, Mo.—I do not know anything about the firm, but do not pay out any money until you have got the goods or their equivalent.

E. B., Sewall, Ia.—Take your attorney's advice and wait till the man gets the divorce. Do you want to go to the penitentiary for bigamy?

Brown Eyes, Red Bluff, Miss.—Always the quiet and retiring girl is preferred to the bolder one by men and women whose esteem is worth having.

Blossom, Attica, Ohio.—Don't have the wedding until the young man has gone into business. June is not far off.

Violet, Red Creek, Miss.—It is inexcusable for your escort to leave you and go out between the acts. Gentlemen do not do that. (2) Don't answer the letter from the young fellow you know so slightly.

M. M. B., Redwood Falls, Minn.—Write to the Literary Editor, Pioneer Press, St. Paul, inclosing stamp for reply.

Lottie C., Pittsburg, Pa.—Every girl is troubled sometime in her life with a persistent young man she doesn't like. Time is the only cure for it.

Country Girl, Rivers, Me.—A girl of sixteen should not marry a man of thirty or any other age. She should wait till she is twenty-one at least. (2) It is proper for a man to see you home from the depot after dark, if you know he is all right.

Sweet May, Hazard, Pa.—No, do not keep "steady company" with two young men. Gradually let one of them go. Do it your own way. There is no rule or advice that will apply generally.

Howard, Bremond, Texas.—Don't try to write poetry, dear. If you must write weave your fancies into little stories, in prose.

Rose, Bellville, Texas.—Young ladies don't usually present flowers to gentlemen, though there is no harm in it.

Now, dears, all your questions are answered, except some dreadful silly ones, and I hope you will profit by the answers; that we shall all meet again when the April showers are bringing out the lovely flowers of spring. By by.

COUSIN MARION.

A CASE OF PERFUMERY FOR YOU.

We have a great quantity of perfumery in cases which we wish to give to our friends without expense. It is most delicate and lasting and combines the various perfumes and fragrance of the flowers. Placed in a bureau drawer will impart delicious odor to all clothing, kerchiefs, etc. Sweeter than the mignonette. Send us four cents pay for shipping expenses and will send it with copy of our illustrated bargain book.

S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

FREE TO STRICTURED MEN.

A Sample Package of a Famous Remedy Sent Free to All.

Men Can Now Cure Themselves at Home Without Pain, Danger, Operation or Loss of Time.

Free sample packages of a most successful remedy for the cure of stricture are being mailed to all who write the Empire Medical Co. They have cured so many strictured men that the company has decided to send free sample packages to all who write in good faith. It is a home treatment for stricture, enlargement and irritation of the prostate gland, urethral inflammation and chronic mucous discharges.

Do not hesitate to write for a free sample. It will cost nothing, and will enable you to see how easy it is to obtain a cure without a particle of pain or suffering. The company wants to reach every man who is able to visit their office, as well as those who are unable to leave their home and prove to them that stricture and all other urethral troubles can be cured without operation or the use of instruments. A request to the Empire Medical Co., 404 Atlantic Ave., Dept. 23, Boston, Mass., stating that you desire a free sample package will be complied with. It will be mailed in a plain wrapper so that it may be examined privately at home.

WE SHIP ON 1900 $1.00 DEPOSIT

$11.75 Buys a Bicycle Complete. Unguaranteed.
$16.50 Buys an Up-To-Date Model. Fully guaranteed.
$22.50 Buys a Full Racing Model. Shop-worn Bicycles from $10 up. 2nd Hand Wheels from $5.00 up. We want agents everywhere. 64 page catalogue of bicycle parts and repairs free. Write for catalogues and see how you can get a Bicycle free by helping us advertise. Address Dept. B64 VICTOR MANFG. CO. 161-167 Plymouth Pl., Chicago, Ill.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr. E. M. Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

FREE YOU CAN HAVE THIS DO NOT SEND

RING OR BRACELET FREE US ANY MONEY.

Send us your name and address on a postal card and we will send you, by return mail, a beautiful Tiffany Style simulative Opal or Ruby Stick Pin, FREE. We will also send you 12 ten-cent packages of our Imperishable Perfume, to sell for us among your friends, if you can. When sold, return us our money, and we will send you FREE your choice of a Heavily Plated Chain Bracelet, with padlock, or a Solid Gold Shell Belcher Birthday Ring. We guarantee every Ring and Bracelet as represented. Remember, it does not cost you one cent. We simply trust you with our goods. Write at once. Don't put off till tomorrow what can be done today. Address NATIONAL SUPPLY CO., Box 245, Detroit, Mich.

FREE SILK DRESS

Here is an honest advertisement. No beating around the bush. You can get full 10 to 15 yards of beautiful silk, Black, brown, blue, green or pink, in light or dark shades, and a beautiful mercury diamond breast pin for selling our remedies. We talk plain English & guarantee to do exactly as we say. We don't ask a cent. If you agree to sell only 6 boxes of our Positive Corn Cure at 25 cts a box, we send you the Salve by mail. When sold you send us the $1.50 and we send you the solid gold laid mercury diamond breast pin, together with our offer of a handsome silk dress, same day money is received. We make this extraordinary inducement to secure honest people and prove our Corn Cure the best on earth. There is no chance about it If you comply with the offer we shall send you; the silk dress (full 10 to 15 yards, any color you desire) will be given absolutely free. Don't pay out money for a handsome dress while you can get one free for selling our remedies. Address at once, MANUFACTURERS' SUPPLY DEPT. 'T' No. 65, 5th Ave., N. Y. City.

—THE— EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 2, Eagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

LADIES, Send to Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich., for free package ORANGE LILY. Cures all female diseases.

WRITERS EARN $2.00 a Day Copying at Home. Send stamp. Copy Agency, South Bend, Ind

LADIES Secret to develop your bust six inches Free. ZANZEMETTO CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

YOUR LIFE'S STORY! "TOLD BY THE STARS" YOUR FUTURE LIFE affairs, business and marriage life fully revealed by Astrology. If you wish to know your future life, send date of birth, sex and 10 cts. for written prediction. PROF. KENWIK, BOX 3101, BOSTON, MASS.

CLAIRVOYANCE free. If sick, Send Now—your name, age, sex, lock of hair, and 2 stamps, to DR. D. HINKLY, X 10, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MOTHERS, I can cure your children of incontinence of urine; trial free. MRS. B. ROWAN, Milwaukee, Wis.

YOUR FUTURE LIFE COMPLETE in LOVE, MARRIAGE and BUSINESS, AS PREDICTED by ASTROLOGY. Send TIME of BIRTH, SEX & 10c. for Written Prediction. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

WRINKLES positively removed in one week by Perfection Cream. Sent for $1.00. Circulars free. Mme. Blyth, 318 Washington Bvd., Chicago, Ill.

PIMPLES and Blackheads removed in 4 to 6 days. Perfectly Harmless. Never fails. Send 10 cts. Specific Remedy Co., Dept. K, Cleveland, Ohio.

LEARN A PROFESSION in 10 days that will net you $25 a day the rest of your life. Ladies or gentlemen. Address with stamp. PROF. S. A. WELTMER, Nevada, Mo.

ASTHMA Instant relief and positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. F. G. KINSMAN, M. D., Box 727, Augusta, Maine.

My Mamma Wants to Tell You Something is the title of a book that should be read by all expectant mothers; it tells how she can find relief from all the ills incident to motherhood and secure health for both mother and child, sent free by DR. J. H. DYE MED. INSTITUTE, Buffalo, N. Y.

WE ARE

Searching for Sufferers

YOU MAY NOT FEEL SICK

BUT ALL HANDS POINT TO THE FACT YOU ARE NOT WELL AND WHETHER YOU BE MAN OR WOMAN YOU WILL SOON TAKE ON THIS AGONIZED LOOK.

WE CAN HELP YOU.

YOU DON'T NEED MEDICINE.

But you say you feel generally miserable or suffer with a thousand and one indescribable bad feelings, both mental and physical? Among them low spirits, nervousness, weariness, lifelessness, weakness, dizziness 'feelings of fullness or bloating after eating, or sense of "goneness" or emptiness of stomach in morning, flesh soft and lacking firmness, headache, blurring of eyesight, specks floating before the eyes, nervous irritability, poor memory, chilliness, alternating with hot flushes, lassitude, throbbing, gurgling, or rumbling sensations in bowels, with heat and nipping pains occasionally, palpitation of heart, short breath on exertion, slow circulation of blood. Don't your hands and feet become cold and clammy, do you HAWK AND SPIT and expectorate greenish colored matter? IS your urine scanty or high colored and does it deposit a sediment after standing? You have pain and oppression in chest and back, pain around the loins, aching and weariness of the lower limbs, drowsiness after meals, but nervous wakefulness at night, languor in the morning and a constant feeling of dread as if something awful was about to happen.

There Is Help for You. You Can Yet Be Happy.

I have an appliance. The only way to introduce it is to let you try it FREE. You will tell others if it helps you. It is perfectly harmless. Send us your name we are looking for real sufferers and knowing it will do you good you can cure yourself without trouble or expense. This article is perfectly safe and reliable, can be worn day and night, all of the time or part of the time and in any place or spot on the body that feels sick or shows pain—it is most marvelous acting and is the greatest God-send you ever heard of. After you use it and you feel its power you will say $25 would not have prevented me from sending for it. It acts just as well on man or woman.

THE ONLY CONDITIONS.

We send one all charges paid. It is Medical and we are obliged to put on Revenue stamps. Therefore as we furnish them entirely free we simply ask you to send us TEN CENTS for mailing, etc. We trust to your honor to tell others about the cure and know many will be sold thereby. We do not ask you to send any more money unless you want others to sell at a profit after you try it. Address,

C. O. COMPANY, Box 654, Augusta, Maine

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

AT the LUNATION or New Moon which governs the month of April, and which occurs on the 30th day of March, at about 22 minutes past 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Washington time, the 4th degree of Virgo is rising and the 2nd degree of Gemini is overhead. Both signs are ruled by Mercury, therefore that planet is the ruler of the scheme. Unfortunately that ruler is in his detriment and retrograde besides being afflicted by Mars, which gives indications of the prevalence of some disease of an inflammatory or eruptive character which threatens a higher rate of mortality than ordinary among the people during April, and REGULUS cautions his readers to have unusual care in avoiding liver and lung disorders among adults, and the eruptive diseases among children, especially in the vicinity of the 14th and 20th of the month. Particular stress is laid upon this suggestion to the soldiers and sailors in the service of the nation in our southwestern possessions. Mars gives some trouble with colonial people in the western regions and prominent officers in authority there should be particularly watchful against treachery and some violent acts of disorder. It is apprehended that more than one of our prominent officers or statesmen may suffer injury, if nothing worse, within the lunation.

Saturn on the 5th does not promise favorably for places of amusement and about the middle of the month there is danger of some bad accident injuring children or some fire or explosion in a hotel or place of entertainment by which persons are injured.

Aside from the adverse indications, the figure shows many features of benevolence for the nation. The lunation falls in close harmony with the great benefic Jupiter and Herschel, showing steady general progress of the national affairs, increasing prosperity, and a more happy condition of the people.

Jupiter in the 4th and Venus in Taurus are strong testimonies of plenty of provisions and fruitfulness of the earth though Herschel interjects a caution against some unusual cold or frosts in the latter part of the month. Agriculturalists and landowners are prospered and the country as a whole continues to be favored among nations. The intellectual classes and literary interests suffer some detriment, and it is expected that one or two of our prominent men in literary circles may be called to their last home in April.

Jupiter's advent into Sagittarius relieves some of the burdens of the Spanish people, helping them in their political affairs and prospering them temporarily as a nation.

Saturn in Capricorn is unfavorable for India and Persia, and Mexico on this continent suffers some detriment during his march through that sign.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR APRIL, 1900.

APRIL 1—Sunday. One of the favorable Sabbaths of the month; the influences being particularly conducive to religious fervor and the labors of the clergy will be very happy and effective with the aged and the laboring classes.

2—Monday. Begin this day early and let thine efforts increase as the moments advance. Urge all literary efforts and engagements; deal with printers, publishers, stationers and persons generally in the literary pursuits or those acting in fiduciary capacities. Concern thyself with officers of government, corporate bodies, and with persons engaged in matters of patent or trade mark; let the artist and musician actively urge their several pursuits and let all busy themselves in matters pertaining to the articles that gratify and please mankind, either in the shape of dress or ornament, or in manufacturing such articles. The day contributes energy and enterprise and invites activity in all the walks of life, but especially for the machinist, engineer, mechanic, traveler, surgeon and military man, also all dealers in metals and cattle.

3—Tuesday. The first half of this day favors the light and elegant occupations and gives success to the efforts of the musician, artist, and decorator; the afternoon is adverse, when thou shouldst not be lavish with thy purse nor imprudent in gratifying the appetite or the tastes; make no investment for profit nor have any dealings with judges, lawyers, divines, bankers, brokers, or persons of wealth or station.

4—Wednesday. A fortunate day generally for the literary pursuits and for dealing with persons in public office; let mercantile business of all kinds be urged to the utmost.

5—Thursday. An evil day; form no hasty conclusions in business; beware of signing thy name to any writing of consequence; scrutinize signatures and be duly watchful against treachery; be not rash in thought or act; let judges and counsellors be slow in decisions, deferring judgments for a season where possible; disappointment is likely to attend thy footsteps during the latter half of this day, when thou shouldst not seek any advantage from dealings with builders, contractors, real estate men, or any person engaged in the dirty or laborious avocations.

6—Friday. Seek no promotion in public positions nor offend thine employer on this day.

7—Saturday. Actively improve the moments of this day, pursuing especially transactions and dealings with mathematicians, surveyors, accountants, booksellers and stationers; favorable also for pleasure seeking, house furnishing and for all matters connected with the fine arts; also for beginning undertakings concerned with machinery; deal with cutlers, surgeons, chemists, bakers, barbers, tailors, tanners, carpenters and military men; consult thy dentist and experiment in chemistry.

8—Sunday. This day gives enjoyment from the consideration of strange and unusual subjects in religious literature.

9—Monday. Urge thy petition to public officials and seek promotion in the employment of large corporations and in ecclesiastical matters; have no dealings relating to building or to coal, lead, wool, timber, or mines.

10—Tuesday. A day to be avoided for wooing or wedding; nor is any encouragement offered for the elegant occupations; but use the late afternoon for thy dealings pertaining to houses and lands, mining properties and agricultural matters.

11—Wednesday. Be in no haste to begin the important things in thy day's labor; avoid the money-lender and be very careful in drawing thy purse-strings; do not expect any agreeable experiences in dealings with railway officials, superintendents of public works, or officers of the government.

12—Thursday. The forenoon is the best part of the day for all honorable pursuits but as the noon approaches unfavorable conditions reign for business activity; let all engaged with the pen be specially circumspect in their acts; correspondence is best deferred a few hours and all matters of writing should be carefully scrutinized; look out for fires and contention in the evening and night. Some bad explosions are due about this time.

13—Friday. The first hours of the morning are evil and ought not to be taken for any matter of magnitude when the temper will need to be bridled and rashness of act and speech wisely avoided; as the forenoon advances, however, let every energy be put forth in thy several undertakings; make beginnings in business, buy goods for trade; attend to monetary matters; deal with banks and persons of wealth; consult judges, lawyers, and persons in ecclesiastical circles; the mid-day invites the beginning of important undertakings in the fine arts and all dealings in fancy or decorative goods or articles of dress; urge thy suit with the fair sex and make matrimonial contracts and seek pleasure from the drama or social or musical entertainment.

14—Saturday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday with the utmost vigor during the forenoon; the afternoon is not so promising; let all persons born about the 24th of March, 26th of June, 1st of October, or 27th of December, of past years have care in all the affairs of their life in these passing days, avoiding all rashness of action and all chances of hurts from machinery, fire, or unruly animals; they should also be very temperate in habit and watchful of troubles with digestion or neuralgic annoyances; they should not invite litigation nor allow heat of passion or any excitement to precipitate troubles of any kind. They are likely to be very aggressive and stubborn and make many enemies needlessly.

15—Sunday. This day encourages associations with the aged and gives application and studiousness for mental engagements and for contemplation of the serious questions of life.

16—Monday. Some minor unpleasant features are indicated now in the correspondence and replies are best deferred until the morrow; let all be patient under excitement and avoid disputes and controversies.

17—Tuesday. Arise betimes and push all manner of established business, but do not make beginnings in new or important ventures; prosecute mathematical and scientific studies; deal with printers, booksellers, stationers and all engaged in literary pursuits and the ingenious occupations; do correspondence, travel and generally crowd the literary labors.

18—Wednesday. Arise early and push business to the utmost; buy goods for trade, especially hardware, machinery, cutlery, glassware and manufactured goods; REGULUS points to the forenoon as one of the choice times for beginnings of undertakings concerned with manufacture and chemistry; the afternoon is less favorable after 4 o'clock, when thou shouldst not press thy suit with the fair sex nor expect much satisfaction from the social engagements or from musical or dramatic entertainments.

19—Thursday. Apply to persons in authority for favor in the afternoon and evening and urge all honorable pursuits to the utmost.

20—Friday. An evil day for most undertakings; digestive troubles and their attendant evils are increased at this time; avoid thy landlord and all those engaged in the very laborious undertakings; be watchful in the use of the pen, make no contracts nor do correspondence that can be postponed; take no action in matters of real estate or mining properties and be slow to anger in all associations.

21—Saturday. An indifferent day, giving but little promise of advantage or profit from undertakings now begun; give attention to routine matters rather than new ventures.

22—Sunday. One of the best Sabbath days of the month; especially so for the good and prosperity of church matters and for religious and moral improvement.

23—Monday. The week begins most auspiciously; choose the early hours of this day for business concerned with manufacture of woolens, machinery, hardware, chemicals and drugs; deal in articles of decoration or adornment and musical, artistic and dramatical goods. Unusual skill will be displayed in the forenoon in all musical execution, painting and in production of wearing apparel, jewelry and ornaments.

24—Tuesday. Choose this day for very important transactions concerning real estate; deal with the contractor, plumber, ship-builder, miner and the classes whose avocations are laborious; make applications for favor to persons in authority in the middle hours of the day.

25—Wednesday. Do not speculate in stocks during this day, and in commercial matters purchase only what is absolutely required to bridge over to better times; hold the purse strings securely; have no engagements with railway officials, public officers, dealers in patented articles or holders of patent-rights or copyrights; the evening is not favorable for social entertainments or musical or dramatic engagements.

26—Thursday. Give preference to the forenoon of this day for the important transactions in life, especially such as are concerned with literary and intellectual matters, educational enterprises and the doing of correspondence relating to financial and monetary affairs; but rest all such efforts as the afternoon advances, when disappointment is likely to attend the efforts; the night hours between this and the following day are peculiarly auspicious for mental labors of unusual consequence and are urged for use in forwarding all the literary ventures that the unusual time of day makes possible.

27—Friday. With caution against all undue haste as the noon hours are approached this day is superior and should be vigorously used for crowding the very important ventures; particularly those pertaining to money matters and literary undertakings; the afternoon and evening promise unusual pleasure from all things that serve to gratify mankind; seek musical and dramatical entertainments and woo the fair.

28—Saturday. An indifferent day until the noon hours, after which conditions peculiarly favor the purchase or sale of houses, lands, agricultural products and mining properties; seek favor at the hands of aged persons in the late afternoon and evening; when also travel, engage the mind with ingenious things and study new ways and methods.

29—Sunday. This Sabbath day is but indifferent in promise.

30—Monday. Form no hasty conclusions in business during this day; be not rash in thought or act; keep a check upon the combative impulses and be not too ready to use the pen to obligate thyself for the benefit of others; have no surgical operation performed in the afternoon.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

A POCKET MIRROR.

See yourself as others see you. One of our large imitation aluminum covered pocket mirrors for the boys and girls at school, for the teachers, for men in the woods. Just 5 cents for one with our latest premium supplement.

Golden Moments, Augusta, Maine.

LADIES A 50c BOX FREE

That every invalid lady may learn how quickly she may be cured of uterine troubles, displacements, painful periods, leucorrhoea, etc. I promise to send by return mail in sealed plain package to any lady who will write for it a 50 cent box of a simple home remedy that cured me after years of suffering. There is no charge whatever. Write to-day for yourself or for your friend.

Address Mrs. L. Hudnut, 48 A, South Bend, Ind.

Why Suffer From Epilepsy

when Dr. Blakeley's Remedy will cure you? C. F. Kennedy, McIntyre, Md., writes: "My child's fits reduced from thirty to two a week since taking your remedy." Write for free sample to Dr. Blakeley Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., and mention this paper.

I CURE CANCER

When I say I cure Cancer, I do not mean merely to cure them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a permanent cure. I have cured the worst cases—those that were called hopeless. I cure Cancer without the aid of the surgeon's knife, and in a soothing and painless manner. Because others have failed is no reason why you should endanger your life by this malignant affliction. Send at once for full treatise and letter of advice FREE

DR. A. J. MILLER, ST. LOUIS, MO.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED

Many rich. Big lists with pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E, Chicago.

PERFECT MANHOOD

Prof. Jules Laborde's Marvelous French Preparation of

"CALTHOS"

For Lost Manhood.

Full 5 Days' Treatment

SENT FREE

By Sealed Mail.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

Every person who is a sufferer from nervous diseases should write the Von Mohl Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, at once, and accept their offer of a five days' trial treatment free of charge. This is no C. O. D. or DEPOSIT scheme but a liberal proposition made to unfortunate sufferers by this long-established concern, which is the largest importer of specifics for nervous and sexual diseases in the world.

The Von Mohl Co. has the sole American rights for Prof. Laborde's French preparation of "Calthos," the only remedy known to advanced medical science that will positively cure nervous debility. This remedy has for years been used as a specific in the French and German armies, and since its introduction into the United States has cured many thousands of sufferers, and the remarkable success of the remedy in Europe has been repeated in this country.

In order to place this wonderful treatment in the hands of every person who suffers the mental and physical anguish of sexual weakness, The Von Mohl Co., has decided to send a free trial treatment to all who write at once. The remedy is sent by mail in a plain package, and there is no publicity in receiving it or taking it. Accompanying the medicine there is a full treatise in plain language for you to read. Take the medicine privately with perfect safety, and a sure cure is guaranteed.

Lost vitality creeps upon men unawares. Do not deceive yourself or remain in ignorance while you are being dragged down by this insidious disease. No matter what the cause may be, whether early abuses, excesses or overwork and business cares, the results are the same—premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and shrunken parts. This specific remedy will cure you at any stage before epilepsy results, with ensuing consumption and insanity. "Calthos" goes directly to the seat of the trouble, no matter of how long standing, and the patient feels the benefit of the first day's treatment. In five days the medicines sent free will make you feel like a new man.

The Von Mohl Co. often receives the most astonishing testimonials from persons who have taken only five days' treatment. They have thousands of testimonials from those who have been permanently cured after having been given up by doctors, misled and ruined in health by disreputable medical schemers, and when they had given up their last hope for health and happiness. No sensible person will permit his name to be used for a testimonial as an admission that he had any of the diseases for which the preparation of "Calthos" is a specific cure. Some irresponsible advertisers are using "made-up" testimonials, but the Von Mohl Co. invariably declines to make public the names or correspondence of any patients who have been cured by "Calthos."

Five days' treatment will be placed in your hands free of cost, and you are earnestly urged for your own sake to send for it without delay. Write to day and send your address. It is not necessary to give embarrassing details of your symptons. The book accompanying the five days' treatment will enable you to take the medicine in private and treat yourself successfully at home. It costs nothing to try this remedy. It may cost you a great deal more to let this offer go by. Write today. Address THE VON MOHL CO. 936 B, CINCINNATI, OHIO. Largest Importers of Standard Preparations in the United States.

144 PIECE DINNER SET FREE

Full size for family use, beautifully decorated & most artistic design. A rare chance. You can get this handsome dinner set and one dozen fine plated tea spoons for selling our Pills. We mean what we say & will give this beautiful dinner set absolutely free if you comply with the extraordinary offer we send to every person taking advantage of this advertisement. To quickly introduce our Vegetable Pills, a sure cure for constipation, indigestion & torpid liver, if you agree to sell only six boxes of Pills at 25 cts. a box write to-day and we send Pills by mail, when sold send us the money & we send you one dozen plated tea spoons together with our offer of a 144 piece dinner set same day money is received. This is a liberal inducement to every lady in the land & all who received the spoons & dinner set for selling our Pills are delighted.
AMERICAN MEDICINE COMPANY. DEPT. T, 32 WEST 13th STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

CHILD LOST For 18 years. Stolen from the Cradle. She was told who and where her parents lived by ZEMINDAR, The Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs, Health and Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C. 245, Saratoga, New York.

TRIAL Treatment FREE Mrs. May Hawkins, DRINK HABIT cured secretly. Write for booklet on the Drink Habit and its POSITIVE CURE. L. U. 181, Grand Rapids, Mich.

HOROSCOPES CAST FREE. Send your date of birth and 2c. postage for a sealed, personal, typewritten, trial Horoscope of your life, FREE. PROF. H. EDISON, Astrologer, T, Binghamton, N.Y.

Get Married 8,000 Ladies and VERY ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, Box 606, AUSTIN, ILLS.

Women Made Beautiful

by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchless loveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., sealed for two cent stamp. Address AURUM MEDICINE CO. Dept. A. N 55 State St. Chicago.

BLOOD POISON

HAVE YOU Sore throat, Pimples, Copper Colored Spots, Aches, Old Sores, Ulcers in Mouth, Hair-Falling? Write COOK REMEDY CO., 1731 Masonic Temple, Chicago. Ill., for proofs of cures. Capital, $500,000. Worst cases cured 15 to 35 days. 100-page book free.

A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE.

GREATEST MONEY MAKER AND MONEY SAVER EVER SEEN: NEEDED IN EVERY HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

Hundreds of dollars are wasted every year in paying for repairs which could be done by you just as well as by the person you hire. "Yes," you will say, "I could do this work if I only had the tools." You have to hire the plumber or cobbler and pay him for his time while you stand around and look on, watching him do the work which you could do as well as he, but it is always that you have no tools. We have put together the best kit of tools for repairing which was ever seen, and we will sell the entire outfit for less than half the money for which you could buy it at any store. The outfit consists of forty-four first-class tools, as shown in the above cut, viz: 1 iron last for men's work; 1 iron last for boy's work; 1 iron last for women's work; 1 iron last for children's work; 1 iron stand for lasts; 1 shoehammer; 1 shoeknife; 1 peg awl handle; 1 peg awl; 1 wrench for peg awl handle; 1 sewing awl handle; 1 sewing awl; 1 stabbing awl handle; 1 stabbing awl; 1 bottle leather cement; 1 bottle rubber cement; 1 bunch bristles; 1 ball shoe thread; 1 ball shoe wax; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 4-8 in.; 1 pkg clinch nails 5-8 in.; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 6-8 in.; 1 pkg. heel nails; 4 prs. heel plates, assorted sizes; 6 harness needles; 1 harness and saw clamp; 1 box slotted rivets, assorted sizes; 1 rivet set for same; 1 harness and belt punch; 1 soldering iron, ready for use; 1 handle for same; 1 bar solder; 1 bar resin; 1 bottle soldering fluid; 1 copy directions for halfsoling, etc., 1 copy directions for soldering all securely packed, together with directions for use, in a neat case. These tools bought at a hardware store separately would cost between $7.00 and $9.00. You can repair boots and shoes, tap and heel them, mend your harness or make a new one, mend all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, and do all kinds of leather work about carriages, etc., as well as renesses and filing saws. Has a coil spring and is made of iron. You can easily save five times the cost of this outfit in six months and make a heap of money doing little repairs for your neighbors and others. "A stitch in time saves nine," and if you have these tools in your house you can make repairs and save a great deal of money which you would pay if you let a break go or hired a man to do your repairing work for you. Every one of these tools are full sized, practical, neat and cheap. It is the only complete outfit in the market and thousands have been sold in past years for $3.00 when the outfit contained but about half as many smaller articles to people living in the country and small towns as well as in the city. This repairing outfit, weighing 20 lbs. will be sent by freight complete as above described for only $1.62 which includes a 6 months' trial subscription to this paper.

GREAT PREMIUM OFFER.—If you will get up a club of 6 yearly trial subscribers to this paper at the special price of 25 cents each, we will send you one of these repairing outfits as a present to you.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Men, Women and Things.

CONDUCTED BY JENNIE MELVENE DAVIS.

To be a queen of song with fame and friends in two hemispheres is an enviable distinction. One of the great singers of the world is Madame Nordica, who is one of the leading sopranos in the New York season of grand opera. Madame Nordica is of pure American stock. Her real name was Lillian Norton and she was born at Farmington, Maine. Her father and mother were of the stern, old-fashioned New England type and looked upon music as a doubtful gift with a strong tendency to draw its devotees into forbidden paths. They were willing their daughter should sing in a church choir but any other use of her talent seemed to them wrong. They removed to Boston and there Nordica had her first training in vocalism. Her teacher recognized the beauty of her voice and planned that she should work incessantly until fitted to make an appearance in grand opera and then astonish the musical world by suddenly taking one of the leading positions. Three years of hard, unremitting labor followed. All the details of the art of singing were gone over again and again. Italian was studied until Nordica could sing all the principal operatic parts in that language. The hard work finally had the effect of discouraging the young girl and she half felt that her teacher had planned more than she could fulfill. A short rest gave her the needed physical rest and with returning strength came renewed hope and confidence in her own ability. Nordica came to New York and placed herself under the direction of Madame Maretzek, who had been a famous singer and who had a wide acquaintance in the musical world. Nordica commenced the study of some of the parts in grand opera and worked on for some years. Finally her teacher felt that she was ready for an engagement. Gilmore's band was giving a series of concerts in New York and to him Nordica applied for a hearing. She was asked to step up on the stage in her street dress, the band accompanied her and she sang—sang her way to an immediate engagement. She went west with Gilmore and then was given the opportunity of an European tour. She assisted as the leading soprano at seventy-eight concerts and was the first singer to be heard at the Trocadero in Paris. Gilmore grew enthusiastic over her success and predicted that her own countrymen would crown her with diamonds. This prophecy has been realized for during Nordica's last engagement in New York a magnificent diamond tiara was presented to her by the wealthy subscribers to grand opera. At the end of the tour with Gilmore, Nordica remained in Europe and made her first appearance in grand opera at Brescia. Her success was assured. After singing in various parts of Europe and after receiving a beautiful set of rubies and pearls from the subscribers to one opera season she made her first appearance in grand opera in Paris. It was as Marguerite and the Maine Marguerite won the fancy and applause of critical Paris. In the height of her triumph she married and gave up her career. Upon the death of her husband she returned to the scenes of her triumphs and finally sang in London. A little later she commenced the study of German in order to sing in Wagnerian roles. Madame Nordica says that America has many good voices but that Americans do not understand the years of drudgery necessary to fit one to be able to command one thousand dollars for half an hour's work. It is not the half hour that is represented but the half dozen years' necessary work that enables the artist to command such prices. Madame Nordica lives at the Waldorf-Astoria during the opera season. She is a personal favorite with New Yorkers who are proud that an American woman has won one of the highest positions in the world of song.

Richard Mansfield is acknowledged as a genius and he has all the eccentricities of genius. No American actor is more widely known and from none has the public grown to expect and demand more artistic work. Mansfield frequently scolds his audiences, the press and the public generally and recently rung down the curtain because the noise of a steam pipe rasped his nerves. In spite of this he always plays to crowded houses and a new play with Mansfield as the central figure constitutes one of the most notable events of the dramatic season. Mansfield's mother was a singer of much fame and frequently appeared before the royal families of Europe. The boy was with her during his childhood and once gave an exhibition of the independence that has since marked him. A little crown prince had played a piano selection and Mansfield taking the seat the crown prince had left played the same selection in a manner that far surpassed the prince. He came to this country and for a time was a clerk in Boston. He studied painting and tried to make a living by this means in London but failure was the only result. Then he drifted, if such a term could apply to the boundless energy of the man, into a Pinafore company. In a short time he was a member of one of Mr. Palmer's companies. Suddenly one night the chance came to him to take the leading part at a moment's notice. He was the man of the hour and he succeeded. Since then he has steadily forced his way to the front. He is energy personified. He directs his own rehearsals and observes every point from scenery to expression. He often seizes the paint brush to make an alteration in scenery and coaches the actors over and over again. He advocates the idea that one can never succeed in work they do not like. He says he was a poor clerk and a starving painter but of his success at last there is no doubt. His presentation of Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde is one of his best parts. Beau Brummel, A Parisian Romance, The Devil's Disciple and Cyrano de Bergerac are prominent in his repertoire.

James, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, is the second American to bear the high title and honor of Cardinal. Cardinal Gibbons is the highest officer of the Catholic church in America and is a leader of men as well as a leader in the church. He was born in Baltimore and now at the age of sixty-five his name and fame are honors to the city of his birth. He has served in Baltimore as priest, Bishop, Archbishop and Cardinal. At the age of ten he passed some time in Ireland. In the "eighties" he was invited to Rome to take part in some important meetings of the church. From that time he was recognized as a leader of the Catholic church of America. When Cardinal McClosky died there was little doubt as to the bestowal of the "red hat." On February 10, 1886, a cablegram announced the elevation of Archbishop Gibbons to the Cardinalship. Cardinal Gibbons is a broad spirited public man, one whose opinions have weight both in and out of the pale of his church. He is a close and intelligent student of current events and intensely American in his ideas. The Cardinal is plain and democratic in all his daily life. His home is plain even to asceticism and any one can obtain an audience with the American Cardinal. He is a great walker and his tall form is familiar to all who pass through the streets of Baltimore. He wears a frock coat and carries a stout cane as he walks down Charles Street. Cardinal Gibbons is a diplomat by nature and his tact is perhaps his strongest characteristic. He has the genius for hard, unremitting labor that seems to be the possession of those who attain signal success. He has a marvelous faculty for smoothing out difficulties that fits him for a position that calls for great executive ability. All in all, America without respect to creed has reason to be proud of Cardinal Gibbons.

Mrs. Clarence Burns is a woman who would attract attention in a crowd. Tall and commanding in bearing, her bright handsome face and quiet dignity shows the earnestness of purpose that makes the woman. She looks what she is—a most intellectual woman with broad sympathies and an intelligent grasp of any topic. Mrs. Burns is one of the three women appointed to represent the state of New York as commissioner at the Paris Exposition. She holds very positive opinions concerning wage earners. For nearly a year she performed the arduous duties of secretary to the commission but when the work developed so that it became necessary to give a salary for the time demanded Mrs. Burns refused to do the work saying that it should go to some self supporting person. Mrs. Burns first became identified with club work through the formation of a club for Republican women in the upper west side of New York City. The house to house work of this club in the tenement districts is well known. Mrs. Burns was its president for three years and then resigned the place after being made honorary president for life. She has been attracted to the practical side of organizations and the philanthropic movements in particular have drawn her attention and effort. She is acting vice president of the Little Mothers' Association. This association does a world of good among the poor children who are called "little mothers" because the care of the younger children of the family devolves on them. Mrs. Burns has spent her summers in the heated city planning and taking charge of out of door expeditions for these "little mothers." She has also furthered the work of the out of door playgrounds and many a forlorn little life has been brightened through her earnest desire to bring something better into the lives of the poor. The establishment of a State Industrial School for Girls is one of Mrs. Burns' pet projects and she believes in its ultimate success.

Master Earl Gulick is the youngest church soloist in New York. He is but eleven years of age but earns a salary that it takes four figures to express. He is the soprano soloist at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. He has just been promised $5000 for a four months' concert tour and expects to command a larger sum another year. He is a student at a large private school in the city and a universal favorite. His success does not seem to have spoiled him and he is simply a natural, lovable boy, with all a boy's love of fun. His voice cannot be distinguished from that of a prima donna and competent critics declare that he is the finest boy soprano in America.

Millions of Women Use Cuticura Soap

Exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes, for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

☞All that has been said of Cuticura Soap may be said with even greater emphasis of CUTICURA OINTMENT, the most delicate and yet most effective of emollients, and greatest of skin cures. Its use in connection with Cuticura Soap (as per directions around each package), in the "ONE NIGHT CURE FOR SORE HANDS," in the "INSTANT RELIEF TREATMENT FOR DISFIGURING ITCHINGS AND IRRITATIONS," and in "A SHAMPOO FOR FALLING HAIR, and ITCHING, SCALY SCALPS," and in many uses too numerous to mention, is sufficient to prove its superiority over all other preparations for the skin.

Cuticura Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor.

The Set, $1.25 Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. CUTICURA Ointment (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, and burning skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston. "How to Have Beautiful Hair, Hands and Skin, Free."

Tailor Made Suit $5.98

SILK LINED JACKET

Latest Style for Spring and Summer of 1900.

FINE ALL WOOL The suit will be made to measure by skilled tailors from Evans best all wool ALBERT CLOTH, famous for its rich bloom and beautiful weave. The Jacket is made in new single breasted style, beautifully lined with fine imported silk, elegantly silk faced and superbly trimmed with pure satin ribbon. The skirt is cut full width, is lined and interlined, has latest style back, nobby welted seams, hangs graceful and stylish. Guaranteed strictly tailor made and worth fully $10.00. Choice of black and blue colors.

SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large sample of the cloth and our big catalog containing many other rare bargains in suits from $6 to $20, and of jackets, capes and skirts all at wholesale prices. We make all grades and styles of ladies' garments and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.

LADIES' SUITS FREE We give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one. Its a great chance to get a suit free. Send one 2-cent stamp to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit. Write today.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

Reversible LINENE Collars and Cuffs.

Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods. No Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mail, 30cts. Send 6 cts. in stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. K, Boston, Mass.

RUBENS DANTE TASSO MURILLO ANGELO RAPHAEL

SEED DUE BILL FREE

To get new customers to test my Seeds, I will mail my 1900 Catalogue, filled with more bargains than ever and a 10c Due Bill good for 10c worth of Seeds for trial absolutely free. All the Best Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Roses, Farm Seeds, Potatoes, etc., at lowest prices. Nine Great Novelties offered without names. I will pay $50. FOR A NAME for each. Many other novelties offered, including Ginseng, the great money making plant. Over 90 varieties shown in colors. $1100 in cash premiums offered. Don't give your order until you see this new catalogue. You'll be surprised at my bargain offers. Send your name on a postal for catalogue today. It is FREE to all. Tell your friends to send too.

F. B. MILLS, Box 96 Rosehill, Onondaga Co., N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

APRIL~1900 PRICE 5 CENTS
VOL XII NO. 6 MN 138

COMFORT

THE KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK AUGUSTA, MAINE. BOSTON

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Incorporated.

Telling one of Comfort's Prize Stories.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least two yearly subscribers (together with 50 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

☞ Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR APRIL.

Frederick E. Burnham, First Prize.
Florence L. Brackett, Second Prize.
Harriet W. Seaver, Third Prize.
Sarah M. Maverick, Fourth Prize.
Kathryn B. Harris, Fifth Prize.

FORGING THE FETTERS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY F. E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

A DISPATCH was received by the chief of the detective bureau in Chicago, stating that the Dunham brothers, two of the shrewdest and most desperate bank burglars in the country, had left New York on the midnight express, with through tickets for the Metropolis of the West.

"Put one of your best men on their track," read the message, "and have him 'shadow' them night and day; they have not left the city for nothing."

Dudley Crane, the coolest and one of the cleverest men on the force, was sent to meet the train which the Dunham brothers had boarded in New York, with instructions to shadow them.

True to the New York Chief's dispatch, the two notorious criminals were on the express when it rolled into the station at Chicago, and as they stepped from one of the coaches the eagle eye of Dudley Crane singled them out and he followed less than ten paces in the rear.

At one of the first-class hotels the two men registered as coming from Boston, under the assumed names of Paige and Jones. And when the detective was convinced that they were located for the night, he reported at headquarters and received additional instructions.

When the Dunham brothers left the hotel the following morning they carried two small packages with them, though their grips were left behind. Crane was standing on the opposite side of the street and followed at a respectful distance. The direction taken by the two men led to the lake and there, after passing up and down where the docks were located, they paused at length near the mouth of a new sewer which had lately been completed. Two hours later they returned to their hotel, apparently hesitating to carry out their proposed move on that morning.

What that move was puzzled Crane, for try as he would he could not imagaine what there was about the new sewer which could interest two bank burglars. Detective Crane was decidedly interested.

That afternoon the detective succeeded in securing a room joining that occupied by the men he was shadowing, and that night it was his good fortune to overhear a conversation which shed much light on the matter. The partition was thin and from sentences uttered in unguarded moments, he learned that they proposed to crack one of the National Banks, securing entrance and opportunity to work by means of the new sewer, which was not to be made use of by the city until the fore part of the year. Their plan was to follow the windings of the sewer, according to a plan which they had managed to secure, and arriving at the street and number where the bank was located, dig their way through the walls of the sewer, the cellar walls and finally the brick covering the bank-vault; then, on the night decided upon, crack the safe, secure their booty and make their escape by the way they had come. The plan was worthy of the men who had conceived it, apparently practical in its every detail. The only thing that stood between the men and success was a detective—Dudley Crane.

"All that we need now is a good man whom we can trust," said one of the brothers, "a man who can keep a secret and do the heavy work. The question is—can we find such a man, Frank?"

Dudley Crane smiled as he listened and said to himself that he knew where just such a man could be found. "A man who can keep a secret and do the heavy work," he said, chuckling softly, "I'm the man."

The next morning one of the Dunham brothers took notice of a seedy-looking individual who was lounging about the gentleman's room of the hotel. After studying the man for an hour or more, he went to his room, returning shortly with his brother.

"A party that would do most anything for money," whispered one "and if he can hold his tongue, the man we are looking for."

Presently the seedy-appearing individual stepped out into the street, standing for a moment as though undecided which way to turn. One of the brothers followed him.

"Dead broke?" queried the cracksman, addressing the man he had followed.

"Come pretty close to it," replied the lounger, "why do you ask, boss?"

"What do you do for a living?" demanded the cracksman, abruptly.

"Crooked work interests me about as much as anything," replied the shiftless individual, grinning.

"Whew!" said the other, inwardly congratulating himself. "See here," said he, leading the supposed crook to one side, "if you can hold your tongue and do the right thing by me, I'll put you on the road to fortune."

"I am the man as can keep a secret and keep it well," replied the stranger, "I knows the importance of doing so."

"Meet me at eight to-night where the new sewer comes out at the lake, my man, and we will talk business," said the cracksman; "until then, mum's the word."

Dudley Crane stood for a few seconds looking after the criminal whom he had succeeded in deceiving. "'If you want a thing done well, do it yourself,'" he murmured.

It was important that the two Dunham boys be caught in the act of looting the bank; twice had the strong hand of the law attempted to place the men behind the bars, but through lack of convincing evidence had they escaped. This time it was determined at headquarters that they should not escape.

At precisely eight o'clock the individual whom the cracksman had met in the morning waited at the mouth of the new sewer, and shortly after two men, who proved to be no other than the Dunham brothers, joined him. The night was favorable for the carrying out of the initial steps of the undertaking, there being no moon and the heavens overcast.

Two hundred feet within the sewer the trio paused and a consultation followed. A diagram of the sewer and a map of the city were produced and studied jointly for an hour or so. Arms of the sewer branched from the main channel at the junction of the streets with the main thoroughfare. The number of streets passed before coming to the avenue where the spotted bank was located were counted, and then the march through the sewer was taken up, each branch of the sewer being carefully counted as they progressed. At that point where the avenue leading to the bank was located, another pause was made and the maps consulted again. This time the number of rods between that point and the bank was ascertained from a note-book carried by one of the brothers, and accurate measurements were taken within the avenue branch of the sewer. Presently the three men paused, and the one who carried the measuring stick made a heavy cross on the brickwork, definitely marking the spot.

Meanwhile, it was presumed that the stranger who was to assist the cracksmen, knew nothing of the nature of the work they were about to undertake. Finally, when the place was settled upon, the whole plan was laid before him.

"Your part in this undertaking," said one of the men, "will be to open the way to the vault overhead. One thousand dollars is yours the night that we get away with the money contained in the safe."

Nothing further was done that night, and silently the three men wended their way back toward the lake, arriving in due time and separating for the night.

Dudley Crane knew that he was playing with desperate men and that a slip on his part meant death, but he also knew that nothing, save an accident, would cause him to trip, and that with patience he would be rewarded in due time by seeing two of the greatest bank burglars in the country behind the bars and a long term of years staring them in the face. Dudley Crane was ready to take his chances.

The ensuing evening, shortly before eight o'clock, according to agreement, Crane met the two brothers within the sewer and together they repaired to the point marked the previous evening. They had brought chisels and muffled hammers with them and work on the brick wall of the sewer was begun at once.

One by one the bricks were removed until an opening was made large enough for an ordinary man to crawl through. Having done this, some six feet of earth were encountered, half of which Crane succeeded in removing that night. At two o'clock work for that night was given up, and an hour later the two brothers were in their room at the hotel, and the detective was reporting his work at headquarters.

The three nights following work was carried on with persistency and vigor, and finally, the brick outer-wall of the bank-vault was encountered, precisely as the accurate plans of the two crooks had intimated. The following night was decided upon for cracking the safe.

The next morning the officials of the marked bank were apprised of the proposed attempt to crack the safe, and keys leading to the inner room where the vault was located were secured.

That evening shortly before nine o'clock four of the bravest and coolest detectives of the bank squad secreted themselves in the shadow of the great vault, a spot which the rays of the single gas-jet failed to reveal. It was the plan of these men to overpower the two cracksmen before they injured the valuable safe.

At the same time Detective Crane was waiting at the mouth of the sewer for the two brothers. Presently he heard the faint paddle of oars, and shortly a boat glided in toward the sewer and the Dunham boys stepped out, one of them tying the boat close up to the mouth of the sewer.

If it were stated that Dudley Crane was undisturbed and unshaken by the thought that he was about to deliver the two men into the hands of the four detectives, the truth would not be spoken. Dudley Crane knew that the two men were armed and would not hesitate to kill the man who stood between them and liberty. He knew that if they discovered that they had been duped by the man they trusted, that he was no other than a detective himself, they would put a bullet in him without an instant's warning. All this passed through Crane's mind as he followed the two men. He foresaw that the first thought that would enter the minds of the burglars would be that he had betrayed them, and that they would wreak vengeance on him, unless, perchance he could farther deceive them. To this end, he had slipped the ball cartridges from the revolver which had been furnished him by the crooks, replacing them with blank ones. The reason for this will be apparent presently.

It now was near midnight. Waiting until the watchman had tried the door to the bank, the elder of the two brothers gave the signal for his brother and Crane to follow him into the bank, there to begin work on the vault.

Scarcely had Crane drawn himself through the opening by the side of the vault, which opening had been cunningly concealed since it was made the preceding night, when four determined men stepped from behind the vault, and four gleaming revolvers pointed menacingly at the heads of the amazed and disconcerted cracksmen.

Instantly three revolvers gleamed in the hands of the surprised men.

With an oath one of the brothers turned fiercely upon Crane. He would have fired had not he seen something that caused him to pause.

Crane, leveling his revolver full at the head of an advancing officer fired two shots in rapid succession.

Whatever his thoughts an instant before, that act on the part of Crane completely deceived him; the next instant he turned on the advancing officers. Two shots were fired, but they went wide of the mark, and in far less time than it takes to tell it, the two burglars were lying helpless on their backs and the twisters were being fastened to their wrists. Not until that moment did it dawn upon them that the man who had done the heavy work, was forging the fetters which were to place them prisoners in the merciless clutch of the law. When they saw him replacing his revolver in his hip-pocket and no restraining hand was laid upon him, they saw it all in the twinkling of an eye. The look of hate which they cast upon him, containing the thoughts which their tongues were powerless to utter, Dudley Crane never forgot. Could an artist have transferred it to canvas it would have made the painter famous.

A month later the Dunham brothers were tried and convicted and sentenced to a term of fifteen years at hard labor.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

FREE CURE for ASTHMA
Trial Package of three special medicines Free. DR. W. K. WALRATH, Box 505 ADAMS, N. Y.

THE MIRROR OF DESTINY.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY FLORENCE L. BRACKETT.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

I HAD been pacing the deck for nearly an hour, brooding over the treachery of one in whom I had had implicit trust, when suddenly I felt that some one was watching me intently. I looked about and saw only a woman seated alone at the extreme end of the boat. She was so draped in a mantilla that her face was invisible, but I caught a glimpse of a pair of eyes gleaming through the black folds of the lace. As I glanced in her direction she arose. Just then the ship gave a lurch, and she would have been thrown violently to the deck had I not sprung forward and caught her. She quickly recovered herself and with a soft "Gracias, Senor," hastened away.

After watching her until she had disappeared, I resumed my restless walk, but in some way things looked different. The sense of oppression weighing upon me had totally disappeared, and instead I felt buoyant and light hearted.

"What is the cause of this sudden change?" I asked myself. Hitherto, I had desired no companionship other than my own unhappy thoughts, but now I wanted to talk to someone, and seeing the captain on the bridge I joined him.

During our conversation I asked him if he knew who the lady was whom I had assisted.

"No," he replied, "she is booked for Panama. Why, do you know her?"

I told him my experience with her, and he said:

"Don't let her hoodoo you; lots of those women have that power in this country."

This information made me determine to see the mysterious woman again. Day after day slipped by until I despaired of seeing her. At last, one evening, I saw a slight figure glide by me and seat herself a short distance from where I stood.

I strolled toward her, and said:

"Good evening, senorita."

She acknowledged my salutation with a gracious bow.

"What a wonderful night it is!" I continued, opening the conversation.

"Yes," she replied softly. Then glancing up at me, she murmured: "I am afraid you have thought me very rude, senor, not to have thanked you for your assistance, the other day; believe me, I was very grateful."

"Oh," I replied, "it was nothing, please forget it."

"But," said she, "I am going to repay you for your kindness by telling you not to worry about the absconding of your partner. When we arrive at Panama the money that he stole will be returned to you."

"Why!" I exclaimed in astonishment. "How did you hear of what I thought was known

FOR EASTER

Eton Suit

Sent Anywhere
C.O.D.
Subject to Examination

2402—Stylish Eton Suit in black, brown or gray mixed suiting. Eton waist in tight fitting double breasted effect, nicely tailored and stitched, new style sleeves, lined throughout with high colored mercerized silk, man-tailored skirt, new box plaited back, proper width, lined with good percaline and interlined, wide velvetine binding..... $4.98

Stylish Women do not depend upon the limited assortment shown in Dry Goods stores or small cloak stores, when they can post themselves on correct styles at the right prices, by sending direct to the makers for a catalogue, which is free for the asking.

Send for our Spring Catalog No. 104 today and you will have it the day after to-morrow.

REMEMBER we offer to send the above bargain free to examine and if you like it and agree with us that it is more than worth the money, pay the agent $4.98 and charges for the suit. Any express company or bank will testify to our responsibility.

AMERICAN CLOAK & FUR CO.,
180 State St., (Opposite Palmer House,) CHICAGO.

$34

BUILT for SERVICE
We Ship Direct to the consumer At Lowest Wholesale Prices the most reliable line of vehicles etc. to be found anywhere. Built substantially of honest material—workmanship the best—one of them will outlast two of the ordinary kind—Guaranteed as represented or your money back. We will ship C.O.D. with privilege of examination. You risk nothing. Reliable Top Buggy, $24.00; fine spring Wagon, $39.00; strong two horse Farm Wagon, $44.00; handsome Surrey, $54.00; well made Portland Cutter, $17.25; Carts, $9.50 up. Single harness $4.50; Farm harness, $12.95. Send for free illustrated catalogue.
CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158 W. VanBuren St., B- 5, Chicago
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

only to myself and that scoundrel? Tell me, I beg of you."

"It has come to my knowledge," replied she, "not by human agency. But it is correct, nevertheless."

"This is wonderful!" I exclaimed. "Tell me more, I pray you."

"Your partner," continued she, "intended to sail for China, but Providence in the shape of malaria detained him. He is now seriously ill."

"Is he going to die?"

"Yes," replied she, "it is so ordained."

"But tell me," I said, "from whence do you get this wonderful knowledge of your fellow men?"

"That is a long story, which I will tell you later."

Then she arose, and with a "Buenas noches" glided away.

"Was there ever anything more mysterious?" I queried to myself.

That evening the Unknown appeared at dinner for the first time, and her loveliness fairly took my breath away. She was slight in figure, with a complexion of a rich olive hue. Her hair, intensely black, her arched eyebrows and long, drooping lashes all had an indescribable charm. Her eyes—can any one describe them! Midnight were not so dark. She was dressed in black of filmy texture, and a black lace mantua was thrown around her shoulders. Her movements were grace itself; in fact, there was something uncanny about her, and as she entered the saloon looking so beautiful, a thrill of apprehension seemed to pervade me.

Why should this strange woman affect me so? As we left the table I hastened to her side and said:

"Senorita, won't you come on deck? It is a charming evening."

She consented, and for a while we promenaded up and down the deck in silence.

Suddenly she said:

"Perhaps, senor, you would like to hear my story?"

"It would give me great pleasure to hear it," I replied. I then took two seats, and placed them in a secluded spot where we would be free from interruption. She began as follows:

"I was born in the city of Lima. My father was a civil engineer. When I was fifteen he was offered an opportunity to go into the interior. My mother insisted upon accompanying him, and she took me with her. After travelling for several months, through a wild and uninhabited country, we reached our destination without mishap. The village selected for us to live in while father was exploring consisted of a few miserable huts, but the inhabitants received us kindly and did all they could to make us comfortable. We had lived there over a year when my mother died of a fever. My father, who was about to go further into the interior, left me in the care of the medicine woman of the tribe.

"She called me her 'Little Princess,' and I regarded her as a second mother. She taught me all her science, how to heal the sick and the incantations for so doing, until I was a worthy disciple, and her followers worshipped me.

"One evening my foster mother called me to her side and said:

"'My Princess, I am going to leave you very soon, and you must give heed to what I am about to tell you. You will be the medicine woman when I am gone, the tribe will look to you for counsel and help, and you must not fail them. The power I now possess will descend to you and enable you to be to them what I was.'

"She then took from her bosom a round wooden case, and opening it revealed to me an inner casket of gold with a glass top. This casket appeared to be filled with a black liquid resembling ink, but as I looked, the surface of it changed, and mirrored in it I suddenly saw a hut resembling ours, and a woman lying on a bench covered with a cloth. As I gazed longer, the covering was slowly raised, and to my horror I saw that the woman was dead, and that her features were those of my protector. I screamed with fright.

"'Oh, it's not you I see,' I cried.

"'Yes, dear,' she answered, 'but hear me through. Everything you wish to know—past, present and future is mirrored in this liquid, but for yourself the future is visible only on your birthday; at other times, nothing but the present is to be seen. Guard the mirror with great care, and never let it out of your possession, for it is your talisman. Do not let the tribe suspect from whence you get your power, but surround it with mystery. When your father returns to you the people will be loath to let you go, and will prevent it if they can. Then consult the oracle; by following its directions you will escape from their vigilance.'

"The next day my foster mother died, and I was installed as the medicine woman of the tribe. For over a year I acted successfully as their counsellor. Then my father returned. When, however, the tribe heard that I must leave them to go with him they were wild with anger, and said it could never be—I was their medicine woman, and must remain with them. From that moment our every action was watched, and a guard placed about my hut.

"I consulted my magic mirror. In it I saw the tribe surrounding their Sun God several leagues away from the village; I also saw my hut with the guards around it lying on the ground asleep, while in the distance I seemed to discern my father and myself riding swiftly away. I told him of the tribe's annual worship of the Sun God, and that this would be our time to leave. I prepared for the guards a decoction of herbs pleasant to the taste and having the power of putting them to sleep for many hours, and made preparations to escape.

"At last the eventful day arrived, and everything happened as I had foreseen; before our captors returned home we were beyond pursuit.

"Five years after our escape my father's health began to fail. Upon consulting my oracle I found that he was doomed soon to die. Now being my birthday, it also seemed to be the moment to look into the future."

"Ah," I cried breathlessly, "did the mirror tell you your fate?"

"Yes," she replied, "and the vision gave me courage, for I saw I was to be well taken care of after my father's death, and would not be long alone. Six months later father died, and now I am waiting for the fulfillment of the mirrored prophecy."

"Well, has it come true?" I exclaimed.

"It is slowly being verified," she said, solemnly.

"And that is where you found out about me?"

"Yes, you were so kind, and—and——" said she, stammering, and when I looked up quickly I saw her face was suffused with blushes.

My heart throbbed violently. Could I resist the siren spell she was casting about me? No! a thousand times no,—nor did I wish to. I took her hands hurriedly in mine, and gazing in her eyes I said:

"Did you see in that witch glass that I loved you, and could not live without you, and did it tell you that you were to be my wife? If it did not tell you so, it is a false oracle and does not mirror the truth. Tell me!" I exclaimed, "did you?"

For a moment there was a deep silence. Then she said in a faltering voice:

"It spoke the truth."

In an instant I was pressing her to my heart in a passionate embrace. Later she told me that I had been plainly mirrored in the magic fluid, and that when I appeared on the deck she recognized me at once. Perceiving that I was in trouble, she immediately looked to see what it was. Her diffidence arose from her fear lest I suspect her secret.

"And now, my darling," I said, "let me see this wonderful mirror."

She hastened below for it and a few moments later reappeared bringing the weird thing in her hand. She was about to give it to me when a great wave struck the side of the steamer. I lost my balance and in trying to save myself, struck her hand holding the case so that the magic mirror flew out, and to my great disappointment and disgust disappeared over the side of the vessel.

Beulah burst into tears. I tried to comfort her by saying:

"It is better so, my darling. What do we want to know of the future,—haven't we the present and each other? Let the uncanny thing go."

As had been foretold, on our arrival at Panama, we found my absconding partner dying at the hospital. He had already made arrangements to have the money restored. I went to see him but he was unconscious. A few days later, when he died, I saw that he was properly buried. Beulah and I were married at once; we are very happy and have never yet regretted the loss of the Mirror of Destiny.

JOHN 3.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HARRIET W. SEAVER.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

I WAS once traveling with my wife on one of those famous "personally conducted" trips across the continent. The party in our car consisted of only four, as it was then late for the Californian season, and because of the number we were thrown more than ordinarily together.

Besides myself and wife was a middle-aged widow, Mrs. Brown, who was of that extremely dark type, with sallow skin and shiny black hair and a superb carriage, except for the defect of a slight lameness as she walked. And a Capt. Hart, an old detective, who, worn out with care and the nerve strain of such a life, was seeking once more the part of the country he called home and taking with him his affianced wife, Mrs. Brown.

A more interesting couple we could not have been thrown in with once in a thousand times. Mrs. Brown had traveled most all over the world, and the Captain was daily narrating little incidents that had happened during his professional career.

The one I am about to repeat was his first unsuccessful case, and as we had drawn from him the fact that it was during this case he had met Mrs. Brown, we prevailed upon him to give us the story.

"About twenty years ago I was called from San Francisco to a little town in Lower California to watch a girls' college and discover who in the building was daily relieving the students of their small money and little trinkets. I was introduced to the teachers and students by the president—who had called me—as the new professor of astronomy, for I felt I could do more investigating in that capacity than as one of the servants. Besides, the menials were all Chinamen and I did not relish the idea of continued disguise and quarters with that—well, not over-clean—class.

"So I was given a room on the second floor at the head of the west wing, where my outlook was the entire campus. And here I was left undisturbed, having announced that I would postpone my classes until I had completed 'a set of charts' I was preparing, in case any one suspected my identity.

"For a few days I stumbled along on veiled clues without finding anything satisfactory. The thefts took place just as they had before I arrived, which was evidence enough to me that no one, except the president, suspected my errand.

"One thing of great importance to me did happen in those first few days. I met and fell deeply in love." Here he stopped and glanced at Mrs. Brown tenderly, while she blushed in a way peculiar to her, by growing intensely pale, "and before I left the college I had her consent to become my wife, in spite of the fact I was half a score of years her senior. But unfortunately for me, young girls have parents desirous of better connections than a mere detective and—I have been obliged to wait all these years—but that is another story," and the Captain smiled and sighed and continued:

"As I say, things went on just the same. I was in love but had the same wary eye for business and in less than a week I had formed my conclusions which made me wander frequently through Servants' Hall.

"I think now the guilty one could have been caught, had I understood Chinese. I struggled to get into some of their conversations (if such they may be called) but the cook was the only one who took any notice of me. The others would go their ways sputtering their jargon and as long as I was there I couldn't see enough difference in their faces to tell one from another. There was John 1—for each had a number in place of a name. He was the lean cook. John 2, a garrulous chap, was outside chore boy. John 3, who might have been dumb from all the talking I ever heard him do, had a peg leg that was his distinguishing feature. John 4, 5 and 6, were undersized boys who acted as waiters, and from 6 up to 14 there were chamber-boys, a bell-boy and laundry men. I studied each chance I got, to learn if any one had more money on hand than the others, but they all knew nothing except that they all played 'Fan Tan', and more than that I could not learn.

FROM PUDDING LANE TO PIE CORNER.

The Fearful Fire Which Consumed the English Metropolis Attributed to Gluttony.

The great fire of London began at Pudding Lane and ended at Pie Corner. The divines of the day seized upon the coincidence and proclaimed the fire a punishment for gluttony. The modern theologian would hardly stand by such a proposition. He believes that

"Gherizem and Ebal
Are in each human soul"

and that gluttony would be punished in the individual glutton by the logical consequences which follow the offense.

It is a fact not to be denied that over-eating kindles the fire of disease in many a human body, and this fire of disease often finds its beginning at "pudding lane" in the sweet and soggy stuff which pleases the palate but offends the stomach of the eater.

Physiological living would demand that all food be selected primarily with respect to its nutritive value, the pleasures of the palate to be a secondary consideration. But that order is popularly reversed. First please the palate and let the nourishment take care of itself is the practical expression of the popular idea of eating and drinking. And so the body is fed (?) with all sorts of innutritious material, spiced or salted, acid or sweet. The palate is pleased and enjoys the flavors of the food, regardless of the discomfort of the overloaded stomach, and the result is

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

Is that statement too sweeping? The increasing prevalence of diseases of the digestive and nutritive systems fully justifies the claim. "Weak" stomach is the general name given to a variety of these diseases. To many the whole range of them is summed up in the one word, "dyspepsia." To one who has had experience with this disease there is no other word so expressive of purgatorial torments as that one word, "dyspepsia." Mind and body suffer alike from its influence. To physical misery it adds the mental misery which is consequent on "anger, malice and all uncharitableness."

"I had been troubled with catarrh of the stomach and heart trouble," writes Mr. W. D. Merchant, of Tylersburg, Clarion Co., Penna. "Had doctored for some time without relief, then I began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took seven bottles. Before I began to take it I weighed 119 pounds, and now I weigh 176. I am working steadily and feel like a well man. I send you many thanks."

If people realized the far reaching effects of diseases of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition, they would make a business of getting well.

THE HUMAN STOMACH

is to the organized structure of the body what the commissary department is to an organized army, what the tender is to the railroad engine. If soldiers are not fed they can't fight. Without the supply of fuel in the tender the engine will stop dead on the track. Every organ of the body depends on the stomach for its vitality, and that is why, when the stomach is diseased, and the digestive and nutritive functions imperfectly performed, any or all the great organs—brain, lungs, heart, kidneys, or liver, may become involved in disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and with the cure of these diseases other ailments which originated in a diseased condition of the stomach are cured through the stomach.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep nor eat," writes Mr. J. O. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors, but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

One of the great causes of the progress of diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition is the treatment of symptoms of disease instead of the radical treatment of the disease itself. People are induced to use some paltry palliative which temporarily relieves distress after eating, until with many people a tablet or a few drops of medicine become a necessary adjunct of each meal. Palliatives relieve the stomach for a time, but the condition remains uncured, and will certainly grow worse.

STOP ALL TINKERING!

Meet the conditions fairly and ask: How can I soonest recover a sound digestion and a healthy body? Read the testimonials given above to the prompt, perfect and permanent cure effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Begin the treatment which has cured others and you will begin your own cure.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Persons suffering from diseases of long standing are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free of charge. All correspondence absolutely private and confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you ask your dealer for "Golden Medical Discovery" and he offers a substitute, remember that the substitute is not the medicine which has cured so many others. If you want to be cured insist on having the "Discovery," and accept nothing else.

WEDDING PRESENTS

are often more ornamental than useful. No more acceptable wedding present could be offered to any young couple than a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which is sent free to any address on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. This great work contains 1008 large pages and over 700 illustrations. It treats the great topics which relate to health and happiness as they have never before been treated—from the common sense point of view and in plain English. Send 31 one-cent stamps (expense of mailing only), for the book in durable cloth binding, or 21 stamps for the paper covered volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Now up to the time of my advent nothing of great value had been missed; but one noon, on returning from recitation, one of the young ladies made hue and cry over a large solitaire ring which had disappeared while she was out.

"Each girl who had been near her room was questioned in my presence, while her room was searched. The only person remaining unsearched was the servant who had put her room in order; and as each Chinaman in turn denied being near there, they were all suspected and all watched accordingly.

"I felt that I was soon coming upon some clue. That evening the president came to me and said that the student who had the opposite room and who was in bed with a hard headache during the forenoon, had heard the one who was making the bed, and it had seemed to her as though each step he took would make her head burst, it was such an irritating thumping noise.

"This convinced me it was John 3, the wooden legged man, and I hurried into the quarters and looked for him, but to my surprise he didn't appear with the rest of the servants. Then I was convinced. I asked questions but could get no satisfactory replies, however I did grasp the fact that two or three of the boys lived outside and came in each day to work. So I waited until the next morning and after I saw number 3 safely inside, I stationed men at the four doors leading from the building to the campus and allowed him the freedom of the building as usual; feeling that I was sure of him, I hastened to dress, as I had an appointment to meet my sweetheart in the drawing room at eleven. Presently I heard the thump, thump of that peg leg outside my door, then it passed on down the corridor; twice it stopped, then it continued on down the west wing until it died away and I wrestled with a collar stud that had dropped down my back and wondered just how I should break the news to my sweetheart that I was no astronomy professor after all, only a penniless detective.

"I heard the girls returning from their recitations talking and laughing, but it wasn't long before they came rushing back to my room—mine being the nearest in that section—exclaiming that two of their rooms had been turned upside down and all their money taken from places where it had been concealed. I assured them it would all be returned that night and hurried down to the drawing room, but my sweetheart was late and excited over the thefts, and in the brief time we had together I explained—but to continue my story. When night came no number 3 went out of the building, and more perplexing still on investigation no number 3 was found in the building." But here I interrupted.

"Could no one be found who saw him after you heard him go down the west corridor?"

"And that was the strangest part of it," continued the captain. "Mrs. Brown was in her room at the end of the wing the whole forenoon and did not even see or hear him, did you dear?——"

In our intense interest we had not noticed that Mrs. Brown had swooned, but as we looked around for her to verify this statement, we saw her in a dead faint in the chair in which she sat.

As I assisted the captain to lift her to the couch I noticed the cause of Mrs. Brown's lameness was a wooden foot. And I wondered if the captain had not been in love, how long it would have taken him to solve the mystery of the disappearance of John 3.

ONE OF THE UNEXPLAINABLES.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY SARAH M. MAVERICK.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

IS a queer story, and I am not telling it because I think you will believe it. Don't expect you to, for it seems hardly possible even to myself. It was one lovely day, so perfectly delightful it seemed a shame to stay in the house, and my journalistic instinct prompted me to go on a voyage of discovery after the riff-raff of news and items that is always floating about, and which is sure to come in handy some time or other.

While I was thinking which way to go, the train belonging to the O. N. branch of the road came along, and I boarded it, idly wondering as I did so whether I should meet my fate at the end of the line, or, what would suit me a great deal better just then, whether some extra good paying item would develop itself, thereby enabling me to meet my landlady next Saturday night with a smiling countenance. I was the only occupant of the car except the brakeman, but no one ever thinks of considering the train hands anybody unless, indeed, they need help, when they are very apt to discover that it is just as well to be a little bit civil to them.

I was looking around for anything that might be made of use, when to my astonishment I saw a big black and white cat right in the aisle washing herself.

"Why, kitty," I exclaimed, "where on earth did you come from?"

As I spoke the brakeman turned toward me with so white a face I thought he was fainting.

"Don't," he said, as I moved toward her, "it's the phantom cat. She might kill you."

"Nonsense," I answered, "she's flesh and blood fast enough. She's a beauty, and I want her," but somehow when I stooped to lift her my hands were empty, though there she still sat just ahead of me. She kept right on washing her face, and though she never took one step she was nearing the door. "There," I exclaimed as I cornered her, "I've got you now sure," but as I clasped my hands around her she vanished through the closed door.

"I told you so," was his remark as I turned to my companion for an explanation. "She's a spook, and we dread to see her I can tell you, for she is sure to be the harbinger of some awful accident. She appears three times, and then we look out for ourselves, for the warning never fails."

"But why does she haunt this particular train?" I asked, much impressed by his evident anxiety.

"Well, it seems that some years ago there was a conductor on this line who was a great lover of pets, cats especially. One day a poor little black and white kitten lay on the depot platform with a broken leg. That was enough for him. He took it aboard the train, and cared for it so thoroughly that it grew into a great handsome animal that was the pet of all the train hands. Every morning it went on duty with him, riding on the cars or the engine, whichever it pleased. But one day, no one could tell how it happened, the conductor stood on the depot steps with his cat in his arms, when all of a sudden just as the train started, he fell forward throwing her under the wheels which passed over him as he tried to save her. Poor kitty was picked up dead, and her friend lived but a few moments. About three months later she appeared same as now, and within a month there was a terrible accident, and so it has been ever since. Whenever there is trouble coming she gives us warning. It is about five years since she last appeared, but mark my words, it won't be five weeks before you will hear of something disastrous on this road."

I didn't know how to answer him, so I said nothing. The poor fellow's distress was too real for commonplace remarks, and besides, my own experience was strong proof that something had happened out of the ordinary. My day was spoiled, and I took the next train home. But such impressions wear away under the friction of daily duties, and when four weeks later I took that same train, I remembered the incident only as a passing thought. We had just passed the Junction, and I was looking out of the window when a touch on my shoulder made me turn to see my friend, the brakeman, pointing toward the end of the car. There as before sat the black and white kitty. Suddenly she stood up, shook herself, and walking to the end of the car, looked all around and slowly vanished.

"Heaven help us," he groaned, "this is the third time. I must tell the boys."

A thrill of fear passed through me, and I wondered if it was my fate to be present when the impending trouble came. We were near the end of the route then and reached it in safety. It was necessary that I should reach home that night, and against my better judgment I took my seat in the train for my return. Somehow I was impressed to do so. As we started I glanced among the passengers to see if, in case of accident, anyone would need special assistance. It didn't take me long to decide, for nearly at the end of the car was a delicate little woman with a wee bit of a baby in her lap. Under pretense of being able to hear better, I coaxed her to a seat in the middle, and it was not long before my admiration of her little one and sympathy with herself had won her confidence and she told me a pathetic story of early widowhood and a struggle to live that would have touched a harder heart than mine. "Sometimes," she added, "I have a premonition that I shall not live very long, and what will become of baby if I should be taken?"

The dark eyes so full of trouble looked straight into mine, and I was impelled to say, "The kind Father who sent her to you will never forget her, and you can safely trust Him to watch over His own."

"Yes," she answered, I know all that, but I want the assurance that some human agency will be near in her time of need," and, why I said it I cannot tell, but I replied, "here is my card. Should you realize your fear, send me word, and I will come to you, and take the child if anything happens to render it necessary."

"Heaven bless you," she exclaimed fervently. "I have never met you before, but I know of you, and I am perfectly sure that she will be safe in your care. I think Providence must have sent you to me."

For the last two or three minutes I had been conscious of an increased stir about the train, and when the conductor rushed through the car, and pulled the cord controlling the air brakes, I knew the dreaded time had come. He was too late, for at that moment a terrible crash threw us, and everything else into a heap. One fearful cry sounded above the uproar, and for a brief moment all was still. As soon as we found we were not killed we scrambled to our feet. All but the little mother; she had fallen face downward, and the gash in her temple showed how death had come to her. Baby was under a seat, unhurt, and evidently wondering what it all meant. A gentleman who had been sitting behind us laid her gently in my arms saying as he did so, "the poor mother claims your promise."

"A promise I shall keep to the letter," I replied as I folded the soft form close to my heart, and looked into the sweet, smiling face unshadowed by its dreadful loss.

The accident was due to a collision with a wildcat train which was rushing along in hot haste trying to avoid the very evil it perpetrated. Had it not been for the warning the men had received, thus keeping them constantly on the watch, the result would have been even more disastrous than it was. As for myself, I believe my trip on that day was a specially intended Providence, and although I am not anxious to repeat the experience, I do not regret it. Baby is still a wee bit lassie, but she is the one gleam of sunshine in my hard work-a-day life, and I hope she will be spared to me for many a year, although to this day I have no idea who she is or where she rightly belongs. Neither do I care. She is mine now.

The phantom cat has not been seen since the accident, but it is safe to say that should danger again threaten "the boys", their feline friend will be on hand to give a timely warning.

DR. BOGGS' EXPERIMENT.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY KATHRYN R. HARRIS.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

AT forty-five Dr. Boggs was still pouring his own coffee in bachelor apartments in Boonville. The reason for this lay not so much in his ineligibility as in his unwillingness to take what he could get. Old maids he would not consider, widows he abhorred, and the young girls, without exception, fooled him. This being the case, he did not get the sympathy he deserved.

Had not the widow Clark laid aside her mourning six months after her husband's death for the sole purpose, as every one knew, of relieving the doctor's forlorn condition? Then there were the Misses Simms, who lived next door, either one of whom would have been willing to sacrifice her freedom for the sake of a man in the house, and not, as some vulgarly supposed, to escape the stigma of old-maidenhood. It is true they had Ned, the only child of their dead brother, but he was only sixteen and not to be depended upon. The younger Miss Simms had gone so far on one occasion as to offer to straighten up the doctor's medicine chest, and the elder had even proposed to do his darning. But Dr. Boggs stoutly objected to this. While he was fond of the Misses Simms, and inclined to accept their suggestions, no one but his wife should ever do his darning, and that wife must be a woman of unquestioned youth and beauty. To this resolve he had adhered for twenty-five years, and he could not think of breaking it now.

Although the doctor cherished this ideal of a matrimonial alliance, it must be acknowledged that he had become discouraged in the methods of courtship thus far employed. His failures were a standing joke in Boonville. No wonder then that he began to cast about for secret and more effective means of pursuing his amorous designs.

The idea came to him like an electric shock one morning while reading his paper—he would advertise. So taken was he with this suggestion that he spent one whole day composing and recomposing an advertisement, and when it was finished he took off his glasses and laughed in sheer pleasure of anticipation. What would the Misses Simms think if they knew!

The doctor's advertisement came out in the "Boonville Herald" the following morning. He read it with the satisfaction of a man who has undertaken and accomplished a great deal in life.

"A gentleman of manners and means wishes to correspond with a young lady of beauty and accomplishments. Object: Matrimony."

For a week Dr. Boggs anxiously awaited results. Then at last his patience was rewarded by a dainty little missive which read as follows:

"My Dear O. B.—Your advertisement has come to me as a ray of hope in a very dark life. I am almost eighteen, but because I am considered pretty and my guardians can keep possession of my property until my marriage, they do not allow me to go out without a chaperone. The confinement is killing me. I cannot endure it much longer. If you rescue me from this unhappy fate you will win the lifelong gratitude of one who dares only to sign herself, C. M., Box 84. Boonville."

Now when Dr. Boggs read this letter his sympathetic heart was torn by conflicting emotions; indignation, that this spirited young creature should be bound down under such tyrannical restrictions; pride, that should appeal to him for freedom; happiness, that he was soon to see the realization of his fondest hopes.

In hot haste he penned an answer, assuring her of his readiness to do everything in his power, and begging her to reveal her identity that he might be able to make some move in

Tailor Made Suit $5.98

Latest Style for Spring and Summer of 1900.

FINE ALL WOOL The suit will be made to measure by skilled tailors from Evans best all wool ALBERT CLOTH, famous for its rich bloom and beautiful weave. The Jacket is made in new single breasted style, beautifully lined with fine imported silk, elegantly silk faced and superbly trimmed with pure satin ribbon. The skirt is cut full width, is lined and interlined, has latest style back, nobby welted seams, hangs graceful and stylish. Guaranteed strictly tailor made and worth fully $10.00. Choice of black and blue colors.

SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large sample of the cloth and our big catalog containing many other rare bargains in suits from $6 to $20, and of jackets, capes and skirts all at wholesale prices. We make all grades and styles of ladies' garments and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.

LADIES' SUITS FREE We give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one. Its a great chance to get a suit free. Send one 2-cent stamp to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit. Write today.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

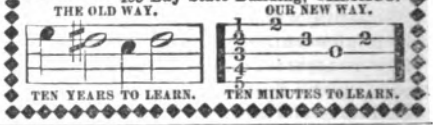
$14 IT COSTS NOTHING to try our Sewing Machines. We ship direct from factory to consumer. Save agents profits. 30 days free trial. 117,500 sold. Warranted 20 Years. All attachments free.

$40.00 Arlington for.....$14.00
$45.00 Arlington for.....$16.00
$60.00 Kenwood for.....$21.50
Other Machines at $8, $9 & $11.50

Illustrated catalogue and testimonials free. Write at once for our special freight offer. Address, CASH BUYERS' UNION. 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ill.

A way to change your work

YOU can prepare yourself for a better position without neglecting your present work. Our students advance in salary and position while studying. More than 150,000 students and graduates have taken technical courses by mail. No need to leave home or sacrifice present salary. Our own copyrighted texts are furnished free. Your success is guaranteed.

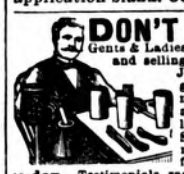


Others Have Raised Themselves.

Devote part of your leisure time to the study of Mechanical or Architectural Draughting, Electrical, Mechanical, Steam or Civil Engineering; Architecture, Surveying, Mining, Chemistry, Bookkeeping and Stenography BY MAIL. Established 1891. Capital $1,500,000. Write and tell us what profession you wish to enter.

The International Correspondence Schools, Box 1190, Scranton, Pa.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN, VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO & ORGAN Self-Taught, without notes by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first Instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address E. C. HOWE, 495 Bay State Building, CHICAGO.



WE SHIP ON $1.00 DEPOSIT

$11.75 Buys a Bicycle Complete. Unguaranteed.
$16.50 Buys an Up-To-Date Model. Fully guaranteed.
$22.50 Buys a Full Racing Model. Shop-worn Bicycles from $10 up. 2nd Hand Wheels from $5.00 up. We want agents everywhere. 64 page catalogue of bicycle parts and repairs free. Write for catalogues and see how you can get a Bicycle free by helping us advertise. Address Dept. B64 VICTOR MANFG. CO. 161-167 Plymouth Pl., Chicago, Ill.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

$1000 YEARLY SALARY PAYABLE WEEKLY WITH EXPENSES

MEN or WOMEN to represent us in their own state. Your duties to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. No Investment Required. Send stamp for application blank. Co-Operative Co., 300 Star Bldg. Chicago

DON'T BE HARD UP $2,000 A Year Easy.

Gents & Ladies at home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Platers. Plates, Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles and all metal goods. No experience, heavy plate, modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. Gold, Silver & Nickel, also Metal Plating by new dipping process. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write to-day. Testimonials, samples, etc., FREE.

B. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, 7, CINCINNATI, O.

OUR PRICES ON ELGIN, WALTHAM and GOLD-FILLED WATCHES, Warranted 20 Years, ARE THE LOWEST.

Before you buy it will not cost you a cent to examine this great bargain; Watch and Chain, complete, $4.50. CUT THIS OUT and send it to us with your name, post office and express office address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination this beautifully engraved 14k double hunting case, gold plated, stem wind and stem set watch, fitted with a richly jeweled movement, guaranteed a perfect timekeeper and equal in appearance to any $35.00 watch. A long gold plated chain for ladies or vest chain for gents and our 20 year guarantee sent with each watch. After examination if you are satisfied it is a great bargain pay the express agent our special price $4.50 and express charges and it is yours. Mention if you want gent's or ladies' size.

DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., CHICAGO, ILL. Dept. A16, 225 Dearborn Street.

SEND ONE DOLLAR Cut this ad out and send to us, state number of inches across top of your buggy seat in front, from outside to outside, and we will send you this BUGGY TOP by freight, C. O. D. subject to examination, You can examine it at your freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory, the greatest bargain you ever saw, and equal to tops that retail at $15.00, pay the freight agent OUR SPECIAL PRICE, $7.50, less the $1.00, or $6.50 and freight charges. The freight charges will average about 30 cents for 500 miles. THESE TOPS ARE BUILT TO FIT ANY BUGGY OR ROAD WAGON. You can fit them on in 20 minutes. Made from 24-oz. best rubber drill, head and back stays lined with No. 14X cloth, side curtains unlined, 3 or 4 black japanned steel bows, japanned prop nuts, wrought iron shifting rail, patent buttons; which makes it adjustable; full length back curtain with glass window, valance front and rear. ORDER TODAY. WRITE FOR FREE BUGGY CATALOGUE.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially adapted for cleaning and polishing Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Delicate Surface. It does not scratch! It works Wonders! and a child can use it! Will clean and polish just as well when black as when new. No matter how soiled the "cloth" may become, the black will not rub off and soil the hands. Can be used until entirely worn out. A moist portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sure. Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the Century.

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents' prices and a paid three month's trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, Box 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

her behalf. But this, she wrote him, would be useless at present, for her people would not listen to reason. Her only hope lay in an elopement. She appreciated his generous offer, oh, so much, and should the time ever come, would be glad to take advantage of it. Meanwhile she wanted to know more of her unknown friend. Would he object to sending his photograph.

The doctor looked at this request and scratched his head dubiously. He had not had a photograph taken in twenty-five years. But, happy thought, there was one left of his college days. He would send that with a request for one of hers in exchange.

For ten days following this no answer came from her. The doctor was worried and perplexed, wondering what had happened. When she did write it was to tell him that her mail had come under suspicion. She was no longer allowed even stamps, and did not know when she could send the picture or write again. The doctor replied promptly, enclosing a dollar's worth of postage and urging her to accept him as a sure escape from such unjust espionage. She sent the photograph the next day. It was his ideal of feminine loveliness. After seeing it, he was spurred to greater impatience to meet and know the original.

He wrote now more frequently, in every letter urging her to arrange a meeting. She objected at first, demanding a pledge of good faith. Dr. Boggs marvelled that he had not thought of this before. The ring he had used for twenty-five years still lay in its faded blue plush box, a little worse for wear, but thick and heavy still. He got it out and polished it up a bit, then wrapped it in a new box and sent it to her. This proof of his earnestness seemed to satisfy her for shortly afterwards she agreed to his request and appointed a place for the meeting. It was to be in a secluded corner of the park, and the time half past eight that night. He would know her by a long gray cape and a blue fascinator she would muffle about her face as a disguise. On no account was he to appear later than the time mentioned.

Dr. Boggs set about making preparations. He felt almost ready to receive congratulations. He took a minister into his confidence. Next he instituted such a house renovation as brought the Misses Simms over to remonstrate with him. Did not he know that the fall was an unseasonable time for house cleaning? But the doctor pushed ahead with the air of one who knows what he is about and is not open to advice. The Misses Simms would receive a glorious enlightenment in a few days.

When night came he dressed with great care, and dyed his hair afresh. He had not forgotten that photograph and she must not detect the years intervening. On the stroke of eight he put on his hat and hurried up town. For half an hour he strolled aimlessly about the streets, consulting his watch at every corner. When the time arrived he slipped over to the park gate and entered stealthily. As he approached the spot designated he began to feel some natural misgivings. What if she deceived him—if she did not come. But no, his heart gave a great leap of triumph! On a rustic seat, immersed in shadow, sat a slender gray figure wearing a blue fascinator. Without a moment's hesitation he went forward and sat down beside her. The girl did not speak. Her head was bowed and she seemed to be weeping. All the gallantry of the man's nature rose to the occasion.

"Do not be frightened little one; I am here to protect and rescue you. Are you willing to trust me?"

"Yes," she whispered, striving for composure, "I believe you are my friend."

"Friend? Ah, that is not the word. I love you; I will do anything for you."

"Will you save me from my persecutors?"

"Will I? What would I not do for such a beautiful young creature? Only grant me the privilege and you shall be my wife before to-morrow night."

"Do you love me as much as that? You have not known me long."

"Long enough to love you better than life. Will you promise me now?"

She hung her head as if shyly considering.

"But my circumstances—you forget that I cannot get possession of my money even for stamps."

"Ah! I see, but that shall be no obstacle. If you will accept——"

The doctor was divesting himself of all his available change, and searching his pockets for a match to make out a draft in his bank book. So absorbed was he that he did not notice a movement in the shrubbery behind, which caused his companion to start up as if preparing for flight. The doctor, not to be cheated on the very eve of success, threw his arms around her and drew her back with the intention of planting his betrothal kiss upon her lips. The kiss fell harmless upon the old gray cape for she sprung from his arms, leaving it with him, and then such a laugh fell upon the still night air as no woman ever uttered. The next instant there stood revealed—Ned Simms, bereft of the blue fascinator, an old black riding skirt dangling over his long legs and his angular figure grotesquely incased in one of his aunts old tea-jackets; and from every quarter there issued shrieks of laughter as a crowd of mischievous boys gathered around to witness the thrilling scene. The merriment was cut short, however, by the resounding whack of the doctor's cane which came down among them, scattering them to the four corners of the park, but though no broken bones followed the stroke, something else gave way beneath it—twenty-five years of cherished sentiment.

"I've played the fool for the last time," said Dr. Boggs, as he walked back through the park, "but I'll punish that young scoundrel yet and—and—I'll marry too, before to-morrow night."

Ten minutes later he rang the door bell of the Misses Simms.

"There is our disobedient boy at last," said the elder Miss Simms to her sister. "Ned is getting so bad; he needs a man to control him. We will have to go and let him in."

They had just put on their caps preparatory to making their toilets for the night, and did not stop to remove them. As the door opened, to their dismay the light fell upon the electrified countenance of Dr. Boggs.

"Which one of you offered to darn my socks?"

"I did," admitted the elder.

"Are you ready to begin to-morrow?"

"Why, certainly, doctor, if I can accommodate you."

"Well, I'll bring the minister over at seven. Please be ready. Good night."

Thus Dr. Boggs secured his revenge—a poetic retribution which even Ned's fertile brain had never contemplated.

One Pair of Home-Beginners.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

MY wife and I have been married five years, and we are just beginning to "get clear of the woods," as the saying is, with respect to the difficulties and perplexities of establishing a home on a small income. It has been a hard struggle, but a winning one, nevertheless. We have been encouraged in our labors and self-denials by seeing how steadily, if slowly, we were approaching the end we had in view—the independent control of a home.

I imagine I see before me an audience of young married couples, just about to undertake the same enterprise; and a strong desire seizes me to tell them, very frankly and practically, what we—my wife and I—have learned from the experience of the past five years. Perhaps they might get some useful suggestions from the report, or at least some warning against the mistakes which we made and had to undo.

In the first place, with respect to the house; we will suppose that you are to provide your own shelter, as most young couples do, and prefer to do, and that you start out with the average income of fifteen dollars a week. We found that most of our young married friends were renting and were at first inclined to follow their example; but, thanks to the advice of a real estate agent—whether disinterested or not I cannot say—we chanced upon a better way, one which has turned out most advantageously to us and which we can heartily recommend to all home-beginners. We borrowed $2400 from a co-operative bank, paid $250 down, and bought outright a new, cozy, seven-room suburban cottage, equipped with all the modern conveniences. There are plenty more for sale at the same price all about us.

The principle upon which co-operative banks are operated is too involved to be explained here. But it will be sufficient to say that they are absolutely safe, and provide a means by which home-beginners can borrow a larger sum, at the outset, than could be obtained from a saving's bank. We paid into the bank each month $24.60, of which $12.60 was interest on the sum borrowed, and $12, sharing in the profits of the bank's investments, was placed to our credit, to form a sinking fund which should gradually extinguish the loan. Many of our friends were paying from $15 to $20 per month for the mere rental of cottages like ours. We were paying out a little more than that, to be sure, but getting back nearly half of it each month in the form of an interest-drawing deposit.

The result of this arrangement exceeded our most sanguine expectations, for, at the close of the fourth year, by adding only $200 in cash, we found ourselves able to "get out" of the co-operative bank and exchange our loan of $1700, which, at six per cent. interest, enabled us to practically own our own home, at a yearly cost for shelter of $102. We do not try to pay anything on the mortgage, preferring to let it lie, as it would be easier to sell our equity in the house and lot, should we care to, than to obtain the full cash value of the property.

This, then, is one great advantage of going into a co-operative bank—to use it as a stepping-stone to obtaining a saving's bank loan. The latter one could not secure at the outset, since savings banks will loan only two-thirds of the assessed value of real estate. The profits on your sinking-fund investment in the co-operative bank are comparatively large, and you will be surprised to see how few years it will take to "graduate from" the co-operative and reduce your monthly bill for shelter two-thirds. If you choose, of course, you can remain in the co-operative bank until your loan is extinguished and house paid for. But that means a period of from ten to fifteen years of compulsory monthly payments, which remain all the way through as large as at the outset. By our plan, we had only four years of this noticeable financial drain. Now we obtain the same shelter—and may have it as long as we choose, since savings banks are not accustomed to call in good loans—for a trifle over $8.00 a month. And $8.00 shelter means, for us, a new modern house, with all up-to-date conveniences and appliances, only ten minutes by rail from the heart of a great city.

We think, therefore, that we have solved that first problem of shelter, fairly satisfactorily.

We made a serious mistake, however, with respect to the next great problem, that of bringing running expenses within the limits of income remaining after paying the cost of shelter. It took us two years to learn that the chief function of a new home is not the continuous entertainment of old friends. "Company" during those first two years cost us more than we had any right to expend for the mere delight of showing off our new home. We did not realize where the drain came from that was keeping us continually behind until a period of respite from "company" disclosed it to us. It was more than half our own fault, too, for we had many appreciative relatives and "chums" on both sides, and warmly encouraged their coming to visit us. A month without a guest was rare, at the beginning of our domestic life. But we stopped this sort of a thing when we discovered what it meant; and perhaps the mistake we made—the mistake of overdoing a good thing—may help others to avoid a financial set-back at a time when every extra penny is needed to complete the furnishing of the new home.

Another mistake, which we were three years in discovering, was this; that meat is required but once a day, and that the health and working powers are promoted by its minimum use. For three years our big expense item in the food account was for meat. We bought the best and made it "the chief of our diet,"—warm for breakfast and dinner and cold for lunch. Then the doctor had to be called in for some obstinate ailment, and his verdict was: "Overheated blood—inflammatory tendency. Reduce your meat diet." We reduced it at once, and have been much improved in health and purse ever since. Make a comparative trial of it, if you will, young beginners—a month of meat, and a month almost without it—and see what your verdict is, all things considered, at the expiration of that time.

We made a mistake in the other direction, by trying to do some things too cheaply. For instance, we screened our whole house with ready-made, "adjustable" screens, at fifty cents each—and the mosquitoes nearly ate us up. We had to discard every one of those screens (they are up garret now), and hire a carpenter to make us fitted screens at seventy-five cents each. After which we lived in perfect comfort, so far as insects are concerned.

The first winter we bought twenty-four bushels of potatoes, at wholesale rates, and stored them in our dry, cemented cellar. Before they were half gone, however, the percentage of decay was so great that we had to get our grocer to take them off our hands at a very low figure. Loss, about $4.50. Another mistake in domestic economy, you see. A small family, I believe, should buy all perishable provisions in small quantities. Don't try the hotel or boarding-house plan with two or three mouths. It doesn't pay.

In conclusion, I submit a few items of advice, condensed for lack of space:

With a family of two or three, the young wife can, and ought to, do her own housework, with the exception of washing and heavy scrubbing. In nine cases out of ten, she will be better satisfied than if she paid, boarded and worried over a raw servant.

Buy matting instead of carpets for all chambers. One or two small rugs, with plain matting of good quality, will make the ideal chamber, for health, convenience, and looks.

Clean house twice a year, in the spring and fall, and take one room at a time, letting the whole process extend over several weeks. When you are done, you won't realize that you have passed through the great and long-dreaded ordeal of old-fashioned housekeeping.

Furnish your house gradually, desiring everything long enough to know that you really want it.

Live by system. Have a time for everything and a place for everything, and learn to be miserable whenever domestic regularity is violated.

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr. M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and forty-six popular songs, sentimental, pathetic and comic, with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses, and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

Reversible LINENE Collars and Cuffs.

Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods. No Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mail, 30cts. Send 6 cts. in stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. K, Boston, Mass.

RUBENS DANTE TASSO MURILLO ANGELO RAPHAEL

MAGIC DIP NEEDLE for locating Gold and Silver Ore, Lost or Hidden Treasures. Circulars and testimonials 2 cts.
P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

A Cure for Paralysis

Mr. H. N. Warner, of Kearney, Neb., says:

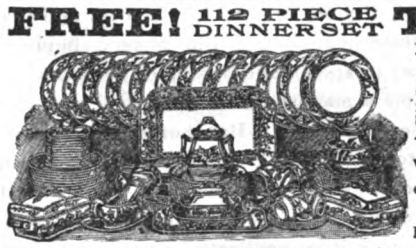
"In 1894 I was attacked with paralysis in my left side. You might stick a pin to the head into my left hip and I would not feel it. I was unable to do any kind of work and had to be turned in bed. I fully made up my mind that I could not be cured as I had used all kinds of medicine and had tried many doctors.

"At last I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I very reluctantly commenced their use last September. Before I had finished my first box I began to feel much better and by the time I had used six boxes the paralysis disappeared, and although two months have passed since I finished my last box, there has been no recurrence of the disease."

From the Advertiser, Axtell, Neb.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in packages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box. 6 boxes $2.50.

We are giving away Telescopes, Cameras & many other premiums to boys and girls, for selling two doz. 18k. Rolled Gold Collar Buttons at 5c each. Send us your address and we will forward you post-paid two doz. buttons. When sold send us $1.20 and we will send you your premium. HENRY BUTTON CO., DEPT. 80, CHICAGO.



4 BUGGY WHEELS, $7.60

HIGH GRADE, SARVEN'S PATENT, tired and banded, height 3 ft. 4 in., 3 ft. 8 in. or 4 ft. Spokes 1⅛ or 1¼ inch. For any other sizes send for catalogue. Cut this ad. out and send to us with ONE DOLLAR, state size wheel wanted and we will send them by freight C. O. D. EXAMINE THEM at your freight depot and then pay freight agent balance, $6.60 and freight charges. Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago.

SEND NO MONEY.

This magnificent SOLID GOLD shell cluster ring, opal center, surrounded by dazzling simulation Diamonds free, if you will sell only 2 doz. Pkts. of Sweet Leonin Sachets at 10c. each. When sold, send us the money & you will receive this ring for your trouble. It is warranted to wear & is a perfect beauty. Also an additional handsome present free if you write to-day. Leonin Co. Dept. 210 St. Louis, Mo.

FREE! 112 PIECE DINNER SET TO LADY AGENTS

For the sale of only 30 one-pound packages of our Celebrated Imperial Baking Powder and to assist our Agents in making quick sales, we allow them to give FREE with every pound, a beautiful decorated and gold traced Cup, Saucer, seven-inch Plate, Fruit Saucer and Individual Butter.

An 18-pound order secures a 56-piece Tea Set. We also have Spices, Extracts and Baking Powder Offers with many valuable Premiums to agents.

A 56-piece Tea Set given to any lady who assists us in securing Three Agents. Lady Agents Wanted.

Write to us at once, it will pay you to do so.

WE PAY FREIGHT and allow time to deliver goods before paying for them.

P. S.—REFERENCES: Postmaster, any Mercantile Agency, Express Companies or Banks.

CHARLTON A. MARSHALL, 34 West Front Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address
GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

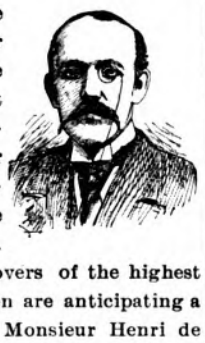
FEEL YOUR PULSE

Place your finger on your pulse and see if your heart beats regularly and steadily. If there is a single skipping or irregularity of the beats, your heart is weak or diseased, and there is no telling how soon it will stop beating altogether. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. But remember that irregular or skipping beats are only one symptom, and in many cases are not found. Any of the following are just as positive and sure:—

Symptoms of Heart Trouble.

Fluttering, Palpitation, Shortness of Breath, Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in the Left Side, Arm or Under the Shoulder Blade; Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Hungry or Weak Spells; Spots Before the Eyes; Sudden Starting in Sleep, Dreaming, Nightmare, Choking Sensation in Throat; Oppressed Feeling in Chest; Cold Hands and Feet; Painful to Lie on Left Side; Drowsy, Swelling of the Feet or Ankles (one of the surest signs), Neuralgia Around the Heart. Persons having even one of these symptoms should not delay treatment a single day.

Medicine Free to All. If you have been treating yourself for stomach, lung, kidney or nervous disease, and have failed to find a cure, the chances are 9 in 10 that your trouble is in your heart. Hundreds of such cases are found every year. I want you to send me your name and address at once, so I can send to you for trial a box of my celebrated Heart Tablets absolutely free of charge, by mail, prepaid. Don't fail to write me if you have a single one of the above symptoms. I can cure you beyond any question, and will send the free tablets to prove it to you personally. Delays are dangerous. Inclose stamp for postage.



Address DR. AUSTIN ALBRO, Box 962 Augusta, Maine.

Men, Women and Things.

CONDUCTED BY JENNIE MELVENE DAVIS.

The American historical novel has grown into a very popular form of fiction. The larger per cent. of successes in the literary field have been among those who have used American history as a basis. One of the earlier writers in this popular field is acknowledged as one of the best in spite of the competition of these later years. Molly Elliott Seawell is a most charming young Virginian. She is a tall, handsome young woman with a quick, direct manner that hardly suggests that her early life was passed in the quiet surroundings of a Virginia country neighborhood. She has made her home in Washington for some time where her talent, her success and her thoroughbred manner have won her friends and the entree into literary circles of the capital. Her first success came through a series of Russian stories. Their reception encouraged her to write Maid Marion in 1886. These were all short stories but they brought a request from a publisher for a complete novel. Hale Weston was written, The Berkleys and Their Neighbors and Throckmarters soon followed. Among her best known books are: The History of the Lady Betty Stair, The Rock of the Lion, A Virginia Cardlin, and Children of Destiny. The last named is in a somewhat different vein from the others but Miss Seawell declares "It is by far my best book." Miss Seawell has demonstrated the fact that ease and success in writing come from practice. Twice she has been a prize winner when names of authors were unknown and the competition was solely on the merits of the story. She won a prize of $500 offered by the Youth's Companion for a child's story. "Little Jarvis" was the winner and when the names were read it was found that it was no unknown writer who had distanced competitors. The New York Herald offered a prize of $3000 for the best novelette. The competition was very strong, thousands of manuscripts being received. Many of our successful writers entered the lists as well as hundreds of unknown authors. "The Sprightly Romance of Marvac" was pronounced the best novelette and when the author's name was drawn from the envelope it was Molly Elliott Seawell. Miss Seawell is one of the best examples of the "new regime" in the South, and among all the brilliant Southern women whose success has been a development of causes arising from changed conditions, she occupies one of the leading positions.

A leading feature of the study of French in our colleges has become the series of lectures in that language by some prominent French writer or critic. This idea was introduced by the Cercle Francais de l'Universite. Harvard Students and lovers of the highest form of literary expression are anticipating a rare treat in listening to Monsieur Henri de Regnier. On the first of March he commenced the delivery of the series of eight lectures at Harvard. After completing the course there he will be heard at the Adelphi college in Brooklyn and then at the universities of Columbia, Princeton, Brown, Chicago, California, and Vassar, Wellesley, Bryn Mawr and other colleges and schools throughout the United States. His lectures are on the topic of Modern Poetry. He is eminently fitted to speak to the college world of America on this topic as he is recognized in France as a leader of the new school of poetry. He was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1897 and this year the French Academy awarded him the Prier Vitet for his works. He is the author of Sites, Arethuse, and many volumes of short stories and poems. His wife is recognized as one of the most gifted and beautiful women in France.

To be the writer of a great hymn is to come more closely into communion with the feelings and emotions of mankind than could be done in any other way. Thousands are familiar with the words of "God be with you till we meet again." It has been translated into almost every foreign language where the story of Christianity is told and is literally sung around the world. All know the beautiful words and tune, but all do not know that the author of the hymn is Dr. Rankin, the President of Howard University, Washington, D. C. This school is partly supported by the government and now has nearly seven hundred pupils. Dr. Rankin teaches in the school, conducts the religious exercises daily and oversees the printing of a student paper to which he furnishes a monthly sermon. He has written many hymns and poems although none have caught the popular fancy like the "God be with you" one. Dr. Rankin is of Scotch descent. His ancestors are of sturdy New England stock. In 1848 Dr. Rankin graduated from Middlebury college and in 1854 from the theological school at Andover. His pastorates were at Potsdam, N. Y., St. Albans, Vt., Lowell, Mass., Boston and Washington. For fifteen years he preached to crowded congregations in Washington. He left the pastorate then to take up his work at Howard University. His literary work is of a high rank. He has published a volume of German translations and one little Scotch poem of his, "The Babie," has been published in a volume of gems of poetry. His work has been varied and successful. He has touched human life at many points but nowhere so successfully as in the great hymn which may truthfully be called a song that captured Christendom.

Mary Wilkins has an international fame through her stories of plain New England life. She has grasped the essence of New England character and placed it before the world in simple, direct language. There is wonderful art in her writing but it is art so simple and sincere that it seems pure nature. Miss Wilkins lives at Randolph, Massachusetts, where she was born. The greater part of her life was passed at Brattleboro, Vermont, but upon the death of her father she returned to her early home in Massachusetts, where she took up her residence with a life-long friend, Miss Mary Wales. Miss Wilkins has very fair hair with a touch of gold light in it, blue eyes and a fair, delicate complexion. She is very simple and direct in speech and speaks of her work in so simple a manner that one almost forgets the fame she has won. Her short stories are familiar to all magazine readers and have been translated into French, Italian and German. Her novel, Pembroke, is now running as a serial in a leading Paris publication and her other long story, Jerome, is being dramatized for the American stage. Miss Wilkins is alone in the world but seems to find occupation and diversion in her work. She rarely leaves Randolph and although she would be welcomed in the inner literary circles of the great cities she stays in her New England hills and in the midst of the life that she so accurately portrays. She says that she has a regular time to write but she never writes in it. She uses a type writer, or rather two, and has two different stories in progress at the same time. Her favorite among her stories is Silence, which is a dramatic picture of the Deerfield massacre during the old French wars. Her work is read to a little circle of her friends. Miss Wilkins has the faith in herself of all who really succeed. She believes that she has not yet done her best but that she can write the great American novel. She declares that this idea that she can do is her success. She never feels that she has done her best work. She says the one thing she could do was to write and her success has shown that she does this well.

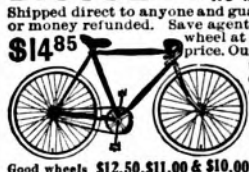
The Princess Sada of Japan, daughter of Prince Michitaka is betrothed to the Prince Imperial and is therefore future Empress of Japan. She is cousin of the heir apparent to the throne and comes of a family from whose ranks many empresses have been chosen. The princess is but sixteen years of age and is of fine figure with the bright dark coloring of her race. Her family is the Fujiward which traces its ancestry back for forty-seven generations. The family name means Wisteria Meadow. The trousseau comes from Europe, Japan and China. Japanese ladies of high rank always have a full outfit of European dresses in addition to the beautiful garments of crepe, embroidered silk and gauze that furnish the material for native costumes.

Olga Nethersole has aroused much discussion ever since her advent on the American stage. For the last few months New York City has been busy discussing the propriety of her new play Sapho. The actress and her manager were finally arrested at the instance of one of the daily papers that has earned the appellation of "Yellow." Petitions were circulated asking that the play be suppressed. There is no censorship of plays in America and public opinion must decide the fate of any play. Miss Nethersole has received more free advertising than usually falls to the lot of stage favorites, but it is doubtful whether she is willing to accept the notoriety for fame. Miss Nethersole is a very hard worker and scorns the idea that acting holds any easy prizes. She has the habit common to all who succeed of discouraging any one from an attempt to enter her profession. It is natural that all who succeed should have a vivid realization of the hard steps that have led to success. Olga Nethersole has been on the stage ten years. She was a governess before she became an actress but in spite of the opposition of her family the wish was strong within her to try the stage. She had no acquaintance with theatrical people but finally made the acquaintance of a lady who through an actor friend purchased her a letter of introduction to a London manager. For three months she tried to present her letter and it was not until the letter had been in his possession for six weeks that she was granted a five minutes interview. Difficulties had led to the first step towards success for she left his presence with a part and the promise of an engagement. The play in which she appeared was called Harvest. She was ambitious to play in London but for two years she travelled around the provinces working with an earnestness that was almost desperation. She played many parts with a travelling company that gave a different play each night. She was asked to take a new part at twenty-four hours' notice. All night she studied the part, rehearsed it once and played it that night. A London critic happened to be in the audience and gave her a most favorable notice in a London paper. A London engagement came within a month. The fight was not yet won, for the London critics were chary of praise, but the three years she passed as a member of a London stock company were the most comfortable of her stage experience. Miss Nethersole was not content to enjoy the favorable tolerance of the London audiences. Her restless ambition wished a larger recognition. She organized a company and journeyed seventeen thousand miles to Australia. The burden of the success or failure of the company rested with her. She succeeded and returned to London to become leading lady in the stock company of the Garrick theater. Miss Nethersole came to America and was at once declared one of the leading emotional actresses of the day. She says she used to spend the time when she was not on the stage in standing in the wing, watching the work of the others and endeavoring to gain ideas from it. She was rarely without a copy of some standard play in her hand and could have played any of the leading roles at almost a moment's notice. Among her cherished mementoes are two letters; one from the celebrated John Toole and the other from Sir Henry Irving. Mr. Toole strongly urged her not to take the stage as a profession, but Irving encouraged her, but at the same time pointed out the difficulties of the way. It is certain that the place Miss Nethersole has won at the top has come through strenuous effort. One is led to believe more and more strongly in the idea that the genius that wins in the world of to-day is solely the genius for hard work. Whenever one who has won what the world acknowledges as success speaks of the steps, it is the same story—work, work, work. Courage that is never daunted, patience that knows no end, belief in yourself—and work. Miss Nethersole has succeeded because she would not understand discouragement and refused to be content with even moderate success.

ACME SEWING MACHINES

do as much work & as great variety as the highest priced machines. Ball-bearings, no noise, little effort. Warranted satisfactory to the user in use for 10 years—27 styles, all prices. To introduce them we send for a limited time, High-Arm No. 1, with attachments and instructions..... $11.95 $11.95

ACME KITCHEN CABINET.



Kitchen table & pantry combined. Saves running to pantry when cooking. 26 in. wide, 48 in. long, 30 in. high. Built of maple, nicely finished, large bins for flour & sugar, large drawers partitioned for cooking materials & utensils & bread & meat board $4.95 $4.95

FREE—Catalog 897 household articles, 1007 prices. If you wish to earn them, say so.
ACME COMPANY, - 442 W. 48d St., CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85

$14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00
the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grade and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

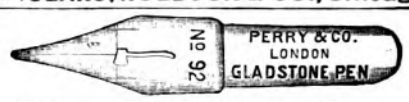
$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. | MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.



Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. Everybody buys—business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc. FREE. World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.
[We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor.]

98c AND $1.50 WONDER

For 98c in Davis ground, $1.50 in finest hollow ground, we offer these two GENUINE HAVERSON Hollow Ground DIAMOND STEEL RAZORS, as the equal of razors that retail at $2.00 to $3.50. Made from the best material money can buy, hollow ground razor given highest possible finish, and guaranteed in Grind, Shape, Set, Material and finish, absolutely perfect. CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us with 98c or $1.50, and we will send either razor to you by mail postpaid, and if you do not pronounce it the best razor you ever used and about one-half retail price, return it and we will refund your money. Write for Free Razor, Knife and Cutlery Catalogue.
Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

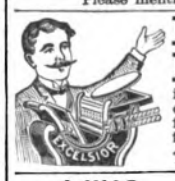
The G. O. M's Pen

Samples sent on receipt of return postage.
SPENCERIAN PEN CO., New York, N. Y.



WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

RUPTURE CURED!
WORN NIGHT and DAY. Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

Money Maker And saver. Print your own cards circular, book, newspaper, with our $5 or $18 printing press. Type setting easy, printed rules sent. For man or boy. Send for catalog, presses, type, paper, to factory.
The Press Co., Meriden, Conn.

I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES

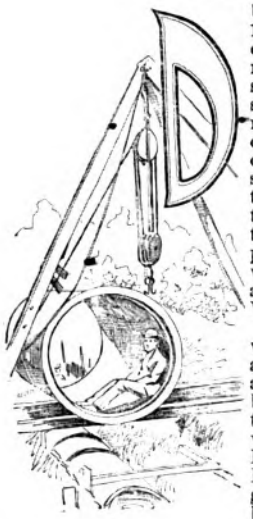
I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over Postoffice, COHOES, N. Y.

Brass Band Instruments, Drums, Uniforms, & Supplies. Write for catalog, 445 illustrations, FREE; it gives information for musicians and new bands. LYON & HEALY, 23 Adams St., CHICAGO.

CONSTIPATION the frequent cause of Appendicitis and many other serious ills should never be neglected. The objection to the usual cathartic remedies is their costive reaction which increases constipation instead of curing it. PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is the proper remedy. It acts on the Liver, and when used as directed, permanently removes the constipation. 50 cts. & $1.00 at all Druggists.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.



DON'T SET HENS THE SAME OLD WAY. THE NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR beats old plan 3 to 1. Little in price but a big money maker. Agents wanted. Send for catalog telling how to get one free. Natural Hen Incubator Co., B 23 Columbus, Neb.
A. Edwards writes, would not take $100 for N.H.I. Plan

FREE Our Spring Cloak and Suit Catalogue. M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., Chicago.

The Metropolitan Water System.

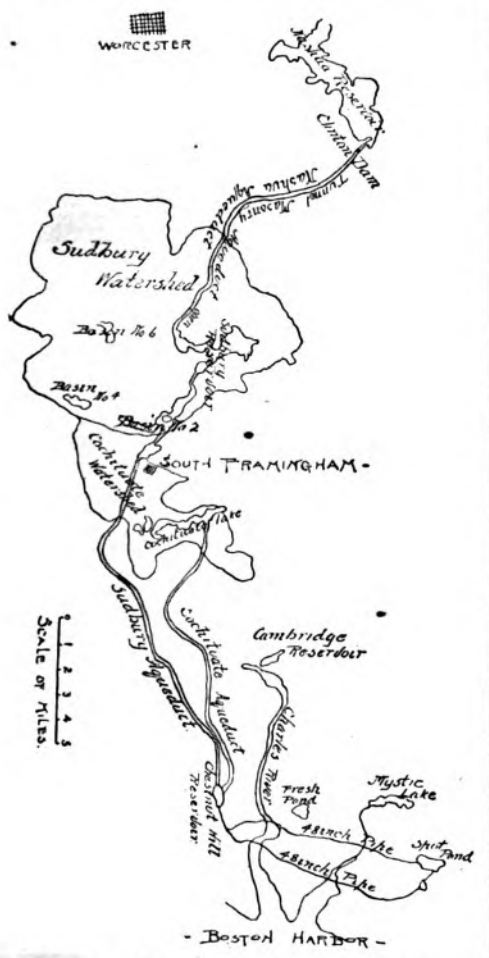
WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

URING the years of 1893 and 1894 it became apparent that radical steps must be shortly taken to insure a better and much increased supply of water for the City of Boston and its suburban cities and towns. It was with this object in view that the Governor appointed a commission which became known as the Metropolitan Water Board.

The suggestion which met with the approval of this Board, and which since has been acted upon, was the taking of the waters of the South Branch of the Nashua River to meet the greater demands brought about by the increasing population and the deteriorating quality of the water being used at that time.

The point at which it was determined to tap the Nashua River was twelve miles from the Sudbury Reservoir, which at that time was in process of construction by the City of Boston.

It was deemed advisable by the Board to make connection with the Sudbury System at as early a date as permanent and satisfactory work would permit, in order that a means of satisfying the increasing demands might be available in case a year of drouth should necessitate an addition to the existing water supply.



In February 1896 the contract for building the first two miles of the Nashua Aqueduct, so called, was awarded, and work was immediately commenced. This contract called for a tunnel ten feet and ten inches high, and twelve feet and two inches wide, and it was built through solid rock the entire distance. The cost was $370,826. In May the contracts for constructing the seven miles of covered masonry joining the aforesaid tunnel were awarded and work was pushed forward with vigor. The cost of this section was $721,580.60. The last contract calling for the construction of three miles of open channel reaching to the Sudbury Reservoir was awarded in September, and on March 7, 1897, the work was completed so that the waters of the Nashua River were admitted to the aqueduct, joining the waters of the Sudbury System. The cost of this open channel was $89,470. The total cost of this aqueduct was $1,246,552.85, including the amount paid for a bridge over the Assabet River.

This aqueduct is capable of carrying 300,000,000 gallons of water per day, and during 197 days following its opening, the average amount of water that passed through it daily was nearly 50,000,000 gallons, which amount was sufficient to supply the Metropolitan District, combined with the existing resources.

Work on the Sudbury Reservoir had meanwhile been carried on, completing that already performed by the City of Boston, so that when the water from the Nashua River was introduced through the Nashua Aqueduct, it was filled early in April. This reservoir has a capacity of 7,500,000,000 gallons; thus it will be readily seen that it is possible to fill this reservoir, supposing it to be empty, in twenty-five days, the Nashua Aqueduct running to its full capacity day and night.

In time of drouth, however, the Nashua River could not be drawn upon to any great extent, and it was to guard against such a possibility, that the Board advised the building of an immense reservoir at the head of the Nashua Aqueduct.

The land decided upon and purchased for this purpose embraces considerable portions of several townships—Boylston, West Boylston, Clinton and Sterling. At the time of purchase there were standing upon this land six schoolhouses, four churches and two hundred and twenty-four dwelling-houses. The Commonwealth paid $1,905,734,22. It covers an area approximating six and one half square miles, and will have a coast line of about thirty-five miles. The water at its deepest point will be one hundred and twenty-nine feet deep, and the average depth will be forty-six feet. Many hills will be covered to a greater or less depth by the water from the Nashua River, and those exceeding the height of one hundred and twenty-nine feet will either be partly removed, or rise above the waters as islands, of which there will undoubtedly be a considerable number. This reservoir will contain 63,000,000,000 gallons of water, or more than eight times the storage capacity of the Sudbury Reservoir, proposed by the City of Boston.

All organic matter, stumps, logs and debris, and every vestige of loam is being removed, the matter as far as possible being used in the construction of a great dam at Clinton, and its adjacent dikes. Thousands of Italians are at work and on the whole this immense work is being carried along as fast as the contracts demand.

The dam at Clinton extends across the valley to the distance of twelve hundred and fifty feet. It is being built of masonry and is built upon solid rock foundations. The maximum height of the water line above the surface of the ground will be one hundred and eighty-four feet. Lest a disaster similar to that occurring at Johnstown Penn., should come to pass in the course of time, the work has been carried on with the most scrupulous care, every stone being placed in position under the eye of the most trusted foremen that the State can employ.

To the North and South of this dam great dikes are being built, which shall prevent the water from spreading out on either side of the dam.

Perhaps no better idea of the extent of the Metropolitan Water Works can be given than that shown on page 19, in the Fourth Annual Report of the Metropolitan Water Board:

"At 12 o'clock on the first day of January, 1898, the Board, in accordance with the provisions of the Metropolitan Water Act, took possession of Chestnut Hill Reservoir and pumping station, and all the lands, reservoirs, dams, aqueducts, pumps and other property held by the City of Boston westward of Chestnut Hill Reservoir, for the purposes of storing and supplying water and protecting its purity, including Lake Cochituate and the Cochituate Aqueduct, the Sudbury basins and Sudbury Aqueduct, and the Mystic Lake Aqueduct, pumping station and reservoir. The lands taken were situated in the counties of Suffolk, Norfolk, Middlesex and Worcester. All these works were added to those which had been previously acquired and constructed by the Board, and the whole constitutes the Metropolitan Water Works."

Upon taking possession of the works held by the City of Boston, rigid examinations were made regarding the sanitary conditions connected with the same. Hundreds of instances of pollution of water were abated, and stringent regulations governing the future care of the water supply were passed by the Board.

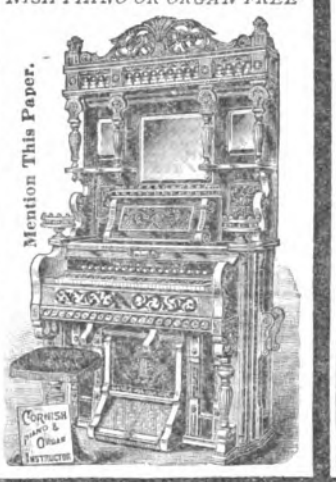
Upon the examination of the water of the Mystic Lake it was found that its inferior quality would prove a menace to the health of those who used it. No steps could be taken that would improve its condition to any extent, and there were reasons for believing that it would deteriorate in spite of the best care and regulation. Therefore it was deemed best to discontinue its use altogether, and in accordance with the decision of the Board this was done.

Certain sections of the Metropolitan Districts could not be supplied with water on account of their elevation, and these, with the exception of one part of Roxbury, have been supplied through the use of more powerful pumping engines than those in use at the time of purchase from the City of Boston.

A High Service Reservoir is being constructed in the Middlesex Fells, about 2,500 feet southeasterly from Spot Pond, and will be 137 feet above the Chestnut Hill Reservoir, and 117 feet above Spot Pond, and it will have a capacity of over 38,000,000 gallons.

The cities and towns embraced in the Metropolitan District are at the present time: Boston, Chelsea, Everett, Malden, Medford, Newton, Quincy, Somerville, Belmont, Hyde Park, Melrose, Revere, Watertown, Winthrop, Swampscott and Nahant. To supply these towns, especially the remote ones, it was necessary to lay an immense amount of waterpipes; these varied from four inch to sixty-one inch, and their weight far exceeds the hundred thousand tons mark. Our initial cut gives a good idea of the size of the large mains used at some points.

By reference to the map, a good idea of the extent of the Metropolitan System can be gained. On the right is the Nashua Reservoir, or Wachusett, as it is sometimes called, in process of construction. At the Northeast end of this reservoir is the Clinton dam extending across the Nashua Valley, and it is here that the Nashua Aqueduct has its beginning, extending in a southeasterly direction to the Sudbury Reservoir; thence the waters of the Nashua join the waters of Basins 1, 2 and 3, are hurried away through the Sudbury Aqueduct in an easterly and then northeasterly direction, until the waters from the Cochituate Aqueduct join the former at the Chestnut Hill Reservoir. From this reservoir forty-eight inch pipes take a portion of the waters to Spot Pond, and presently to the reservoir half a mile to the southeast of this reservoir, these supplying the high-service portions of the Metropolitan District. Other mains carry water to the south and southeast, supplying Newton, Roxbury, Hyde Park, etc., the whole making a grand water system that will undoubtedly prove sufficient to supply the Metropolitan District for the next century.



Bonds bearing interest not exceeding four per cent. and issued for not less than thirty, nor more than forty years, have been authorized by the Commonwealth, the limit being set at $27,000,000, with which to carry on the work of the Metropolitan Water System. Already, $17,000,000 have been expended. The next few years will show whether the estimates of the Board were accurate. Judging by the work already performed, it would seem that the amount above stated would be sufficient.

ONE YEAR'S FREE TRIAL

BRIGHTEN YOUR HOME WITH THE CELEBRATED CORNISH AMERICAN PIANOS & ORGANS.

Send for particulars of the CORNISH CO-OPERATIVE PLAN showing how you can make money working for us, or a CORNISH PIANO OR ORGAN FREE Mention This Paper.

WE WILL SHIP A CORNISH PIANO OR CORNISH ORGAN ANYWHERE UPON THE DISTINCT UNDERSTANDING THAT IF IT IS NOT SATISFACTORY TO PURCHASER AFTER 12 MONTHS' USE WE WILL TAKE IT BACK.

Could anything be more fair, anything more liberal, anything more conclusive of our faith in these instruments?

The Unique Cornish Plan of Selling Pianos and Organs has spread over the entire civilized world and has been the means of building up a business the vastness of which is the envy of every piano maker and dealer in existence.

OVER A QUARTER OF A MILLION SATISFIED CUSTOMERS attest the honesty of this modern method of piano selling. It would have been impossible to build up this business unless the plan was backed up by the strongest evidence of our responsibility.

Back of that warranty is a business worth over a million dollars and a business experience extending over fifty years as makers of high-grade instruments.

WE WARRANT OUR PIANOS AND ORGANS FOR 25 YEARS.

FREE Our XXth Century Catalogue for 1900 is one of the most comprehensive musical books in the trade. It is handsomely printed in colors. The frontispiece is a masterly reproduction in fac-simile of an interesting oil painting, designed and executed for us by an eminent artist, representing Saint Cecilia and the Angelic Choir. This beautiful catalogue is sent, charges postpaid, together with a novel reference book, entitled "The Heart of the People," together with our latest special offer, etc. The catalogue describes in detail all our pianos and organs.

A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10 on the list prices as quoted in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20 on the list price if you buy a CORNISH PIANO. XXth Century Models Now Ready.

THE CORNISH PATENT MUSICAL ATTACHMENT

For Pianos imitates accurately nearly every known stringed instrument, such as Harp, Banjo, Guitar, Zither, Mandolin, etc., while the famous patent Combination Multitone Reed Actions make the CORNISH Organs unequalled in tone—the power of a full orchestra being most successfully reproduced.

ORGANS FROM $25.

CORNISH & CO.
ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.
WASHINGTON, N.J.

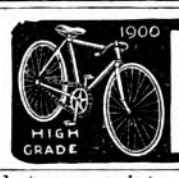
PIANOS FROM $155.

Suits to Measure $6.00 to $12.00

BIG LINE. $6.00 TO $12.00.

GOOD ASSORTMENT up to $18.00. We send them to anyone, to be paid for after received, tried on and found perfect in fit and entirely satisfactory; a class of fine tailoring possessing a distinctiveness in Style, Workmanship, Finish and Fit seldom found outside of the most fashionable city tailoring establishments. FOR SAMPLES OF CLOTH of our ENTIRE LINE of CUSTOM TAILORING Suitings, Trouserings, Fancy Vestings, etc., also tape measure, fashion plate, plain, simple self-measurement blanks, cut this ad. out and send to us with 2-cent stamp to pay postage and COMPLETE OUTFIT WILL BE SENT TO YOU POSTPAID.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) CHICAGO, ILL.



(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

LARGE CIGAR Firm wants permanent Agents everywhere $15 per WEEK TO BEGINNERS. EXPENSES ADVANCED. SAMPLES FREE. ADDRESS with stamp, C BOX 1219, CHICAGO

WE PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kan.

$800 yearly to Christian Man or Woman to qualify for permanent position of trust in your home county to manage our correspondence. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope to H. A. SHERMAN, General Secy, Opposite Cochrane Building, United States Treasury. Washington, D. C.

WE TEACH You a Complete $25 Mail Course in Hypnotism, Magnetic Healing, Self-Hypnotism and self-cure FREE of charge. Pay after you learn. To be well taught don't pay in advance. This school goes much deeper into these sciences than any other and their combined course is the most complete. Address EMPIRE COLLEGE, R. 1, St. Louis, Mo.

YOU CAN EASILY EARN

bicycles, sewing machines, house furnishings, ladies' or gentlemen's watches, cameras, mandolins, guitars, violins, silverware, dinner sets, guns, and your choice of a hundred other articles, all guaranteed. Simply introduce a few boxes of our unexcelled toilet soaps and any of them are yours. Send no money. We trust you. Girls and boys do as well as older people. Write at once for full information. We mail handsome illustrated catalog free. Address Great Northern Soap Works, 24 Lake St., Oak Park, Ill.

$3.50 DUEBER

A $25.00 Watch

in appearance. The handsomest genuine gold plated watch on the market. Double hunting case, SOLID GOLD PATTERN of engraving. Elegantly finished jeweled movement, stem wind and set and absolutely guaranteed for 20 YEARS

Cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch to you by express for examination, you examine it at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $3.50 and it is yours. Only one watch to each customer at this price. Mention in your letter whether you want GENT'S OR LADY'S SIZE and order to-day as we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only.

R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 353-356 Dearborn St. Chicago

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

Agents Make $75-$200 A MONTH SELLING THE Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet

Only cabinet patented, and guaranteed the best made. One agent made $300 last month, others making $200. We want an agent in every town; exclusive territory very liberal terms. Write quick as territory is being taken rapidly.—ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO., 651 Jefferson St., TOLEDO, O.

$85.00 PER MONTH And All Traveling Expenses, to any man taking orders and appointing agents for the most reliable portrait concern in the U. S. Ad. Dept. P, 1970 Park Ave., New York City.

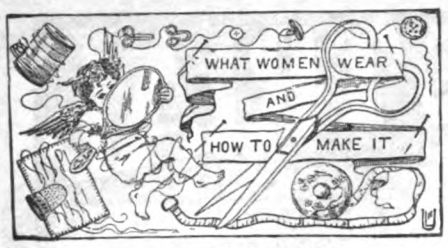
MIXED PAINTS 45c. We sell Ready Mixed Paints, all colors. Guaranteed highest grade made at 45 cents and up per gallon. For our handsome color card, full particulars and our easy pay-after-received terms, CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

WHY DON'T YOU MAKE A SILK QUILT?

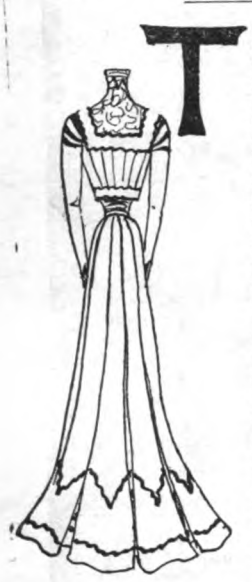
Because you have never seen the beautiful remnants for Crazy patchwork we are sending out as Samples free. Enough to make a block of eighty square inches, with a nice skein of embroidery silk and a sheet representing all the latest fancy stitches for only Six cents, with our newest bargain book. Send at once to SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

$9.00 Buys A High Arm Sewing Machine. Send your name and address and we will mail you our catalogue. Select any style Oxford sewing machine and we will send it by prepaid freight on 30 days' free trial, with all attachments and twenty years' guarantee. Easy running. Does light or heavy work as good as a $60.00 machine. Buy from factory. SHEPHERD MFG. CO., H.294 22d St., Chicago.

FREE SEND NO MONEY. Simply send your name & address & we will send you two dozen of our Sweet Perfume Packets to sell at 10c each, when sold send us the money & we will send all of the above 7 prizes free. Here they are: One Beautifully engraved link Bracelet with lock & key. 1 Brooch, very fine & stylish. 1 Scarf pin, 3 Rings—two of them set with beautiful Jewels. 1 pair link Cuff Buttons. All of these 7 articles are SOLID GOLD plated & the latest style. This is the best offer in this paper. We run all the risk & will take back what you cannot sell. We will send you an extra beautiful Solid Gold plated Ring, set with a simulative Diamond or Ruby free, if you will write to-day. Don't let the others get ahead of you. LEONIN CO., Dept. 110. St. Louis, Mo.



PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE RIFLE.



Here's One on the Pneumatic Plan for Just One Dollar, Made Entirely of Wood and Metal.

Stained and polished to represent mahogany, has all improvements, exposed metal parts, heavily plated. Same size as regular Carbine. Is designed for shot, which can be bought for a trifling expense anywhere. Works on the pneumatic spring scientific plan. Loads at Breech. Shoots with accuracy. Has the force and precision of any magazine gun. Can be used with perfect safety by men, women and children. No horrible accidents by careless handling. Kills birds and small game. Just right for hunting where silence is wanted. Brass tubes, air chamber, and heavy metal springs. Endorsed by officers of the Army and Navy as the best mechanical rifle ever produced. Used on practice ships in place of regular magazine rifles. Boys are delighted with it and prefer it to a larger gun. Can be kept in your room to protect the household if you dislike to have firearms around. Absolutely no danger. Perfect workmanship guaranteed in each gun. We will send this paper a year and this rifle complete and sent carefully packed for $1.00.

SPECIAL OFFER. Send us a club of five yearly subscribers to this paper at 25 cents each, and we will send you one of these rifles free as a premium, all charges paid. Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

TO my mind there is no more important part of woman's dress than the skirt; to it we look for most of the important changes in modes, the bodice usually following rather than leading. Skirts with plaits still reign unquestioned, although their rapid spring into favor made the skeptical ones feel certain of their early downfall. The slim, perfectly tight skirt, with nothing to relieve, has to all appearances had its day, a fact which is a positive relief to many who looked upon the fashion as little short of indecent, although from an æsthetic point of view and when correctly worn, no mode was ever more graceful. Still, whether our tastes incline us toward the tight or more bouffant style of skirt, we are very apt to be suited, as the skirts of the present moment have been carefully weeded with pleasing results.

All the new skirts are perfectly tight and flat at the hips; usually made with stitched plaits, giving the lower part of the skirt the fullness necessary to grace and free motion. On all thin materials, as muslins or silks, the back of the skirt is laid in gathers drawn very snugly into a small compass, but on all other materials the box-plaited back, single, double or triple, obtains.

A pretty way of decorating the box-plaited back of a silk skirt is to arrange a cluster of loops of velvet ribbon on either side, of any length desired.

A smart rig for shore or mountain wear has a scarlet coat faced with red and white check worn with a red and white checked skirt and a white lace waist.

A quaint summer bit of millinery is a narrow-brimmed, low-crowned turban of soft, satiny straw, bearing at each side on the brim a round tight bunch of flowers, violets or small roses. The most pleasing of all this season's hats to me are those turned up at the front and down in the back over the hair, trimmed with scarfs of two shades of panne velvet or satin.

The Eton is here with a certainty and we all greet is as a much loved friend; this, with the bolero and the short reefer, forms the outlines of our summer coats.

Flower hats are to be the loudest cry during mid-summer. Stalks and leaves predominate, to be sure, but there are sufficient blooms of brilliant hue to make the wearer of this floral millinery marked a block away. However, they are lovely and if one is careful to select good flowers with fadeless qualities, the hat will prove a positive boon to the economical woman as it can be made to do duty with such a variety of gowns, grave or gay.

I saw such a chic gown of russet brown cashmere, a deliciously vivid shade, trimmed with brown silk spotted with white and edged with straps of the cloth stitched with white.

A black cloth gown has for its distinctive feature on the tucked skirt, four smart little crocheted buttons on each plait. These plaits widen out toward the foot and the bottom has for a finish three tiny flat folds of silk. The bodice is formed of small stitched bands, fastened to the waist with smaller crocheted buttons than those on the skirt. The revers of white silk are delicately embroidered in pale blue and the stock of tucked white silk has a binding on its upper edge of pale blue panne velvet. With it is worn a soft flat toque of soft black straw, decorated with two wavy plumes and a choux of pale blue panne velvet fastened with a paste buckle.

AN EARLY SPRING STREET GOWN.

A simple yet extremely fetching little gown of black taffeta spotted with white has a gracefully hung skirt finished with three rows of accordion plaited silk. The back of the skirt has a triple box-plait as has also the back of the bodice, while the front of the latter has box-plaits either side of the opening. The small round yoke and snug sleeves are of rather heavy black lace, unlined. The lace stock, finished with a piping of white velvet, while the finishing touch to the entire costume is a choux of white velvet ribbon arranged in a lover's knot and worn on the breast.

AN ODD CAPE.

A little accordion plaiting on a gown gives it the cachet of elegance and is an inexpensive addition too, if not used too extravagantly. A lovely little tea jacket is composed entirely of pale blue silk with stitched edges set together with coarse yellow lace. The sleeves in loose fashion from the elbow finished with deep lace on the edge, and the whole set off by knots of baby black velvet ribbon arranged down the front, and along the back of the sleeves. A pretty blue silk Kimona is trimmed with bands of dead white crepe de chine with a tiny quilling of black velvet along its edge. My lady is given to donning a gown when in the privacy of her own chamber which resembles a Mother Hubbard made of softest China silk intersected crosswise with bands of white lace, worn over an under slip of white silk trimmed with a number of lace flounces on the skirt.

Muslins are especially pretty this season, having a pattern evenly divided between stripes and floral designs; both often embodied in the same goods. In the matter of underclothes the women with the most refined tastes insist on every stitch being hand work and that of the finest; the night robes being entirely collarless, finished with tiny edging of finest embroidery and tiny hand-run tucks. Baby velvet ribbons are the favorite trimming on a large majority of the new frocks, and are a most effective finish. A novelty in the form of a yoke seen on a muslin gown is pretty enough to bear description and consists of "all-over" lace run through with baby velvet ribbon, the velvet finished in tiny bows along the edge.

AN UP-TO-DATE SHIRT.

Revers to every toilet are becoming more and more elaborate. Many of the more elaborate show delicately hand-painted flowers, with a sort of new ribbon work introduced which has so far proved wonderfully successful. A chic gown for the summer ball room is of white satin covered with white net lavishly embroidered in black chantilly. Crepe de chine is more fashionable than any other material of the moment and can be used as an entire toilet, or it can form the most exquisite additions to gowns of every kind for ordinary occasions. For instance, a bolero of embroidered crepe de chine on a plain cashmere can be tied over the bust with a soft knot and tasselled ends falling to within a few inches of the hem of the skirt. For entire blouses there is no more charming material.

Deep-shaped waist belts are of the very newest mode. These are draped always, and caught through slides of more or less value, cut steel, old paste, and in fact silver proving most charming adjuncts. These belts are so arranged as to accent the now fashionable long-fronted figure. It is no longer considered "good form" to allow the figure to curve in below the bust. Instead, the line from the bust to the belt must be perfectly straight, reaching considerably below the usual belt line.

Princess dresses are high in favor; yet they are so difficult to make properly that many resort to the little artifice which gives the appearance of a princess by joining skirt and bodice without making them actually one, by means of a waistband tastefully draped.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

Wonderful! WONDERFUL! Are you desiring a handsome complexion? If so it will pay you to send to Madame Dupee. Enclose 15 cts. for a sample of her marvelous beautifier. Box 534, Biddeford, Maine.

FREE—a pair of fancy curved hat pins with this perfect dream of a Parisian Model made

HAT ONLY $1.98

WORTH $4.

Be Stylish—Save Money.

Write for free illustrated Spring and Summer Catalogue for 1900.

No. 1901—This hat, as illustrated, is a medium size brown braid made hat, with crown of the prevailing broad bell fashion. The drooping brim has a rolled edge, while the trimming is simple in design but very nobby and stylish in effect. A drape of violet taffeta used in scarf fashion, wired and stitched to retain style, is brought around the crown; a huge bunch of violets is placed high on the left side and smaller bunches cover bandeaus. Can be ordered in all colors. For 25c extra we deliver any trimmed hat express charges prepaid to your nearest express office. Safe delivery guaranteed.

CHICAGO MAIL ORDER MILLINERY CO., Chicago, Ill. 45-58 E. Jackson Boul.

Our Empress Suit

LINED THROUGHOUT

NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED.

The accompanying figure represents, beyond doubt, the greatest sacrifice ever offered in Ladies' Man Made suits. Undeniably Grossman in fit and finish, resulting in that exclusive elegance so earnestly desired by all ladies.

FREE EXAMINATION

allowed at the express office. If found equal to suits sold at $10.00 pay the agent our price and charges. When Ordering give name, address, number, color, bust and neck to waist measure, sleeve length and skirt length. Free—Our New Fashion Book No. 71, showing 175 up-to-date styles. Send for it.

DESCRIPTION STYLE No. 204.

—Ladies' Man Made suit. Cloth extremely good quality sponged and refinished suiting.

Jacket has fly front, scolloped edge, double stitched seams, fancy fitted coat back.

Full width Skirt has new inverted plaited back, lapped seams, velvet binding, extra stiffening around bottom and lined with percaline.

COLORS:

Navy, brown, gray, a tan mixture and black.

An emphatic value at $4.98, worth double.

SAMPLES FREE

EDWARD B. GROSSMAN & Co.

170-172 STATE ST. CHICAGO

THE GREAT MAIL ORDER CLOAK HOUSE

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

$8.50 SEWING MACHINE

fully described and illustrated in our big free Sewing Machine Catalog, together with our

$40 La Reine for.....$13.95
$50 Elveon for.....16.95
$60 Newport for.....19.95

We control our own factory, sell at lowest factory prices, allow three months' free trial, guarantee our machines 20 years and ship anywhere without deposit. Write today for Free Catalog containing rare bargains in high grade machines from $8.50 up.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

$5.85

Im. 17 JEWELED

adjusted, patent regulator, stem wind and stem set, genuine

NATIONAL SPECIAL

movement. Ladies' or Gents' size. WARRANTED 20 YEARS. 14K. Gold plate hunting case, elegantly engraved. Fit for a king. No better watch made. Must be seen to be appreciated. Special Offer for next 60 days, send your full name and address and we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent $5.85 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and charm sent free with every watch. Write at once as this may not appear again.

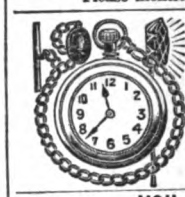
NAT'L MFG. & IMPORTING CO., 334 Dearborn St., B 318, Chicago, Ill.

FREE THIS BANGLE RING



with initial engraved, warranted to wear three years, to anyone sending us 10c. for our Bargains in Jewelry. Shell Novelty Co., Dept. K, 194 Broadway, New York.

MAKE $10 A DAY ON $50 CAPITAL. Easy honest work; no canvassing. Write now. Brown Lewis Co., 293 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

SEND NO MONEY.

Simply send your name & address & we will send you 2 doz. Pkts. Sweet Leonin Sachets, to sell at 10c. each. When sold send us the money & we will send you this Keyless Heavy Nickle Plated Watch, (warranted to keep good time) also chain and charm free. We will also send you a beautiful Scarf pin free if you write to-day.

The Leonin Co. Dept. 310 St. Louis, Mo.

YOU CAN MAKE BIG MONEY

ENTERTAINING THE PUBLIC.

$30.00 to $300.00 and more per week WITHOUT PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE. No other business pays such large returns for the little effort required. We furnish complete outfits. The work is easy, strictly high class, and any man can operate the outfit by following our instructions. Write for particulars and copies of letters from those who are making Big Money on our plan. ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO., Randolph and Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill. (Mention this paper when you write.)

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

for selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc., etc., and will send you six of our 25c Plasters which you are to sell and return the money ($1.50) to us and we will send you all charges paid, the elegant

Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single value, $3.00; 1 Genuine, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; 1 Cake Perfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address

THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 654, Augusta Maine.

BABY CARRIAGES Shipped C.O.D. to anyone.

Combination Go-Carts

Direct from factory at lowest wholesale prices. Dealers large profits saved. No money in advance.

$18 Carriage, $9.00 | $5.00 Carriage.....$3.00
$12 " $6.00 | GO-CARTS from $3.00 up.

Send for free illustrated catalog and special offer

CASH BUYERS' UNION, 164 West Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

THIN PEOPLE MADE PLUMP COLETHIA cures extreme leanness and makes thin people plump in a natural, healthful way. Every ingredient is health-giving and fat-producing. Send $1 for package or 20c. for trial package and particulars to LEABEG CO., 154 Nassau St., New York.

BIG COMMISSIONS TO LADY AGENTS

Lady agents for McCabe corsets and fine underskirts get generous commissions and make big money because the goods sell on sight—varying styles for different figures—prices within reach of all. Write for particulars.

ST. LOUIS CORSET COMPANY, ST. LOUIS, MO.

LADIES WANTED to take up stamping at home We pay 10 cents an hour while earning. H. F. JONES, Dept. I, Brooklyn, N. Y.

SEND ONE DOLLAR

CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us, and we will send you this BIG NEW-STYLE 100-PIECE VITREOUS WHITE CHINA DINNER SET by freight, C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your freight depot and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented and THE GREATEST VALUE YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay the freight agent our SPECIAL OFFER PRICE $5.95 less the $1.00, or $4.95, and freight charges.

Freight will average about 50c. for each 500 miles.

THIS SET CONSISTS OF 100 PIECES

OF THE HIGHEST GRADE GENUINE VITREOUS WHITE CHINA of the very latest and most stylish shape, is as hard as flint, practically indestructible, pure white in color. THE FOLLOWING 100 FULL-SIZE PIECES COMPLETE THE SET: 12 soup plates, 12 5-inch plates, 12 7-inch plates, 12 coffee cups, 12 saucers, 12 individual butter dishes, 12 4-inch fruit plates, 1 8-inch platter, 1 12-inch platter, 1 7-inch baker, 1 8-inch baker, 1 8-inch covered dish, 1 pickle dish, 1 sauce boat, 1 covered butter dish, 1 sugar bowl, 1 large bowl, 1 extra bowl, 1 large pitcher, 1 medium pitcher. Freight will be about 50 cents for each 500 miles. YOU WILL SAVE ONE-HALF IN PRICE. ORDER NOW; DON'T DELAY.

Write for free catalogue of everything in Crockery. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), CHICAGO, ILL.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin

REMNANTS

FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK.

A Silken Shower from a Necktie Factory.

ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in odd pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPULAR. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in. Bright, handsome, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast at all NECKTIE FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they have been the past season and they are now burdened with remnants of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand which we are going to give you a big trade on. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts etc., and we can help you out now. We are going to dispose of this immense lot RIGHT OFF. Our packages contain from 99 to 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home: then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONEY doing our work and helping yourself also. Remember these pieces are carefully trimmed, and especially adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Many ladies sell tidies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great price made from these remnants. Order one sample lot now for only 25c. It would cost many dollars bought at a store.

Grand Offer: If you order our great assorted lot AT ONCE, we will give you several rich, bright and beautiful stamped satin pieces; each piece contains nine square inches and being stamped by hand with a graceful design for embroidery, is a great bargain.

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped satin and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroidery silk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price we ask for the remnants; but we know if you ORDER ONE lot we will sell many in your locality, so make this liberal offer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of Silk Plush containing 36 square inches.

BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE to all who send 25 cents for 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" the best Home Monthly now published, and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will send free with each package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ornamenting the seams of Crazy Patch work, or for other ornamental work where Fancy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how pieces for patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join edges, etc.

The book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides directions for taking ART EMBROIDERY STITCHES, comprising the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

Remember we send one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remnants, the assorted stamped satin piece 6 Skeins Embroidery silk; 36 square inches silk plush, and a great 15c book on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT," all for only 25 cents. Three lots and one year's subscription, 65 cents; five lots $1.00. Address,

COMFORT, Silk Dept. B, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

1st.	For the best original letter	$3.00
2nd.	" " second best original letter	2.50
3rd.	" " third " " "	2.00
4th.	" " fourth " " "	1.50
5th.	" " fifth " " "	1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least one new Cousin into the COMFORT circle; that is, they must send one new subscriber with each letter, together with 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

W. J. Showalter,	$3.00
Hester V. Grey,	2.50
Otho A. Brock,	2.00
Mittie A. Schoolfield,	1.50
C. C. Prince,	1.00

"The spring comes slowly up this way,"
"When proud-pied April, dressed in all his trim, Hath put a spirit of youth in everything."
"The uncertain glory of an April day" besprent with April dew,"
"Unlocks the flowers to deck the laughing soil."

DEAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

What can I say that will so well suit the season as do these utterances of the poets? So leaving them to be my spokesmen this month I will at once proceed to unfold my budget of letters for your pleasure and satisfaction. Our first one leads us into the beautiful valley of Virginia—one of the "garden-spots of the world." Our cousin says:

Dear Cousins and Aunt Minerva:

"I feel sure you will welcome a newspaper man into your midst to tell you of the great and beautiful valley of Virginia. I know that my audience is a large one and made up of the most intelligent people in Uncle Sam's broad dominions, but with the consciousness that my subject is as interesting as the audience is large I shall, without the least embarrassment, pull aside the great curtain of distance and give to the millions of COMFORT readers a glimpse of this great valley—'the granary of the world;' the region that witnessed one of the most remarkable campaigns known to the annals of war; its history a proud one, its soil fertile, its scenery beautiful, its people busy, prosperous and peaceful, the Valley of Virginia stands at the forefront among the valleys of the world.

"The eye of civilization was first cast upon it when Spottswood and his knights of the Golden Horseshoe beheld it from the crest of the Blue Ridge mountains and took back with them to Williamsburg such a goodly report, like Joshua of old, that the tide of civilization began to flow into it. It was then a primeval forest. Now we behold green fields, thriving towns, beautiful streams, fine country homes, in short, all that goes to make up a charming and diversified scene.

"A short time ago President and Mrs. McKinley passed through the valley and Mr. McKinley pronounced it one of the finest trips he ever made. Join with me now and we will take a similar trip.

"Here we are at Harpers Ferry, the key to the northern entrance to the valley, the stage upon which the first act in the Civil War was enacted. Then we come to Winchester, the scene of so many bloody frays in that war. It was here that President McKinley was made a mason during the war. Cedar Creek and Kernstown, scenes of desperate encounters and hard-fought battles in days gone by, the former the scene of the great ride of Sheridan in which he turned defeat into victory and won for himself undying fame. Thoroughfare Gap is passed. To the west of us is Orkney Springs, one of the most noted mineral springs in the United States. Then comes New Market, the scene of the rout of Siegel and his troops by the boys of the Virginia Military Institute who occasioned the remark by Gen. Grant 'They rob the cradle and the grave.' Then there's Powell's Fort in the fastness of the Massaneuton Mountain which George Washington pronounced the strongest natural fortification in America. Not far away to the east are the far-famed Luray Caverns rivalling the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky in extent and surpassing it in beauty. Massanetta Gertrude Cave and the Weyers Cave are not many miles away. Close at hand are the Massanetta Springs famed for their medicinal waters, and Rawley Springs which have been called 'The Pyrmont of America.' There we see the battle-fields of Port Republic and Cross Keys. It was at these places that Stonewall Jackson defeated the armies of Banks, Shields and Milroy in detail, each larger than his own; and not a little of the unperishable glory which gathered about his name was won on this field.

THE POTOMAC NEAR CUMBERLAND.

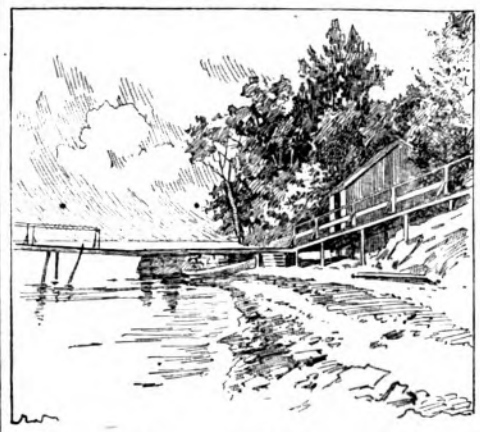
"Hastening on we come to Lexington, the Athens of Virginia. There we find the West Point of the South, the Virginia Military Institute, pronounced by military critics to be the second military school of the United States, and the Washington and Lee University, founded by the Father of our Country and afterward presided over by that hero of peace as well as of war, Robert E. Lee. Some forty miles southward is the Natural Bridge, one of the Seven Wonders of the World. We have traveled only two hundred miles in our journey.

"Is it any wonder that we Virginians are proud of our valley?

W. J. SHOWALTER, Harrisonburg, Va.



Our next letter still dwells on "Nature's beauty spots," but takes us to Wisconsin to find them.

"'Nature's footprints everywhere, but her home is surely there.' The visitor to this ideal spot leaves with a hazy idea that the poet referred to Kish-ke-kwan-te-no rather than 'fair Killarney.'

"Not only has nature been lavish in her endowments, but man has generously bestowed three names: the Kish-ke-kwan-te-no of the society element; the more plebeian Benderville; and, in historical parlance, Benderville. The pretty Indian name seems to describe the place best, and is far more alluring to the summer tourist.

"Kish-ke-kwan-te-no lies twelve miles from the historic old city of Green Bay, Wisconsin, and is perched on cliffs nearly one hundred feet above the shore. From these cliffs one may gaze far out over Green Bay for miles, the broad expanse of glistening water dotted here and there with lake steamers. If one tires of marine views, magnificent groves of birch, cedar, oak and hickory lend themselves readily to landscape scenery equally entrancing. Though a number of summer cottages nestle in these groves, and a hotel overlooks the bay, nature is yet pre-eminent, and the picturesque habitations of man do not detract from her beauty.

"Naturally, this romantic spot has its legend. The Sauks and Outgamies once dwelt in an old fort here and in that day the forests abounded in deer, and with fish from the bay, their simple Indian wants were plentifully supplied.

KISH-KE-KWAN-TE-NO AT BASE OF CLIFF.

"One night there landed on the shore many fighting men of the Chippewa, Menomonee, Ottawa and Pottawattomie tribes; their canoes lined the shore for two miles, and at daylight the fighting began. The besieged battled bravely, but the water supply was cut off by the warriors on the beach, and all efforts to obtain water were fruitless. The intense agony of thirst was made more unendurable by the burning sun and the cruel taunts of the besiegers. Finally, after fasting ten days, a young chief had a dream. A young man, clothed in white, appeared to him, and said: 'Fear not; I will deliver you. At midnight I will cast a deep sleep over your enemies. Then go forth silently, and you shall escape.' When night came, unbroken silence prevailed in the camp of the enemy. All but a few unbelievers stole forth into the night and made their escape. Those who remained met a speedy death, when day dawned, at the hands of the besiegers." HESTER V. GREY.

Mabel Holbrook, of Everett, Neb., sends us a poem on the death of a friend, but as we do not use poetry I can only thank her for it.

Miss M. M. Abbott, of Perdito P. O., Ala., offers to exchange pressed leaves for old papers, but I am afraid she does not read COMFORT carefully, or she would observe that we no longer have an exchange column.

Miss Belle Hubbard, of Piermont, N. H., must write me again, and tell me more clearly of her wishes. I do not quite understand her letter to me.

Now let us visit our southern friends.

"Mammoth Spring, in the northern part of Arkansas, is a circular opening extending almost perpendicularly into the earth at the foot of a hill. This opening is eighty feet in diameter and its bottom has never been found, though a ninety-pound anvil has been lowered to a distance of eighty-six feet. From this large aperture there gushes a stream of water at the rate of twenty thousand cubic feet a minute. A dam of solid masonry nearly twenty feet in height has been constructed across the basin a few hundred yards below the spring, and the water thus confined forms a lake that covers an area of eighteen acres. This lake has an average depth of fifteen feet and is as clear and blue as the sky. A steamboat for pleasure riding is kept on it, and a ride on this around the spring gives one a good idea of its size. The town is on the west side of the spring and the depot on the east, and a bridge connects the two.

"An interesting phenomenon of the spring is that neither its volume nor its temperature ever vary. In the hottest days of summer and the coldest days of winter the temperature is fifty-seven degrees Farenheit, and in wet seasons or dry the flow is constant.

"At the east end of the dam is a large flouring mill, whose daily capacity is five hundred barrels. A cotton factory, employing two hundred hands, stands at the other end of the dam, while an electric light plant, which furnishes electric light for the town, is situated a mile down the river. Both the spring and the river below contain many fish of rare species."

MITTIE A. SCHOOLFIELD, Ten Mile, Arkansas.

Our next letter is an interesting account of one of the works, not of nature, but of men. The illustration which accompanies this letter is taken from an old drawing done in 1846, about a year after the embankments were finished and the water turned on. It will be noticed from this that the authorities in charge of the work disregarded the orders of the legislature as to the felling of the forests but simply girdled the trees and left them to die standing—cabins and houses were also left standing, to rot and fall away into the water.

"Lake Mercer is the largest artificial body of water in the world. It lies in western Ohio, about midway between Toledo and Cincinnati, and was built in 1837 to 1841 for a feeder of the Miami Extension Canal. It is nine miles long, from three to five miles wide, and has an area of twenty-seven and one-half square miles, and an average depth of about ten feet.

"It was built at a cost of about $90,000, by grading a levee or dam, one and one-half miles long, on the west of a large prairie. Long before the building of this reservoir several adventurers bought land and settled within the prairie now forming the reservoir, and were still living there upon their farms when the banks were completed. The member of legislature from this district introduced a resolution declaring that no water should be let into the reservoir until the same should be cleared of timber and the land paid for. An appropriation of $20,000 was made by the legislature to pay the owners for the land, but this sum was squandered by officials and speculators, and the water was let in, submerging all the farms, destroying wheat crops and driving the owners off their lands.

"This outrage was too much to be borne, and the people of Mercer county, after trying in vain to persuade the authorities to make good the damage done them, assembled in crowds, armed with spades and other tools, and in a few hours had opened an outlet through which the water flowed off their prairie. It cost the state $17,000 to repair these damages.

LAKE MERCER, FROM AN OLD DRAWING IN 1846.

"The reservoir now forms a beautiful artificial lake, abounding in different kinds of fish, which, with the wild fowl which gather to feed on the fish, afford generous opportunities to the sportsman. During the winter the best of ice is cut from its surface in large quantities; its many natural beauties are beginning to draw crowds of summer visitors and pavilions and cottages are becoming numerous in the vicinity."

OTHO A. BROCK, China, Ohio.

Here is an entertaining letter from our Mississippi cousin.

"There are garden parties and garden parties, but the one given here recently by the members of Trinity church would compare well with the best. The prettiest grounds in town were used and on wires stretched among the trees about the yard were hung gayly colored Japanese lanterns, making a scene beautiful as fairyland. Under the great spreading oak trees were tables strewn with curios and refreshments of all kinds, and near by under a tent was the museum, where quaint things were found, and sleight-of-hand tricks were performed by one who knew the business.

"But best of all, and the most instructive part of this unique party was the circulating library. Those taking part in the library came dressed, or wore something to represent some book, and a prize was given the one who guessed the most books represented and told the authors of the same.

"A dainty little maiden wore 'A lilac sunbonnet' and a stately matron rustled about 'In silk attire,' one of the boys wore 'A yellow aster' in his buttonhole, and 'A woman in white' was easily guessed, while 'The three feathers' pinned on her dress distinguished her from the other girls clad in white, and gave the title of another book. A wise little girl represented several books: she wore 'The black robe,' 'A golden heart' was at her neck, she had 'White wings' and upon her head was a wreath of 'Thorns and orange blossoms.' 'The iron mask' was worn by a young man; in his tie was 'The coral pin' and he carried 'The mistletoe bough' in his hand. Two girls wore flags and roses in their hair and so were 'Under both flags' and 'Under the rose.'

"Many other books were guessed and caused a great deal of pleasure to all participating. The prize was a nicely bound book.

"This party would be just as enjoyable if it took place in the house, and during cold weather rather more so." LOUELLA SPENCE, Pass Christian, Miss.

THE CLIFF, KISH-KE-KWAN-TE-NO.

Next on the list comes a description of that beautiful old Southern city, Savannah. The writer of this letter is a cousin of several years' standing, but it is so long since we heard from him that I feared we had lost him. I welcome him back most heartily.

"When Nature drew between land and sea the boundary line that marks the eastern edge of this continent, she furnished the site for the beautiful city of Savannah with all the requisites of a great seaport centre. A good deep-water harbor and a rich tributary country attracted hither the founder of Georgia, James Edward Oglethorp, to whom George II. granted all the country between the Savannah and the Altamaha rivers, with an indefinite extension westward. In 1732 Oglethorp located his first capital on the site of the present city of Savannah. The town grew but slowly, languished, and in 1752 the original charter was given up and it became a royal province.

"At the beginning of the Revolutionary War, Savannah was the youngest city in any of the original colonies, but had become sufficiently powerful to take a part in the long struggle. In 1778 it was captured by the British and held by them until the close of the war. In 1779 a French fleet and army aided by American forces laid seige to the city, but were compelled to withdraw after a brave assault of nearly two months. During the Civil War her ports were blockaded by Federal forces for four years. Sherman ended his 'march to the sea' here, and the Federal troops held possession during the remaining few months of the war.

"In the last twenty years it has grown rapidly and now consists of a population of about seventy thousand, with a property valuation of $50,000,000 and a commerce of $136,000,000.

"Savannah is eighteen miles from the ocean, and is at the head of ship navigation on the Savannah river. It is the chief naval-stores port of the world and the third largest cotton port of America. It is also headquarters for five lines of steamships, four lines of river steamers and three great railway systems of the South. It has more than seven miles of wharves. The cotton trade cuts a vast figure in the prosperity of this city. The cotton exports last year amounted to one million, one hundred and thirty-one thousand and fourteen bales, valued at $36,642,612. There were also sent out three hundred and twenty-nine thousand, four hundred and sixty-six casks of turpentine, and seven hundred and ninety-four thousand, four hundred and seventy-six barrels of rosin, their value being about $7,000,000.

"The city is beautifully decorated with monuments, among which may be mentioned that of the Revolutionary heroes in Johnson Square, Pulaski in Monterey Square, the cornerstones of each being laid by the Marquis de Lafayette in 1825, the Jasper statue in Madison Square, and the tall Confederate monument upon a terrace in the parade ground. The fine library of the Georgia Historical Society contains twenty-two thousand volumes, devoted largely to the history of Georgia and her neighboring commonwealths. The Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences, founded through a bequest of a young lady who bequeathed the family mansion and $10,000 for the purpose, has the most comprehensive art collection in the entire South.

"As to the churches, the largest and most costly is the handsome Roman Catholic church; then there is St. Patrick's church and Orphan Asylum, the Independent Presbyterian church and the first Presbyterian, fronting Monterey Square, also the two Methodist churches which are as old as the city, for here John Wesley founded the first Sunday-school in the world in 1736.

"The Savannah Theatre is the oldest place of amusement in America, it having been built in 1818, and has witnessed triumphs of the Booth family, Forrest and others. The chief pleasure ground is the Forsyth Park, laid out in 1851, covering some twenty acres of ground; here President McKinley reviewed the volunteer and regular troops during his Southern trip last December. The streets, shaded by large trees, are well paved and excellent for driving and cycling. Ocean and river resorts attract thousands in the summer months. A model quarantine plant, pure artesian water, cremation of all garbage, and the drainage of low lands around the city make it very healthy."

C. C. PRINCE, Montgomery, Ala.

Margarette Spencer, of Cleveland, Ohio, has made a little mistake. It is another lady of the same name who was the fortunate winner of the prize in this department; but I shall be very glad to give a prize to our Cleveland cousin if she will but write me such a letter as to earn it.

And now my space is full, and we must separate and go about our accustomed duties and pleasures until the "merry month of May" calls us together again.

AUNT MINERVA.

A POCKET MIRROR.

See yourself as others see you. One of our large imitation aluminum covered pocket mirrors for the boys and girls at school, for the teachers, for men in the woods. Just 5 cents for one with our latest premium supplement.

Golden Moments, Augusta, Maine.

Ladies' or Gents' size
FREE WATCHES, RINGS, WATCH-CHAINS AND CHARMS, &c. As a grand premium, any one can earn this Beautiful Gold Plated Hunting Case Stem Winder Watch, Charm and Chain, a perfect time-keeper, by selling our ELECTRIC LAMP WICKS. They can be sold in a few hours. They are practically indestructible. No trimming; no smoke; no smell.

OUR SPECIAL 90-DAY OFFER, which is apart from the above: Send us your name and address (no money); we will send you 20 wicks, postpaid; sell them at 5cts. each and remit us $1, and we will mail to your address, free, a Beautiful Gold Plated WATCH-CHAIN AND CHARM, also a Handsome Gold Finished Ring.

ELECTRICAL WICK CO., Dept. B, Orange, N. J.

YOU CAN MAKE BIG MONEY ENTERTAINING THE PUBLIC with Motion Pictures, the new Grapho-Ampliphone Talking and Musical Combination and Panoramic Stereoptican Views $60.00 to $300.00 per week without previous experience. Only a little money needed to start with, and any man can operate our outfits successfully. Write for catalogue. ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO., 56 and 58 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

CARDS Send 2c. stamp for ELEGANT SAMPLE BOOK of all the FINEST and Latest Styles in Gold, Beveled Edge, Hidden Name, Silk Fringe, New Envelope Cards, etc. Greatest Outfit Ever Offered. UNION CARD CO., R50, Columbus, Ohio.

YOUR LIFE'S STORY! "TOLD BY THE STARS" YOUR FUTURE LOVE affairs, business and marriage life fully revealed by Astrology. If you wish to know your future life, send date of birth, sex and 10 cts. for written prediction. PROF. KENWIK, BOX 3101, BOSTON, MASS.

PLAYS Dialogues, Speakers, Amusement Books. Catalog free. T. S. DENISON, Publisher, Dept. 8, CHICAGO.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

PEASE PAYS EXPENSES and $75 per month. Steady position; self-seller; no experience needed. Send 2c for contract. PEASE MFG. Co., Cincinnati, O., Dept. 32.

1427 Silk Fringe Cards, Love, Transparent, Escort & Acquaintance Cards, New Puzzles, New Games, Premium Articles, &c. Finest Sample Book of Visiting & Hidden Name Cards, Biggest Catalogue. Send 2c stamp for all. OHIO CARD CO., CADIZ, OHIO. CARDS

SPANISH NEEDLES, GOLD-ometers, etc., for gold hunters and treasure seekers. Latest improved. Circulars 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

USED IT A HANDSOME MUSTACHE or fine beard grown on the smoothest face in 3 weeks, or money refunded. Baldness cured at once. Our TURKISH HAIR GROWER does it. We warrant every package. Avoid dangerous humbugs, get the genuine direct, 25 cents, 3 for 50c. by mail. Address, TREMONT MAN'F'G CO., Sta. A, BOSTON, MASS.

MAKE MONEY raising Jack Rabbits. Live pair free. Catalogue and terms 10c. J. FAGAN, St. Joseph, Michigan.

Free This magnificent Solid Gold shell ring, set with a brilliant simulation Diamond free, if you will sell 6 sets of our Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) at 25c a set. Send name & address. No money wanted. We run all risk and take back what you cannot sell. Also an extra handsome present if you write to-day. The Maxwell Co., Dept. 210 St. Louis, Mo.

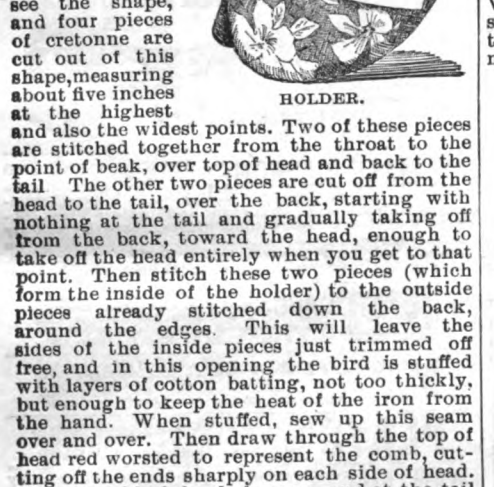
FREE. NON-EXPLOSIVE NIGHT LAMP.

We will send you one of these Lamps with Nickle base, fine handsome pleated shade, chimney etc., all complete if you will send us 15 cents for a six months' trial subscription to our great monthly "SUNSHINE" either in your own or a friend's name. We want '99 to be the banner year for our list and offer this great premium as an inducement for you to take our paper right along. You can make money offering the New Lamp and Exquisite Perfumery with new subscribers. Send 15c. at once and we send sample combined Bottle Perfume and this Ornamental and Petite Lamp. Two Lamps and subscriptions and two lots of Perfumery for 25c. order quick and get agents' terms and low cash discounts in big lots. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Me.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE little silk purse which we illustrate is quite the fad, at present, made in any color desired, this one being in black ornamented with steel beads which form the star and the fringe. The top and chain are of oxidized silver. This picture shows the purse nearly full size, and the directions herewith are for a purse of this size. If a larger one is desired, anyone familiar with crochet work will be able to enlarge in the right places, from these directions.

1 spool purse twist, 1 bunch No. 9 steel beads, steel crochet needle No. 0. Thread a sewing needle with silk from spool and string four strings of beads. Remove needle and slip beads down so as to leave a yard or more of silk, and work from spool, not breaking off the silk. With crochet needle make a chain of 5 and join, put 2 in each stitch making 7. Next row put bead and plain stitch in each one, making 7 beads around. Next row put 2 beads and 1 plain in the last each time. Next row, 3 beads and widening stitch in last; so on till you have 6 beads. Next two plain, then 5 beads and so on till you have 1 bead, 2 rows plain round. Make two sides like this and crochet together with 10 bead fringe, making a single stitch between; put clasp on top.

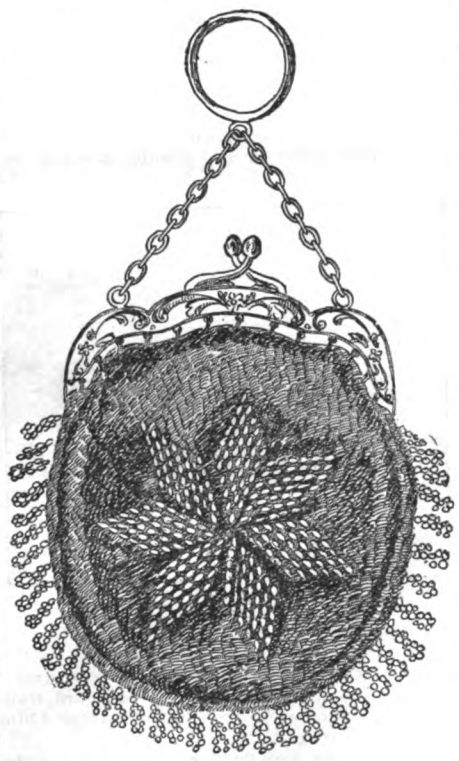


HOLDER.

This picture of a hen is the latest in holders. From the picture it will be easy to see the shape, and four pieces of cretonne are cut out of this shape, measuring about five inches at the highest and also the widest points. Two of these pieces are stitched together from the throat to the point of beak, over top of head and back to the tail. The other two pieces are cut off from the head to the tail, over the back, starting with nothing at the tail and gradually taking off from the back, toward the head, enough to take off the head entirely when you get to that point. Then stitch these two pieces (which form the inside of the holder) to the outside pieces already stitched down the back, around the edges. This will leave the sides of the inside pieces just trimmed off free, and in this opening the bird is stuffed with layers of cotton batting, not too thickly, but enough to keep the heat of the iron from the hand. When stuffed, sew up this seam over and over. Then draw through the top of head red worsted to represent the comb, cutting off the ends sharply on each side of head. Insert two black beads for eyes, and at the tail end sew on a loop made of the cretonne, for hanging up the holder. This also looks like a tail. This holder not only affords a new model for use at fairs and sales, but is also exceedingly comfortable to use, as it fits so well over the handle of the iron and does not slip off as a straight, flat holder does.

POINT LACE HANDKERCHIEF.

This handkerchief is made with point lace braid and crochet, instead of point lace stitches. The beauty of this is, it will look just as well after it has been washed, while if made with point lace stitches it never looks nicely after it has been cleansed.



Material, 3 yards point lace braid like illustration; it costs 8 cents per yard. One spool cotton thread, No. 100; piece of linen 9 1-2 inches square. Cut the braid for each piece with thirteen of the oval figures; lap the two ends so it will make exactly 12 of the ovals in each circle; bring two together as in illustration and fasten with needle and thread, making six scallops; crochet 3 times around the outside, 5 chain, catching down with sc. The last row between the scallops make the sc over the other two rows; this makes a good shaped scallop. For the inside part make a chain of 8 stitches and join.

CROCHET POINT LACE.

1. 5 ch, join to center, repeat until you have 12 of these made.
2 and 3. Rows the same.
4. 6 chain, join to previous row; repeat.
5. 7 chain, join to previous row; repeat.
6. 8 chain, join to previous row; repeat.
7. The last row, make 5 ch, join to the lace braid as shown in illustration, then 5 ch and join to previous row; repeat until the outside braid is all fastened to center; each row must have 12 of the chain loops, then it is just right to fasten to the 12 ovals in braid; be careful not to crochet loose; if you have followed directions it will just fill centre of lace; if it is too large you have made it too loose. Press with a warm iron, or a cold one will do if left on a short time. It takes 12 of these pieces, one for each corner and two between. Fasten the sides together; this will leave two scallops for outside and two to lay on handkerchief. Cut a piece of handkerchief linen nine and one-half inches square; lay the border on after they are all fastened together; with fine linen floss buttonhole the scallops that lay on the handkerchief, taking stitches through the linen; afterwards very carefully cut away the linen that is under the lace work.

Almost every housewife has bits of silk laid away which can be utilized for little except blocks for a quilt. Perhaps it may be thought that there is not a sufficient quantity to make it worth while to begin, but it is a matter of surprise how far these pieces will go, and as the work is usually taken up at odd times, the supply may be added to quite materially as the work advances. By the method of making which I shall describe, and which is a new departure in quilt making, the work takes on an added fascination from the fact that when all the blocks are pieced and set together the quilt is entirely done, even to wadding and lining, and is ready for use. Nor is the advantage in making all; the finished quilt is by far the handsomest of any which we have seen. Each block is cut in the shape of a square, five inches being a good size. If any of the silk pieces are not large enough to cut the entire block they may be pieced diagonally across from one corner to another. After the block is cut fold it into a triangle; if it has been pieced fold it along the seam thus made. The next step is to sew it along the diagonal edge and one of the straight edges; then stuff it as full of cotton as you wish, making it puff out well, and close the remaining side. This makes one completed block. The remainder are made in exactly the same way. If you have much black silk, make half your blocks of that, and if you lack variety in the remaining silks, color a part of them with Diamond dyes. Put the blocks together in squares by sewing two together along the bias edges, using one black and one contrasting color in each, or if you do not have much black, put a light and a dark shade together. The squares are to be joined next, using as many as are necessary to make the desired size. A feather-stitching of Asiatic floss may be worked between the blocks and around the edge, if you wish the quilt to be especially handsome. When finished it is practically alike on both sides, and being so deeply puffed, looks as though filled with down and quilted. This method of making the quilt may be employed with simpler material than silk, and will be found much prettier than when made in the ordinary way. A very dainty quilt of this style, the origin of whose cover would never have been guessed, was made from thin flour sacks. These when washed were almost like cheesecloth. They were colored a delicate shade of blue with Diamond dyes, and then made up into blocks as described. The outer edge was feather stitched with Asiatic floss of the same delicate tint. No more attractive quilt for the baby's crib can be made than one of this style, using a smaller pattern for the blocks, and such an one will be simple to experiment upon if you wish to try the effect of the new method of making before attempting one of the ordinary size.

ROUND SILK PURSE.

"Another Reader Has Been Making Money Easily."

I noticed in the Christian Standard that a reader had been very successful selling "Baird's Non-Alcoholic Flavoring Powders," and think my experience will be interesting. It is wonderful how much better these new Fruit Flavors are than the liquid extracts sold in stores, if you stop to think that the Fruit Flavors cost only half as much. You use them for Custards, Cakes, Candies, Ices and etc. We used them ourselves and liked them so well, that I wrote to W. H. Baird & Co., 110 Century Bldg. St. Louis, Mo., for Samples and tried selling them to my neighbors. I begun only a short time ago, but the Powders are fast becoming celebrated around here and I have built up a good trade from regular customers, often making over $25.00 per week.

I never before knew of such an easy way of making money and would recommend any one having a little spare time to write to the above firm, as they will start you in business. MRS. M. F.

DRESS GOODS We sell all kinds of Dress Goods and Silks at Lowest Chicago Wholesale Prices. For a big line of samples, send 2-cent stamp for postage on Sample Book No. 15H.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES
Female Troubles, Stooping Posture, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset.

We have over 15,000 letters like this:

Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.
Your Brace did all you said about it and more for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, lung disease stomach and other ills to which women are subject. MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain sealed envelope. Address
The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27, Salina, Kansas.
Every woman should have this Brace.

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR!

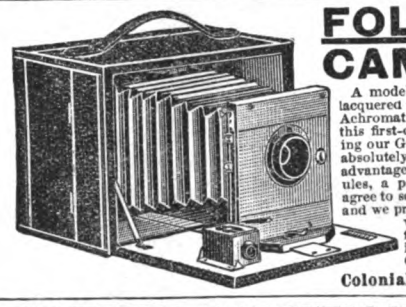
Ladies or Gentlemen We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO. 500 Caxton Bldg., CHICAGO.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Watches, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Jewelry, etc., given away for selling 18 packages of Excelsior Bluing at 10c. We ask no money. Send your name and address and get outfit and premium list with instructions postpaid. When you sell the Bluing send us the money and select your premium. We Trust You. This is an honest offer. Write for outfit today.
EXCELSIOR BLUING CO. Dept. S Chicago

CUSTOMERS ASTOUNDED AT OUR BARGAINS IN
REMNANTS OF SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

We have purchased, at recent wholesale auction sales several large lots of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure splendid bargains. These remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the finest quality of Ribbons in the market, of different widths, in a variety of fashionable shades; in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bonnet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bows, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.



Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Satin Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of our lady friends.

We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors. No remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods.

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3045, New York City, N. Y.

ASTHMA Instant relief and positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. F. G. KISSMAN, M. D., Box 727, Augusta, Maine.

FOLDING CAMERA FREE

A model of the workmen's art, wood parts Mahogany finish, brass work lacquered and polished, covered with Morocco leather, fitted with high grade Achromatic lens, capacity eight 4 x 5 in. plates, same as shown. You can get this first-class camera and a handsome Bracelet with lock and key for selling our Granules. We mean what we say and will give this reliable Camera absolutely free if you comply with the offer we send to every person taking advantage of this advertisement. To quickly introduce our Health Granules, a positive cure for constipation, indigestion, and liver troubles, if you agree to sell only SIX bottles of Granules at 25 cents a bottle, write at once and we promptly send Granules by mail. When sold send us the $1.50 and we send you a handsome Bracelet together with our offer of a folding Camera same day we receive the money. This is a genuine offer by a reliable concern, and all who receive the Bracelet and Camera for selling our Granules are delighted, Colonial Trading Co., Dept. F, 404 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass.

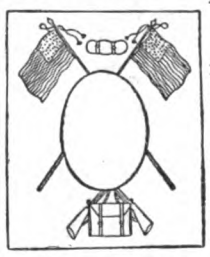
SEND NO MONEY WITH YOUR ORDER, cut this ad. out and send to us, and we will send you OUR HIGH GRADE DROP CABINET BURDICK SEWING MACHINE by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest freight depot and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, equal to machines others sell as high as $60.00, and THE GREATEST BARGAIN YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay your freight agent Our Special Offer Price, $15.50 and freight charges. The machine weighs 120 lbs. and the freight will average 75 cents for each 500 miles. GIVE IT THREE MONTHS' TRIAL in your own home, and we will return your $15.50 any day you are not satisfied. We sell different makes and grades of Sewing Machines at $8.50, $10.00, $11.00, $12.00 and up, all fully described in Our Free Sewing Machine Catalogue, but $15.50 for this DROP DESK CABINET BURDICK is the greatest value ever offered by any house.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS by unknown concerns who copy our advertisments, offering unknown machines under various names, with various inducements. Write some friend in Chicago and learn who are RELIABLE AND WHO ARE NOT.

THE BURDICK has every MODERN IMPROVEMENT; EVERY GOOD POINT OF EVERY HIGH GRADE MACHINE MADE, WITH THE DEFECTS OF NONE. MADE BY THE BEST MAKER IN AMERICA FROM THE BEST MATERIAL MONEY CAN BUY.



SOLID QUARTER SAWED OAK DROP DESK CABINET, PIANO POLISHED. One illustration shows machine closed, (head dropping from sight) to be used as a center table, stand or desk; the other open with full length table and head in place for sewing. Four fancy drawers, latest 1899 skeleton frame, carved, paneled, embossed and decorated cabinet finish, finest nickel drawer pulls' rests on 4 casters, ball-bearing adjustable treadle genuine Smyth iron stand. Finest large High Arm head, positive four motion feed, self threading vibrating shuttle, automatic bobbin winder, adjustable bearings, patent tension liberator, improved loose wheel, adjustable presser foot, improved shuttle carrier, patent needle bar, patent dress guard, head is handsomely decorated and ornamented and beautifully Nickel Trimmed. GUARANTEED the lightest running, most durable and nearest noiseless machine made. Every known attachment is furnished and our Free Instruction Book tells just how anyone can run it and do either plain or any kind of fancy work. A 20-YEAR BINDING GUARANTEE is sent with every machine. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING to see and examine this machine, compare it with those your storekeeper sells at $40.00 to $60.00, and then if convinced you are saving $25.00 to $40.00, pay your freight agent the $15.50, WE TO RETURN YOUR $15.50 if at any time within three months you say you are not satisfied. ORDER TODAY. DON'T DELAY. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)
Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

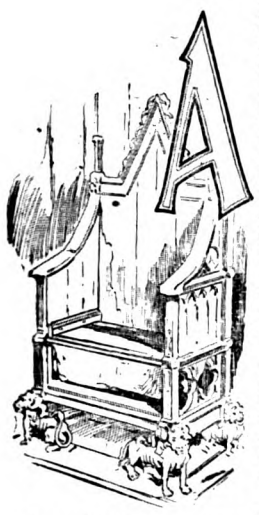
The American Stamping Outfit

A choice collection of New and Seasonable Designs for Decorative Work.

The designs we give in this outfit cannot be duplicated in any art store for less than $5. This is fact, not fiction. The Outfit contains all the following designs:

1 Chinese Alphabet, 2x2 in. high.
1 Eccentric Alphabet, 1¾ in. high.

1 Floral and bow-knot design—Violets, for sofa pillow covers or table cover decorations, buffet scarfs, etc., 13x13 in.
1 Spray violets for doilies, 4x7 in.
1 Conventional design for jewel work, for square doilies or scarf ends, 4x8 in.
1 Conventional design for Bulgarian work, for scarf ends, or doily corners, 4x8 in.
1 design for medicine glass cover, with dial, 3x3 in.
1 border design of bow-knots, 1½ in. wide.
1 Border design for flannel embroidery, 1 in. wide.
1 Empire design for picture frame, 6x6½ inches.
1 design for book mark, 3¼x3¾ inches.
1 design for tobacco pouch.
1 Border and corner design, Oriental, for table cover or lambrequin, etc., 7x7 inches.
1 design for lamp shade, Butterfly.
1 design, Tiger lily, 6½x10 inches.
1 Scallop border for flannel work, ¾ in. wide.
1 Empire corner design, with Fleur de Lis, 9x9 inches.
1 design for delph work, 2½x3 inches.
1 Wreath and bow-knot design for monogram, 3½x4 inches.
1 Spray of Mignonette, 6x6 inches.
1 Spray Lily of the valley, 2½x3 inches.
1 Empire design for twin picture frames, 10x12 inches.
1 Lily-of-the-valley and bow-knot design, 15x15 in.
1 design for penwiper with motto, 4x7 inches.
1 Floral spray for tea cloth or center piece, doilies, 6x8½ inches.
1 Dog's head for art work, 1½x2 inches.
1 design of Mountain pine, with motto (see illustration), 11x14 inches.
1 design American flags, 7x7 inches.
1 design Poppies and leaves, 4x10 inches.
1 design for picture frame, American flags, etc. (see illustration), 8x10 inches.
1 Ribbon and floral design for monogram, 2x8½ in.
1 design Nasturtium, 2½x5½ inches.
1 Conventional design for art work, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design, for table covers, etc., 9x9 inches.
1 Patriotic design for sofa pillow, American and Cuban flags, knapsacks and guns, 16x16 inches.
1 Set of six doily designs, conventional patterns, 4x4 inches.
1 design for Cross stitch work, 3½x3½ inches.
1 Acorn design for scatter work.
1 Ribbon and Daisy design, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design 8x8 inches.
1 Floral and bow-knot doily design, 5x5 inches.



The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 9 sheets of patterns, each sheet 14x22 inches in size. As good as can be made.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA COMPOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

FREE Send 25 cents for a year's subscription to this paper and we will forward one of these outfits free all charges paid. Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

THE CORONATION CHAIR.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

REIGN like that of Queen Victoria's of over sixty years, has relegated the coronation chair of England to so little use that one may well be pardoned for forgetting that such a piece of royal furniture exists. King Edward's chair, as it is often called, is at least six hundred years old.

The last time the chair was used was at the fiftieth anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne. It was then, as has been the custom at every coronation for six hundred years, placed before the altar in Westminster Abbey and her Majesty sat in it. This is the place where all the sovereigns of England, for six centuries, have taken the solemn oath of office. On this occasion there was thrown over the chair a magnificent covering of cloth of gold and ermine, but that the people assembled to witness the ceremony might be sure it was the real coronation chair, and not a modern substitute, one corner of the covering was thrown back so as to leave a portion of the rudely carved and time-eaten old chair exposed to view.

Between its rare appearances on royal occasions the coronation chair sits quietly just behind the elaborately carved old stone screen behind the altar. This brings it within the shrine of Edward the Confessor, where it divides interest with the massive tomb of the latter, the battered sides of which show alike the reverence with which it has been held for years and the desire which visitors have had to carry away some part of it as a relic. The coronation chairs, for there are two of them, stand behind a stout iron rail. Visitors are not now allowed to touch them, although it was not so very long ago that any one could obtain the privilege of sitting down in them at sixpence each. The second chair was made at the time of the dual coronation of William and Mary, and was made as nearly as possible an exact copy of the original chair except that the seat is about four inches higher. Mary, as the nearest of blood to the throne, was naturally assigned the original coronation chair. She was a large woman, quite a little taller than her husband. That the latter might not look ridiculously small, by contrast, as they sat side by side during the ceremony, his chair was built in this way to bring him up on a level with his august spouse. Another curious shift made necessary by this same inequality in size is shown in St. Islip's Chapel, in the Abbey, where the famous wax effigies of so many of the English sovereigns are preserved. William and Mary stand side by side, here, and the king stands upon a little platform about five inches high, to increase his stature.

The original coronation chair was made by order of Edward I. in 1297. Since then every sovereign of England has been crowned in it, and it has never been taken out of the Abbey but once. That was when Cromwell was installed in it as Lord Protector, at Westminster Hall. The chair is of oak, large and heavy. Originally it was elaborately painted and adorned with false jewels, but all this trimming has long ago disappeared except for gilding on the lions which form the feet, and it is now simply a very much battered old oak chair.

It is no light task to move the coronation chair around to the front of the altar, when it is to be used, for the old relic weighs several hundred pounds. This is owing to the fact that fastened just beneath the seat is the famous "Stone of Scone," upon which the old time kings of Scotland were crowned. This stone is 26 inches long, 16 wide, and 11 thick. It is fastened by iron clamps beneath the seat so that the sovereign who sits in the chair sits on the stone also. If the old Scotch traditions could be believed this stone is something still more wonderful, nothing less, in fact, than the one on which Jacob rested his head at Bethel. The tradition said that Jacob's sons carried the stone to Egypt, from where it went to Spain with King Gathelos, son of Cerops, the builder of Athens. Even the imagination of a Scotchman, though, is not equal to accounting for all the time, and they simply say, next, of it, that the stone appeared in Ireland about 700 B. C. brought there by the Spanish king's son Simon Brech, at the time of his invasion of Ireland. There it was placed upon the sacred hill of Tara, and called Lia-Fail, the "fatal" stone, or "stone of destiny", because when the Irish kings were seated upon it for coronation it groaned aloud if the candidate was of royal race, but remained silent if he was a pretender. In 330 B. C., Fergus who was a Prince of Ireland and founded a monarchy in Scotland, carried the stone with him to that country. In 850 A. D. King Kenneth finally deposited it in the Monastery of Scone. There it became for centuries a source of veneration to the Scots, and their kings down to John Balliol were crowned upon it. They believed that so long as it remained in the country they would not be hopelessly conquered, and it was partly to discourage them, on account of this belief, that Edward I. when he overran Scotland, took the stone back with him to England. Since the two monarchies finally became one by the accession of James of Scotland to the throne of both, there has seemed to be a peculiar fitness in having the sovereigns of both countries crowned upon the stone, and in the chair. The romantic Scotch and English history of the stone is undoubted. So far as the earlier traditions are concerned the sad truth must be confessed that the relic is unmistakably of Scotch sandstone.

One of the most interesting things about the coronation chair, although one which few tourists ever see, now that the chair sits behind the rail, is an inscription cut in rude school boy letters upon the seat. The letters are at least an inch in height, and look like those carved upon the top of a desk at school. The inscription reads, "P. Abbott slept here, Jan. 3d. 1801." P. Abbott, it seems, was a Westminster School boy. There is a boarding school for boys run in connection with the Abbey, and has been for several centuries. This is supported by an endowment left for the purpose all those years ago, and vastly increased as the time has passed. Back at the beginning of this century one of the boys, P. Abbott, made a bet with another boy, that he dare stay in the Abbey all night alone. He watched his chance, hid behind some tomb, and got himself locked in. Then after all he was afraid that if he did not have some proof of his courage the other boy would not believe he had won the wager. So he spent the hours of the night, lighted by the lamp hung over the shrine of Edward the Confessor, carving his name and the history of the night, upon the coronation chair. All this is one of the well authenticated traditions of the Abbey, and there seems to be no reason to doubt its truth, especially as the proof is on the chair, but ever since I saw the audacious inscription I have wished that the tradition had told us what was the punishment meted out for the irreverence, or whether it was not discovered until long years after the boy had left the school.

MAINE'S BIRCH TREES.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

LARGE part of the wealth of Maine lies in her forests. Her pine lumber is known the world over and her winter lumber camps, her log drives and her sawmills furnish employment to thousands of men. When the paper mills began to build big sulphite mills in the Maine woods the price of spruce timber lands was doubled and in some cases trebled. Next in demand to spruce trees is the white birch, which is sawed into bars and shipped to Scotland to be made into thread spools. Nearly all the thread factories in the United States and more than half of those of Great Britain obtain their spools from Maine.

The story of the appearance in Maine of birch trees in any quantity is as follows—as told by one of the old settlers in that state: In the year in which Maine became a state, some French Canadians crossed the border between that state and Canada and settled on state lands in the woods near the Penobscot river, and defied all efforts to eject them. After five years of struggle with them the land office in Augusta, Maine, despatched two special constables to the disputed territory with orders to make a clean job of evicting the squatters. The constables were zealous, not to say spiteful men, and did their duty all too well. Not content with turning out the inhabitants of the little settlement and destroying their crops, they set fire to their dwellings and outhouses and did not leave the place until all were reduced to ashes.

But their satisfaction in the thoroughness of their work was short-lived and the evicted people thought themselves well revenged when flames were discovered bursting from the surrounding forest, the fire having caught from sparks from the ruined settlement. In a few hours the largest forest fire ever known in Maine was sweeping northward and doing incalculable damage to the lumber interests of the state. Ten million dollars' worth of pine and many square miles of hackmatack forests were burned, and the fire also ate ten feet deep into the accumulations of peat beneath the forests. It even crossed the line into New Brunswick, and did tremendous damage to life and property there.

So much for the damages; now for the gain.

After the fire had burned itself out and the land had been given time to absorb the alkali of the ashes, about nine thousand square miles of the burned over district became covered with wild cherry and birch growth. The birches, aided by the "black knot," which was imported from Europe, gradually choked out the cherry trees and obtained a clear field for their own growth. About fifty million board feet of birch spool bars are now yearly shipped out of Maine and the supply shows no signs of becoming exhausted.

80 Square Inches Crazy Patchwork FREE.

Our Bargain book of valuable presents and a skein of embroidery silk will be sent you, together with a lot of new and pretty silk pieces that will make over eighty square inches of crazy quilt or sofa pillow. Send six cents for a three months' subscription and we will send above, together with diagram showing latest fancy stitches. Also tells how to get a larger lot of silk and satin pieces free. Address, FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

ASTHMA

FREE. If you suffer from any form of Asthma we want to send you free by mail, prepaid, a Bottle of the famous Kola Plant Compound. It is Nature's Sure Botanic Cure for the disease, and we guarantee that it will forever stop all your suffering. We are sending out 50,000 Bottles free by mail to Sufferers, to prove the wonderful power of this New Discovery, and we will be pleased to send one to you. Send your name and address by postal card or letter.

Address, The KOLA IMPORTING CO., No. 1164 Broadway, New York

CHILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs, Health, Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N.Y.

$4 DAY SURE. We pay $4 a day Salary for a man with rig to introduce our goods in the country. KANSAS FOOD CO., Dept. M, Kansas City, Mo.

9 USEFUL PREMIUMS FREE 9

To introduce our "CALUMET PERFECTO" CIGARS we give every person buying a box of cigars for $2.85, a superbly engraved "GOLD" WATCH, GUARANTEED FOR 20 YEARS, 1 gold-laid chain, 1 charm, 1 necktie holder, 2 sleeve buttons, 2 cuff buttons, 1 ball-top collar button and 1 stud. Send this to us and we will send you the cigars and premiums by express to examine. If you are satisfied, pay $2.85 & exp. charges. Calumet Mfg. & Importing Co. Dept. 412, Chicago.

Diamonds Come High

but we have at last got a good sure glass cutter and while it is not a diamond it works to perfection. It will pay for itself in half an hour's time. How many times one wants to cut down glass to use in windows or picture framing etc. This cutter both cuts and separates very nicely. We will send one free postpaid for every 12c. four-months' subscription. Address, SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

SEND NO MONEY

WE ASK NO MONEY until you have examined the Bicycle and convinced yourself it is such a Bicycle as was never before offered at anything like the price . . .

WRITE FOR FREE BICYCLE CATALOGUE.

THE above illustration, engraved from a photograph, shows our new 1900 MODEL FLUSH JOINT ACME PRINCE BICYCLE. Every bicycle will be exactly as shown in illustration, with the exception of the sprockets which come in a variety of patterns, and the handle bars which are furnished in either up or down turn, as desired. The $13.75 1900 Model Acme Jewel also differs from the above only in a variety of patterns of sprocket, and comes with outside joint connections. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

OUR ACME JEWEL AND ACME PRINCE are made for us under contract BY ONE OF THE BEST BICYCLE MAKERS IN AMERICA, made from the best material that money can buy, made on the very latest lines, the newest models for 1900. THE ACME PRINCE AT $14.75 embodies every up-to-date feature of every high grade bicycle, everything the very best, including flush joints throughout, the very latest style two-piece hanger, strictly high grade equipment, A HIGH GRADE 1900 WHEEL.

OUR ACME JEWEL AND ACME PRINCE AT $13.75 AND $14.75 are built on the latest lines for the season of 1900. They have the very latest diamond frame in the gents'; the very latest handsome curved drop frame in the ladies'. They come in either 22 or 24-inch, as desired. The frame is made from the very finest 1⅛-inch cold-drawn seamless tubing. The Acme Prince at $14.75 is flush at every joint, the connections are all of the finest steel stampings, handsomely finished. Has the very latest style arched crown, handsomely curved, shaped and finished; handsome tapering fork, beautifully finished. The wheels are the highest grade 28-inch, fitted with genuine Hercules spokes, full finished, The very best selected air seasoned rock elm rims are used. They have the genuine Wilmar large sized hubs made from bar steel, heavily nickel plated. The cranks are made from the finest forgings, the bearings are made from tool steel hardened in oil, accurately trued to gauge, beautifully finished and practically non-destructible. The sprockets are made from selected forgings, heavily nickel plated and they come in a variety of beautiful patterns. We furnish with these bicycles at $13.75 and $14.75 our own special high grade, season guaranteed, Seroco single tube pneumatic tire, one of the highest grade tires made, complete with tire repair outfit. The bicycle is fully equipped with high grade chain, high grade ball bearing adjustable pedals, full padded saddle, up or down turned handle bars, tool bag, pump, wrench, oiler and tire repair kit. The bicycles are beautifully finished, handsomely decorated and ornamented. They come in either black, green or maroon. All usual parts are heavily nickel plated on copper.

DON'T DELAY YOUR ORDER A DAY OUR SPECIAL $13.75 AND $14.75 PRICES HOLD GOOD ONLY UNTIL OUR PRESENT STOCK IS DISPOSED OF. Address,

CUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT OUT AND SEND TO US mention Special Offer No. 10, SEND NO MONEY, say whether you wish gent's or ladies' bicycle, black, green or maroon color, whether 22 or 24-inch frame, whether our ACME JEWEL, outside joint, at $13.75, or our ACME PRINCE, flush joint, two-piece hanger bicycle, exactly as illustrated, at $14.75, and we will send the bicycle to your nearest railroad station by express or freight C.O.D., subject to examination. YOU CAN EXAMINE IT THOROUGHLY, call in any bicycle expert to examine it, and if not pronounced a strictly high grade 1900 model bicycle, the GREATEST BICYCLE BARGAIN EVER SEEN, the equal of bicycles that retail in your town at $25.00 to $40.00, far better than bicycles that are being widely advertised at $18.00 to $25.00; if you are convinced you are getting such a bicycle as you could not get elsewhere at anything like the price, pay your railroad agent OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE $13.75 for the Acme Jewel, or .... $14.75 for our Acme Prince, exactly as illustrated, and freight or express charges, which will average about 50 to 75 cents for each 500 miles.

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL After you pay the railroad agent our special price of $13.75 or $14.75, give the bicycle ten days' trial, during which time compare it with other bicycles that sell at double the price, and if you are not still satisfied that you have saved money and that it is the greatest bicycle value ever furnished, you can return it to us at our expense of freight or express charges both ways, and WE WILL IMMEDIATELY RETURN YOUR MONEY.

OUR CHALLENGE OFFER Order this our 1900 Bicycle at $13.75 or $14.75 and you can then order a bicycle from any other house or houses advertised in this or any other paper, let the different bicycles come to your railroad station to be examined; examine and compare them side by side, and if our bicycle is not pronounced by everyone at least $5.00 cheaper and $10.00 better, you can return it to us at our expense.

YOU CAN MAKE $500.00 BETWEEN NOW AND FALL taking orders for our Acme Jewel and Acme Prince AT A PROFIT OF $5.00 TO $10.00 ON A WHEEL. Order the Acme Jewel at $13.75, or the Acme Prince at $14.75, and you can sell it the day you get it at $18.00 to $25.00 and then order another. Continue this work during the season and you can sell from fifty to one hundred bicycles, underselling every dealer in your section and make for yourself at least $500.00.

OUR BINDING GUARANTEE AT $13.75 and $14.75 our Acme Jewel and Acme Prince are covered by a WRITTEN, BINDING ONE-YEAR GUARANTEE, (which accompanies every bicycle), by the terms and conditions of which, if any piece or part gives out within one year by reason of defect in material or workmanship, we will replace or repair it free of charge.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR ABOUT OUR BICYCLES Last year we sold nearly 50,000 bicycles. At least a number of our wheels went into every community. Some of your neighbors are riding our wheels. Ask them if they found the bicycle they bought of us last year perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented and much cheaper than they could buy elsewhere. Consider that our wheels have been greatly improved and our price has been reduced to $13.75 and $14.75. IF YOU HAVE ANY DOUBT ABOUT OUR ABILITY to furnish you a better wheel for less money than you can buy from any other house in Chicago, write to some friend in Chicago and ask them to come and examine our wheels, and then examine the wheels offered by other houses, and if they don't write you that we can SAVE YOU FROM $5.00 TO $20.00 on a bicycle, we will not expect your order. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

AS TO OUR RELIABILITY we refer to the City National Bank and German Exchange Bank of New York, the Metropolitan National Bank or Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago, any railroad company, business house or resident of Chicago AND TO OUR THOUSANDS OF CUSTOMERS IN EVERY STATE IN THE UNION.

DO NOT ORDER THIS BICYCLE unless you expect to accept it and pay the railroad agent our special offer price of $13.75 or $14.75 and freight charges when received if you find it exactly as represented, perfectly satisfactory, a far better wheel for the money than you could possibly get elsewhere. We are anxious to receive your order; we know we can save you money and we only want to hear from those who are ordering in good faith, who mean business and who understand that $13.75 and freight charges must be paid to the railroad agent before they can receive the bicycle. The railroad agent will not deliver this bicycle to you until you have paid him our special offer price, but we will return your $13.75 or $14.75 and all railroad charges if at any time within ten days you become dissatisfied for any cause whatsoever and you return the bicycle to us.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (INC.) CHEAPEST SUPPLY HOUSE ON EARTH, CHICAGO

COMFORT

THE KEY TO

A Million and a Quarter Homes

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World

Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 50c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions.

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Tribune Building. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Guaranteed Circulation:

ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

The time for the great political conventions grows near and the spirits of the American people rise accordingly. Our frequent elections may be a disadvantage commercially and financially but the mass of the people like the excitement. It is then that the American patriot feels that he is "It." He may work and vote as Dooley says, at the uniform rate of a dollar and a quarter a day, but he realizes his own value just now.

A movement is being inaugurated looking toward erecting a tablet or monument to Father Ryan, the Poet Priest of the South. He is often spoken of as the poet of the Lost Cause. His "Furl that banner for 'tis weary" was one of the last greetings to the stars and bars. Now that the bitterness of the struggle is only a memory his exquisite verses find admirers both north and south. He had a most remarkable command over musical and exquisite English.

The tardy success of the English in South Africa is leading many people to a critical examination of the fetish of England's greatness as a military and naval power. Strange to say the history of England's wars does not show a great military nation. Her two great generals, the Dukes of Marlborough and of Wellington led England to victory when she had powerful allies, but no single military success can compare with those of France or Germany. Great as a commercial nation—yes. But great when opposed in war by equal strength—history does not prove it.

One of the most hopeful signs of the times is the care and attention given to the defective and delinquent classes of our children. There has been a recent agitation in cities looking towards providing separate courts for children accused of crime. This idea should be followed up to a practical result. Statistics show that after a child has once suffered arrest his downward career is rapid. The necessary and enforced association with older criminals has an evil effect. Those familiar with the statistics of criminality believe that the first step towards saving a child would be made if this matter of separate courts could be established. The Mother's Congress has been asked to consider the matter. It directly concerns every mother in the land for the well being, the chance to live well of her child is directly related to the chance of the poor little outcast of the gutter.

One great mark of the intellectual broadness and tolerance of the age is the anxiety to have free discussion upon any troublesome topic. The great race problem of the South is undoubtedly one of the most serious conditions in our Republic. The best and most helpful discussions upon any topic must come from the people who are familiar with all conditions that affect the matter. The deepest thinkers both North and South believe that the best solution of the race problem must be given through the work of the negro and the white man of the South. A society has recently been formed in Montgomery, Alabama—the heart of the "black belt," for the purpose of holding annual conferences to discuss the race problems of the South, the franchise, the education of the negro, religious work and social order and equality. The meetings will be open to free discussions and interchange of ideas. The formation of the society is a hopeful sign. Its problems are the hardest that the South has to face; they are best understood by those living among them and a free and unprejudiced discussion is the first step towards a solution.

Easter Sunday falls very late this year so that its old name, "The Feast of Flowers", can be realized without the aid of hot house blossoms. Easter has become a day generally observed in all Christian churches. There was a time within the memory of those now living when the observance of Easter was almost entirely limited to the communions of the Roman Catholic church and the Church of England. Now it is universally observed with special music, special services and flowers and song. Many quaint customs may be found in Easter observances. Of the many who eat eggs upon Easter day but few recall the fact that they are performing a symbolic act. The egg is the old time symbol of the resurrection. The origin of the symbolism is lost in antiquity but eggs as a part of the Easter feast were a religious observance. The Russians have many quaint Easter fashions. The passers in the street greet one another with a kiss and the salutation, "Christ is risen," the answer being "He is risen indeed."

Wars and new possessions have proven a fruitful source of enlarging our vocabulary. We speak carelessly of "trekking," of the "veldt," of "kopjies," while Boer and Uitlander are old familiar terms. We have almost forgotten how dear the word "machete" was to the paragrapher little more than a year ago. Congress has before now had to place its official sanctum upon spelling so that real relief was felt when "Porto Rico" was declared correct. The English language has derived its wonderful richness from the ease with which new terms were appropriated and permanently engrafted upon the language. "United States" has that distinguishing mark over English as spoken in the British Isle and Boston. "United States" is more picturesque because it has claimed words from the Indian of the plains, from the immigrants of all nations and from the inventive fancy of its own users. As a result our language has grown so rapidly that the slang of to-day is the serious language of to-morrow. In the same degree it has seized upon much that is new in the localisms, and made them familiar terms during the last year. They now bid fair to become part and parcel of the language.

All fools have some day to distinguish themselves, some fools have all days; but April first by a generous and general adaptation is known as "All fools day." To the children it used to be a day of solid enjoyment. The practical joke must have been the first mark of humor by which man distinguished himself as the only animal that laughs. The practical joke is our most primitive form of fun and it is the practical joke that flourishes on "All fools day." The heated coin or the one that is nailed to the board walk, the sham parcel, the pocket book with a string fastened to it, all these practical pleasantries lie between the rising and setting sun of April first. Then the exquisite wit of the person who could quote certain hoary rhymes in justification of his jokes. "April fool's a coming and you're the biggest fool a running," was an old-time favorite. Woe betide the hapless youngster who would fain prolong its brief twenty-four hours. "April fool's past and you're the biggest fool at last" was the reminder of his lapse. No epithet rankles more than the one of "fool" and yet no other form of human weakness has one whole day out of the year devoted to it. Happy are the fools who are only April fools. Twice happy are those who can realize the fun of being a fool and the real folly of the struggle to be sadly wise.

There are certain men who seem to have a deep sense of responsibility when the indifference and suffrages of their neighbors makes them legislators. One-half of the bills introduced in state and national legislature make one wonder what the average intelligence of a constituency can be that selects such intellectual freaks as its representatives. Occasionally the new legislator takes it upon himself to exploit some bill in reference to woman's dress. By so doing he writes himself so unmistakably a "Miss Nancy" that his influence except as a voting machine is from that moment dead. One always has the feeling that a man who struts and frets his brief hour upon the legislative stage in an attempt to regulate woman's dress, must have made a lamentable failure in attempting to dictate to one woman and so wishes to invoke the power of the law and dictate to the mass of womankind. All this, apropos of the fact that a New York State assemblyman has introduced a bill making it unlawful for any woman to wear a hat pin more than three inches long. A longer pin must come under the category of a concealed weapon and subject its wearer to the punishment for carrying concealed weapons. Talk about the tattling and tattle of a church sewing society! How would the dear man have the women fasten on their hats? A three-inch pin would have no practical use. Only two alternatives are presented—elastic bands fastened under the chin or long bonnet strings. Then just as the women of Chicago are commencing to carry pistols to deprive the sex of the only innocent weapon that they could carry. The next thing will be that some legislator, striving to do a service to future generations or sighing to write his name high on the roll of fame, will introduce a bill prohibiting the use of hair-pins as button-hooks, paper knives, or nail cleaners. The responsibility placed in the hands of our legislators is too great to be trifled with in this manner. When all women vote they will commence to ask their male representatives for pledges that the power given into their hands shall not be used carelessly against any portion of their constituency. Until then women must stand meekly by and see their dearest privileges, their hat-pins and hair-pins, exposed to such attacks as this of the New York legislator. It is really one of the most practical arguments of the year in support of woman's suffrage.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

HOME STUDY Book-keeping, Business Forms, Shorthand, Civil Service and English branches thoroughly taught by MAIL. Success assured. Low rates. Catalogue free. Trial lesson 10c. BRYANT & STRATTON, 118 College Bldg. Buffalo, N.Y.

DOES AWAY WITH GLASSES — WRITE FOR DESCRIPTION — EYE FOOD — NOURISHES, STRENGTHENS — EYE FOOD CO. CINCINNATI, O. — CURES DISEASED VISION

ALL WOOL SERGE SUIT

MAN'S SUIT MADE FROM PARKERS BEST BLUE SERGE CHEVIOT famous for its perfect weave and rich dark blue color. Its fine all wool, medium weight, and will positively not fade. Guaranteed equal to others $10.00 suits. $4.95

EXPERT TAILORS will make the suit in latest sack style, to fit perfect, line it with fine super gloss farmer satin, pad and stiffen it so it will always retain its perfect shape and sew with pure silk and linen thread.

SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large cloth sample of the blue serge cheviot suit and our big book containing 50 fine cloth samples of other made to order suits from $5.95 to $20.00. We make all grades and styles of suits to order in our own mammoth tailor shops and sell to consumers at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.

MEN'S SUITS FREE we give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one, in addition you can make $2.50 to $5.00 a day while earning suit. Hundreds are doing it. You can too. SEND ONE 2-CENT STAMP to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit and make big wages. Write today.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE 400 QUILT PATTERNS designs and 100 Crazy Stitches given free with a 3 mos. subscription to a 50c. ladies' paper, for only 10c. LADIES' ART CO., B 5, St. Louis, Mo.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

★ FULL SIZE ★ ★ GOOD PAPER ★

2½ cts. SHEET MUSIC a Copy

★ LARGE TYPE ★ ★ UNABRIDGED ★

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type — including colored titles — and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFERED AT THIS TIME.

No.	PIANO OR ORGAN.
165	American Liberty March	Cook
101	Ancients Abroad. March—Two Step	Cook
247	Artist's Life Waltzes	Strauss
181	Auld Lang Syne. Variations	Durkee
187	Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	Pacher
215	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive	Anderson
179	Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands	Streabbog
227	Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes	Strauss
65	Bells of Corneville. Potpourri	Eilon
213	Black Hawk Waltzes	Walsh
257	Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans.	Richards
221	Bluebird Echo Polka	Morrison
199	Boston Commandery March	Carter
109	Bridal March from Lohengrin	Wagner
229	Bryan and Sewall March	Noles
133	Cadences and Scales in all Keys	Czerny
1	Catherine Waltzes	Stroh
255	Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands.	Mascagni
237	Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands.	Behr
145	Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step	Missud
217	Cleveland's March	Noles
81	Coming from the Races Galop	Wheeler
211	Corn Flower Waltzes	Coote, Jr
41	Crack Four March	Ashton
71	Crystal Dew Waltz	Durkee
235	Day Dawn Polka	Cook
163	Dewey's Grand Triumphal March	Mansell
117	Echoing Trumpets March	Noles
121	Electric Light Galop	Durkee
91	Estella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Robinson
107	Ethel Polka	Simons
155	Evergreen Waltz	Stoddard
231	Faust. Selections	Durkee
77	Fifth Nocturne	Leybach
233	Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz	Lasalde
239	Flower Song. Op. 39.	Lange
97	Fresh Life	Spindler
177	Frolic of the Frogs.	Watson
49	Full of Ginger. March Galop.	Nutting
183	Golden Rain. Nocturne	Cloy
147	Grand Commandery March—Two Step	Missud
53	Greeting of Spring, op. 21	Schultze
185	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Richards
173	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes	Jewell
139	Home, Sweet Home. Transcription	Slack
17	Impassioned Dream Waltzes	Rosas
153	Jenny Lind polka Four hands	Muller
157	Last Hope. Meditation	Gottschalk
195	Leap Year Schottische	Kahn
253	Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka.	Behr
159	Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop	Durkee
249	Lohengrin. Selections	Durkee
141	London March—Two Step	Missua
99	Maiden's Prayer, The	Badarzewske
45	March Winds Galop	Mansfield
240	Martha Selections	Johnson
207	May Breezes. Four hands	Krug
225	McKinley and Hobart March	Turner
55	Memorial Day March	Hewitt
131	Monastery Bells. Nocturne	Welty
89	Morning Dew, op. 18	Smith
61	Morning Star Waltz	Zahn
201	Music Box, The. Caprice	Liebich
137	My Love Polka	Zuchsr
125	My Old Kentucky Home. Variations	Cook
87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations
175	National Songs of America	Blake
135	Nightingale's Trill, op. 8	Kullak
123	Old Folks at Home. Transcription	Blake
171	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations	Durkee
219	On the Wave Waltz	Dinsmore
197	Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two step	Robinson
245	Orvetta Waltz	Spencer
9	Our Little Agnes. Waltz	Gregoire
191	Over the Waves Waltz	Rosas
79	Please Do Waltz	Durkee
193	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	Brunner
167	Red, White and Blue Forever. March	Blake
143	Richmond March—two-step	Missud
245	Rustic Waltz	Schumann
127	Rustling Leaves. Idylle	Lange
39	Ruth, Esther and Marion Schottische.	Cohen
149	Salem Witches March—Two-Step	Missud
189	Schubert's Serenade Transcription	Liszt
161	Silvery Waves. Variations	Woman
169	Smith's (General) March	Martin
31	Song of the Voyager	Paderewski
22	Souvenir March Song of 1895 K. T. Parade	Dow
95	Spirit Lake Waltz	Simons
151	Storm, The. Imitation of Nature	Weber
73	Storm Mazurka	Keefer
109	Sultan's Band March.	Brown
209	Sweet Long Ago Transcription	Blake
115	Tornado Galop	Arbuckle
103	Trifet's Grand March, op. 182	Wedel
223	Twilight Echoes. Song without words	Jewell
113	Under the Double Eagle March	Wagner
129	Venetian Waltz	Ludovic
205	Village Parade Quickstep	Allen
7	Visions of Light. Waltz	Cook
203	Warblings at Eve	Richards
93	Waves of the Ocean March	Blake
59	Wedding March	Mendelssohn
251	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem.	Howe
119	Woodland Whispers Waltzes	Stanley
105	Zephyr Waltz.	Bragg

No.	VOICE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
236	Across the Bridge	Le Brunn
2	Annie's Love. Duet for Sop. and Ten.	Winter
27	Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni
140	Beacon Light of Home	Estabrooke
134	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet	Glover
238	Bells of Seville	H. Jude
162	Ben Bolt, of "Trilby" fame	Knauss
226	Blue Eyes	Elson
246	Boyhood Days, Chorus	Fritz
200	Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow	Carew
192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keep a Secret?	Estabrooke
214	Childhood's Happy Hours	Dinsmore
138	Christmas Carol	Turner
190	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Schumann
168	Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk	Blake
92	Cow Bells, The. Boyhood's Recollection	Grimm
250	Darling I Shall Miss You	Cohen
176	Darling Nellie Gray	Hanby
70	Dear Heart, We're Growing Old	Estabrooke
128	Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp.	Hoover
256	Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus.	Turner
50	Easter Eve. Sacred	Gounod
220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory	Hosfeld
19	'E Dunno Where 'E Are. Comic	Eplett
72	Elaine. Waltz song	Betts
180	Far Away	Bliss
182	Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
126	Far from the Hearthstone	Messer
152	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic	Matkiot
156	Flag, The. Quartette	Fox
144	Flirting in the Starlight	Delano
8	Flossie. Waltz Song	Cohen
138	For a Dream's Sake	Cowen
36	For the Colors. Patriotic	Wilson
66	For You We are Praying at Home	Estabrooke
166	From our Home the Loved are Going	Percy
202	Give a Kiss to Me	Percy
178	God Bless My Kind Old Mother	Jewell
204	Golden Moon	Ivan
150	Gypsy Countess. Duet	Glover
198	Heart of My Heart	Robinson
184	I Can't Forget the Happy Past	Skelly
74	In Sweet September	Temple
248	In Shadowland	Pinsuti
188	In the Starlight. Duet	Glover
28	Juanita. Ballad	May
242	Kathleen Mavourneen	Crouch
196	Killarney	Balfe
132	Kiss me, but don't say goodbye	Rutledge
130	Kiss that bound my Heart to thine	Keil
164	Larboard Watch. Duet	Williams
146	Listen to the Mocking Bird	Hawthorne
48	Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet	Estabrooke
154	Little Voices at the Door	Danks
96	Lost Chord, The	Sullivan
40	Love Ever Faithful	Bucalossi
25	Lurline, Do you think of me now?	Estabrooke
234	Margaretta	Balfe
112	Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard	Keefer
230	Memories of my Mother. Chorus	Allen
30	Mission of a Rose, The. Song	Cowen
52	Mother's Cry, A. (Salvation Army)	Adriance
172	Mother's Welcome at the Door	Estabrooke
222	Musical Dialogue. Duet	Helmund
232	Must the Sweet Tie that binds	Estabrooke
76	My Home by the Old Mill	O'Hagan
110	My Little Lost Irene	Danks
170	My Old Kentucky Home	Foster
216	Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain	Dinsmore
228	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber)	Foster
60	Old Glory. National	Woods
102	Old Sexton, The	Russell
104	On the Banks of the Beautiful River	Estabrooke
90	On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad	Robinson
160	Outcast, An. Character Song	Fritz
174	Parted from our Dear Ones	Keller
254	Picture of My Mother, The	Skelly
148	Poor Girl didn't know. Comic.	Cooke
56	Precious Treasure. Song and Dance	Weiler
136	Request. Sacred	Grainger
208	Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	Knight
142	Rosemonde	Chaminade
80	See Those Living Pictures	Guth
224	Shall I Ever See Mother's Face Again?	Adriance
194	She Sleeps among the Daisies	Dinsmore
124	Softly shine the Stars of Evening	Dinsmore
210	Son's Return, The	Fritz
120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive	Hullah
10	Sweetest Song, The	Denza
32	Sweet Long Ago, The	Estabrooke
46	That Word was Hope. Waltz song	Nutting
118	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds	Danks
206	There's Sure to be a Way	Delano
158	Thinking of Home and Mother	Cohen
116	'Tis True, Dear Heart, We're Fading	Estabrooke
108	Tread softly the Angels are calling	Turner
38	True to the Last	Adams
64	Vicar of Bray, The. Old English Song
62	Your Mother's Love for You	Koppi
252	Warrior Bold	Adams
84	What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet	Glover
58	When the Roses are Blooming Again	Skelly
86	When Winter Days Have Gone	Trayne
186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic	Randall
212	Why am I ever Watching	deLasaide
218	Why do Summer Roses Fade	Barker

DON'T FORGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-five cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.

Any 10 for 25 cents.
Any 21 for 50 cents.
Any 43 for $1.00.
Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any six of the above pieces free as a premium, and for 25c will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

THE SOLDIER'S BRIDE.

OR

ONLY A SAD, SWEET MEMORY.

WORDS AND MUSIC BY E. NINIAN.

Author of "The Little Orphan's Prayer," "Mamma's In Heaven," etc.

Copyright, 1897, by N. E. BYERS. English rights secured. A 50c. copy of above song with illustrated title page sent to any address for 10c. Address, N. E. BYERS, 410 W. 22nd St., N. Y. City, N. Y.

BEETHOVEN, THE COMPOSER.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

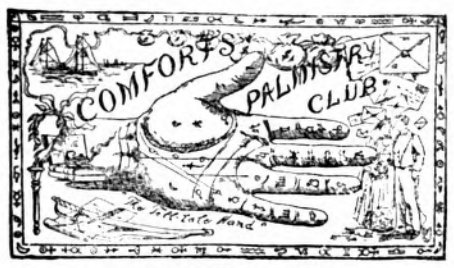
King of symphony composers, Beethoven is known to musical people by many works, but his most famous is the Ninth Symphony, which ranks in that line of composition with the same great lead that Handel's Hallelujah chorus has in the music of the oratorio. At the time this was written a symphony was not nine parts as now but anything where the composition was in unison.

Louis Van Beethoven was born at Bonn, Germany, on December 17, 1770, and at this beautiful town on the river Rhine spent his youth and attained his education. His father was a musician of fair capability, but enormous aspiration for musical fame. He conceived the idea that the boy should be educated for a master of music; but young Beethoven showed neither aptitude nor inclination for this end. Many a time the good German father was obliged to beat the son before he could force him to take his seat at the piano.

Beethoven in after years said that as long as it was held before him as a task he felt only aversion for music, but when allowed to look upon it as recreation, without being forced to it by friends, he began to love it. He then became absorbed in it. He began early in life to improvise and soon after to compose. It was while filled with the first success and youthful ambition that he suddenly became deaf, and ever after remained so. When we think what an affliction this was, it seems scarcely credible that the wonders in his composition were performed after he had become permanently deaf and even when he could neither hear the execution itself nor the thunders of tumultuous applause which followed.

His affliction had a peculiar effect upon him and in manner he was esteemed by all, but the few who were intimate with him, as proud and cold, and for years he was as deaf to the desires of society as he was physically deaf to sweet sounds of his own music, holding himself aloof for years from social gatherings. But, in the meantime, he was absorbed in composition and a delighted world of art welcomed with rare enthusiasm piece after piece of his ever glorious work.

His habits were peculiar and it is told that, as he walked with his pupils in the fields, he would mutter and make strange sounds and would break out with some phrase like this: "A theme has just occurred to me for the last allegro to my new sonata."



With this he would rush violently home followed by the pupils. Without removing coat or hat he would take seat at the piano, and forgetting pupils and everything, would pour out the new made melody until satisfactory to himself. He never married but a brother left him a son to rear. Beethoven took the little fellow home and became passionately devoted to him. As the young man grew up he illy requited the generosity of his guardian, and became wildly dissolute. His evil career made Beethoven's last days mournful in the extreme.

On the afternoon of March 26, 1827, Beethoven, then 57 years old, was seized with an alarming and mortal faintness. Every aid was extended without avail. In the evening amid the crashing of thunder and the vivid play of the lightning of an untimely and unnatural storm, the great composer sank peacefully to sleep never again to waken.

The Costliest Not Always the Best.

Many people believe nothing can be first class unless the price ticket attached bears high figures. Nothing can be more erroneous. The question is where can quality and low price be successfully combined. Modern machinery and business methods solve many such problems. In music nothing is so wonderful as the successful way in which COMFORT sends large sheet music for a trifle more than cost of mailing. Real full size music. Money is returned if not perfectly satisfactory. Look at the great offer on another page. You and your friends should get a lot of this.

Every reader desiring to obtain such a bargain in sheet music as has never been seen before should read the musical offer which COMFORT makes on another page. There is no catch or joke about this, for the music that is sent is exactly the same that is sold in every music store for from 35 to 75 cents a sheet. COMFORT will refund the money, little as it is, if not exactly as represented. Read the offer.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to COMFORT PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

THERE are a number of questions to be answered this month and as readers say they enjoy the answering of the questions even more than the reading of the hands, I shall try to answer a few in each number.

What does it mean to have a hand covered with hair, asks one member of the Palmistry Club. A hand, the back of which is very hairy shows inconstancy, while a perfectly hairless and smooth hand denotes folly and presumption. A hairy hand on a woman invariably denotes cruelty. A slight hairiness gives prudence and a love of luxury. According to an old Italian palmist hair on the thumb denotes ingenuity; on all the phalanges of the fingers a quick temper and choleric disposition.

Another member wants to know if the color of the hands makes any difference. It does a great deal. If the hands are always white and never change color except very slightly under the influences of heat or cold, they denote a cold, selfish disposition, self conceit and a lack of sympathy with others. The same old Italian says these rules do not hold good with soldiers, servants and working people, as their occupations would naturally change the color of the hands; but in the case of women and men, too, who do not work much with their hands and who take good care of them the following rules may be safely relied upon:

Redness of the skin denotes a hopeful temperament, yellowness denotes a bilious disposition, blackness indicates melancholy and pallor a phlegmatic spirit. Paleness also betrays effeminacy and a dark tint is always preferable to that. The best color for hands is a wholesome rosiness which betokens a bright and a lovable disposition.

Another correspondent wants to know what is the best shape and size for a palm. The palm should be naturally proportioned to the rest of the hand, that is the thumb and fingers; it should be about half the length of the hand and neither too wide nor too narrow. If the palm is thin, skinny and narrow it indicates great timidity and narrowness and intellect somewhat under the average. It also shows a lack of moral force and energy. A deep hollow palm is always a bad sign, showing money losses, misfortune and danger of failure in enterprises. It is evident, therefore, that the palm should be in proportion with the fingers, that it should be firm without being hard and elastic without approaching to flabbiness. This sort of palm indicates an evenly balanced mind, ready to accept impressions, intelligent and capable of judging for itself. But if the qualities just mentioned are too strongly developed the result will be overconfidence, selfishness and sensuality. Have you never shaken hands with a person whose grasp seemed to be like iron and in whose palm there was no more elasticity than in a stone? In such a case you may depend upon it that the person has brutal instincts, and a low grade of intelligence.

CARTER H. HARRISON.

The mounts of the hand have a great deal to do with the indication of character. Someone asks what is the leading mount? I mean by the leading mount, whichever one is most prominent in the hand I am reading. Sometimes there is no one mount more prominent than others and sometimes two or more are equally developed. In fact, it is seldom that a subject has only one mount developed, but it is always the case that where one mount is developed more than the others the characteristics of that mount will prevail over all others. If the subject has no particular mount prominent, that is if they are about equal in his hand, you will find a singular regularity of mind and harmony of existence. If on the contrary, you find that the mounts are none of them well developed, you will find that the subject is either lacking in natural abilities, or that he has never had any opportunity of developing any characteristics.

One of our members asks what the lines on the mounts mean. One line on a mount uncrossed by others is always a fortunate sign. If there are two lines the good fortune is lessened, especially if they are crossed; three lines, even, straight and parallel are a good sign, but if they are crooked or crossed in the least, they bring misfortune. If no one mount is developed over the other, the one which has most lines upon it may be considered the leading mount. Cross lines on a mount are always obstacles and seriously interfere with the progress of the main lines at these points. If, however, the ascending line is deeper than the cross lines, the evil indications of the cross lines will be destroyed.

The Mount of Jupiter is one of the best in the hand. If it is absent and there is a hollow under the forefinger instead the subject will be irreligious, undignified and vulgar. It is exceedingly rare however that one finds an utter lack of this mount. On the other hand, if the mount is excessively developed it indicates an arrogant, tyrannical disposition with a love of display. Such subjects will be vindictive, fond of pleasure and will spare nothing to attain their own private ends. A reasonable development of the Mount of Jupiter would give tendency toward religion, a love of nature, a vivacious disposition, high sense of honor and worthy ambitions. Public entertainers of all sorts have this mount well developed. Such subjects are self confident, polite and somewhat impetuous; they are usually well built and handsome and as a rule marry early. A cross on this mount denotes a happy marriage and a star when found in addition to the cross indicates a brilliant and advantageous alliance. Many confused lines on the mount betray a constant struggle for greatness and if these confused lines are crossed and badly mixed up they indicate unchastity. A square on Jupiter is a good sign indicating success brought about by the qualities indicated by the mount. A spot indicates a fall from some high position, while a triangle on this mount denotes diplomatic ability.

If the Mount of Jupiter is well developed with the Mount of Apollo also well developed, it indicates good fortune and wealth; if it is combined with a good Mount of Mercury, there is a love of exact science and philosophy. Such subjects make successful doctors, but if this combination comes in a hand otherwise bad it gives charlatanry, immorality and fanaticism. A combination of the Mounts of Jupiter and the Moon makes a subject honorable, placid and just. If the Jupiter and Venus mounts are both well developed it gives a sociable and generous disposition of the hand otherwise good, but in a bad hand it brings effeminacy, caprice and a love of low pleasures.

Another writer wants to know what proportion of gum arabic and water must be used to make fixatif. It is hardly worth while to try to make it at home. A half ounce of gum arabic dissolved in a tea cup full of boiling water and allowed to cool, will do if the gum arabic is not too strong; if so, it can be diluted. I should advise that the member send to the nearest city rather than doing this for herself.

The only hand which I shall read this month belongs to Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of Chicago. You will notice that this type of hand is one that indicates a man of strong character, somewhat stubborn in the pursuit of what he considers right and utterly lacking in fear of what other people may say of him. He is a very ambitious man and will attain the object of his ambition. You will notice that the life line begins high up on the Mount of Jupiter, which is a sign of ambition realized. He has had some struggles to go through and when he was about thirty or thereabouts, he had some serious obstacles to fight. He has, however, come out triumphantly from them all. At the age of forty-five to fifty, he will have practically the same battle to fight over again as he had at an earlier age. His life line deflects at the age of about fifty and goes over toward the Mount of the Moon in a very peculiar way. This would indicate that the latter part of his life would take an unexpected direction, but that he will not live to be very old. I see one successful and happy marriage. He is inclined to be somewhat romantic in his tastes, although exceedingly practical in his every day life. He has fine ideas of things both in public and private life and will make an excellent servant to the public as long as he lives. He will travel considerably and his last journey will seriously affect his life. He has the qualities necessary to make an excellent public speaker, is fearless and bold in uttering his convictions and has a way of not only convincing but disarming his hearers. I do not know anything about the early circumstances of Mayor Harrison, but I should read from his hand that he was a self-made man and that what property he gets will be by his own efforts. While he will have a comfortable fortune during the latter part of his days, he will never be one of our remarkably rich men. On the whole his is the hand of an upright, honorable, generous and public spirited citizen.

Digitus

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best collection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a FREE present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

Tobacco Cure

A new remedy has been discovered that is odorless and tasteless can be mixed with coffee or food and when taken into the system a man cannot use tobacco in any form. It will cure even the confirmed cigarette fiend and is a God-send to mothers who have growing boys addicted to the smoking of cigarettes. A free trial package of the remedy will be mailed prepaid upon application to Rogers Drug & Chemical Co., 779 Fifth & Race Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. This will help any woman to solve the problem of curing her husband, son or brother of a habit that undermines the health leaving the body susceptible to numerous lingering and dangerous diseases.

UPON THEIR OATH

Weltmerism, the New Science Which Cures All Diseases Without the Aid of Drugs or Surgeon's Knife, Put to a Most Severe Test.

Hundreds Testify Upon Their Oath to the Great Curative Power of This Wonderful Discovery—Not from Heresay, but by Actual Application.

WELTMERISM NO LONGER A SECRET.

Prof. S. A. Weltmer, the originator of Weltmerism, brought suit against one Dr. Bishop, living in Nevada, Mo., for making the statement that Weltmerism was fraud, and the case was brought up before that eminent jurist, Judge Graves. The testimonial in this case was most remarkable, as hundreds of men and women, full of gratitude to the author of their restored health traveled thousands of miles to testify on their oath that they had been cured through Weltmerism. In this trial Weltmerism had thrust upon it the searchlight of not only legal investigations, but physicians throughout the country were called upon the stand to see if they could not prove it a fraud. One of the instructions of the court was as follows: "If you find from all the evidence and facts and circumstances in evidence that Weltmerism was and had been substantially beneficial to the general public, and their methods had substantially produced the results claimed for them, then you should find for the plaintiff." As the jury found for the plaintiff—Weltmer and his co-laborer, Kelly—against the defendant, Dr. Bishop, to the extent of $750 and costs, Weltmerism has been sustained and substantially endorsed as has no other curing power known to man. Had not Prof. Weltmer been absolutely positive that his new science, which is now known throughout the world as Weltmerism been all that he claimed for it, and had he not known that it would absolutely cure all diseases known to man and woman, both by personal application and by the absent treatment, we would not dare to put it to the test which he did. For it is acknowledged that the case just closed was one of the bitterest ever fought, as he had arrayed against him physicians of the old school, and also that class of people who always fight a new discovery in the field of science. And the glorious victory won by him, for his method, is such an absolute proof that it is efficacious and that it has at last placed the curing of disease into the domain of an exact science that we must now accept Weltmerism as the curing power of the future. Is it not grand that just as the waning nineteenth century is about to bid farewell and we can just catch a glimpse of the approaching twentieth century, that we have placed before us a method whereby all diseases can be cured and we need no longer fear that we will be drugged to death by medicines or cut to pieces by the surgeon's knife? For this grand discovery eliminates all this danger and unfurls a banner whereupon is written in glowing letters, "Medicine a thing of the past." The testimonials that were brought into court showed that more than 53,000 people had been treated by the absent method, and out of this enormous number it was shown that only twelve had not been cured. This is indeed a remarkable record. For our own satisfaction we have had Prof. Kelly, the co-laborer of Prof. Weltmer, send us a few testimonials, which we take pleasure in publishing here:

T. T. Rodes, of Paris, Mo., the Prosecuting Attorney of Monroe County, suffered for years with Sciatic Rheumatism. Tried everything without benefit. Was instantly cured through Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. Mrs. C. R. Graham, of Boise City, Iowa, was afflicted for nine years with rheumatism; she could not walk without crutches or lift her hand to her head; she paid out $3000 with doctors before coming to Nevada. She now proclaims herself cured and a happy woman, through Weltmerism. Mrs. D. H. Allen, of Aurora Springs, Mo., was in a hopeless condition, as she suffered from consumption in its worst form. She could not sleep without the aid of morphine. Tried everything without relief. Fully restored by Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. D. E. Alford, of Rubens, Jewell Co., Kan., suffered for three years with Kidney and Stomach troubles; tried the best medical authorities, but was told that his case was hopeless. Took Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment and in three days was cured.

Mrs. Jennie L. Lynch, Lakeview, Mo., was for two years afflicted with ulceration of the womb, heart and stomach troubles and general debility; was reduced to a mere skeleton. After taking gallons of obnoxious medicines, without relief, she tried the Weltmer Absent Treatment. In less than thirty days she was entirely relieved and gained fifteen pounds.

Weltmerism is undoubtedly the greatest discovery of the age, and the Absent Treatment of this wonderful science is indeed a revelation, for through it Prof. Weltmer can reach all classes of people, no matter at what distance they live. By writing Prof. S. A. Weltmer, Nevada, Mo., you will receive free of charge, The Magnetic Journal, a 40-page illustrated Magazine, and a long list of the most remarkable cures ever made.

TEACHES HIS ART TO OTHERS.

Prof. Weltmer teaches his wonderful art to others, and it is the grandest and best paying profession of the age. Many of his students are making $10 to $50 per day. Taught by mail or personal instruction. Full instruction sent free to those writing to Prof. J. H. Kelly, Secy Nevada, Mo.

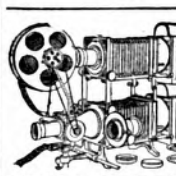
Send No Money. You get both FREE

This elegant SOLID GOLD plated stylish curb link Bracelet, beautifully engraved, with heart shaped locket that opens with a dainty little key, & also this magnificent Solid Gold Shell Birthday Ring. You get both of them free. Just send us your name & address (letter or postal), that's all, & we will send you 20 Pks. of our Sweet Leonin Perfume to sell at 10c. when sold, send us the money & we will promptly send you this Bracelet & Ring. We run all the risk and take back what you cannot sell. Our reliability is established. We refer to the publisher of this paper or to any National Bank in this city. Our Perfume sells at sight & is wanted in every home.

LEONIN CO., Dept. 614 St. Louis, Mo.

COUPON NO. 614
If you are wise you'll cut out & return this coupon to us, & we will send you an elegant Gold plated Stone set Ring free for accepting our offer to-day.

$3.75 BUYS A $30 WATCH



The handsomest and best watch in the world for the money, superbly engraved, double Hunting case, stem wind and stem set, fitted with a high grade ruby jeweled movement, absolutely guaranteed for

25 YEARS.

Cut this out and send it to us and we will send you the watch by express for examination. If as represented, pay our special price, $3.75 and express charges and it is yours. Mention if you desire ladies' or gents' size. Order today, as we will send out samples at this reduced price 60 days only.

CALURET WATCH CO., Dept. 8 Chicago

SILK FREE Large pkg. pretty piece and 100 crazy stitches free with 3 months' subscription to our paper, for 10c. or six 2c. stamps. Women's Home Monthly, B 5, St. Louis, Mo.

MOVING PICTURE

And other Complete Public Exhibition Outfits for $23.75, $54.50 and up.

$5.00 to $100.00 PER DAY (without experience) is being made by hundreds. We furnish complete Outfits, Instruction Book, Advertising matter, big posters, tickets, etc. For full particulars address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

$2.75 buys a MAPLE AND REED BODY Baby Carriage

$5.00 Buys a Beauty complete with rubber tire wheels and parasol. Full line of Sleeping Coaches and Go-Carts. 48 page Catalogue Free. Address Dept. 75 VICTOR MANFG. CO. 161 to 167 Plymouth Place, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or used as side dish or for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a moment for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. Augusta Maine.

CONFECTION, FOOD, MEDICINE.

[TRADE MARK.]

Two Thousand Packages Shelled Peanuts SENT FREE.

SELL 12 PACKAGES AND GET A WATCH.

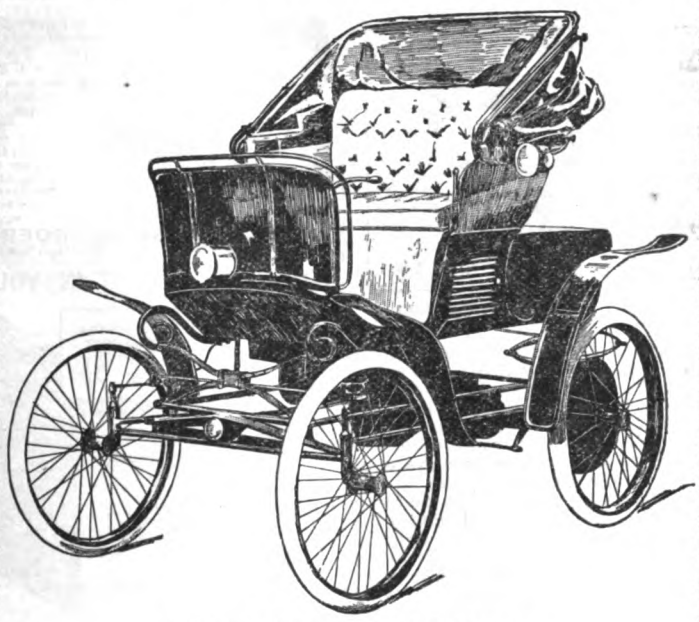
The art of shelling and salting peanuts has just reached perfection. As a confection they are peerless, as a food unequaled. German scientists have spent years experimenting with Peanut flour. It is found to contain three times the nutriment of wheat; and whole salted peanuts, being so much more palatable than wheat, have also been found with a slight addition of Pepsin Salt to be a sure cure for Dyspepsia and other stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Yes, even persons with Bright's Disease or Diabetes can now be cured. It is only necessary for old or young to eat a few of our Pepsin Salted Peanuts after meals to keep in perfect health—but they can also be eaten in any quantity as a confection without the least distress or trouble to the weakest stomach. Children delight to feast on them and they are much better than candy. They also cure Heart Burn and Insomnia.

To Form Part of the Treat or Refreshments at party gatherings, sociables, etc., they are indispensable, and to have them on the table as dessert is the best of form. Everyone, both old and young, now wants a few in the pocket at all times to nibble on—for with all the troublesome oils properly treated as they are in our special process of Curing and Roasting Peanuts, they have at last lost all terrors to weak stomachs, and are warranted not to become rancid, and to keep well in any climate.

FREE We will send two thousand packages of these Pepsin Salted Peanuts out to responsible parties who furnish proper references. You sell 12 ten-cent packages and get a watch, a guaranteed good timekeeper. But to first introduce them quickly we send one package as a sample free to any one enclosing six cents for a three months' subscription to COMFORT. FREE

You can then test them and see how many packages you want to start with. No attention paid to first orders without trial 6c subscription. Write at once and be among the first to get the free packages.

Address, COMFORT FOOD DEP'T C, Augusta, Maine.



BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

COASTER brake, or "free wheel" devices, as they are called in England, are so popular, interesting and mysterious that a plain, simple description of them by an expert, devoid of technical terms, such as here follows, will not be amiss. The mechanism of a coaster brake device is all contained in the rear hub, from which it is operated by different and varying pressures communicated to the mechanism through the medium of the rear sprocket, front sprocket, chain, cranks and pedals. In the rear hub is contained a clutch operating upon five or six rollers or balls, which roll into place in separate grooves, these grooves being tapered and larger at one end than the other. When a forward pressure is applied to the pedal the balls run up into the small ends of the grooves and lock the clutch so that the sprocket and hub revolve as one. When it is desired to coast, a slight pressure is put upon the pedals when one pedal is at its highest point and the other is at its lowest point, and the balls, or rollers, then drop back to the large ends of the grooves, so that the hub revolves with the wheel, but the sprockets, chain, cranks and pedals remain stationary. To apply the brake a firm pressure, called back pedaling is applied to the pedals, which communicates this pressure through the lower part of the chain to the rear sprocket, which then wedges or jams a disk against a drum containing a spring or other device against the hub shell and effectually stops the rear wheel from revolving. A slight pressure forward releases this jam and the wheel rolls along as before.

Wheelmen will recall the spring saddle which was put forth by Mr. Garford in 1891. This saddle gave way in the following year to a less complicated arrangement. With the year 1893 came the pneumatic tire, withdrawing the necessity of the large serpentine and flexible springs. By successive and radical improvements the saddle was brought to something approaching its present shape. Subsequent changes made in turn, the soft saddle and the hard, or with the inner wooden piece, were mere side issues that operated chiefly in bringing the saddle to its present state of perfection. Now riders can find themselves suited in all directions. Mr. Garford says that the saddle is a point of the wheel's makeup practically untouched by style and fad and says that as far as 1900 models are concerned the standard types will fully satisfy the public.

When it began to be seen that the coaster brake would be one of the chief innovations for 1900, there arose much questioning as to whether or not it would be possible for it to be applied to chainless wheels. This has been done successfully, and the first opportunity for the public to view a chainless wheel fitted with such a device has been afforded by the show. The entire mechanism by which the pedals are made "free" so that the feet may remain on them while the wheels revolve, is fitted on the rear hub. The application of the brake is made by back pedalling, as in chain wheels, but the braking on the bevel gear wheels is not the result of compression on a ring of spring steel within the hub attachment, as in the case of the chain machines. In the new application the left hand side of the rear hub is connected with a rod, that is fulcrumed on a short arm lever at the rear stays, and this lever forces a metal spoon against the rear tire when the back pedalling pressure is applied.

ONE OF THE LATEST AUTOMOBILES.

The old time "dandy horse" or "draisine" is certainly an antiquity. Its massive saddle and framework are in strong contrast to the light, clean running, chainless wheel of to-day. The "dandy horse" has neither pedals nor cranks. They were not needed in its day. The rider bestrode the saddle and propelled the wheel by touching his toes to the ground and pushing it along. What he did when ascending a hill is not explained. Some rough models, with saddles so large as to suggest easy chairs, and with cranks attached to the forward wheel are next in line. Next came the "ordinaries", with the high front and the small rear wheel; a "crossbar" safety, some 40-pound diamond frames and models of the chain wheels which three or four years ago were considered the acme of perfection in cycle construction; and then the modern chainless.

A combination pedal appears this year, which, when fitted with rubbers, seems to have been designed as a rubber pedal only. With rubbers removed, however, it does not appear incomplete, but as if designed as a rat trap pedal. The rubbers, being triangular, are light and interchangeable, but each may be turned to present three separate contact surfaces.

Some of the new models in bicycles are really things of beauty. In finish and in general lines they are really the superior of anything heretofore put on the market. Bicycles are lighter this year than last and the change is a popular one. A saving in some cases of five pounds has been made on the 1899 models, which agents generally have reported as too heavy to please the majority of riders. Bevel geared chainless models are those in which the largest saving in weight has been made. New ideas in cutting the gears have permitted some economy in weight.

Inflating of tires has always been much of an annoyance to many, but the disagreeable and laborious part can be obviated now by the use of the automatic bicycle pump. This machine is small, box-shaped, and weighs less than fifty pounds. It can be placed anywhere, although most convenient when attached to a rack. The mechanism is simple. To operate the pump, it is only necessary to drop a cent in the slot, press the knob, insert the valve, turn the crank and the tire is inflated.

It is stated on good authority that dealers are ordering from ten to twenty samples, where they ordered one or two a year ago. This is the best evidence of the healthful condition of the industry that we can possibly have at this time of the year. With our roads being improved right along the interest in the sport and recreation is bound to increase further. You will see more people on the roads with the opening of the outdoor season than was the case a year ago. The person who has become accustomed to getting out in the air on a bicycle quickly realizes the good that has been done for him mentally and physically, and anybody who says that such a person is going to give up the bicycle simply does not know what he is talking about.

Oil is a most permeative substance, and as a lubricant a very little is better than much. For several years one of the distinctive structural features of a famous wheel made in Boston has been a patented system of self-oiling bearings, consisting of a hollow axle which, stuffed with an oil-saturated wick, constitutes an interior oil chamber, connected by small ducts to the cups. Once oiled through the end of the axle the balls run in a light film of oil through the whole season.

Spokes, though larger, are made much better than formerly, and are much more carefully plated. A concern which manufactures spokes for its own well-known bicycles and for many others says that in all the wheels it sold in New York during 1899 not one defective spoke was returned, the only breaks being due to accidents.

Electric vehicles are called by a dozen different names, while there is a like number of expressions used in connection with the pastime. The motor vehicles are termed autocars, autodoes, autogoes, teuf teufs, automobiles, autobains and other expressive names and terms of indefinite origin. The favorite name for the person who operates the carriage is automobilist, or chaffeur. French terms predominate, for it must be admitted that as a sport automobilism originated in France.

The automobile is all right for him who wants it, but I am satisfied with the bicycle. Nothing pleases me better, nothing does me more good than an hour's ride in the morning before breakfast. A man with a bicycle always seems to feel that he has his best friend with him.

A REMARKABLE VIEW.

One of the most remarkable pictures that has been seen by COMFORT for a long time is a print being sent to publishers by Dr. R. V. Pierce of the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. The view is of the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute owned by the Association, and before it stand the seven large automobiles which are used by them in the distribution of advertising matter, etc. Nothing could better show the enterprise and reliability of Dr. Pierce than this view. The substantial, large hotel which adjoins and the immense plant and the graceful, modern vehicles speak volumes to the observer. Dr. Pierce's reputation, skill and reliability are world-famous, and no more progressive a practitioner is now in public life. The proprietary remedies he handles are so well known as to be proverbial in the household. COMFORT congratulates the Association upon the high position it holds and Dr. Pierce, especially, on his continued success.

ARCH OF TRIUMPH.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

From time immemorial there has been the same acclamation and absolutely uncontrolled enthusiasm over a conquerer. And always this has been partially expressed in the erection of an arch for the hero to pass through, dragging his conquests entraine.

After a lapse of eighteen centuries there stands at the present day the arch erected to commemorate the conquest of Jerusalem by Titus—one of the grandest relics of imperial Rome.

When New York City prepared to welcome Admiral Dewey, C. R. Lamb, in collaboration with a number of America's foremost sculptors, planned and erected a Triumphal Arch and took for a model this "Arch of Titus".

The Dewey Arch stands across the Avenue, with an approach of colonades which stretch one block in each direction, north and south. Like the Exposition buildings in '93, it is made of "staff"—a skeleton of wood, covered with wire netting, over which is a plaster of Paris coating. In the groups and figures excelsior was used for a foundation.

Surmounting the arch is a group representing, naval victory by J. Q. A. Ward. "Victory" stands in a chariot drawn by sea-horses, with Tritons as couriers. This group was completed in six weeks' time.

Next in merit are the four groups at the base of the Arch. On the north-east is "Call to Arms". The group on the south-east represents sailors in the heat of combat. On the south-west "The Return," in which Admiral Dewey figures prominently. And on the north-west "Peace". On the inside of each of the columns is Martiny's "Victory", duplicate of that which adorns the newel posts in the Congressional Library at Washington. On either side of "Victory" are two Ionic pillars forty-five feet in height and each of these columns bears the name of one of the ships in Admiral Dewey's fleet.

It is unfortunate that such a work of art should have been made of perishable material. Even a very few weeks after completion the changes in atmosphere had noticeably effected it around the base. But as the public are advocating a duplicate in stone, in the course of a very few years New York City will doubtless have an "Arch de Triumph" which will rival that of the Parisians on the Champs-Elysses.

Do You Want a Buggy?

If you have any use for a fine open or top buggy, surrey, phaeton or spring wagon at the lowest price ever heard of, a price that will surprise you, privilege of free trial and payable after received, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, Ill., and they will mail you their very latest and extremely interesting vehicle offer and special catalogue.

RAZOR STEEL BOY'S KNIFE, 15c.; MAN'S 2-BLADE, (see cut) 75c., Both for 60c. postpaid. Every M. & G. blade is hand forged from razor steel, file tested, warranted. This cut is exact size of 75-cent strong knife. We will send you one for 48c.; 5 for $2, postpaid. Best 7-inch shears, 60c. (75c. knife and shears, $1.) Lady's 2-blade pearl, 25c. Send for 80-page free list and "How to Use a Razor." Agents Wanted.

MAHER & GROSH CO.,
71 A Street, Toledo, Ohio.

STOVES. WE SELL STEEL RANGES, Cast Iron Cook Stoves, Ranges and Heaters, Gasoline and Coal Oil Ranges and Burners at about ONE-HALF RETAIL PRICES. We ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for Free Stove Catalogue. Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

WANTED MAN with horse and buggy to sell Pasture Stock Food. Salary $15 per week and 10 per cent. on all sales. Farmer preferred. Previous experience not essential. Pasture Stock Food is the greatest discovery ever made in practical and scientific feeding, and is sold on an absolute guarantee. Steady, permanent trade easily established. Sample bag sufficient for two weeks' feeding, free. Send 25 cents in stamps or silver to cover express charges. PASTURE STOCK FOOD COMPANY, 317 Boyce Bldg., Chicago.

FREE. SILVER WATCH FREE!
These Watches are Solid Silver, Ladies' or Gents' size, and at retail would cost upwards of $8. or $10, but to introduce our Persian Petrified Perfumery we will send you this Watch Free if you take advantage of our marvelous offer. If you want one CUT THIS OUT write to us without delay. With your letter send us your name & postoffice address and we will send you on consignment, to sell for 5 cents each, 20 cases of Persian Petrified Perfumery and our offer. After you receive the beautiful Watch we shall expect you to show it to your friends and call their attention to this advertisement. The Watch is sent Free, by Registered Post, on your complying with our advertisement, and the marvelous offer which we send, and it is Fully Warranted. You will be more than satisfied. Address at once,
PERSIAN PERFUMERY CO.,
19 Warren St., New York.

FREE

56 PIECES FULL-SIZE, For Families.
Every person answering this advertisement can get a Handsomely Decorated Set, absolutely free—we mean it. A straight-forward, honest offer, by a reliable House to advertise its business, for everybody to accept. We ask NO MONEY with your name, send at once post-office address & nearest Express or Freight Depot. Remember every one can have their choice of Breakfast, Dinner or Tea Set Free. All sets carefully boxed & packed at our expense. No one is barred out of this offer—positively will not go back on it, no matter what it costs us.
FASHIONS COMPANY
New York City, Dept. 46E P. O. Box 2617.

A Pencil That Will Think For You.
The Great Profit Maker of the Century.

All Problems Solved. Short Cut to Results. A Quick Sum Total. No Mistakes Possible With Sunshine's Calculating Pencil.

Here is the only reliable never-failing standby. It is the neatest educational novelty of the day. This pencil is a marvel of ingenious mechanism, and a great profit maker for agents.

You will hardly believe that this pencil can figure quicker and more accurately than you can. It will calculate anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twinkle of an eye. It gives you 144 combinations and is absolutely correct. It can't make mistakes. It is made of pure Aluminum and attached to a Faber Pencil. Fits any ordinary pencil. It has a good eraser. It protects your pencil point. It is a pencil lengthener and stays in your pocket.

Let Sunshine's Calculating Pencil do your figuring and give your head a rest. A sleepy man will get more accurate results with its aid than a wide awake calculator could get without it. Simply and solidly made. Interesting and instructive to everyone. You can't think half as quickly and accurately as this pencil does it for you. Teaches children more in one hour than they learn in a week in any other way. Simple as a clothespin to manipulate, a child can learn to work it in five minutes, it never blunders, is easy to see through. Tell your friends and teachers about this wonderful device, it's the greatest educational novelty out. Interests dull pupils as well as bright ones. Creates enthusiasm in mental calculation and helps in the most difficult subject with which both teacher and pupil have to deal. We send full directions with each pencil so you can get it ready to work as quick and easy as you open a jackknife. You can multiply quicker than an expert, a lightning calculator. Get one to-day.

It is especially recommended to young people starting in business life and to those with neglected education. Even the Indian office of the U. S. Government has recognized its educational merits and recommended that the superintendents of all Indian schools be supplied with samples.

SPECIAL OFFER. These Calculating Pencils sell for 25c. each, but we are anxious to show you how wonderful they are so will send one free to all who enclose 15c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great monthly; two pencils and a year's subscription for only 25c. Thousands are sold by agents. Six pencils for 60c., twelve for one dollar, all charges paid by us. One hundred for $7.50, express not paid. Address SUNSHINE, Box L, Augusta, Maine.

By a Twist of the Wrist this Little Wonder Solves all Mathematical Problems as Quick as a Wink.

HIGH GRADE BICYCLE $9
Warranted one year. No Money in advance. You examine the bicycle critically before you pay one cent. It is strictly high-grade, finely finished, fully described and illustrated in our BIG FREE BICYCLE CATALOG Write for it today. We control our own factory, specify every piece of material that goes into our bicycles and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices.
AGENTS WANTED Make big wages. We furnish bicycles to ride while taking orders. Write for special offer and catalog.
THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155-157 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE You can get this Gold Watch, Chain & Charm for selling my remedies. (I give splendid PREMIUMS or CASH COMMISSIONS. Write me and I will send six vials of Carson's Liver Pills to sell at 25 cents a vial. Send money when sold, 48 hours from pills. MY LETTERS WILL EXPLAIN ALL. A. M. CARSON, 3118 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

RHEUMATISM IS DEAD!
Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy for Rheumatism and it made a record of absolute cures in Acute Rheumatism, frequently called rheumatic fever, Pericarditis (inflammation of the investing membrane of the heart), Endocarditis (inflammation of the living membrane of the heart), subacute rheumatism, sometimes applied to the less severe attacks of the disease, chronic rheumatism, which swells and twists the joints and sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. In fact Oxien is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism in any form. Thousands jump for joy and many write as follows:

Received OXIEN O. K. Found it far superior to what you represent. Have tried everything I could hear of for rheumatism. For ten years I have been crippled up with this terrible disease. Laid in bed one whole year. Could not turn or feed myself and when I was able to walk on crutches (which I did for four years) was crooked and unable to straighten up, but Oxien did it and you can imagine how happy I am now. Yours sincerely, Geo. F. Lawton, Olympia, Wash., Feby. 9th, 1898.

FREE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.
This momentous offer we make in order to more thoroughly introduce this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us their word that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered entitled to free treatment. Therefore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.
THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

$4.00 for 25c
LADIES'—SHOES—GENTS'
Send 4c postage for our four-ticket book and full instructions how to get a $4.00 pair of Shoes for only 25 cents.
LOVERING SHOE MFG. CO., Dept. 24, St. Paul, Minn.

CURRENT TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

GEN. GEO. B. DAVIS.

ONE of the most interesting events in the American Congress during the past month has been the debate on the Porto Rico tariff, which has been followed very closely by the members of the House and Senate, as well as by the press and people generally. The question is an entirely new one in American politics, and opens a wide field to debaters. At first, by recommendation of the President and the Secretary of War, it seemed that Porto Rico would be adopted as an integral part of the United States with the probability of becoming at some future time a state, meantime being in the position of any United States territory. Under the Constitution, there could be no import or export duty on any commerce between states and territories of the Union.

This proposition immediately gave rise to the question of the cheap labor of Porto Rico brought in direct contact with the higher paid labor in the States, and particularly as to its effect on domestic tobacco, the beet and sugar cane interests of the United States, and other agricultural industries which it was felt would suffer when brought into direct competition with products of the island, cultivated as it is by labor paid at less than one-fourth of what a white man receives in this country. The Ways and Means Committee of the House finally brought in a tariff based on 25 per cent. of the Dingley tariff now existing against other countries. The entire proceeds both of the import and export tax thus imposed would be devoted to the schools and other public institutions of the island itself, and to be kept in a reserve fund for this.

The debate in Congress brought up the question of free trade immediately, and party lines were closely drawn. The debate was interesting, and at times fierce; the chief points being the secession of Hon. C. E. Littlefield of Maine and Representative McCall of Massachusetts from the Republican ranks, and their speeches in favor of the opposition. Mr. Littlefield is a young man just elected from the District formerly represented by the late Nelson Dingley. He is a ready debater, and the contest on this bill indicated that he has as yet not found his match on the floor. It will be remembered that Mr. Littlefield took a prominent part in the Roberts exclusion case, and at that time voted against the settlement of his party. It is a bold thing for any new man in Congress to stand out against party leaders; but Mr. Littlefield is apparently fearless, and consistently opposed the requests of the Republican leaders. After an exciting debate lasting several days, in which at times it was supposed the bill was lost, and at no time it would be carried by more than a majority of five, it passed the House on its final passage by a vote of 172 to 161, five Republicans voting with the minority and four Democratic with the majority. The bill now goes to the Senate where it will be passed with certain modifications, returned to the House for conference, and undoubtedly passed without further debate to be signed by President McKinley.

This tariff act is only for two years, and is based upon 15 per cent. of the Dingley bill. The great point which is carried by it is not the question of tariff or free trade, but as to the future treatment of acquired territory by the United States. Immediately after President McKinley sent special message to Congress relative to all tariff money being put aside for the island. A very large proportion of the people, especially the Democratic party, claim that all acquired territory should become a part of the Union and have the same rights, and that it is unconstitutional to impose any customs tax upon it. On the contrary a very great many Americans believe that these newly acquired islands should be treated as dependencies, while they should be a voting power by a representative of the United States Government appointed by the President. In other words, that they are to be dependencies and colonies the same as is so successfully carried out by the English colonial system, but that they cannot be placed on an equal footing with the rest of the Union or have a representation in Congress. This debate may be looked upon as one of the first engagements of the coming presidential contest.

As the presidential campaign approaches, the movements of the expected candidates are being closely watched. There seems to be no possible doubt that President McKinley will be renominated by acclamation and without the slightest opposition. While he has some opposition, which is partly relative to certain questions, especially so-called imperialism and expansion, there is not enough to make a respectable showing should it come to voting for delegates to the convention. It is not probable that a single member of the forthcoming Republican convention will be in any way opposed to Mr. McKinley. The Democratic party, being out of power, has already placed itself in opposition to about every plank the administration will probably stand upon; but on any of the questions, especially on that of expansion, the Democratic states are apparently quite solid in the ideas advanced under those names.

HON. C. E. LITTLEFIELD.

Mr. Bryan, who was candidate for president in 1896, is now touring the country and talking on the various issues which may be expected in the coming campaign. He denounces trusts, opposes expansion, denies the general prosperity of the country, and again commits himself to the 16 to 1 silver question. There is no candidate for this high office in sight in the Democratic ranks beside Mr. Bryan and there seems to be no probable doubt that he will receive an equally unanimous nomination by the Democrats as will be given President McKinley by the Republicans.

While the heads of the two tickets are practically settled at this early date and apparently with no question, there is much doubt as to who will be selected as candidates for the vice-presidency. On the Republican side it was expected that some New Yorker would be nominated by acclamation, but so many have appeared representing different factions that there has since been general newspaper talk of taking a man from the far West. Hon. Arthur Sewall of Bath, Maine, who was candidate for vice-president with Mr. Bryan has recently returned from Honolulu and come out openly for expansion and for the re-election of President McKinley, which of course removes him from being renominated with Mr. Bryan. This will open the field to numerous aspirants. The Republican national convention is to be held in Philadelphia, June 19th. It is custommary for the administration to hold the earlier convention, but there is considerable agitation in the Democratic ranks for a convention early in May and an attack on the administration all along the line.

Concensus of opinion would indicate that the Republican nomination will go to the State of New York, Governor Roosevelt, Senator Woodruff, Cornelius Bliss, and other prominent New Yorkers having been mentioned to fill this place; but each has antagonists within the State. It is desired by the Republicans to obtain a candidate who will unite all the elements in that party in the Empire State. The most recently spoken of candidate is Gen. Horace Porter, now United States Ambassador to France; besides being a man of the most eminent ability and experience, he has no enemies in his own State. It is probable that he could have the nomination without question, but his personal wishes are against it, and his friends declare that he has expressed himself in the most emphatic terms as being entirely averse to any such position.

On the Democratic side, there is every reason for supposing that there will be a fusion of the Populist and Democratic parties without the mistake which was made in 1886 of the same presidential head with two vice-presidential candidates. Mr. Bryan will receive the nomination by acclamation in both parties, and all indications point to the nomination of Hon. W. Caldwell of Kansas, a distinguished Populist leader, as Mr. Bryan's running mate. The Democratic Convention is to be held in Kansas City, July 4th, and will probably be accompanied with much dramatic display. One of the projects at the present time is to have all the members sign a new Declaration of Independence at noon July 4th, and at the same time nominate Mr. Bryan by acclamation. The new Declaration of Independence is naturally to be anti-imperialistic and in favor of the Filipinos, Cubans and Porto Ricans.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

In regard to Porto Rico, there have been frantic appeals for immediate Congressional action on account of the impoverished condition of the island. Brig.-Gen. George B. Davis, the Governor of Porto Rico, declared publicly that he could not overstate the gravity of the industrial paralysis now existing in that island. He said that the only remedy that he could suggest was the opening of American markets for the accumulated surplus of products, and such Congressional legislation as would give confidence to investors and encourage the development of the natural resources. Until this could be done, he saw no way to prevent an increasing number of people to be fed to keep away starvation.

A great deal has been said about the condition of Cuba, and much to the detriment of the Government, which has been circulated in American papers by interested people. The general idea given by these reports is that the Spanish corruption continues under American rule, and that no progress is made in the building up of the island.

While the Spaniards and a few educated Cubans desire annexation to America, the greater part of the population, and especially the colored and half-breeds, are anxious for another revolution. Most careful examination and reports indicate that while the United States made mistakes in many instances, it could only be expected considering the great difference that exists between Spanish and American customs, and the people of Cuba and the United States; but, as a whole, the people should have every reason to be satisfied with the main result of the efforts of the American officials during the past twelve months. Complete chaos and rebellion have given place to good order; all sections of the populace are living in greater tranquility than was ever before known in Cuba; crimes against life and property are less common than in many a community much more civilized; the revenues show a substantial surplus over the expenditures; the industrial life of the island has made such progress as to insure material prosperity in the near future. A looker on says it is only necessary to watch for a moment the look of contentment on the faces of the vast majority of Cubans, and compare their undisguised happiness with the terror-stricken appearance of these people a couple of years ago to realize what good work has been done. It is undoubtedly true that from now to the presidential election all sorts of stories will obtain circulation indicating a complete failure of American affairs in all these dependent islands. Readers should not pay too much attention to newspaper reports of this kind, as they will be circulated in exaggerated form for political purposes, and not as judicial statements.

The situation in Kentucky has developed into a state bordering on civil war. After an exciting campaign, which will be remembered by all readers, the Returning Board of Kentucky decided that Mr. Taylor had been elected Governor by a comparatively small majority. The Kentucky Legislature when it met, having a majority of democrats, promptly passed resolutions declaring that William Goebel, the democratic contestant, was elected. Gov. Taylor called out the troops and surrounded the State House at Frankfort. On the morning of the 30th, as Mr. Goebel was approaching the building, he was shot by some unknown party, and carried to the hotel where his wound was found to be mortal. Notwithstanding his precarious condition, he was sworn in as Governor of the State of Kentucky, and immediately issued proclamations. Mr. Goebel dismissed the Adjutant commanding the State Militia, which is supposed to be composed of partisans of Taylor, and appointed a Democrat. Meanwhile Gov. Taylor issued a proclamation declaring that Kentucky was in a state of insurrection, and adjourning the legislature to meet Feb. 6th in London, a Republican stronghold.

MR. GOEBEL.

GOV. TAYLOR.

Mr. Goebel struggled determinedly against his fate all the week, and finally died; and within an hour J. C. W. Beckham, who had been returned by the Democratic legislative board as elected Lieutenant-Governor, was sworn in as Governor. The following day it was announced that the Democratic seat of government would be established at Louisville. The press of the country very generally upheld the de facto State Government of Gov. Taylor, although his action in adjourning the legislature to London has been criticised as illegal. Notwithstanding the large number of armed people in the streets and the militia stationed in different parts of Frankfort, no armed hostilities have occurred at this writing; the whole case is in the courts for adjudication; but there is continued danger of a state of civil war in the commonwealth.

CLOTHING SALESMEN WANTED

$150.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES MADE BY ALL OUR ACTIVE MEN. WE PAY MANY FAR MORE. WE WANT MEN IN EVERY COUNTY IN THE UNITED STATES. If your reference is satisfactory we will start you at once. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. NO CAPITAL REQUIRED. We furnish a full line of samples, stationery, etc., and tailors-to-the-trade complete outfit ready for business. NO COMMISSION PLAN. You regulate your profits to suit yourself. NO HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS. This is not one of the many catchy advertisements for agents, but one of the very few advertisements offering a rare opportunity to secure a strictly HIGH GRADE EMPLOYMENT at BIG WAGES.

WE ARE THE WORLD'S LARGEST TAILORS. We buy our cloth direct from the LARGEST AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MILLS. We control the entire output of several of these mills. We own our materials at the lowest possible cost, and operate the most extensive and economic tailoring plant in existence, and cut to measure and make to order Suits and Overcoats from $5.00 to $15.00 (mostly $5.00 to $10.00). Pants from $1.50 to $5.00. Fancy Vests from $2.00 up. The days of ready-made clothing are numbered. AT THESE PRICES everyone will prefer to have his garments cut to his measure and made to his order. NO DIFFICULTY IN GETTING ORDERS.

OUR PLAN. If your references are satisfactory we start you out at once. We furnish you FREE a complete AGENT'S SAMPLE BOOK AND OUTFIT. Our large, handsome, leather bound Sample Book contains our entire line of Suitings, Overcoatings, Trouserings and Vestings; full instructions for taking measurements (which you can learn in 5 minutes from the large photographic illustrations in the book), colored lithographed fashion plates, full description of the material underneath each sample, and prices left blank for you to fill in, fixing your profit to suit yourself. This Sample Book is put up in a Fine Canvas Carrying Case, which also contains Tape Measure, Order Blanks, Business Cards, Stationery, Advertising Matter and Agents' Guide and Instruction Book, with Net Confidential Price List, also complete "Salesman's Talk." Our instructions are so plain, our suggestions to the salesman so thorough, that anyone can immediately make a success of the work. YOU REQUIRE NOTHING. Just take the orders and send them to us; we make the garments promptly and send them by express, C. O. D. subject to examination, and if not perfectly satisfactory they can be returned to us at our expense. Neither the agent nor his customer assume the slightest risk. WE TAKE ALL THE CHANCES OF THE TRANSACTION. We either ship direct to your customers, collecting your full selling price and send you weekly check for all your profit; or, if you prefer, we ship direct to you at your net confidential price, allowing you to make your own collections.

YOU CAN ADD A LIBERAL PROFIT TO YOUR CONFIDENTIAL PRICE.

NEARLY ALL OUR MEN MAKE $40.00 EVERY WEEK IN THE YEAR.

THE OUTFIT IS ABSOLUTELY FREE. We make no charge for our complete Agent's Sample Book and Outfit, but in order to protect ourselves against many who might impose on us by sending for the outfit (which costs us between $5.00 and $6.00), with no intention of working, but merely out of idle curiosity, we require each applicant to cut this ad out and mail to us, giving the names of at least two parties as reference, and further agree to pay a temporary deposit of One Dollar and express charges for the outfit when received, if found exactly as represented and really a big money maker. While this nominal deposit of $1.00 for the outfit is not one-fifth of its cost it insures the good faith of applicants, and we promptly refund your $1.00 as soon as your sales amount to $25.00, which amount you can take the first day out.

IF YOU WISH TO MAKE $5.00 TO $20.00 EVERY DAY cut this notice out and mail to us at once, giving us the names of two or more men as reference. Address,

REFERENCES: Corn Exchange National Bank, Any Express or Railroad Co., Any business man or resident of Chicago.

AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO.
West Side Enterprise Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.
(This Company is thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

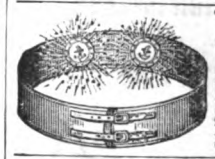
W21

This Cut is 1-2 Actual Size of Watch and Chain.

Watch and Chain
FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

We send this Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm to Boys and Girls for selling 1½ dozen packages of BLUINE at 10c. each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, postpaid, and a large Premium List.

No money required. We send the Bluine at our own risk. You go among your neighbors and sell it. Send us the money that you get for it and we send you the Watch, Chain and Charm, prepaid.



This is an American Watch, Nickel-Plated Case, Open Face, Heavy Bevelled Crystal. It is Guaranteed to keep Accurate Time, and with Proper Care should last ten years.

BLUINE CO., Box 418, CONCORD JUNCTION, MASS.
The Old Reliable firm who sell honest goods and give Valuable Premiums.

SARAH BERNHARDT BEAUTY PINS.

Made popular by the famous actress, are set with Turquoise, and are the very latest thing in Beauty Pins. Send full name and address and promise to try to sell them at 10 cts. a pair, and we will mail you 12 pairs, including all the stylish patterns. When sold, send us the $1.20, and we will give you either of these SOLID GOLD RINGS FREE! Mind, these are not gold-filled, gold-laid or plated rings, which mean the same thing, but are the genuine article. WE MAKE THEM AND WE GUARANTEE THEM. Liberal cash commission if preferred. We take back Pins not sold.
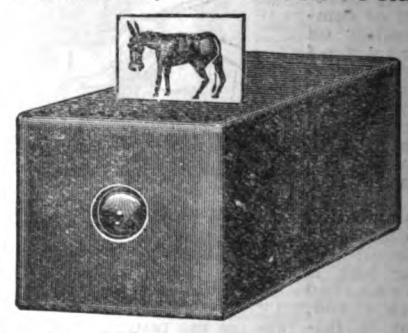
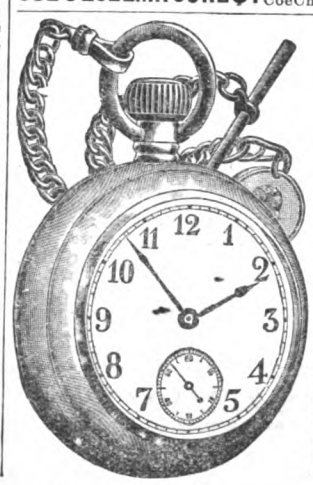
D. M. WATKINS & CO., 61 Fountain St., Providence, R. I.



THE ELECTRICITY from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes we will give ONE BELT FREE to one person in each locality. Address E. J. SMEAD & Co., Dept. 259, Vineland, N. J.

$24.00 WE SELL BUGGIES, SURREYS, CARRIAGES, LIGHT and HEAVY WAGONS at lower prices than any other house in America, quality considered; issue a two-year binding guarantee, and we ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for free Buggy Catalogue.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

YOU CAN CARRY IT IN YOUR POCKET.

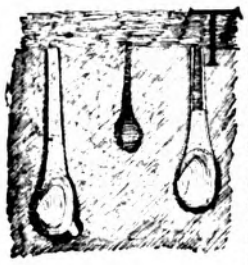


ALWAYS READY CAMERA.

Produces a picture and surprise at the same time. It cannot be told from a $3.00 camera, once in your hands, and you will carry it with you at all times. Every friend you meet will enjoy the joke. The mere touch of a spring in the back raises to view a donkey, lobster, stag, clown or donkey's head. Send us 14 cents for a three months' trial subscription and have a Camera by return mail. FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

"CASH For Acceptable Ideas. State if patented." Address THE PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

COE'S ECZEMA CURE $1 at druggists. 25c. box of us. CoeChem.Co., Cleveland, O.



WE GIVE THIS WATCH
FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nice chain. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FARMING THE CLAM.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY RENE BACHE.

THE problem of propagating artificially the long or "soft" clam is seriously engaging the attention of the United States Fish Commission, owing to the alarming diminution of the natural supply. Along the greater part of the New England coast the species has been depleted to such an extent as to be threatened with actual extinction. Extensive areas which only four or five years ago yielded immense numbers of these edible mollusks are now practically barren.

It is a real calamity that has befallen. "The disappearance of a staple food, at once healthful, delicious, and cheap, is a matter of far-reaching importance to the community," writes Dr. G. W. Field. "Such a misfortune is today imminent in Rhode Island. The long clam, formerly so abundant, has been all but exterminated from our shores. The supply necessary to meet the enormous demand of home consumers and of shore resorts is almost entirely derived from the coasts of Long Island and of Maine. Yet we have remaining to us all conditions necessary for obtaining from Narragansett Bay enough clams to supply not only Rhode Island, but all sections of the country whither the mollusks can be profitably transported—provided that the flats are made to produce to their full capacity."

The solution of the problem is simple enough, in the opinion of the fishery experts, who recommend the adoption of a system of clam farming, by which, they say, the yield of former years could not only be restored, but actually made many times as great as it was at its best. Properly speaking, the succulent bivalve is an agricultural product, living and growing in rich tidewater mud. At the same time, it is a very highly organized creature, and the fault is not its own if it has been regarded hitherto as a wild animal. The adoption of proper methods will speedily transform it into a domesticated animal, for which capacity it is singularly well fitted, being of a mild disposition and by habit sedentary.

The Rhode Island Experiment Station recently published a statement to the effect that an acre of good "clam ground" ought to yield five hundred bushels of marketable mollusks annually. According to this authority, a clam farm should consist of several divisions—one of them a preserve for breeders, in which mature bivalves are kept in numbers sufficient to "seed" the rest of the planted space without further attention. The rest of the cultivated tract should be split up into sections, to be dug successively, the arrangement being such that any given area shall be called on for a crop only once in three or four years.

Clam culture, if properly conducted along the shores of the United States, would utilize most profitably immense areas of tidal flats which now are waste places. These mollusks flourish not only on open seacoast, where sufficient protection is offered against the shifting sands, but also in brackish bays and estuaries, even far from the ocean. Indeed, brackish waters are most prolific in clams, having the greatest abundance of the microscopic plants which are the chief food of the mollusks, and every acre of space exposed at low tide in such localities ought to be farmed. The clam is better adapted than the oyster for artificial cultivation, and planting costs nothing—for, if the bottom is suitable, clams cannot be kept out.

Long clams have sexes, some being males and some females. The latter in spring produce immense numbers of eggs, which are discharged into the water and take their chance of being fertilized by contact with the "milt" set afloat by the males. Once fertilized, the egg develops into a young animal which swims about for some days, after which it attaches itself by a slender thread to a piece of seaweed or other convenient support. Some few weeks later it casts itself loose again, and burrows into the sandy mud. A small space occupied by breeding clams will suffice to "seed" a very large area, artificial planting being unnecessary.

The extreme simplicity of the cultural operations lends a special attraction to the business of clam farming. No planting being required, the crop has only to be harvested and the producing areas protected. "Divide the tidal flats along the coast into sections," advises the Rhode Island Agricultural Experiment Station, "and subdivide each of these sections into four divisions, plainly marked by stakes. Only one of the divisions should be dug each year. For example, if the area on the west shore of Narragansett Bay, from Gaspee Point to Conimicut Point be a section, the latter should be marked off into four equal clamming-areas, of which only one would be open the first year, another the second year, and so on in rotation. Thus the mollusks in every division would have three years for growth, undisturbed. As a result, the average yield, after a few seasons, would be upwards of 500 bushels per acre. Such controlling regulations would again permit the valuable flats to produce the food for which they are adapted, instead of exhibiting the melancholy condition of a desert. The effect would be widely felt by the people, for the price of clams today is treble what it would be if proper steps were taken to increase the yield."

Not long ago a very notable experiment in clam farming was made at the mouth of Essex river, in Massachusetts, where are some very extensive flats which formerly yielded vast quantities of the bivalves as a wild crop. Their productiveness having been destroyed by over-digging, these acres of tidal mud were staked off in acre lots and let at $2 a lot per annum for a term of years to anybody who wanted to rent them. Small clams were obtained from elsewhere and planted, about 500 bushels per acre being required for such seeding. Some of the lots soon yielded enormously, and it was proved that the cultivated bivalves, while quite as large as the best ones of natural growth, are worth more by reason of their uniformity in size. They bring $1.75 a barrel to the catchers, while ordinary clams fetch only $1.50. Unfortunately, however, the experiment referred to proved a failure on the whole, chiefly because the people in the Essex river vicinity were too afraid of robbery of their clam farms by neighbors who would reap without having sown.

There was, in fact, a good deal of such pilfering; and besides, some individuals did everything they could do to antagonize the enterprise, fearing least the success of clam culture might glut the market and reduce the price of the mollusks to an unprofitable figure. But enough was ascertained by this imperfect trial to prove that a great and profitable industry can easily be created by proper methods not only in the locality mentioned, but in any other place where tidal flats under favorable conditions are found. The essential preliminary is the making of a law which shall thoroughly protect the clam-planter in his property rights, providing severe punishment for poachers.

It may be mentioned incidentally that the popular supposition regarding the simplicity of a clam's make-up is wholly erroneous, the structure of the animal being very elaborate and complicated. Its nervous system, its digestive machinery, its respiratory, muscular, and reproductive apparatus, are all marvels of completeness and complexity. Some of its anatomical features, indeed, are quite remarkable. For example, it has three brains, which, as well as the ear, are located in its foot, and its intestine passes through its heart.

As already explained, the baby clams, after spending a few weeks at anchor, attached to seaweeds or other convenient objects, cast themselves loose and burrow into the mud. Critical is this period in their life history, myriads of them at this stage falling a prey to fishes and other predatory marine animals, while whole broods fall victims to weather conditions. Escaping such disasters, the infant mollusk buries itself in the bottom by means of its foot, and, with the tip of its siphon extending to the surface of the mud, dwells practically secure from the enemies which beset it during the earlier stages of its existence. The supply of microscopic plants, on which it feeds, being plentiful in the warm shallows, the creature grows rapidly—at the rate of about an inch a year—and in the third year is ready to breed.

If one examines a soft clam freshly captured, there will be found projecting from one end a blackish wrinkled lump, which, on being irritated, quickly withdraws, throwing out at the same time a little stream of water. Put the forbidding-looking creature in a shallow pan of fresh sea-water, and leave it a few hours until it recovers confidence. Then the blackened tube will be found protruded to a length of several inches, and it will be seen that the organ has two openings at the end, beautifully fringed with appendages like little feelers. It really consists of two tubes leading to the body of the clam, and, if you observe the openings closely, you will see a current of water flowing into one of them and another current flowing as steadily out of the other. As the soft clam lies in his burrow, he pushes his tubes up into the sea-water above, and sucks in a stream which bears not only the microscopic particles of organic matter that serve as his food, but also the oxygen which he requires.

The demand for soft clams has long exceeded the supply, and their disappearance does but repeat the old story of reckless destruction of a source of food-supply provided by bountiful Nature. Already the oyster is similarly threatened, alas! But, happily for the clam, it is even better adapted than the oyster for artificial cultivation. Its enemies are fewer, and the chances of failure in planting are smaller.

Long clams are found plentifully as far north as the Arctic Ocean, where seals, walrus, polar bears and foxes feed upon them greedily. Their habitat extends as far south as Cape Hatteras, below which they are scarce. It has been ascertained that, in what may be termed the "anchored" stage of their life, they can be transported for great distances without injury, so that there is no reason why they should not afford a palatable food supply in many parts of the world where up to the present time they have been unknown. This discovery is fortunate, inasmuch as clams are much more delicate than oysters, and hitherto attempts to carry them over long journeys for stocking purposes have usually ended in disaster. They have been successfully introduced within the last few years on the Pacific coast, where, by the way a giant relative of theirs called the "geoduck," with a siphon nearly three feet long is native. The geoduck, however, is not edible.

The red man, long before the days of Columbus, was well acquainted with the virtues of the long clam, which contributed importantly to the aboriginal "clam bake" on festive occasions when the tribes, like the New Englanders of to-day, visited the salt water and prepared with moist seaweed and heated rocks a complete feast of sea-food with green corn and other delicacies. At the present time much "clam bouillon," so called is put up in cans for market, and it is both palatable and digestible, though not to be relied upon too much as food for invalids, inasmuch as it contains no great amount of nutriment.

THE charming quality in the song of the canary is the result of years and years of cultivation. A little town in the Hartz mountains is the center of the world for canaries, and all the best songsters are imported from there. For generations the cobblers thereabouts have inherited the business of raising canaries along with the trade of repairing boots. Every fall a fair is held and prizes of considerable value are given to the man who can produce the best singers, or who has in any way achieved a new variety of note. The stock notes are called the roller, water, flute and bell. To effect the first, a large wooden wheel is kept constantly revolving in the vicinity of the birds, and against the surface a quill is made to press; this gives forth a sound which the birds strive to imitate, which makes a very pleasing note. The water note is not unlike a trill, and the birds are initiated to this by means of a tin pan nailed in the middle of a post firmly planted in the ground. Through a pipe from above water is made to drop into the pan, and the vibrations thus caused are imitated by the birds. The bell note explains itself. To obtain the flute note they rub together two bits of waxed ends held tight in a rude frame work. These birds always retain their beautiful voices and methods; the next generation, removed from this cultivated atmosphere, will not sing so well, and in three or four generations the descendants will simply whistle and screech.

HYPNOTISM

What or whence is this Hypnotism?

Have you ever been Hypnotized? Is it true we can be put in a trance and yet our wills and bodily senses act at the bidding of another? Can you be visibly asleep and at the same time intensely awake? Can we really be made to speak and move correctly though unconscious, to submit our faculties and feelings to all sorts of perversion, to be wise or silly, dumb or eloquent as a hypnotist ordains for us, and yet have no memory of it all when we are freed from the mysterious spell? And if so, what more is there—what is it all good for, anyhow?

These are the perplexing questions that people now put to each other throughout the land. I have just issued a wonderful book covering the whole subject and am giving it away FREE to all who write me for a copy. I have pledged myself that none need be ignorant on the facts of this science, and I shall even tell you more than the given questions would cover.

I shall show you that this Hypnotism is the most wonderful force in nature—that it is as mighty in the realm of mind as electricity in the world of matter. I shall prove to you that it conquers all pain and cures all diseases; that it is an agency of reform and a detective in the path of crime; that it assists education, surgery and medicine; that it will correct the vicious and uplift the suffering or degraded, that it brings health and success to those who use it and enables them to extend the same and other blessings of mind and body to all who hold a place in their hearts. Above all else I shall fully prove to you that it is no fake, no fraud, no phantasy, but a clean-cut, orderly science which is very easy to learn and which will serve its humblest adherent as thoroughly as the most learned or lofty.

WHAT IS HYPNOTISM?

I may describe Hypnotism as a trance-like sleep, or spell, into which one person casts another by a very simple process. In this state the operator, or hypnotist, has supreme control over the mind and sensations of his subject. The latter, for the time being, has no will but that of the hypnotist, to whom he is truly as clay in the hands of the potter. At a word or sign he will perform most surprising feats, mental or physical, which he could not even attempt in the waking state. He can only see or hear, speak or act, precisely as the hypnotist wills him, and he so keeps on incessantly until the same imperious will directs a change or withdraws the spell.

WONDERS OF HYPNOTISM.

It may be judged that from these conditions the most startling phenomena will result. I regret I can only allude to them in this limited space. I have set forth very many of them in my book and yet description utterly fails me. Just think of it. One mind is passive, pliant and slavishly docile, though intensified in all its faculties and having new ones that can range afar. The other mind dominates these powers, from least to greatest, more completely than any despot rules his trembling serfs.

USES OF HYPNOTISM.

To know the science of Hypnotism enables you to do boundless good for yourself and others. The student finds it a passport to fascinating realms of science. It is an endless recreation to persons of means and leisure. It enlarges the opportunities of generous souls. It is a friend to the friendless, a physician to the afflicted and a comfort to the distressed or sorrow-stricken. It is a sure ministry to all of success and independence, reputation, health and happiness. It is also for those who desire it a dignified and money-making profession. These and numerous others are benefits I show the way to in my illustrated FREE BOOK. If you wish to realize them fully just send for a copy and read it.

HYPNOTISM IN DISEASE.

Beyond all doubt Hypnotism is destined to be the healing science of the future. Never was known the anodyne that could equal it in banishing pain. Never was known the specific, or even the healing system, that could so master and expel the various forms of disease. Already the most eminent physicians employ it in their practice and there is a growing legion of specialists who have totally discarded their drugs in its behalf. As an unfailing opiate for the sleepless and a gentle but powerful mode of curative treatment, it is a blessing to every suffering mortal in existence.

HYPNOTISM FOR AMUSEMENT.

As a means of entertainment for small or large audiences Hypnotism stands today without an equal. It appeals to the natural love of the marvelous and yet is an endless source of the most hilarious fun. There is simply no limit to the comical situations and side-splitting absurdities that a hypnotist may create with one or more subjects. As an accomplishment in private circles it is therefore invaluable. As a means of entertaining audiences it beats the minstrel show and comic opera joined together—and my book shows fully how it can thus be made a source of liberal income as well as harmless enjoyment.

YOU CAN LEARN HYPNOTISM.

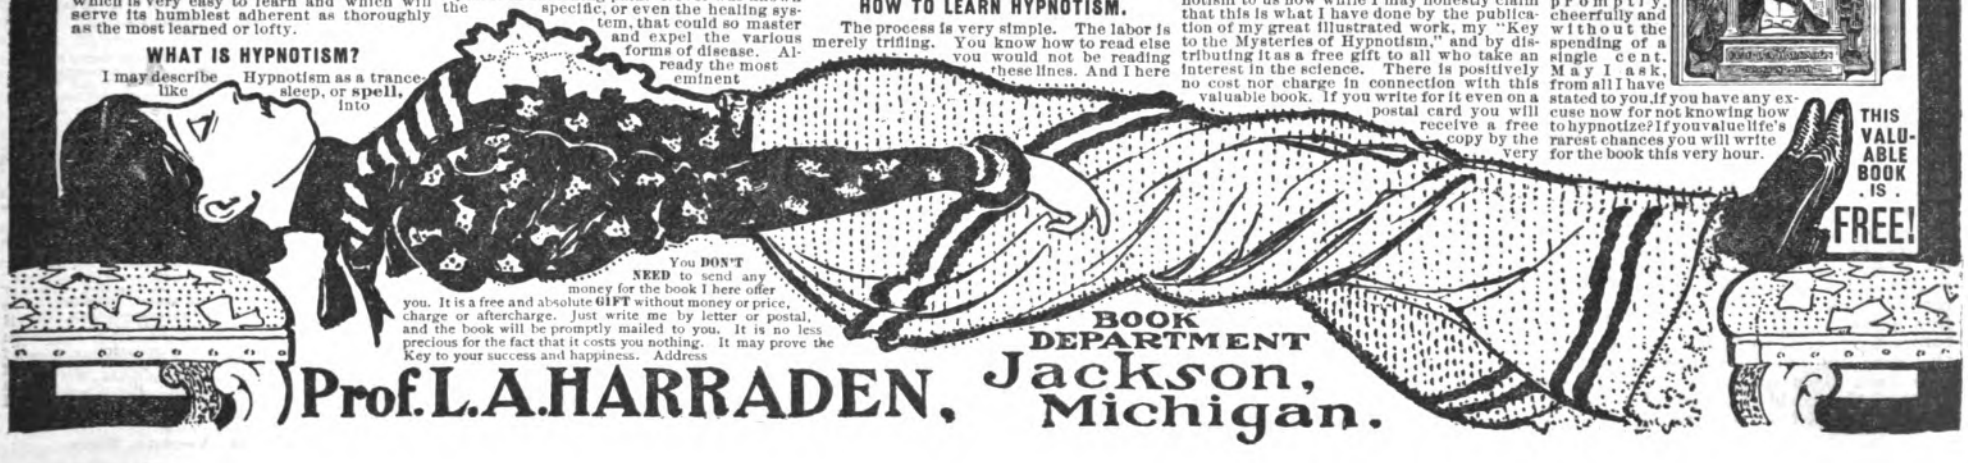
For all that, you can easily become a hypnotist. It is not a special or exclusive gift. It is a very simple science for which the capacity is inherent in us all. It is easier to learn how to hypnotize than to learn how to waltz or swim. All who know how to read can master hypnotic powers. Whoever once masters them has the wide world of humanity for their profitable use. The study is neither deep nor difficult. The simplest and most ordinary intelligence can grasp it. The most lofty or profound will be equally charmed by it. Why do you not learn it? There is absolutely nothing to hinder. My illustrated mammoth book, the "Key to the Mysteries of Hypnotism," is entirely at your service just for the asking. You have heard of and admired these wondrous powers; why not master them and use them for your own welfare and happiness? Why not learn them even if only for the good you can do to others? Why not study and exercise them as a money-making profession? I have won fame and fortune by them—so have many others, and so may you.

HOW TO LEARN HYPNOTISM.

The process is very simple. The labor is merely trifling. You know how to read else you would not be reading these lines. And I here assure you positively that if you barely know how to read you can soon be a hypnotist equal to the best. I know whereof I speak on all this subject. I am conceded to be the leading hypnotist of this continent. I have given up my life to the study of this science and to the work of teaching it to others. It is my chosen and cherished pursuit and I have no greater joy on earth than to see others win fame and celebrity by it as I have done. It can never disappoint anybody who takes it up with a willing heart. It has all and much more than the powers I have claimed for it. It is a healer of disease. It is a winner of friendship and regard. It is an all potent spell of love. It is a weapon of the ambitious and a shield of the inoffensive. It is a miracle-working power for the good of individuals, families and society. It is accessible to old or young of either sex and it is my proud privilege to make its

SECRETS FREE TO ALL!

I have laid low the barriers that once hemmed it in. I have given to the multitude what was jealously guarded by the few. I have made Hypnotism, the most exalted of all sciences, a truly popular study. I have stripped it of theories and technicalities and put it in a garb of homely speech. Thus it can be understood and learned by all and its amazing performances tried by the test of practice. It is no longer a mere problem for solitary scientists. It is an art, a power and an influence among the people. It is a fascination to its very adepts. It is the most stupendous fact of modern life in so far as it places the humblest on a par with the most privileged in the hidden fields of human thought, in the struggle for fortune, in the quest of social distinction, in the attainment of sound health, in the sure pursuit of success and in the sunshine of home, peace, unison and love. So much and yet more is Hypnotism to us now while I may honestly claim that this is what I have done by the publication of my great illustrated work, my "Key to the Mysteries of Hypnotism," and by distributing it as a free gift to all who take an interest in the science. There is positively no cost nor charge in connection with this valuable book. If you write for it even on a postal card you will receive a free copy by the very next mail. If you do not learn Hypnotism it is your own fault. Now let me repeat,

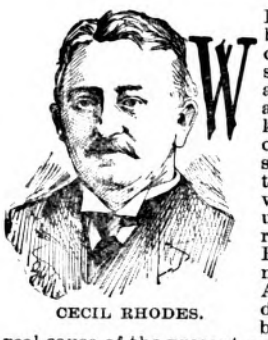


THIS WONDERFUL BOOK IS FREE!

It is free although the most interesting and precious treatise of the kind ever published. It unfolds every mystery and marvel of hypnotic science. It tells you all that Hypnotism is to mortal ken and all it can accomplish through mortal agency. It tells you how you may sway the minds of others, perform the most surprising or laughable feats and thus give entertainments by the hour to any assembly. If you aspire to learn Hypnotism, if you want to know how to hypnotize, this treatise is beyond all others your fitting friend and counsellor.

For its own intrinsic worth it is a book that anybody might covet. I have spared no expense whatever in making it worthy of its fascinating theme. I have made it so attractive that you are sure to preserve it and often glance through it even after the first reading. Every page is richly illustrated with pictures of hypnotic stage work, situations and phenomena. And it is ALL FREE, free as air, or water, or summer sunshine. You have only to write me for a copy to get it promptly, cheerfully and without the spending of a single cent. May I ask, from all I have stated to you, if you have any excuse now for not knowing how to hypnotize? If you value life's rarest chances you will write for the book this very hour.

THIS VALUABLE BOOK IS FREE!



You DON'T NEED to send any money for the book I here offer you. It is a free and absolute GIFT without money or price, charge or afterchage. Just write me by letter or postal, and the book will be promptly mailed to you. It is no less precious for the fact that it costs you nothing. It may prove the Key to your success and happiness. Address

BOOK DEPARTMENT

Prof. L. A. HARRADEN, Jackson, Michigan.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

CECIL RHODES.

WHEN a man is killed by a corporation, the courts have as a rule set the value of life at $5000; so that this amount is generally known as the value of a man's life. In strange contrast to this amount is the value which was set upon the capture and ransom of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the greatest man that South Africa has as yet produced, and believed by many to be the real cause of the present war. Mr. Rhodes was in Kimberley when it was first invested by the Boers and remained through the long siege of over one hundred days. He gave employment and food to thousands of Kaffirs; and with tact and intelligence assisted every move made for the safety of the city and its diamond mines. The complete success of the defense of the place until relieved by General French was largely due to his unremitting efforts.

It is undoubtedly time that he fully appreciated the desire that President Kruger and the Boers generally had to hold him as hostage, and that such knowledge must have materially added to his own intention not to be captured. Only a few days before Kimberley was relieved, and while the British were suffering reverse after reverse, Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal agent to Europe, gave out word from Brussels that when Rhodes was captured he would be held as hostage for the payment to the Dutch of $10,000,000 idemnity. This is by far the highest amount ever put upon the custody or life of any man and attracted much attention. Exactly what would have been done about it will always be a matter of conjecture, as the city was relieved and Mr. Rhodes remained uncaptured by his enemies.

The first decided British success in the present war was the relief of Kimberley by the entrance of Gen. French into that city. This left Gen. Piet Cronje, the Boer general investing the city, in a dangerous position and he beat a hasty retreat with his train from Magersfontein. He was overtaken by Gen. French's mobile column acting under Gen. Roberts, and a series of rear guard actions ensued. Finally, Cronje was penned on the Modder river and for eight days kept up a desperate resistance against overwhelming odds. His retreat and defence commanded the admiration of even his enemies. Finally he surrendered to Lord Roberts about 5000 men and a number of cannon. By a strange fate his unconditional surrender was on the nineteenth anniversary of his own great victory over the English in the former war at Majuba hill. Cronje has an evil reputation relative to certain alleged flag-of-truce duplicity which caused a certain personal dread of consequences. But Lord Roberts placed him in charge of a general officer. This surrender caused intense rejoicings throughout Britain.

One thing to be noted is that the English have learned from the Boers the necessity of more mobile troops and to that end the government has mounted a part of its infantry. It was this excessive mobility which allowed French to outflank the Boers. When Lord Roberts proceeded to invade the Free State many Boers necessarily were called away to form an army to oppose his advance. This must have greatly weakened the investing lines of the Boers around the besieged cities. As was pointed out in last month's COMFORT, the defence of Ladysmith for many months has upset every military theory. It has proven the most important resistance of the war and has been a proud record for Gen. White who thus far is easily the hero of the war. The casualties among British officers have been remarkable. Hardly a noble family in England but that mourns the loss of a son. Four heirs to peerages are already dead at the front, while there is a long list of wounded young noblemen. In the retreat of Cronje, Gen. Hector Macdonald commanding the famous Highland brigade is reported desperately wounded. Lord Salisbury, the English Premier, has a son wounded; while on the Boer side President Kruger's grandson is among the killed.

IN THE TRENCHES AT LADYSMITH.

Not the least important among the captured Boers were several foreigners assisting them. There was an Austrian in charge of artillery; a Swede officer, and the Prussian major to whose fertile brain the wonderful strategy and engineering skill shown by the Boer tactics and offense are attributed. It is difficult to ascertain exactly how many adventurers have gone to South Africa to fight in this war; but it is undoubtedly true that many men have been quietly enlisted in different cities of the world and smuggled abroad.

GEN. FRENCH.

But to turn from the actual campaign, of which it is not the intention of COMFORT to give a detailed account, we take up one or two matters that have been suggested to us. One writer desires to know how it is possible for the newspapers to give daily reports from Ladysmith when that city is closely invested by the enemy. The Transvaal war has gained distinction in being a conflict which has brought out great inventive genius and which has given a field for many experiments in military service. Among the most successful and at the same time most notable of these, has been the use of the heliograph, by which the beleaguered inhabitants and garrison of Ladysmith have been able to communicate with the outside world.

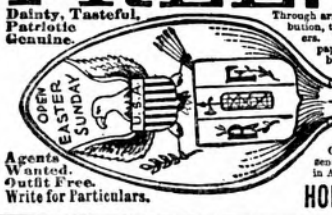
During the wars of this country communication has been made by various kinds of signalling, and heliographing itself was not unknown but was considered of doubtful value. The present system is really an invention of the time of Alexander the Great but was perfected in 1879. It was first used successfully by Lord Roberts when he was beleaguered in Khost and heliographed for reinforcements to Baunee, sixty miles away. It can be used successfully clear days for from twenty to forty miles, and read as easily as the electric telegraph and as rapidly. Its disadvantage is that it cannot be used on cloudy or stormy days at all.

GEN. HECTOR MACDONALD.

When used in the Kandahar campaign the heliograph was operated by a man, having chosen a position on a hill, who looked through a spot cleaned from his mirror by scraping away the quicksilver, which he wished to signal. He then set up in front of the mirror a rod bearing a movable button, or sight, like the foresight of a rifle, so that the sight would be on a line with the clear spot in the mirror and the distant station. Then he managed to have the reflection strike the sight, knowing they would reach the station aimed at. By the rapid manipulation of the reflection the rays were sent in dashes and dots as rapidly as with an ordinary telegraph key. In recent years the heliograph as far as mechanism is concerned has improved greatly but the action is the same as when first used by Lord Roberts. In our own country it is successfully used from Pike's Peak to Denver, sixty miles. The tropical atmosphere, especially the desert air, gives the best results and messages have been flashed 420 miles through ten stations in less than thirty minutes from start to finish.

The traction engine, which is a locomotive built to run on common roads instead of rails has been tried and successfully pulled long strings of wagons; but it has proven a failure in that a single shell might destroy it and make a whole train helpless. In addition, it has not the mobility of a pack or wagon train. The armored train about which so much has been written has been of doubtful value. Successful in some situations, terrible disasters have happened to them at other points. The captive balloon has generally been of much value in obtaining information. It is noticeable that the bicycle has hardly been spoken of and not seriously contemplated in the whole campaign, although for years it has been theoretically considered as a military adjunct. As of old the horse and mule remain the bearers of wood and water for the military and it looks as if nothing would take their place in campaigning.

The second great success of the British was in Gen. Buller's final accomplishment of the relief of Ladysmith, after a campaign desperately fought out on both sides and attended with appalling hardships and losses. The news of the final success of the British army and a portion entering the city on March 1st, was officially announced that day. Unparalleled demonstrations immediately occurred throughout the British possessions. The newspaper reports indicate that such enthusiasm and joy has not been seen in any country in this generation. The investment of Ladysmith lasted one hundred and twenty-six days. The garrison during that time lost eighteen thousand men. It is estimated that each of Gen. Buller's four charges lost the British over one thousand. Up to the last charge the official list showed the entire British casualties in the war as over twelve thousand. As this writing closes the Boer armies are apparently massing to prevent further advance of Gen. Roberts. It is hoped for humanity's sake the war may soon end and peace come with honor to the contending parties.



CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

WANTED good agents to sell our preparations. Address BayState Drug & Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.

FREE! PARIS EXPOSITION SOUVENIR SPOON.

Dainty, Tasteful, Patriotic Genuine.

Through arrangements made when the Paris Exposition was first suggested, we have now ready for distribution, the first official Franco-American Souvenir Spoons and will distribute them free to our subscribers. We have spent our money thus to popularize the Home Courier instead of wasting it in newspaper advertising. The Spoon is solid silver, gold bowl, engraved with American and French Coats of Arms. Warranted.

Send 25 Cents [stamps or silver] for the Home Courier, 24 pages, for six months. Spoon will be sent by return mail, free. Given only to obtain Bona-fide Subscribers for the Best Magazine in America. Stories, Fashions, Embroidery, Games, Flowers, Poultry, Birds and Bees.

Agents Wanted. Outfit Free. Write for Particulars.

HOME COURIER PUBLISHING CO., 74 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

GUARANTEED WHITE POWDER WONDER.

SEND US 50 CENTS. Cut this ad. out and send to us and we will send you by Express, C. O. D., subject to examination, this OUR WHITE POWDER WONDER Breech Loading Shotgun.

Weight, 6½ to 7 pounds.

If found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, and one of the best breech loaders you ever saw, pay your express agent our special offer price $7.00 less the 50 cents, or $6.50 and express charges.

THE WHITE POWDER WONDER is a fine American made, single barrel, guaranteed, 12-gauge, breech loading shotgun, made from the best material money can buy, by one of the best makers in America. Strongest single barrel gun made, bored for white or black powder; choke bored, very strong, (60 yard) long range shooter; made with double reinforced breech, patent heavy barrel bolt lock, Weldon taper steel barrels; Wilson's finest top snap brake, pistol grip, 30 or 32-inch barrel, Biffar take-down model.

OUR SPECIAL $7.00 PRICE barely covers cost of material and labor with but our one small profit added.

ORDER TODAY. DON'T DELAY. Address,

Write for Free Gun Catalogue. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago, Ill.

GOLDFISH can be kept any length of time, if their globe and water are kept clean. The water should be fresh every day and in summer it is well to change it oftener, unless the globe is quite large. When the fish need fresh water they stand up with their mouths near the surface. In putting in fresh water, let it fall in from a height, so that plenty of air goes in with it, and also put in a handful of small stones or shells. There is not enough food in the water for the fish to thrive upon. Fish food may be procured at a store where animals are kept, and a small amount should be put into the globe daily. This food consists chiefly of dried ants' eggs. Do not handle the fish if they are kept for breeding purposes; if not, it does them no harm, but of course they must not be kept out of water any longer than is necessary to change them from one globe to another. In buying goldfish, be sure that the fins are erect and fully spread, as they are then in good health. When out of health, the fins gradually close up until it dies, when the fins are close against the body.

The National Library in Paris is the largest in the world.

The statue of Liberty in New York harbor was unveiled in 1887.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS.

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74, DETROIT, MICH.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

AMERICAN WATCH

Cut this out and send address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination, EXPRESS ALL PAID one beautiful 14k gold plated watch, stem wind and set. A guaranteed timekeeper. Boys' or Gent's size. Equal in appearance to a $35 gold filled watch; warranted for 20 years. If satisfied pay agent $1.98. Ladies' or Misses' size Watch, EXPRESS PAID, $2.98. W. HILL MDSE. CO. 92 State St., CHICAGO.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

MORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Painless, permanent Home Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

FAT

How to reduce it Mrs. L. Lanier, Martin, Tenn., writes: "It reduced my weight 21 lbs. in 15 days without any unpleasant effects whatever." Purely vegetable, and harmless as water. Any one can make it at home at little expense. No starving. No sickness. We will mail a box of it and full particulars in a plain sealed package for 4 cents for postage, etc. HALL CHEMICAL CO. Dept. R, St. Louis, Mo.

A Gold-Lined Silver Dish FREE!

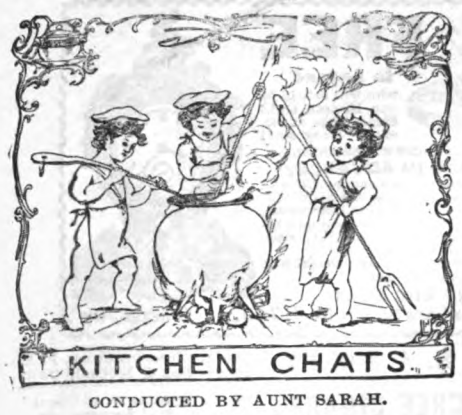
To introduce our new line of Quadruple Plated Silverware we will for 30 days send either one of these beautiful gold lined fluted top Quadruple Plated Silver dishes FREE to any one sending a club of two yearly subscribers to SUNSHINE at 25c each, or send both dishes, all charges paid, for a club of three at 25c. each. These goods are made up in the latest 1899 style, are guaranteed to wear well, as they are the best quadruple plate. The very lowest store price of either article is not less than $1.00 or $1.50, and as these beautiful articles can be used for all sorts of tables either on dining or side tables, they make invaluable household necessities as well as beautiful ornaments. We will for a short time send either style dish free to all who send 37c. for a year's subscription or will send both dishes, all charges paid, if you remit 62c. for a two years' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great home monthly. Don't delay but send at once. We can quote you wholesale rates on our new Premium goods that will get you rich. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

LACE CURTAINS FREE

These beautiful Royal Lace Parlor Curtains are of the newest Savoy design, three yards long, 36 inches wide, are washable and will last a life time. You can get two pairs of these choice curtains, (same design as in cut), and four beautiful Sash Curtains (one yard square each) FREE by selling our GREAT COLD REMEDY and HEADACHE CURE. Cures Cold in One Day! Relieves Headache at Once! We will give the curtains absolutely free to anyone taking advantage of the great offer we send to every person selling six boxes of our Tablets. If you agree to sell only six boxes at 25 cents a box, write to-day and we will send the Tablets by mail postpaid. When sold, send us the money and we will send four Sash Curtains, unhemmed, so they may be made to fit any window, together with our offer of two complete pairs of Royal Lace Parlor Curtains, enough to furnish a room, same day money is received. This is a grand opportunity for ladies to beautify their homes with fine Lace Curtains of exquisite design. All who have earned them are delighted. Address NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., 1010 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn. Box 22 D

"THAT NOBLE ANIMAL, THE HORSE." YOU WANT IT.

THE GREATEST and BEST BOOK EVER WRITTEN on HORSES.



A Gold Mine of Interest and Information by Which You Save Dollars.

Prof. Oscar Gleason, the greatest horse owner, trainer and breaker that ever lived in America has at last consented to write a book on the Horse. We have made arrangement to furnish copies of this valuable work to all lovers of horses, and we call your attention to the great value of this unparalleled work which should be in every home and stable in the land. Gleason's Horse Book is a large handsomely bound book of over 400 pages, printed on pure white paper in large, clear type, bound in colored covers and richly and elegantly illustrated with 186 full plates and illustrations drawn by special artists. It is the most complete horse book ever published, produced under the direction of the United States Government Veterinary Surgeon. In this book Prof. Gleason has given to the world for the first time his wonderful methods of training and treating horses. It contains chapters on History, Education, Teaching Tricks, How to Buy, Feeding, Breeding, Breaking and Taming, How to Detect Unsoundness, Care, Complete Instructions in Proper Horse shoeing and one Concise and Captivating. Order one to-day and you Horse Book is found in the libraries of the wealthy

SEE HOW TO GET IT. To introduce will send a copy of Prof. Gleason's Horse Book, de- all shipping charges and for a trial six months' subscription to our paper. Great Club Premium. If you will get up a club of only two yearly subscribers to this paper at the special trial subscription price of 25 cents each we will send you the book as a free premium.

Invaluable Study of the Diseases and Treatment of the animal, book and will save horse owners hundreds of dollars every year. It to know who is in any way interested in horses. Nothing left out. Clear, will never regret it; it is a whole Library on Horses in itself. Gleason's and has always been sold as high as $5.00 a volume until now. our monthly paper into homes where an interest is taken in horses we scribed above, to every person who will send thirty-three cents to pay

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

THE revival of interest in domestic affairs, which is shown by the eagerness with which women listen to lectures on the science of proper living, is so widespread that scientists everywhere are trying to bring the home back to the old ideal. Those who live in or near the large cities have much the advantage of their sisters who are far removed from the great centers, and who have to depend largely on the papers to which they subscribe for their information regarding the latest experiments along these lines. For this reason we are going to devote the space in this department, this month, to some information regarding the Housekeeper's School, which was opened in Boston, Mass., about two years ago, under the auspices of the Educational and Industrial Union. Two connecting houses were taken and fitted up, one as the residence of the instructors and the young women who are studying, and the other as class rooms, kitchen, dining-room, study, lecture room and dormitories. The dormitories are arranged with folding screens, so that each girl has her bed, dressing table and commode all to herself.

It is supposed that no girl would apply for admission to this school who had not at least the rudiments of an education such as she would acquire from a grammar school, though there is no educational requirement. Of course she must have a good moral character, and be in good health.

The practical work includes the kitchen work, care of the fire, sink, traps; care of the kitchen, pantry, cellar and refrigerator; the preparation of cereals; bread, biscuit and muffin making; the making of plain soups; roasting, boiling and broiling meats and fish and the cooking of eggs and vegetables. Making tea, coffee, chocolate and cocoa and plain desserts. Plain washing and ironing and the general care of bed and table linen. In chamber work, care of the bedrooms, beds and bedding, sweeping and dusting and the care of the toilet and bath rooms, and of hardwood floors. In parlor work, care of dining-room, silver, glass and china, how to lay the table for and to serve the different meals; care of parlor and halls, the answering of door bells, and so forth.

The course covers a period of eight months, spent mostly in class work and practical work in the house. No charge is made for the pupil's tuition, room or board—as she gives her time in exchange for these. Usually the pupil is put into the kitchen to assist the cook and thus to learn all about the range and oven and the care of both. Then she does a turn of two or three weeks at cooking certain things and having general charge of the kitchen. She then goes to the dining-room, where she learns how to lay the table and how to wait on the table; the care of silver, glass and china and of the table linen. Her costume during this part of the work is a light wash dress, with white apron having brettelles over the shoulders, white cuffs and collar and a white cap. She then spends a week or two on parlor work, which is the general care of parlor and hall, answering bells, caring for the plants and flowers, also birds and pets. For this part of the work a black dress is required, with which she wears a white cap and apron, white collar and cuffs. Then she has an opportunity to do chamber work and after this a certain length of time in the laundry. Before she graduates she gets up a lunch or dinner, cooking everything herself, upon which the instructors are to pass judgment; after that she serves a dinner which some one else has cooked. She also launders fancy underwear, to be inspected by the instructors, thus passing a sort of examination in each branch of her work.

This gives an idea of what the pupil does in actual housework. Of course with all this there is the class work, to which a certain number of hours are given each day, in study and listening to lectures. These studies and lectures treat of house sanitation, soil, drainage, plumbing, heating, lighting, ventilation, cleaning and disinfection. Then comes the chemistry of food and laboratory work, and then follow on the purpose of the home—the furnishing and decorating, marketing and household buying.

It certainly seems as though every department of the home was given thoughtful consideration, and that the young woman who has taken this course would be well equipped for taking her place and giving perfect satisfaction in every way. In many cases this has been found to be so, but there are always exceptions to the rules, and the writer's personal experience with one of the graduates from this school was anything but satisfactory. This happened soon after the scheme was started, in fact I think this special girl was one of the first graduates, and it may be that the methods have been improved since then and so the great difficulty in this one case has been obviated in recent graduates. The trouble seemed to be in the entire lack of being able to get the work done within the usual number of hours devoted to housework. Each girl, during her residence at the school, does, as stated, each kind of work for a certain length of time. I have not been informed that she is expected, toward the end of her course, to devote one whole week to the work that she would do if she were to take a place as general housework girl in a family. This seems to me to be imperative. She should have for her duties the building of the fire in the range, getting breakfast, clearing away the breakfast and washing the dishes; dusting the living rooms and chambers and putting them in order. Then the getting of the midday meal, and after that doing the work in hand, according to the day of the week, and then getting the evening meal, whether dinner or tea, and clearing up after same and putting her kitchen and serving room in order. Of course this would be the rule followed in an ordinary household—the time between the chamber work and noon meal, and between the noon and evening meal, to be employed in the ironing, sweeping, cleaning of windows and silver, cooking, etc., etc., according as the family needs required, and to be regulated by the mistress. If each pupil were required to do this regular, systematic housework for two or three weeks before being allowed her diploma, the woman into whose service she went would have a blessing indeed, and this is, of course, one aim of this great work; and the other aim is that it may be understood that housekeeping is a profession demanding scientific training.

Now let me answer the question of one of our readers regarding Dario Moulds and Timbale Irons. The former are small tin cups, possibly 3 inches high, and cost about 4 cents each. Can be bought at hardware or kitchen furnishing shops. The Timbale iron is more expensive, being a solid piece of metal, usually diamond in shape, with a long handle. This iron is put into hot fat and when of the right heat is dipped into thin batter, which adheres to the iron. Then the iron is dipped again into the hot fat and the batter very quickly browns, as the coating is very thin on the iron. It is then removed from the fat and the Timbale falls off from the iron, and is a thin brown case, in which is served either something hot, such as creamed chicken, or something cold like strawberries. The cost of a Timbale iron is 75 cents.

THE CRISIS IN CHINA.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

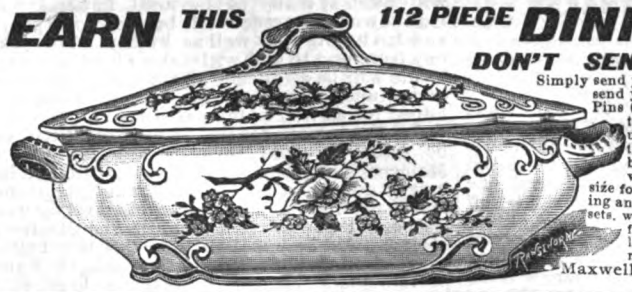
It HAS often happened, in the ruling of great kingdoms the power behind the throne has been a woman. It is one of the marvels of the century that this should happen in a country where women are given no rights, no education and, in fact, are often killed as soon as born. In conservative China the Empress-dowager is the ruling power. For many years she managed the affairs of the nation from behind the throne; now she has banished the legal ruler and has taken everything into her own hands.

The Empress was born more than sixty years ago in one of the southern provinces of China and was well educated according to Chinese ideas, quite an exception to the rule of illiteracy among Chinese women. She became the second wife of the Emperor Hienfung and bore him a son. The true Empress had no children, so when the Emperor died the son of the second wife, then a mere infant, succeeded to the throne. By the will of the Emperor his two wives were made guardians over the boy, and they were to be assisted in ruling by a Court of Regency. The Empress-mother, (whose name is Tschi Toanya Kangi Chaoyu Chuangcheng Shokuny Chunhein Chungish) was a very clever woman and she saw that her power in the affairs of the kingdom would be next to nothing, so she took into her confidence the young Prince Kung, a younger brother of the late Emperor and unfolded a scheme by which, after executing the Court of Regency, they should rule the kingdom for the young heir, the Prince to be the executive Regent, but nothing was to be done without her advice and consent. The other Empress was of a very different disposition, quiet and retiring and not at all disposed to meddle with the affairs of state. Although both women lived in the imperial palace they saw but little of one another for the "forbidden city," the regal residence, is a series of palaces covering many acres of land and as impenetrable to foreigners as the sacred temples of India. What goes on within its close-guarded gates is a closed book to all save the members of the royal household. From without it is a most imposing pile, but within it is filthy as are all the streets and houses of China. Though hung with most gorgeous embroidered silks, and containing beautiful carved tables and screens, and cabinets filled with rare porcelain and bronze, the floors of the imperal palaces are seldom swept and bits of food and refuse of all kinds ornament there.

The plans and schemes of the Empress-mother and Prince Kung went on for many a year undisturbed by the other Empress. Of course the two schemers became deadly enemies, as is usually the case with partners in evil. The young Emperor, Tung Che, grew to be a dissipated libertine and lived but a few years after his accession to the throne. It now remained to choose another Emperor, for Tung Che left no heir. The Queen Regent was equal to the occasion and before any one could prevent she sent for the infant son of her husband's brother, and he is now the Emperor of China. During the minority of the young Emperor, Empress Tschi held the reins of government in her hands, Li Hung Chang being her prime minister. One mistake she made and that was her choice of a tutor for the young Kuang Su. This tutor was a liberal man who had done service in foreign courts, and he taught his young charge the English language and imbued him with modern ideas so that when he became Emperor in fact he introduced many improvements and a liberal policy which displeased the Dowager so that she plotted and planned until she succeeded in making him a prisoner in his own palace. There he is today, and liberalism in China has halted for a time. Within the year a new dawn seemed breaking for the poor, weak-willed monarch. Superstition, which is the ruling attribute of the Chinese mind, seemed working on the side of the Emperor.

Since July not a drop of rain has fallen in China. The crops have failed utterly and thousands of people are starving. In all the temples prayers are being offered, incense is being burned and everything that will appease an angry god is being done. All else having failed a sacred tablet was sent for from the south. This tablet is a piece of iron found in an ancient temple under mysterious circumstances, and is supposed to have an occult influence on the rainfall. It was brought to Pekin with the greatest ceremony and there it has been worshiped by the multitude, but no rain has fallen. It is said that its power has never failed before and the cause given is that the Emperor has always gone in person and prostrated himself before it. Now the monarch who should have performed this function is imprisoned in the palace. Already a reversal of feeling is taking place. It is thought that the gods are angry because of the usurpation of authority by the Empress and the enforced abdication of the Emperor. It is however a strange circumstance that in spite of the advance in modern thought and the power of superstition, the influence of the Dowager Empress is still so strong that the latest news from China tells us of another reversal of affairs. The Empress has brought to bear all her power and influence and has forced Kwang Su to appoint in his place Put Sing, a prince of another branch of royalty. Put Sing is but nine years old and as the Empress is his guardian this move simply means the abdication of the throne in favor of the Dowager Empress who fears the radical European ideas for which Kwang Su stands. It is to be hoped that this report is not true and that the Emperor Kwang Su may yet assume the responsibilities of his position.

A WEALTHY wine merchant of Cleveland has a wine cask, which is to be one of the sights at the Paris Exposition. Its construction occupied the entire time of a hundred and fifty-four men for a year. Some idea of its size may be gathered from the statement that it was used as a dining-room for a hundred and fifty-four guests. The interior was reached by going up a shallow flight of stairs extending from a platform. At the bottom of the cask a floor was laid, and tables were laid down the length of the floor. The cask was electrically lighted, and the interior looked very little different from an ordinary room, except for the curved formation or the sides and roof.



Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

WE SELL FIREPROOF IRON SAFES WITH COMBINATION LOCKS at from $6.95 for a 100-pound safe to $99.75 for a 3,000-pound, four double door bank safe. BIG 1,000-POUND STORE OR OFFICE SAFE FOR $29.95. We ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for Free Safe Catalogue. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

EARN THIS 112 PIECE DINNER SET. DON'T SEND ANY MONEY.

Simply send your name and address & we will send you 5 doz. sets of Ladies Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) to sell at 25c. a set. When sold, send us the money and we will send you this handsome China Dinner Set, beautifully decorated and trimmed with Gold. Not a toy set, but full size for family use. No charge for packing and boxing. If you cannot sell all the sets, we will send you a handsome present for those you do sell. Don't miss this liberal offer. We trust you and will run all the risk. Write to-day. Maxwell Co., Dept. 712, St. Louis, Mo.

A Gift to Agents - 7 Articles Free

$1 OUTFIT. Rotary Cake Cutter. Gem Griddle Greaser. Wonder Egg Beater. Kettle Cleaner. Ideal Cake Spoon. Knife Sharpener. Acme Table Mat.

To introduce our large line New Household Necessities and Aluminum Ware we will give $1.00 OUTFIT FREE to any person who will act as our agent. No experience required. Send us 50c in stamps to pay for express charges, Catalogs, Printed Matter, etc., and our new book "How to Make a Success," and we will send this Outfit of 7 of our best sellers worth $1.00 absolutely FREE, all charges prepaid. A VINING NOVELTY WORKS, 60 Wabash Av., Chicago.

STEAM CEREAL COOKER & EGG POACHER

Our No. 200 Cooker and Egg Poacher consists of large bottom pan 10¼ in. wide with inside rack & cereal pan which holds five pints for cooking cereals, etc. It allows the steam to circulate over and into them making the kernels tender, delicious and readily digestible. It also has a tray with five deep cups for puddings, custards, etc., and for poaching eggs, steaming oysters, etc. Eggs are poached by steam in two minutes, not broken and water soaked. A little cup for each egg. We are the largest manufacturers of specialties in Aluminum, Granite and Tin Ware. AGENTS write how to get FREE this and four of our other best selling household novelties. Outfit worth $2.00—express prepaid. Address Dept. 143. HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash. This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.—Ed.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker

Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove. Reduces Fuel Bills One-half. Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted. TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 74, Toledo, O.

PATENT BAKE PAN. Just out. Hinge sides. Sell a number at every house. Big pay. Samples free. 40 other articles. Rundell Manufactory, Watkins, N. Y.

WANTED WOMEN to bind dress shields at home. Steady work; distance no disadvantage; ask your dealer to show you Kora Shields. Kora Shields snap on waist without sewing. Send 10c. for catalogue of work. The Kora Shield Co., Dept. B, 525 Broome St., New York.

THE MAGICAL SPONGE.

THE WONDER OF THE 20th CENTURY.

For Polishing and Cleaning Windows, Signs, Mirrors, Show Cases, Gold, Silver, Nickel, also Jewelry, Copper, Brass and Tin.

For the Bath IT HAS NO EQUAL.

A Labor-Saving device entirely new and universal in demand. Will last a lifetime and costs but Twenty-five cents. Just on the market and over 500 Gross sold last month. Every family in the land wants one or more. All you do to sell them is simply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works on his window and you will depart with one less every time, but in its place a quarter.

The Magical Sponge differs from the ordinary sponge in nature, while the common sponge is of vegetable origin and found in the ocean, the Magical Sponge is a mineral production and found in the United States, dug from the ground, carefully prepared and manufactured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Merchant, Liveryman, Metal Workers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, offices, and business places in a clean and healthy condition.

No Soap or water is needed or even used with the Magical Sponge for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time it has no equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than what is in the sponge) all trouble and hard work is avoided. For Cleaning Baseboards, Window Sills, Wainscoating and painted surfaces, it acts like a charm; takes all the finger marks, spots, grease and dirt away, leaving a Clean, Polished Surface.

Good men wanted all over the country to handle these goods, big inducements offered steady workers, and exclusive sale. To Agents, Salesmen, and house to house canvassers, who send us 25 cents for a 6 months' subscription, we will send one sample post paid, and make them a business proposition. Write at once. Secure your territory. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NEW FRUIT HULLER.

PERFECTION AT LAST.

YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.

PATENT PENDING.

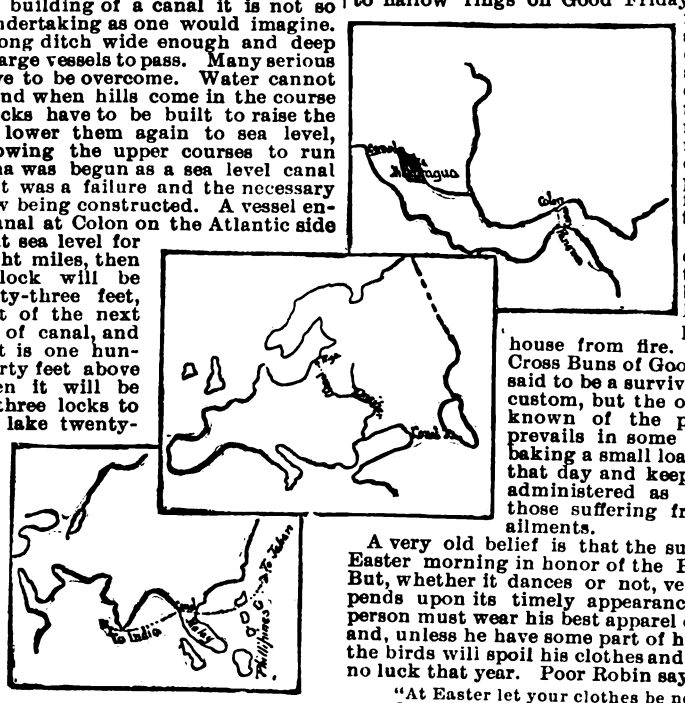
KEEP YOUR HANDS CLEAN.

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER

hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches.. Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up. A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed. Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickel-polished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket. We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send for trial sample, which we will send prepaid for 10 cents, including 3 months' trial subscription to this paper. Send 25c. for one year's subscription and we will send one-half dozen Hullers free; or send 50c. for two years' subscription and we will send one dozen Hullers postpaid. Agents' terms sent on application. NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

FOUR GREAT CANALS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.



A MAP of the trade routes of the world shows the continents crossed and recrossed by railroads, and the oceans marked off with long lines, showing where the ocean liners make their straight courses from port to port. No expense is spared in shortening the distance between important points, and engineering skill is tasked to its utmost to achieve this end.

At the present time four great schemes are before the world, their aim being to improve the facilities for commerce; four great canals are proposed in which four of the continents are interested; in North America the Nicaragua, in South America the Panama, in Europe the Russian and in Asia the Malacca. Panama and the Russian canal are already under way, while the other two are, as yet, in the air.

To Americans a short cut from the Atlantic to the Pacific is becoming of more and more importance. As our interest in the East increases a short route for steamers will become indispensable; and our government, recognizing this fact, has authorized several commissions to investigate the feasibility of Nicaragua as a position for a canal. Several plans have been presented, all of which call for engineering work on a gigantic scale as well as millions of dollars in money. Yet the undertaking is considered so important, and public opinion is so much in favor of it that it will doubtless be carried out.

But of what advantage is a Nicaragua canal to be if the Isthmus of Panama is already being intersected by a canal, which may be finished before its neighbor is begun? The Panama canal is not an American enterprise and when completed American vessels may, at any time, be excluded from its use. It is being built by French capital, and although at one time it was much in disgrace in the financial world, it is at present progressing, though not rapidly. Thus it appears that a canal under control of the United States government, well fortified for time of war, and awarding special privileges to American shipping, would be of inestimable value to us if our interests in the East are to mean anything.

As to the building of a canal it is not so simple an undertaking as one would imagine. It is not a long ditch wide enough and deep enough for large vessels to pass. Many serious obstacles have to be overcome. Water cannot run up hill and when hills come in the course of a canal, locks have to be built to raise the vessels and lower them again to sea level, without allowing the upper courses to run dry. Panama was begun as a sea level canal but as such it was a failure and the necessary locks are now being constructed. A vessel entering the canal at Colon on the Atlantic side will travel at sea level for seven or eight miles, then entering a lock will be raised twenty-three feet, to the height of the next long stretch of canal, and so on until it is one hundred and thirty feet above sea level; then it will be lowered by three locks to an artificial lake twenty-one miles long, and by two locks to sea level. This canal will be forty-six miles long, made entirely by excavation.

The proposed Nicaragua canal will be about one hundred and eighty miles long, but in its course it will make use of Lake Nicaragua and a long stretch of river so that the actual excavation will be but twenty-seven to thirty miles. This sounds encouraging, but Lake Nicaragua is one hundred and ten feet above sea level and if an opening were made to the sea its waters would be immediately discharged and the lake would be dry. To keep this as a reservoir and store house for the canal and river two great dams must be constructed, one at either end of the lake, so that the flow of water can be regulated. Ships will then pass through a series of locks to the lake, across the lake and be lowered by a series of locks on the other side to the sea level. Another expense which has to be met is the dredging of two harbors, Brito on the Pacific, and Graytown on the Atlantic. Then, too, a temporary railroad must be built for use during the construction of the canal. Panama has to meet neither of these expenses for Panama and Colon are already flourishing towns connected by a railroad which follows the route of the canal.

Yet in spite of all obstacles, expense, and unfavorable conditions it seems likely that Yankee ingenuity and perseverance will overcome all, and we may not be surprised if the American canal is in working order before its more slowly moving neighbor.

Turning to the Old World we find the Russian Canal already progressing. Perhaps we should hardly call this "The Russian Canal" for there are many such in Russia but this is the newest and the longest and is to connect the Baltic with the Black Sea. The work was begun in the spring of 1898 and it will require about five years for its completion. Starting from Riga, on an arm of the Baltic, vessels will sail up the Duna River to Dunaburg where they will enter the canal, which will extend to Lepel on the Berezino River; thence they will proceed on the Berezina and Dneiper to the Black Sea, entering it at Kherson, Russia, near Odessa. By thus using the courses of the rivers the actual excavation will be only about 800 kilometers though the entire distance from Riga to Kherson is 1600 kilometers. The canal will touch at many of the most important inland towns and vessels will be allowed to pass to and fro by night as well as by day. The journey from end to end will take about six days. Trade will be awakened in the inland sections, and much moral and intellectual advance is hoped for as well as increased trade.

Concerning the fourth great work little can be said. A canal through the Isthmus of Malacca would be an undertaking of much less magnitude than the other canals mentioned and it would save many miles of travel between China and India. If it is built the Straits of Malacca will be but little used and the British town of Singapore would fall into an unimportant place. It may, however be looked upon as one of the short cuts of the future.

CALENDAR SUPERSTITIONS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE first of April is All Fool's Day and its merry-making is of the most secular nature. And yet an old writer solemnly affirms, without giving any reason for his affirmation however, that prayers said to the Virgin Mary on this day at eight o'clock a. m., are of wonderful efficacy, provided a Paternoster and Ave Maria are added to them. In the Public Advertiser for April 13th 1767, there is a curious explanation of the origin of this day of All Fools:

"Humorous Jewish Origin of the Custom of making Fools on the First of April. This is said to have begun from the mistake of Noah sending the dove out of the ark before the water had abated, on the first day of April; and to perpetuate the memory of this deliverance, it was thought proper, whoever forgot so remarkable a circumstance, to punish them by sending them on some sleeveless errand similar to that ineffectual message upon which the bird was sent by the patriarch."

The Thursday before Easter is known as Shere-Thursday because on that day it was the custom to have the hair and beard trimmed for Easter. On this day it was long the custom for kings or bishops to perform some act in imitation of our Saviour's pattern of humility, such as distributing food to the poor or washing the feet of paupers. James II. was the last English sovereign to perform such an act in person. The kings of England used formerly to hallow rings on Good Friday, and these rings were supposed to cure persons afflicted with cramps or fits. If the ring were made of a crooked sixpence its efficacy was all the greater.

There is an old belief that eating buns onGood Friday will protect the house from fire. These Hot Cross Buns of Good Friday are said to be a survival of a pagan custom, but the origin is unknown of the practice that prevails in some countries of baking a small loaf of bread on that day and keeping it to be administered as medicine to those suffering from internal ailments.

A very old belief is that the sun dances on Easter morning in honor of the Resurrection. But, whether it dances or not, very much depends upon its timely appearance, for every person must wear his best apparel on that day and, unless he have some part of his dress new, the birds will spoil his clothes and he will have no luck that year. Poor Robin says:

"At Easter let your clothes be new,
Or else be sure that you will rue."

In some parts of England the common people spend St. Mark's Eve, April twenty-fifth, in watching on the church porch from eleven o'clock at night until one in the morning. This watch must be kept for three years and, in the third, the watcher will see passing before him a procession of the ghosts of all those who are to fall ill during the next year. Those who are to die remain in the church but those who will recover return after a stay that is longer or shorter according to the length of their coming illness. On this night the ashes are also spread on the hearth and, should any of the family be destined to die during the year, the print of his or her shoe will be found there in the morning. To quote Poor Robin's Almanack again:

"On Saint Mark's Eve, at twelve o'clock,
The fair maid will watch her smock,
To find her husband in the dark,
By praying unto good Saint Mark."

It is said that in Porto Rico there are few birds, no snakes, no monkeys and no birds of prey. The length of the island is ninety miles and the area 3670. The population is 820,000—300,000 of which are negroes. It was discovered by Columbus in 1493. It is more densely populated than Connecticut and produces the finest coffee in the world. The annual output of tobacco is 7,000,000 pounds, and the banana crop averages 200,000,000. There are one hundred and thirty-seven miles of railway and four hundred and seventy miles of telegraph. Cock fighting is the chief sport.

The maximum age of the elm tree is 335 years; of the cypress, 350; The ivy, 450; larch, 570; chestnut, 600; orange, 630; palm, 650; olive, 700; oak, 1500; yew, 2900.

DO YOU PLAY THE VIOLIN?

If so try our new importation of Violin Strings, from one of the best Makers in Europe. Full set of four strings, A. E. G. D. or 4 of any letter for only 10 cents, Stamps or Silver.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

HUNTING CASE

Actual Size.

This genuine 14k. Rolled Gold Ring or a Band Ring, Bracelet, Hat Pin, Chatelaine, Knife, Shirt Waist Set, or a Pocket book

FREE

to Anyone who will sell 10 of our Roman Gold Stick Pins at 10c. each. They sell quickly at the price, suitable for ladies or gentlemen.

NO MONEY REQUIRED IN ADVANCE,

just say you will sell the pins or return them and we will send pins at once postpaid with large premium list of Watches, Clocks, Chains, Opera Glasses, Bicycles, Tea Sets, Musical Instruments, etc. When sold you send us the money and we will send the premium you select. Miss Claire Tanner of Breakabeen, Tex. writes: "Thanks for the Gold Nugget Clock it is a little beauty."

B. E. Wolfe of Lapland, Md., says: "Was greatly pleased with the watch. It is very pretty and keeps perfect time."

OUR PREMIUMS ARE THE BEST.

M. R. COMPANY, 79 Dearborn St., Dept. 140, Chicago, Ills

A MAGIC FLUTE ROMANCE.

John Henderson is the luckiest man in the West. If you don't believe it ask him and he will confess it, and tell you moreover that he owes all his good luck in his life to the Magic Flute. It is a strange story, but the true facts are these: Mr. Henderson was in love. The object of his affections was a beautiful young girl of his native town, Des Moines. She was a musical enthusiast and had suitors by the score, for she was not only charming and beautiful of face and figure, but to these graces she added the talent of a superb musician. Naturally, though Mr. Henderson pressed his suit with great ardor, as he was not a performer on any musical instrument he failed to make the desired impression, however much he loved music, and dearly loved the object of his affections.

Happening in Omaha one day, quite disconsolate, he was astonished to hear sweet and tender strains issuing from the rear door of what proved to be a music store. He paused at the curbstone and listened. It was one of the favorite songs of his beloved, and so mellow and sweet were the sounds that they brought tears to his eyes. Entering the store the stranger asked what sort of an instrument it was that gave forth such magic sounds. He was shown the Magic Flute which had just arrived from New York. Thinking that the instrument that performed such tone miracles must have cost a hundred dollars or more, he was amazed to see what a trifling sum. He bought the instrument, and the next day returned to his native city and that night under the window of the maiden who had rejected him for his lack of musical abilities, Mr. Henderson poured forth his soul in the songs she loved so well. What was the result? The neglected lover was reinstated in the affections of the fair one, the rival suitors retired beaten in the game, and shortly after he was offered a large nightly sum by a celebrated impressario to appear in concert halls in the leading cities of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, completely happy and full of gratitude for the working of the Magic Flute, are at present traveling in the East, playing to large houses, Mrs. Henderson accompanying her husband on the piano. The musical world is amazed and delighted with the performances of Mr. Henderson on the Magic Flute. And yet his case is merely typical. You may not win a lovely bride by your skill on the wonderful instrument, but one thing you can do, even if you do not know one note from another, you can play a tune in five minutes and should delight your friends with it within a week.

We have made arrangements with the manufacturers to introduce these wonderful Flutes, and will send one free, all charges paid, including a trial yearly subscription to all sending 25c. to COMFORT Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine. Agents are selling large quantities of these Flutes and you better not delay in sending for a sample and getting wholesale prices.

Agents, Perfumes etc. on credit. Big Profit. Express Pd. Terms free. Herbene Co., Box 4, Station L, New York.

FREE Watches, Cameras, Bracelets, etc. Postal for list. Brockstedt's 806 N. B'way, St. Louis.

SPECTACLES at wholesale. Send for catalog. Agents wanted. COULTER OPTICAL CO. Chicago, Ill.

25 and 44 CENT WONDER

FOR 44 CENTS in finest quality Diamond Steel guaranteed and full finished, 25 cents in second quality.

WE FURNISH THIS NEW 1900 SECURITY TWO BLADE STAG HANDLE KNIFE, 3¼-inch handle, 6⅛-inch open, 18-inch full finished security chain.

CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us with 25 or 44 cents and 5 cents extra for postage, and we will send either knife to you by return mail, postpaid, and if you do not find it equal to any knife you could buy elsewhere at double the price, say so and we will immediately return your money.

Write for free catalogue of Knives, Razors and other Cutlery.

Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio.

FREE CIGARS: Fifty 10c. cigars (or 100 5c. cigars) free to you. Send for particulars. ASSOCIATED BUYERS, Manhattan Bldg., CHICAGO.

X-RAY Latest pocket curiosity. See your fellow, best girl or any object through clothing, wood or stone. 35c each. R. E. X-Ray Co., Philada., Pa.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

FREE! Any one can earn this beautiful gold-plate American or hunting case stem-winder watch, by selling our Headache Tablets. OUR GRAND OFFER: Send name and address (no money) and we will mail you 18 pkgs. tablets, you sell at 10c. each and remit us $1.80, and we will send you a watch free. NOTICE—Some firms offer a watch, chain and charm, but only give a chain and charm. We give a watch.

Essex Pharmacal Co., Dept. 67 Verona, N.J

4 BOOKS FREE The Sexual Instinct, by Wm. Kirke Anheroft, M. D.; The Glory of Womanhood, by Louise M. Barkley, M.D.; and The Treatment of Diseases of the Skin, by Wigton Barkley, M. D.; The River of Life, by Augustus Dannart, M. D., Ph. D., L. L. D.; The Pests of the Body, by Charles Matlock, M.D. Each of these little books is a remarkably interesting treatise on the subject considered, and all four will be sent absolutely free, postpaid, to any address. SECURITY PUBLISHING CO., Washington, D.C.

$10.00 TO $30.00 and expenses can be made EVERY DAY with OUR NEW IMPROVED GRAPHOPHONE TALKING MACHINE. PRICE REDUCED TO $5.00. You Can Make Big Money with our exhibition outfit. We furnish Talking Machine, Advertising Posters, Admission Tickets, and Book of Instructions telling you how to conduct the business, how to make $10.00 to $30.00 every day. YOU CAN EXAMINE THE OUTFIT before paying for it. For full particulars cut this notice out and mail to us. Address

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.), Chicago, Ill.

Dollars for Pennies.

"THE LIGHT THAT WON'T GO OUT."

Every family in America is ready to buy "The light that sells on sight"—the wonderful new invention called ARC-LIGHT WICK.

It burns a whole year without trimming. It kills a candle, discounts kerosene, beats gas, and almost equals electricity or sunlight.

It saves 20 per cent. of oil. It's clear, white and brilliant. It's the light that won't go out. It's the light in the window for thee.

The Light That Sells On Sight.

The ARC-LIGHT is something new. All need it, all buy it, all bless it. To show it means to sell it, and it yields from 100 per cent. to 800 per cent. profit to agents.

The same kind of carbon that gives the electric light its brilliancy is woven into the Arc-Light by a patent process. We hold affidavits showing that an Arc-Light burned 1040 hours, giving the last hour the same perfect, brilliant, light it gave the first.

A single lamp manufacturer in New England, who bought over 35,000 writes: "The Arc-Light beats all others. It sells our lamps, and turns night into day." Every home, store, hotel, saloon, hall, church, or car company will buy the Arc-Light Wick, or sight. We have made arrangements with the manufacturers to introduce this wonderful discovery, and we offer for 60 days the following wholesale terms to agents:

Medium or A wick, 5-8 inch wide—the size for house lamps—by mail, sample 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents; per gross, $2.50, Small or B wicks, for band lamps, lanterns, etc., 3-8 inch wide, sample, 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents, per gross, $2.50 Large or B wicks, for table, hall, store, or bracket lamps, 1 inch wide, sample, 5 cents, per dozen, 25 cents; per gross, $3.50. D wick, 11-2 inches wide, for incubators, hall, bracket, or store lamps, sample, 8 cents; 33 cents dozen; $3.50 gross. A round wicks for parlor lamps, sample, 33 cents; per dozen, pile wick, 8 cents, per dozen, 75 cents; per gross, $8.50. On all orders for $10.00 accompanied by the cash, 15 per cent. off. Send for sample dozen, giving width desired, and see how they go. We can supply you with any style ARC-LIGHT WICK in any quantities, from a single wick to a thousand dozen.

Copyright, 1896, by Morse & Co.

SPECIAL FREE COUPON OFFER. To all who send six cents and this offer for three months' trial subscription to this paper we will send 2 samples of A B or E wick. Address COMFORT, Box 959, Augusta, Maine.

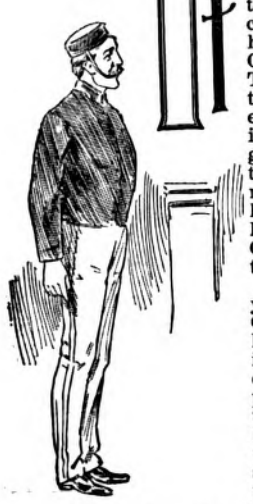
THE CUP THAT CURES.

GALLONS OF MEDICINE FREE.

NEVER RUNS DRY.

TRADE MARK.

"The Literary Companion" has been published 30 years, and during that time its Editor has been obliged to fight disease of all kinds, and in spite of having contracted malaria in the war of the Rebellion he has kept at his desk daily. When the country has been under the sway of fevers and other deadly contagious disease, when in '91 the deadly epidemic of "Grip" swept the land with such awful fury, he was fully fortified to withstand all of the cyclone results, and has kept as active, well and hearty as any mortal could who has overcome so many ailments. He will now tell you how to keep well yourself. You see the illustration of the Tonic Cup. Well, here is the secret. It has long been known that Quassia wood contained special medicinal properties which surely relieve and cure Malaria, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism and like diseases of Body, Stomach, Kidney and Liver—and by long and careful experiments with this wood it is now by a lately invented new process prepared and turned into forms which are in every way far superior to anything ever produced in the line of Quassia Cups. Gallons of medicine can be gotten from one of these Tonic Cups by simply pouring water into it and letting it stand a short time, when it will be found to be changed into the best tonic medicine ever made and can be drank direct from the cup itself or poured into any tumbler or bottle. These cups are Veritable Fountains of Health and Youth. A perfect river which will carry you on to the flood tide of prosperity and long life. Every member of every family in the land should use one, and one cup in each family will furnish medicine for the whole family to drink. The problem of economy in doctor's bills has been solved, and sickness can now be banished without employing the expensive methods of former times.



FOUNTAIN of HEALTH AND YOUTH.

ONE CUP SENT FREE To help all the people possible I will send one cup free to any one who will send 25c. for a year's subscription to the Literary Companion. This paper in itself was a $1.00 a year paper. We want new subscribers and I want to acquaint people with this wonderful Tonic Cup, and thus adopt this means of advertising them, for where one goes hundreds can be sold as nearly every family will take one and agents can make money selling them and taking subscriptions for the paper. Send 25c. to-day and get agents' terms on dozen and hundred lots.

Address LITERARY COMPANION, 11 Subs Dept., Augusta, Maine.

The British Soldier at Home.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

If A stranger in London asks a native resident what is the most interesting sight in the city, ten chances to one he is told, "The Horse Guards at Whitehall." This was as true before the South African war excitement arose as it is now, and shows how great is the regard of the average Englishman for the army, and how prone he is to look upon the Horse Guards as the army's typical representative.

In course of many years the words "Horse Guards" have come to have a double meaning in England. They designate certain companies of troops, and they also designate the building in London which is looked upon as the headquarters of the British army. The structure to which the words Horse Guards is applied is a portion of the Admiralty, a rambling collection of buildings situated between the lower end of St. James Park and the street called Whitehall. Across the park is Buckingham Palace, the home of Queen Victoria when she is in London, and across the street is Whitehall, the beginning of what was to have been another royal home.

The great Cardinal Wolsey once lived on this site, in a palace of his own. Years after he was dead, and his great house destroyed, Charles I. began to build a palace there which he called Whitehall. Only a small wing of the palace, as the King planned it, had been completed when the coming into power of Cromwell and the Puritans made the king a captive and his palace a prison. The fragment of the building stands to-day, just as he left it, and we look upon the very window in the second story from which the king stepped out upon that "high scaffold" on which, in the sight of thousands, he was to die.

The Admiralty Building is the official residence of the First Lord of the Admiralty and his associates, and from it are issued the orders which direct the movements of the British Navy around the world. What used to be one of the famous sights of London, a thing which people flocked in crowds to this building to look at, is now gone. That was a semaphone erected on the highest part of the roof, and used to transmit messages before the introduction of the electric telegraph and telephone furnished a more rapid means of conveyance. This semaphone was quite similar to those employed in railroad yards now. A line of these instruments was erected all the way from this one on the Admiralty roof to Portsmouth harbor and Navy Yard, the rendezvous of the British fleet. Each instrument was in sight of the next, and by means of them messages could be sent from London to Portsmouth quicker than in any other way.

Originally the British War Office and the office of the Commander-in-Chief were in the Horse Guards Building, but many years ago, in order to give more room and to bring them nearer the Sovereign, these offices were moved into a huge house on Pall Mall, once the home of the Duke of Cumberland, the brother of George III. Here they adjoin Marlborough House, the town home of the Prince of Wales, and St. James Palace, the home of the Duke of York, while Buckingham Palace, the city home of the Queen, is only a little way off, with a bit of the Green Park in between.

The Horse Guards gets its name from the fact that for years there have been kept on guard duty there, constantly, two mounted sentries. These men are furnished alternately from two particular mounted regiments, the

IN ALL HIS GLORY.

"Life Guards," and the "Horse Guards Blue." They are more imposing to look at than any one can possibly imagine who has not seen them, and after I had once looked at them I could understand how the London people have come to love them as the incarnation of the British army.

To begin with, the horses are the very pick of horseflesh from the entire kingdom, and they are fed and groomed until they look like pictures. I don't know how the men who go on duty there are chosen, but I never saw one there who was not a magnificent physical specimen, while their uniforms and the trappings of the horses are resplendent. The men wear high metal helmets, with enormous plumes. Both horses and men are trained to stand without moving a muscle. It is astonishing how the beasts can be trained in this way. I have watched them for several minutes without seeing a motion, and I have been told that they have been known to stand an hour in that way.

In pleasant weather these guards stand in the open air, one on each side of the gate, but for the preservation of their feathers and so forth, when it rains, a substantial stone house, matching the architecture of the rest of the building, has been erected for each of them, just back of the place where they stand in fair weather. These little "castles" have a lofty arch in front, so that each guard can back his horse into his "box," and thus be sheltered from the weather, while at the same time both horse and man are plainly visible from the street. They look so picturesque when their gorgeous accoutrements have these gray old stone arches for settings, that I used to admire them quite as much when they were in their "boxes" as when they were in the open air.

The British soldier is apt to be found all over England, and wherever you see him, whether in London's streets, marching in companies in some great parade, or drilling in squads in front of some barracks, or off duty, strolling in Hyde Park with jaunty rattan cane in hand, or in white tented encampment in the green open country, he is almost always an ornament to the scene. The regular army uniform consists of tight fitting blue trousers, brilliant scarlet jacket, made to fit as smooth as a lady's basque, and a "swagger" round cap perched on one corner of the wearer's head and kept there only by the aid of a ridiculous band of black enamelled leather which crosses the man's face and goes under his chin, or quite as often, goes between the chin and under lip. One who sees a company of these soldiers on parade sometimes wonders how so many erect, broad-shouldered men can be got together. The erectness of their carriage is a matter of military drill, of course, but even the strictest of martinets hardly would be expected to command a man to broaden out his shoulders. What the drill sergeant cannot do, though, the tailor can. As a matter of fact a great many of the handsome scarlet jackets, which seem to fit so snugly, are padded and built out over the shoulders. I know this is so because during one summer which I spent in London I came to know several of the men in one company well, and not only frequently saw them with their jackets off, but sometimes tried the coats on myself. This artificial assistance to nature makes the men look well, but at the same time it renders the coats uncomfortably thick in a hot day. The fine appearance of the troops is increased in some cases—as that of the Queen's Guards—by admitting no man below a certain height. When a company is made up of resplendently uniformed men, no one of whom is under six feet tall, the effect is imposing.

The officers' quarters in the city barracks of a swell regiment are fitted up with an elegance to be equaled only in the homes of the nobility. During the London season of the year of which I have spoken I had occasion to pass the Knightsbridge Barracks frequently in the evening, and from the street could look directly into one of the officers' dining-rooms. The room was richly furnished, but with excellent taste. When the occupants were at dinner, in full dress or gorgeous uniform, especially if they were entertaining guests, the room made a picture as striking as it was attractive. Of course the cost of living in this style far exceeds an officer's pay. I know one lieutenant, a man of excellent family but with no income except his pay, who deliberately threw up his commission because he could not maintain himself after the fashion of his fellow officers.

The word Knightsbridge, by the way, does not, as a romantic mind might think, mark the spot where at some time in the historic past mail-clad knights guarded the arches of some time-crumbled mediæval bridge. The word is simply a corruption, or one might rather say improvement of a proper name, Neate's Bridge.

SOME people imagine that the enormous quantities of food which are left untouched each day by the guests in the large hotels is extravagantly consigned to the garbage barrel. As a matter of fact, this food, with the exception of what is used for soup stock and in the dressing for fowls, is so well taken care of that hardly a crumb of it is wasted. First of all the waiters help themselves to such portions as they care for, which are left upon the tables after a great feast, and keep them warm until such time as they are relieved from their duties, when they all have supper together off just these remains. The larger hotels in the great cities often have large stock farms, where they ship barrels of this broken food, daily, to be fed to the pigs and poultry. The smaller ones sell it to farmers who come around daily for it, or send it to the stockyards to be fed to the animals there. One well-known hotel offers this food for sale at a very low figure, and it is estimated that about forty poor families in that city have availed themselves of this opportunity, and every forenoon they may be seen lined up near the kitchen door, with large baskets, waiting for their customary ration. To each one is given as nearly as possible, an equal measure of bread, cake and meat, in return for which a small sum is paid.

A POCKET LUXURY

Is a tortoise shell comb in a neat and fancy case, always handy and useful; good for men, women, school children and the soldiers. We will send one with our great catalogue of thousands of bargains for only six cents. Address, Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

A JOB 4 U $8 per 100 paid for distributing samples of washing fluid. Send 6c. stps. A. W. Scott, Cohoes, N. Y.

$6.00 cash per 1000 paid to distribute circulars. Send stamp. Nardre Adv. Co., 611 B'dway, New York.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind.

How to Dye A NEW 32 PAGE BOOK giving Latest and Best Methods for Home Dyeing. It saves time, money and bother. Sent FREE. CUSHING & CO., FOXCROFT, MAINE.

CARPETS. WE SELL ALL KINDS OF CARPETS at lowest wholesale prices, about one-half retail price charged by retail dealers. Write for FREE COLOR SAMPLE BOOK, showing samples of our entire line of Carpets. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

1900 Bicycles, Ladies Jackets FREE

Capes, Shoes, Dress Skirts, Mackintoshes, Sewing Machines, Watches, Cameras, Guns, Etc.

You can easily and quickly earn a premium by selling a few boxes of our high grade Toilet Soap to your friends and neighbors. It sells on its merits.

NO MONEY REQUIRED IN ADVANCE.

We have the best plan for Boys, Girls and Women. Our premiums are absolutely the best. Large illustrated list of premiums including Ladies' and Children's Clothing, Furniture, Guitars, Mandolins, etc., mailed FREE. Write to-day for full particulars.

DAWSON SOAP CO., 56 FIFTH AVE., DEPT. 72, CHICAGO, ILL.

NEW CURE FOR FITS THAT NEVER FAILS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Fits, Spasms, Spells, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus's Dance, &c., have children, relatives, friends or neighbors that do so, or know people that are afflicted, my New Treatment will immediately relieve and PERMANENTLY CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE Bottle and try it. Sent in plain package and express prepaid. It has CURED thousands where everything else failed. My 90-page Illustrated Book, "Epilepsy Explained," FREE by mail. When writing, please give name, AGE and express and postoffice address. All correspondence professionally confidential.

W. H. MAY, M. D.

MAY LABORATORY, 94 Pine St., New York City

$5.00 CASH per 1000 paid to Distribute Circulars. Enclose 4 stamps. World Adv. Assc'n, Chicago.

MAGNETIC Healing taught by mail $5. Address, National School of Magnetic Healing, Mattoon, Ill.

SELF-HYPNOTIC-HEALING Lessons for 10c. by return mail that will cure any disease in 10 days. Worth ($5.) Prof. R. E. Dutton, McCook, Neb.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED Many rich. Big lists with pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

ANGELS WHISPER Beautiful Large Picture colored. Sells quickly at 25c. Sample 12c. 9 for $1.00. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago.

YOUR FUTURE LIFE COMPLETE in LOVE, MARRIAGE and BUSINESS, AS PREDICTED by ASTROLOGY. Send TIME of BIRTH, SEX & 10c. for Written Prediction. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

LEARN A PROFESSION in 10 days that will net you $25 a day the rest of your life. Ladies or gentlemen. Address with stamp. PROF. S. A. WELTMER, Nevada, Mo.

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT HOME; $1.50 a day; four months work guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

OPIUM HABIT AND MORPHINE Cured at home. Trial Free. No pain. Comp. Oxygen Ass'n, Fort Wayne, Ind.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY For Railroad and Commercial Service. Typewriting Course Free. Paying positions guaranteed. Catalogue Free. Fisk Telegraph School, Lebanon, Pa.

LADIES ONLY Gentlemen need not apply. $12 PER WEEK sure for regular work; spare time in proportion. Pleasant employment at home for intelligent, energetic ladies. Permanent position. $600 per year and expenses guaranteed for honest work. Unusual opportunity for ladies. Address Reliable Manufacturers, Box 458, Philada., Pa.

EARN A CAMERA, or BRACELET, or GOLD-FILLED RING,

BY SELLING 10 PINS AT 10c. EACH.

These are beautiful Gold Stick Pins, set with rubies, pearls, emeralds, etc., and are worth twice the price.

Send us your name and full address. We will then send you the pins. You sell them, return the money to us, and choose premium—a camera, bracelet or ring, or any other premium in our large illustrated catalogue.

NOVELTY JEWELRY CO.
25 Bank St., Attleboro, Mass.

MARRY MANY GENTLEMAN willing to MARRY a plain looking but RICH LADY may SEND his ADDRESS to MISS. A.Z., 211 CLIMAX OFFICE, CHICAGO.

OPIUM and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Write DR. J. L. STEPHENS CO., Dept. C1, Lebanon, Ohio.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr. E. M. Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

FREE RUPTURE CURE!

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y, and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

HAIR SWITCH 65 CENTS.

WE SELL HUMAN HAIR SWITCHES to match any hair at from 65c to $3.25, the equal of switches that retail at $2.00 to $8.00.

OUR OFFER: Cut this ad out and send to us, inclose a good sized sample of the exact shade wanted, and cut it out as near the roots as possible, inclose our special price quoted and 5 cents extra to pay postage, and we will make the switch to match your hair exact, and send to you by mail, postpaid, and if you are not perfectly satisfied, return it and we will immediately refund your money.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE AS FOLLOWS: 2-oz. switch, 20-in. long, long stem, 65c; short stem, 90c; 2-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.25; 3-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.50; 3-oz. 24-in. long, short stem, $2.25; 3½-oz. 26-in. long, short stem, $3.25. WE GUARANTEE OUR WORK the highest grade on the market. Order at once and get these special prices. Your money returned if you are not pleased. Write for Free Catalogue of Hair Goods. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

Solid Gold or Silver

plated bracelet sent free to anyone for selling 5 sets of our LADIES GOLD plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set; (each pin set with an exquisite jewel.) Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you the Bracelet. The chain is beautifully engraved and the lock opens with a dainty little key. We trust you and will take back all pins you cannot sell. Write to-day. Address The Maxwell Co., Dept. 535. St. Louis, Mo.

A BIG OFFER 50c. MADE IN A MINUTE! If you will hang up in the P. O., or some public place, the two show bills that we send, we will give you a 50c. cert., and send it in advance with samples and bills. This will trouble you about one minute, and then if you want to work on salary at $50 or $100 per month, let us know. We pay in advance. GIANT OXIE CO., 125 Willow St., Augusta, Me.

A GRAND Household Outfit FREE.

Any one can learn to repair their tinware in fifteen minutes with our new and improved Handy Soldering Set. This new Set has full directions how to work it to the best advantage and you can save enough in one day by using this Set to keep one in Boots and Shoes for six months. Everything necessary to repair all kinds of tinware or used to put up canned fruits etc., comes with this set and we will send a Set to you free, all charges paid, if you enclose 25c. for one yearly subscription. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

YOUR FORTUNE FREE By Astrological Information you can be guided and often a fortune made, a ruined life prevented and death thwarted. Send me your birthdate with two stamps for postage and I will send your life reading for which others charge dollars. Astrology is my life study and my knowledge is free. Noted people of Europe and America have benefitted by my readings, Matters of Love, Business, Health and Speculation, all made clear by my investigations. All questions answered. Address Mlle Astro, Station A, Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE SILK DRESS

Here is an honest advertisement. No beating around the bush. You can get full 10 to 15 yards of beautiful silk, Black, brown, blue, green or pink, in light or dark shades, and a beautiful mercury diamond breast pin for selling our remedies. We talk plain English & guarantee to do exactly as we say. We don't ask a cent. If you agree to sell only 6 boxes of our Positive Corn Cure at 25 cts a box, we send you the Salve by mail. When sold you send us the $1.50 and we send you the solid gold laid mercury diamond breast pin, together with our offer of a handsome silk dress, same day money is received. We make this extraordinary inducement to secure honest people and prove our Corn Cure the best on earth. There is no chance about it. If you comply with the offer we shall send you; the silk dress (full 10 to 15 yards, any color you desire) will be given absolutely free. Don't pay out money for a handsome dress while you can get one free for selling our remedies. Address at once, MANUFACTURERS' SUPPLY DEPT. "O," No. 65, 5th Ave., N. Y. City.

—THE— EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 2, Eagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

TALKS WITH GIRLS.

CONDUCTED BY
COUSIN MARION.

After April showers, dear cousins, come May flowers, and may every one of you find the pretty posies strewn along your pathway, not only now, but for all the years that you may live. And with this spring greeting let us get to the more serious task of answering your questions.

The first is from Gervaise of Grangeville, Idaho, who asks if it is correct to wear black slippers in the daytime, and I hasten to assure her that it is. (2) A necktie box with scarf and pin makes a very appropriate and acceptable present for your fiance.

Blue Belle, Belleville, Texas.—Invite a young man to your house simply by asking him to call. (2) Thank the young man when he says he is glad to meet you. (3) You may exchange scarf pins with a young man whom you know very well. (4) If a girl doesn't know how to greet her "beau" when he calls, she shouldn't have one.

Snow Flake, Charles City, Md.—I know of no significance in a stone Indian arrow dart, unless the young man wants you to think it is one of Cupid's.

Selfishness, Fort Dodge, Ia.—Try the Boston Bank again for the coin. (2) It is quite right to ask a young man to return your photograph. (3) Yes, the young man who offers no familiarities thinks more of a girl than one who does.

Olive and Sister, Cedar Grove, W. Va.—Don't marry one man when you love another, even if you can't marry the man you love. (2) There is no known plan to prevent a man paying you attention if he wants to do it. (3) If you live in a community where all the girls permit themselves to be kissed by the young men, you will have to move or remain unpopular, or do as the others do. (4) If the man is all right, marry him, whether your father wants you to or not. (5) There is such a thing as love, and marriages without it are very risky ventures. Don't try one. (6) Refuse to see the young man who insists upon kissing you.

Delila, Pidco, Texas.—If you intend to marry a man you should regard his wishes as to the friends you have. (2) It is best not to accept the attention of a man who drinks to excess. (3) It is quite right for church members to play harmless games—even cards when it is not for money or its equivalent.

Dott Dimple, Washington, D. C.—I don't know the colors of St. John's, Annapolis. St. John's, New York, are maroon; LaFayette's are maroon and white. (2) Don't be so nice to all the men who come to see you, but be a little nicer to one of them and see what the result will be. (3) Stop going with the girl who is polite to you merely because she likes your brother. (4) Inquire at any bookstore.

O. W., Canon City, Col.—Put olives in your mouth with your fingers.

Mattie H., Pisgah, Tenn.—Tell the young man he is mistaken and if he insists, leave the room. (2) There are many happy marriages in which the woman is older than the man. Do as you please. (3) By all means tell the young man if his cravat is not on straight. (4) It is not too familiar to ask your sweetheart to stop chewing tobacco and drinking. (5) Break your engagement with the young man who has treated you shamefully in the matter. (6) The lady sets the time of the wedding, unless the man is going off to the war or something like that.

Pansy, Berwick, La.—One or two good "love novels" by standard authors are enough in a month. (2) It is right enough to ring a young man up on a telephone but you should not do it when he is at work, unless very important.

Lottie, Peru, Ind.—"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching" is out of print in the ordinary form, but you will find it in nearly any collection of songs. Ask your music dealer.

Snowflake, Piermont, N. H.—Nine years between man and wife is very good, but you should be older than nineteen. Wait four or five years and see what becomes of the troubles you are now having. (2) A girl of eighteen and a youngster of twenty should wait at least five years.

X. Y. Z., Battle Lake, Minn.—Don't go with the man who is "not fit for a lady to go with," of course. Aren't you a lady? (2) There isn't anything to say when a man thanks you after a dance.

Myrtle, Lawrence, Kans.—A man who has any spirit wouldn't ask a girl to dance with him after she had "mittened" him. (2) A man need not say when he expects to call again. (3) Address the university at Cambridge, Mass. (4) There is no set form of getting acquainted with people whom neither you nor your friends know.

Leora, Cherryvale, Kans.—Good novels read with other literature are of much benefit. Fairy tales by the great writers in that line are good literature. (2) The vast majority of people hold that the Sabbath of the Lord is the first day of the week, but it is the seventh according to Lev. XXV:4. (3) Very few persons are able to explain the meaning of many passages in Revelations, and I am not one of them. (4) There is not any one who is "the most noted preacher in the world." (5) The Bible does not explicitly speak against the wearing of jewels, but it advises moderation in all things.

Ida, Radersburg, Mon.—Stop thinking about the young man who comes to see you "unregularly" and let him go. (2) "Friendship letters" are permissible.

Ida S., Columbia Springs, W. Va.—Medical students are given the courtesy title of Doctor.

"Graduate, Westport, Pa.—Don't wear gloves at your graduation, nor a dress longer than usual.

Lillie and Ida, Cedar City, Mo.—Use your own common sense in replying to the usual courtesy speeches, and lead the way into your own house. (2) A plate should not be turned down; place knife and fork at either side of it. (3) The first dance belongs to your escort.

Edna, Rochester, N. Y.—Your case calls for more than patent medicines. Talk to your family physician.

Dorothy, Brookfield, Mo.—If the young man loves you he will tell you so. If he does not he will do as he is now doing. Tell him you must not see him any more. That may bring him to his senses.

Twilight, Goliad, Texas.—There is a law in most if not all states against cousins, that is first cousins, marrying.

Brown Eyes, Lamar, Mo.—If you and your mother think the young man is all right, possibly you might go against your father's wishes, but it is not best to do so. Ask your mother the other questions you ask me.

Almira, Greenleaf, Wis.—Thank a young man always for his escort or other courtesy and choose your own language. (2) See answer to X. Y. Z.

Daisy, Pollard, Ala.—Let him tell his love or let him go. (2) A scarf pin or match safe, or cigar case or a cane or any of the little silver conveniences for men will make a good present for a birthday.

Effie, Lane, Ky.—It is correct to use the letters "M. D." after a Doctor's name. (2) "My dear Mr. X." or "Dear Mr. X." or "My dear Friend" are very good forms of address until the letters grow more tender.

Lucy, Syracuse, N. Y.—I can not advise any particular correspondence school, but write to all you know of and get their terms and advice and decide for yourself. A woman could not do all the work required of an electrical engineer.

Edna S., Bartlett, N. H.—Ask your mother about your hair and your dresses.

Darling, Selma, Ala.—Ask your dressmaker about a summer wardrobe for the Gulf coast. Maine is too far away. (2) See answer to Pansy. (3) Two young men in a buggy may stop a young lady on foot and talk to her if they are all good friends. Why not? (4) I can't suggest a way for you to make "church money."

Now dears, all your questions are answered and all my space is gone, so with the very best wishes till me meet again I am your

COUSIN MARION.

A CASE OF PERFUMERY FOR YOU.

We have a great quantity of perfumery in cases which we wish to give to our friends without expense. It is most delicate and lasting and combines the various perfumes and fragrance of the flowers. Placed in a bureau drawer will impart delicious odor to all clothing, kerchiefs, etc. Sweeter than the mignonette. Send us four cents pay for shipping expenses and will send it with copy of our illustrated bargain book.

S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

DO NOT SEND US ANY MONEY

LOOK FREE

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS THIS GRAND OFFER. A Magnificent Solid Gold-Plated Initial Bracelet or Ring Our Rings are all set with a carefully selected Ruby or Emerald Stone, mounted in a Tiffany setting. The Bracelets are in the latest style, popular Curb Link; the lock and key being exquisitely engraved. They present a beautiful appearance and will wear a lifetime. Over 100,000 young ladies are now wearing our rings and bracelets. We guarantee everything just as we advertise. Just send us your name and address (letter or postal), that's all. We will send you 10 large handsome stamped doilies, ready for embroidering (Carnations, Roses, Chrysanthemums, Pansies, Holly). Each pattern a prize-selected design. Sell these to your friends at 10c, each, send us the one dollar collected and we will promptly send you the bracelet with your initial engraved on it, or a ring; take your choice. Our reliability is established. We refer to the publisher of this paper or to any National Bank in this city. Write sure to-day for the doilies; your success is certain; sell at sight and wanted in every home. (Write to Box 50, STERLING JEWELRY CO., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

SEND YOUR SIZE and 10 cents to defray mailing, etc. and we will send, postpaid, one beautiful 18K Gold Pl. Ring, 20 Fine Silk Remnants, latest colors and designs, 1 yd. Silk Ribbon, Handsome Pearl Top Scarf Pin, Fancy Silvered Hair Pin, 2 Silvered Studs, one fine Gold Plated Beauty Pin, Inlaid Scarf Pin, Outfit of Games and Pictures and our bargain list of Jewelry and fancy goods. Entire lot, postpaid, 10 cents. Address: L. E. GOGGINS, Box 31, Roselle, N. J.

LADIES, Send to Mrs. H.C.Fretter, Detroit, Mich., for free package ORANGE LILY. Cures all female diseases.

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich. EASTERN AGENCY 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

Magnetic Healing How to fill your body quick with immense power to heal disease and hypnotize. Endorsed by highest science. Either sex make $25 a day. Enclose stamp. Dr. Armstrong, Berrien Springs, Mich

PIMPLES and Blackheads removed in 4 to 6 days. Perfectly Harmless. Never fails. Send 10 cts. Specific Remedy Co., Dept. K, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mid The Green Fields OF VIRGINIA,

Break the News to Mother, The Girl I Loved in SunnyTennessee, I'd Leave My Happy Home for You, One Night in June, Because, I Guess I'll save to Telegraph My Baby, Dewey's Welcome Home, You Ain't the Coon for Me, She Was Happy 'Till She Met You.—Some of the latest hits, comic, pathetic, coon, love songs, and many old favorites and nearly 200 other songs with MUSIC complete, all for 10 cts. DON'T MISS THIS OFFER. Address HOME MUSIC COMPANY, STATION E, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

$2000 FREE A SQUARE AND HONEST IDEA OF ADVERTISING A MAGAZINE.

COUNT THE POINTS on the outside circle. We will divide Two Thousand Dollars, payable May 30, 1900, among those who correctly count the exact number. For instance if ten correct answers are received each receives Two Hundred Dollars, if forty correct answers are received each receives Fifty Dollars, and so on. It is difficult to find exact number, so correct answers will not be many. We require each contestant to send 10 cents for trial six months subscription and postage expenses, as we have no further conditions or requirements. The $2000 is an appropriation to introduce our magazine and if you look sharp you can be successful and cash award check will be sent you by return mail. We are long established and do exactly as we advertise. Address BLACK PUB. CO., Am. Tract Bldg., New York City.

Hair Like This

WE WILL MAIL FREE on application, to any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color, after all other remedies have failed. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address.

Lorrimer & Co, 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

144 PIECE DINNER SET FREE

Full size for family use, beautifully decorated & most artistic design. A rare chance. You can get this handsome dinner set and one dozen fine plated tea spoons for selling our Pills. We mean what we say & will give this beautiful dinner set absolutely free if you comply with the extraordinary offer we send to every person taking advantage of this advertisement. To quickly introduce our Vegetable Pills, a sure cure for constipation, indigestion & torpid liver, if you agree to sell only six boxes of Pills at 25 cts. a box write to-day and we send Pills by mail, when sold send us the money & we send you one dozen plated tea spoons together with our offer of a 144 piece dinner set same day money is received. This is a liberal inducement to every lady in the land & all who received the spoons & dinner set for selling our Pills are delighted.
AMERICAN MEDICINE COMPANY, DEPT. O, 32 WEST 13th STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

A MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE AND

A FAMILY BIBLE FOR $1.89.

DELIVERED AT YOUR HOME.

This edition excels all others in the excellence of paper and exquisite topography, being printed from an entirely new set of plates costing $20,000. The size of page is 12x9 inches, the print large and clear, and there are TEN BEAUTIFUL FULL-PAGE PHOTOGRAVURE PICTURES of rare artistic excellence and some of the most superb masterpieces of Modern Paintings, being in harmony with the justly celebrated OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES. They are bound in fine Morocco Buckram Paneled Sides, and contain the Old and New Testaments, authorized version, a complete list of contents of each chapter in both Old and New Testaments, giving in concise form the subject on which each chapter treats; for instance, we find in this table that the 5th chapter of Deuteronomy contains the Ten Commandents, thus forming a ready reference table. It also gives the number of books, chapters, verses, etc., in the Holy Bible, also gives the number of times many familiar words occur in the work. also a very neat, plain Marriage Certificate and Family Record. Our New Bible is just what the people want; excellent paper, handsome illustrations, good, clear print, handsome and durable bindings, and last but not least, an EXTRAORDINARY FAMILY RECORD, entirely different from that contained in any other Bibles in the country. The print is of large size, clear and distinct, just right for grandfather and grandmother to read without their glasses, while the full-page engravings will interest and instruct the little children. It is the book for every member of the family.

Our price by mail or express, charges fully paid to your post-office, is only $1.89. Only think of it! A Bible, 12x9 inches, weighing more than five pounds, for $1.89! In addition to the Bible we will give a year's subscription to this paper.

SPECIAL PREMIUM OFFER. Send a club of six subscribers at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each, or a club of 12 at our special club rate of 15 cents a year each, and we will send it free as a premium.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

WE ARE

Searching for Sufferers

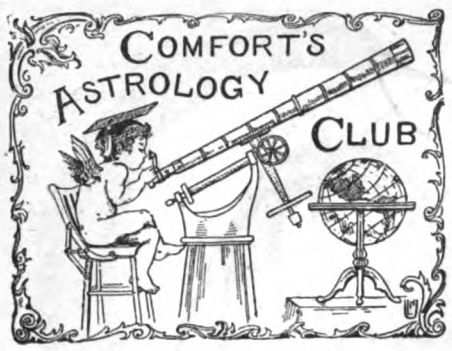
YOU MAY NOT FEEL SICK

BUT ALL HANDS POINT TO THE FACT YOU ARE NOT WELL AND WHETHER YOU BE MAN OR WOMAN YOU WILL SOON TAKE ON THIS AGONIZED LOOK.

WE CAN HELP YOU.

YOU DON'T NEED MEDICINE.

But you say you feel generally miserable or suffer with a thousand and one indescribable bad feelings, both mental and physical? Among them low spirits, nervousness, weariness, lifelessness, weakness, dizziness, feelings of fullness or bloating after eating, or sense of "goneness" or emptiness of stomach in morning, flesh soft and lacking firmness, headache, blurring of eyesight, specks floating before the eyes, nervous irritability, poor memory, chilliness, alternating with hot flushes, lassitude, throbbing, gurgling, or rumbling sensations in bowels, with heat and nipping pains occasionally, palpitation of heart, short breath on exertion, slow circulation of blood. Don't your hands and feet become cold and clammy, do you HAWK AND SPIT and expectorate greenish colored matter? IS your urine scanty or high colored and does it deposit a sediment after standing? You have pain and oppression in chest and back, pain around the loins, aching and weariness of the lower limbs, drowsiness after meals, but nervous wakefulness at night, languor in the morning and a constant feeling of dread as if something awful was about to happen.



There Is Help for You. You Can Yet Be Happy.

I have an appliance. The only way to introduce it is to let you try it FREE. You will tell others if it helps you. It is perfectly harmless. Send us your name we are looking for real sufferers and knowing it will do you good you can cure yourself without trouble or expense. This article is perfectly safe and reliable, can be worn day and night, all of the time or part of the time and in any place or spot on the body that feels sick or shows pain—it is most marvelous acting and is the greatest God-send you ever heard of. After you use it and you feel its power you will say $25 would not have prevented me from sending for it. It acts just as well on man or woman.

THE ONLY CONDITIONS.

We send one all charges paid. It is Medical and we are obliged to put on Revenue stamps. Therefore as we furnish them entirely free we simply ask you to send us TEN CENTS for mailing, etc. We trust to your honor to tell others about the cure and know many will be sold thereby. We do not ask you to send any more money unless you want others to sell at a profit after you try it. Address,

G. O. COMPANY, Box 654, Augusta, Maine

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

THE Astrological Diagram erected for the time of the New Moon, which occurs just after midnight between the 28th and 29th of April, serves as the basis of judgment of events for the month of May. At the time of the New Moon the 20th degree of Capricorn will be rising with Saturn just above the horizon, and the 13th degree of Scorpio will be culminating. SATURN is therefore the ruler of the scheme for the month and as he is in his own house, though retrograde, his promise for the month is better than the average. The air will be temperate and healthy with moderate and seasonable rains. The great benefic JUPITER in the 11th, most elevated, and in his own sign, in good aspect with Mercury and with Mars, the ruler of the Midheaven, presignifies general prosperity, faithful allies, just laws, and honor for churchmen.

Mars on the 3rd indicates some kind of disorder on a railroad, and the probable discovery of some unusual thieving or dishonesty in the postal service. Venus in the 5th indicates an increase in the birthrate, especially of female children and a more prosperous period for theaters and places of entertainment. There will be marked increase of travel and a busy time for the railways and the post office.

Saturn's presence in Capricorn is unfortunate for Mexico and for India. In the latter country troubles come thick and fast. Famine and disease there inflict unusual suffering.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR MAY, 1900.

MAY 1—Tuesday. Mischievous to the purse are the conditions of this forenoon; speculators beware of temptation. Do not invest thy means for purposes of money gains, especially in any scheme concerned with patents or patented articles; do not expect any favor from thy dealings with government officials or persons representing large corporations or organizations of any kind. As the noon hour is passed let every energy be given to thy several avocations, and particularly to those of a literary or commercial character and such as relate to the manufacturing and mechanical enterprises; do extensive correspondence, mathematical and scientific work, and the manufacture of artistic goods; the afternoon and evening are peculiarly appropriate for all kinds of mental labor and for initiating all literary work of consequence.

2—Wednesday. An especially favorable day for the elegant occupations; the artist, beginning this day, should paint successfully and profitably; art exhibitions can be begun here with profit; seek musical entertainment and have dealings in articles of adornment.

3—Thursday. Have no engagements pertaining to houses and lands during the early morning hours, but otherwise urge all thine avocations to the utmost during the day; seek favors from persons in public places and from thine employer.

4—Friday. The first part of the day promotes combustibility and may witness some bad fires, when also care should be had in handling horses, dogs and the brute creation generally; be master of thy temper and keep thy wits and a pleasant tongue; do not engage in any kind of controversy nor enter into any contract of consequence; be watchful of the purse in the afternoon and do not pay out thy cash except for necessaries.

5—Saturday. Vigorously employ this day for thy business engagements of consequence giving preferences if any to money transactions and commercial affairs, due caution being had against haste of action or decision. Persons born about the 11th of January, 12th of July or 13th of October, of past years, are advised that this is an exciting time for them; they should keep a civil tongue, be slow to take offence, avoid everything like controversy and not be careless with fire or explosives.

6—Sunday. Not particularly promising for a Sabbath day, though the latter part of the day is noted for increased activity of mind and body, more conducive to restlessness than quiet contemplation of religious subjects.

7—Monday. Begin this day early and urge all business diligently. REGULUS particularly urges his friends in both the intellectual and artistic pursuits to press their several enterprises to the utmost and recommends the day equally for the merchant, tradesman, and traveller; for change of residence and dealings with printers, booksellers, stationers, real estate men and counsellors; give preference to the afternoon for house furnishing and decorating, or for landscape painting and agricultural and horticultural work of every description, also for architectural work and contracts pertaining to building and construction.

8—Tuesday. Have care what writings are signed during this day, especially if they pertain to money matters or if they obligate thee for the benefit of others; do not execute any contracts or travel unnecessarily, nor be concerned in the affairs of public organizations or corporations; the morning is more conducive to bad fires involving property losses of magnitude and unusual care should be had in this respect; do not make any application to large corporations for any favor or advantage nor have anything to do with patents, trade-marks or copyrights.

9—Wednesday. Use forenoon hours in preference to the other parts of the day; when deal with government officials, politicians and persons in authority generally; the day as a whole is a good one for the vigorous prosecution of all established business.

10—Thursday. Musical and artistic pursuits and the elegant occupations generally suffer peculiar annoyances and embarrassments for a few days now passing and the gentle sex appear at a disadvantage or suffer in greater proportion than usual; troubles peculiar to the sex are increased and kidney troubles are accelerated; suicide from poison among them and an unusual number of violent evils to the gentle sex are induced at this time. Special caution is urged in these respects for persons born about the 24th of March, 26th of June, or the 27th of September or December of past years; they should be strictly temperate in habit, avoiding too free living, dissipation, indulgence in follies, extravagance in expenditures, either through vanity, boasting, false pride or for self-gratifications. The tender sentiments prove sources of unusual embarrassment or suffering in many of the lives of those so born. The first half of the day is peculiarly evil and prompts the postponement of very important beginnings; enter into no contract concerning real estate, avoid thy landlord and await a more fitting opportunity for thy dealings with the aged and infirm; but especially is this day to be avoided for wooing or wedding, very strange and unfortunate terminations may be looked for in the matrimonial engagement now made or the marriage consummated at this time; the afternoon should be given the preference for the more important undertakings of the day.

11—Friday. Have dealings in the forenoon of this day with public officers or managing authorities or superintendents in great corporations or upon large public works, when also solicit favor from railway officials and from persons of prominence and noted for eccentricity of conduct or habit.

12—Saturday. Avoid rashness of word or act during the forenoon, nor be easily moved to wrath; the forenoon is also unusually dangerous for surgical operations, especially if performed upon the head or kidneys; the day improves as it advances, encouraging the transactions looking towards building or other improvements to real estate and is to be employed for active prosecution of all the honorable pursuits of life; the evening is less propitious for any literary work or study.

13—Sunday. The forenoon gives musical and artistic inclinations though the day is rather indifferent in other respects.

14—Monday. More conflicting conditions than usual prevail on this day; give no offence to thy superior or employe nor seek any advantage from persons in authority.

15—Tuesday. This is the merchant's own day and an especially fortunate one for every honorable pursuit; buy goods for trade; speculate in stocks and securities, although in this extraordinary method of money getting the nativity should be more directly relied upon, and seek favors and money accommodations.

16—Wednesday. Begin early and improve every moment in the pursuits of art, music, and in the elegant avocations generally; deal in fancy goods and engage in business pertaining to decoration, adornment, dramatical goods or entertainments.

17—Thursday. Be early astir for urging the chemical, electrical and mechanical pursuits and dealings in metals and machinery, but as the noon passes put on the "caution cap" as to all dealings in houses and lands and do not be surprised if progress in general undertakings is checked for a few hours; do not expect much satisfaction from the musical, social or dramatic entertainment of the evening.

18—Friday. Use all this day for thine engagements with persons in the intellectual and literary pursuits; urge correspondence, sign contracts, engage help and travel.

19—Saturday. Use this forenoon for seeking favor from persons in authority or thy superiors in business but as the day advances put a bridle on the tongue, avoid haste in act and deed and do not engage in quarrels or controversies; surgical operations, especially upon the female anatomy, better be postponed for a season, where possible, as inflammatory conditions prevail; the day at 2 o'clock is superior for soliciting money favors, buying goods for trade, and pushing all established commercial ventures.

20—Sunday. An indifferent day, in which conditions contribute but little to the success of pulpit efforts or religious zeal.

21—Monday. Give preference to the forenoon for the important ventures of the day, though dealings in fancy or ornamental goods should be only sparingly made and then only when absolutely necessary; the late evening and night hours are recommended for planning enterprises pertaining to buildings and mechanical and manufacturing ventures of all kinds; also mining and chemical undertakings.

22—Tuesday. Beware of very flattering promises in the schemes or enterprises which present themselves in the first half of this day, when also watch the finances and be not extravagant in expenditure; as noon is passed let every energy be devoted to affairs in thy life which relate to the decorative or artistic; to wearing apparel and the elegant pursuits and the fine arts generally.

23—Wednesday. Another of the very good days of the month for the vigorous prosecution of general business; the morning is especially recommended for the literary pursuits, the transaction of business with lawyers; the execution of deeds and all classes of mercantile contracts; applications to printers, presswriters, scientists, mathematicians and also to persons of prominence in public office.

24—Thursday. Personal applications for favor from persons of wealth or prominence are more likely to succeed in the forenoon of this day than general; the day is excellent as well for all honorable undertakings of life; make important purchases of merchandise for trade, except those in a fancy or artistic line, and have thy dealings with monied institutions in the forenoon.

25—Friday. Do not speculate or loan thy money or credit during the first half of this day; the afternoon and evening are favorable for dealings with landlords and contractors and in real estate, mining properties, lumber, wool, and coal.

26—Saturday. Be careful in speech during the morning hours and "make haste slowly" in forming judgments, for rashness will now work great injury; the afternoon is the best part of the day and should be vigorously employed forwarding all the elegant pursuits and those portions of thine affairs that relate to the apparel or the decorative or artistic features.

27—Sunday. A favorable day for success of pulpit efforts.

28—Monday. Total Eclipse of the Sun. Begin the day early; do correspondence and urge business with vigor; deal with booksellers, publishers, stationers, and all engaged in the intellectual pursuits. The day, however, is less propitious for financial transactions and does not encourage the buying of goods for sale, nor should much advantage be expected from applications to bank or other monied institutions for funds; see that losses are not suffered in any of thy money dealings and be careful not to bind thyself security for others, or loan thy means or credit.

29—Tuesday. An indifferent day in nearly all respects and caution is suggested against the execution of deeds or writing and also against correspondence of importance; troubles with correspondence and through written obligations are more likely to develop here.

30—Wednesday. Be cautious about signing any contract pertaining to houses or lands on this day, nor should dealings be had in such commodities as coal, iron, wood, lumber, lead, wool, or grain; the afternoon invites activity in such undertakings as are concerned with machinery and chemicals; deal with cutlers, surgeons, chemists, bakers, barbers, tailors, cattle-traders, tanners, carpenters, and military men; when also consult thy dentist and experiment in chemistry and with electrical apparatus.

31—Thursday. A superior day for the pursuit of art, music and the elegant avocations generally; deal in fancy goods and engage in decoration and adornment, but let all be prudent in the pursuits of pleasure; have no transactions relating to book publishing nor with reference to copyright or patents; correspondence is best deferred a little.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

LADIES A 50c BOX FREE

That every invalid lady may learn how quickly she may be cured of uterine troubles, displacements, painful periods, leucorrhœa, etc. I promise to send by return mail in sealed plain package to any lady who will write for it a 50 cent box of a simple home remedy that cured me after years of suffering. There is no charge whatever. Write to-day for yourself or for your friend.

Address Mrs. L. Hudnut, 48 A, South Bend, Ind.

Get Married 8,000 Ladies are VERY ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, Box 608, AUSTIN, ILLS.

THE HAIR TELLS ALL

If Sick send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex and 4 cts. in stamps and I will diagnose your case FREE and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

TRIAL Treatment FREE DRINK HABIT cured secretly. Write for booklet on the Drink Habit and its POSITIVE CURE. Mrs. May Hawkins, L.U. 131, Grand Rapids, Mich.

I CURE CANCER

When I say I cure Cancer, I do not mean merely to cure them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a permanent cure. I have cured the worst cases—those that were called hopeless. I cure Cancer without the aid of the surgeon's knife, and in a soothing and painless manner. Because others have failed is no reason why you should endanger your life by this malignant affliction. Send at once for full treatise and letter of advice FREE

DR. A. J. MILLER, ST. LOUIS, MO.

FREE HELP FOR WEAK MEN

"CALTHOS"

Prof. Laborde's Marvelous French Cure for Lost Manhood.

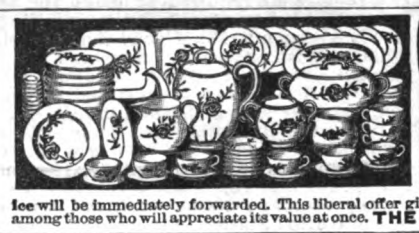
FIVE DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT

Sent Absolutely Free by Sealed Mail To All Sufferers.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

The only preparation known to science which really cures Lost Manhood is "CALTHOS," the marvelous French remedy discovered by Prof. Jules Laborde. It is controlled in this country by The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a concern which occupies a high and honorable place in the world of medicine. It is one of the largest and most responsible houses in Cincinnati, as anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

The Von Mohl Company invites all men suffering from Lost Manhood, Spermatorrhœa, Varicocele, Small Parts or Weakness of any nature in the Nerves or Sexual Organs, to send their names and receive a five days' treatment. This will prove the wonderful vitalizing powers of "CALTHOS." After using it five days the sufferers will find new vigor in their organs, new force in their muscles, new blood in their veins, new ambition, and rapid progress toward the buoyant feelings and sensations of younger days.



This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swindling C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme connected with it. The five days' treatment is sent by sealed mail to all on request, wrapped in a plain package, and full printed instructions accompany the medicine, so that each patient becomes his own doctor and cures himself at home.

It doesn't make any difference what caused the weakness—whether bad habits in youth, or excess, or overwork, or business troubles. "CALTHOS" will effect a cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in perfect confidence. Under no conditions will it make public the names of the thousands who have written testimonials telling of their restoration to robust manhood after other medicines and appliances have proved worthless. "CALTHOS" is regularly used in the French and German armies, and the soldiers in those countries have come to be perfect models of strength and vitality. Cures are effected at all ages from twenty to eighty years. There is no case (except where the stage of epilepsy or insanity has been reached) which it will not radically, quickly and permanently cure. Sexual weakness does not cure itself. It grows worse from week to week. Each day aggravates the mental and physical anguish.

Send today for the free five days' trial treatment. If it helps you, more of the medicine can be purchased. If it does not help, no harm is done and no money has been paid out. You can send your name in the full knowledge that it will be kept from all. The "CALTHOS" department of our business is strictly confidential. Address applications for trial treatment, etc., to

THE VON MOHL COMPANY, 989 B, Cincinnati, O. Largest Importers of Standard Preparations in the United States.

COMPLETE DINING CHINA SERVICE FREE

Full size for family use. Handsome and Ornamental. You can get this if you take advantage of our offer sent to every person selling six packages of Fertiline—a wonderful odorless Fertilizer for home plants, put up in tablet form, for use in water; makes plants bloom. If you agree to sell six packages of Fertiline at 25c. per package, write and we will mail, postpaid. When sold, send us the money, and ¼ dozen full size silver-plated Forks also our offer of this handsome China Service will be immediately forwarded. This liberal offer gives perfect satisfaction and helps introduce a valuable article among those who will appreciate its value at once. THE FERTILINE CO., Dept. A.Y.4, New Haven, Conn.

ASTROLOGY To prove the correctness of my Astrological System, I will give you my personal attention and send you FREE, a personal type written Horoscope of your life. Send your date of birth & 2c. stamp for postage. Prof. H. Edison, Astrologer, T, Binghamton, N.Y.

PILES ELECTROBOLE gives instant relief. Final cure in a few days, never returns: no purge, no salve, no knife. Remedy mailed Free. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 695, New York, N. Y.

MOTHERS, I can cure your children of incontinence of urine; trial free. MRS. B. ROWAN, Milwaukee, Wis.

CLAIRVOYANCE free. If sick, Send Now—your name, age, sex, lock of hair, and 2 stamps, to DR. D. HINKLY, X 10, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mothers I can cure your children of incontinence of urine. Sample FREE. Address F. E. MAY, M. D., Bloomington, Ill.

My Mamma Wants to Tell You Something is the title of a book that should be read by all expectant mothers; it tells how she can find relief from all the ills incident to motherhood and secure health for both mother and child, sent free by DR. J. H. DYE MED. INSTITUTE, Buffalo, N.Y.

Women Made Beautiful

by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchless loveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., sealed for two cent stamp. Address AURUM MEDICINE CO. Dept. A. N 55 State St., Chicago.

BLOOD POISON

HAVE YOU Sore throat, Pimples, Copper Colored Spots, Aches, Old Sores, Ulcers in Mouth, Hair-Falling? Write COOK REMEDY CO., 1731 Masonic Temple, Chicago. Ill., for proofs of cures. Capital, $500,000. Worst cases cured 15 to 35 days. 100-page book free.

A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE.

GREATEST MONEY MAKER AND MONEY SAVER EVER SEEN: NEEDED IN EVERY HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

Hundreds of dollars are wasted every year in paying for repairs which could be done by you just as well as by the person you hire. "Yes," you will say, "I could do this work if I only had the tools." You have to hire the plumber or cobbler and pay him for his time while you stand around and look on, watching him do the work which you could do as well as he, but it is always that you have no tools. We have put together the best kit of tools for repairing which was ever seen, and we will sell the entire outfit for less than half the money for which you could buy it at any store. The outfit consists of forty-four first-class tools, as shown in the above cut, viz: 1 iron last for men's work; 1 iron last for boy's work; 1 iron last for women's work; 1 iron last for children's work; 1 iron stand for lasts; 1 shoehammer; 1 shoeknife; 1 peg awl handle; 1 peg awl; 1 wrench for peg awl handle; 1 sewing awl handle; 1 sewing awl; 1 stabbing awl handle; 1 stabbing awl; 1 bottle leather cement; 1 bottle rubber cement; 1 bunch bristles; 1 ball shoe thread; 1 ball shoe wax; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 4-8 in.; 1 pkg clinch nails 5-8 in.; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 6-8 in.; 1 pkg. heel nails; 4 prs. heel plates, assorted sizes; 6 harness needles; 1 harness and saw clamp; 1 box slotted rivets, assorted sizes; 1 rivet set for same; 1 harness and belt punch; 1 soldering iron, ready for use; 1 handle for same; 1 bar solder; 1 bar resin; 1 bottle soldering fluid; 1 copy directions for halfsoling, etc., 1 copy directions for soldering all securely packed, together with directions for use, in a neat case. These tools bought at a hardware store separately would cost between $7.00 and $9.00. You can repair boots and shoes, tap and heel them, mend your harness or make a new one, mend all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, and do all kinds of leather work about carriages, etc., as well as repair and mend rubber boots, rubbers, overshoes, and all kinds of rubber made articles. The clamp is used for mending harnesses and filing saws. Has a coil spring and is made of iron. You can easily save five times the cost of this outfit in six months and make a heap of money doing little repairs for your neighbors and others. "A stitch in time saves nine," and if you have these tools in your house you can make repairs and save a great deal of money which you would pay if you let a break go or hired a man to do your repairing work for you. Every one of these tools are full sized, practical, neat and cheap. It is the only complete outfit in the market and thousands have been sold in past years for $3.00 when the outfit contained but about half as many smaller articles to people living in the country and small towns as well as in the city. This repairing outfit, weighing 20 lbs. will be sent by freight complete as above described for only $1.62 which includes a 6 months' trial subscription to this paper.

GREAT PREMIUM OFFER.—If you will get up a club of 6 yearly trial subscribers to this paper at the special price of 25 cents each, we will send you one of these repairing outfits as a present to you.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Cape Nome Gold Fields.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

AS EVERYBODY, two or three years ago, was talking about the Klondike, so everybody this year will be talking about Cape Nome, for this new gold region promises to be richer in the yellow metal than the Klondike was. In the East, that is east of the Mississippi river, the people have a great many other things to think about, as well as being very far from the center of activity, but all along the Pacific coast one can hardly hear of anything else except Cape Nome. Gold was discovered there in 1898, but owing to its distance, and there being no easy way to get there except by ships, it took some time for the news of the discovery to be distributed. However, good news flies faster than any other kind, and last year the crowds began moving in that direction. They came by ship from points along the Pacific coast of the United States and Alaska, and also down the Yukon river from the Dawson country and other mining sections of the interior, and before the summer was over, it was estimated that as many as five thousand people had arrived in the neighborhood of Cape Nome. Of course with the coming of the people organization was necessary, and it began by the establishment of a post office as a center, and around it, extending along the shore, a town grew up which became known as Nome City. This name at first was applied only to that part of the town immediately around the post office, the western part of the place being called Anvil City, after a mountain several miles inland which looked something like a great anvil. The name did not stick however, and before the summer was over, Anvil City was swallowed up in Nome City or Nome, as it is usually called.

Nome City is situated on the north shore of Norton Sound, between the river Nome on the east, which empties into the sound at Cape Nome, and Snake river on the west, both being small streams coming down from the mountains. Tributary to these streams are a great many smaller branches, bearing all kinds of names, and along the banks of all of them gold has been found in greater or less quantities. The discovery of gold was made on Anvil creek, and very rich claims exist on that stream. The country about the gold diggings is absolutely without trees, but it is pleasant to the eye, as the whole earth is covered with beautifully green grass and moss. The mountains, lying back to the north, are not rugged, but are more like hills, and are green to their summits with this same grass and moss. Norton Sound is about one hundred miles wide here, and to the south and east a distance of one hundred and thirty-two miles is St. Michæl, which in the Klondike excitement was the point to which passengers and freight came on their way to the Klondike up the river Yukon, which empties into Behring Sea about seventy miles southwest of St. Michæl. During the past summer most of the shipping for Cape Nome came by way of St. Michæl, but this year ships will go directly to Nome. It has no harbor whatever, the water is very shallow, and one of the great problems to be solved is how to get goods and passengers from the ships to the shore when the water is at all rough. It is no easy task even in quiet weather, but when the winds blow, and they blow quite frequently and often with great severity, landing is impossible.. Last year boats going over from St. Michæl could promise no regularity, because they would have to wait sometimes for three or four days, before being able to get their cargoes ashore. It cost a pretty penny, too, for passengers at such times to get to land besides the risk of their lives, and I know of three men who paid four dollars and a half to be rowed ashore from their ship, which was not half a mile from land. Men who were willing to take great risks owned these small shore boats, and they made large sums carrying passengers. They sometimes dumped themselves and their passengers into the surf, but they scrambled out of the cold water, got some whiskey inside of them and some dry clothes on the outside and were ready to try the rough water again. Several cargoes of freight on lighters have not been so fortunate, and have been entirely lost in the surf. So it will be seen that the enthusiastic gold digger, even after he has come thousands of miles to his Land of Promise, is more or less likely to lose all on the very threshold of his labors.

THE CAPE NOME REGION.

Gold was discovered at Nome by three Laplanders, Lindberg, Lindbloom and Brynesten, who had come to Alaska as herders of the reindeer brought over to this country by the government, and they were at work at the reindeer station on Golovnin bay, but the gold mining in that region incited them to do some prospecting themselves, and one day on Anvil creek they "struck it rich." At first they did little as the weather was too cold, but in the following summer they worked successfully and had their friends come in and they took up all the claims they could get. The excitement was beginning to spread when one day in July last a man found gold in the sand on the beach and then the place went wild and everybody who could get tools came down to the shore and went to work on his own account as if it were free territory. At one time before the cold weather stopped the digging it was estimated that fifteen hundred miners were digging along the beach and taking out thirty thousand dollars a day. Whether these figures are correct or not, it is a known fact that the owners of claims up the creeks who were paying their men ten dollars a day, or a dollar an hour, lost nearly all their help, as the men quit working for wages as they could do better on the beach. It was the greatest "poor man's diggings" ever heard of, and as soon as the news of it got out a great rush set in coming chiefly from the up-Yukon district as there were many miners in that section who wanted to get out, and it was easy to come down the river and go over to Nome. The town now went ahead with a great rush and everybody had money. Labor was from ten to fifteen dollars a day, board of the simplest kind was a dollar a meal, and a plank to sleep on was a dollar a night. Three decent meals and a decent place to sleep, if they could be had, were worth ten dollars a day. Gambling dens, dance houses, variety shows, gin mills and all kinds of vice prevailed and the town was a fine example of what money can do when there is plenty of it. Lumber at a hundred and twenty-five dollars a thousand was brought over from St. Michæl and houses began springing up on the site of tents, and when the last ship left the city in November it had about twenty-five hundred people mostly under roof, and was filled with enthusiasm over what would take place when the season of 1900 opened. What has happened there during the past five months nobody knows for no word has come out. The winters last from November to June, and the cold is intense, the whole of Norton Sound being frozen over extending far down into Behring Sea. This vast field of ice must disappear before ships can get in from the outside, and it depends upon the season when this will be. Ordinarily navigation is open in June, but it has been known to remain closed until July.

It is expected that thirty thousand people will go to Cape Nome this summer from all parts of the United States, and already railroads and ship companies are making their preparations for the great rush. As many of the readers of COMFORT may be thinking of going to try their fortunes, possibly a little direction may be of value. Cape Nome is at least twenty-five hundred miles from the nearest point in the United States proper, (Seattle) and there are two ways of reaching it. One of these is by steamer direct, going by way of Dutch Harbor, and the other is by the inland passage to Skagway, thence by rail to Lake Bennett, thence down the Yukon, thence by steamer across Norton Sound. From ten to twelve days are required to make the trip by sea, and about two weeks by land. First class fare last season to St. Michæl was one hundred dollars, with twenty additional from St. Michæl over, and second class was seventy-five. No figures have been stated for this season, but they will be higher, though there are so many vessels going that competition may keep prices reasonable. The fare by land is much more, say $225, though it varies, and the land route may this season compete with the sea for the Cape Nome business. The points in the United States from which sailings will be made are San Francisco, Cal., Portland, Ore., Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., and the Southern Pacific, the Union and Central Pacific, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern are the railroads leading to the points of departure. Seattle by long odds is the choice of starting points and four-fifths of the travel is from there. Nobody can say exactly when navigation will open, but Seattle newspapers have for months contained advertisements of ships sailing as early as May 10th. Right here begins the gold hunter's risk for he may be held back a month by bad weather. At the same time it is important that he get there soon, not only because the season is short, but because others will get ahead of him and take the best things.

And now as to claims. There are none to be had except by purchase, because everything for forty miles along the shore and a dozen miles back into the country has been taken long ago. Claims or parts of claims may be bought, however, and these sometimes prove fortunes to their owners. Just what the beach diggings will amount to next season no one can say. It is generally believed that gold may be found along the entire coast for a hundred and fifty miles, in which event there will be a good chance for everybody. But all the money is not made in gold digging and the shrewd trader with a little money and a whole lot of knowledge of what is needed by the miners can feather his nest well. He must find out though before he tries, if somebody is not there ahead of him. Ship load after ship load of all kinds of supplies are being got ready in Seattle and Tacoma and Portland and 'Frisco to make the rush as soon as possible to meet the demand that must exist among those twenty-five hundred people who have been shut up all winter on canned goods, to say nothing of the thousands who are going there depending on somebody to provide for them, and if any man in the East expects to do anything in trading at Nome he will have to get up very early in the morning. A much safer way would be for everybody to remain at home and not bother about the fortune that they might make, but of course nobody will take good advice until it is too late.

As to the fortunes made at Nome, it is estimated that four millions of dollars in gold came out last season, and this was pretty fairly distributed, as such things go. The Lindberg claims have led all others, and it was reported that for a time they were yielding a thousand dollars an hour, which is no doubt an exaggeration, though the properties are enormously valuable. Hundreds of men have come out with from a thousand to five or six thousand each in dust, and several fortunes have been made in trading and in contracting. In conclusion it may be said that there is nothing quite so pleasing as gain, but generally a man will be better off to remain in the States.

Itching Burning Scaly Blotchy Humors

Instantly Relieved and Speedily Cured by

Cuticura

The itching and burning I suffered in my feet and limbs for three years were terrible. At night they were worse and would keep me awake a greater part of the night. I consulted doctor after doctor, as I was traveling on the road most of my time, also one of our city doctors. None of the doctors knew what the trouble was. I got a lot of the different samples of the medicines I had been using. I found them of so many different kinds that I concluded I would have to go to a Cincinnati hospital before I would get relief. I had frequently been urged to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, but I had no faith in them. My wife finally prevailed upon me to try them. Presto! What a change! I am now cured, and it is a permanent cure. I feel like kicking some doctor or myself for suffering three years when I could have used CUTICURA remedies. H. JENKINS, Middleboro, Ky.

Complete Treatment $1.25,

Consists of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA Ointment (50c.), to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humors, rashes, and irritations, with loss of hair, when physicians, hospitals, and all else fail. Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston. "How to Cure Itching Humors," free.

Millions of Women Use Cuticura Soap

Exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated or toilet soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

MAY~1900 PRICE 5 CENTS
VOL XII NO. 7 MN 139

COMFORT

THE KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK AUGUSTA, MAINE. BOSTON

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Incorporated.

Telling one of Comfort's Prize Stories.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least two yearly subscribers (together with 50 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

☞ Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR MAY.

Geo. H. Smith, First Prize.
Everett McNeil, Second Prize.
Anna B. Patten, Third Prize.
F. E. Burnham, Fourth Prize.
Burton McPhail, Fifth Prize.

The Kaffir Runner's Message.

A STORY OF THE SIEGE OF KIMBERLEY.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY GEORGE H. SMITH.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE ROAR of a great gun mounted on a hill far out beyond the line of defences about Kimberley was followed by a mass of dirt thrown into the air within the city limits. A young woman and a British officer who stood at an upper window of a house in the city watched the cloud of dust which marked the spot where the shot had struck.

"Doesn't that make you wish you had gone to the Cape when you could, Alice?" the man asked.

"No," said the woman. "I stayed because I wanted to; and I am glad I did.

"For one thing," she added, slipping one hand inside the officer's arm, "you are here. Then, too, I really can do good here. If you do not believe that, just come to the hospital and see for yourself."

"I know," said the man. "I thought only of myself. It was selfish of me, perhaps; but no man could like to have the first year of his married life ended with his wife a target for the shots of a besieging enemy."

"I am no more a target than you are, Edward; really not so much, since so much of your time must be spent in the forts.

"That means you must go, now, I suppose," she said a moment later, as a bugle sounded in the street outside the house.

"No," said the officer. "I do not go on duty regularly, for two hours yet. Something is the matter. It may be another assault. God grant not, now, for the men are too weak to meet it properly. I must go out and see what it is. Don't stay here, Alice," he said. "It is too dangerous. Do go down into the bomb-proof in the garden."

"I can't bear it there, it is so dark and stuffy," the woman replied; but she followed the officer from the room.

At the door of the house they heard the bugle call nearer, sounding like a solo sung above the bass of the besieging guns. An officer, coming down the street, saluted and said, "Captain Adney, my orders are to see that all the women and children are sent down into the mines. A shell has penetrated a bomb-proof off Victoria street killed all but two of the persons sheltered there. The shafts of the mine have been opened by the Company, and women and children are already being lowered to the third level."

"But the hospital!" the woman exclaimed.

"The orders are to leave the hospital for the present, although a portion of one of the buildings there has been destroyed this morning."

Mrs. Adney pointed to the nurse's badge upon her arm, and the man bowed. "Are there any other women in this house?" he asked.

"No."

The man raised his hand to his hat and passed on, to pound with the butt of a revolver upon the door of the next house on the street.

Captain Adney and his wife walked towards Headquarters. At each cross street they met women and children hurrying towards the diamond mines. The third level was two hundred feet below the surface, and would furnish perfect protection. There were several shafts going down to it, and even if all of these should be disabled one extremity of the level opened upon the great central excavation of the mines, so that there would be no danger that the refugees would be penned up in the bowels of the earth.

The sound of the exhaust of a steam engine rising sharp and regular above all the other noises showed that the machinery at the mouth of the mine had been started and that the descent had begun.

The officer and his wife followed the sound of the engine until they came to the open space into which some of the mine shafts opened. While they stood there watching the strange scene before them a man hurried past them, and going to the mouth of a shaft to which entrance was made only by a ladder, climbed down into the hole and disappeared.

"Dr. LeClois does not speak to us," said Captain Adney, with a little laugh. "What do you suppose is the reason?"

"Don't, Edward," said his wife, her cheeks growing red in spite of herself. "What is he going there for?" she asked, a moment later, and then added with a touch of scorn in her voice, "Perhaps he is seeking shelter with the women and children."

"You are harder on him than I am," her husband said, with the complaisance which a man can feel towards a defeated rival whose love his wife has rejected for his own. "You know he is the Company's chief engineer. That is the shaft which leads to the first level. Possibly he has been sent down to see if that also will be suitable for a retreat. I don't think it will, though. It is much nearer to the surface, and extends in a more dangerous direction, quite under our line of defences, in fact.

"I must go, now," he added. "I hate to leave you to go to the hospital. I wish you were down there, safe with the others."

"You don't mean that, Edward," said the woman, standing erect and looking her husband bravely in the eyes. "You would not have your wife less brave than yourself."

"No," said Captain Adney, after a moment. "I would not. Good-by!" and then, after he had kissed her, "You have your pistol?"

"Yes."

"Good-by, then!"

"Good-by!"

That afternoon a wounded Kaffir runner was brought into the ward in the hospital in which Mrs. Adney was working.

"The General sent him," the men who bore the stretcher explained, when the surgeon in charge asked why they brought a Kaffir to that crowded institution. "He has frequently carried government messages."

"He will die," the surgeon said, turning the man's face so that he could look at it. "Put him there," pointing to an empty bed.

An hour later the runner was dead. Mrs. Adney, raising the dead man's hands to fold them upon his breast, found one hand tightly clenched on something held within it. Opening the stiffening fingers she took out a folded paper and a rough stone which a year's residence in Kimberley had educated her to recognize at once as an uncut diamond of great value. Ordinarily she would have sent the paper unopened to the surgeon in charge, but the presence of the diamond excited her curiosity so that she unfolded the paper. She read, written in Dutch:

"The increased fire is having effect. There is more confusion here, and more men are being kept on the defences. At exactly five o'clock to-day I will fire the charge in the first level of the mine. The charge is placed directly under the line of forts on the east side of the town. Have your forces massed opposite that point, ready to storm the breach which will be made. L. C."

The Kaffir runner was a traitor, bought with the gem!

"L. C." There was no doubt who had written the message. LeClois was a traitor, too; doubly so, because he was one of the few men who were trusted to have access to the mine. The instinctive aversion which she had had for the man even when he had been an earnest suitor for her love had not been ungrounded, then. He meant to destroy part of the mine, and by doing so open the city to the enemy.

One traitor was dead, before his message could be delivered. There would be no hostile force gathered ready to spring through the break in the line of defences. The other man lived, though, and might yet do his part of the horrible contract.

Good God! "The east side of the town!" It was there that her husband's command was stationed; and he was on duty now. She tore a watch from the breast of her nurse's gown. The hands marked ten minutes before five o'clock.

A sentinel guarding a lane which led into the open place in which the entrances to the diamond mines were located, halted a woman running towards him.

"Don't stop me!" she cried. "I must pass! I am Mrs. Adney. I am a nurse;" and pointed to the badge upon her sleeve.

The man lowered his musket slowly, uncertain, and the woman sprang past him before the weapon had reached the ground. The point of the bayonet caught in her gown and tore it, but she gave no heed.

As she ran across the first few rods of open space her eyes and mind seemed conscious of everything. Over there on the other side of the square were the shafts of the third level. The machinery was still, now, because all of the refugees were safe below. The constant rumble of great guns, and occasionally a crash nearer at hand showed what danger those who had fled the town had escaped. Over there, toward the hills from which the sound of the firing came, were the east side forts, the British flag waving over them. Her husband was there. Nearer to her than anything else was the opening which led to the first mine level.

Even while the woman ran, a man came from the engine house and walked swiftly to the opening into the mine. Grasping the ladder with both hands he stepped upon it and started to descend. A moment later the lower half of his body had disappeared in the earth.

For an instant the woman could see nothing, her head swam so, except a blur of red and blue over where the flag floated against the hills. Then everything was clear again, and she had raised her pistol, aimed at the man in the mouth of the mine, and fired.

It was late that night before Captain Adney, hanging over the bed on which his wife lay, saw her eyes open to a sense of consciousness. Even then hours passed before she was strong enough to tell him how she came to be found fainting in the public square, and then, shuddering in his arms, to tell him what she had done.

Dr. LeClois was found at the foot of the shallow mine shaft, not dead, but shot through one arm, and with a leg broken by his fall. A pocket battery and an electric connection with the charge at the end of the level showed what he had meant to do. When Kimberley was relieved he was one of the prisoners turned over to the British forces.

Weeks afterwards, when life in the city had returned to its normal conditions, there were invitations issued to a unique function to be held at the home of a high official of the diamond company. Between applauding lines of men and women Captain Adney led his wife to where, at the head of the long room, there stood beside the official a gray haired English general whose name is known around the world.

Perhaps the men present—army men, at least—would have cared most for the words which the general spoke; but the women who were there thought less of what they heard than of what they saw, for when the officer had finished speaking and Mrs. Adney bowed her head before him, he dropped around her neck a heavy gold chain from which hung, cut, now, and gleaming superbly, the great diamond which she had taken from the dead Kaffir runner's hand.

A UNIQUE DEFENSE.

A Tale of Pioneer Days in Kentucky.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY EVERETT MCNEIL.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

WHEN I was a young boy I went on a visit with mother to her old home in Kentucky. Grandfather's comfortable farm house of solid stone masonry stood on the very spot where his father, shortly after the close of the Revolutionary War, had built his humble pioneer's log cabin and begun his battle for life and competency with nature and the Indians. The moment I entered the quaint old parlor my eyes eagerly sought the broad mantel above the wide fireplace. "Mother, there it is!" I shouted; and running to the mantel I climbed upon a chair and stared with all my eyes at what to me was the most interesting object in all the great universe, a grotesquely shrunken and wrinkled pumpkin jack-o'-lantern, enclosed in a large bell jar.

Mother and the others laughed at my boyish excitement; but grandfather placed a wrinkled, toil-worn hand upon my shoulder, and said:

"Henry, that withered bit of pumpkin tells the story of the dangers and hardships we, who rescued this beautiful country from the wild beasts and yet wilder Indians, endured that you might enjoy the blessings of its beauty and fertility. Never forget what you owe to the strong men and women who laid the foundations of your country's greatness."

My grandfather was a tall, stern old man, who, in his young manhood had fought Indians and killed bears and panthers and deer not a mile from where we were now standing; and now, to be thus particularly noticed by this grand old hero, made my heart bound and somehow gave me courage to inquire:

"Please, grandfather, won't you tell me the story of the pumpkins and Thundercloud and how you saved the old home from the Indians when a boy no bigger than I?" I had heard mother tell the story often, but I wanted it from grandfather's own lips. For a minute or more the old man was silent, then he began:

"Henry, when I was a boy of your age, a rough log cabin stood where this house stands, and the surrounding hills and valleys were covered with a heavy growth of timber, the home of deer and bears and panthers and Indians. Our only neighbor lived three miles away and the nearest town was Dodd's Settlement, some fifteen miles up the river.

"Now, as to that pumpkin story, it happened like this: That fall we had a big crop of corn and pumpkins and, after the corn had all been husked and the pumpkins gathered and placed in the cellar, father determined to take a load of corn to Dodd's Settlement and sell or exchange it for provisions and other needed household supplies. Mother wished to go too; and it was decided to leave your Great-Aunt Eliza and me at home alone. I was then thirteen years old, but tall and strong for my age, and Eliza was twelve. We did not fear being left alone. In fact, we rather enjoyed the thought of being our own masters.

"Accordingly, early one bright cool October morning, father yoked up the oxen, and he and mother started on their long ride to Dodd's Settlement. They did not expect to get back until late that night, for fifteen miles and return is a long day's drive for a yoke of oxen.

"After father and mother had gone Eliza and I did what work there was to be done, and then we played.

"Along about three o'clock in the afternoon, when we were beginning to tire of our play, Eliza suddenly exclaimed: 'O, John, I know what we'll do! Let's make a couple of jack lanterns, the most frightful-looking things we can do, and scare papa and mamma when they come home!'

"The idea at once took my fancy; and, going to the cellar, we picked out two of the largest pumpkins we could find, and began carving them into the most hideous and grotesque semblances of the human head that our skill and fancy could evoke. In about an hour the two heads were finished, and their grinning mouths and great eyes did full credit to the skill of our hands and the vividness of our imaginations. Then I fastened each jack lantern to the end of a long pole, nailed a strip of wood across each pole just below the pumpkins for the shoulders, and the skeletons of our hobgoblins were complete.

"We had great fun dressing up the two

ALL WOOL SERGE SUIT

MAN'S SUIT MADE FROM PARKERS BEST BLUE SERGE CHEVIOT famous for its perfect weave and rich dark blue color. Its fine all wool, medium weight, and will positively not fade. Guaranteed equal to others $10.00 suits. $4.95

EXPERT TAILORS will make the suit in latest sack style, fit perfect, line it with fine super gloss farmer satin, pad and stiffen it so it will always retain its perfect shape and sew with pure silk and linen thread.

SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large cloth sample of the blue serge cheviot suit and our big book containing 50 fine cloth samples of other made to order suits from $5.95 to $20.00. We make all grades and styles of suits to order in our own mammoth tailor shops and sell to consumers at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.

MEN'S SUITS FREE we give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one, in addition you can make $2.50 to $5.00 a day while earning suit. Hundreds are doing it. You can too. SEND ONE 2-CENT STAMP to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit and make big wages. Write today.

THE LOUIS R. VERNON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN,
VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO & ORGAN
Self-Taught, without notes by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first Instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address
E. C. HOWE,
495 Bay State Building, CHICAGO.

WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

BABY CARRIAGES Shipped C. O. D. to anyone.
Combination Go-Carts
Direct from factory at lowest wholesale prices. Dealers large profits saved. No money in advance.
$18 Carriage, $9.00 | $5.00 Carriage.... $2.00
$12 " $6.00 | GO-CARTS from $3.00 up.
Send for free illustrated catalog and special offer
CASH BUYERS' UNION,
164 West Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

figures. Around the shoulders of one we hung a long white sheet, and upon its head we fastened mother's great Shaker sunbonnet. This was to be the giantess. The other had a bear skin thrown around its shoulders, the hair of a horse's tail tacked to the back of its head, and a fierce mustache and long chin whiskers made from the beard of corn. For a hat we inverted mother's great wooden butter-bowl. I do not think I ever saw two such frightful-looking things as Eliza and I made, when we hoisted these figures up over our heads in such a manner that our faces and shoulders were concealed by the falling bear skin and the sheet. It almost frightened us to look at each other; and we laughed when we thought of the great scare we would give father and mother on their return.

"By the time we had completed all these preparations the sun was near setting, and I had to go to the pasture after the cows. We stood the two figures, with everything ready for lighting up, in a corner of the house, and I started after the cows while Eliza busied herself getting supper.

"I had begun to let down the bars when I heard the clatter of horse's hoofs behind me, and a man on a great foam-covered black horse dashed up. 'Thundercloud and his Indians are murdering the Whites! Tell your father to fly instantly to the Settlement!' the man shouted, dug his spurs into his horse's flanks, and was gone, before I had recovered from my surprise and horror sufficiently to utter a word.

"For a moment I stood still and trembled. No one knew better than I what an Indian outbreak meant. Four years before I had seen the mutilated remains of an entire family that had been massacred by the Indians, and the horror of the sight still lived in my memory. I thought of the absence of father and mother, of the fast gathering darkness, of Eliza alone in the house with no one to protect her but me, and of my own helplessness. Then I dropped the bar I still held in my hand with a bang, and started for the house. As I ran I saw a ruddy glow lighting up the eastern skies, and I knew that the Indians were burning our neighbor's house only three miles away. When I came near to the house I heard Eliza singing and the rattle of the supper dishes as she placed them on the table; and the sound cut my heart like a knife. 'Indians!' I shouted, as I sprang through the doorway, and, banging the door shut, shot the strong bolts into place and let fall the great bar of hickory across the middle of the door.

"Once safe within the house and a loaded rifle in my hands my courage began to come back; and, in low trembling voices, Eliza and I planned how we would defend our lives and our home. We both understood the hopelessness of our defense, unless rescue came suddenly; and yet I do not think a thought of surrendering without a struggle entered the head of either of us. There were stern children bred in those days. We had two rifles and Eliza could shoot nearly as well as I, and we hoped to keep the Indians back for a short time; and then, if help did not come, we would have done our best. Eliza took up her station at the loopholes in the back part of the house, and I watched for the Indians at the front and the sides. We had no light in the room, save a dull fire that smoldered in the fireplace.

"An hour or more passed. It was now dark, and the silence of the wilderness was all around us. We could just distinguish the trunks of the trees in the surrounding forest. One of the trees appeared to move, then another. 'Quick, Eliza, come quick! Here they are!' I whispered. In a moment Eliza was peering through a loophole by my side. One, two, three—a couple of dozen or more shadowy forms stole from out the darkness of the woods and stood in a group on the edge of the forest looking in our direction. Mechanically I touched the powder horn by my side. Its lightness startled me. I pulled out the stopper and turned the horn bottom side up. It was empty! We had no powder. Father had taken the last few loads we had with him. The two charges in our rifles were our only defense.

"'Eliza,' I whispered, 'we are lost. There is no powder, only the charges in our guns.' For answer she put her arms around my neck and kissed me.

"The Indians were now creeping toward the house. Twelve of them came two and two, bearing a heavy log between them with which to beat down the door. I glanced quickly around the room to see if there was anything we could place against it to give it greater strength. As I did so my eyes caught sight of the two jack lanterns, standing like hideous giants in the corner of the room.

"'Quick, Eliza!' I almost shouted. 'The jack lanterns! They are our only hope. We'll make the Indians think the cabin is inhabited by a couple of fire devils.' In a moment the lanterns were in our hands and our trembling fingers had lighted the candles. We hoisted the hideous figures up over our heads. In the dim light of the room the effect was frightful, terrible. To furnish a voice for the monsters I seized an old tin horn that hung on the wall, and was capable of making a noise like the bellowings of a dozen angry bulls.

"We did not have long to wait. For a minute all was silent without. Then we heard the rush of light footfalls; and the next instant the heavy log struck the door with the force of a battering ram, and knocked it flying off its hinges. With a blood-curdling war whoop the Indians rushed in through the breach, to be confronted by what appeared to their startled eyes like two hideous demons, shooting fire from nose and eyes and ears and with great fiery red mouths yawning to devour them. For one awful moment the braves stood stock-still, staring at us. I took a step toward them and blew a terrific blast on the horn. This was more than they could stand; and, with howls of fright, they tumbled through the shattered doorway, and darted away toward the forest. Eliza and I ran after them for a few rods, yelling and blowing the horn for all we were worth. When the last Indian had vanished in the woods, we returned inside the cabin and, throwing our arms around each other, shouted and danced and cried and laughed like two children gone mad.

"Something like an hour afterward father and a number of armed men rode up, expecting to find us murdered or carried off by the Indians; but we were safe.

"That," concluded grandfather, "is the way your great-aunt Eliza and I frightened off Thundercloud and his Indians with a couple of pumpkin jack lanterns and saved our lives and our home; and there, in that bell jar, is the very jack lantern I used."

THE FEMALE CRUSOE.

HOW SHE IS RESCUED FROM A SAD AND SOLITARY LIFE.

The prominent feature of the life of Defoe's hero, Robinson Crusoe, was its loneliness, its utter solitude. He was cut off from all contact with his fellows, condemned to live in a friendless solitude, unbroken by the sound of human speech or human laughter. It isn't distance and desert islands that make Crusoes. It is the solitariness of a life cut off from active participation in home duties and social pleasures; and it is this condition which makes the name Crusoe the fittest term to express the isolation and loneliness of many a woman's life.

A woman condemned to this foreign existence is like some soaring song bird, which, broken-winged by fate's cruel shaft, has henceforth to creep through life hugging the dull, cold earth when it should be soaring to the sun and singing at Heaven's gates. In how many a home the wife creeps about like a wounded bird. She used to be so full of merriment. The song on her lips told her whereabouts as she flitted, bird like, from chamber to chamber, caring for the home nest. Now she rarely smiles. She never sings. She has dropped out of society, given up her church work, and become almost as much of a recluse as if she were the solitary tenant of some far-off island.

THE WORK OF RESCUE.

It is a fact that tens of thousands of women are cut off from a full share in life's duties and pleasures by diseases peculiar to their sex. But over against that fact is to be set the other fact that thousands of such women are being rescued from their miserable condition and reinstated in the full enjoyment of all of life's duties and privileges by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Women do not sufficiently realize that the general health depends upon the local health of the delicate womanly organs. They "doctor" for nervousness, headache, backache, and all sorts of aches, and entirely neglect the root of the trouble—female weakness, inflammation, ulceration, or some enfeebling drain. The common expression of women made well by the use of "Favorite Prescription" is: "It made a new woman of me," and this expression does not exaggerate the great results that follow the cure of feminine disorders by the use of "Favorite Prescription."

"I took your medicine six months and now I feel like a new person," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., W. Va. "Have no backache, no headache, no pain anywhere. I took seven bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and seven bottles of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I can't speak highly enough of your medicine, for it has done me so much good. I don't feel tired as I used to, nor sick. I feel well and think there is no medicine equal to Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

HOW IT FEELS TO BE A NEW WOMAN.

"No backache, no headache, no pain anywhere." Can any other words better summarize the results of a perfect cure? It will pay every woman not only to read these testimonials to the wonderful curative power of "Favorite Prescription," but to study them closely, and read between the lines the story of happiness which follows emancipation from the bondage of disease.

"I was a great sufferer two years ago with female trouble and I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Mattie Hays, of Tribulation, McDonald Co., Missouri. "You outlined a course of treatment for me. I followed your directions, and now feel like a different person. I never expected to hear from you when I wrote to you. In three days after I commenced taking your medicines I began to feel better. I took twenty dollars' worth of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I bought it five dollars' worth at a time, and also four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I would not take one thousand dollars for the good the medicine has done me. I can't praise it enough. I wish all who suffer with such troubles would give Dr. Pierce's medicines a fair trial. I can work all day—doing anything, walk where I please, and feel good. Many thanks to you for your kind advice."

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. It does this by curing the causes of womanly weakness and sickness. It acts as a perfect regulator of the periods. It dries the drains which undermine the strength. It heals the inflamed and ulcerated organs and cures female weakness. It strengthens the entire nervous system by its nerve-nourishing ingredients, restores the appetite and brings refreshing sleep. It prepares the wife for motherhood, gives her robust health, and makes the baby's advent practically painless. It increases the nutritive secretions so that the mother is able to nurse and nourish her child with comfort and content.

"Favorite Prescription" is absolutely free from alcohol, and contains neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.

THE FLAG OF DISTRESS.

The cast-away on a desert island hoists a white flag as a signal for relief. The white flag which calls Dr. Pierce to the relief of suffering women is a sheet of paper telling the plain story of disease in absolute confidence to Dr. Pierce, who invites all women suffering from chronic forms of disease to consult him by letter, free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Women who understand the advantage of the advice of a specialist in the treatment and cure of diseases peculiarly feminine, will appreciate the liberality of this gratuitous offer. It puts at the disposal of sick women the skill gained in more than thirty years of practice; the insight into female disorders gained in the treatment and cure of more than half a million women; and the benefits of the co-operation in their treatment of Dr. Pierce's associate staff of nearly a score of physicians, each man a specialist in the treatment and cure of some especial form of disease.

There is no similar offer of free consultation by letter which has behind it so great an institution as the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, to which Dr. Pierce is chief consulting physician and surgeon, assisted by a staff of nearly a score of eminent specialists.

For this reason this offer of free consultation by letter should not be confounded with those offers of "free medical advice," put out by men or women who are not physicians, and therefore utterly unqualified to treat disease. True, they can give free advice on medicine, as they could give it on questions of law or any other subject. But the advice is worthless, coming from persons ignorant of the principles and practice of medicine. An undertaker could give "medical advice," but it would be as an undertaker, not as a doctor. A great deal of so-called "free medical advice" is as suspicious as an undertaker's would be. If you write for medical advice to man or woman be sure first of all that you are writing to a doctor, trained by experience and licensed by law to practice the profession of healing.

If you ask your dealer for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription don't be put off with a substitute. Buy medicine as you buy flour. Don't be put off with an inferior grade which won't do the work required. "Favorite Prescription" cures. A cure can't be expected of an imitation.

THAT 21 CENTS

will buy a handkerchief or a tooth-brush, a few candies or a bit of ribbon. Twenty-one cents will also buy 21 one-cent stamps which will pay postage on a book which can't be bought, because it's not for sale. This great book, Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, contains 1008 large pages and over 700 illustrations. It is invaluable to women, single or married, and its possession has saved many a woman from serious sickness. The book in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. In durable cloth binding the book is mailed for 31 cents. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WITH FEET OF CLAY.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY ANNA B. PATTEN.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE MINISTER'S wife was dead. There were whispered conversations on the street corner and interchanges of regret on the front stoop when the news had spread through the village, while the door-knocker of the parsonage had resounded to sympathetic calls.

No mark of respect was denied the departed. On the day of the funeral, all of the parishioners gathered in the stuffy front-room, where the tired little woman lay quiet, at last, with her toil-worn hands folded on her breast. A brother clergyman had come from ten miles back, to utter eulogistic remarks over the deceased; the church choir rendered its choicest selections, and the procession was the longest that had ever wended its way over the hill to the country cemetery.

Yet, perhaps, there were few women present who sincerely mourned for this weary worker in the vineyard, for the unmarried contingent of the community had decided, long ago, that their brainy pastor was unequally yoked in marriage. With his rare mental endowments he had risen step by step, leaving his wife on the lower plane of intellectual standing. Every spinster member of the congregation who listened to the eloquent outbursts from the pulpit, openly expressed her regret that such a man should be tied for life to one so lamentably his inferior. Each one of these devoted followers of his words considered herself as the person, who under favoring circumstances would have been a fitting helpmeet, as well as more congenial companion, in the sacred labor of saving the human race.

So, now that the leader of the flock was at last free from bondage, it could not be truthfully said that those personally interested regretted the loss. To be sure, a few had a little twinge of conscience, on recalling a severe illness, when the minister's wife had come to their bedside with her soothing presence, for in times of sorrow she had never failed to appear with her soft touch and gentle accents.

Of course, these things were commendable in their place—quite necessary, in fact—but the position of a minister's wife required other qualities, such as a dignified presence and mental superiority, in which the past incumbent had been sorely lacking.

This truly onerous position had suddenly been made vacant, through Providential intervention, and from the moment that the startling news had been sown broadcast, it became a secret query in several anxious minds as to who would be selected to fill the vacancy, after a proper season of mourning had passed by The pastor, seemingly unconscious of this undercurrent of feeling, continued his accustomed duties regardless of these rival aspirants to his favor. He assumed a very becoming air of grief which appeared to be inconsolable, but there is nothing, perhaps, so pregnable as a pastor's heart.

This representative of the persuasion was not proof against assault in the shape of feminine flattery, for he had a good share of masculine vanity. Besides, his present housekeeper was extravagant, the children were getting unruly; so within a year, he selected Miss Serena Spear to share his fortunes, for better or worse, and occupy the seat of state in the pastor's pew, thus making one lady supremely happy and six others correspondingly miserable.

Mrs. Serena entered upon her duties with subdued enthusiasm, resolved to show the whole community what a model minister's wife should be. In the bliss of the honeymoon, under the exaltation of her hard-earned victory, this seemed easy of accomplishment; but after that stage of illusion had worn away, she found several stumbling blocks in her path. The feats of the first wife had a way of rising up out of the past and facing her. She came to the conclusion that that little woman's strength must have been herculean to accomplish the amount of work she did in one day. No wonder she dropped by the wayside.

A dignified presence and mental superiority might be very graceful attributes abroad, but they count for little in sewing on children's buttons and repairing the family wardrobe; in answering sick calls, settling disputes, and the thousand and one trifles that made up the sum of her daily existence.

Worst of all, she found that hourly contact with an idol is apt to dull the ardor of first enchantment. Not that her husband had deteriorated intellectually, for his sermons were brilliant masterpieces still, but somehow she had not expected to find petty characteristics in such a superior being. Then, all her attempts to bring herself into harmony with his line of work met with such a surprising setback. If she suggested sitting in the study while he was composing his next Sunday's sermon, or shyly asked to be permitted to look at the rough draft before revision, he seemed to regard it in the light of interference and implied by his answer that she was only required to have supervision over the domestic part of the establishment.

If she started some weighty discussion, or sought to ascertain his views as to some public question of the day, he confined himself to mere generalities and all hope of being a coworker in his literary labors seemed impossible of accomplishment. This evasion and lack of confidence was a sore trial to her pride, but after continued repulses she drifted into the place he had allotted her, that of a domestic nonentity. From this humble ground she still looked upward, trying to blind her eyes to certain weaknesses, incompatible with true nobility of character, and keep her idol on the pedestal where she had placed it; but some phases of private life could not be passed over without serious consideration, and one day the veil of the temple was rent asunder and the glaring light of revelation cast within the shrine.

That morning she had been rumaging in the attic, clearing out the rubbish which had accumulated from year to year. She came across several barrels filled with musty, yellow-stained sermons, standing in the corner. Her husband could hardly have any need of these antiquated thoughts with his plentiful storehouse of brains to draw upon. Without any further consideration of the subject, she delivered them over to the teamster for disposal as waste paper and went on with her housewifely process of sifting the wheat from the chaff.

That evening she was sitting by the centre table, sorting the basket of weekly stockings. Her husband had just left her and gone to his study. This was the night when he selected the theme for the next Sabbath discourse and she had learned her lesson by this time, and left him undisturbed to his task.

Very soon she heard his steps returning hastily across the entryway, and he appeared on the threshold, looking strangely flushed and agitated.

"Who has been in the attic, disturbing my sermons!"

"Sermons, dear? Oh, yes, I let Humphrey take them away. They smelt so musty I didn't think it healthy to have them around the house——"

She stopped suddenly, for her husband had sunk into the nearest chair and was staring at her in a helpless, confused way.

"You cannot mean that you want them—Leo—nard—those old sermons—that you—need—them!"

He did not answer. He did not seem to hear her; but there was a look in his eyes as if he were face to face with his real self, at last, and she turned away, sickened by the sight.

* * * * * *

Six months later the Reverend J. Leonard Fairbanks sent in his resignation. Interest in the popular pastor had seemed to subside after his second marriage. Whether from combined resentment at the slight thereby inflicted upon others, or because of his rapid decline in rhetorical effort and brilliant composition, it is not safe to say. His people had been fed on such rich fare in the past that they rebelled, perhaps, at the tame, spiritless essays, suddenly served out to them. As a consequence, that gentleman found the atmosphere so uncomfortable that a swift severing of his connection with the church seemed to be the only alternative.

The sewing- circle met that afternoon, and as the pastor's wife had decided from motives of delicacy not to appear, there was ample opportunity for discussion of the important news.

"Well, that's the whole gist of the matter," said Mrs. Humphrey Weeks, when the subject had been considered from every point of view. "Mis Fairbanks, she give my husband them barrels to cart away, along with a heap of other things. I just thought I'd look 'em over to see if there was anything worth saving, an' there was lots of other truck sides the sermons. Why it seems the parson's fust wife pretty nigh supported the fam'ly on what she made, scribblin' for the papers and magazines. Just to think that meek little woman writ all them beautiful sermons—eddicated at a college, too——!"

"Serena couldn't do that," said a young girl, picking up the stitches she had lost while listening to the story. She had been a close second in the race for the prize. "But then," magnanimously, "she would do it, if she could. Serena's too proud. She'd wash floors first, for a living."

"I guess it'll come to that in the end," the last speaker snapped her thread vindictively. She had not even stood a chance of success with the disenthroned idol. "He'll never get another call, that's sure; and a flock of stepchildren to support, besides one of her own. Well, she made her bed, and she must lie on it!"

TOM HAWLEY'S GREAT LEAP.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY F. E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

JOSEPHINE LaCroix had picked Tom Hawley up somewhere on her travels; cared for him when he was unable to care for himself, and now was teaching him somewhat of the art that had made her famous—was showing Tom how to perform on the trapeze, walk the tight-rope and do a score of other remarkable feats with which she had astonished the world.

Tom was sixteen years of age, though he looked all of twenty. Madame LaCroix was proud of him, and well she might be, for a more manly and handsome young man is seldom seen. She talked her plans over with him and asked his advice as though he were her senior, rather than twenty years younger than she.

There was one person who traveled with the circus of whom Josephine was afraid; feared lest in a moment of jealousy and anger he would commit some act of violence which would imperil her life. Jean DeBarre was his name, an acrobat who had made her life miserable in many ways since her first connection with the circus.

Tom was well aware of the facts of the case and kept his eyes open when Josephine performed, confident that at such a time was she in greatest danger at his hands.

Tom had progressed so well under Josephine's instruction that they had performed jointly and shared tremendous applause. Josephine, shot out of a cannon, would catch a trapeze at the top of the tent, and leaping through the air, would catch Tom's hands, and from there turn a triple somersault to a trapeze far below, from there reaching the top of the tent by a series of wonderful maneuvers, performing more and more daring feats as the show progressed.

Among other things Josephine danced on the tight-rope, discarding the customary lifenet, perfectly at ease while dancing on that slender rope fifty feet above the ring.

Jean DeBarre muttered something under his breath as Josephine passed him one evening on her way to the ring from the dressing-tent; his words and looks frightened her, and she spoke to Tom as they passed into the great tent.

"Keep a sharp watch to-night," said she as she parted from the young man, "Jean has been drinking and is ugly. Don't forget, Tom."

Merrily the circus progressed. Josephine and Tom had gone through with several performances, delighting the people. Twice had Josephine found opportunity to speak with Tom and each time had she said something about DeBarre and her fear of bodily harm. Tom had tried to laugh it off, thinking to dispel the thought from her mind, though he had misgivings himself.

Josephine was standing on the tight-rope, waving her hands to the people, her back to Tom. Tom, some thirty feet above her, watched her graceful movements from time to time as opportunity offered, for he was striving to acquire some of her marvelous grace.

Suddenly he became aware of another who was watching her with intentness, one who was not of the people below. On the other side of the tent where the dressing-tent was pitched a dark, sullen face was outlined against the white canvas. The face was the face of DeBarre.

Suddenly a knife flashed, its gleaming blade reflecting the arc lights of the circus, flashing almost like a diamond.

Tom saw that flash of light; saw the vindictive face of DeBarre outlined on the white canvas and devined his purpose. He saw Josephine on the rope beneath him waving her hands to the mass of humanity.

In the merest fraction of a second he had gathered himself for a leap—the leap of his life. The vast throng saw the change that had come over him. Scarcely had they noted his quivering form when he shot from the trapeze like an arrow from a drawn bow.

A startled cry issued from a hundred throats as they saw him flying toward Josephine, Josephine with her back to him, unconscious of his flight from the trapeze above.

The knife in the hands of DeBarre flashed again as Tom shot past Josephine; flashed and severed the rope that supported the woman.

As Tom passed, his right arm encircled Josephine's waist and together they sped downward toward the trapeze twenty-five feet below. Even as the woman's feet left the rope it dropped to the ring.

Josephine, conscious of her peril, knew that their lives depended upon her own assistance and submitting, permitted herself to be borne onward with no resistance.

As one body the people rose to their feet as the two swept downward.

"They'll miss it," shouted one man.

"He has done it," shouted another.

Sure enough. Like lightning Tom's left hand shot out, reaching high above his head, seizing the bar of the trapeze as they flew by. Instantly Josephine followed the movement herself, Tom loosing his hold, she drawing herself upon the bar, Tom attempting to do so himself, but failing.

Josephine looked down and saw Tom's left arm hanging helpless by his side. Seizing his right arm, with which he had laid hold of the bar the instant his other arm snapped, she drew him up by her side, where they stood bowing to the people, though they felt little like doing so under the circumstances.

Quickly a rope was brought, and in less time than it takes to tell it the two were safely in the ring, retreating toward the dressing-tent.

Meanwhile swift justice had been meted out to the villain who had sought Josephine's life. Standing there high above the ground, partially hidden by the great folds of the tent, he had failed to note that the rope on which he was standing, likewise secured Josephine's tight-rope. The instant he drew his keen knife across the tight-rope his own foothold was lost. Downward he plunged, striking on a pile of boards, breathing his last before Josephine and Tom reached the dressing-tent.

Somewhere to-day Tom is performing, no doubt, making marvelous leaps from trapeze to trapeze, but it is doubtful if he ever has, or ever will perform as he did that night when he saved Josephine's life.

Reversible LINENE Collars and Cuffs.

Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods. No Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mail, 30cts. Send 6 cts. in stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. K, Boston, Mass.

RUBENS DANTE TASSO MURILLO ANGELO RAPHAEL

A BURGLAR PRO TEM.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY BURTON MCPHAIL.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

JOHN BALDWIN, a detective in the employ of a detective agency of Boston, was resting one afternoon at his home on Longwood Avenue, when his doorbell rang; answering the summons he admitted a middle-aged gentleman. A stranger, courtly in his bearing, evidently a man of the world.

GUSTAV LUETCHMANN,
Berlin, Germany.
VOCAL TEACHER.

"I note that you have a room to let," he said, handing the detective the above card; "I desire to engage one in a private family where I can rest for a few weeks from the annoyance and bustle of a hotel."

The detective was favorably impressed by the stranger and readily showed him to the one room he wished to rent.

"A beautiful room," said he in dulcet tones, "beautiful; will have my trunks sent up at once."

This was going a trifle faster than the detective had expected. He had not seen his wife as yet, and the letting of the room being her suggestion, as the rent was to be her own, naturally she was the one to be consulted. Before he was aware of it, the detective had accepted the five dollar note which the stranger pressed into his hand. The upper front room was let.

The detective's wife merely saw the man as he descended the front steps, but one glance at his face told her all.

"That man's a rascal," said she, when her husband returned from the hall. "You have been deceived for once, John."

"You are certainly mistaken," said the detective, watching the man as he passed down the street. "He is a gentleman from the soles of his shoes to the crown of his head."

Nevertheless, the detective wondered as he stood there which was right—he or his wife.

That evening the professor returned and they had a good opportunity of studying him. They asked him to spend the evening with them, and a very enjoyable evening was passed. He possessed a fine tenor voice, and seated at the piano he played and sang several selections.

As the evening passed the detective's wife began to look with more favor on their lodger. Gradually that indescribable something that chills the person against whom it is directed, began to disappear, and as he sang her distrust gave place to confidence, and before the professor bade them good-night and retired to his room, he had won her respect and admiration; she stood where the detective had stood six hours previous.

The detective, however, thinking over the incidents of the day and evening, to his surprise, found a slight suspicion, of he knew not what, creeping into his mind, which had not departed when he arose the following morning.

At the rogues' gallery the detective spent a morning looking over the thousands of photographs, wondering if amongst them all was not the professor's likeness. He was going over them for the second time when his eye fell on one which he had passed over the first time; one taken in Germany, the likeness of a noted burglar and bank-robber. Hans Van Rueter, was the name it bore, and the description tallied with the professor's physiognomy, save that Rueter wore a beard, while Leutchmann sported merely a moustache.

"A fine tenor voice," read the description.

"That's the man," said the detective, "a beard is easily disposed of. Gustav Leutchmann is a knave."

Upon arriving home the detective learned from his wife that the professor had had a caller that morning. A crook, presumably, though one whom he could not size up from his wife's description. The following day he met him coming up the steps as he was leaving the house. If a crook, evidently a stranger in that part of the country, for his face was not to be found in the rogues' gallery.

That evening the detective learned that the same man was coming again the next morning, which information his wife had overheard as he parted from his friend, the professor.

Concealed in a closet adjoining the professor's room, the detective gleaned from the snatches of conversation which he overheard that the two men had planned to plunder his residence.

"Very well," said the detective to his wife, "very well, if they will loot my home, I shall assist professor Leutchmann in doing so. There is not another man in the city so familiar with the location of our valuables as myself."

The Professor and his pal had planned to do the job the following night. The detective prepared to do his work at the same time. How well he succeeded will be shown later.

The professor's friend wore a heavy black moustache, and glasses partially concealed his eyes. That afternoon the detective selected from his stock of disguises a false moustache that closely resembled Leutchmann's pal's. An overcoat similar to his he had not, but he planned something better than a substitute; he decided to wear the very overcoat worn by the man whom he was about to impersonate.

Two shrewd detectives guarded the approaches to Detective Baldwin's residence, with orders to arrest Leutchmann's pal as soon as he put in an appearance that night.

Detective Baldwin impatiently passed the evening at the station waiting the arrival of the detectives with their prisoner. A little after one in the morning they arrived. In less than three minutes Detective Baldwin was on his way, clad in the arrested man's overcoat, wearing his hat and glasses, and his "make up" completed by the false moustache.

Twice the detective passed his home, watching for the appearance of the professor. Presently the front door opened softly and the professor beckoned to the detective.

"Take off your shoes," he whispered in his ear, as the detective tiptoed up the steps.

He obeyed.

Noiselessly he followed him into the house and waited for the professor's next move.

It was evident that Leutchmann had explored the house prior to that night, for he led the way with no hesitation straight to the sideboard where the silverware stood.

There is a strange fascination about robbing one's own house, and the detective entered into the plot with interest.

"Baldwin hasn't been out to-night," said Leutchmann, "if he's been asleep all the evening we must take special care not to waken him."

The detective assented.

As yet Detective Baldwin had done nothing in the way of plundering, and Leutchmann suggested that he ransack the bedroom.

Rapidly was the ludicrous side of the situation growing upon the detective, and when he entered his wife's room and found her stifling a laugh in the bed-clothes, he nearly gave all away by laughing aloud.

With no opposition and absolutely no danger of being disturbed, naturally, he easily secured his watch, several pieces of jewelry and joined Leutchmann in the dining-room.

Highly did he compliment the detective for his cleverness in thus securing so much of value without disturbing the owner.

Quickly the two left the house, and without, a carriage was awaiting the professor's appearance. As the detective stepped into the vehicle he glanced sharply at the driver's cap and learned his number.

Through this street and that of the city the carriage whirled and finally stopped before an old building in a low quarter of the city.

Without question the detective followed the professor's lead, climbing a rickety flight of stairs to a dingy room.

As the professor stooped to light a lamp the detective slipped his hand into his own hip-pocket.

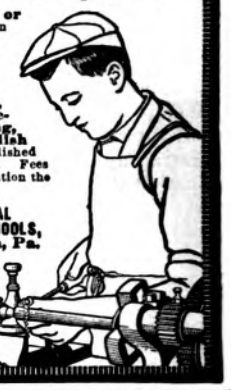
"This has been a clever piece of work," said Leutchmann, turning to the detective.

"I think so, Herr Rueter," responded the detective, quietly.

With ashen face Leutchmann, or rather, Rueter, turned to his companion. He found himself peering into the barrel of a forty-four calibre revolver.

Half an hour later he was behind the bars.

To-day he is serving a ten years' sentence in state's prison.



The cabman, whom it was evident had had his "eye teeth cut," received a six months' term in the penitentiary.

Are You a Machine?

If you do mechanical work in a mechanical way you need have no hope of success except in turning squarely around and putting brains and originality into your work. Whether you work at a lathe or at a ledger, if you are discouraged about your chances for advancement write for the experiences of our students who take courses by mail which fit them for new positions, different work, higher salary. 150,000 students and graduates. You can Change Your Occupation

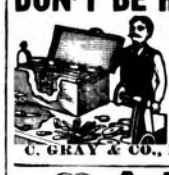
without loss of time or salary. Courses in Bridge, Steam, Electrical or Civil Engineering, Chemistry, Mining, Mechanical or Architectural Drafting, Surveying, Plumbing, Architecture, Book-keeping, Shorthand, English Branches, etc. Established 1891. Capital $1,500,000. Fees cash or installments. Mention the course you prefer.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 1190, Scranton, Pa.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

MOUTH-HARP PLAYERS! Big Money selling The New Harp-o-chord. Harp and Zither combined. 17 inches long. 10 times louder than mouth-harp alone. Easy to learn. Our fine Mouth-harp sent for 6 names harp players and 14c postage. Catalog Free. HARP-O-CHORD Co., 27 L St., Columbus, O.



BIG COMMISSIONS TO LADY AGENTS

Lady agents for McCabe corsets and fine underskirts get generous commissions and make big money because the goods sell on sight—carrying styles for different figures—prices within reach of all. Write for particulars.

ST. LOUIS CORSET COMPANY, ST. LOUIS, MO.

WANTED WOMEN to bind dress shields at home. Steady work; distance no disadvantage; ask your dealer to show you Kora Shields. Kora Shields snap on waist without sewing. Send 10c. for catalogue of work. The Kora Shield Co., Dept. B, 525 Broome St., New York.

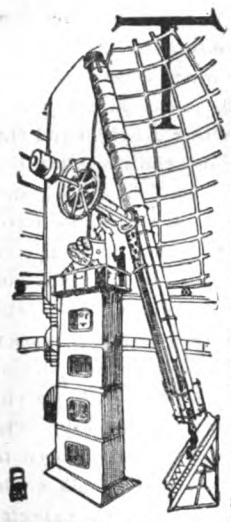
DON'T BE HARD UP $2,000 A YEAR EASY Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating Gents and Ladies at home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Platers. Plates, Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, and all metal goods. No experience, heavy plate, modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Guaranteed. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write Today. Testimonials, samples, &c., FREE

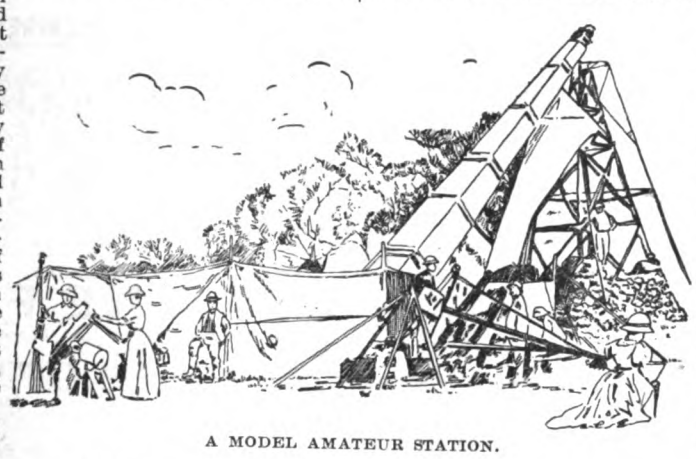


C. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, 8, CINCINNATI, O.

A BIG INCOME Can be made GIVING PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENTS in Churches, Halls and Theatres with MOTION PICTURES the new Graphe-Ampliphone, MUSICAL and Talking Combination and Panoramic Stereopticon Views. $60 to $200 PER WEEK. Pleasant employment and any man can operate them. COMPLETE OUTFITS, including large illustrated Advertising Bills (18x24), admission tickets, instruction book, business guide, etc., $39.50 and up. Most interesting and sensational subjects, just out. Will be sent C. O. D. subject to examination. Write for catalogue and copies of letters from exhibitors who are MAKING BIG MONEY with our outfits. ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO. Dept. BN, 56-58 5th Ave. CHICAGO

THE SUN'S ECLIPSE IN 1900.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.



TELESCOPE OBSERVATORY.

THE fact that the eclipse of the sun which is to take place May 28th is to be total and the finest ever witnessed in America is calling much attention to the subject of eclipses. Without entering into deep scientific explanations or confusing theories, it is the purpose of COMFORT in this article to give a few interesting facts about this and other eclipses of the sun which will enable the readers to witness this phenomenon of nature with a clear understanding of what it all means.

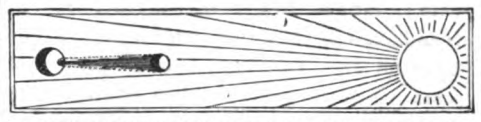
Historically speaking eclipses have had considerable share in events in many lands. In the days of ignorance and superstition eclipses were considered as evidences of the wrath of the gods and caused widespread terror. Tradition often ascribed connection between eclipses and events of national importance. This is particularly true in the Latin and Greek classics, as for instance, Plutarch declares that an eclipse attended the birth of Romulus (the founder of Rome) and Xenephon describes the capture of the Median city of Larissa by the Persians because the gods brought an eclipse of the sun to terrify the citizens.

Gradually increasing knowledge of the heavens allowed astronomers to predict eclipses, and the terror they formerly inspired has gradually given way excepting in ignorant and superstitious minds where such phenomena are still ascribed to supernatural causes. An English Ambassador to China tells of an eclipse which kept the Emperor and his Mandarins for a whole day devoutly praying to their gods that the Moon might not be eaten up by the great dragon which was hovering around her. The next day a pantomime was performed showing the battle between the Moon and the dragon in which three hundred priests, bearing lanterns on long sticks, danced and capered around, in the house and about the grounds.

In 1868 there was a complete eclipse of the sun in India and but very few individuals among the teeming millions who viewed it did not believe the dragon Rahn was endeavoring to swallow up the Lord of Day. The pious Hindu while the eclipse is coming on, takes a torch, and begins searching his house, carefully removing all cooked food and drinking water; because, by the eclipse, such food and water become "unclean." A writer from Fort Sill telling of the eclipse of 1878 said; "It was the grandest sight I ever saw, but it frightened the Indians badly. Some threw themselves upon their knees and invoked Divine blessing; others flung themselves prostrate, face downward, others cried and yelled in frantic excitement and terror. Finally, one old fellow stepped from the door of his lodge, pistol in hand, and fixing his eyes on the darkened Sun, mumbled a few unintelligible words and raising his arm took direct aim at the luminary and fired the pistol. This happened at the moment of total obscurity and a moment after the sun peeped forth." It was unanimously voted by the Indians that the timely discharge of the firearm alone saved the orb from total extinction. Thousands of similar cases of the action of the primitive mind might be related, but these will suffice.

A MODEL AMATEUR STATION.

The obscuration of the sun, commonly known as an eclipse, is, as is generally understood, due to the presence of the moon directly between the earth and the sun. The surface of the moon, relatively speaking, is so much smaller than the sun, that, notwithstanding its comparative nearness to the earth, the shadow does not completely cover the sun at any time and casts only a very narrow shadow. Even at time of total obscurity a bright light called the corona will encircle the shadow, varying in brightness and size. The longest possible total obscurity would happen at the equator and be of eight minutes duration. The longest time the sun will be hidden in the coming eclipse will be about two minutes.



A CORONA OF THE SUN.

The eclipse of May 28th will be the first observable in the United States since 1889. The moon's shadow will touch the earth somewhere out in the Pacific ocean and travel eastward in a somewhat unusual path. Sweeping along at a rate of one thousand miles an hour, it will reach land on the west coast of Mexico, crossing that country in a northeasterly direction and arriving at New Orleans with a total obscuration at half-past seven A. M. The total disappearance there will be one minute and seventeen seconds. From there it passes in a straight line to Norfolk, Va., passing through Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and the southwestern end of Virginia. A strip of about fifty-four miles wide will be in total darkness for over a minute. From here it passes in the same direction into the Atlantic until it reaches the coast of Portugal at 3.30 P. M. and thence across northern Africa into the Red Sea.

The most elaborate preparations for scientific observation have been made at great cost in all parts of the world; but the fact that an amateur photographer, Mrs. Maunder, the wife of an English astronomer, who accompanied her husband to India to witness the eclipse of 1898, took the finest photograph of an eclipse ever known, has stimulated thousands of amateurs to similar effort. In her very successful attempt she used a Dallmeyer stigmatic lens of one and one-half inches apperture and nine inches focal length. If the sky be clear undoubtedly splendid pictures will result.

At Tripoli, Africa, there is fifty per cent. less likelihood of cloud than at any other point, and that will be the Mecca of observers. Telegraphs and cipher code will enable them to know every official observation from the first point in Mexico at sunrise until its disappearance between five and six in the afternoon near the Indian ocean.

Many elaborate stations will be erected and our sketch shows a model amateur outfit. The initial cut shows official observations in a large observatory. Note the operator repeating by telegraph the calls of the observer looking through the glass. But any of our readers may obtain a clear view of the passing of the shadow by smoking a piece of ordinary window glass over a candle flame and looking through it at the sun.

RELATIVE POSITION OF EARTH, SUN AND MOON.

QUEEN VICTORIA AT CHURCH.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ON the 24th of May, 1900, Queen Victoria, if she lives, will be eighty-one years old. Through all these years, or at least since her childhood, the Queen has been a regular attendant at church, no matter at which of the royal residences she may have chanced to be living. Although most of the palaces have magnificent royal chapels connected with them, Her Majesty is quite as apt to be found worshiping at the humble parish church.

When at Balmoral Castle, in Scotland, her favorite residence, the Queen attends Crathie Church, the regular Presbyterian house of worship of the village, although she is regularly, of course, a communicant of the Church of England. When she is at Balmoral it is said that the tourists who flock to church to get a glimpse of royalty at its devotions make a nuisance of themselves to the regular attendants. No doubt many of these people do go to the church actuated more by curiosity than by devotion, and it is quite likely they stare about them more than could be called polite. One visitor, who perhaps may not have seen herself as others saw her, wrote of her impressions as follows: "The Queen did look so cross. I had been trying to get a glimpse of her, when all at once my brother nudged me and said, 'Now you can see.' I looked up, and the Queen saw me, and looked so cross." An English writer commenting on this story says: "Poor Queen! She is of course quite different from all other people, and likes to be impudently stared at from the beginning to the end of the service in church where she attends worship. It is most extraordinary that educated persons who would angrily resent being persistently watched and stared at themselves, cannot see that such conduct on their part is likely to be just as offensive to other people."

The communion Sunday at Crathie Church, Balmoral, has been described by the Queen in her Journal of November, 1871. She was then present for the first time at a communion service in a Presbyterian church. "It would be impossible," she writes, "to say how deeply we were impressed by the grand simplicity of the service. It was all so truly earnest, and no description can do justice to the perfect devotion of the whole assemblage. It was most touching, and I longed much to join in it. To see all these simple good people in their nice plain dresses, so many of whom I knew, and some of whom had walked far, old as they were, in the deep snow, was very touching. Since 1873," Her Majesty adds in a note, "I have regularly partaken of the communion at Balmoral every autumn."

The first time the Queen went to Crathie Church a fine dog followed the clergyman up the pulpit steps and lay against the door of the pulpit while his master was preaching. In consequence of the remonstrance of the minister in attendance at Balmoral at the time, when next Sunday came around the clergyman came to Crathie Church without his dog. Dining at Balmoral a few days later he was surprised to have his royal hostess demand the reason for the dog's absence. He explained that he had been told that the dog annoyed her Majesty. "Not at all," promptly said the Queen. "I wish everybody behaved as well at church as does your noble dog."

At Windsor Castle there are two royal chapels. St. George's Chapel, the older, is a magnificent specimen of the florid Gothic architecture. It contains the stalls of the Knights of the Garter, and here their installation takes place. At the east end of the chapel is the royal vault in which are buried George III and his Queen, George IV, the Princess Charlotte, the Duke of Kent, the Duke of York, William IV and his Queen, and several other royalties. Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the Queen's husband, is not buried there, however, but in a magnificent building erected by the Queen to his memory and called the Royal Tomb House, or Albert Memorial Chapel. This building is only sixty-eight feet in length, but is designed with almost indescribable richness. At the entrance to the chapel is the cenotaph, made of black and gold Tuscan marble, bearing a sculptured effigy of the prince, carved from pure white Carrara marble. The figure is represented as dressed in the armor of a fourteenth century knight, and wearing the order of the Garter.

The body of the deceased prince is not buried in the chapel, but in a mausoleum erected for it on the left hand side of the Long Walk, at a short distance from the Castle. In another mausoleum near lies the body of the Duchess of Kent, the Queen's mother. This magnificent tomb of the Prince Consort, which was erected at the sole expense of the Queen, cost one million of dollars.

When they are at Osborne House, in the Isle of Wight, the Queen and Court worship at Whippingham Church. This church was rebuilt but a short time before the death of the Prince Consort, who took an active interest in the restoration of the edifice. He is commemorated there by a handsome monument to him erected by the Queen in the chancel of the church. The Princess Beatrice was married to Prince Henry of Battenburg in Whippingham Church, in 1885. This is said to be the first instance on record of the daughter of a sovereign being married in a parish church.

A NEW WAY TO COOK WELL.

The Steam Cooker advertised in another column by the Toledo Steam Cooker Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a new idea. Readers may find a great convenience by sending to them. Try it.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS.

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

SPECTACLES at wholesale. Send for catalog. Agents wanted. COULTER OPTICAL CO. Chicago, Ill.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85

$14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00

the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grades and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

Spinal Disease Cured

Richard D. Creech, of 1062 Second St., Appleton, Wis., says: "Our son Willard was absolutely helpless. His lower limbs were paralyzed, and when we used electricity he could not feel it below his hips. Finally my mother, who lives in Canada, wrote advising the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I bought some. This was when our boy had been on the stretcher for an entire year and helpless for nine months. In six weeks after taking the pills we noted signs of vitality in his legs, and in four months he was able to go to school. It was nothing else in the world that saved the boy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."—From the Crescent, Appleton, Wis.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box; 6 boxes $2.50. Look for this trade-mark on every package.

DR WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE — TRADE MARK — REGISTERED

MAGIC DIP NEEDLE for locating Gold and Silver Ore, Lost or Hidden Treasures. Circulars and testimonials 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

SENT FREE

Solid Gold or Silver

plated bracelet sent free to anyone for selling 5 sets of our LADIES GOLD plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set; (each pin set with an exquisite jewel.) Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you the Bracelet. The chain is beautifully engraved and the lock opens with a dainty little key. We trust you and will take back all pins you cannot sell. Write to-day. Address The Maxwell Co., Dept. 535. St. Louis, Mo.

GUARANTEED WHITE POWDER WONDER.

SEND US 50 CENTS. Cut this Ad. out and send to us and we will send you by Express, C. O. D., subject to examination, this OUR WHITE POWDER WONDER Breech Loading Shotgun.

Weight, 6¼ to 7 pounds.

If found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, and one of the best breech loaders you ever saw, pay your express agent our special offer price $7.00 less the 50 cents, or $6.50 and express charges.

THE WHITE POWDER WONDER is a fine American made, single barrel, guaranteed, 12-gauge, breech loading shotgun, made from the best material money can buy, by one of the best makers in America. Strongest single barrel gun made, bored for white or black powder; choke bored, very strong, (60 yard) long range shooter; made with double reinforced breech, patent heavy barrel bolt lock, Weldor taper steel barrels; Wilson's finest top snap brake, pistol grip, 30 or 32-inch barrel, Biffar take-down model.

OUR SPECIAL $7.00 PRICE barely covers cost of material and labor with but our one small profit added.

ORDER TODAY. DON'T DELAY. Address,

Write for Free Gun Catalogue. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago, Ill.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

FEEL YOUR PULSE

Place your finger on your pulse and see if your heart beats regularly and steadily. If there is a single skipping or irregularity of the beats, your heart is weak or diseased, and there is no telling how soon it will stop beating altogether. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. But remember that irregular or skipping beats are only one symptom, and in many cases are not found. Any of the following are just as positive and sure:—

Symptoms of Heart Trouble.

Fluttering, Palpitation, Shortness of Breath, Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in the Left Side, Arm or Under the Shoulder Blade; Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Hungry or Weak Spells; Spots Before the Eyes; Sudden Starting in Sleep, Dreaming, Nightmare, Choking Sensation in Throat; Oppressed Feeling in Chest; Cold Hands and Feet; Painful to Lie on Left Side; Drowsy, Swelling of the Feet or Ankles (one of the surest signs), Neuralgia Around the Heart. Persons having even one of these symptoms should not delay treatment a single day.

Medicine Free to All. If you have been treating yourself for stomach, lung, kidney or nervous disease, and have failed to find a cure, the chances are 9 in 10 that your trouble is in your heart. Hundreds of such cases are found every year. I want you to send me your name and address at once, so I can send to you for trial a box of my celebrated Heart Tablets absolutely free of charge, by mail, prepaid. Don't fail to write me if you have a single one of the above symptoms. I can cure you beyond any question, and will send the free tablets to prove it to you personally. Delays are dangerous. Inclose stamp for postage.

Address DR. AUSTIN ALBRO, Box 962 Augusta, Maine.

Men, Women and Things.

CONDUCTED BY JENNIE MELVENE DAVIS.

Alma-Tadema is a name familiar alike to the art critic and to the people at large. His wonderful pictures of life in Egypt and Rome with the beautiful classic figures of women, the intense blue sky and the wonderful brilliancy of light playing over white marble, remains forever in the memory as a distinctive acquisition. They have probably been reproduced oftener in prints, photographs and engravings than the work of any other living artist. Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema has a beautiful home in London which shows at every turn an artist's thought Alma-Tadema is about sixty years of age, but in that lifetime he has painted more than three hundred important pictures. The celebrated artist is Dutch by birth although his title comes from the knighthood bestowed upon him by Victoria in 1879. He is the son of a notary. His father died when Tadema was a child of four and the care for his education fell upon his mother. She had a wholesome distrust of art and artists and tried to train her son to be a lawyer The boy's instincts were all towards art and every moment he was out of school was spent with a pencil or brush in his hand. The constant effort injured his health but at the age of thirteen a portrait of his sister was exhibited as his work. Thinking that the boy would not live his mother consented to allow him to devote all his time to art. He studied at the Antwerp Academy and later under the distinguished Belgian artist, Hendrik Leys. With congenial work came vigorous health and the sometime invalid became the greatest worker. All of his early work has been destroyed by the critical artist. His first successful picture depicted life in Egypt. It was called "Life in Egypt Three Thousand Years Ago." His mother lived to see him attain local fame. He married a French lady but on her death in 1869 he came to London where he has ever since made his home. He married an English wife, became an English citizen and so closely identified himself with the life of his adopted country that many people forget that he is not a native Englishman. His first contribution to the Royal Academy was a picture painted in Antwerp and entitled the Pyrrhic Dance. His first picture painted in England was "A Roman Emperor." Alma-Tadema is a diligent worker but from two to three years are spent upon each picture. He keeps two or three canvasses going at once and among these there is generally a portrait. His portraits are as characteristic as his other work for he never paints the conventional portrait of a head but surrounds his portraits with familiar objects so that the setting of life is given to the semblance of life. He is necessarily a thorough historical student and is often consulted regarding the setting of plays that show the life of Rome or Egypt. His house contains a beautiful marble gallery leading to a studio. A stairway of burnished brass and windows of onyx are among the interesting features of a house that is like no other in the world. Among its ornaments is a beautiful piano inlaid with gold, mother of pearl and semi-precious stones while inside the lid on a vellum lining are the names of famous pianists who have used the instrument. Americans have been the largest purchasers of Alma-Tadema's work. The careful attention to detail shows the Dutch school, but the peculiar brilliancy of their beauty appeals to every lover of beauty while the artistic perfection wins the plaudits of critics. Success both artistic and financial has crowned Sir Alma-Tadema's life.

Miss Maud Gonne has just left America and sailed for Paris, where she will speak for the cause of Irish liberty and for the Boers. Miss Gonne is thirty-two years old but her name is known the world over for her eloquent protests against England's treatment of Ireland. Miss Gonne spent her childhood in Dublin where many scenes of the misery of the people were indellibly impressed upon her. For seven years she lived in France and then she returned to Ireland. She became identified with the Nationalist party and devoted her life to the task of freeing the political prisoners and of solving the problem of her people. This was her second lecture tour in America. Miss Gonne is a very beautiful young woman, with a gentle voice and manner. She wears a low cut velvet gown when she lectures and seems to have stepped out of some old canvas. She has the intense earnestness and thorough belief in her ideals that carries conviction to her listeners. She is very far from the manner of the average platform speaker, but is illogical, sympathetic and womanly. It is her real love for the people of whom she speaks that wins her the co-operation and assistance of her audiences. Her beauty, her ability and her charm are powerful factors in her success, but above and beyond all is her absolute belief in the right of the cause. She has established a paper in Paris known as Ireland Libre.

The historical novel seems to be literary "winner" of the day. The greatest successes from the financial and popular side have been won in this field. Without doubt, the dominant figure in the field of historical romance is that of Paul Leicester Ford. His claims to serious attention as a historian are not without good foundation. He is a young man but his entire life has been spent in the atmosphere of historical study. His father owned one of the largest private libraries in the country in the line of American history. Ford has had the historical training that comes from the study of documents and sources of history. His life of Washington presents the hero from the familiar standpoint of daily life. All the little details that help to a personal view of the Father of his country are given. Again in his book "The Many Sided Franklin" Ford gives us much that is fresh and entertaining. His first successful novel. "The Honorable Peter Stirling" was generally understood to be a sketch of Grover Cleveland's life. The Story of an Untold Love was in quite a different vein. It is Ford's last book. Janice Meredith, that has met with the most favorable reception from the critics. It is the direct result of his work both as a historian and a novelist. The leading scenes are laid in New Jersey and it might almost be called a novel of New Jersey. The characters seem real flesh and blood and many people feel that this is the long expected great American novel. Paul Leicester Ford is a native of Brooklyn. The stately old home where he passed his boyhood stands on Clark Street but it has passed into other hands. If Paul Leicester Ford had done no other work than that in Janice Meredith he would be entitled to a leading place in the literary ranks.

Miss Elizabeth Jordan is the new editor of "Harper's Bazar." The entire re-organization of the Harper business has given this very important position to a very young woman. Miss Jordan had however "arrived" before this last mark of success was placed upon her. She came to New York from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, about ten years ago and at once obtained a position upon the "World." Her merit made her one of the best-known newspaper women in New York. She wrote a collection of short stories "Tales of the City Room" that won recognition for her literary ability as well as for her newspaper instinct. She has force, tact, discrimination, literary ability and great executive force. Her friends believe she will make all these qualities tell for success in her new position.

Anna Elizabeth Klumpke, an American girl, is the heiress of the world celebrated artist, Rosa Bonheur. The story of the friendship of these two women of alien race but of kindred taste and talent is one of the strange romances of real life. Miss Klumpke is a San Francisco girl and belongs to a talented family. One of her sisters is Miss Dorothy Klumpke, the well known astronomer. It is now a little more than ten years since Miss Klumpke exhibited in the Paris salon a portrait of her mother. The picture with its benign face and silvery hair attracted the attention of Rosa Bonheur and she sought the acquaintance of the young artist. Miss Klumpke has lived in Boston since leaving San Francisco, but for the past few years her home has been in Paris. It was while on a visit to America that she received an invitation to paint the portrait of the great artist. The acquaintance that grew up through this means ripened into such love and devotion on both sides that the great French artist made the young American heiress to her fortune of nearly $60,000, her chateau at Fontainbleau and all her paintings. Miss Klumpke announced at once that she would give half the proceeds of the sale of the pictures to Rosa Bonheur's brother and nieces. Miss Klumpke intends to gather together all Rosa Bonheur's work, prepare an exhaustive and critical catalogue, and then have the collection exhibited in France, England and America. A large part of the work has never been exhibited and the collection will be a monument to the genius and industry of the great animal painter. After the collection has been exhibited the different canvasses will be sold. Miss Klumpke has given $10,000 of the money to the Society of French Artists to found a Rosa Bonheur prize. The interest will provide for an annual prize of $300, as the lump sum is the largest prize foundation in the society. The prize is to be awarded by the salon jury to the most meritorious picture of the year without regard to race, age or sex of the artist. Miss Klumpke also intends to repair the chateau at Fontainbleau and make it a Mecca to art pilgrims. In fact the American girl seems to consider the fortune in the light of a trust. She is to write a life of Rosa Bonheur and give the impressions she gained through the intimate comradeship that she enjoyed with her. She feels that the real inner life of Rosa Bonheur was little known or understood and rejoices that her love rendered the great artist's last days less lonely. Miss Klumpke's own art has been at a standstill as her whole strength and energy has been given to her scheme of perpetuating the memory of the great woman artist. Miss Klumpke will not be a wealthy woman when she has perfected her plans of exhibiting the works of her friend, but her name will be indissolubly linked with that of the world's greatest painter of animal life.

Leonora Jackson is a young American girl who is working to attain the fame in her own land that is already hers in Europe. She has fought her way to fame with a violin. No artist of her years can be said to rival her and many believe that she will achieve the greatest fame won by a woman violinist. Miss Jackson has a strong, firm face lighted by eyes whose color seems to change from light blue to black as the emotions of the girl deepen and vary. Her hands seem large and awkward until she grasps the bow of her violin when they become full of nervous force. Miss Jackson is vehemently American. In an interview she said, "I am an American girl. Whatever triumphs I have achieved I rejoice in since through them I have held up the stars and stripes." Miss Jackson was born in Boston but all her childhood life was passed in Chicago. Her mother's family were all musical. Mrs. Jackson herself prior to her marriage studied vocal music in Italy and conducted large singing classes in this country. When Leonora was a baby the sound of a violin seemed to fill her with joy. Before she was six years old the child had her tiny violin and when she was six she had the best teachers to be found in the city. While still a child she was sent to Paris and was placed in the famous conservatory under Professor Desjardins. At this time came the great financial reverses that left the family absolutely penniless. The mother and daughter returned to America. The plan was conceived of giving concerts at seaside resorts during the summer in order to pay the further expenses of Leonora's instruction. For two years this plan was followed. Finally two wealthy women recognized the phenomenal talent of the young girl and offered to pay the expenses of herself and her mother for four years abroad. Others who had heard the little concerts were anxious to assist and finally a subscription paper containing names and representing six of our largest cities was made up. Money enough was promised for a four years' course at Berlin under Joachim and the purchase of a rare Storioni violin. After her study Miss Jackson made her debut at a grand concert in Berlin where Joachim himself led the orchestra. She was commanded to appear before the Empress. These two triumphs but led to a greater for that same year she won the Mendelssohn prize of fifteen hundred marks. Triumphs followed at Paris, at London and at Geneva. She came to America to fill an engagement for twenty orchestral concerts. The girl who had captured Europe had no need to fear the reception that her own people would give her. She more than satisfied the expectations roused by her European successes. Great as her successes have been the future seems to hold even more for this brilliant, talented young American artist.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. | MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.
Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.
LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. Everybody buys-business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc. FREE. World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O
[We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor

$8.50 SEWING MACHINE
fully described and illustrated in our big free Sewing Machine Catalog, together with our $40 La Reine for.....$13.95
$50 Elveon for..... 16.95
$60 Newport for..... 19.95
We control our own factory, sell at lowest factory prices, allow three months' free trial, guarantee our machines 20 years and ship anywhere without deposit. Write today for Free Catalog containing rare bargains in high grade machines from $8.50 up.
THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

SELL TWO OF OUR MACHINES AND GET ONE FREE.
DO IT RIGHT NOW. Send at once for a catalogue and sample of the work of the AMERICAN $10 TYPEWRITER,
the only standard low priced typewriter. Seven years without a competitor. 33,000 in use. It will put your business on an up-to-date basis. Mention COMFORT to secure these terms.
AMERICAN TYPEWRITER CO., 260 Broadway, New York.

STEEL PENS
Samples for trial, 16 different numbers for all styles of writing, including the VERTICAL SYSTEM, sent prepaid on receipt of 10 cents.
SPENCERIAN PEN CO. NEW YORK

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

Brass Band
Instruments, Drums, Uniforms, & Supplies. Write for catalog, 445 illustrations, FREE; it gives information for musicians and new bands. LYON & HEALY, 23 Adams St., CHICAGO.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

DRESS GOODS We sell all kinds of Dress Goods and Silks at Lowest Chicago Wholesale Prices. For a big line of samples, send 2-cent stamp for postage on Sample Book No. 151H.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

HOME STUDY Book-keeping, Business Forms, Shorthand, Civil Service and English branches thoroughly taught by MAIL. Success assured. Low rates. Catalogue free. Trial lesson 10c.
BRYANT & STRATTON, 118 College Bldg. Buffalo, N.Y.

KIPLING'S AMERICAN HOME.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

PEOPLE often wonder how Kipling, an Englishman and raised in the torrid climate of India, should have happened to build for himself a home on a mountain side in Vermont, in the very center, as he himself has said, of the great "pie belt" of New England.

Not long after Kipling came to London from India he became acquainted with Walcot Balestier, a young man of many rare qualities, whose early death not long after came as a grievous blow to every one who knew him. Kipling soon saw and appreciated the unusual literary talent which Balestier possessed, and the two men became friends. Balestier was the son of an aristocratic New York family, the members of which owned a country home a few miles out of Brattleboro, Vermont. In time the family became so attached to this home that they spent not only their summers there but frequently the whole of the year.

When Kipling first came to America he was invited to visit the Balestier family at their country home. It was mid-winter. One can imagine what an experience that ride from New York to the snow-covered Green Mountains of Vermont must have been to a man of Kipling's artistic temperament, who had lived, as he had, in a country where the fields shone white with heat instead of frost. Sometime afterwards Kipling wrote an account of this journey, putting into it his first impressions of snow, sleighs, frost, and fur-clad men and women as he saw them at the stations at which the train paused. The rapidly falling snow, blotting out every trace of what had preceded it, seemed to have had a fascination for him, and he afterwards wrote one of his most striking stories with this as a theme. In this story he tells of a crime committed in a New England winter and of the escape on snow shoes of the man who had done the wrong, safely, as he thinks, because a fast-falling storm of snow had entirely covered his tracks. But when spring came, and the snow gradually disappeared in the sun, the light upper coat of the last storm melted so as to reveal the big, deep footsteps of the fugitive, so that he was detected and brought to punishment.

Eventually Kipling married Miss Balestier, the sister of his London friend, and having bought a hill-side near the Balestier place built a house upon it. This house, built of stone and wood, long, low and with an English homelike look about it, stands where its windows look up and across the Connecticut valley to where, many miles away, the mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire rise unevenly against the sky.

The author named the house "Naulahka," the same word which he had used as the title of one of his most fascinating books. The Naulahka is supposed to be a famous emerald, in India, so large and beautiful that it is the most precious possession of an Indian potentate. The scene of the book opens in Colorado, with the hero and heroine sitting on a bridge, engaged in argument. The young woman, believing that she has a mission to go as a physician to the high caste women of India, rejects the young man's love for this career, and starts eastward, half way around the world. The young man has political ambitions centering in the future of his town in NAULAHKA.

Colorado. The wife of an all-powerful railroad magnate who has a passion for emeralds, promises to make her husband build the railroad to the young man's town, and thus insure its future and his own, if he will bring her the Naulahka, of which she has heard. He agrees, and starts for India, westward half way around the world. Of course the hero and heroine meet in India, and the rest of the book is occupied with their wonderful adventures there. The book has had a special interest from the fact that when it was printed it was said that young Balestier, who had spent some time in Colorado for his health, had assisted in the writing of the chapters which gave such vivid pictures of Colorado and western life.

Kipling has lived in his Brattleboro home at more or less irregular intervals since the house was built. People in the community who have come to know him well admire him greatly, and appreciate the privilege of his acquaintance. One pleasant story which I have heard of him there I give, although I cannot vouch for its correctness personally. A young man, the son of one of the neighbors, had occasion to go to Kipling's house. Before he went away he asked if he might take a book which had attracted his attention while he had been waiting. Mr. Kipling, surprised, because the book was a technical one, asked the young man why he was interested in it, and learned that he was trying to work his way through college and that the book pertained to a subject which he was studying. In the acquaintance which developed it transpired that one way in which the student was earning money to pay his expenses was by soliciting business as a life insurance agent. Eventually Mr. Kipling allowed him to insure his life for a sum so large that the agent's per cent. of the premium went a long way towards paying a year's expense at college.

I happened to see Mr. Kipling once, while he was living at Naulahka. One summer a friend and myself drove twenty miles for the sake of seeing the house where the famous writer lived. Just before we came in sight of the house we met Kipling himself, being driven to town. He was in a high English dog cart, driven by a servant in a tall hat and immaculate livery. Kipling himself had on a loose, well-worn sack coat and an old black slouch hat. He was smoking a short brier pipe. Unlike many famous men his pictures look so much like him that one who sees them may know what he looks like.

I have always been glad that I saw him. Oddly enough I had open on my knees at the time, and had just been reading aloud to my companion, one of Kipling's stories, printed in a current number of a magazine. The beautiful drive across the Connecticut valley, the fascinating story, the sight of the writer himself and then of his home, which we soon drove past, all combine to make one of the pleasantest memories which I look back upon.

CALENDAR SUPERSTITIONS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THERE is a very old superstition that on the night before the first of May the witches dance with the devils on the mountains. For protection against these same witches, the country folk gather branches of the white-thorn and hang them in their entries. It is not alone to gather the blossoming hawthorn that the maiden rises early to go a Maying, for there is a belief that the dew that is found on the grass on the first morning of May has a wonderful power to beautify the face that is bathed in it. In some parts of Scotland there is an ancient custom of sending out a man very early on May-day morning to cross the river, before any woman shall have a chance to do so, for this would banish the salmon from the river for a year.

It has always been considered very unlucky to marry in May, but the anxious maiden has, on May-day, her usual opportunity to peer into the future. A syllabub having been made of warm milk, cake and wine, a wedding ring is dropped into it and she who first succeeds in fishing it out with a ladle will be the first to marry.

Another love charm is thus described in Gay's Shepherd's Week:

"Last May-day fair I searched to find a snail,
That might my secret lover's name reveal;
Upon a gooseberry bush a snail I found,
For always snails near sweetest fruits abound.
I seized the vermin; home I quickly sped,
And on the hearth the milk-white embers spread;
Slow crawled the snail, and, if I right can spell,
In the soft ashes marked a curious L:
Oh, may this wondrous omen lucky prove!
For L is found in Lubberkin and Love."

A ceremony that is performed in Germany on May twenty-fifth, St. Urban's Day, is thus described by an ancient writer: "Upon St. Urban's Day all the vintners and masters of vineyards set a table either in the market-steed or in some other open and public place, and covering it with fine napery, and strewing upon it green leavese and sweete flowers, do place upon the table the image of that holy bishop, and then if the day be cleare and faire, they crown the image with great store of wine; but if the weather prove rugged and rainie, they cast filth, mire and puddle water upon it; persuading themselves that, if that day be faire and calme, their grapes which then begin to flourish, will prove good that year: but if it be stormie and tempestuous, they shall have a bad vintage."

In Rogation Week the young men in certain English parishes used to meet together and proceed with great noise to various orchards where they would form a circle about the trees uttering this incantation:

"Stand fast root; bear well top;
God send you a youling sop!
Every twig apple big,
Every bough apple snow."

If the owner of the orchard did not then ask them to drink at his expense they would pronounce an anathema against him and his trees and go on to a more promising orchard.

There are several interesting superstitions relating to Ascension Day. On that day the country people make crosses on a cheese with a rope's end and this cheese is supposed to afford them protection in times of violent storms. If an egg laid on Ascension Day be hung in the roof of a house it is believed that it will protect the house from injury. On this day, too, the Doge of Venice was wont to wed the Adriatic with a ring, in token of Pope Alexander's permission to the Venetians to exercise authority over the sea as a man does over his wife. But the Adriatic, like a headstrong spouse, was often known to prove refractory.

Congresses at the Exposition.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ONE OF the most important features of the Paris exposition this year will be the congresses to be held in connection with it, of which over one hundred have been already arranged for. Experts, scientists and authorities from all parts of the world have promised to gather at these congresses, and no pains have been spared to make them interesting and instructive in the highest degree.

Among the topics discussed will be architecture, automobilism, the blind, cheap dwellings, commercial travelers, deaf and dumb, dentistry, drawing, feminine institutions, firemen, hypnotism, life saving, literary and artistic rights, naval architecture, Sunday rests, abuse of tobacco, women's rights and workingmen's associations.

Some of these congresses will last as long as three weeks, while others will finish their business in forty-eight hours. The medical congress will be attended by several thousand doctors who will come from all parts of the world. To receive properly the members of these several gatherings the exposition has provided a magnificent building and sufficient funds to entertain on a magnificent scale. The municipality of Paris has also made arrangements with railways, steamship lines, and other companies in order that they may make concessions and reductions in their charges for the convenience and comfort of these visitors. All the congresses will have the same chief—M. Gariel, who occupied the same position in the Paris exposition of 1889. M. Gariel is a highly educated man, a chief of civil engineers and a professor of the faculty of medicine.

The building in which the conventions will meet is called, appropriately, Congress Hall. It is located on the bank of the Seine, and is a handsome structure of the Louis XVI style. The lower floor is reserved for social economy exhibits. The first floor is an immense hall, with five meeting rooms for the use of the congresses—one of these will seat eight hundred persons and two of the smaller ones will each seat two hundred and fifty.

THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and forty-six popular songs, sentimental, pathetic and comic, with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses, and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

Free Send no money

EARN THIS HANDSOME BROCADED DRESS SKIRT.

This is a very stylish and handsome black skirt, with a full 3 & three quarter yard sweep. It is made in a handsome variety of all over large leaf brocade woven BRILLIANTINE; a durable and stylish material for dress skirts lined with a patent black rustling cloth. 7 in. interlined bias velveteen bound bottom. We will send it free to any one for selling 2 doz. sets of our Ladies Gold plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set, (each pin set with anexquisite jewel.) Send no money. Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you this beautiful DRESS SKIRT for your trouble. We trust you & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. We'll send you a SOLID GOLD plated Jewel set Ring, free, if you write to-day.

The Maxwell Co., Dept. 121 St. Louis, Mo.

SEND NO MONEY cut this ad. out and send to us, state whether you wish green, red or brown upholstering, and if you live within 400 miles of Chicago we will send this couch to you by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. YOU CAN EXAMINE IT at your freight depot and if found PERFECTLY SATISFACTORY, EXACTLY AS REPRESENTED, such a couch as you could not buy elsewhere at less than double the price, pay the freight agent OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE $7.95, and freight charges. If you live more than 400 miles from Chicago, send us $7.95 with your order, with the understanding that after you receive the couch if you are not perfectly satisfied with it you are to return it to us and we will return to you THE AMOUNT YOU PAID FOR BOTH THE COUCH AND THE FREIGHT CHARGES.

SEND NO MONEY UNTIL YOU HAVE SEEN, EXAMINED AND FOUND THIS COUCH TO BE THE EQUAL OF COUCHES THAT SELL EVERYWHERE AT DOUBLE THE PRICE.

THREE MONTH'S FREE TRIAL. Use this couch in your own home for three months and if at any time during the three months you become dissatisfied for any reason whatsoever, return the couch to us at our expense of freight charges both ways and we will return your $7.95.

$7.95

THIS IS THE LATEST STYLE, ONE OF THE LARGEST, HANDSOMEST, STRONGEST AND BEST FULL TUFTED UPHOLSTERED COUCHES MADE. It is 30 inches wide, 75 inches long, upholstered in a very fine imported three-tone Velour cloth in green, red or brown, in a handsome floral design, six rows of deep button tufting, all tufts fastened with steel tufting buttons. Made on a fine heavy mahogany finished hardwood Rococo frame; highest grade of springs; full spring seat and edges. Complete with casters. Carefully packed in paper and burlap. Write for free Furniture Catalogue. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.)—Editor.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), CHICAGO.

1 YEARS FREE TRIAL THE UNIQUE CORNISH PLAN

OF SELLING PIANOS and ORGANS has spread over the entire civilized world and has been the means of building up a vast business

PIANOS $155 All latest Musical Attachments.

Over a Quarter of a Million Satisfied Customers

attest the honesty of this modern method of piano selling. We Warrant our Pianos and Organs for 25 Years. Back of that Warranty is a business worth over a million dollars. FREE Our Souvenir Catalogue for 1900 is one of the most comprehensive musical books in the trade. The frontispiece is a masterly reproduction in colors of an oil painting representing St. Cecilia and the Angelic Choir. This catalogue is sent, postpaid, together with a novel reference book—"The Heart of the People"—and our latest special offers, free. The catalogue describes all our pianos and organs. It tells about for Pianos, Imitates ACCURATELY Harp, Banjo, Guitar, Zither, Mandolin, etc., while the famous patent Combination Multitone Reed Action make the CORNISH Organs unequalled in tone—reproduce the power of a full orchestra.

The Cornish Patent Musical Attachment

A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10 on the list price in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20 on the list price of a CORNISH PIANO.

Send for particulars of the Cornish Co-operative Plan showing how you can make money working for us, or a Cornish Piano or Organ Free

References: Your bank, our bank, any bank.

ORGANS $25 Cash or Easy Payments.

CORNISH & CO., WASHINGTON, N. J. ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

FREE SILVER WATCH FREE!

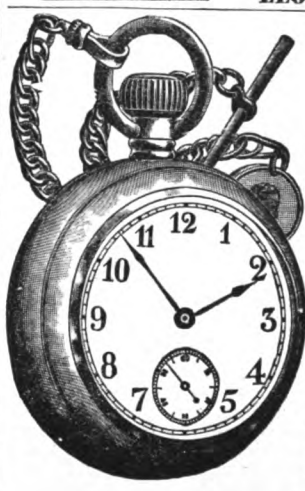
These Watches are Solid Silver, Ladies' or Gents' size, and at retail would cost upwards of $8. or $10, but to introduce our Persian Petrified Perfumery we will send you this Watch Free if you take advantage of our marvelous offer. If you want one CUT THIS OUT write to us without delay. With your letter send us your name & postoffice address and we will send you on consignment, to sell for 5 cents each, 20 cases of Persian Petrified Perfumery and our offer. After you receive the beautiful Watch we shall expect you to show it to your friends and call their attention to this advertisement. The Watch is sent Free, by Registered Post, on your complying with our advertisement, and the marvelous offer which we send, and it is Fully Warranted. You will be more than satisfied. Address at once,

PERSIAN PERFUMERY CO., 19 Warren St., New York.

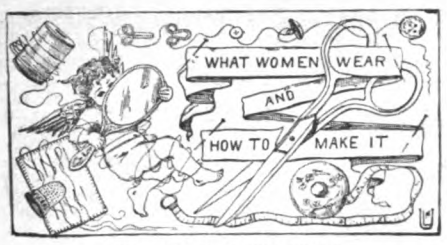


Send No Money. You get both FREE

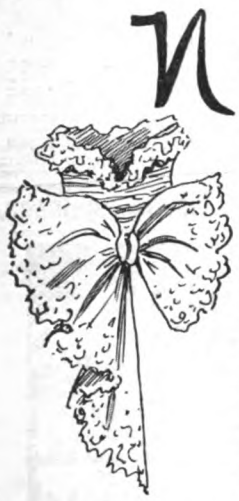
This elegant SOLID GOLD plated stylish curb link Bracelet, beautifully engraved, with heart shaped locket that opens with a dainty little key, & also this magnificent Solid Gold Shell Birthday Ring. You get both of them free. Just send us your name & address (letter or postal), that's all, & we will send you 20 Pks. of our Sweet Leonin Perfume to sell at 10c, when sold, send us the money & we will promptly send you this Bracelet & Ring. We run all the risk and take back what you cannot sell. Our reliability is established. We refer to the publisher of this paper or to any National Bank in this city. Our Perfume sells at sight & is wanted in every home.

BIRTHDAY RING

COUPON NO. 614 If you are wise you'll cut out & return this coupon to us, & we will send you an elegant Gold plated Stone set Ring free for accepting our offer to-day.



LEONIN CO., Dept. 614 St. Louis, Mo.



WE GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nice chain. Address

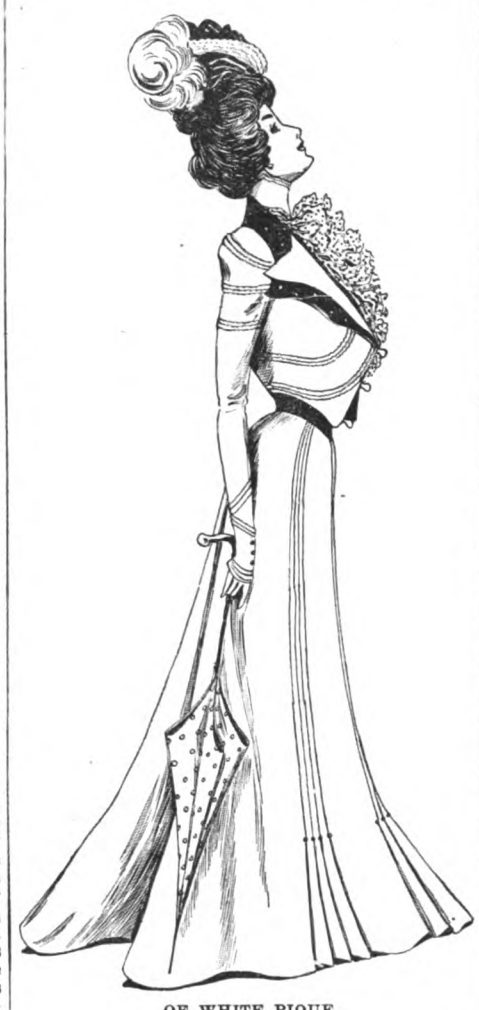
COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

NEW French foulard silks and satins are shown at the best shops in the most fascinating of Ranne velvet designs and colorings, and are utilized for bodices to be combined with fluffy skirts of thin materials, such as spotted or plain gauze, mousseline de soie, or organdie. The effect is charming. One of the newest skirt models for making up any of the light wools for summer wear has a straight front breadth, horizontal tucked sides with a circular flounce at the foot, and a box-plaited back. Another pretty skirt has seven gores, each ending in a hollow plait a little below the knees, producing a decided flare.

Dainty little Puritan berthas, Vandyke collarettes, Marie Antoinette fichus, bordered with one or two accordion plaited frills of India mull, chiffon, net or lace, Queen Bess pelerine with long scarf ends diminishing to mere points, or those of China silk delicately embroidered and provided with stole fronts that are edged with deep silk fringe in tints matching the embroidery, are to be very prominent features of dressy summer gowns, as well as of transparent toilettes of ceremony. A large majority of the handsome new gowns of lace, net, chiffon, nun's veiling, crepe de chine, etc., show a decoration more or less elaborate of black velvet ribbon of the narrowest width, used as strappings, choux loops, and arranged in rows, or clusters, the width of the velvet apart. This trimming has been in vogue with the French for several seasons past, but has never before been put to the artistic uses, nor employed in such effective and lavish manner as at the present time. It is a simple mode of trimming and most effective.

The season's display in silk begins with plain and fancy taffetas and uncommonly handsome effects in black and white and black alone in various weaves. A beautiful repped black silk of a brilliant lustre will be much used later on, and will combine exquisitely with accordion plaitings of black mousseline de soie.



No more favored material is to be found among the summer stuffs than linen lawn. The elaborate decoration in the high grades of lawn and linen lawns, makes the cost of gowns of this description, in many instances, as high as that of silk fabrics, with which they are not infrequently combined.

"Wash" goods is no longer a description. It is misleading. By far the larger part of the wash goods are entirely unfitted for laundering purposes and can only be put successfully through a dry cleansing process. The time was, not so long ago, when wash goods were made in the simplest manner, and were not intended for smart wear. Nowadays the beauty of some of our cotton dress goods rivals that of many of the silk or wool materials, and the field of the cotton gown has widened until it involves every sphere of availability from the early morning stroll to the evening hop, when the weather is warm.

Smart tailors make modish looking suits of duck, pique, linen and cotton cheviots, which though unlined show in every other respect as trig and finished an effect as any of the expensive cloth suits. As to shirt waists, when made by a fashionable woman's tailor, those of cotton goods often exceed in price those of silk.

In duck or pique gowns the combination of color is very charming. A white cheviot, cotton, has a seven gored skirt, each seam ending in a side plait at the knees, and stitched several times both sides of the seam, with a graduated box-plait at the back. The short, square Eton has a rolling collar of delft blue stitched with white, and displays an undershirt bodice, after the middy style, of the blue, with a standing stock fastened at the back, as does the small yoke made of white. Plain and plaided linens are combined effectively. A frock having the tunic of scarlet and tan plaid, has a circular flounce attached to it by means of a deep hem-stitching, showing the scarlet of the silk petticoat worn beneath. The Eton has rounded fronts open wide over a folded girdle, unusually wide, of the plaid, brought around the waist and ending in a smart knot at the back. These linen gowns are shown in blue and tan, green and tan, scarlet, and a pretty shade of brown with white bars.

OF WHITE PIQUE.

A pretty gown of white pique, very broad in pattern, has the skirt laid in clusters of side plaits set closely together, each tuck fastened with a pearl button from where the plait flares forming a flounce. The double box-plait at the back is prettily graduated. The Eton jacket is trimmed with rows of narrow braid simulating tucks, and has double revers, the upper one of white, while the lower one as well as the rolling collar is of scarlet polka dotted with white. With it is worn a smart waist of organdie, a white ground spotted with scarlet. A splendid way to utilize a half-worn cloth gown, tailor made, is to shorten the skirt to the ankles, thus doing away with all the worn places, allowing for a wide hem, or facing, and stitching it several times at the top. Such a skirt, provided the material is sufficiently heavy, is better unlined. As a result you will have a useful "Rainy Day" rig, and one which can also be worn when not rainy if the walking is bad.

An old gown of black taffeta has just been through the renovating process and it is not at all recognizable with its present Frenchy air. The skirt has a set of accordion plaited flounces, and the round waist is covered with La Tosca net laid in fine tucks, each cluster intersected with bands of fish-scale jet very light and pliable. A deep yoke having a tiny bolero attached, of yellowish tan Honiton lace, is the finishing touch. Accordion plaiting is the chic finish to all gowns whose material will permit such treatment. It has such a decidedly finished look and can be applied in various ways. A fetching waist of black taffeta is laid in the finest of tucks, running up and down, each stitched with turquoise blue, the front plait bound with blue bebe ribbon, as are the flaring cuffs. A set of turquoise studs, and a stock of blue complete this chic bit of finery.

Handkerchief waists are new and perfectly stunning when properly made. I saw one of scarlet, green and white plaid, the white predominating, especially in the border and fringe; the kerchiefs were so arranged as to form a bolero and sleeves, while the lower part of the bodice consisted of heavy all-over yellow lace, in blouse fashion. Worn with a crushed belt of white satin, and stock of the same with a knot of scarlet velvet at the side, it presented a most pleasing tout ensemble.

SIX methods of extracting perfume are known. The first is expression by means of a special press, which is applicable without too great loss to fruit skins rich in essential oils, such as orange and citron peel, previously grated. Another method is that of distillation, which consists in heating flowers with water in a boiler. The essential oil is volatilized and is condensed with the vapor of water in a worm and a Florentine receiver. The water goes to the bottom and the oil floats. The oils of neroli, patchouli, geranium, lavender, etc., are obtained in this way. The process is not applicable to the delicate perfume of the mignonette and the violet, and for them recourse is to be had to maceration of the flowers in animal fats or mineral oils, which have the property of absorbing odorous substances and are then washed in alcohol. The flowers are heated in the fat or the oil for a number of hours. For perfumes which cannot endure a high temperature the petals are placed between frames of glass coated with fat. This is the process of enfleurage. The pneumatic process, which consists in causing a current of perfumed air to be absorbed by coatings of lard on glass plates, appears not to have given satisfactory results. Another process consists in dissolving perfumes in volatile liquids, such as chloroform and volatilizing the solvents which can be done at a low temperature in a vacuum. This results in extreme delicacy and great accuracy.

THE WOMEN'S BUILDING.

The women's building at the coming Paris exposition will be known as the Women's Palace. When first the subject of a women's building at the exposition was broached it met with decided opposition, but the Paris women, remembering the women's pavilion at the Chicago fair in 1893, were determined not to be outdone by their American sisters, and so rallied their forces, overcame their opponents, and won their victory. The building is located near the Eiffel Tower, with a handsome parade on the Champs de Mars. It is intended that it shall be an international clubhouse for all ladies visiting the exposition. It is to have no board of managers, but a single head is expected to plan and carry out all the details of its management; hence it is hoped that all wrangling and difference over its affairs will be avoided.

There is to be a limited display in the main hall of women's work from all civilized countries, and women from various nationalities, garbed in their native costumes, will be seen there engaged each in some domestic avocation peculiar to her country. There will be several parlors and other rooms in the building for the use and comfort of lady visitors, while a large restaurant and an equally large hall for lunches and light refreshments will minister to their creature comforts. It is to be desired that these latter should be well patronized, as the ladies having the building in charge depend largely upon the restaurant and luncheon receipts for the means to meet the daily expenses of the undertaking, since no State aid has been granted for the purpose.

Of Interest to Canvassers.

There is probably no line of goods which give to the canvassing agents so large a margin and at the same time are such easy sellers as the Tin Ware, Aluminum and Scotch Granite manufactured by the Household Novelty Works of Chicago. Their handsome illustrated 40-page 1900 Catalogue is just out and will be sent free upon application.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

GROSSMAN'S STYLES
The Quintessence of Elegance

These beautiful effects sent C. O. D. with privilege of examiation at express office. Don't send money in advance. If found perfectly satisfactory, pay agent our special price and charges. If not, return at our expense.

No. 204. Stylish man made fly front suit, of superior refinished suiting. Jacket has double stitched seams, fitted back and near silk lining. Skirt has inverted plaited back, extra stiffening, percaline lining. A $10.00 value for $4.98

Colors, black, navy blue, brown, also grey or tan mixture.

No. 704. Satin Shirt Waist made over fitted lining. Elaborately trimmed with clusters of cording. Black, red or navy blue. Sale price $3.75.

No. 417. Swell, black or navy blue, all wool cheviot serge skirt, richly applique with silk and braid. Has new box plaited back. Lined and interlined. Special at $4.75.

Give all measurements to insure fit.

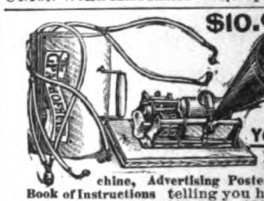
Samples free.

Send for our new book of up-to-date fashions No. 71. Free.

EDWARD B. GROSSMAN & CO.
170-172 STATE ST. CHICAGO
THE GREAT MAIL ORDER CLOAK HOUSE

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

THE BRIGHTEST LIGHT!
THE LEAST COSTLY LIGHT IS THE "BEST" LIGHT.



This light is superior to electricity and costs less than Kerosene oil. A marvelous invention. The wonder of the age. Each lamp a miniature gas works. Sells at sight.
No Odor! No Smoke! No Dirt!
Perfectly safe; a child can operate it. Over 50 different styles for indoor and outdoor use. Agents coining money. Write at once for exclusive territory. The Best Light Co., 992-1000 5th St., Canton, Ohio.

LADIES Everywhere
to sell latest up-to-date PETTICOATS, fast seller, liberal inducements; profits large. Sample free; exclusive territory. Write for terms. Model Garment Co., Dept. A, 161 E. Superior St., Chicago, Ill.

Agents Wanted Everywhere
Send 5c quick for Sample of our
Endless Wire Puzzle
Makes everybody laugh. Sells itself as fast as you can hand out at 10c. Price to agents 30c. dozen.
The Biggest Seller Going.
UNION WIRE MATTRESS CO., Dept. C, 75 Erie St., Chicago, Ill.

$10.00 TO $30.00
and expenses can be made EVERY DAY with OUR NEW IMPROVED GRAPHOPHONE TALKING MACHINE. PRICE REDUCED TO $5.00.
You Can Make Big Money with our exhibition outfit. We furnish Talking Machine, Advertising Posters, Admission Tickets, and Book of Instructions telling you how to conduct the business, how to make $10.00 to $30.00 every day. YOU CAN EXAMINE THE OUTFIT before paying for it. For full particulars cut this notice out and mail to us. Address
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.), Chicago, Ill.

$3.50 A $25.00 Watch
in appearance. The handsomest genuine gold plated watch on the market. Double hunting case, SOLID GOLD PATTERN of engraving. Elegantly finished jeweled movement, stem wind and set and absolutely guaranteed for 20 YEARS
Cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch to you by express for examination, you examine it at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $3.50 and it is yours. Only one watch to each customer at this price. Mention in your letter whether you want GENT'S OR LADY'S SIZE and order to-day as we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only.
R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

APPLIQUE SKIRT
(Sent C.O.D. Subject to Examination.)
Of good quality black or blue storm serge, tailor seamed, trimmed with fine silk taffeta and braid in rich design. Box plait back. Sizes up to 30 in. waist, 44 length.. $2.98

FREE—Write for our Handsome Spring Catalog No. 200 of Jackets, Capes, Suits, Skirts and Waists, etc. A postal brings it free.

Convince yourself by sending for the above free to examine, and if you like it and agree with us that it is a Bargain pay the agent $2.98 and charges for the skirt. Or by mail, prepaid, for $3.38. Any express agent or bank will testify to our responsibility.
M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., CHICAGO.

Free
This magnificent Solid Gold shell ring, set with a brilliant simulation Diamond free, if you will sell 6 sets of our Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) at 25c a set. Send name & address. No money wanted. We run all risk and take back what you cannot sell. Also an extra handsome present if you write to-day. The Maxwell Co., Dept. 210 St. Louis, Mo.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin
REMNANTS
FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK.
A Silken Shower from a Necktie Factory.

ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in odd pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPULAR. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in. Bright, handsome, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast at all NECKTIE FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they have been the past season and they are now burdened with remnants of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand which we are going to give you a big trade on. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts, etc., and we can help you out now. We are going to dispose of this immense lot RIGHT OFF. Our packages contain from 99 to 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home; then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONEY doing our work and helping yourself also. Remember these pieces are carefully trimmed, and especially adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Many ladies sell tidies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great price made from these remnants. Order one sample lot now for only 25c. It would cost many dollars bought at a store.
Grand Offer: If you order our great assorted lot AT ONCE, we will give you several rich, bright and beautiful stamped satin pieces; each piece contains nine square inches and being stamped by hand with a graceful design for embroidery, is a great bargain.
Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped satin and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroidery silk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price we ask for the remnants; but we know if you ORDER ONE lot we will sell many in your locality, so make this liberal offer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of Plush containing 36 square inches.
BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE to all who send 25 cents for 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" the best Home Monthly now published, and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will send free with each package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ornamenting the seams of Crazy Patchwork, or for other ornamental work where Fancy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how pieces for patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join edges, etc.
The book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides directions for taking ART EMBROIDERY STITCHES, comprising the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.
Remember we send one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remnants, the assorted stamped satin piece 5 Skeins Embroidery silk; 36 square inches plush, and a great 15c. book on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT," all for only 25 cents. Three lots and one year's subscription, 65 cents; five lots $1.00. Address,
COMFORT, Silk Dept. B, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

1st.	For the best original letter		$3.00
2nd.	" " second best original letter		2.50
3rd.	" " third " " "		2.00
4th.	" " fourth " " "		1.50
5th.	" " fifth " " "		1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least one new Cousin into the COMFORT circle; that is, they must send one new subscriber with each letter, together with 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Alice Pierson,	$3.00
Signora Crawford,	2.50
George Jones,	2.00
Nannie M. Sayer,	1.50
Mrs. F. A. Mitchell,	1.00

"Once more the Heavenly Power
Makes all things new;
And domes the red-plowed hills
With loving blue;
The blackbirds have their wills,
The throstles too."

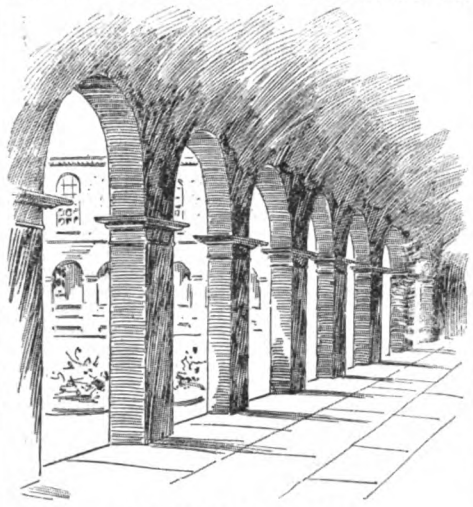
DEAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

Two hundred and ninety-three years ago this month the first English settlement was made in this fair land. Is it not hard to realize that less than three centuries ago our country was a "howling wilderness," inhabited by wild beasts and savage Indians!

Eighty-one years ago, on the twenty-fourth of this month, the venerable Queen Victoria made her appearance in this world.

And on the first of May we celebrate the second anniversary of Dewey's master-stroke in the Philippine Islands, and still we are fighting there; still Aguinaldo's semi-savage hordes resist the authority of the United States, and the advent of civilization. God grant that another year may see an end to the war, and peaceful prosperity established in those beautiful islands.

Our first letter this month comes from the capital of our beloved country, and tells us of a new Catholic institution lately established there.



"A little to the northeast of Washington, D. C., on a low hill, rise the buildings of the new Roman Catholic monastery and church, called the College of the Holy Land. They were completed less than a year ago by the Franciscan Brothers, and the College has for its object the training of priests for work in the Holy Land, as missionaries and as attendants upon the shrines there. The buildings are all of yellow brick, and the church, which is modelled after the Byzantine church of St. Sophia in Constantinople, rises in the middle to a large rounding dome. On entering we find ourselves in a lofty church, the altar raised far above the floor and reached by a flight of steps on either side. To the right and left of the altar are balconies enclosed by slender colonnades, where the monks attend the services, and one hears their full, melodious voices joining in the responses and sometimes catches a glimpse of them in their rough, brown

CHURCH AND MONASTERY.

gowns, with rope girdles and shaven heads. What is, however, of most interest is the walk through the crypt beneath the church. This has been hollowed out into passages and cave-like grottoes to represent, in exact facsimile, all the chief shrines of the Holy Land, in order, I suppose, that the young priests may become thoroughly acquainted with them before going there to serve as guides. A young, sweet faced monk acted as our conductor and led us down the stairs at the end of one of the transepts to the darkness below. At the foot, he paused and lighted a candle, by which we saw the first shrine, an exact reproduction of the place in Nazareth where the Annunciation took place. Above the altar is a bas relief of the Annunciation, a copy from Luca Della Robbia, and in front, a star indicating the place where the angel stood. Next we are led through a narrow passage to a small imitation cave, the home of Joseph in Nazareth. The passage from here to the next grotto represents the Catacombs of Rome and is so dark that with the help of the guide's candle we can hardly distinguish the semi-circular holes in the whitewashed walls, facsimiles of the graves of the early Christians. The next grotto, that of the Martyrs, is, we are told, to be beautifully decorated, but it is now only a bare niche in the rough white wall. To the right of this is a somewhat larger grotto called the Chapel of the Poor Souls. In the center is what seems a long bier covered with black cloth, while at the end rises an imposing altar of black marble. The whole effect is gloomy and dark. Here the monks come to say mass for departed souls, and here the bodies of the brothers who die will be laid before they are buried. Behind the altar another door leads to the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, the original of which is the Mecca of so many prigrims.

"From here we go back through the Chapel of Poor Souls, through the Catacombs, to the Grotto of Bethlehem. Small hanging lamps are kept burning here night and day. A few steps below the passage the manger is represented, and in it, lying on the straw is a tiny wax babe. Opposite the manger an altar is raised to the Three Wise men. A passage leads from here up to the daylight of the church, and when we emerge we are taken to the last of the shrines, the Holy Sepulchre, which is beneath the large altar of the church. We enter first a small antechamber. This contains, on a low pillar, a square of marble which is supposed to mark the spot where stood the angel who announced the Resurrection of Christ. Beyond this, stooping to get through the low door, we enter, almost kneeling, a tiny crypt where we find a facsimile of the Holy Sepulchre. It is covered with a slab of pure white marble, upon which, the guide explains, a crack was cunningly carved by the early Christians to keep from it the grasping hands of the Turks. We are about to leave when our guide takes us aside and favors us with a glance into the picturesque cloisters or covered walk around the interior court of the monastery. It is used by the monks for exercise and recreation and we catch a glimpse of several of them walking up and down in earnest conversation.

A GLIMPSE OF THE CLOISTER.

"When we emerge, we can hardly realize that we have not, in some mysterious way, drifted back to mediaeval times, and it is with almost a shock that we see the modern electric and steam cars which will take us back to the city in five or ten minutes."

ALICE PIERSON, Washington, D. C.

Now for a little of the Zoology of Oregon.

"Oregon as a state is simply a vast area of sleeping beauty. Little heard of, little described, she slumbers in her wild grandeur, leaving her future to coming ages. In yonder thicket of somber firs the wily deer dozes between his intervals of cudchewing in the day-time and romps with his mates in the forest glade when night hangs out her moon. Further beyond is the mighty elk, majestic sentinel of his herd, who scarcely heeds the shambling approach of a dusky bear.

But there is one animal which will not be found in this wild, mountainous country, but prefers to linger in the low hills just on the outskirts of civilization. This animal is the coyote which in Oregon is the most dreaded and hated of all beasts for the reason that the species of coyote in this state is perhaps the sharpest, trickiest and most damaging to the farmer of any of our nation's wolf tribe. His color is tan or lightbrown, his tail long and bushy, his ears straight and listful, and in those little eyes there glows a reckless cunning, a tireless vigilance which few animals possess. Unlike the prairie and timber wolves of the East, which often roam in bands, these coyotes always go prowling singly or in pairs.

"As champions of strategy they are close rivals to the South African Boer. You may hound one's track for hours and then call your dogs back in disgust because of your inability to tell what they are running. You may scour the hills for days and never catch sight of one. Yet you may barely reach home, dispose of your hunting garb and take the woodland path toward the house of some neighbor, when you will meet one face to face. If you have a gun, a hasty glimpse and a rustle in the distant autumn leaves, will act as a good reminder that you two have met and parted. If you are unarmed he will stand as still as death, with eyes gazing fondly into yours, and until you make some move of aggression, will never move a peg.

"When he wants a sheep he will approach a small flock, form them into a circle by trotting around them, and as they surge to and fro, will pick his sheep, kill it by a bite in the throat, suck its blood and leave the carcass. When pursued by hounds he is full of strategy. If there is a brook near at hand he will wade along it for a considerable distance to destroy the scent. When a forsaken brother is hard pressed by hounds a fresh coyote will often appear directly in front of the pack, and lure them off in pursuit of him while the other escapes and recuperates.

"The state of Oregon pays a bounty of two dollars each for the scalps of these beasts and many of the counties pay from three to five dollars, but scalps are hard to take and the treasuries do not suffer. The howl of this beast is wierd and sickening. It usually begins with a series of long whines and ends with a lot of half-human shrieks, that drive terror to the soul.

"But here is a good illustration of the truth in the saying that 'a barking dog seldom bites', for these animals are never known to spill human blood."

GEORGE JONES, Rosebury, Oregon.

Our next letter is from one of the older cousins. She has not visited us for some time, and we gladly welcome her entertaining contribution to our page.

"Among the Crow Indians who have just ceded a large reservation to the Government of the United States, lives the great Chief Plentyques, and not long since he visited the White Father at Washington. That he not only rules the tribe at large, but is also a ruler of the domestic circle, the following incident will show.

"Perhaps some of the cousins know the value of elks' teeth—they readily sell from fifty to seventy-five cents apiece, so that when a member of the 'four hundred' wishes to be very swell indeed she possesses herself of a garment upon which these valuable ornaments are more or less plentifully besprinkled.

"One cold winter day, a traveler from the east was seated inside a store in Billings, Montana. A tall, fine looking specimen of native American came in, followed by his squaw who was gorgeously attired; and thrown around her shoulders, extending to the floor, was a bright cloth mantle covered with elks' teeth, The garment attracted the traveler's fancy. He asked the woman to sell it to him. This she haughtily refused to do. She held her head high, and seemed a proud and mighty dame. A high price was named, and this attracted the great chief's attention. He bade the woman remove the garment; she wept, implored, and prayed. Her lord was inexorable. She kneeled before him, using every art and language she was possessed of to change him from his cruel purpose, but in vain. The insignia of her high estate was removed from her person; the money paid to the great warrior, and the two departed. Towards evening, upon looking out, two forms were noticed wending their homeward way. An Indian woman, bent almost double from the load upon her back, her head down, was wearily toiling along; while a few yards behind, with lofty strides came the 'heap big chief' Plentyques, viewing with complacency the bunches of bright tinware, red blankets, a saddle, ropes, harness, calico, etc., which now adorned the back of his princess instead of the garment of state with which she had entered town in the morning, and of which she was so proud."

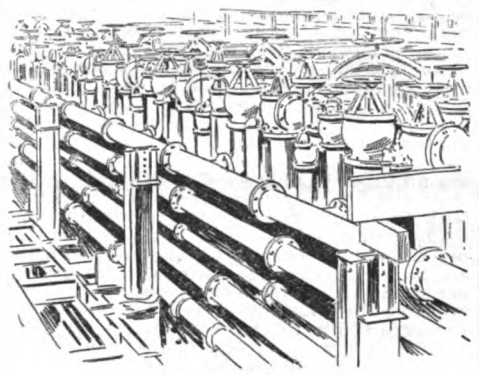
N. M. SAYER, Charleston, Illinois.

Here is a letter from one of our poor shut-in cousins who longs, no doubt, to be out in the busy world, and so writes, hoping to draw whiffs of that same world, in the shape of letters from the cousins, to his shadowed corner. He says:

"It has been a long time now since I 'visited' with you all, and I trust you will all give me a welcome reception while I try to give you a short description of this little village of Butter which is situated in a beautiful valley through which run both the Watauga river and Roan creek, and which is surrounded on all sides by lofty mountains. There are about three hundred inhabitants, all white, six stores, two churches, Baptist and Methodist, one rolling mill, a fine college, and nine months of school terms. Butter is a fairly good farming country, but its nearest railroad is twelve miles away. A new railroad is now being built, however, which will, when finished, pass through the village. We hope to see it in operation this spring.

"Will not the cousins remember me with letters as I am still a helpless shut-in?"

THOMAS J. BUNTON, Butter, Tenn.

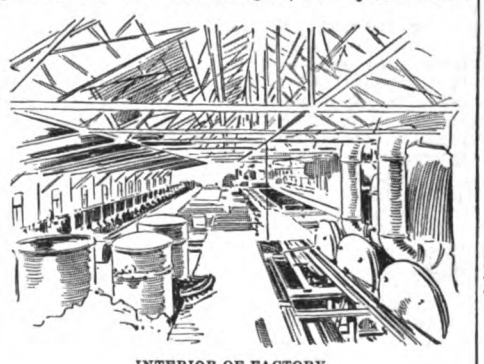


Mrs. V. D. Willison of Iron Hills P. O., Iowa, asks what one must do to get stories accepted. I know of no way to do but to write good stories in clear, terse, correctly spelled English, and then to offer them to such publications as use like stories. She also asks if one can copy from other stories. Never, under any circumstances! Let your stories be absolutely original if you wish to see them accepted and printed.

Next comes an interesting account of the making of beet sugar.

"The beets, when brought in by the farmers, are deposited in large sheds with V-shaped bottoms which are connected with the factory by means of channels through which a moderate flow of water carries the beets into the first washing machine. By means of a spiral they are tumbled about, washed, and carried on until they drop into an elevator which takes them to the top of the building. There they pass through an automatic weigher, and are sliced in such a manner as to open up their pores as much as possible.

"As these slices come from under the cutter they are put into a diffusion battery, of which there are two in the factory, each one having fourteen large cells or jars, holding several tons of the sliced beets, or cossettes as they are called, apiece. In this battery the juice is extracted from the beets by soaking them in warm water, which is turned into the contents of the first jar, and filtering through the mass of cossettes, passes out through a pipe set in the bottom of the jar. This pipe is also connected with the top of the second jar, thus carrying the water, forced along by pressure, into this jar, and thus the liquid is carried from one jar to another until it has passed through the whole fourteen. The water is now turned off and jar number two becomes number one—the first one being emptied of its cossettes, refilled and replaced as number fourteen; and so the work of the different batteries goes on, day and night, without cessation.



"The liquid which is drawn off from the battery and which is of the color of vinegar, is conveyed first to a measuring tank, where impurities are removed by a chemical process, and then to the first filtration station. Thence it goes to saturation tanks, where the process of purification is completed; and it is again sent to the filtration station. After this it is clarified in the sulphur station, and then the filter station, which consists of twenty-six different machines, deals with the liquid for a time, and after this it is ready for the evaporators where begins the process of reducing the liquid to sugar. After a course of evaporation it is again clarified, and is now ready to be boiled down in the vacuum pans. These vacuum pans induce boiling at a much lower temperature than by the ordinary method, and their use materially reduces the cost of the manufacture of sugar. There are three of these pans in the factory, each measuring fifteen feet in diameter and having a capacity of five hundred and fifty barrels of sugar.

BATTERY OF DIFFUSION CELLS.

"Next come the crystalizers, then the mixers, and then the treatment in the centrifugals, which machines are, and must be, beautiful examples of perfect mechanism, because upon the ease and rapidity of their movement depend the success of the process. The thick, boiled down syrup is poured into these centrifugals, and by their swift revolutions the sugar is separated from the syrup and adheres to the sides to the centrifugal; the syrup is drawn off and the sugar transferred to the bins, from whence it is conveyed to the granulators and thoroughly dried. This is the last act in the process of manufacturing, and the sugar is dropped to the ground floor where it is sacked and stored in the sugarhouse ready for sale and shipment."

INTERIOR OF FACTORY.

SIGNORA CRAWFORD, Clifton Forge, Va.

Next comes a description of the home of our cousin in Montezuma, Colorado, which really makes me wish I could ask her to take me as a summer boarder.

"Our home is about six miles below Argentine Pass and about two from Gray's Peak. We are snugly tucked in among the mountains, while the narrow stream known as the Snake river catches the sunbeams as it goes dancing by. Around us on every hand those rocky heights reach heavenward. We can stand in our door any day in the summer and see patches of snow which we can reach by half an hour's climbing. Over one hundred and thirty different varieties of flowers have been found within the radius of a mile. The birds waken us at dawn by their songs. And we always have that God-given right to breath the pure air of heaven; air which is as pure and as fresh as it was in Eden.

"From about the fourth of July until the middle of August we have the rainy season, though of late years it has not amounted to much until this summer. But it only rains a part of each day, and when the rain stops the sky is clear, the sun is bright and everything is lovely. The very air seems full of gladness. There are not many people here and the calm and holy grandeur of our surroundings tend to carry us away from the little trials and perplexities of every day life and to inspire us with thoughts of the Eternal and Changeless One whose care is ever around us.

"The mountains are so high that they appear to pierce the heavens and when we first came here our oldest daughter was barely three years old, and when she noticed a game trail over one of the highest mountains she ran to me exclaiming, 'Oh! mamma, I see the place where the people go to heaven when they die. I see the trail on the mountain.' I suppose to her childish fancy it seemed that departing spirits took that trail and when they reached the summit of the mountain stepped right off into heaven. I fear we shall not reach heaven so easily."

MRS. F. A. MITCHELL, Montezuma, Colorado.

I can sympathize with this little girl's fancy, for I distinctly remember wondering, when I was but little older than she, why people did not build ladders which would carry them into heaven, and so save themselves the long and toilsome work of "being good" in order to get there.

I have several letters from cousins which are either in the nature of advertisements or which ask for exchange of commodities, or which even in one or two cases ask for gifts from our readers. I am sorry to seem disobliging to these correspondents, but our page is not intended for that class of letters, and since our space is very limited I must reserve it for such letters as entertain and instruct my readers.

I have a very interesting personal letter from Mrs. Miller, whose husband was a newspaper correspondent in Cuba at the time of the surrender of Admiral Cervera, and who was an eye-witness of the destruction of Cervera's fleet. She writes of the interest with which both herself and her husband read Ashby Watkin's letter on the Crystobel Colon which appeared on this page in the early part of last winter.

And now I must regretfully say good-bye and lock up the remainder of my budget of letters until next month.

AUNT MINERVA.

A POCKET LUXURY

Is a tortoise shell comb in a neat and fancy case, always handy and useful; good for men, women, school children and the soldiers. We will send one with our great catalogue of thousands of bargains for only six cents. Address, Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

Agents, Perfumes etc. on credit. Big Profit. Express Pd. Terms free. Herbene Co., Box 4, Station L, New York.

WE are giving away Silk Waists for a little work. Address, NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., New Haven, Conn.

A JOB 4 U $8 per 100 paid for distributing samples of washing fluid. Send 6c. stps. A. W. Scott, Cohoes, N. Y.

"CASH For Acceptable Ideas. State if patented." Address THE PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

COE'S ECZEMA CURE $1 at druggists. 25c. box of us. CoeChem. Co., Cleveland, O.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind.

WANTED. Good Agents to sell our preparations. Address Bay State Drug & Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.

FREE Watches, Cameras, Bracelets, etc. Postal for list. Brockstedt's 806 N. B'way, St. Louis.

LADIES WANTED to take up stamping at home We pay 10 cents an hour while earning. H. F. JONES, Dept. I, Brooklyn, N. Y.

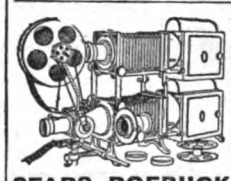
PLAYS Dialogues, Speakers, Amusement Books. Catalog free. T. S. DENISON, Publisher, Dept. 8, CHICAGO.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

A WALTHAM WATCH CHEAP.
A MAN ON THE INSIDE will give confidential wholesale prices. BOX 184, Waltham, Mass.

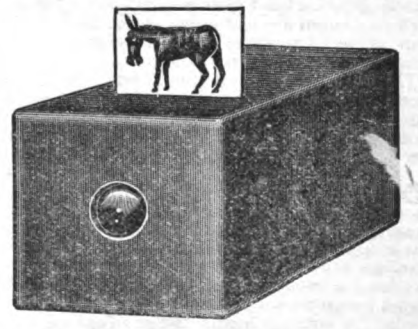
PEASE PAYS EXPENSES and $75 per month. Steady position; self-seller; no experience needed. Send 2c for contract. PEASE MFG. Co., Cincinnati, O., Dept. 32.

WE PAY $18 A WEEK and Expenses to men with rigs to introduce our POULTRY COMPOUND. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. Co., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.



SPANISH NEEDLES, GOLD-ometers, etc., for gold hunters and treasure seekers. Latest improved. Circulars 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

LEARN A PROFESSION in 10 days that will net you $25 a day the rest of your life. Ladies or gentlemen. Address with stamp. PROF. S. A. WELTMER, Nevada, Mo.



A HANDSOME MUSTACHE or fine beard grown on the smoothest face in 3 weeks, or money refunded. Baldness cured at once. Our TURKISH HAIR GROWER does it. We warrant every package. Avoid dangerous humbugs, get the genuine direct, 25 cents, 3 for 50c. by mail. Address, TREMONT MANF'G CO., Sta. A, BOSTON, MASS.

MOVING PICTURE
And other Complete Public Exhibition Outfits for $23.75, $54.50 and up.
$5.00 to $100.00 PER DAY (without experience) is being made by hundreds. We furnish complete Outfits, Instruction Book, Advertising matter, big posters, tickets, etc. For full particulars address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

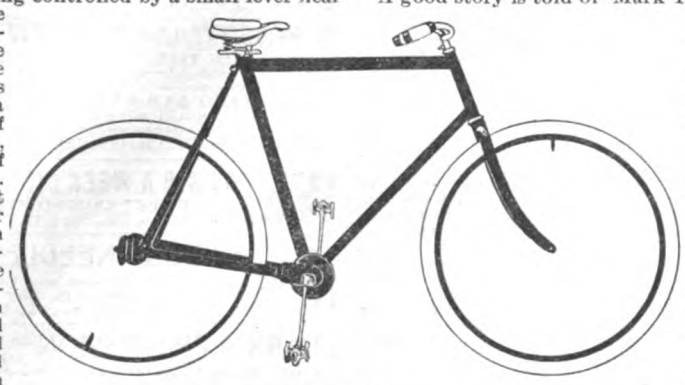
YOU CAN CARRY IT IN YOUR POCKET.

ALWAYS READY CAMERA.
Produces a picture and surprise at the same time. It cannot be told from a $3.00 camera, once in your hands, and you will carry it with you at all times. Every friend you meet will enjoy the joke. The mere touch of a spring in the back raises to view a donkey, lobster, stag, clown or donkey's head. Send us 14 cents for a three months' trial subscription and have a Camera by return mail. FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

SOMEBODY wants to know what good is accomplished by the "Cycle Shows" that are now held annually in all the large cities. In the first place they promote sociability by bringing together wheelmen from all parts of the country and making them acquainted with each other. When a cycle-show is held in the United States, promoters and exhibitors do all in their power to make it attractive to the general public. The manufacturers and dealers meet, do business and exchange ideas, but at the same time the people are by no means forgotten; information is gladly given them; they circulate freely throughout the show and have every opportunity to compare the various makes of cycles and sundries.

There is no greater stimulus to the bicyle trade than the Cycle Show.



According to a veteran road rider the best way to clean a chain is to give it a good soaking over-night in a pan of paraffine or kerosene. Then the links should be worked one by one to rub out any of the clinging dirt. Next a thin lubricating oil should be applied to the links, and after the first ride with the chain so lubricated the most satisfactory thing to apply (of course, sparingly) is a mixture of tallow and black lead. This is rather messy to prepare, but a pot of it will last for years. The tallow keeps the chain easy and the black lead makes it run smoothly. He said he was not a believer in the thin lubricating oils that are frequently offered for sale. They are all right for machines to be used on the racing track, but lack substance for the machine of the ordinary rider.

Col. Pope attributes the growing popularity of the chainless wheel to the fact that it is the easiest running, best protected and most satisfactory gear ever applied to a bicycle. "We have yet to receive the first complaint or adverse criticism from a purchaser of a chainless. On the contrary," says he, "we have a sufficient number of enthusiastic testimonials to fill the biggest scrapbook on earth. Any man or woman who has purchased a chainless wheel will never go back to the chain type. We know this because they tell us so."

The Orient chainless has a Sager gear. This Sager gear is a rotary gear, that is, the teeth are not cut, but are made upon a pin about which they revolve. That is, the wheel gear is so mounted. The shaft gear is cut and rigid. It is claimed that this gear is an improvement on the bevel gear, in that it reduces the friction.

The first chainless wheels have now been ridden nearly 50,000 miles, and like wine, they improve with age, their mechanism showing no perceptible wear.

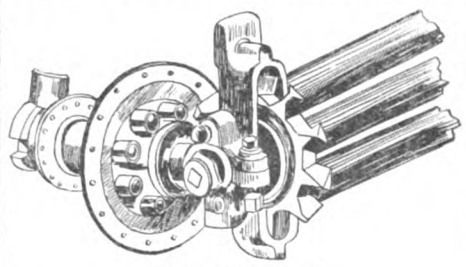
A new motor to be attached to any bicycle is so narrow that it goes into the frame of a bicycle and does not interfere with the use of the pedals. It weighs twenty pounds, and the other attachments weigh about five pounds. It has a speed of six to twenty miles an hour, the same being controlled by a small lever near the handle bar or a button in the end of the bar. It is started by a few turns of the pedals, and a turn of the lever. Sufficient gasolene for a day's run can be carried. The motor is finished in nickle and enamel and can be used either with or without the outside case.

A NEW CHAINLESS.

A new English cyclist's boot is provided with a flap on the inner side of the upper which can be turned up to keep the trousers away from the pedals.

To adapt a new English bicycle to riders of either sex the top bar is hinged at the head and connected by a screw socket to either the portion of the frame under the saddle or a brace near the crank hanger.

Over $2,000,000 has been spent by the State of Massachusetts in the building of improved highways. All of this vast sum has been secured from the legislature through the efforts of the League of American Wheelmen and every wheelman riding over them is indebted to the League for his pleasure, yet a large majority of them are not members of the organization which they could assist so materially in this and other lines of work.



The English Government has been experimenting with motor cycles in modern warfare. One British firm has already shipped fifteen motor cycles to the Transvaal. These machines are used for scouting purposes. But unless they have been muffled they will make noise enough to announce their approach to the enemy a long distance. Most of the motor cycles used in this country last year for pacing purposes made a noise not unlike a continuous discharge of firecrackers. The machines sent to South Africa are said to be capable of going about twenty-two miles an hour over ordinary roads. A young Cambridge graduate is having an armored motor built which will be fitted with a rapid fire gun capable of firing five hundred rounds a minute.

An enterprising English firm builds to order houses for automobiles. They are portable houses, of light construction, quickly erected at any point, and have a neat appearing exterior. For a small runabout a house 6 by 8 feet has been designed. The sides are panelled and the interior lined with felt. The floor is raised slightly from the ground, and a hinged board at the door, turned in when the door is closed, forms an incline to run the automobile on.

"The style of modern riding is much more suitable to hill climbing than the old-fashioned and ungainly methods," said an old rider recently. "There is one golden rule in getting up slopes which should be remembered by all riders, especially those whose hearts are inclined to go pit a pat, and that is to keep the mouth shut. So long as you are breathing easily and well without gasping you are safe enough, and may continue, but if the exertion is violent enough to force you to inhale wind between your teeth, hop off and walk."

One of the highest geared bicycles ever constructed is said to have been built lately in New York for racing purposes at the forthcoming Paris Exhibition. The front sprocket contains sixty teeth and the rear sprocket seven teeth, giving a gear of two hundred and forty. To ride a mile in a minute on this gear the rider will have to make only one revolution every three-quarters of a second, or eighty revolutions in the minute.

Several rules for finding the gear of a bicycle have been published here but the following, going the rounds of the press, presents still another method: "First you count the teeth on the front sprocket; then you forget and count them over again. Then you go through the same motions with the rear sprocket. Between first and second counts you scratch your head, repeat over a few well-learned incantations, and cudgel your brain back into the problem. By the time you have done examining the teeth of the rear sprocket, and find that your steely steed is of age, you forget for the second time the number of masticators on the front one. Then you go over the figures again, both front and rear; try to remember them while you think of the next step in the process, throw your cap on the road, slam the machine up against the fence, bend the handle bar, and divide by seven eleventhe. Then multiply the diameter of the rear tire by the number of links in the chain, divide by three, add the number of spokes in the front wheel, subtract ten, add eleven, kick off a crank, multiply by sixteen, and go rushing down the road stark, staring mad."

THE SAGER GEAR.

A good story is told of Mark Twain and his friend the Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell of Hartford, Conn. It seems that they once planned a bicycle trip from that city to Boston, and so notified a friend who lived at the "Hub." The appointed day was an ideal one for a long run, and the two friends started quite early in the morning. But neither of them were accustomed to long rides, so after twelve or fifteen miles had been ridden, it became apparent that each of the riders was waiting for the other to say something. Finally Twain said as they came in sight of the railway station in a small town they had entered: "Let's take the train the rest of the way."

Of course Mr. Twitchell agreed, and so the acquaintance in Boston was surprised by seeing the two friends walk up to his door about one o'clock in the afternoon. He greeted them warmly, and addressing Mr. Twitchell, said, "Well, you made pretty good time, didn't you?"

"O, fairly good time for novices," was the reply.

"What time did you leave Hartford?" he asked of Mr. Clemens.

"About 7 A. M."

"What, you don't mean to say that you have ridden all the way from Hartford to Boston on your bicycles?"

"No," replied Mark Twain, "but we rode far enough to demonstrate that it could be done."

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

MIXED PAINTS 45c. We sell Ready Mixed Paints, all colors. Guaranteed highest grade made at 45 cents and up per gallon. For our handsome color card, full particulars and our easy pay-after-received terms, CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

1900 YOU CAN EASILY and Quickly Earn a Bicycle, Ladies' Jacket,

Cape, Shoes, Dress Skirt, Dinner Set, Sewing Machine, Furniture, Watch, Camera, Gun, etc. by selling a few boxes of our high-grade Toilet Soap to your friends and neighbors. It sells on its merits.

SAMPLES FREE

NO MONEY REQUIRED IN ADVANCE.

We have the best plan for Boys, Girls and Women. Our premiums are absolutely the best. Large illustrated list of premiums including Ladies' and Children's Clothing, Mackintoshes, Guitars, Mandolins, etc., mailed FREE. Write to-day for full particulars.
DAWSON SOAP CO., 56-58 FIFTH AVE., DEPT. 72, CHICAGO, ILL.

PECULIAR COINCIDENCES.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

GOING through the records at the United States Patent Office one is struck by the curious, not to say amusing, coincidences which often occur between the names of the patentees and their patents. Such coincidences are often to be found, it is true, in business circles, between the name of the merchant and the business which he carries on; but here, where so many thousands of records are gathered together, the number of cases in which the name of the worker is appropriate to his business or his invention is far more noticeable than elsewhere.

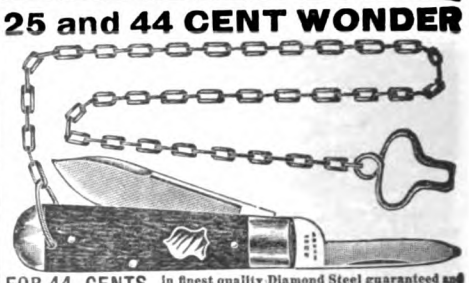
For instance, Messrs. Blizzard, Fairweather, Thunderbolt and Rein have taken out patents for improvements in weather devices. Mr. Snow has patented a sleigh, while Mr. Cutter has an improved runner for Mr. Snow's sleigh. Later Mr. Cutter took out a patent for an ice-cutter. Mr. Break has a patent for a break-shoe, Mr. Buck for a new species of buckle, and Mr. Jack for a bootjack. Mr. G. P. Gunn has invented a breech-loading rifle, while Mr. Candy, doubtless inspired by his name, invented some candy tablets.

Mr. Drybread has on record at the Patent Office a new brand of wheat flour, which, if his name is any advertisement of his wares, must sell very poorly. Mr. Braiser invented a stone firepot and stoker, while Mr. Bolt has a patent for a combination lock. Mr. McTamanny has a novel voting machine, Mr. Horse has gone into the racing business and invented a fast-driving rein, and Mr. Larson has a patent burglar alarm.

Mr. Husbands, who, by the way, is unmarried, has perfected a baby jumper, while Mr. Girl has patented a baby-walker. Mr. Carr has a patent for a car-mover, and Mr. Gatewood has a novel gate on the market. Mr. Daubenspeck has a washing machine, Mr. Mustard an improved spicebox, Sticky a delectable molasses candy, and Ring a new kind of curtain ring. Mr. Flour casts on the world a new flour bin, while Mr. Duckering has a model incubator, and Mr. Turnipseed a new fertilizer. Mr. Corn follows with a new cornhusker, and Mr. Wheelwright with a patent wheel. Mr. Split has a device for sealing splits in punctured wheels, and Mr. Wax has another for the same purpose.

Mr. Penman has originated an eraser, and Mr. Pencil a notebook, Mr. Sober a barrel tap, and Mr. Blaze a fire extinguisher.

These are only a few of the many cases on record in this big United States curiosity shop, in which the name of the inventor and that of his invention seemingly fit each other exceedingly well, but time and space would fail long before we should reach the end of the list, so we will not longer tax the patience of the reader.



ASTHMA

FREE. If you suffer from any form of Asthma we want to send you free by mail, prepaid, a Bottle of the famous Kola Plant Compound. It is Nature's Sure Botanic Cure for the disease, and we guarantee that it will forever stop all your suffering. We are sending out 50,000 Bottles free by mail to Sufferers, to prove the wonderful power of this New Discovery, and we will be pleased to send one to you. Send your name and address by postal card or letter.
Address, The KOLA IMPORTING CO., No. 1164 Broadway, New York

SONGS WILL ROSSITER'S LATEST Book, 125 songs. "Girl I Loved in Sunny Tennessee," "Green Fields of Virginia," "One Night in June," "Break the News to Mother," "Baggage Coach Ahead," "Cruel Ring," "Can't my was Good to Me," "Dying Girl's Request," "Better Than Gold," complete piano or organ Music, "You can't repay your Mother," all for 10 cents. Address WILL ROSSITER, "the LARGEST SONG BOOK Publisher in the World." 56 - 5th Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CLAIRVOYANCE free. If sick, Send Now—your name, age, sex, lock of hair, and 2 stamps, to DR. D. HINKLY, X 10, Grand Rapids, Mich.

25 and 44 CENT WONDER

FOR 44 CENTS In finest quality Diamond Steel guaranteed and full finished, 25 cents in second quality.
WE FURNISH THIS NEW 1900 SECURITY TWO BLADE STAG HANDLE KNIFE, 3¼-inch handle, 6⅜-inch open, 18-inch full finished security chain.
CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us with 25 or 44 cents and 5 cents extra for postage, and we will send either knife to you by return mail, postpaid, and if you do not find it equal to any knife you could buy elsewhere at double the price, say so and we will immediately return your money.
Write for free catalogue of Knives, Razors and other Cutlery.
Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

CLEARING SALE

6000 new '99 model Bicycles carried over must be SACRIFICED AT ONCE. $11.75
SECOND-HAND wheels, good as new, over 50 makes and models $3 TO $10
Swell 1900 Models, $11 TO $20
HIGHEST GRADE GUARANTEED.
WE SHIP TO ANY ONE ON APPROVAL AND TRIAL BEFORE PAYMENT.
One RIDER AGENT in each town can obtain FREE USE of sample wheel to ride and exhibit. Write for ART CATALOGUE, BARGAIN LIST AND OUR SPECIAL OFFER.
MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept, B.O. Chicago.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once.
ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74. DETROIT, MICH.

We are giving away Telescopes, Cameras & many other premiums, to boys and girls, for selling two doz. 18k. Rolled Gold Collar Buttons at 5c each. Send us your address and we will forward you post-paid two doz. buttons. When sold send us $1.20 and we will send you your premium.
HENRY BUTTON CO., DEPT. 89, CHICAGO.

A Pencil That Will Think For You.

The Great Profit Maker of the Century.

All Problems Solved. Short Cut to Results. A Quick Sum Total. No Mistakes Possible With Sunshine's Calculating Pencil.

Here is the only reliable never-failing standby. It is the neatest educational novelty of the day. This pencil is a marvel of ingenious mechanism, and a great profit maker for agents.

You will hardly believe that this pencil can figure quicker and more accurately than you can. It will calculate anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twinkle of an eye. It gives you 144 combinations and is absolutely correct. It can't make mistakes. It is made of pure Aluminum and attached to a Faber Pencil. Fits any ordinary pencil. It has a good eraser. It protects your pencil point. It is a pencil lengthener and stays in your pocket.

Let Sunshine's Calculating Pencil do your figuring and give your head a rest. A sleepy man will get more accurate results with its aid than a wide awake calculator could get without it. Simply and solidly made. Interesting and instructive to everyone. You can't think half as quickly and accurately as this pencil does it for you. Teaches children more in one hour than they learn in a week in any other way. Simple as a clothespin to manipulate, a child can learn to work it in five minutes, it never blunders, is easy to see through. Tell your friends and teachers about this wonderful device, it's the greatest educational novelty out. Interests dull pupils as well as bright ones. Creates enthusiasm in mental calculation and helps in the most difficult subject with which both teacher and pupil have to deal. We send full directions with each pencil so you can get it ready to work as quick and easy as you open a jackknife. You can multiply quicker than an expert, a lightning calculator. Get one to-day.

By a Twist of the Wrist this Little Wonder Solves all Mathematical Problems as Quick as a Wink.

It is especially recommended to young people starting in business life and to those with neglected education. Even the Indian office of the U. S. Government has recognized its educational merits and recommended that the superintendents of all Indian schools be supplied with samples.

SPECIAL OFFER. These Calculating Pencils sell for 25c. each, but we are anxious to show you how wonderful they are so will send one free to all who enclose 15c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great monthly; two pencils and a year's subscription for only 25c. Thousands are sold by agents. Six pencils for 60c., twelve for one dollar, all charges paid by us. One hundred for $7.50, express not paid. Address SUNSHINE, Box L, Augusta, Maine.

RHEUMATISM IS DEAD!

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy for Rheumatism and it made a record of absolute cures in Acute Rheumatism, frequently called rheumatic fever, Pericarditis (inflammation of the investing membrane of the heart), Endocarditis (inflammation of the living membrane of the heart), subacute rheumatism, sometimes applied to the less severe attacks of the disease, chronic rheumatism, which swells and twists the joints and sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. In fact Oxien is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism in any form. Thousands jump for joy and many write as follows:

Received OXIEN O. K Found it far superior to what you represent. Have tried everything I could hear of for rheumatism. For ten years I have been crippled up with this terrible disease Laid in bed one whole year. Could not turn or feed myself and when I was able to walk on crutches (which I did for four years) was crooked and unable to straighten up, but Oxien did it and you can imagine how happy I am now. Yours sincerely, Geo F. Lawton, Olympia, Wash., Feby. 9th, 1898.

FREE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE. This momentous offer we make in order to more thoroughly introduce this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us their word that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered entitled to free treatment. Therefore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.
THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

IN BANANA LAND.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

I WONDER how many of the boys and girls who may read this article know that the banana tree throws up its first green shoot, grows into a tree of full size, bears a single bunch of fruit, dies and is cut down all within a year? Thus brief is the life of the banana tree. The culture of the banana and the harvesting of the fruit for the market is a very interesting process to those who visit the tropics where the banana reaches the highest state of perfection. By far the greater part of the bananas shipped to America come from the West Indies, and the island of Jamaica is wonderfully productive of this fruit. Thousands of bunches of bananas are shipped to the United States from Jamaica every year, and the cultivation of the fruit is now the chief industry of that island of about six hundred thousand inhabitants. This island once so famous for the production of rum and sugar is now given over almost wholly to the cultivation of bananas, cocoanuts, oranges, lemons, and many kinds of tropical fruits never seen in America because they are too perishable to ship so far. The banana, as you may know, is cut from the tree when green and it ripens while enroute to America or after its arrival here. It is never allowed to ripen on the trees for if it were it could not be shipped at all.

The cultivation of the banana is very simple. The trees are grown in regular rows just as corn is grown in America. The rows are about fifteen feet apart, and the trees stand within about fifteen feet of each other in the rows. Holes a foot or more deep are dug in the rows and a banana sucker, or root, is put into this hole and covered entirely over with soil. In about a month a pale green shoot quite like a blade of corn comes peeping through the soil. This is speedily followed by more green shoots until there is a little circle of them which is called the "banana mat." Not all of these green shoots are allowed to live. All but three or four of them are cut away just as the American farmer would cut away some of the stalks of corn if there should happen to come three or four dozen stalks in a hill.

The banana field must be kept free from weeds, and the natives are constantly at work with the hoe or the machete clearing out the weeds which are naturally very abundant in a tropical climate. The machete is used far more than the hoe. Indeed, the machete seems to be the one tool of the common laborer in the West Indies. It is a sort of a cutlass or knife from fifteen inches to two feet in length and from two to three inches in width with a wooden or perhaps a horn handle. (See initial.) The native of Jamaica makes it serve purposes for which the American would never think of using it, and it is the only tool most of the natives ever use in the cultivation of the banana. When weeding with it the laborer must kneel on the ground and thrust the long blade under the roots of the weeds in order to pull the weed up. It is a slower and harder process than would be necessary with the hoe, but the black man of Jamaica does not take kindly to innovations and the machete of his father and of his grandfathers is good enough for him. Moreover, he is not in the slightest hurry to get his work done. The natives of tropical climates know not the meaning of the word "hurry." Nothing could induce them to "hustle," and it is estimated that it requires three of them to do the work that one man in America would do in a day.

The banana tree grows with such wonderful rapidity that it generally attains its full size within a year. It is then about twenty-five feet high while its leaves sometimes attain a length of fifteen feet and are nearly three feet in width.

The leaves are so brittle that they soon become shredded by the wind and the tree presents rather a ragged appearance. After twelve or fifteen of the large leaves have appeared a small leaf rises above them as the forerunner of the blossom of the banana tree. The blossom is very large and of a dark plum color. It does not unfold into a flower, but after a few days its stalk begins to bend over toward the ground and its leaves begin to drop off and the tiny green fruit begins to form.

A somewhat singular thing is the fact that the ends of the bananas not attached to the stalk point upward when the bunch is on the tree and not downward as when the fruit is seen hanging in the American markets. In harvesting the fruit the man who is to gather it takes his machete and cuts a gash in the tree as far up as he can reach. This causes the upper part of the tree with the heavy bunch of bananas on it to drop downward until the man can easily reach the bunch of fruit which he severs from the tree with a single blow of his machete. The fruit is then lifted into a cart drawn by a mule and carried to the wharf to be shipped to American or English ports. There is no regular season for the production of the banana although they are more abundant some months than others. But one may see bananas being harvested any month of the year in the tropics.

The loading of banana boats is an interesting sight. At many ports the boats are loaded entirely by the black women of the island. Hundreds of them assemble at the wharves where the boats are to be loaded. All of them are barefooted and they are ragged beyond belief. They form in long lines and march up the gang plank with great bunches of bananas on their heads. Indeed, they carry everything on their heads. They are for the most part small women and it is surprising to see them stand perfectly erect while a bunch of bananas weighing perhaps eighty or one hundred pounds is flung upon their heads by two men. They march away under this burden perfectly erect and with no indication that it is any great strain on them to carry such a weight. They are paid twenty-five cents for every hundred bunches of bananas they carry on the boat, and as they cannot get employment more than two or three days in a week their earnings are very small. Fortunately for them their wants are simple. They live in little bamboo huts with thatched roofs, and live chiefly on the tropical fruits growing in such abundance around them. They are, however, inordinately fond of dress, and most of their small earnings are spent for cheaply gorgeous clothing and gewgaws of every sort. They have the fondness of the average negro for bright colors, and they present a truly gorgeous appearance when they fare forth in their "Sunday best." One would not recognize them as the barefooted, dirty and fearfully bedraggled creatures who load the banana boats or work in the fields on other days. They will spend the profits of days of labor for a showy silk parasol or a pair of white kid shoes or gorgeous hat.

A BANANA GROWER'S HOME.

BANANA WOMEN OF JAMAICA.

The visitor to a tropical country will find much that is interesting, while the vegetation is very beautiful, but he will be very likely to come to the conclusion after a sojourn of a few weeks in the tropics, that his native land is best, and that it is more delightful to visit a tropical country than it is to make it his permanent abode.

80 Square Inches Crazy Patchwork FREE.

Our Bargain book of valuable presents and a skein of embroidery silk will be sent you, together with a lot of new and pretty silk pieces that will make over eighty square inches of crazy quilt or sofa pillow. Send six cents for a three months' subscription and we will send above, together with diagram showing latest fancy stitches. Also tells how to get a larger lot of silk and satin pieces free. Address, FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

NEW CURE FOR FITS

THAT NEVER FAILS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Fits, Spasms, Spells, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus's Dance, &c., have children, relatives, friends or neighbors that do so, or know people that are afflicted, my New Treatment will immediately relieve and PERMANENTLY CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE Bottle and try it. Sent in plain package and express prepaid. It has CURED thousands where everything else failed. My 90-page Illustrated Book, "Epilepsy Explained," FREE by mail. When writing, please give name, AGE and express and postoffice address. All correspondence professionally confidential.

W. H. MAY, M. D.

MAY LABORATORY, 94 Pine St., New York City

AR O ON PY TN

$1000 FREE

Can you arrange these fourteen jumbled letters so that they will form a title to one of the best story papers in the land? IF SO YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE $1000 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. In arranging the letters use them only as many times as they appear and no letter can be used which does not appear. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the best NEW YORK STORY MAGAZINES into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. Send your solution to us plainly written on a postal card with your address in full and you will hear from us by RETURN MAIL. STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1000. A copy of this celebrated NEW YORK MONTHLY MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to every one answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer immediately. Address THE PARAGON PUBLISHING CO., 22 North William Street, New York City.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT., Augusta, Maine.

SEND NO MONEY

WE ASK NO MONEY until you have examined the Bicycle and convinced yourself it is such a Bicycle as was never before offered at anything like the price . . .

WRITE FOR FREE BICYCLE CATALOGUE.

THE above illustration, engraved from a photograph, shows our new 1900 MODEL FLUSH JOINT ACME PRINCE BICYCLE. Every bicycle will be exactly as shown in illustration, with the exception of the sprockets which come in a variety of patterns, and the handle bars which are furnished in either up or down turn, as desired. The $13.75 1900 Model Acme Jewel also differs from the above only in a variety of patterns of sprocket, and comes with outside joint connections. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

OUR ACME JEWEL AND ACME PRINCE are made for us under contract BY ONE OF THE BEST BICYCLE MAKERS IN AMERICA, made from the best material that money can buy, made on the very latest lines, the newest models for 1900. THE ACME PRINCE AT $14.75 embodies every up-to-date feature of every high grade bicycle, everything the very best, including flush joints throughout, the very latest style two-piece hanger, strictly high grade equipment, A HIGH GRADE 1900 WHEEL.

OUR ACME JEWEL AND ACME PRINCE AT $13.75 AND $14.75 are built on the latest lines for the season of 1900. They have the very latest diamond frame in the gents'; the very latest handsome curved drop frame in the ladies'. They come in either 22 or 24-inch, as desired. The frame is made from the very finest 1⅛-inch cold-drawn seamless tubing. The Acme Prince at $14.75 is flush at every joint, the connections are all of the finest steel stampings, handsomely finished. Has the very latest style arched crown, handsomely curved, shaped and finished; handsome tapering fork, beautifully finished. The wheels are the highest grade 28-inch, fitted with genuine Hercules spokes, full finished, The very best selected air seasoned rock elm rims are used. They have the genuine Wilmar large sized hubs made from bar steel, heavily nickel plated. The cranks are made from the finest forgings, the bearings are made from tool steel hardened in oil, accurately trued to gauge, beautifully finished and practically non-destructible. The sprockets are made from selected forgings, heavily nickel plated and they come in a variety of beautiful patterns. We furnish with these bicycles at $13.75 and $14.75 our own special high grade, season guaranteed, Seroco single tube pneumatic tire, one of the highest grade tires made, complete with tire repair outfit. The bicycle is fully equipped with high grade chain, high grade ball bearing adjustable pedals, full padded saddle, up or down turned handle bars, tool bag, pump, wrench, oiler and tire repair kit. The bicycles are beautifully finished, handsomely decorated and ornamented. They come in either black, green or maroon. All usual parts are heavily nickel plated on copper.

DON'T DELAY YOUR ORDER A DAY OUR SPECIAL $13.75 AND $14.75 PRICES HOLD GOOD ONLY UNTIL OUR PRESENT STOCK IS DISPOSED OF. Address,

CUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT OUT AND SEND TO US mention Special Offer No. 10, SEND NO MONEY, say whether you wish gent's or ladies' bicycle, black, green or maroon color, whether 22 or 24-inch frame, whether our ACME JEWEL, outside joint, at $13.75, or our ACME PRINCE, flush joint, two-piece hanger bicycle, exactly as illustrated, at $14.75, and we will send the bicycle to your nearest railroad station by express or freight C.O.D., subject to examination. YOU CAN EXAMINE IT THOROUGHLY, call in any bicycle expert to examine it, and if not pronounced a strictly high grade 1900 model bicycle, the GREATEST BICYCLE BARGAIN EVER SEEN, the equal of bicycles that retail in your town at $25.00 to $40.00, far better than bicycles that are being widely advertised at $18.00 to $25.00; if you are convinced you are getting such a bicycle as you could not get elsewhere at anything like the price pay your railroad agent OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE $13.75 for the Acme Jewel, or . . . . $14.75 for our Acme Prince, exactly as illustrated, and freight or express charges, which will average about 50 to 75 cents for each 500 miles.

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL After you pay the railroad agent our special price of $13.75 or $14.75, give the bicycle ten days' trial, during which time compare it with other bicycles that sell at double the price, and if you are not still satisfied that you have saved money and that it is the greatest bicycle value ever furnished, you can return it to us at our expense of freight or express charges both ways, and WE WILL IMMEDIATELY RETURN YOUR MONEY.

OUR CHALLENGE OFFER Order this our 1900 Bicycle at $13.75 or $14.75 and you can then order a bicycle from any other house or houses advertised in this or any other paper, let the different bicycles come to your railroad station to be examined; examine and compare them side by side, and if our bicycle is not pronounced by everyone at least $5.00 cheaper and $10.00 better, you can return it to us at our expense.

YOU CAN MAKE $500.00 BETWEEN NOW AND FALL taking orders for our Acme Jewel and Acme Prince AT A PROFIT OF $5.00 TO $10.00 ON A WHEEL. Order the Acme Jewel at $13.75, or the Acme Prince at $14.75, and you can sell it the day you get it at $18.00 to $25.00 and then order another. Continue this work during the season and you can sell from fifty to one hundred bicycles, underselling every dealer in your section and make for yourself at least $500.00.

OUR BINDING GUARANTEE AT $13.75 and $14.75 our Acme Jewel and Acme Prince are covered by a WRITTEN, BINDING ONE-YEAR GUARANTEE, (which accompanies every bicycle), by the terms and conditions of which, if any piece or part gives out within one year by reason of defect in material or workmanship, we will replace or repair it free of charge.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR ABOUT OUR BICYCLES Last year we sold nearly 50,000 bicycles. At least a number of our wheels went into every community. Some of your neighbors are riding our wheels. Ask them if they found the bicycle they bought of us last year perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented and much cheaper than they could buy elsewhere. Consider that our wheels have been greatly improved and our price has been reduced to $13.75 and $14.75. IF YOU HAVE ANY DOUBT ABOUT OUR ABILITY to furnish you a better wheel for less money than you can buy from any other house in Chicago, write to some friend in Chicago and ask them to come and examine our wheels, and then examine the wheels offered by other houses, and if they don't write you that we can SAVE YOU FROM $5.00 TO $20.00 on a bicycle, we will not expect your order. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

AS TO OUR RELIABILITY we refer to the City National Bank and German Exchange Bank of New York, the Metropolitan National Bank or Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago, any railroad company, business house or resident of Chicago AND TO OUR THOUSANDS OF CUSTOMERS IN EVERY STATE IN THE UNION.

DO NOT ORDER THIS BICYCLE unless you expect to accept it and pay the railroad agent our special offer price of $13.75 or $14.75 and freight charges when received if you find it exactly as represented, perfectly satisfactory, a far better wheel for the money than you could possibly get elsewhere. We are anxious to receive your order; we know we can save you money and we only want to hear from those who are ordering in good faith, who mean business and who understand that $13.75 and freight charges must be paid to the railroad agent before they can receive the bicycle. The railroad agent will not deliver this bicycle to you until you have paid him our special offer price, but we will return your $13.75 or $14.75 and all railroad charges if at any time within ten days you become dissatisfied for any cause whatsoever and you return the bicycle to us.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (INC.) CHEAPEST SUPPLY HOUSE ON EARTH, CHICAGO

COMFORT

THE KEY TO

A Million and a Quarter Homes

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World

Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 50c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Guaranteed Circulation:

ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

Decoration Day has a new and added significance in the last two years. Time had softened the sorrow of those for whose dead the day was set aside. It had become a day of sad and tender memories. Now its flowers can but cover the fresh brown earth on the graves of these latest ones who have died for the Union. The pain is too sharp and too new to admit of words. The nation is brought face to face with the keen sense of individual and personal loss. We may speak of the bravery in after years; now we can only drop the flowers silently.

The Shah of Persia is to set out upon his travels during the latter part of this month. He will make a short stay in Moscow, a longer one in St. Petersburg and then visit Berlin. The Paris Exposition is the next point and then England. He returns by way of Vienna and Constantinople. Students of Eastern affairs read a political signification in this seeming pleasure trip. The comparatively long stay in Russia with the after visit in Turkey suggests to some that Russia means to force Turkey into some concessions in regard to Eastern Asia Minor.

The Rev. Mr. Sheldon's newspaper venture has made more discussion than any "newspaper doings" in the history of printing. Professional newspaper men have gravely discussed the difference between "news" and "information." The result of the symposium seems to be that information is news old enough to have been crystalized into truth. When news lives to attain its majority it becomes information and in a few years history. Mr. Sheldon, therefore, could hardly be said to have published a newspaper—rather it was a bureau of information. His leading articles were either essays or information. The old struggle between the practical and the ideal was supposed to have a revival in this paper. However, but few people could bring themselves to say that this was an ideal newspaper and no one believed that it was practical.

COMFORT urged the establishment of "school gardens" more than a year ago and outlined the plan of their use as shown in the school gardens of Germany. They are as much a part of the regular instruction there as text books are in our schools. The rural schools might seem to have less use for these gardens than the schools of the town or city, but as a matter of fact they have quite as great a need of the systematic botanical instructions as city schools and for very practical reasons. Many of the pupils attending the rural schools will become farmers and all instruction in plant life has a practical as well as an ethical and educational value to them. The pupil of the city school may never make practical use of the knowledge but it has a part in his mental and moral development. The idea is new in this country but it is bound to grow. The United States Department of Agriculture now publishes a pamphlet upon the subject of School Gardens. COMFORT trusts that its pioneer work in endeavoring to interest the people in this idea may induce its readers to send for the pamphlet and make practical application of the suggestions contained.

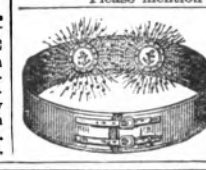
A new thing under the sun is to be developed in New York. At least the idea in the completeness that is to be given it is new. This is the Hall of Fame. A sum of money has been given to Columbia College to build a lofty colonnade hall to connect two of the large buildings of the University. One hundred and fifty panels are to be placed there, inscribed with the names of men worthy of a record. The first fifty names are to be inscribed at once and new names added at regular intervals. It is suggested that members of the American Historical Association be the ones placed upon this committee. Statues, busts and inscriptions may be added. It will be interesting to note what names are among the first fifty selected. Already the "unquiet sex" has made its claim to a share and a place in the Hall of Fame. It is more than hinted that the donor of the money is Miss Helen Gould. No doubt an analysis of the lives of many of the men whose names will be preserved on the honor rolls of the Hall would show some woman's influence and inspiration as a means to success. It would seem that there should be no adverse opinions as to woman's right and claim in the Hall of Fame.

New England, with its old traditions of culture and education, is sometimes lacking in a sense of humor. It is doubtful if an intense serious person occupied in inventing religions or discussing soul problems can have a sense of humor, or even if the Puritans tap root could produce so delicate a flower. A Yale professor stated that ninety per cent. of the marriages of the country were unhappy. Forthwith the air buzzed with the protests and explanations and deductions of people who felt that this was a subject that they knew something about. On top of this comes the grave statement that the legislature of Massachusetts plans to frame a law that shall make it necessary for any man who wishes to marry out of the state to procure a special permit. All this evidently with minds kindly concerned as to the fate of the seventy thousand unappropriated blessings of the state. The statement of the professor and the action of the legislature make a strange combination. It may be that the learned legislature found some relation between the ninety per cent. who find marriage a failure and the evident tendency to bring "imported" brides into the country. They seem to forget that the power to regulate imports and exports rests with Congress but would even be unconstitutional in order to be locally gallant.

The World's Conference of Missionaries has just found its sessions in New York. It is the first time that this great body consisting of over two thousand delegates has met in the United States. It represents all organized forms and fields of missionary work. The American Board of Foreign Missions of Boston is the oldest of the organizations in the United States. No gathering presents the peculiar features of interest that this body does. Aside and apart from its religious work it contributes largely to the sum of geographical and historical knowledge. Its delegates have penetrated portions of the globe unknown to white men. They have the most accurate knowledge of the customs, habits, modes of thinking and living among savage and semi-barbarous nations. A compilation of their observations would make a most valuable contribution to folk lore. The man or woman who lives among "strange people" as one of them acquires the most careful and exhaustive knowledge of existing conditions possible to attain. The adventures of these men would be more thrilling than the wildest romance. The magnitude of the missionary work is imperfectly comprehended. The average church goer contents himself by showing some slight pecuniary interest in "Missionary Sunday" but even the most indifferent have had their interest aroused by this great meeting of men from the uttermost parts of the earth.

Russian rule in Finland is having its veritable results. In thousands, in tens of thousands the Finlanders are leaving their native land and seeking homes elsewhere. It is estimated that over fifty-five thousand Finnish farmers will come to the United States and Canada during the summer. The general impression is that in the Finlanders we shall have a very desirable class of immigrants. They do not crowd into the cities, being skilled in the cultivation of the soil. They are industrious, frugal and law abiding and possess a high average of intelligence. The movement for the Russianizing of Finland awakened much interest in this country and many appeals on behalf of Finland were made. The silent, crushing paw of the Russian Bear did not falter and to-day Finland does not exist except in history. It has ceased to be a Grand Duchy, the office of Assistant Minister of State for Finland at St. Petersburg has been abolished and Finland is not represented at the Court. The autonomy of the nation promised by the Czar's father has been abolished in theory and fact. It was said that the people would give up their country when it was no longer theirs and the statistics of immigration will amply bear out this statement. Those who love their native land enough to leave it when it is no longer free will make good citizens of a free country.

The large fund raised for the widow of Gen. Lawton and the plans to raise a similar subscription for Mrs. Henry directs public attention to the justice of a change in our existing pension laws as applied to officers of long standing. In almost every other nation of the world a small private fortune is considered necessary before the young man chooses the army or navy as a profession. As a consequence the salary of the position seems amply sufficient for family needs. With us it is the exception for officers to have private means. Our salaries are small when we consider the financial demands that the nomadic life renders necessary. The family of an officer must be supported in a style becoming his rank. As a result the income is barely sufficient for the daily needs and nothing is left if the husband or father dies. In the case of both these officers of high rank the family was left without means and the government pension is too small to support any family. Private subscription has endeavored to remedy this in two cases. The gifts are generous and sincere expressions of the feeling of the nation but they should not be necessary. There are many widows of officers as deserving as these that have received this public expression of interest and good will. The law should be changed so that the pay of an officer or at least two-thirds of it should be the right of his widow during her life time. We have given thousands of dollars to aid the soldiers of the "Widow of Windsor." This is well but it is better to remember our own—both officers and men have families who miss the care and protection of dead heroes. Let the united and expressed sentiment of the nation speak for these.



HIGH GRADE BICYCLE $9

Warranted one year. No Money in advance. You examine the bicycle critically before you pay one cent. It is strictly high-grade, finely finished, fully described and illustrated in our BIG FREE BICYCLE CATALOG Write for it today. We control our own factory, specify every piece of material that goes into our bicycles and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices.

AGENTS WANTED Make big wages. We furnish bicycles to ride while taking orders. Write for special offer and catalog.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155-157 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

THE ELECTRICITY from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes we will give ONE BELT FREE to one person in each locality. Address E. J. SMEAD & Co., Dept. 259, Vineland, N. J.

YOU CAN MAKE BIG MONEY ENTERTAINING THE PUBLIC with Motion Pictures, the new Grapho-Ampliphone Talking and Musical Combination and Panoramic Stereoptican Views $60.-00 to $300.00 per week without previous experience. Only a little money needed to start with, and any man can operate our outfits successfully. Write for catalogue. ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO., 56 and 58 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

YOU CAN EASILY EARN

bicycles, sewing machines, house furnishings, ladies' or gentlemen's watches, cameras, mandolins, guitars, violins, silverware, dinner sets, guns, and your choice of a hundred other articles, all guaranteed. Simply introduce a few boxes of our unexcelled toilet soaps and any of them are yours. Send no money. We trust you. Girls and boys do as well as older people. Write at once for full information. We mail handsome illustrated catalog free. Address Great Northern Soap Works, 24 Lake St., Oak Park, Ill.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

★ FULL SIZE ★ ★ GOOD PAPER ★

2½ cts. SHEET MUSIC a Copy

★ LARGE TYPE ★ ★ UNABRIDGED ★

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFERED AT THIS TIME.

No.	PIANO OR ORGAN.
165	American Liberty March	Cook
101	Ancients Abroad. March—Two Step	Cook
247	Artist's Life Waltzes	Strauss
181	Auld Lang Syne. Variations	Darkee
187	Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	Pacher
215	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive	Anderson
179	Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands	Streabbog
227	Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes	Strauss
65	Bells of Corneville. Potpourri	Elson
213	Black Hawk Waltzes	Walsh
257	Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans.	Richards
221	Bluebird Echo Polka	Morrison
199	Boston Commandery March	Carter
109	Bridal March from Lohengrin	Wagner
229	Bryan and Sewall March	Noles
133	Cadences and Scales in all Keys	Czerny
1	Catherine Waltzes	Stroh
255	Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands.	Mascagni
237	Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands.	Behr
145	Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step	Missud
217	Cleveland's March	Noles
81	Coming from the Races Galop	Wheeler
211	Corn Flower Waltzes	Coote, Jr
41	Crack Four March	Ashton
71	Crystal Dew Waltz	Durkee
235	Day Dawn Polka	Cook
163	Dewey's Grand Triumphal March	Marcel
117	Echoing Trumpets March	Noles
121	Electric Light Galop	Durkee
91	Estella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Robinson
107	Ethel Polka	Simons
155	Evergreen Waltz	Stoddard
231	Faust. Selections	Durkee
77	Fifth Nocturne	Leybach
233	Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz	Lasalle
239	Flower Song. Op. 39.	Lange
97	Fresh Life	Spindler
177	Frolic of the Frogs.	Watson
49	Full of Ginger. March Galop.	Nutting
183	Golden Rain. Nocturne	Clay
147	Grand Commandery March—Two Step	Missud
33	Greeting of Spring. op. 21	Schultze
185	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Richards
173	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes	Jewell
139	Home, Sweet Home. Transcription	Slack
17	Impassioned Dream Waltzes	Rosas
153	Jenny Lind polka Four hands	Muller
157	Last Hope. Meditation	Gottschalk
195	Leap Year Schottische	Kahn
253	Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka.	Behr
159	Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop	Durkee
249	Lohengrin. Selections	Durlee
141	London March—Two Step	Missua
99	Maiden's Prayer, The	Badarzewske
45	March Winds Galop	Mansfield
240	Martha Selections	Johnson
207	May Breezes. Four hands	Krug
225	McKinley and Hobart March	Turner
55	Memorial Day March	Hewitt
131	Monastery Bells. Nocturne	Wely
89	Morning Dew, op. 18	Smith
61	Morning Star Waltz	Zahn
201	Music Box, The. Caprice	Liebich
137	My Love Polka	Zichrer
125	My Old Kentucky Home Variations	Cook
87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations
175	National Songs of America	Blake
135	Nightingale's Trill, op. 8.	Kullak
123	Old Folks at Home. Transcription	Blake
171	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations	Durkee
219	On the Wave Waltz	Dinsmore
197	Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step	Robinson
245	Orvetta Waltz	Spencer
9	Our Little Agnes. Waltz	Gregoire
191	Over the Waves Waltz	Rosas
79	Please Do Waltz	Durkee
193	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	Brunner
167	Red, White and Blue Forever. March	Blake
143	Richmond March—two-step	Missud
245	Rustic Waltz	Schumann
127	Rustling Leaves. Idylle	Lange
39	Ruth, Esther and Marion Schottische.	Cohen
149	Salem Witches March—Two-Step	Missud
189	Schubert's Serenade Transcription	Liszt
161	Silvery Waves. Variations	Wyman
169	Smith's (General) March	Martin
31	Song of the Voyager	Paderewski
22	Souvenir March Song of 1895 K. T. Parade	Dow
95	Spirit Lake Waltz	Simons
151	Storm, The. Imitation of Nature	Weber
73	Storm Mazurka	Keefer
103	Sultan's Band March.	Brown
209	Sweet Long Ago Transcription	Blake
115	Tornado Galop	Arbuckle
103	Trifet's Grand March, op. 182	Wedel
223	Twilight Echoes. Song without words	Jewell
113	Under the Double Eagle March	Wagner
129	Venetian Waltz	Ludovic
205	Village Parade Quickstep	Allen
7	Visions of Light. Waltz	Cook
203	Warblings at Eve	Richards
93	Waves of the Ocean March	Blake
59	Wedding March	Mendelssohn
251	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem.	Howe
119	Woodland Whispers Waltzes	Stanley
105	Zephyr Waltz.	Bragg

No.	VOICE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
236	Across the Bridge	Le Brunn
2	Annie's Love. Duet for Sop. and Ten.	Winter
27	Ave Maria. From Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni
140	Beacon Light of Home	Estabrooke
134	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet	Glover
238	Bells of Seville	H. Jude
162	Ben Bolt, of "Trilby" fame	Kneass
226	Blue Eyes	Elson
246	Boyhood Days, Chorus	Fritz
200	Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow	Carew
192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keep a Secret?	Estabrooke
214	Childhood's Happy Hours	Dinsmore
138	Christmas Carol	Turner
190	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Schumann
168	Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk	Blake
92	Cow Bells, The. Boyhood's Recollection	Grimm
250	Darling I Shall Miss You	Cohen
176	Darling Nellie Gray	Hanby
70	Dear Heart, We're Growing Old	Estabrooke
128	Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp.	Hoover
256	Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus.	Turner
50	Easter Eve. Sacred	Gounod
220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory	Hosfeld
19	'E Dunno Where 'E Are. Comic	Eplett
72	Ellaline. Waltz song	Betts
180	Far Away	Elisa
182	Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
126	Far from the Hearthstone	Messer
152	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic	Mathiot
156	Flag, The. Quartette	Fox
144	Flirting in the Starlight	Delano
8	Flossie. Waltz Song	Cohen
138	For a Dream's Sake	Cowen
36	For the Colors. Patriotic	Wilson
66	For You We are Praying at Home	Estabrooke
166	From our Home the Loved are Going	Percy
202	Give a Kiss to Me	Perry
178	God Bless My Kind Old Mother	Jewell
204	Golden Moon	Ivan
150	Gypsy Countess. Duet	Glover
198	Heart of My Heart	Robinson
184	I Can't Forget the Happy Past	Skelly
74	In Sweet September	Temple
248	In Shadowland	Pinsuti
188	In the Starlight. Duet	Glover
28	Juanita. Ballad	May
242	Kathleen Mavourneen	Crouch
196	Killarney	Balfe
132	Kiss me, but don't say goodbye	Rutledge
130	Kiss that bound my Heart to thine	Keil
164	Larboard Watch. Duet	Williams
146	Listen to the Mocking Bird	Hawthorne
48	Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet	Estabrooke
154	Little Voices at the Door	Danks
96	Lost Chord, The	Sullivan
40	Love Ever Faithful	Bucalossi
25	Lurline, Do you think of me now?	Estabrooke
234	Margaretta	Talfe
112	Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard	Keefer
230	Memories of my Mother. Chorus	Allen
30	Mission of a Rose, The. Song	Cowen
52	Mother's Cry, A. (Salvation Army)	Adriance
172	Mother's Welcome at the Door	Estabrooke
222	Musical Dialogue Duet	Helmund
232	Must the Sweet Tie that binds	Estabrooke
76	My Home by the Old Mill	O'Halloran
110	My Little Lost Irene	Danks
170	My Old Kentucky Home	Foster
216	Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain,	Dinsmore
228	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber)	Foster
60	Old Glory, National	Woods
102	Old Sexton, The	Russell
104	On the Banks of the Beautiful River	Estabrooke
90	On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad	Robinson
160	Outcast, An. Character Song	Fritz
174	Parted from our Dear Ones	Keller
254	Picture of My Mother, The	Skelly
148	Poor Girl didn't know. Comic.	Cooke
56	Precious Treasure. Song and Dance	Weiler
136	Request. Sacred	Grainger
208	Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	Knight
142	Rosemonde	Chaminade
80	See Those Living Pictures	Guth
224	Shall I Ever See Mother's Face Again?	Adriance
194	She Sleeps among the Daisies	Dinsmore
124	Softly shine the Stars of Evening	Dinsmore
210	Son's Return, The	Fritz
120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive	Lullah
10	Sweetest Song, The	Denza
32	Sweet Long Ago, The	Estabrooke
46	That Word was Hope. Waltz song	Nutting
118	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds	Danks
206	There's Sure to be a Way	Delano
158	Thinking of Home and Mother	Cohen
116	'Tis True, Dear Heart, We're Fading	Estabrooke
108	Tread softly the Angels are calling	Turner
38	True to the Last	Adams
64	Vicar of Bray, The. Old English Song
62	Your Mother's Love for You	Koppt
252	Warrior Bold	Adams
84	What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet	Glover
58	When the Roses are Blooming Again	Skelly
86	When Winter Days Have Gone	Trayne
186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic	Tandall
212	Why am I ever Watching	deLasoide
218	Why do Summer Roses Fade	Barker

DON'T FORGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-five cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.

Any 10 for 25 cents.
Any 21 for 50 cents.
Any 43 for $1.00.
Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any six of the above pieces free as a premium, and for 25c will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

DIXIE BELLES.

To Miss Callie Littlepage.

TWO STEP.

R. M. POWERS.

Copyright 1899, by Henry White, Washington, D. C. Entered at Stationers Hall, London, England.

Destroying Church Organs.

At the present time we can hardly realize the bitterness with which the Puritans pursued anything connected with Roman Catholic belief. The reaction had come and from the extreme of ritualism and art in worship the reformers went to the other extreme of simplicity and bareness. Although Luther believed in music, the later reformers considered it as a part of Popery and attempted to crush it out. In the year 1664 the Roundheads destroyed the organs in the churches and cathedrals throughout England. When the pipes were torn from the organ at Westminster Abbey, the mob of fanatics set up the cry, "Hark! how the organs go!" and "Mark what musick that is, that is lawful for a Puritan to dance to." Strange as it may appear for the sake of consistency, the metal of the pipes was sold and the money so obtained was used to purchase ale to treat the men who destroyed the organs.

Much to the delight of musical people Grand Opera in English is to be thoroughly tried this autumn in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, under the direction of the best leaders. Many people have declared that the prevailing idea that English does not lend itself to correct music has been sufficiently exploded by the use of German in opera; and that it is affectation to insist on Italian or French libretto.

Such an opportunity to obtain a musical bargain is seldom found. To get a full idea of this chance to obtain the best of sheet music almost as a gift, read the music offer in another column. Money promptly refunded if not as offered.

England's latest composer of prominence is Fritz Delius. As his name indicates he is of German parentage, and he studied at Leipsic and Paris conservatories. He was, however, born and brought up in Yorkshire, England. On this account England will be able to claim him as her own should he become as famous as his present work promises. At a later date probably no less than three nationalities will claim him for their own.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE golf toque which we show in our illustration is just as useful in the summer as in the colder weather, even though it is made of wool. What is needed is simply a covering for the top of the head, and this fills that purpose and is also extremely becoming to most girls—which certainly cannot be said of the wide rimmed gray felt hats so much worn on the links. Of course these hats with the wide rims, as also the old-fashioned sunbonnets, keep the sun off the face and out of the eyes, which is the only thing in their favor, for while the hats are unbecoming, the sunbonnets are the hottest things imaginable, and altogether the little golf toque is quite the neatest and at the same time most comfortable of anything yet suggested for head covering while on the links. To crochet the toque, chain 4 and join. Then 2 single crochet in each stitch, inserting hook through the whole stitch. Next row, 1 single crochet in each stitch. Continue in this way, keeping the crown round and flat by making 2 single crochet whenever it seems too tight or draws in. Twenty-one rows will be large enough for most heads. When the crown is finished, catch down tight in last stitch of round, make 1 chain, skip 2, 1 double crochet in next hole, 1 chain, skip 2, 3 double crochet in next, with 1 chain between each; 1 chain, skip 2, 1 double crochet in next, 1 chain, skip 2, 3 double crochet in next. Continue in this way until there are four groups of 3 double crochet. Then continue 1 chain, skip 2, 1 double crochet, etc. Next row, work the same way, 1 chain, 1 double crochet in each space. In each group of 3 double crochet, make 4 double crochet, that is 2 double crochet in each side of 3 double crochet with 1 chain between each. To commence the wind-over border, hold hook with stitch on it between the thumb and first and second fingers of left hand, wind wool over 9 times if two colors are used, 18 times if one color is used. If two colors are used, join second color when the wind-over border is begun, slip finger out, catch tight with one stitch, 1 chain, 1 catch down in first space, 1 chain, wind again and so on, all around, putting a wind-over in each space. Work the same way on upper row, so as to have two rows of wind-overs in the two rows of spaces made by the border of double crochet. Run a piece of round hat wire through fullness made by winding, draw up, insert aigrette or ornament. Draw up crown on wrong side to cover ends of wire and put in a few stitches with large needle and wool to hold pompon in place.

Hat-pins are inconveniently long for the ordinary pincushion. Our illustration shows a useful little ornament to hang on the side of the mirror, which is intended for just this purpose. To make one, take one of the little Japanese dolls that cost five cents; half a yard of satin ribbon, two and one-half inches wide, and a yard and a half of half-inch ribbon, the same shade or in a contrasting color. The wide satin is made into a garment by taking the two ends and bringing them up around the neck of the doll and sewing close around the neck. Then the narrow ribbon is put around the neck, crossed in front, and one end wound around the waist and a big bow tied in the back—one of the loops being long enough to extend up above the head of the doll, and this is used to hang it up by. The doll's arms are brought out from between the two thicknesses of ribbon, between the neck and waist, and thus very respectable sleeves are formed. Now a piece of cotton batting, (several thickness) should be inserted smoothly between the two thicknesses of ribbon below the waist, and the edges of the ribbon sewed up over and over, catching the cotton in, occasionally, to hold it in place. The one here illustrated was made of yellow satin ribbon, and the materials cost about thirty cents.

HAT-PIN CUSHION.

Here is a way of using up odd bits of worsted and yarn. Take large steel needles and cast on twelve stitches and knit back and forth until you have a piece a yard and a quarter in length or longer. Mix the colors as well as possible in order to have a hit or miss effect. The colors may also be knitted separately and arranged in any conventional design. After binding off, double the knitted piece and sew on to a piece of ticking. The ticking should be of proper length and width for a mat. After the piece of knitting is firmly sewed on ticking, with linen thread, cut through the middle of the knitted strip and it will ravel prettily. Continue to sew on pieces, covering the ticking closely. This is a durable, pretty mat. Shake it up once in a while to prevent its matting together.

There is probably no more satisfactory way of adjusting the bands of the shirt waist and skirt so that there shall be no slipping or sagging, than by means of three hooks and eyes sewed to the middle of the back and at a distance of about two and a half inches on each side. For wool waists this method is thoroughly satisfactory, but for wash waists there is always more or less trouble resulting from the ironing of the metal fasteners. If the hooks are sewed to the waist they are almost sure to be ironed down flat; if the eyes are used on the waist they are apt in a short time to make a rusty spot upon the goods, and are frequently bent out of shape or are sometimes ironed off, taking a piece of the goods with them. But one ingenious woman has solved the difficulty, and has invented for her own use a simple arrangement which seems perfectly adapted to the purpose. She stitches a narrow band across the back of the shirt waist, and in place of sewing eyes upon it she punches three small holes with a stiletto, bastes three very small rings over these openings and buttonholes all around the rings through the goods. The hooks of the skirt are caught in these quite as readily as into the metal eyes, and they are always in place and in shape, and remain firm and strong as long as the waist lasts. It is worth trying.

A GOLF TOQUE.

A hat bag for home use or to carry when traveling, is one of the modern conveniences which up-to-date women are enjoying. The bag is made with a round bottom about the size of an ordinary hat crown. This is of two pieces of cardboard covered smoothly with silk or satin of a dark shade. Any goods which will not catch dust readily may be substituted. The sides of the bag are made from a long straight piece of the material fifteen inches deep when finished. This piece should be long enough to be gathered full to the circular bottom, and should have a casing at the upper edge with a heading left above it. The ends should be joined in a seam. The lower edge should be gathered and sewed to one of the circular pieces, then the other circular piece should be added and hemmed down all around. This covers the narrow gathered edge by bringing it between the two parts of the bottom, and gives a neat finish. Ribbons should be run in the casing near the top to gather the bag closely. Such a bag is of the greatest convenience in traveling, for the hat can be placed in it when it is taken off for the night, and the bag may be hung up quite out of the way. The hat is thus protected from dust and the ill-usage which it is apt to receive in the crowded quarters of a berth. Such a bag, made from black satin, was recently given to a bride who expected to spend some time in travel, and to the bag was added a silver mounted hat brush. It was found to be one of the most convenient articles of her entire outfit.

NOT long ago a sparrow flew into a machine shop, and getting near one of the large wheels was drawn in; one of the workmen saw it, and immediately shut off the power, supposing of course that the bird would be dead when it came out, but, notwithstanding that the wheel was revolving at the rate of 130 revolutions a minute, the bird was taken out alive and chirping. It had clung to the strengthening rod inside the wheel and was so dazed it could not fly, but recovered in a short time and flew away. During the time the sparrow was on the wheel it traveled 73 miles, as the wheel made 31,000 revolutions.

THE X-Ray has performed a miracle in restoring to a child in Chicago the use of her eyes and limbs. Two years ago the child was playing on a porch and fell to the sidewalk, striking on her head. The fall left her totally blind and her right side was paralyzed. The X-Rays were applied and revealed a tumor pressing on the brain. The skull was trepanned and the tumor removed. The child was able to move her limbs on recovering consciousness, and has since regained her sight.

Snakes, in captivity, it seems, find difficulty in getting rid of the skin which is shed every year, as, when it gets as far as the eyes the snake is rendered blind and usually suffers intensely. Recently a man seeing a snake in this condition, got the keeper to hold it while he took a pair of small scissors and performed the operation of removing the membrane which adhered to the eyes. The operation was perfectly successful, and has since that time often been performed, thus saving the sight and in many cases the life of many a snake.

A Lady Reader Tells How She Made Money to Build a Home.

I often read of ladies who work hard helping to support their families and for their benefit, I will relate how easily I manage to make a living and save money. I had been using Baird's Flavoring Powders myself and knew they were splendid, so I sent for a sample and tried selling them. I found it so pleasant and easy that I kept right at it and never make less than $3.50 per day; and often clear $5.00. The powders go twice as far as the liquid extracts sold in the stores and are much stronger. They are made of pure fruit juices. I sell from two to eight Flavors in each house. They are used for Cakes, Custards, Ices, etc. They give perfect satisfaction to the most fastidious cooks and every one who tries them becomes a permanent customer for me. Any one who would like to make money easy should try selling the Flavors. You can get full particulars by writing to the manufacturers W. H. Baird & Co., 248 Century Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. They will give you a start. I have built a home from the proceeds of my sales, support my family and have comforts we never had before. M. B.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES
Female Troubles, Stooping Posture, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset.

We have over 15,000 letters like this:
Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.
Your Brace did all you said about it and more, for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, lung disease, stomach and other ills to which women are subject. MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain sealed envelope. Address
The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27, Salina, Kansas.
Every woman should have this Brace.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

$40.00 Arlington for.....$14.00
$50.00 Arlington for.....$17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for.....$21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12
Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ill.

$10 Silk Skirt REDUCED TO $8. Best Taffeta, any color, for 25c. Send 25c. for coupon and particulars. Reference Jeff. National Bank. Garland Silk Skirt Co., Box 421, Watertown, N.Y.

FREE THIS BANGLE RING with initial engraved, warranted to wear three years, to anyone sending us 10c. for our Bargains in Jewelry. Shell Novelty Co., Dept. K, 194 Broadway, New York.

I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over Postoffice, COHOES, N. Y.

$3.50 DUEBER

SEND NO MONEY For our magnificently engraved double hunting case watch of Gold alloy with extra 14 karat gold plate, equal in appearance to any 35 dollar watch. Movement is the best make, fully jeweled, duplex escapement, quick train, patent pinion, accurately regulated and adjusted and Sold with Written POSITIVE 20 YEAR GUARANTEE Railroadmen all over the country buy this watch, on account of its durability and timekeeping qualities. Our wholesale factory price is $42.00 per doz., but we will send you one sample for free inspection. If fully satisfied pay $3.50 and express charges, otherwise not one cent. State nearest express office and if Ladies' or Gents' watch. FREE with first order from each town a handsome Chain & Charm worth retail $1. Catalogue free.
EXCELSIOR WATCH CO., 66 Central Bank Bldg., CHICAGO.

Tailor Made Suit $5.98

SILK LINED JACKET

Latest Style for Spring and Summer of 1900.
FINE ALL WOOL The suit will be made to measure by skilled tailors from Evans best all wool ALBERT CLOTH, famous for its rich bloom and beautiful weave. The Jacket is made in new single breasted style, beautifully lined with fine imported silk, elegantly silk faced and superbly trimmed with pure satin ribbon. The skirt is cut full width, is lined and interlined, has latest style back, nobby welted seams, hangs graceful and stylish. Guaranteed strictly tailor made and worth fully $10.00. Choice of black and blue colors.
SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large sample of the cloth and our big catalog containing many other rare bargains in suits from $6 to to $20, and of jackets, capes and skirts all at wholesale prices. We make all grades and styles of ladies' garments and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.
LADIES' SUITS FREE We give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one. Its a great chance to get a suit free. Send one 2-cent stamp to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit. Write today.
THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

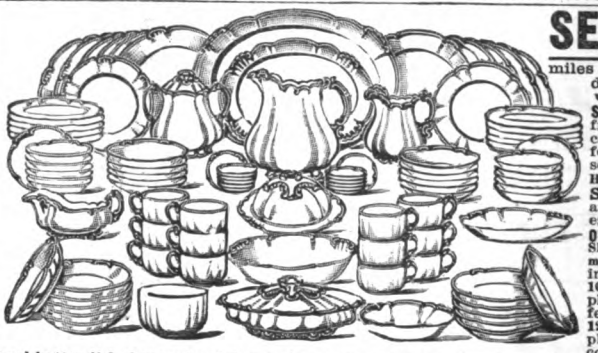
LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT HOME; $1.50 a day; four months work guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE this genuine 14k. Rolled Gold Ring or a Band Ring. Bracelet, Hat Pin, Chatelaine, Knife, Shirt Waist Set, etc., to anyone who will sell 10 of our ROMAN GOLD STICK PINS at 10cts. each. They sell quickly at the price; suitable for ladies or gentlemen. No Money Required in Advance; just send your name and address saying you will sell the pins or return them and we will send them at once postpaid with large premium list of Watches, Chains, Opera Glasses, Clocks, etc. When sold you send us the money and we will send the premium you select. Our Premiums are the Best.

M. R. COMPANY, 79 Dearborn St., Dept. 64, Chicago

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

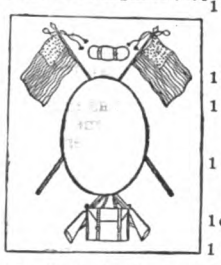


The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially adapted for cleaning and polishing Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Delicate Surface. It does not scratch! It works Wonders! and a child can use it! Will clean and polish just as well when black as when new. No matter how soiled the "cloth" may become, the black will not rub off and soil the hands. Can be used until entirely worn out. A moist portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sure. Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the Century.

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents' prices and a paid three month's trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.
SUNSHINE, Box 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

SEND NO MONEY If you live within 1000 miles of Chicago, if over 1000 miles, send one dollar. CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us, and we will send you this BIG NEW STYLE, 100-PIECE SEMI-VITREOUS WHITE CHINA DINNER SET by freight C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented and THE GREATEST VALUE YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay the freight agent our SPECIAL OFFER PRICE.... $5.25 and freight charges (or $4.25 and freight charges if $1.00 is sent with order). THIS SET CONSISTS OF 100 PIECES of the HIGHEST GRADE GENUINE SEMI-VITREOUS WHITE CHINA of the very latest and most stylish shape, is as hard as flint, practically indestructible, pure white in color. The following 100 Full-Size Pieces Complete the Set: 12 soup plates, 12 5-inch plates, 12 7-inch plates, 12 coffee cups, 12 saucers, 12 individual butter dishes, 12 4-inch fruit plates, 1 8-inch platter, 1 12-inch platter, 1 7-inch baker, 1 8-inch baker, 1 8-inch covered dish, 1 pickle dish, 1 sauce boat 1 covered butter dish, 1 sugar bowl, 1 extra bowl, 1 large pitcher, 1 medium pitcher. Freight will be about 50 cents for each 500 miles.



YOU WILL SAVE ONE-HALF IN PRICE. ORDER NOW. DON'T DELAY. WRITE FOR FREE CROCKERY CATALOGUE.
(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.) Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

The American Stamping Outfit

A choice collection of New and Seasonable Designs for Decorative Work.

The designs we give in this outfit cannot be duplicated in any art store for less than $5. This is fact, not fiction. The Outfit contains all the following designs:

1 Chinese Alphabet, 2x2 in. high.
1 Eccentric Alphabet, 1¾ in. high.
1 Floral and bow-knot design—Violets, for sofa pillow covers or table cover decorations, buffet scarfs, etc., 13x13 in.

1 Spray violets for doilies, 4x7 in.
1 Conventional design for jewel work, for square doilies or scarf ends, 4x8 in.
1 Conventional design for Bulgarian work, for scarf ends, or doily corners, 4x8 in.
1 design for medicine glass cover, with dial, 3x3 in.
1 border design of bow-knots, 1¼ in. wide.
1 Border design for flannel embroidery, 1 in. wide.
1 Empire design for picture frame, 6x6½ inches.
1 design for book mark, 3¼x3¼ inches.
1 design for tobacco pouch.
1 Border and corner design, Oriental, for table cover or lambrequin, etc., 7x7 inches.
1 design for lamp shade, Butterfly.
1 design, Tiger lily, 6½x10 inches.
1 Scallop border for flannel work, ¾ in. wide.
1 Empire corner design, with Fleur de Lis, 9x9 inches.
1 design for delph work, 2½x3 inches.
1 Wreath and bow-knot design for monogram, 3½x4 inches.
1 Spray of Mignonette, 6x6 inches.
1 Spray Lily of the valley, 2½x3 inches.
1 Empire design for twin picture frames, 10x12 inches.
1 Lily-of-the-valley and bow-knot design, 15x15 in.
1 design for penwiper with motto, 4x7 inches.
1 Floral spray for tea cloth or center piece, doilies, 6x8¼ inches.
1 Dog's head for art work, 1½x2 inches.
1 design of Mountain pine, with motto (see illustration), 11x14 inches.
1 design American flags, 7x7 inches.
1 design Poppies and leaves, 4x10 inches.
1 design for picture frame, American flags, etc. (see illustration), 8x10 inches.
1 Ribbon and floral design for monogram, 2x8½ in.
1 design Nasturtium, 2½x5½ inches.
1 Conventional design for art work, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design, for table covers, etc., 9x9 inches.
1 Patriotic design for sofa pillow, American and Cuban flags, knapsacks and guns, 16x16 inches.
1 Set of six doily designs, conventional patterns, 4x4 inches.
1 design for Cross stitch work, 3½x3½ inches.
1 Acorn design for scatter work.
1 Ribbon and Daisy design, 4x5 inches.
1 Conventional corner design 8x8 inches.

1 Floral and bow-knot doily design, 5x5 inches.

The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 9 sheets of patterns, each sheet 14x22 inches in size. As good as can be made.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA COMPOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

FREE Send 25 cents for a year's subscription to this paper and we will forward one of these outfits free all charges paid. Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

TUSKEGEE AND ITS WORK.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE word Tuskegee has been seen so many times in print during the last ten years that many people who see it and do not know just what it stands for ask, "Just what is Tuskegee, and where is it?"

Tuskegee is the shire town of Macon county, Alabama. It is about forty miles southeast of Montgomery, the capital of Alabama, and one hundred and forty from Atlanta. It is reached from the North by way of the Southern Railroad to Atlanta, and by the Western of Alabama, from there. It is one of the oldest towns in the State. In fact it is said that when De Soto made his famous march inland from the sea he found an Indian village on the same site by the name of Toskigi.

When the word Tuskegee is seen in print now, it generally refers to the great Negro school there, established and built up by Booker T. Washington. This school is remarkable for many things, but three of the most important are that it is the greatest school wholly for colored people in the country, that its teachers are, like the pupils, all Negroes, and that over thirty practical trades are taught the students there by actual work. The students at Tuskegee now number over twelve hundred every year, and there are between eighty and ninety teachers.

A short article printed in COMFORT some time ago told something of Mr. Washington's life; how he was born a slave in Virginia, and struggled along until he worked his way to Hampton, and got an education there. While he was at Hampton he resolved that as soon as he was fitted to do so he would go into some place in the South where the Negroes seemed to be particularly ignorant and devote his whole life to giving them the same kind of help that had been given him at Hampton. In 1881 the Legislature of the State of Alabama appropriated money to establish a normal school for colored teachers, and Mr. Washington was selected as the teacher. He began his school there on the 4th of July, 1881, by gathering thirty untaught Negro men and women into an old shanty.

The new school had not been in progress long before the teacher made up his mind that his pupils needed to learn how to work, and how to take care of their bodies, quite as much as they needed to learn books. He felt that he needed to have an influence over them for a longer time than just during the hours of the school day. He found that he could buy a plantation of a hundred acres of land and a few old buildings a mile from Tuskegee. He borrowed the money of a friend at Hampton, bought the place and moved his school out there. So many new scholars began to want to come to the school that more buildings were needed.

There was a good clay pit on the place. Mr. Washington set some of the young men students to making bricks, and when the bricks were ready, to building a house with them. Other young men worked on the land, raising corn for food and cotton to be sold to buy things which could not be raised. A man in Massachusetts gave money to buy a horse, and a man in Tuskegee gave an outfit of tools for the brickyard. That has been one remarkable thing about this school. From the first the white people of the South have recognized the good work which it was doing in teaching the colored people how to do skilled, useful labor, and have helped it along. A small blacksmith shop was started, and then a wheelwright shop. The young women students did the housework, laundry work, and mending for all the school, and learned cooking and sewing. Friends in the North who heard Mr. Washington tell of the plans of the school gave more money, and this was made to go far. Nothing was bought which the students could make themselves. Even now they make all their own furniture, mattresses, etc.

From that beginning Tuskegee Institute has grown until now it owns twenty-five hundred acres of land, five hundred of which the students cultivate. It teaches such trades to the men, in addition to those I have mentioned, as carpentry, machine shop work, printing, shoe making, tailoring, tin-smithing, electrical engineering, and saw-mill work. Farming in all its branches is thoroughly taught. The young women learn, in addition to the trades I have spoken of, mattress making, dress making and millinery, nursing, poultry raising, dairy work, bee-keeping, the care of fruit trees and bushes, and the care of flower gardens and lawns.

The courses of study in these trades are just as carefully planned out and followed as are those in the academic classes. I copy from the school's catalogue the course for the first term of the second year in blacksmithing: "Horseshoeing. The condition of a shoeing floor. How to make a shoer's fire. The names and uses of shoeing tools. What and how to make a mould, also how to strike on a shoe. The names and sizes of shoes and nails, also the different kinds of shoes. How to file a shoe, also how to pull off a shoe, trim a foot and clinch a shoe. The different parts of a foot and how to drive a nail. The different kinds of shoes that are used for horses with different ways of traveling. Special lessons in fitting to different shaped feet." Compositions are written on these subjects monthly. The blacksmith shop now is a building 38x61 feet, containing nine forges and all necessary tools. It is full of students all of the time, and when a man graduates he is able to set up a shop for himself. I have visited several men in different parts of the South who have done so.

CHAPEL AT TUSKEGEE.

I copy the first year's course of study in dressmaking. Before the girls can take this up they have to spend two years in the plain sewing room, or show an ability to do the work done there. "Choice of materials. Drafting and cutting foundation and outline skirts from measurement. Making, hanging, draping and trimming the skirt. Talks on form, line and proportion in relation to draping and trimming. Drafting, cutting and fitting plain basques, and the general finish of these garments." There are two more years' study in dressmaking.

These shops and classes turn out men and women who know their trades, and people all over the South are beginning to appreciate this. The school cannot begin to supply all the demands made upon it for skilled artisans. People from hundreds of miles away write to know if the Institute cannot furnish a good carpenter or blacksmith, or nurse or cook, and almost invariably the pay offered is good.

This industrial work is carried on in connection with the regular academic, and moral and religious training of any large school. There is an undenominational Bible School, in which each year about seventy-five Negro men and women, often ministers themselves, are trained to become more efficient church and Sunday-school workers. The academic department gives a thoroughly good English education, and has turned out a great many teachers who are doing good work all over the South. A great many men and women both have been inspired with Mr. Washington's spirits for a desire to work for their race, and have given their lives to found other schools where the Tuskegee principles can be extended. Such schools are the one at Snow Hill, Alabama, with over three hundred pupils, at Mt. Meigs, Alabama, with two hundred, at Denmark, South Carolina, with three hundred, at Eatonville, Florida, with over a hundred, and in a great many places where just as good work is being carried on upon a smaller scale. In all these schools, just as soon as they get large enough, the pupils are not only taught books, but to work.

The expense at Tuskegee is only $8 a month, for a furnished room, fuel, lights, laundry and board. No charge is made for tuition, because very few could pay it. The money for the support of the schools which this would represent, Mr. Washington secures from friends of the school and education who are willing to help him in his work. He is endeavoring now to secure a permanent endowment fund, from the income of which the school may be largely supported, so as to leave him free to devote his time and energy to the execution management.

Small as is the expense more than half of the students cannot afford to pay for it, and so they are allowed to work out their expenses. They work on the land, in the shops and brick yard, in the laundry, kitchen, offices, everywhere, and are allowed to a regular rate of pay, according to their ability. This is not paid them in money, but put to their credit. While they are at work in this way they go to school only in the evening. Usually two years work in this way will give a student enough credit so that he or she can go into the day school classes for the rest of their time at the school. Coming as most of these young people do out of homes or off of farms where they have had no systematic training in modern methods of work, the time they spend in this way under skilled instructors is really one of the most valuable parts of their education.

The school now has over four hundred graduates, and over three thousand under graduates, almost all of them doing good work throughout the South. There are now forty-four buildings large and small, on the school ground, and all but three of these have been built by the students themselves as a part of their industrial education. Among these is a magnificent modern brick church, capable of seating two thousand four hundred persons. When President McKinley visited Tuskegee, not long ago, he spoke to the students in this church.

One of the greatest features at Tuskegee is the annual Negro Conference which meets there in February of each year. This was begun by Mr. Washington, to see if something could not be done to help elevate the older generation of Negroes, the men and women who were most of them slaves, and who have had little or no chance to get an education. Ten years ago he invited about seventy-five farmers, mechanics, teachers and ministers to come to Tuskegee to spend a day discussing their conditions and needs. To his surprise four hundred men and women of all classes came in answer to this invitation, and the number has kept increasing ever since. Most of these people come from Alabama, but there are delegates now from every southern state, and the effect of these meetings is felt widely. Two hundred and fifty similar local conferences have been formed which meet during the year and report here. The people who come are hard working farmers and their wives, mainly. They discuss very practical matters. How to get homes and keep them. How to keep out of debt and clear of mortgages. The need of something better than a one-room hut for a home. Better schools, and teachers and ministers. Pay your taxes and stay off the streets.

The Negro women take just as much interest in the Conference as do the men, and frequently are among the most entertaining speakers. One woman reported an association formed by the women in her community to fight the mortgage evil. Every woman who joined it agreed not to wear any article of mortgaged clothing or eat any mortgaged food. After they got fairly started they pooled their money and began to buy cloth and groceries in quantities, dividing the goods among themselves. They had been much pleased with the success of this plan. They got lower prices and better measure.

One woman, when the Conference was discussing the evils of one-room cabin homes, got up and said: "I was a widow. I had two children and John had five. I married him and that made seven. He had only one room to his house. I told him he had to get more and he got them. I have one room 'specially for cooking, 'cause I don't propose to have everybody see what I cooks. I have learned a heap at this meeting here to-day. Let sardines and snuff and candy and red ribbons alone. Get your man to buy land, jest one acre at a time, if he can't buy more than that, and then have him work it. Some of you men jest want to put us women into the white folks' kitchens to work to feed you, while you walk up and down the roads."

Each delegate who came to the Conference of 1900 was given a printed list of things to remember and practice during the coming year—one for the men and another for the women.

Womanly Sense.

If a person is ill and needs a medicine, is it not wise to get one that has stood the test of time, and has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit?

A great many women who are ill try everything they hear of. This seems to us unwise, for there are remedies which are no experiments, and have been known years and years to be doing great good. Take for instance Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; for thirty years its record has been one unbroken chain of success. No medicine for female ills this country has ever known has such a record for cures.

We have published more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine. All this should, and does, produce a spirit of confidence in the hearts of women which is difficult to dislodge, and when they are asked to take something else they say, "No, we want Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has been tried, and never found wanting, whose reliability is established far beyond the experimental stage." (See offer below.)

Letters to Mrs. Pinkham from Women.

Female Weakness 15 Years.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For fifteen years I suffered with every form of female weakness, and had almost given up hope of ever being well again, when a friend insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, and still I was sick and giving up again when the same friend prevailed upon me to try another bottle. I did so and began to get better right away, and now I never have any of my old pains, and consider myself cured. I think your remedies the best in the world for curing the troubles of women, and feel very thankful that I ever found such remedies. If any suffering woman wishes to write to me privately, I will be pleased to tell her about the benefits I derived from the use of your medicine."—MRS. E. F. MARSHALL, 312 Montcalm St., San Francisco, Cal.

General Weakness of System.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to thank you for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have done me. I felt tired and all worn out, suffered with severe pains in my back and limbs. Since taking your remedies that tired feeling is gone, and I am very much better, and able to work. I would advise all suffering women to write to you, for I feel sure they will find help. I wish you much success."—MRS. MARY H. LOVE, Hillsboro, Va.

Mrs. Pinkham's advice is given free to all suffering women. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

Throbbing Pain in the Back.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—About two years ago I was taken suddenly with a terrible bearing down feeling, low down across me, and such a throbbing pain in my back, that at times it would seem that I could endure it no longer. I had heard Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound spoken of very highly, and I commenced taking it at once. After a short time, I was feeling very much better, but continued its use until I had taken six bottles, and was completely cured."—MRS. S. E. WADE, Fremont, Mich.

These grateful letters from women prove conclusively that woman's safe refuge when sick is

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

If you are a sick woman, fill out the following blank, and send it to Mrs. Pinkham:

A woman can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate her private troubles to a man. Especially can she do so to a woman whose knowledge and experience in treating woman's ills is so great. The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience—experience creates knowledge. No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as she has had.

Full name
Street No.
Town State
County
Age Married, single
Have you any female weakness?
What is its nature?
Weakness of how long standing?
Are you confined to bed?
How long have you suffered?
Have you children?
Do you have painful periods?
Have you leucorrhœa (whites)?
Ever pregnant? If so had you easy labor?
Have you profuse menstruation?
Scanty menstruation?
Suppressed menstruation?
Have you displacement?
Anteversion? Prolapsus?
Retroversion?
Are you afflicted with sterility or barrenness?
Dizzy, faint, or blind spells?
Suffer from headache?
Are your bowels constipated?
Are your bowels loose?
Are you subject to palpitation?
Are you subject to pain in heart?
Have you good appetite?
Does food seem to digest well?
Do dots dart before your eyes?
Do your feet and limbs swell?
Troubled with cold feet and hands?
Are you despondent?
Does back of your neck ache?
Do you have sore places in your spinal column?
If so, where?
Have you sore spot across back between hips?
Do your lower limbs ache?
Backache between the hips?
Have you pain across abdomen, with soreness or pressure?
Does abdomen bloat?
Have you piles?
Is urine high color?
Sediment in urine on standing?
Back weak? Where?
Ever had surgical operations?
For what?

Without money or price any woman can have a private letter giving complete details as to her health, if she will carefully answer the above questions and send them with a personal letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

Address "Mrs. Pinkham," Lynn, Mass. 3

You Need One

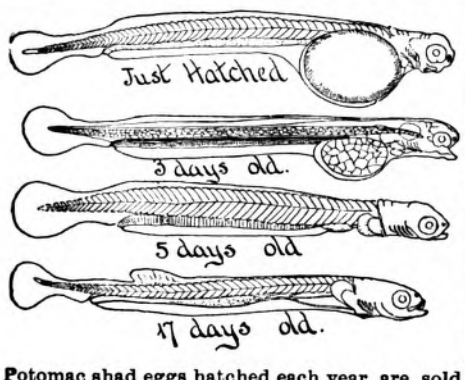
every day, hard rubber, screw section FOUNTAIN PEN at factory price, 38 cts. Order now by mail.
C. R. CARSON & CO., DETROIT, MICH.

HELP WANTED MALE

ONE OF THE LARGEST AGENCY CONCERNS IN THE COUNTRY offering a PAYING and PERMANENT opportunity to active men desires to place additional men in every state of the Union. Send 2-cent stamp for book containing full particulars. State your name, address, age and present occupation.
Postoffice Box 802, Chicago, Ill.

PLANTING THE OCEAN.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.



THE notion of planting and raising crops of fishes, just as if they were an agricultural product, seems extremely odd, and yet that is exactly what is done nowadays with shad. So completely is the output of shad under human control that, if it were so desired, the tidal rivers of this country could be literally crowded with them.

For a long time the winter habits of the shad were regarded as a perplexing puzzle. Of course, they are ocean fishes, entering the streams every year only for the purpose of reproducing their species. The question was, what did they do with themselves while in the sea? It was imagined that they betook themselves to southern waters during the cold season, and that at the approach of spring they began a migration northward, some of them entering the Potomac to spawn, others keeping on up the coast to the Delaware and to the Connecticut, and others yet continuing their passage to the rivers of Maine. This notion, however, has been proved erroneous.

It is now known that shad never go very far from the mouth of the rivers in which they were hatched. They spend the winters probably in the deeper waters near to and tempered by the Gulf Stream, which flows from the tropics northward. Annually, at spawning time, they return to their native streams. Mrs. R. O. E. Shad, for example, was born in the Potomac, not far from Washington. In order to reproduce her species, she is obliged to go up the river each spring and lay her eggs in a spot where they can be conveniently fertilized and hatched. Having performed this maternal function, she returns to the sea, unless she is so unfortunate as to be caught and eaten. It is not likely that she ever enters any stream other than the Potomac.

The shad browse on the ocean bottom, where there is unlimited provender, and, inasmuch as the sea will support any number of them, there is practically no limit to the multiplication of the species by artificial propagation. It is simply a question of gathering the eggs, which are readily obtainable in countless millions, hatching them in glass jars, and dumping the little fishes into the rivers, after retaining them for a short time in enclosed ponds, so that they may be big enough to take care of themselves when liberated. Swimming up the streams each spring, they fetch the crops of the ocean bottom, otherwise inaccessible to man, and deliver them in the shape of toothsome meat and roe.

The principal stations for collecting and hatching shad eggs are on the Potomac, the Susquehanna, and the Delaware. Agents of the United States Fish Commission go out in the fishermen's boats, and, as the nets are drawn, they take the female fishes and express the roes from them by passing the hand deftly over the body of each specimen, so that the eggs are poured into glass vessels, where they are immediately fertilized with milt similarly obtained from the male fishes. To save expert labor, efforts have been made to teach the fishermen how to procure and fertilize the eggs, and with such success that now more than half of the Potomac shad eggs hatched each year are sold ready fertilized to the Commission by fishermen.

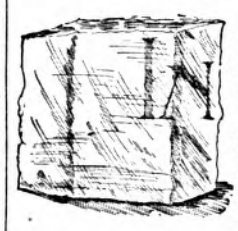
The Commission pays $20 per million for such eggs—a fair price, considering that the average shad will supply 25,000 of them. On receiving a batch of eggs from a fisherman, they are placed in a receptacle through which a stream of water runs, so that all bad eggs and refuse are floated off, and the residue, if in good condition, is measured twenty-four hours later and paid for. Inasmuch as shad eggs are all just the same size, they are most readily counted by liquid measurement. In order to make sure that the eggs thus purchased are fertile, a number of them are examined under a microscope. The eggs are hatched in from four to ten days, according to the temperature of the water, and are either shipped on the Commission's cars to various points for distribution, or else are first hatched and the new born fishes consigned to the streams. Nearly all of the shad are distributed in the shape of young "fry."

The method of hatching shad eggs is wonderfully simple. They are put into glass jars, through which, by a siphon arrangement, a stream of water is kept continually running. The gentle stream keeps the eggs perpetually agitated, so that they are bathed on all sides with water and escape contact with any foulness that might injure them. They are very delicate, and are subject to fungus parasites and other troubles when not properly manipulated. Shad eggs are somewhat bigger than buckshot, white and translucent. As soon as the young "fry" emerge, they find their way out of the jar with the running water into a large tank, from which they are scooped with gauze nets as they are wanted.

A shad egg is much like a hen's egg in the notion governing its structure, but, whereas the unborn chick, growing from the germ-spot on one side of the yolk, first feeds on the white of the egg and then on the yolk, coming out only after it has consumed both, the embryo shad, when it comes into the world, has the yolk of its egg still attached to its belly, being provided in fact with a week's rations in advance, so that it may look around at convenient leisure for a living. Looking at a shad egg three days old under a microscope, one can see distinctly not only the eyes, but also the backbone, and the heart itself pulsating visibly.



A shad egg is a spherical capsule filled with albuminous matter, the envelope being composed of very thin transparent membrane, perforated by a single minute opening. In the center of this little globe is a nucleus which represents the germ of life, only requiring impregnation by the male principle. The milt of the male shad, as seen under the microscope, is full of spindle-shaped polywogs, which are exceedingly lively in action. It is only necessary that one of them shall find its way into the egg in order to render the latter fertile. The opening in the egg is so small that only a single polywog can pass through at one time, and, as quickly as one has entered, it closes up. Presently the intruding polywog is observed to lose its spindle shape, and is transformed into a nucleus resembling that of the egg. The two nuclei approach each other and blend into a single germ-cell, and with that joining the life of the future fish may be said to begin. The new-formed cell divides itself into two, the two into four, the four into eight, and so on, the doubling process continuing until very soon the result begins to be recognizable as a young fish.

It is very interesting to watch a jar in which the shad eggs have begun to hatch. Perhaps there will be twenty thousand eggs in the receptacle, and, as all of them ripen at about the same time, the hatching goes on at a pretty rapid rate, so that every moment one sees a tiny fish emerge from its capsule. The latter, being heavier than water, sinks to the bottom of the jar, while the fish rises toward the top and is sucked out through a tube into the tank beyond. At the hatching stations the jars are run in batteries, hundreds of them together, and the multiplication of the species goes on at a rate which might well cause conservative old Dame Nature to blink with astonishment.

Since 1881, by means of artificial propagation, the shad output of the Atlantic coast rivers has been increased from eighteen million pounds to forty-five million pounds per annum.

HOW ICE IS HARVESTED.

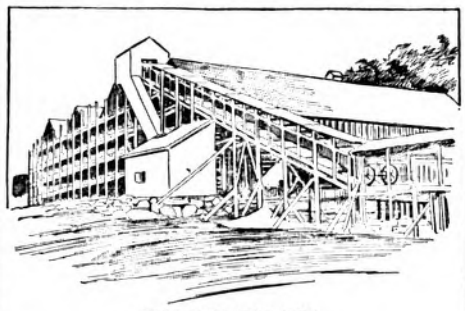
WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ALL the Northern States and Canada each winter a crop is harvested which entails more discomfort during the process of storing and brings more comfort to the consumer than any other product of the North. There is scarcely a pond or lake within reasonable distance of city or town that has not its icehouses; an account of the business carried on at these storehouses may interest the readers of COMFORT.

The accompanying illustration gives an excellent idea of the ordinary icehouse. These houses are built of wood; the walls double, and the space between filled with tannery bark or sawdust, thus keeping the warm air out when summer comes. On the left can be seen the run over which the ice passes on its way from the water to the house. Within the shed beneath this run is the engine which furnishes the power for hauling the ice.

Somewhere far out in the middle of the lake is the block of ice which is to reach your freezer some hot July morning, and of a morning in December, January or February, the icemen set about to secure it, together with thousands of similar blocks.

First of all, a machine similar to a harrow in appearance, called a marker, is drawn across the ice, following a perfectly straight line, each trip producing a new line. Across these lines others are made in a similar manner, marking off the cakes of ice into squares about forty-four inches each way.



Following the marker comes a saw that looks somewhat like a plough from the distance, only that instead of the share, a saw with teeth two inches deep, making an incision of four inches. Close upon the heels of the man who drives this saw, follows another saw which cuts two inches deeper; another following this one, which completes the work of sawing out the blocks.

Immediately before the ice-run an opening is made in the ice by sawing out a dozen blocks with a large handsaw, these being sent up over the run and stored as the first of the harvest. One by one the nearest blocks are now broken off by the use of steel pikes and floated to the foot of the run, where they are slipped into the pockets of the endless chain which carries them away.

Gradually the opportunity for more men to take part in the work comes to pass; faster and faster the ice is broken away from the main field and sent in a continuous stream over the run.

Within the house all is life and action as soon as the work of sending has fairly commenced on the lake. If it is a large house, twenty or thirty men carrying long poles with a steel pike and hook at one end, await the arrival of the blocks of ice as they come shooting across the house. Kept moving, the ice is easy to handle, but allowed to pause for an instant before reaching its place, the work is greatly hindered.

If the ice is twelve inches thick, each block will weigh in the neighborhood of seven hundred pounds, and the work of handling them is attended with danger. Frequently accidents occur; a misstep, and a limb is broken, or a life crushed out; the men understand the danger, and are not slow to leap out of the path of the swiftly moving cake.

STORAGE FOR ICE.

Layer upon layer the ice is stored away and among the blocks is the lump of winter which is destined to reach your freezer of a summer's day.

The facilities for securing the ice crop vary at the different houses. Some have very primitive arrangements, holding to machinery and methods used several decades ago. Naturally, the crop is slowly taken care of, and not infrequently warmer weather brings the work to an abrupt close. Others, more progressive, are thoroughly up-to-date, using the most improved machinery and tools. It goes without saying, that when the ice season is short, the latter are the ones who are most successful.

The men employed for the most part are from the army of the unemployed, those who find work dull when the ice season is on. The pay is small; generally a dollar and a half a day for the men employed on the lake, and two dollars for those engaged in storing the ice.

CLOTHING SALESMEN WANTED

$150.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES MADE BY ALL OUR ACTIVE MEN. WE PAY MANY FAR MORE. WE WANT MEN IN EVERY COUNTY IN THE UNITED STATES. If your reference is satisfactory we will start you at once. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. NO CAPITAL REQUIRED. We furnish a full line of samples, stationery, etc., and tailors-to-the-trade complete outfit ready for business. NO COMMISSION PLAN. You regulate your profits to suit yourself. NO HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS. This is not one of the many catchy advertisements for agents, but one of the very few advertisements offering a rare opportunity to secure a strictly HIGH GRADE EMPLOYMENT at BIG WAGES.

WE ARE THE WORLD'S LARGEST TAILORS. We buy our cloth direct from the LARGEST AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MILLS. We control the entire output of several of these mills. We own our materials at the lowest possible cost, and operate the most extensive and economic tailoring plant in existence, and cut to measure and make to order Suits and Overcoats from $5.00 to $15.00 (mostly $5.00 to $10.00). Pants from $1.50 to $5.00. Fancy Vests from $2.00 up. The days of ready-made clothing are numbered. AT THESE PRICES everyone will prefer to have his garments cut to his measure and made to his order. NO DIFFICULTY IN GETTING ORDERS.

OUR PLAN. If your references are satisfactory we start you out at once. We furnish you FREE a complete AGENT'S SAMPLE BOOK AND OUTFIT. Our large, handsome, leather bound Sample Book contains our entire line of Suitings, Overcoatings, Trouserings and Vestings; full instructions for taking measurements which you can learn in 5 minutes from the large photographic illustrations in the book), colored lithographed fashion plates, full description of the material underneath each sample, and prices left blank for you to fill in, fixing your profit to suit yourself. This Sample Book is put up in a Fine Canvas Carrying Case, which also contains Tape Measure, Order Blanks, Business Cards, Stationery, Advertising Matter and Agents' Guide and Instruction Book, with Net Confidential Price List, also complete "Salesman's Talk." Our instructions are so plain, our suggestions to the salesman so thorough, that anyone can immediately make a success of the work. YOU REQUIRE NOTHING. Just take the orders and send them to us; we make the garments promptly and send them by express, C. O. D. subject to examination, and if not perfectly satisfactory they can be returned to us at our expense. Neither the agent nor his customer assume the slightest risk. WE TAKE ALL THE CHANCES OF THE TRANSACTION. We either ship direct to your customers, collecting your full selling price and send you weekly check for all your profit; or, if you prefer, we ship direct to you at your net confidential price, allowing you to make your own collections.

YOU CAN ADD A LIBERAL PROFIT TO YOUR CONFIDENTIAL PRICE.

NEARLY ALL OUR MEN MAKE $40.00 EVERY WEEK IN THE YEAR.

THE OUTFIT IS ABSOLUTELY FREE. We make no charge for our complete Agent's Sample Book and Outfit, but in order to protect ourselves against many who might impose on us by sending for the outfit (which costs us between $5.00 and $6.00), with no intention of working, but merely out of idle curiosity, we require each applicant to cut this ad out and mail to us, giving the names of at least two parties as reference, and further agree to pay a temporary deposit of One Dollar and express charges for the outfit when received, if found exactly as represented and really a big money maker. While this nominal deposit of $1.00 for the outfit is not one-fifth of its cost it insures the good faith of applicants, and we promptly refund your $1.00 as soon as your sales amount to $25.00, which amount you can take the first day out.

IF YOU WISH TO MAKE $5.00 TO $20.00 EVERY DAY cut this notice out and mail to us at once, giving us the names of two or more men as reference. Address,

REFERENCES: Corn Exchange National Bank, Any Express or Railroad Co., Any business man or resident of Chicago.

AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO.
West Side Enterprise Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.
(This Company is thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

W21

DO YOU PLAY THE VIOLIN?

If so try our new importation of Violin Strings, from one of the best Makers in Europe. Full set of four strings, A. E. G. D. or 4 of any letter for only 10 cents, Stamps or Silver.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

100% Profit. Selling the most up to date and fastest selling bicycle article of the season. Retails for 15 cents. Send 20 cents to prepay charges and we will send full size sample and agents' terms. Griswold & Knapp, 504 Westminster St., Providence, R.I.

$8. SILK SKIRT BEST TAFFETA. Any Color FREE.
Agents Wanted. Send 4c. in stamps for Silks and information. Box O, HAZEL MFG. CO., Watertown, N.Y.

Spanish Mauser Rifles and Carbines in complete first-class serviceable order, captured in late war. 10,000 sold to us by U. S. Government, with five million ball cartridges in clips. Before exporting, we offer limited number at $10.00 each, packed for shipment. Cartridges, $3.00 per one hundred. F. Bannerman, 679 Broadway, New York, Dealer in Military Goods and War Relics.

AGENTS—LEWIS Harness Riviter. MARVELOUS INVENTION. Astonishing money saver, complete repair shop in one tool; every horse owner buys, failure impossible. Agents selling one to two dozen daily. Our free offer surprises everybody. Write for sample and catalogue of fast selling specialties free. Address A.H. LEWIS MFG. CO., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

$2.47

AMERICAN WATCH
Cut this out and send address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination, EXPRESS ALL PAID one beautiful 14k gold plated watch, stem wind and set. A guaranteed timekeeper. Boys' or Gent's size. Equal in appearance to a $35 gold filled watch; warranted for 20 years. If satisfied pay agent $2.47 Ladies' or Misses' size Watch, EXPRESS PAID, $2.95. W. HILL MDSE. CO. C 92 State St., CHICAGO.

THE "CLEAN CUT" CAKE TIN

prevents cakes from sticking and produces a perfect cake. Is made of best quality tin with a flat, thin knife, securely riveted in center and at rim. Simple and durable. Agents send 6 cts. postage for free sample. We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. Address Dept. X
HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.
This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.—Ed.

$83.33 MONTHLY SALARY PAYABLE WEEKLY with EXPENSES
Men or Women to represent us in their own state. Your duties to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. No investment required. Send stamp for application blank.
CO-OPERATIVE CO., 357 Star Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

WE SELL BUGGIES, SURREYS, CARRIAGES, LIGHT and HEAVY WAGONS at lower prices than any other house in America, quality considered; issue a two-year binding guarantee, and we ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for free Buggy Catalogue.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

ADDRESS The National Supply Co., Detroit, Mich., for their liberal offer to Boys and Girls.

FREE CURE for ASTHMA
Trial Package of three special medicines Free. DR. W. K. WALRATH, Box 505 ADAMS, N.Y.

WE PAY CASH.

$10.00 to $25.00 per week easily earned. Agents wanted everywhere. Girls and Boys you can earn good pay after school hours. CASH is better than imitation jewelry and fake prizes. It will buy you anything you want. You take NO RISK whatever, NO MONEY REQUIRED. We furnish everything. All we ask is good references as to character. Write for full particulars. THE ALPINE MFG. CO., 215 WEST 20TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

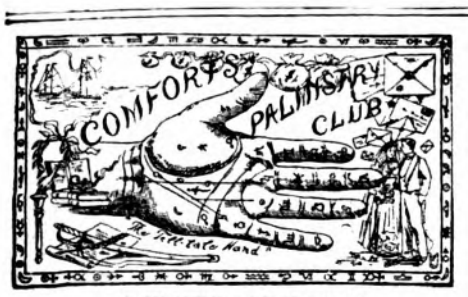
A GRAND
Household Outfit FREE.

Any one can learn to repair their tinware in fifteen minutes with our new and improved Handy Soldering Set. This new Set has full directions how to work it to the best advantage and you can save enough in one day by using this Set to keep one in Boots and Shoes for six months. Everything necessary to repair all kinds of tinware or used to put up canned fruits etc., comes with this set and we will send a Set to you free, all charges paid, if you enclose 25c. for one yearly subscription. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

Sent Free to Everybody!

The COMFORT HAMMOCK.

As a Reward for a little friendly service.



BOYS AND GIRLS:
Here's a happy hint for Summer,
And verily it is a "hummer."

We have 17,300 strong, perfect, Oriental, Hammocks, which for the next sixty days we shall place on the Free List, upon the conditions specified below. This will enable every one who is willing to render us a little service, to secure one absolutely free. These Hammocks are over 5 feet long, every one is tested to carry 300 lb. dead weight, is supplied with strong, white metal rings at the ends.

No home, picnic, camping, or outing party is complete without one. To recline in one of these health-giving articles in some cool nook after the day's work is done, or on a Sunday afternoon, is to repose in the lap of luxury.

Now to every one who will get up a club of 4 subscribers for this paper at the special trial price, 25 cents per year each in advance, we will send one of these Hammocks FREE, we paying all express and mailing charges. By showing a copy of this great paper to your neighbors, friends and acquaintances, you can easily get up a club in one evening; for with its many improvemens and new original copyrighted departments, now needs only to be seen to be appreciated. To those who do not care to go to the trouble of getting a club we will send our paper for one year, together with one of these Hammocks (all express and mailing charges paid by us) upon receipt of 97 cts. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to COMFORT PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

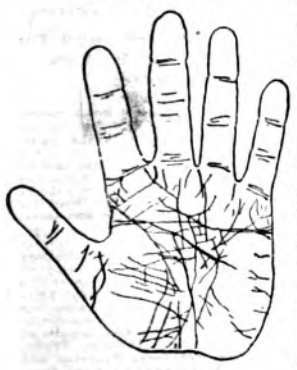
No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.



BEFORE taking up the reading of the hand, I will go on with the instructions which we started last month with regard to the lines of the hand. I have so many questions that this seems to be an answer to many general ones with regard to marks in the triangle. The triangle should be formed in the palm, or more properly called the plain of Mars, by junction of the head, life and health lines. If the health line is absent from the hand, a line must be drawn from base of life line to mount of Mercury. This angle is divided into three angles; upper at intersection of head and life line; inner angle, at line of head and health; lower angle at junction of health and life. Well formed and clear with pointed upper angle, is good luck and long life; badly formed shows a cowardly nature; sometimes when imperfect early in life, it will improve at maturity, showing that health is improved; a cross in triangle is an evil disposition; a crescent, a captious, fretful nature; a crescent joined to line of head, violent death caused by imprudence; crescent joined to line of health gives power; a star in triangle gives riches obtained at expense of health; the upper angle clear and sharp denotes refinement; blunt, a dull intellect; extremely pointed, envy, great finesse. Inner angle well defined, long life and intelligence; obtuse or blunt, uncouth; the lower angle not quite closed, good health; a coarse line with many rays, rude and lazy.

The quadrangle, the square defined between head and line of heart, under first and fourth fingers, should be of good width; not narrowing in the middle, but wide through its extent; it signifies folly; much filled with little lines, a weak nature; here we look for the croix mistique. A well-colored, well-formed star indicates truth and honor easily led by fair means, and such subjects make fortunes by their own merit; a line from this to mount of Mercury betokens patronage from those in power.

Close attention must be paid to signs in the palm. These signs are: A star is an event beyond our control, unavoidable and generally a danger, but whether good or bad depends on the line. When on line of fate it always means something important. We have already noted the signs of a star on the mounts: on the mount of Jupiter with a cross it is a marriage of high position; on the mount of Saturn, a great fatality; on the mount of Apollo, wealth with happiness; on mount of Mercury, theft and dishonesty in all things; on mount of Mars, violence and homicide; on mount of Moon, hypocrisy; at the base of the mount of Venus, misfortune by opposite sex; on the phalange of any finger, especially Saturn, is good luck; on third phalange of finger of Saturn, danger of assassination.

The square denotes power and protection; a square found enclosing a star is always a protection from the evil threatened; a square with red spot at each corner is protection from fire. It has but one evil signification when on mount of Venus close to life line; that is a warning of imprisonment of some sort.

A spot on a line denotes a malady or wound. The circle is rarely seen and has but one signification; when on mount of Apollo it means success; on any line it denotes a weakness of the organs.

"PHILIPPA."

The triangle denotes aptitude for science; on Jupiter diplomatic ability; on Saturn, occult sciences; on Apollo, science in art; on Mercury, a good politician; on Mars, science in warfare, a good general; and on mount of Venus greatly interested in love.

The cross indicates change of position in life and has already been noted in the lessons on the mounts and lines; the croix mistique is found only in the quadrangle. Its proper place is under the finger of Saturn; it emphasizes the qualities of that finger and mount; if joined to the line of fate, it foretells honors and good fortune in religious efforts and high attainments.

The grille indicates obstacles through the faults of a line or mount on which it is placed.

A correspondent from North Carolina asks if she may send the hands of several children to be read. I do not care to read the hands of children under fifteen, as in the case of growing children the lines are constantly changing and except with the principal lines, none of them are fixed. Cheiro has always said that he would read the hand of a new born baby, but not again until the child was at least twelve years old. You may send the hands of your children of fifteen or over.

"W. H. S., Jr." sends two small photographs of hands which were read in the October, 1899 number. Will he please explain what he wants done with these?

"Miss C. E. J." writes from one of the southern states asking about the reading of her hands. They were read in the January number under the initials of M. E. J. which she will please look up.

"Philippa" sends a very well-taken hand on which the lines stand out with beautiful clearness. Her life line is not as good as I could wish in the right hand, although it is much better in the left. It shows that she is very ambitious and high minded and that she will be very successful in all that she undertakes. She will be protected from some trouble or evil when she is about thirty, a square appearing both on the life and the fate line at that age. She has some special gifts as an artist or musician and will have good luck if she takes up platform work of any kind. She will have a fine career, having a life line that sweeps all before it, which is accomplished by a splendid line of Apollo. She will meet with some opposition and some trouble between the ages of twenty and thirty-five, but her splendid courage and perseverance will carry her victorious through everything and she will live to be known and honored far and wide for her many good qualities and her exceptional talents. She will marry, not far from twenty-five or thirty, and that marriage will last some fifteen years or perhaps a little more, when it will be broken off suddenly, causing her considerable grief at the time. She will rise superior to it, however, and after that will win fame and riches. She will have more or less trouble from affairs of the heart but these will not in any way impede her real success in life. A decided change will come into her life about the age of forty to forty-five, which will be for the better. I cannot say just what it will be, but there is something quite marked in store at that age. Hers is a very positive character and she is of a decided makeup. She knows her own mind and will not be afraid to speak it. She is perhaps lacking a little in tact, but her good qualities are such that she will make friends in spite of this lack. The lines on the ends of her fingers are decidedly peculiar and worthy the study of Mark Twain, Puddin' Head Wilson. On the whole hers is a very fortunate hand, signifying honor, a fine reputation, wealth, marriage and many journeys, which will be successful in their nature.

The hands sent by "Safety" are so badly blurred that it is impossible to read them. Will she send another set and endeavor to get them in better shape for reading? In the mean time I will hold these until I hear from her.

Digitus

Do You Want a Buggy?

If you have any use for a fine open or top buggy, surrey, phaeton or spring wagon at the lowest price ever heard of, a price that will surprise you, privilege of free trial and payable after received, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, Ill., and they will mail you their very latest and extremely interesting vehicle offer and special catalogue.

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best collection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a FREE present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

FREE SEND NO MONEY. Simply send your name & address & we will send you two dozen of our Sweet Perfume Packets to sell at 10c each, when sold send us the money & we will send all of the above 7 prizes free. Here they are: One Beautifully engraved link Bracelet with lock & key. 1 Brooch, very fine & stylish. 1 Scarf pin, 3 Rings—two of them set with beautiful Jewels. 1 pair link Cuff Buttons. All of these 7 articles are SOLID GOLD plated & the latest style. This is the best offer in this paper. We run all the risk & will take back what you cannot sell. We will send you an extra beautiful Solid Gold plated Ring, set with a simulative Diamond or Ruby free, if you will write to-day. Don't let the others get ahead of you. LEONIN CO., Dept. 110. St. Louis, Mo.

HAIR SWITCH 65 CENTS.

WE SELL HUMAN HAIR SWITCHES to match any hair at from 65c to $3.25, the equal of switches that retail at $2.00 to $8.00.

OUR OFFER: Cut this ad out and send to us, inclose a good sized sample of the exact shade wanted, and cut it out as near the roots as possible, inclose our special price quoted and 5 cents extra to pay postage, and we will make the switch to match your hair exact, and send to you by mail, postpaid, and if you are not perfectly satisfied, return it and we will immediately refund your money.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE AS FOLLOWS: 2-oz. switch, 20-in. long, long stem, 65c; short stem, 90c; 2-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.25; 3-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.50; 3-oz. 24-in. long, short stem, $2.25; 3½-oz. 26-in. long, short stem, $3.25. WE GUARANTEE OUR WORK the highest grade on the market. Order at once and get these special prices. Your money returned if you are not pleased. Write for Free Catalogue of Hair Goods. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

DISEASE—A CRIME.

Prof. S. A. Weltmer, the Great Magnetic Healer, Demonstrates That All Disease Can Be Cured Without the Aid of Medicines or the Surgeon's Knife.

"WELTMER, THE MAN of the HOUR"

Prof. S. A. Weltmer, the eminent scientist of Nevada, Mo., who originated that Method of Magnetic Healing known as Weltmerism, and which is indorsed by both the press and the pulpit, has demonstrated that disease is a crime. In a recent interview he stated "A crime is a breach, whether a breach of moral principles, of law or of nature, it is still a crime. Now, disease is a breach of nature, brought on by either an abuse of nature or by not following nature's edict, and whether this breach be in commission or in omission, nature, like the State, demands a penalty. Now I wish to demonstrate that at the present time the existing of disease is a double-headed crime, first by its appearance, second by its continuation, for there is no disease, no matter how hopeless it may seem or of how long standing, that cannot be cured, therefore, to continue in disease is a crime, not only to oneself but to posterity yet to come. Now we have demonstrated by scientific researches that disease is a product produced by human hands, and is unnatural, therefore it can again be remedied by human hands. The reason that the method which I have originated has had such phenomenal success is because it acts in a perfectly natural manner, without the aid of either drugs or the surgeon's knife, by going to the very seat of the trouble, and placing the constitution in a robust condition, it cures all disease, no matter whether chronic or acute. Take for instance woman who in the majority of cases is placed upon the rack of torture, simply because those organs which make her a woman are in an unnatural condition. Through Weltmerism they are placed in that condition which nature and God meant them to be, thereby dispelling the pain and agony which so often comes with the monthly period; it also dispels all danger during that critical period known as change of life. In fact it is the only positive cure for all female troubles. Then, again, take man in that weakened condition which is called Lost Manhood, and in my experience I have had thousands of men place themselves under my treatment who have been almost drugged to death by nostrums they saw advertised, and I am proud to say that I have been able to perfect a cure in every instance." We cannot but believe with Prof. Weltmer that to allow disease to continue is a crime. Our reason for coming to this belief is that it has now been demonstrated that there is a cure for all diseases. For Weltmerism has been given more severe tests than has any curative power known to man, and the fact that it has cured more than 100,000 men and women from every disease known, is positive proof that Weltmerism will cure when all else fails. The most remarkable features about Weltmerism, is that part known as the Absent Treatment, which annihilates space and cures disease, no matter at what distance the patient may live. We take great pleasure in publishing here a few of the many thousand testimonials that are in the hands of Prof. J. H. Kelly, the eminent co-laborer of Prof. Weltmer: T. T. Rodes of Paris, Mo., the Prosecuting Attorney of Monroe County, suffered for years with Sciatic Rheumatism. Tried everything without benefit. Was instantly cured through Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. Mrs. C. R. Graham of Boise City, Iowa, was afflicted for nine years with rheumatism; she could not walk without crutches or lift her hands to her head; she paid out $3000 with doctors before coming to Nevada. She now proclaims herself cured and a happy woman, through Weltmerism. Mrs. D. H. Allen of Aurora Springs, Mo., was in a hopeless condition, as she suffered from consumption in its worst form. She could not sleep without the aid of morphine. Tried everything without relief. Fully restored by Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment. D. E. Alford of Rubens, Jewell County, Kan., suffered for three years with Kidney and Stomach troubles; tried the best medical authorities, but was told that his case was hopeless. Took Prof. Weltmer's Absent Treatment and in three days was cured. Mrs. Jennie L. Lynch, Lakeview, Mo., was for two years afflicted with ulceration of the womb, heart and stomach troubles and general debility; was reduced to a mere skeleton. After taking gallons of obnoxious medicines without relief, she tried the Weltmer Absent Treatment. In less than thirty days she was entirely relieved and gained fifteen pounds. Weltmerism is undoubtedly the greatest discovery of the age, and the Absent Treatment of this wonderful science is indeed a revelation, for through it Prof. Weltmer can reach all classes of people, no matter at what distance they live. By writing Prof. S. A. Weltmer, Nevada, Mo., you will receive, free of charge, The Magnetic Journal, a 40-page illustrated Magazine, and a long list of the most remarkable cures ever made.

PROF. WELTMER.

TEACHES HIS METHOD TO OTHERS.

PROF. J. H. KELLY.

Prof. S. A. Weltmer the originator of this marvelous method, will teach the art to others how to cure every known disease without the aid of drugs or the surgeon's knife. Anyone who desires can learn this noble profession. Anyone who learns can practice it. He has abundantly proven this by the large number who have been instructed by him and who are in the active practice of healing by his method. He will teach you in ten days, either by mail or personal instruction, his wonderful method, through which wealth and fame can be earned. Full instructions will be sent free of charge to anyone writing to Prof. J. H. Kelly, Sec'y, Nevada, Mo.

FREE. WRITE TO-DAY. will be immediately forwarded. Address,

156 PIECE CHINA TEA & DINNER SET FREE

Full size for family use. Serviceable and Ornamental. You can get this if you take advantage of our offer sent to every person selling six packages of Fertiline—a wonderful odorless Fertilizer for home plants, put up in tablet form, for use in water, makes plants bloom. If you agree to sell six packages of Fertiline at 25c. a package, write to-day & we will mail same post-paid. When sold, send us the money, and ½ dozen full size silver-plated Forks, also our offer of this handsome China Tea & Dinner Set

THE FERTILINE CO., Dept. AY5, New Haven, Conn.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

1200 Dollars Given Away

A	C	D
E	E	E
H	L	M
N	O	P
S	S	S
W	Y	Y

CAN YOU arrange the 18 letters at the left into three names denoting THREE WELL-KNOWN ADMIRALS of the U. S. NAVY during the SPANISH WAR? If you can make out these names you may share in THE DISTRIBUTION OF 1200 DOLLARS WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best Boston Story Magazines into every house in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out your answer, write it plainly on a post al card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take considerable study to get the three correct names, BUT STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE 1200 DOLLARS. A COPY OF A CELEBRATED DOLLAR BOSTON MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to every one answering this advertisement. Send your answer immediately. Address: THE RIGLEY PUBLISHING COMPANY, 88 and 90 Purchase Street, BOSTON, MASS.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

for selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc., etc., and will send you six of our 25c. Plasters which you are to sell and return the money ($1.50) to us and we will send you all charges paid, the elegant Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single value, $3.00; 1 Genuine, Horschide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; 1 Cake Perfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address

THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 654, Augusta, Maine.

CONFECTION, FOOD, MEDICINE.

[TRADE MARK.]

Two Thousand Packages Shelled Peanuts SENT FREE.

SELL 12 PACKAGES AND GET A WATCH.

The art of shelling and salting peanuts has just reached perfection. As a confection they are peerless, as a food unequaled. German scientists have spent years experimenting with Peanut flour. It is found to contain three times the nutriment of wheat; and whole salted peanuts, being so much more palatable than wheat, have also been found with a slight addition of Pepsin Salt to be a sure cure for Dyspepsia and other stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Yes, even persons with Bright's Disease or Diabetes can now be cured. It is only necessary for old or young to eat a few of our Pepsin Salted Peanuts after meals to keep in perfect health—but they can also be eaten in any quantity as a confection without the least distress or trouble to the weakest stomach. Children delight to feast on them and they are much better than candy. They also cure Heart Burn and Insomnia.

To Form Part of the Treat or Refreshments at party gatherings, sociables, etc., they are indispensable, and to have them on the table as dessert is the best of form. Everyone, both old and young, now wants a few in the pocket at all times to nibble on—for with all the troublesome oils properly treated as they are in our special process of Curing and Roasting Peanuts, they have at last lost all terrors to weak stomachs, and are warranted not to become rancid, and to keep well in any climate.

FREE We will send two thousand packages of these Pepsin Salted Peanuts out to responsible parties who furnish proper references. You sell 12 ten-cent packages and get a watch, a guaranteed good timekeeper. But to first introduce them quickly we send one package as a sample free to any one enclosing six cents for a three months' subscription to COMFORT. FREE

You can then test them and see how many packages you want to start with. No attention paid to first orders without trial 6c subscription. Write at once and be among the first to get the free packages.

Address, COMFORT FOOD DEP'T L, Augusta, Maine.

Impressions of a Sailor of the Samoan Isles in 1839.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE acquisition of Tutuilla by the United States Government resulting from the partition of the Samoan Isles lends interest to the first official visit paid these islands in 1839 and the impressions then made by this now acquired American territory.

The following account is from the journal of a marine on board the flag-ship Vincennes of Wilkes' Exploring Expedition, the first one sent out by this Government, and which visited these islands in 1839 and added to our knowledge of these heretofore seldom visited waters. Due credit has never been given Commodore Charles Wilkes, under whose able leadership this pioneer voyage was so successfully made, bringing to our traders and whalers reliable information upon which to base their voyages; and to the scientific world of the day knowledge of the wonders below the Antarctic circle as well as of the tropical islands towards which the eyes of the world are now turned.

"1839. October 12th. Commences clear and pleasant with light breezes. At 10 o'clock A. M. came up with the Island of Tutuilla, one of the Navigator Islands, and at 4 o'clock came to anchor in Pango Pango Bay, south side of Tutuilla.

October 13th. Commences clear and pleasant with a fine wind. Not a canoe is seen to ruffle the surface of this beautiful bay. It is the Sabbath here and everything is hushed and still. Weather fine and exhilarating. 10 o'clock divine service was performed by our Chaplain. The natives of the Navigators resemble those of the Society in their complexion and features, but there is material difference between their language. Their huts are built in the same shape and constructed of the same material. I saw many females engaged in the domestic occupations, such as making mats, tapa and fishing nets, etc. In some parts of the island polygamy is still practiced, but at this village it is openly discountenanced by all the chiefs and people. No man is allowed to have more than one wife. The missionaries, of course, have been the cause of abolishing this practice. The whole mass of the native population in this part of the island seem to be fast advancing to a state of civilization. Their minds seem high, susceptible of cultivation and a thirst for knowledge seems universal among them, especially at this village. The missionaries have made a great change in the morals of these people in a very short time. Mr. Murray is the missionary at this station; polished gentleman he is too. He is devoted to the missionary cause and indefatigable in his labors to ameliorate the condition of these poor savages. He has two flourishing schools here, in each about three hundred scholars. He is assisted by native teachers in each school whom he has taught since he came among them. His wife, Mrs. Murray, seems equally interested in the missionary cause and is at the head of a female seminary where she teaches the native women the mode of manufacturing their clothes and making straw bonnets, in which some of them have become quite proficient. I saw many of the natives dressed very neat in their own manufacture. They present quite a pleasing contrast to their neighbors, the "Devil Tribe," who reside only a short distance from them. This tribe has refused to receive instruction from the missionary and still remain in their primitive state and this only a few miles off; they never visit their Christian neighbors.

On the following Sunday, after our arrival, Mr. Murray preached on board this ship. He was accompanied by his wife and missionaries from other stations on the island.

October 25th. At 9 o'clock got underway and stood out to sea with a fine wind. At 11 o'clock the same day, land was reported from the masthead. This was a small, unimportant island which we passed without examining it.

October 27th. Commences clear and pleasant. 10 o'clock, cloudy with frequent showers of rain. 11 o'clock, arrived off the northern end of the island and stood along the coast only a few miles from the land. At noon arrived off the harbor of Apia. Found our consort, the "Peacock" at anchor here and the missionary brig Campden. This is by far the most fertile and handsomest island in the group. The land rises gradually from the seashore until it breaks into mountains and ridges which are covered with green verdure almost to their summit. The shore abounds in table lands beautifully sprinkled and variegated with clumps, groves and single trees of the breadfruit, pandanus and cocoanut trees forming thickly and deeply shaded bowers overhanging the habitations of the natives. Several villages are scattered along the coast with here and there the residence of a missionary and missionary chapel.

At 4 o'clock Capt. Wilkes and Purser Waldron left the ship for the Peacock, she having sailed from Pango Pango bay two days previous to us.

October 28th. Commences with light winds and pleasant weather. Standing on and off the harbor of Apia, waiting orders from Capt. Wilkes, who is still absent from the ship. At 4 o'clock he returned and immediately after squared away and ran into harbor and came to anchor in 12 fathoms water.

November 3rd. Commences with pleasant breezes and fine weather. To-day Mr. Williams, missionary, preached a very eloquent and pointed sermon from the 19th chapter, 2nd verse of Proverbs. "Also, that the soul be without knowledge it is not good, and he that hasteneth with his feet sinneth." Mr. Williams is, so far as I am able to judge, a good preacher; he is at least a good orator. Mr. Williams was accompanied by his lady and several missionaries. After having taken of refreshments, which were prepared for them in the cabin, they visited the different parts of the ship in company with Capt. Wilkes, and returned on shore soon after.

On the following day we were visited by the Chief of the Christian party, accompanied by his wife and two fine, interesting girls, and a number of inferior chiefs and attendants. The principal chief is a man of middle stature, about thirty years of age and of copper color. He was attired in a round jacket made of blue cloth, pantaloons of the same, a white vest, white shirt and fur hat, with shoes, constituted his whole dress. His wife was dressed in a calico frock, straw bonnet, but wore no shoes. She was very large, prominent abdomen and rather obese. Her husband looked like a boy by her side. The two daughters were more gayly attired. They wore gingham frocks with waist ribbons and straw bonnets. The inferior chief and attendant wore no clothing, except a tapa around the loins. They behaved themselves much better than might have been expected of people so lately emerged from pagan darkness. After visiting the different parts of the ship they were entertained in the board room where a collation had been prepared for them. They ate heartily but used the wine sparingly.

On the following day the High Chief, attended by a number of inferior chiefs, dined in the cabin. They were attended by Mr. John Williams, Jr., as interpreter. Several "big guns" were fired, which somewhat alarmed him at the first fire. He made his way upon deck but was soon reconciled by Mr. Williams, who assured him that no harm would befall him. After, Capt. Wilkes and Capt. Hudson with several of the officers accompanied the King and chiefs on shore to the mission house, where from one to two thousand natives had assembled to witness the exercise of small arms of a party of our mariners and seamen, who had been sent on shore for that purpose, to the number of about one hundred and fifty men. I was astonished to see such an assemblage of natives, mostly dressed in the native costume, with no clothing but a piece of tapa around their loins. At first they crowded upon us very much, but at a signal from the old chief they retreated and took up their positions at a sufficient distance to allow us room for exercising, marching, firing, etc. Several rounds of blank cartridges were fired in regular order, which much pleased the natives.

On the same evening Mr. John Williams, Jr., was appointed American Consul or agent for the Samoa group and the American flag hoisted over his house.

This extensive and populous group is situated in the south Pacific Ocean, and extends four degrees east and west.

It was discovered on the 4th of May, 1678, by the French circumnavigator, Bouganville, who gave it the name it now bears, most probably on account of the superior construction of their canoes and their surprising dexterity in the water. The group is called by the natives Samoa, and consists of eight islands, Manua, Orogangi, Ofu, Tutuilla, Upolu, Manona, Aborima and Savaii. In addition to these there are several small islands off the coast of Tutuilla and Upolu. In the year 1788 this group was visited by the unfortunate La Parouse, whose colleague, M. de Langle, and a number of his men lost their lives by being barbarously murdered by the natives. This tragical act conveyed such an impression of their treachery and ferocity as deterred subsequent voyagers from returning among them and for many years appear not to have been visited by any vessel from the civilized world, until a very late period when a missionary station was established here and the Rev. Mr. Williams was among the number who first filled this station. Tutuilla or Tootooilla, the first of the Navigator Islands which was visited, is about fifteen miles from Orogangi west in 171 degrees west longitude and 14 degrees and 20 minutes south latitude. This is a fine, romantic island of from eighty to one hundred miles in circumference. It was here that the unfortunate M. de Langle lost his life, and on this account the bay in which he was murdered received the name of Massacre Bay. In passing down the coast you pass some fine bays, the most conspicuous is Pango Pango, in which our squadron rendezvoused while engaged in surveying this island. Into this bay vessels of almost any moderate size may run in and anchor there in perfect safety, except during a strong south gale.

Upolo, the next island in circumference is about one hundred to one hundred and twenty miles. The mountains on this island are very high and in clear weather may be seen fifty or sixty miles. These are richly covered with verdure to their summit, and in the north-east parts of the island they present a variety in their form and character, which in some situations renders their appearance romantic and sublime, in others soft, luxuriant and beautiful. It has been stated that there were no harbors in this group but at this island alone we found three and surveyed them. The one at Apia, in which we anchored, is commodious, spacious and safe, and as it faces to the north it admits, with the prevailing trade winds, of easy ingress and egress. The bottom is sandy and at twenty-five yards from the beach there is about five fathoms of water. A river runs into the bay so that any quantity of fresh water may be obtained of an excellent quality."

These were a sailor's impressions sixty years ago. Not a scientific but a wholesome, hearty American view of territory then so far away and really little known.

These were days of sails, not steam, and who could have believed at that day that any member of that expedition would survive to see this beautiful bay of Pango Pango an American harbor, a half-way station as it were, to our greater possessions in this vast Pacific.

And yet there are at least two men perhaps living, who were of this gallant six hundred who comprised the "Wilkes' Exploring Expedition," one, Thomas Sinclair of Oxford, Maryland, the owner of this journal from which I have drawn, and the other a New Englander who came to Maryland to talk over this momentous voyage with Mr. Sinclair in the summer of 1898.

$5.85

Im. 17 JEWELED

adjusted, patent regulator, stem wind and stem set, genuine

NATIONAL SPECIAL

movement. Ladies' or Gents' size. WARRANTED 20 YEARS. 14K. Gold plate hunting case, elegantly engraved. Fit for a king. No better watch made. Must be seen to be appreciated. Special Offer for next 60 days, send your full name and address and we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent $5.85 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and charm sent free with every watch. Write at once as this may not appear again.

NAT'L MFG. & IMPORTING CO., 324 Dearborn St., B 318, Chicago, Ill.

This Cut is 1-2 Actual Size of Watch and Chain.

Watch and Chain FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

We send this Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm to Boys and Girls for selling 1½ dozen packages of BLUINE at 10c. each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, postpaid, and a large Premium List.

No money required. We send the Bluine at our own risk. You go among your neighbors and sell it. Send us the money that you get for it and we send you the Watch, Chain and Charm, prepaid.

This is an American Watch, Nickel-Plated Case, Open Face, Heavy Bevelled Crystal. It is Guaranteed to keep Accurate Time, and with Proper Care should last ten years.

BLUINE CO., Box 418, CONCORD JUNCTION, MASS.

The Old Reliable firm who sell honest goods and give Valuable Premiums.

CALENDAR ECCENTRICITIES.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE fact that our earth revolves around the sun once in 365 days and a fraction has given our makers of calendars no end of trouble. It is the little fraction that makes all the bother. If this troublesome part of a day were exactly one-quarter, the matter could have been easily adjusted, as in the Julian calendar, by adding one day every four years. This extra day, by the way, was greatly feared by the Romans, for it was supposed to be sacred to the God of death, and in order to deceive this divinity they slipped it in between two other days, calling it "bisextillus." Hence the leap year came to be called a "bisextille". The practice of adding one day every four years, however, made the year too long by 3 days in 400 years.

This was remedied to some extent in the Gregorian calendar. According to this, every fourth year was reckoned as a bisextille year, with the exception of the years at the beginning of each century. These were made to contain 365 days with the exception of the one at the beginning of every fourth century, which was called a leap year. Even this causes the years to vary to the extent of one day in 3400 years.

Now an ingenious mathematician comes forward, with a scheme for still further correcting this error. He proposes to call all years divisible by 4 leap years, except those divisible by 128. Though this is not exact, still the years would, under this plan of reckoning, be too short by only one day in 30,000 years; near enough for all practical purposes, we will all agree.

IT is said that the tortoise is not at all pleased to get caught out in the rain; twenty-four hours before rainfall, the tortoise will seek a convenient shelter and will not stir out until all is clear again. This presentation which often exists in many beasts and birds, may be partially explained from the increased weight of the atmosphere when rain is forming.

Suits to Measure $6.00 to $12.00

BIG LINE. $6.00 TO $12.00.

GOOD ASSORTMENT up to $18.00. We send them to anyone, to be paid for after received, tried on and found perfect in fit and entirely satisfactory; a class of fine tailoring possessing a distinctiveness in Style, Workmanship, Finish and Fit seldom found outside of the most fashionable city tailoring establishments. FOR SAMPLES OF CLOTH of our ENTIRE LINE of CUSTOM TAILORING Suitings, Trouserings, Fancy Vestings, etc., also tape measure, fashion plate, plain, simple self-measurement blanks, cut this ad. out and send to us with 2-cent stamp to pay postage and COMPLETE OUTFIT WILL BE SEND TO YOU POSTPAID.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) CHICAGO, ILL.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

REMNANTS OF SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

We have purchased, at recent wholesale auction sale several large lot of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure splendid bargains. These remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the finest quality of Ribbons in the market, of different widths, in a variety of fashionable shades; in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bonnet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bows, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Satin Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of our lady friends.

We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors. No remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3044, New York City, N. Y.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK.

Containing all the different varieties of Fowls, their points of beauty, their merits as LAYERS OR SITTERS—with complete instructions as to How to RAISE POULTRY FOR PLEASURE OR PROFIT, the best soil on which to keep them, HOW TO FEED, MANAGEMENT of LAYERS and SITTERS—INCUBATORS—care of mother. How to bring up the chicks, improved manner of CURING ALL DISEASES in POULTRY together with minute instructions on ARTIFICIAL INCUBATION, the best incubators—how to work them.

Not only can the LARGE farmer find valuable information in this book which will be PROFITABLE—but the MAN or WOMAN who has but an ACRE of land can find immense INFORMATION that will surely bring a large profit in POULTRY RAISING. It tells HOW TO CROSS PROFITABLY. How to make selection for EGGS or for FATTENING, to increase laying, care of eggs and PACKING for MARKET. Special chapter on TURKEYS and GEESE, their care and how to fatten for market or home supply. VERMIN in poultry, how to destroy. How to improve LOSS OF APPETITE. BEST Breeds for MARKET, HOW to set a BROKEN LEG, CAPONIZING, COOKING for POULTRY, care of EXHIBITION birds. GAME FOWLS and killing for table. To PREVENT Laying. Manure—Marking CHICKENS, MILK for chickens, NESTS for Laying. Number of DUCKS to DRAKE, number of HENS to COCK, Pen for BREEDING STOCK, PRIZE POULTRY, their treatment, ROOFS, ROOSTING, RUNS, SAWDUST, Forchtling sex of chicks, SHELTER Hurdles, SPRING CHICKENS, SPANISH FOWLS. How to cure WEAKNESS after sitting, DICTIONARY of POULTRY TERMS, etc., etc. The BEST and CHEAPEST book EVER published, size 8x5½ inches, substantial paper cover, price 25cts., postpaid, including one year's subscription to the grandest monthly on earth. Send us 40c. for 2 books and 2 six months' subscriptions, or best of all 6 Books and 6 six months' subscriptions for one dollar. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

144 PIECE DINNER SET FREE

Full size for family use beautifully decorated & most artistic design. A rare chance. You can get this handsome dinner set and one dozen fine plated tea spoons for selling our Pills. We mean what we say & will give this beautiful dinner set absolutely free if you comply with the extraordinary offer we send to every person taking advantage of this advertisement. To quickly introduce our Vegetable Pills, a sure cure for constipation, indigestion & torpid liver, if you agree to sell only six boxes of Pills at 25 cts. a box write to-day and we send Pills by mail, when sold send us the money & we send you one dozen plated tea spoons together with our offer of a 144 piece dinner set same day money is received. This is a liberal inducement to every lady in the land & all who received the spoons & dinner set for selling our Pills are delighted.

AMERICAN MEDICINE COMPANY, DEPT. D, 32 WEST 13th STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

"THAT NOBLE ANIMAL, THE HORSE." YOU WANT IT.

THE GREATEST and BEST BOOK EVER WRITTEN on HORSES.

A Gold Mine of Interest and Information by Which You Save Dollars.

Prof. Oscar Gleason, the greatest horse owner, trainer and breaker that ever lived in America has at last consented to write a book on the Horse. We have made arrangement to furnish copies of this valuable work to all lovers of horses, and we call your attention to the great value of this unparalleled work which should be in every home and stable in the land. Gleason's Horse Book is a large handsomely bound book of over 400 pages, printed on pure white paper in large, clear type, bound in colored covers and richly and elegantly illustrated with 186 full plates and illustrations drawn by special artists. It is the most complete horse book ever published, produced under the direction of the United States Government Veterinary Surgeon. In this book Prof. Gleason has given to the world for the first time his wonderful methods of training and treating horses. It contains chapters on History, Education, Teaching Tricks, How to Buy, Feeding, Breeding, Breaking and Taming, How to Detect Unsoundness, Care, Cost, Invaluable Study of the Diseases and Treatment of the animal. plete Instructions in Proper Horse shoeing and one This part alone is worth many times the value of the is a clossal compendium of facts every person ought Concise and Captivating. Order one to-day and you Horse Book is found in the libraries of the wealthy book and will save horse owners hundreds of dollars every year. It to know who is in any way interested in horses. Nothing left out. Clear, will never regret it; it is a whole Library on Horses in itself. Gleason's and has always been sold as high as $3.00 a volume until now.

SEE HOW TO GET IT. To introduce our monthly paper into homes where an interest is taken in horses we will send a copy of Prof. Gleason's Horse Book, de- scribed above, to every person who will send thirty-three cents to pay all shipping charges and for a trial six months' subscription to our paper. Great Club Premium. If you will get up a club of only two yearly subscribers to this paper at the special trial subscription price of 25 cents each we will send you the book as a free premium.

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

RAMEQUIN dishes were probably first used for serving various kinds of cheese dishes, but they are now as often used for serving meats, fish and puddings. Our initial shows a covered ramequin dish, which is very pretty in coloring; those generally used for baking are uncovered, and cost five cents, but these covered ones are used where the food has already been cooked and is simply served in these dishes, which are easy to eat from, as the handle is convenient—quite different from the shells in which so many things are served, for the latter have a disagreeable way of sliding all over the plate, and there is nothing to hold them by. This difficulty is obviated somewhat, however, by serving the shells on a napkin or doiley, on a plate.

We give a recipe for chicken, to be cooked in the individual ramequin dishes, and served in the same.

Melt two tablespoons butter, cook in it two tablespoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt and a little pepper; then add half a cup each of cream and chicken stock. When boiling, remove from the fire and beat in two well beaten eggs and one pint chopped chicken. Turn the mixture into buttered ramequin dishes and bake, standing in a pan of hot water, about twenty minutes. The water should be kept below the boiling point. In serving, set the dishes on doiley-covered plates. Fish of any kind may be used in place of the chicken, if desired.

A new way for serving salad is shown in our illustration called the ice-bowl. This is not simply a square of ice just as it comes from the refrigerator, but has special shape, which is arrived at by filling a mould with water and letting it freeze solid; then take a flatiron hot, and with it melt out the center of the ice so as to form a bowl of any depth desired, according to the amount of salad to be served. In this opening place lettuce leaves and then fill in with the salad, whether chicken, lobster, potato or vegetable. We give a recipe for oyster and cabbage salad, which may be new to some.

Scald a pint of oysters, and when they are plump drain and cool. Dress with mayonnaise and arrange in the ice bowl on the lettuce leaves alternately with a pint of sliced cabbage that has been chilled in ice water, dried and dressed with mayonnaise. Set the ice bowl upon a folded napkin and garnish with parsley, curled celery or lettuce.

This ice-bowl is also a delicate way for serving fruit salad, as fruit is always so much more appetizing when cold. A fruit pudding made of sliced oranges, bananas and pineapple, served with whipped cream is delicious, and of course in the berry season one of strawberries and raspberries is equally delicate.

Frozen apricots, served in the ice-bowl, make a particularly attractive dish, as the color is different from any other fruit ice. For this, take three cans of apricots, remove the skins and cut in small pieces; pass the syrup through a cheese cloth, add the pulp and three pints sugar and three quarts of water and stir until the sugar is dissolved; then freeze, as any ice cream.

Charlotte russe is a delicate and very much enjoyed sweet by most people, but the way in which it is served, usually, takes away some of the daintiness, as it smacks of the restaurant. Of course we refer to the paper cases. Now charlotte may be made at home and served in a much daintier form, as we have shown in our illustration.

Beat the yolks of four eggs until thick and light-colored; add gradually one cup powdered sugar and the stiffly beaten whites of the four eggs, one-third cup grated chocolate, half a cup of blanched and powdered almonds and three-quarters of a cup of cracker crumbs, very fine, mixed with a teaspoonful baking powder. Bake in small buttered tins for twenty-five minutes. Cut out the centre from each cake and fill with sweetened and flavored whipped cream; decorate the top with candied violets or cherries.

ICE BOWL.

Now for a few new recipes.

MAPLE SUGAR BISCUIT.

Sift together one quart flour, one teaspoon salt, three level tablespoons baking powder, and work in two tablespoons butter; then mix to a dough with milk or milk and water. Roll out with a rolling pin and spread with maple sugar and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut from the ends in rounds and bake in a buttered pan serving hot with butter.

HICKORY NUT COOKIES.

Thoroughly beat three eggs; add one cup chopped hickory meats, a cup and a half of sugar, three-quarters cup melted butter and one teaspoon soda and three cups flour, sifted together. Roll out into a thin sheet, cut with cutter and bake in a moderate oven.

SOFT HERMITS.

Cream half a cup butter; add gradually one cup sugar, half a cup seeded and chopped raisins, two tablespoons flour sifted with half a teaspoon each of cinnamon, mace and nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon cloves; add two eggs well beaten, half a cup of milk, flour, sifted with two teaspoons baking-powder, to make a soft dough. Roll out, cut in rounds and bake in a hot oven.

CANDIED VIOLETS.

Cook a pound and a quarter of sugar to the soft-ball stage, remove from the fire and add a pound of violets, which have previously been dipped into cold water and dried. Return the sugar to the fire and let it boil up once, pressing the flowers down into the syrup; turn onto a cold dish. The next day drain on a sieve; to the syrup add half a cup of sugar and cook again to the soft ball stage; put in the flowers and set aside for twelve hours; drain again, heat to the boiling point and add the violets. Remove from fire and stir lightly until the syrup begins to grain; then pour on sheets of paper; shake the flowers to separate them, or pull them apart with the fingers.

PEANUT COOKIES.

Cream one-fourth cup butter; add gradually half a cup of sugar and three-quarters of a cup of peanuts pounded fine, one egg beaten, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons milk, and one cup flour into which two teaspoons baking powder have been sifted. Drop the mixture onto buttered pans, a teaspoonful in each place. Garnish the top of each with a piece of the nut.

CREAM CHEESE BALLS.

To one cup cream cheese add one tablespoon flour, one-fourth teaspoon each of salt and paprica; then add the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff. Make into small balls, roll in fine cracker crumbs, fry in deep fat and drain on soft paper.

PEANUT SOUP.

Cook two cups shelled peanuts with a slice of onion and stalk of celery until tender; put through a sieve, reheat with one pint white stock and stir into a white sauce made of one-fourth cup each of butter and flour and a pint of milk. Season with salt and pepper.

CHARLOTTE RUSSE.

SCOTCH WAFERS.

Mix one-fourth cup rolled oats, one-fourth cup oatmeal, half a cup flour, one tablespoon sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and with the tips of the fingers work in two tablespoons butter; add hot water to make a stiff dough, knead slightly and roll into a thin sheet; cut with small cutter and bake on buttered sheets in a moderate oven.

All our recipes call for level measurements.

THE early settlers in California were familiar with the existence of oil, which was seen at various points along the coast; asphaltum, also, oozed up from beds at the bottom of the sea and formed an important factor in household economy. Oil wells were sunk at Santa Paula some years ago, and later an oil-producing belt was discovered below Santa Barbara, when it was found that the stratum stretched far out into the sea; then the drill scaffolding was set in the water, work being started at extremely low tide, and finally the tall scaffolding appeared 30 feet from the shore, rising out of the water; the men work on platforms which are built at different heights, which they successively ascend as the tide rises. The drills are worked in the water from the engine on the beach, the fuel being the oil pumped up. Farther out in the water, in this same locality, oil rises to the surface in many places, and a spring of fresh water also rushes up with such velocity that it can be taken up and used.

THE MARLBOROUGH CAMEOS.

The famous Marlborough cameos have arrived at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Mass., and the collection is very rare and beautiful. The choicest one was the work of an engraver before the time of Alexander the Great, and for this one gem the price of $10,000 was paid. It is the finest cameo in the world, measuring six inches by five and a half. It represents the hymeneal procession of Cupid and Psyche. The relief is in flesh color on a background of black, and the designer was Tyonpihr.

A POCKET MIRROR.

See yourself as others see you. One of our large imitation aluminum covered pocket mirrors for the boys and girls at school, for the teachers, for men in the woods. Just 5 cents for one with our latest premium supplement.

Golden Moments, Augusta, Maine.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker
Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove.
Reduces Fuel Bills One-half
Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted.
TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 74, Toledo, O

STOVES. WE SELL STEEL RANGES, Cast Iron Cook Stoves, Ranges and Heaters, Gasoline and Coal Oil Ranges and Burners at about ONE-HALF RETAIL PRICES. We ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for Free Stove Catalogue. Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

AGENTS! Send for free sample PREPAID of our Patent Bake Pan. Immense seller. Big pay. 40 others new and catchy.
Rundell Mfy., Watkins, N. Y.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers.
RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

EARN THIS 112 PIECE DINNER SET.
DON'T SEND ANY MONEY.
Simply send your name and address & we will send you 5 doz. sets of Ladies Beauty Pins (each set with an exquisite Jewel) to sell at 25c. a set. When sold, send us the money and we will send you this handsome China Dinner Set, beautifully decorated and trimmed with Gold. Not a toy set, but full size for family use. No charge for packing and boxing. If you cannot sell all the sets, we will send you a handsome present for those you do sell. Don't miss this liberal offer. We trust you and will run all the risk. Write to-day.
Maxwell Co., Dept. 712, St. Louis, Mo.

DON'T SET HENS THE SAME OLD WAY.
THE NATURAL HEN INCUBATOR beats old plan 3 to 1. Little in price but a big money maker. Agents wanted. Send for catalog telling how to get one free.
Natural Hen Incubator Co., B 23 Columbus, Neb.
A. Edwards writes, would not take $100 for N.H.I. Plan

CARPETS. WE SELL ALL KINDS OF CARPETS at lowest wholesale prices, about one-half retail price charged by retail dealers. Write for FREE COLOR SAMPLE BOOK, showing samples of our entire line of Carpets. Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

FREE TO AGENTS
IDEAL CAKE SPOON will mix cake or bread in ⅓ time and is used in 1000 other ways. To prove its merits we will send one Sample FREE on receipt of 10c to pay for postage and our Catalogue of 500 fast selling Specialties. Easy Work. Big Profits.
A. VINING NOVELTY CO., 60 Wabash Av., Chicago.

MORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Painless, permanent Home Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

BOYS AND GIRLS
Watches, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Jewelry, etc., given away for selling 18 packages of Excelsior Bluing at 10c. We ask no money. Send your name and address and get outfit and premium list with instructions postpaid. When you sell the Bluing send us the money and select your premium. We Trust You. This is an honest offer. Write for outfit today.
EXCELSIOR BLUING CO. Dept. S Chicago

$50 IN GOLD FREE.
The very stylish dandy that appears in this advertisement represents a flower that grows wild in our yards and fields. We are going to give away $50 IN GOLD to those who are able to send us the correct name of this flower. WE DO NOT WANT A CENT OF YOUR MONEY, and there is only one condition attached to this offer, which will not take one hour of your time. When you have made out your answer send it to us on a postal card, AND YOU WILL HEAR FROM US BY RETURN MAIL. It may take you an entire evening to solve this question, but STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $50, as we are going to give it away, and you might as well have your share as not.

The Metropolitan and Rural Home,
225 William St., New York City.

FAT
How to reduce it
Mrs. L. Lanier, Martin, Tenn., writes:
"It reduced my weight 21 lbs. in 15 days without any unpleasant effects whatever." Purely vegetable, and harmless as water. Any one can make it at home at little expense. No starving. No sickness. We will mail a box of it and full particulars in a plain sealed package for 4 cents for postage, etc.
HALL CHEMICAL CO. Dept. R, St. Louis, Mo.

SARAH BERNHARDT BEAUTY PINS.

Made popular by the famous actress, are set with Turquoise, and are the very latest thing in Beauty Pins. Send full name and address and promise to try to sell them at 10 cts. a pair, and we will mail you 12 pairs, including all the stylish patterns. When sold, send us the $1.20, and we will give you either of these SOLID GOLD RINGS FREE! Mind, these are not gold-filled, gold-laid or plated rings, which mean the same thing, but are the genuine article. WE MAKE THEM AND WE GUARANTEE THEM. Liberal cash commission if preferred. We take back Pins not sold.
D. M. WATKINS & CO., 61 Fountain St., Providence, R. I.

A BIG OFFER
50c. MADE IN A MINUTE! If you will hang up in the P. O., or some public place, the two show bills that we send, we will give you a 50c. cert., and send it in advance with samples and bills. This will trouble you about one minute, and then if you want to work on salary at $50 or $100 per month, let us know. We pay in advance.
GIANT OXIE CO., 125 Willow St., Augusta, Me.

THE MAGICAL SPONGE.
THE WONDER OF THE 20th CENTURY.
For Polishing and Cleaning Windows, Signs, Mirrors, Show Cases, Gold, Silver, Nickel, also Jewelry, Copper, Brass and Tin.
For the Bath IT HAS NO EQUAL.

A Labor-Saving device entirely new and universal in demand. Will last a lifetime and costs but Twenty-five cents. Just on the market and over 500 Gross sold last month. Every family in the land wants one or more. All you do to sell them is simply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works on his window and you will depart with one less every time, but in its place a quarter.
The Magical Sponge differs from the ordinary sponge in nature, while the common sponge is of vegetable origin and found in the ocean, the Magical Sponge is a mineral production and found in the United States, dug from the ground, carefully prepared and manufactured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Merchant, Liveryman, Metal Workers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, offices, and business places in a clean and healthy condition.
No Soap or water is needed or even used with the Magical Sponge for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time it has no equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than what is in the sponge) all trouble and hard work is avoided. For Cleaning Baseboards, Window Sills, Wainscoating and painted surfaces, it acts like a charm; takes all the finger marks, spots, grease and dirt away, leaving a Clean, Polished Surface.
Good men wanted all over the country to handle these goods, big inducements offered steady workers, and exclusive sale. To Agents, Salesmen, and house to house canvassers, who send us 25 cents for a 6 months' subscription, we will send one sample post paid, and make them a business proposition. Write at once. Secure your territory.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FREE SILK DRESS

Here is an honest advertisement. No beating around the bush. You can get full 10 to 15 yards of beautiful silk, Black, brown, blue, green or pink, in light or dark shades, and a beautiful mercury diamond breast pin for selling our remedies. We talk plain English & guarantee to do exactly as we say. We don't ask a cent. If you agree to sell only 6 boxes of our Positive Corn Cure at 25 cts a box, we send you the Salve by mail. When sold you send us the $1.50 and we send you the solid gold laid mercury diamond breast pin, together with our offer of a handsome silk dress, same day money is received. We make this extraordinary inducement to secure honest people and prove our Corn Cure the best on earth. There is no chance about it. If you comply with the offer we shall send you; the silk dress (full 10 to 15 yards, any color you desire) will be given absolutely free. Don't pay out money for a handsome dress while you can get one free for selling our remedies. Address at once, MANUFACTURERS' SUPPLY DEPT. "D," No. 65, 5th Ave., N. Y. City.

NEW FRUIT HULLER.
PERFECTION AT LAST.
YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.
PATENT PENDING.

KEEP YOUR HANDS CLEAN.
OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER
hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches.. Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up. A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed. Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickel-polished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket. We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send for trial sample, which we will send prepaid for 10 cents, including 3 months' trial subscription to this paper. Send 25c. for one year's subscription and we will send one-half dozen Hullers free; or send 50c. for two years' subscription and we will send one dozen Hullers postpaid. Agents' terms sent on application. NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

COL. BADEN-POWELL.

THESE are the initials, or rather nickname, by which Colonel Baden-Powell, the commander at Mafeking is known throughout the British army, and B-P from a garrison name has become known as the diminutive of a peerless fighter, whose resources seem to us almost wonderful. Mafeking was invested by a Boer army almost as soon as the war was suddenly declared and has since been in a state of siege.

The city lies north of Kimberley in British Natal and was garrisoned by a few hundred British soldiers under Colonel Baden-Powell when surrounded. Notwithstanding their desperate situation they have fought a brilliant defense against overwhelming odds. Several columns which have been sent to the aid of the beleaguered city have been repulsed or blocked and its relief is a question of great military sagacity. The townspeople and garrison are living almost entirely in bomb-proofs and trenches for the streets are raked with a pitiless fire from cannon and rifles. Still the death rate is small and, though food is scarce, the spirits of the community are good. Should there be a relief of Mafeking before its surrender the Boer army would undoubtedly retreat, thus leaving the invaded British territory and occupying positions at which it was supposed by the British war office that the war would really commence. By this our readers will see that the initial of the war is over and the opposing forces are entering the second stage.

Ladysmith was entered by the British on March 1 and the news flashed to every part of the earth. Never in history has there been witnessed such demonstrations of joy as were seen in every part of the English possessions immediately. In London the people were particularly demonstrative and wildly exuberant in their joy. Nobility and plebian, high and low, rich and poor fraternized and rejoiced with the wildest demonstrations. Probably such outbursts were never before seen in any land outside France, where the people are much more volatile in their expressions of feelings. The wildness of the rejoicings reaching almost a point of delirium were noted by every newspaper of the day. While the relief of the city was a most substantial gain, the costs of the campaign have been immense.

The surrender of Gen. Cronje and the later death of the most eminent of the Boer generals, Joubert, has left the chief command of the Boer forces in the hands of Lieutenant General Luis Botha, who was promoted to command in Natal immediately after the defeat of Gen. Cronje. As will be remembered by our readers, the British army after the surrender of that general concentrated around Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange Free State, which quickly surrendered to Gen. Roberts, who immediately occupied it and practically took possession of the whole country in the name of his sovereign. The Boer army was apparently much divided and in retreating the Free Staters quite generally returned to their homes, leaving the retreating Transvaalian army to keep up the contest.

WAR REJOICINGS IN LONDON.

At this point the British army under Lord Roberts are resting and awaiting necessary supplies of clothing suitable for the rapidly approaching cold weather, before continuing the march toward Pretoria, the capture of which Capital is the object of the present advance. Happy British subjects, immediately after the defeat of Cronje, were setting the date of the occupancy of the city by the British as from May 1 to May 15. This dream was dispelled by the increased activity of the Boer forces during the early part of April and successive Boer victories in a series of important though minor engagements, which seriously hampered the invading party. As Pretoria is a strongly fortified city and as the Boers apparently intend to prolong the contest indefinitely there can be little real expectation that the capture of Pretoria will occur at any very early date.

Leaving the historical record of the war at this point, let us look into one or two of the subjects which have been raised by some of the writers who have inquired of our editors on certain lines; questions which are willingly answered as we gladly note the interest aroused. The paragraph and subject will readily indicate the nature of the questions which have been asked and upon which the writers desired answers.

GEN. LUIS BOTHA.

The Mauser rifle was first brought to the attention of the American public during the Spanish war, by its great superiority over the muskets carried by most of our troops, which burned black powder and were generally of the pattern adopted immediately after our Civil war. The Mauser is one of the many approved types of quick-firing magazine rifles of great range. The penetrating powers of the Mauser bullet are very great, as are those of all modern guns. It will kill a man behind a tree large enough to hide his body, after piercing through the whole tree. In the body the Mauser inflicts a small, clean and nearly painless wound of small diameter, without tearing the muscles or shattering the bones, as will balls from larger caliber muskets of less power. The ball drills the hole cleanly and leaves no bleeding unless an artery be cut. At close quarters it is not so effective as the old style bullet, although at near range the effect is more like it as to character of wounds and shattering of bones. As every soldier now carries septic bandages as a part of his kit, the great majority of Mauser wounds heal rapidly. It is said the reports from surgeons in the present war show that between eighty and ninety per cent. of the wounded in the field recover, a most remarkable gain over former losses by war.

Our Canadian neighbors are much interested in the brilliant career of Lieutenant Colonel W. D. Otter, commanding the Canadian troops in South Africa, and well they may be as the Colonial troops of the Empire have fought devotedly and with the greatest valor. It is to be noted that the Canadian and Australian contingents have shown much more of the adaptability of our own soldiers than any others. Their quickness to adopt a kind of fighting and manœuvring suitable to the character of the country and the almost invariable success of their encounters, shows them to be fighters and soldiers of the highest order. Col. Otter himself has shown great energy, discretion and valor and by his resourceful courage and leadership, has proven a shining mark often when the English sky was one of gloom.

LIEUT. COL. W. D. OTTER.

After the unusual celebrations at the English capital which occurred after the relief of Ladysmith, the London populace was again swept off its feet by the enthusiasm caused by a royal progress through London, March 8th, for a few days' stay at Buckingham Palace. The Queen was much affected by the extravagant demonstrations of delight and affection with which she was welcomed and which continued several days. Moved by the great bravery of the Irish regiments in the war, Her Majesty gave directions that the shamrock should be worn by all Irish soldiers on St. Patrick's day. This direction was construed broadly and for the first time in history the Irish flag and shamrock were displayed all over Great Britain with wild enthusiasm on the 17th of March.

In addition to this gracious act Her Majesty for the first time since 1861 took a trip to Ireland and was received at Dublin and other points with much enthusiasm. Her reception showed a degree of patriotism among the Irish which was as gratifying to the government as it was unexpected. The long struggle between the two countries seems to have been dropped, at least for the present, by mutual consent of both parties.

So much has been said of General Lord Kitchener and his ability in this and former campaigns that we can no better close this article than by pleasing at least one inquirer with a personal description of him. He stands several inches over six feet in height, straight as an arrow, and looks commandingly over most men's heads; his motions are slow and steady; lithe in build and of that tireless steel-like endurance which accomplishes more than sudden great strength. His eyes are steady and passionless and look out straight at you from under heavy eyebrows. His complexion is burned to a deep red and his long moustache droops over a stern, immovable mouth. It is on the whole a face that neither asks affection nor creates dislike. His expression seems almost unvarying. The brain and will are the essence of the man—a brain and a will so perfect in their workings that, in face of extremest difficulty, they hardly seem to realize what struggle is.

A CASE OF PERFUMERY FOR YOU.

We have a great quantity of perfumery in cases which we wish to give to our friends without expense. It is most delicate and lasting and combines the various perfumes and fragrance of the flowers. Placed in a bureau drawer will impart delicious odor to all clothing, kerchiefs, etc. Sweeter than the mignonette. Send us four cents pay for shipping expenses and will send it with copy of our illustrated bargain book.

S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

WRITE for our Spring and Summer catalogue. American Cloak & Fur Co., Chicago, Ill.

ANGELS WHISPER Beautiful Large Picture colored. Sells quickly at 25c. Sample 12c. 9 for $1.00. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago.

WE SELL FIREPROOF IRON SAFES WITH COMBINATION LOCKS at from $6.95 for a 100-pound safe to $99.75 for a 3,000-pound, four double door bank safe. BIG 1,000-POUND STORE OR OFFICE SAFE FOR $29.95. We ship to anyone to examine before paying. Write for Free Safe Catalogue. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

Strange Nests of Arctic and Tropic Birds.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

IT IS interesting to note that now many of the Arctic and Tropic birds belong within the territory of the United States. Most of our Arctic birds are those of Alaska, and it is wonderful how intelligently they have protected their young from icy winds and snow. Their nests are often within the ground in tunnels or burrows.

"The soil in the deep woods," says one writer, "was fairly honeycombed with nesting burrows." The Rhinoceros Auks tunnel in the slopes of the hills, and the Auklets on the hilltops, while the Puffins are near the sea. These underground nests have many turns and are sometimes ten feet long, and all this for the safety of a single egg. Father and mother birds relieve each other in their daily and nightly watch over their treasure.

Strange to say, mound nests are found in hot countries. In this case the birds build up the mounds on the earth instead of excavating below its surface. The Australian mound-birds sometimes raise mounds fourteen feet high and fifty-five feet in circumference! I hardly know whether we should consider them as lazy or shrewd when we discover they construct these mounds of decayed leaves and decomposing vegetable matter that by fermenting throw out heat—a hotbed, in fact—and so hatch the eggs with very little brooding or care from the parent bird. Flamingoes are well-known mound builders, making cones with a hollow on top, and the Spoonbills, like several other bird families construct platforms of sticks.

There is a lovely violet orange bird of the East, the Roller, that both excavates burrows in rocks and sand and nests in hollow trees. A traveler found one of the nests in a hollow oak of Bashan and in a Wady, not far, I think from Jericho, found a number of nest-burrows under a rock ledge overhanging a chasm, where only wings were safe!

As a rule the nests of the larger tropical birds honeycomb the hollow trunks of the forest trees as the Arctic birds honeycomb the ground. What more perfect hiding places could be found than such trees, overgrown with vines, gorgeous with bloom? The brilliant plumage is unnoticed in such a background. The Hornbills, the Toucans, the Cockatoos, the myriads of Parrots and Parroquets all nest in this way. If you wish a Grass Parroquet to build a nest, you need not supply him with wool or down. He desires only "a piece of wood with a rough hole in it."

The nest weavers of the tropics are the Humming-birds, whose tiny bickered cups with silken lining we know well, and the wee Sunbirds, as brilliant as the Humming-birds in shining scarlet and gold and violet and glossy black by way of contrast. They belong to the Philippine Islands, and their nests are marvels of beauty and skill. Many of them are unlike any seen before. A favorite shape seems to be that of a flat purse with its entrance at the lower end. This is hidden securely on the inner side of a leaf. Mr. John Whitehead, an enthusiastic explorer and naturalist, found a nest woven by the little crimson-breasted "Flower-pecker," which is like a bit of fairy work. It is rose-colored, just as if it were woven of a rose's petals, and is covered with silver threads from a certain spider. As it hangs from its green leaf it must look like a blossom.

Builders in sunny weather,
Weave sticks and straw together
As happy as days are long!
For deep in the Father's heart,
Has even His sparrow a part,
Weaving his nest with a song.

ACME KITCHEN CABINET.

"The Great Step Saver," a kitchen table & pantry combined. Saves running to & from pantry when cooking. 26 in. wide, 48 in. long, 30 in. high. Maple, nicely finished, 2 bins for flour & sugar, 2 drawers partitioned for cooking materials & utensils & a bread & meat board..... $4.95

$4.95

FREE Catalog, 897 pictures of furniture, 1007 prices. ACME COMPANY, 442 W. 43d St., Chicago.

FURNISH YOUR HOME WITHOUT COST TO YOU.

You Can Earn This Elegant Couch in a Few Hours by our new plan of selling to your friends our fine Toilet Soaps, Flavoring Extracts, Perfumes, Complexion Powders, etc. No Money Required. 30 Days Trial Free. All goods guaranteed. Write for particulars and catalogue of this and other home premiums including Ladies Desk, Rocker, Sideboard, Lamp, Extension Table, White Enameled Bed, Mackintosh, Watch, Camera, etc. Ladies, Boys and Girls here is a big chance for you. Don't delay. CROFTS & REED, 842-850 Austin Ave., B-63 Chicago, Ill.

98c AND $1.50 WONDER

For 98c in Davis ground, $1.50 in finest hollow ground, we offer these two GENUINE HAVERSON Hollow Ground DIAMOND STEEL RAZORS, as the equal of razors that retail at $2.00 to $3.50. Made from the best material money can buy, hollow ground razor given highest possible finish, and guaranteed in Grind, Shape, Set, Material and finish, absolutely perfect. CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to us with 98c or $1.50, and we will send either razor to you by mail postpaid, and if you do not pronounce it the best razor you ever used and about one-half retail price, return it and we will refund your money. Write for Free Razor, Knife and Cutlery Catalogue. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

RUPTURE CURED! WORN NIGHT and DAY. Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE

56 PIECES FULL-SIZE, For Families.

Every person answering this advertisement can get a Handsomely Decorated Set, absolutely free—we mean it. A straightforward, honest offer, by a reliable House to advertise its business, for everybody to accept. We ask NO MONEY with your name, send at once post-office address & nearest Express or Freight Depot. Remember every one can have their choice of Breakfast, Dinner or Tea Set Free. All sets carefully boxed & packed at our expense. No one is barred out of this offer—positively will not go back on it, no matter what it costs us. FASHIONS COMPANY New York City, Dept. 35 F P. O. Box 2617.

A Hot Weather Comfort.

THE NEW

PETITE LAMP CHIMNEY STOVE.

IN USE ON THE CHIMNEY.

THIS is a very useful device (made of brass) for adjusting on the top of an ordinary lamp chimney, for cooking purposes. It is readily adjustable to any chimney. It will readily support any ordinary metal plate, or pan, or dipper, in which to do the boiling or cooking. For many purposes this Lamp Chimney Stove is far superior and a thousand times more convenient than an expensive oil or vapor stove. For the Dining Room in Summer, shops and offices, it is unsurpassed. For the Sick Room it is indispensable.

And Only Look at the Price,

10 cents each, carefully boxed, and postage paid. Or 20 for a dollar, which is just 5 cents each, and delivered free, either by mail or express, to agents. You only need sell four out of your 20, to get your money back. All you sell of the other sixteen, will be clear gain to you. You cannot do better than invest a dollar.

No such useful article was ever offered before at such a ridiculously low price.

This paper 3 months on trial and sample stove only 10 cents.

Club Offer, Send us a club of two yearly subscribers at 25c. each and we will give you two stoves as a premium.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

$1000 IN GOLD FREE

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

14	5	23	25	15	18	11
23	1	19	8	9	14	7	20	15	14
3	8	9	3	1	7	15

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

Each one of the above three lines of figures spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out the names of these three cities, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take an entire evening to solve the three names, but STICK TO IT AND TRY TO GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000. A copy of this high-class ONE DOLLAR MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to everyone answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer in immediately. Address ROBINSON PUBLISHING CO., 24 North William Street, New York City.

THE EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 12, Eagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CURRENT TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

JUDGE TAFT.

THAT the selection of a commission to govern the Philippine Islands would be a wise one could not be doubted by those who have followed the appointments of President McKinley. No administration has ever had to fix the personnel of so many non-partisan commissions as the present one; nor to select commissions on so many important national and international questions. It is a remarkable fact that so wise and judicial have been these selections that not an appointment has ever been criticised, whether the appointee were Republican or Democrat, and without exception the men selected have been recognized as the proper persons to be sent as representatives of the two great parties in the politics of our Republic.

That the selection of the Philippine Commission would be one of most careful consideration could not be doubted, and it is gratifying to note that the members chosen are of the highest ability and character. Men of worth and distinction, who are not and never have been politicians. They will relieve General MacArthur of much of his responsibility when they reach the Archipelago. The commission as finally made up and confirmed consists of: Judge W. H. Taft, of Ohio, President; Professor Dean C. Worcester, of Michigan; General Luke Wright, of Tennessee; Judge Henry C. Ide, of Vermont and Professor Bernard Moses of California.

This commission will practically govern the Philippines until Congress shall have agreed upon some definite course in regard to the future government of the islands. The question of the future of our new possessions has been fought out in Congress, in part, on the question of a duty of goods to and from Porto Rico. A tariff imposing 15 per cent. of the Dingley tariff on the imports and exports has passed both houses by close majorities in a party vote. It is not the intention of COMFORT to discuss questions having political bearing, so that we will not enter into the question beyond pointing out a distinction.

Supposing any of the annexed islands to come in as territory of the United States, they do so under the Constitution and are entitled to territorial government and future statehood, consequently under the constitution no taxes or import duties can be imposed on commerce any more than between that of our different States. On the other hand, it is urged that the Constitution did not contemplate foreign annexation of soil and that these islands must be governed outside the Constitution. In other words, that for the present they must be regarded as colonies having home government but not as part of the territory of the United States, and consequently not in line of future statehood.

It would seem to be prudent to make haste slowly as no thoughtful reader can consider the probability of the enormous representation in Congress that these islands, inhabited by mixed and colored races, would be entitled to were they adopted as terms of absolute equality. Much that is being printed at the present time is for political purposes and on the careful thought of what is best for the country.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of Canada, recently announced that the meetings of the Joint High Commission, which had under consideration so many disputed questions relating to the United States and Canada, is soon to recommence its work. It is to be hoped that this is true and that their consideration may lead to a satisfactory and just basis on which to finally settle the questions of mutual interest, boundaries, fisheries etc. which so often arise to hamper the pleasant relations which should always exist between the two countries.

The surprise of the past month was the unexpected appearance of Admiral Dewey in the political arena as a contestant for presidential honors. The country had generally settled to the belief that McKinley and Bryan were to represent the two parties. In the New York World of April 4th, the Admiral notified the public that he had changed his mind as expressed in the fall, when he declined to be considered as a candidate, and that he is now willing to serve the American people if they desire it.

At the time of his return in the Olympia he was undoubtedly feared as a possible candidate. His prompt refusal in a measure withdrew him. His present action has caused all sorts of beliefs as to his motives to appear. While many believe it the ingenuous action of a man not accustomed to politics, others look upon it as a well-considered scheme of practical political leaders. Dewey's announcement seems to have had no practical effect among republicans, but as he has decided he is a democrat, his candidacy in a measure is against that of Col. Bryan. Exactly what is the purpose of the Dewey appearance, if purpose it has, will appear before the meeting of the Democratic Convention in Kansas City, July 4th.

It is significant that on the very day the public first learned of this decision, the Pennsylvania Democrats in convention reaffirmed their belief in the Chicago platform of 1896 and endorsed, unanimously, Col. Bryan for the presidency.

The widely-spread report that the British government had opened the official letters of Consul Macrum, our Transvaal representative, on investigation by a House committee were found without foundation. At the same time, Webster Davis, the assistant Secretary of the Interior, who recently returned from South Africa has resigned his position in order that he may be free to express himself freely regarding his Boer sympathies and the war. He announces his intention to educate the Americans relative to the Dutch. Our public laugh at Englishmen who write books on America after a few weeks' visit to this land, and they may retaliate on Mr. Davis' proposal which comes after a flying trip to Pretoria.

The embroglio in Kentucky, which was mentioned in the last number of COMFORT, still continues. The Supreme Court of the State has confirmed the right of Beckham, the Democratic claimant of the governor's chair since the death of Goebel, while Governor Taylor still holds the office and acts. A large reward for the assassins c. Goebel has stimulated many people into confessions of plots and complicity. In one recently made Governor Taylor and other high state officials in the Republican ranks were parties in the crime. Intelligent opinion of the many conflicting stories can hardly be formed, as both sides seem to promulgate all manner of stories to meet the partisan needs of the moment. Outsiders can only guess at the real condition in the Blue grass State.

Wide-spread comment attends the opening of the Paris Exposition from the fact that the United States has the next largest exhibit to France itself. It fairly distances in size and distinctiveness those of the large commercial countries lying adjacent to France. The fine character of the American exhibit shows the progressive spirit of our commercial interests, and incidentally how America is rapidly pushing to the front as a great world power.

A MAGIC FLUTE ROMANCE.

John Henderson is the luckiest man in the West. If you don't believe it ask him and he will confess it, and tell you moreover that he owes all his good luck in his life to the Magic Flute. It is a strange story, but the true facts are these: Mr. Henderson was in love. The object of his affections was a beautiful young girl of his native town, Des Moines. She was a musical enthusiast and had suitors by the score, for she was not only charming and beautiful of face and figure, but to these graces she added the talent of a superb musician. Naturally, though Mr. Henderson pressed his suit with great ardor, as he was not a performer on any musical instrument he failed to make the desired impression, however much he loved music, and dearly loved the object of his affections.

Happening in Omaha one day, quite disconsolate, he was astonished to hear sweet and tender strains issuing from the rear door of what proved to be a music store. He paused at the curbstone and listened. It was one of the favorite songs of his beloved, and so mellow and sweet were the sounds that they brought tears to his eyes. Entering the store the stranger asked what sort of an instrument it was that gave forth such magic sounds. He was shown the Magic Flute which had just arrived from New York. Thinking that the instrument that performed such tone miracles must have cost a hundred dollars or more, he was amazed to see what a trifling sum. He bought the instrument, and the next day returned to his native city and that night under the window of the maiden who had rejected him for his lack of musical abilities, Mr. Henderson poured forth his soul in the songs she loved so well. What was the result? The neglected lover was reinstated in the affections of the fair one, the rival suitors retired beaten in the game, and shortly after he was offered a large nightly sum by a celebrated impressario to appear in concert halls in the leading cities of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, completely happy and full of gratitude for the working of the Magic Flute, are at present traveling in the East, playing to large houses, Mrs. Henderson accompanying her husband on the piano. The musical world is amazed and delighted with the performances of Mr. Henderson on the Magic Flute. And yet his case is merely typical. You may not win a lovely bride by your skill on the wonderful instrument, but one thing you can do, even if you do not know one note from another, you can play a tune in five minutes and should delight your friends with it within a week.

We have made arrangements with the manufacturers to introduce these wonderful Flutes, and will send one free, all charges paid, including a trial yearly subscription to all sending 25c. to COMFORT Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine. Agents are selling large quantities of these Flutes and you better not delay in sending for a sample and getting wholesale prices.

SALESMEN WANTED. SALARY or Commission to sell to wholesale and retail trade. Position permanent. Previous experience not essential. Ruyter Mfg. Co., 179 Washington St., Chicago.

CHILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs, Health, Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N.Y.

4 BUGGY WHEELS, $7.60 HIGH GRADE, SARVEN'S PATENT, tired and banded, height 3 ft. 4 in., 3 ft. 8 in. or 4 ft. Spokes 1⅛ or 1¼ inch. For any other sizes send for catalogue. Cut this ad. out and send to us with ONE DOLLAR, state size wheel wanted and we will send them by freight C. O. D. EXAMINE THEM at your freight depot and then pay freight agent balance, $6.60 and freight charges. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago.

FREE 56 PIECES FULL SIZE For Families

Any one can easily earn a beautifully decorated 56-Piece China Breakfast, Dinner or Tea Set, full size for family use; also a handsome GOLD PLATED or SILVER WATCH, chain and charm—ladies' or gents' size—and a gold-finished Pearl Initial Pin. You can get these presents for selling our Bluing Powder or Thimbles. We mean what we say, and guarantee to do just as we say. We don't ask a cent. If you agree to sell only 15 packages at 10c. a package, or 30 thimbles at 5c. each, send at once your name, postoffice address and nearest express or freight depot, and we send goods; when sold, you send us the $1.50, and we send you a Watch-Chain and Charm, ladies' or gent's style, and a Pearl Initial Pin with any letter you wish, together with our offer of a 56-piece china set, same day money is received. ☞ These are not dolls' sets. There is no chance about it. If you comply with the offer we shall send you, the 56-piece china set will be given free. Remember every set has Tea Pot, Sugar Bowl, Cream Pitcher, Teacups, Saucers, Bowls, Fruit and Cake Plates, etc., all given away to advertise and introduce our goods at once. Any newspaper will tell you that we are reliable. Chemical Specialty Co. Dept 546 No. 296 Broadway, New York City.

Our Prices ON AMERICAN GOLD FILLED 17 JEWELED WATCHES Are... the Lowest

Before you buy a watch it will not cost you a cent to see our great bargain. Send your name, post office and express office address, and we will send you by express for examination a handsome

WATCH and CHAIN COMPLETE C. O. D. $4.50

Ladies or gents size, double hunting case beautifully engraved, stem wind and stem set, accurately adjusted, expansion balance; warranted a perfect timekeeper. If you do not consider it equal in appearance to any $40.00 gold filled watch and chain warranted 20 years do not accept it. If entirely satisfactory pay express agent Our Special Price $4.50 and express charges and it is yours. Our 20 Year Guarantee sent with each watch. Mention if you wish Ladies or Gents size. DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., Dept. F 47. 225 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

X-RAY Latest pocket curiosity. See your fellow, best girl or any object through clothing, wood or stone. 35c each. B. E. X-Ray Co., Philada., Pa.

CARDS Send 2c. stamp for ELEGANT SAMPLE BOOK of all the FINEST and Latest Styles in Gold, Beveled Edge, Hidden Name, Silk Fringe, New Envelope Cards, etc. Greatest Outfit Ever Offered. UNION CARD CO., B50, Columbus, Ohio.

How To Cure RUPTURE

DEAR READER:—It gives me much pleasure and satisfaction to write this little story, for it contains a new and wonderful method of curing rupture or hernia, and places before the afflicted words of hope and tidings of great joy.

It is not my intention to use medical words or terms for the purpose of confusing those who are not familiar with them. I am sure this would not be more valuable for using those technical terms which some use, for the sole purpose of making some ignorant one believe they possess extraordinary knowledge

I am not going to describe the many ways one may become ruptured. In the many years I have treated ruptures I have been told of more than a thousand different things that caused my patients' affliction. That you are ruptured, and that I can cure you, is the purpose for which this is written, and it will surely be a blessing, coming unawares to those who follow its teachings.

There are several kinds of rupture and they are named according to their location, the most common being Scrotal, Umbilical (navel) and Femoral. They are again divided into two classes as reducible or irreducible. The reducible is one that can be returned to its proper place within the abdomen. The irreducible is one that cannot be returned. The last named is caused by going without a truss, but mostly by using some poor and ill-constructed one.

RUPTURED.

There are many people who are ruptured and don't know it. They will have at times a slight pain in the lower part of the abdomen. If they do much lifting or straining work it grows worse and will at times get so bad they think they have an attack of colic, lie down, and in many cases the pain will disappear, because whatever was out returns to its natural position. But in other cases the surgeon has to be called because the rupture has become strangulated. In some cases he succeeds in reducing it, in others a surgical operation is necessary, and with others after hours of agony death only gives relief.

The best time to attend to a rupture is when it is small, perhaps in some cases no larger than an acorn. Many who have small ruptures say, "It is only a small one, does not give me any trouble, no need to bother about that."

SMALL RUPTURE DANGEROUS Let me say right here that to neglect the small rupture is one of the most terrible mistakes possible, for every minute life is in danger of immediate and painful death by strangulation, for the opening is so small that it only allows one intestine to come down. It then requires great force or pressure to move the contents and in many cases it becomes constricted which is very apt to prove fatal or require a painful surgical operation at a great cost of time and money.

HAVE YOU Perhaps you have suffered for years with rupture. If so, I have no doubt but you have tried many trusses and methods of cure, expended many dollars and always the same result—failure. Perhaps you have been told by some one or it has been spoken in your presence and you believed it because you never took time to think about it, that "rupture could not be cured."

IT CAN BE CURED Just think a minute of what is going on in your body. Two agencies at work, one constantly tearing you down, the other building you up or repairing, and as long as your vitality is good the repairing force keeps you in perfect health. Suppose you broke your arm, never had it set, or the proper appliance used to make it reunite and heal, the result would be that you would always have a broken arm. But you do have the proper attendance and care, and your arm in a short time is well again. So your rupture will heal if given the same chance—viz.: retain everything in a natural position the same as if there was no rupture and nature will do the rest. But the facts are:—you became ruptured, experienced very little or no pain, and you broke off from day to day using the correct appliance needed to assist nature in its work. You needed a truss that would hold under every condition the strain from the injured part until it was healed, and strong enough to perform its work again. You need an appliance that HOLDS AND HEALS WHILE YOU WORK.

HOW COULD THIS HEAL The trusses that have been placed on afflicted ones in the past were constructed on the wrong principle and are now things of the past. In their day some were considered good and in some cases gave partial relief. They would hold one day and perhaps the next day would let the hernia out many times. In fact never two days alike because they were not self-adjusting. Some thought when the elastic was introduced, "here is a perfect truss at last," but they soon found out their mistake. They place all dependence on elastic webbing or belts which go around the body and they must be pulled or buckled tight enough so they are a torture, to bring the pads in position to bear on the rupture. Everyone knows that the sweat of the body will soon rot the elastic in the webbing, and so they must be continually stretching and giving out; never two days alike; consequently the intestines are being let out of their natural position, and never give the rupture a chance to heal. How can that kind of a truss cure a rupture? A rupture to be cured must be held securely in its natural position. It is probably a waste of time to tell you about old style trusses. You know it all. You know how you have suffered in warm weather from sweating and chafing. The belts and straps pulled up so tight over the galled parts that you would think, "I would rather die than suffer this any longer," and many, after repeated trials, unable to bear the torture any longer, are risking their lives and living in misery without a truss.

HOW TO CURE To effect a cure of hernia, all know that the hernial tumor or intestines must be held in an easy, comfortable and natural position, in fact to be in the same natural position that they would be in if there was no rupture. It has been my great fortune to have placed in my possession a new idea in the shape of what I may call a truss. Do not think it is one of those instruments of torture you have seen that has ropes, pulleys, elastics, etc. To compare mine with others would be like comparing the electric light with an old fashioned lamp. My appliance or truss stands out alone as a new idea, something far ahead of anything ever before placed upon a human being. A wonderful invention, holds with comfort everything in its proper, natural position, giving nature the chance to heal she has been waiting for. IT IS AS EASY TO WEAR AS A STOCKING, safe, simple, cleanly and durable.

WILL LAST 100 YEARS IF NEEDED Cool and comfortable in warm weather, has no parts to chafe, does not absorb the foul odors of the body, always in place, always comfortable, always healing. It has no elastic webbing, no straps between the legs and no spring around the body. No matter what your position is, it never need changing.

YOU WORK WHILE IT HEALS No loss of time. Our appliance stands out alone, a new idea, PATENTED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT, and has been proven to be far in advance of any other appliance for the cure of rupture.

CURED.

DOES IT DO THIS Does your truss hold you at all times? Is it comfortable, giving you a feeling of safety that you are all right? Is your rupture week by week growing smaller? If not, throw away that truss. Don't lose your health, perhaps your life, with such a contrivance. It is wrong in principle, wrong in construction, and may do a positive injury. In many cases the trusses are made and sold by persons who never saw a rupture. Belts, elastics, springs, and in fact everything that could be made, that some kind of a pad was fastened to, was put on to sufferers as a truss.

WHAT YOU WANT Is an appliance that holds everything in its natural position, SAFE, SURE, CLEANLY, HEALING, COMFORTABLE. So easy that you do not realize you are ruptured. You ask, "Is there such an appliance?" The answer is, "Yes! for I HAVE THAT APPLIANCE!" The inventor of this wonderful truss, the Rev. Jeremiah Hayden, who was chaplain of the 17th Maine Regiment, says:

THE PASTOR'S STORY "Finding myself ruptured, I sought advice of an elder brother who had the same trouble. He said, 'I have been ruptured for forty years, and have spent over $300 for trusses, and the one I have on now is the best one I ever had. It cost me $15 (it was an elastic truss) but it is breaking and I must get another.' On examination I found an elastic strap around him with every stitch of the webbing printed on his body, while the understrap that passed between his legs had chafed him so that he was red and sore. This led me to discover my truss, which is as EASY TO WEAR AS A STOCKING, and which ended all pain, danger and cost, and never needs repairing. I want to get it into the hands of my fellow-men who are suffering from this dangerous and painful infirmity, for I know it will be worth a hundred times its cost. I am broken down with kidney and heart disease, and I am in constant expectation of death. (82 years old.) The thought has been constantly before me: an invention which has the power to relieve so much suffering should not be buried with me. As I am not able, I want you to take measures to introduce it to the world, and if this is accomplished, I shall feel that my life has been of value to sufferers. As I have reflected upon the miseries of millions without means of relief, and the dismal certainty of their growing worse, and considered that I have in my keeping a comfortable, sure fitting, never failing remedy, amply proven and tested in my own and other cases, and which, at a glance, common sense will appreciate, I feel that it would be a giant wrong to mankind to have this invention buried with me, for AS I VALUE MY HONOR IN THIS WORLD AND MY SOUL IN THE NEXT, I unhesitatingly declare that a failure in any instance is impossible." A truly most wonderful invention; a blessing to mankind. An article that will cure, because it will hold everything just right, in its natural position, which gives the rupture a chance to re-unite and heal.

CAN YOU DOUBT What more need be said than the minister's statement printed above? Does any one believe for a moment that Mr. Hayden would make a statement he did not believe true? Will you be benefited by my method? It costs so little and success is certain. Why will you drag out a miserable existence when the means of relief are at your command?

TERMS: NO CURE, NO PAY It is the perfect confidence I have in my method of cure that warrants me in adopting the above terms. Surely I have great faith in my way of treating rupture or I would never make the following proposition to you. It is a fair, honest offer that no other firm dare make, because they have not the goods to back it up. You will carefully fill up the Measure Blank with the answers to the questions asked thereon. We also ask you to sign our Special Order Blank. You will please send us those two blanks and the small sum stated on the Special Order Blank with your order. The reason I ask you to send this guarantee with the order is, there are so many people who are always writing for anything they can get for nothing. Many would write who are not ruptured. They know some one who is, and they want to get for nothing something they can sell the afflicted party for $10 or $15. There are others who have no gratitude in them; their object seems to be to get all they can for nothing and in no way ever think of repaying a favor or paying what rightfully belongs for them to pay. THIS I KNOW FROM ACTUAL EXPERIENCE. To keep such parties from troubling me, I have decided on the following plan: You are to send the two blanks before mentioned and the small amount stated thereon, the same to be held by us as a small guarantee of good faith. Upon receipt of same we at once send you by mail, all charges paid and safe delivery guaranteed, a truss, the same to be used by you. When cured you are to promptly send us $4.00 more and return our truss, which we only lend you. Many who get cured say they want to keep the truss. To all I will say that I will sell it at a fair price and charge according to the work done, and it will not be over $10. The terms I have offered are fair and liberal, no fair-minded person can say they are not, and I will not under any circumstances deviate from them.

Will you, after these plain and truthful statements, continue to suffer and risk your life by wearing an old style, imperfect truss? Dare you go without one knowing you are daily growing worse, and that within a short time you will become a total wreck? Dare you lay this aside before you give it a trial, which costs you nothing if you are not satisfied? Do you think it is a humbug? If we were frauds we would not ask such a small sum with the order; we would ask $5.00 or $10.00. A fraud never expects a second order, so they get all the first.

We can fit an infant, or a man or woman weighing 300 lbs. Fleshy ladies having navel ruptures will find it a great blessing. No hot bands around you. It is the only truss that can be worn by women and be clean and comfortable. Ruptured women who are pregnant can wear it and avoid many hours and days of misery. Don't put off ordering it. Do it today; tomorrow may be too late. What more need be said to convince you? We warrant A PERFECT FIT IN EVERY CASE.

SEE THE TESTIMONIALS Be sure to fill out the two blanks. The truss fits all kinds of ruptures. In closing will say I have cured many who have had bad ruptures and can cure you if you will only let me. I can be the means of doing you much good, and hope to hear from you in the near future. If you wish the names of people in your own state who endorse our method, send postage and we will send you their names.

MY GUARANTEE The perfect confidence I have in my truss, and the knowledge I have from actual experience of its curing properties enables me to guarantee every truss. Your rupture may be small, or it may be one that only at times gives you little pain or trouble. Did you ever know a rupture that did not from month to month grow worse? Let me say right here that there is nothing so dangerous as a rupture. Nothing keeps a man or woman so near death, nothing causes so much trouble or the cause of so many surgical operations. The ways of Providence are wonderful. This advertisement may be one of its methods of warning, coming to you unawares, which if neglected means your death. Don't be deceived or have your mind changed by some one who has trusses for sale or who gets a commission by getting a truss for you. They will lose the money, so they will say, "Don't send for the Surehold Truss; it is so cheap it can't be good," and then they will offer to sell you something costing $5.00 and upwards, and say, "This is good because we ask a big price for it." The fact is they make so few sales that when they do find a customer they charge enough to keep themselves going until they get another victim to fleece. Just say to such people that the Surehold Truss is not sold, it is only loaned, and just as soon as you are cured I get the truss back and $4.00 more. I have thousands of patients, so it pays me. Ask others to let you have their goods on the same terms as I do, and I will warrant you will get some flimsy excuse.

A MAN CURED WHILE HE WORKED. DEAR SIR: I cannot find words to express my thanks. I tried many kinds and never one that would hold me. The Surehold holds me in all places and at all kinds of work, and I have never lost a day's time. I am cured entirely and have not had to wear a truss for many weeks. I have worked hard shoveling and wheeling coal; traveling up and down stairs at my work as watchman. Some nights I have put in more than a ton of coal. G. S. MOSLEY, Norwood, Mass.

A WOMAN CURED AFTER 18 YEARS OF SUFFERING, AGE 61. DEAR SIR: I cannot say enough in favor of your truss. Please accept my most sincere thanks for the benefit I have received. I have not worn a truss for three months now. I had previously worn a truss day and night for over 18 years. I have worked hard all the fall drying fruit and doing the duties of the household. I heartily wish that every man, woman or child who has suffered as I did would be convinced that your truss will cure rupture. I wish you long life and prosperity and an eternal life in the future. Yours truly, MARTHA DAVIS, Diamond, Ark.

A BOY CURED MY BOY. SIR: Your truss has cured my boy when no other would, in the time you said it would. I am more than thankful to you. Every word you said was true. No need of any child suffering when they can be cured so easily.

MRS. MARY YARNELL, Middleton, Ohio.

☞ The above are only samples. We could print more testimonials than this paper could hold.

POSTMASTER I have examined the letters from which these testimonials were taken and guarantee the same to be genuine. I was also shown a great many other testimonials which speak in the highest terms of the Surehold Truss. CHAS. B. WOODMAN.

MAYOR WESTBROOK, ME. This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Alexander Speirs, and consider him responsible for any contracts he may make, and strictly reliable. KING S. RAYMOND, (Mayor).

REFERENCE Any Bank, Mercantile Agency, Postmaster, Express Co., City Official, and the Publishers of this paper.

Men and women use the same measure blank.

SPECIAL ORDER BLANK.

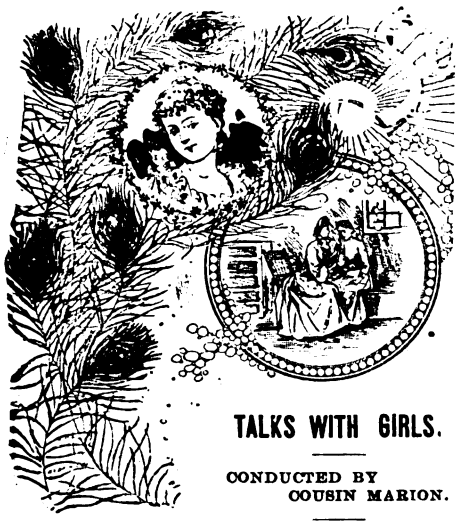
ALEXANDER SPEIRS—DEAR SIR:—FIND ENCLOSED MY MEASURES, ALSO $1.40 AS A GUARANTEE, FOR ONE SINGLE SUREHOLD TRUSS (SEND $2.50 FOR DOUBLE TRUSS) TO BE SENT BY MAIL, ALL CHARGES PREPAID. WHEN CURED OF MY RUPTURE I PROMISE TO PAY $4.00 MORE AND RETURN THE TRUSS YOU SEND ME.

NAME .....

STREET, OR P. O. BOX IF YOU HAVE ONE .....

POST OFFICE .....

COUNTY ..... STATE .....



MEASURE BLANK.

1. How many inches do you measure around the body on a line with the rupture?
2. Are you ruptured on right side, left side, both sides, or navel?
3. About how large is the rupture?
4. How near the scrotum is it?
5. Does it descend into the scrotum?
6. Can you reduce or return it easily?
7. What is your height?
8. What is your weight?
9. What is your occupation?
10. How long have you been ruptured?
11. Mark as near as possible on picture where your rupture is.

State you saw this ad. in COMFORT.

ALEX. SPEIRS, Westbrook, Maine.

TALKS WITH GIRLS.

CONDUCTED BY
COUSIN MARION.

How pleasant is the month of May
With all the world so bright and gay,
With heart so light and eyes so bright,
It's like an opening summer day.

There, my dears, is a little verse of poetry for a greeting to you in this last and sweetest month of Spring, and may it always be May to you. Now let us go to talking about ourselves.

The first letter is from Alice of Lincoln, Me., who asks me a lot of questions about young men, but as she is only fifteen I refer her to her mother. She asks also whether the vertical or slanting style of handwriting is preferable and I answer that the vertical is better than any other because it is more legible.

Wild Rose, Lee, N. D.—It is proper for a girl to ask a young man to write to her if their friendship is of long standing. Usually the young man does the asking.

Fannie, Berlin, Md.—It is wrong to flirt either for fun or otherwise. It cheapens a girl and ought to make her ashamed of herself because it is one of the worst forms of deceit.

Hunnie, Braddock, Pa.—You must know a young man very well before you begin to find fault with him for going to see other girls. I fancy you are inclined to be jealous. Cure yourself of it or you will never be happy.

A. S., Dubuque, Ia.—It would not be right for me to help you with the letter your teacher wants you to write. Do it yourself, even if you don't win the prize.

Viola, Brotherton, Pa.—Consult your family physician about superfluous hair and freckles. There is danger in ignorance. (2) Wait for the young man to write.

Libbie, Ina, Mich.—If the young man never does anything worse than dance and play a friendly game of cards, he will get along all right. Give him a little latitude and use your influence to keep him within bounds. (2) The man may sit on either side of the lady and he usually walks on her left. (3) When anywhere together it is the lady's privilege to suggest when to leave.

Lizzette and Evelyn, Grand Rapids, Mich.—Paris is probably the better place for you to pursue your art studies. Rome later. (2) Sorry, but I am past the age when women love to be photographed and I have no pictures. Thank you just the same for the compliment.

Blue Eyes, Paragon, Ind.—If a girl has to pay a young man to come to see her she ought to find a better use for her money. (2) In an emergency it is proper to ask a young man to go home with you.

A. S. F. and Eline, Okabena, Minn.—Certainly, break the engagement if the man proves to be unworthy. Why not? (2) Make the young man wait till the girl is ready. (3) You owe a duty to your parents and not less to yourself and the young man. Can't you and he arrange to marry and live with the "old folks?"

Country Blonde, Walnut Hill, Ga.—Consult advertisements in COMFORT for place to sell stamps. (2) Manufacturers can make spools cheaper than they can buy empty ones. (3) Ask any business man in your town about the bonds.

Dode, Chicago, Ills.—What else can the young man do but buy a new ring to replace the one he has lost? (2) Young men take scoldings good-naturedly from girls they like. Don't write to the Summer young man.

Snow Bird, Sycamore, Pa.—Refuse ever to see again the man who insults you. (2) Nice girls never wink at anybody. (3) The young man who makes "something bad" out of what you say to him is not a gentleman and you should cut his acquaintance. (4) It is quite proper for a man to tell a girl she is pretty, if she is. (5) Ten years is about the right difference in age for man and wife.

Jessie, Bowling Green, Ky.—If you should win the young man by dyeing your hair, what would you do when after you were married the dye comes out? Do you think he would love a girl who cheated him like that? (2) You must use your own judgment in refusing the young man.

American Girl, Gomer, Ohio.—A man that is hard to get along with as a sweetheart will be a hundred times worse as a husband, and you had better let him go. You need not be particular about his feelings in doing it either.

Young Writer, Delaware, Ill.—Submit your writings to your country editor and get your literary start that way.

Lucille W., Parkersburg, W. Va.—Don't "drop" the young man exactly, but let him down easy. He is too young for you anyhow and is likely to become very tiresome. Still, if you love him enough to choose him as against all other friends, go ahead. He's decent and respectable which is something in his favor.

Maid Marion, Bloomington, Ill.—Ladies in good society do smoke cigarettes, but it is not to their credit and should not be followed as an example by people of real refinement. (2) Yes, have a jolly good time but be careful always, so as to avoid even talk. Popularity is something you will have to let go to your successors. It can't stay with you always. (3) Simply pull the hair out of the mole. (4) Bleached hair ought to fall out. (5) There is no positive preventive of the stoutness you mention except by general thinness.

Cassy, Bloomfield, Ill.—The young man who deliberately breaks an engagement is unworthy of confidence again, and you should by all means have no more to do with him. (2) A young man who is a gentleman will return your ring to you when you want it. (3) Simple powder may be used on the face, but never paint.

Tempest, West Union, Neb.—It is quite proper for you to go "with a fellow after he has insulted" you. Don't you know that gentlemen always insult ladies? Why are you so silly?

Ollie, Clifton, Ky.—You may kiss the young man if you are engaged to him. (2) Don't marry till after you are through school. (3) There is no cure for inherited diseases. (4) A girl may visit in the neighborhood where her sweetheart lives.

Hope, Halsey, Ore.—A girl may learn dressmaking as soon as she can sew, but she won't know much about it till she has had several years' experience. (2) It is better to wear corsets about the house, unless you want to give them up entirely. (3) Dances are all right if you want to go to them. That is, nice dances.

Violette, Springville, Ala.—Drop the young man who tries to make love to two girls. He is bound to be lying to one of them. (3) Engaged girls usually give up their other men friends as soon as the engagement is known.

Harriet, Adirondack, N. Y.—You may ask another girl to go walking with you and your beau, but it isn't customary. (2) You may go walking alone with him every night if you are engaged. (3) Suit your taste in what you serve at a birthday party.

Anxious One, Sacramento, Cal.—A girl should never accept a man's attention when he is polite to her only when it suits his pleasure. If she does she deserves every snub she gets.

Hawthorne, Fair Oaks, Tenn.—Wear a simple white dress at your graduating exercises, and of the usual length. Ask your teacher the other questions you ask me.

Wild Flower, Great Bend, N. Y.—Have nothing to do with the articles you mention as seeing advertised. Talk to your family physician.

Chatter Box, Villa Grove, Ill.—Say almost anything except "You are welcome," when a man thanks you for dancing with him. (2) Don't stand at the gate very long, and you are the one to go first. (3) Order breakfast or lunch or supper from a menu all at once; dinner is in this order, usually, oysters, soup, fish, meats and vegetables, salad, dessert, coffee.

Brown Eyes, Dunham, Ind.—The nicest kind of people dance the round dances. (2) The lady should return with the escort who took her. (3) No, a young man should not "hang around" a lady at a party. (4) Girls of sixteen should not go to dances or have beaus. (5) A young man may act as escort to two or more young ladies.

C. B. O., Chillicothe, O.—Help the young man on with his overcoat if he needs help, which I don't think he does.

Vivian, Attica, Kans.—Sensible women do not lace. It is neither becoming, artistic nor healthful. (2) You ask too many questions at once.

Two Brunettes, Cooperstown, N. D.—Tell the young man when it is time to go if he hasn't sense enough to know. (2) There is no set form of speech for accepting courtesies. Use your judgment.

Prudence, Mill Creek, Miss.—If you can't win the young man's affection any other way than by kissing him, let his affection go to grass.

Florence, Astoria, Ore.—Flirting is a despicable form of deceit. That is the best definition I know. (2) In Astoria a young woman may go rowing with a young man by moonlight. (3) Does your sense of propriety tell you to let the young man kiss you? If it does, then let him kiss you.

Beatrix, Davenport, Ia.—Meeting the man at your sister's you may invite him to call and accept his invitation to an entertainment. (2) Yes, the lady may take the man's arm without his asking her to. (3) It is quite correct to offer refreshments of some simple kind to callers in the evening. You may or may not, as you please. This may include a cigar to the man if you don't object to smoking. (5) Polite, but not customary.

Pansy, Highland, Tenn.—Don't believe the young man who drinks whiskey. All the chances are he will not tell you the truth.

Mocking Bird, Lake City, Fla.—The young man in the dance should hold your arm below the elbow. (2) The young man may talk love if he means it. If you do not like it, tell him so.

Auburn Tresses, Chatsworth, Ills.—Don't talk with strange men on trains, or elsewhere. Never flirt in any form, postage stamp or otherwise, and keep your locks of hair to yourself.

That is all, my dears, and those of you who are not answered directly will find answers that fit your cases in my answers to the other cousins. May life be pleasant to you all as the Springtime.

COUSIN MARION.

THE Prince of Wales is said to be insured for ten million dollars. Comparatively little of this sum, however, is for the benefit of the family of the insured, for about three millions of the full amount has been placed on the life of the Prince as a speculation by persons who do not know him and never had any relations with him whatever. This is allowed by some of the English companies, but would not be in this country. When the Prince undergoes an examination for insurance, speculators apply to the same company for policies on his life, and in this way many who have speculated in this way would be financially benefitted at his death.

AT the last convention of the American Whist League, a scale of punishments for the various crimes committed at the whist table was adopted, which was to be carried out to the letter; some of them are as follows:

Failing to notice partner's lead—to play for 30 consecutive evenings with women.

Failing to notice partner's signal for trumps—Death, or instruction of one or more young women in the game.

Failing to return partner's lead of trumps—To be ruled out of the game for one year.

Leading from a sneak—To be banished from polite and other society. For preferring lucky whist to duplicate—Life imprisonment.

For preferring any other game to whist—To be burned at the stake.

CLEAR SKIN ASSURED. Send $1.00 for Eminent English Physician's Prescription. Cures Bad Blood, Pimples, Blotches, Boils. Osborne Co., Box 878, Montreal, Canada.

RUPTURE CURED while you work. You pay $4 when cured. No cure, no pay. ALEX. SPEIRS, Box 17, WESTBROOK, MAINE.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind. Please mention COMFORT when you write.

HAIR LIKE THIS

We will forward FREE

To any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address Lorrimer & Co., 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

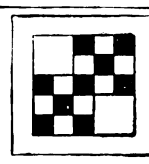
EARN A CAMERA, or BRACELET, or GOLD-FILLED RING,

BY SELLING 10 PINS AT 10c. EACH.

These are beautiful Gold Stick Pins, set with rubies, pearls, emeralds, etc., and are worth twice the price.

Send us your name and full address. We will then send you the pins. You sell them, return the money to us, and choose premium—a camera, bracelet or ring, or any other premium in our large illustrated catalogue.

NOVELTY JEWELRY CO.
25 Bank St., Attleboro, Mass.



LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE!

Reader, do you desire to become a Hypnotist? Do you want to know how to utilize the most powerful and mysterious force of nature? Do you value control over others? Do you value the means of securing friendship, love and personal influence? Do you value the power to conquer pain and banish sickness, to reform a misguided friend, to gain business success, to win wealth, position and happiness? If you do, you must learn to Hypnotize. Why not? No other accomplishment is so easily acquired. It can be mastered in a few hours time, without leaving your home. It costs nothing to find out all about it. The greatest Hypnotist of the century has just issued in book form a large and exhaustive TREATISE, or Instructor in Hypnotism, covering the whole ground of his Science, and he will send it while the edition lasts, absolutely FREE TO ALL who apply. The book is profusely illustrated, containing hundreds of beautiful and artistic engravings, and shows as never was done before the principles, features, wonders and uses of this mysterious Science, all in a popular and pleasing style. It tells you just what Hypnotism is, and what you may accomplish with it. It shows you how you may sway the minds of others, perform astounding feats and produce amusement by the hour. New and instantaneous methods. Success absolutely guaranteed. Remember, this grand work costs you nothing. It benefits everybody who reads it. It places you in touch with the wonder-science of the age. Read it anyhow. It is absolutely FREE. A postal card will bring it by return mail, all charges paid. Apply at once to

PROF. L. A. HARRADEN, Box 320, JACKSON, MICH.

$2000 FREE A SQUARE AND HONEST IDEA OF ADVERTISING OUR MAGAZINE.

COUNT THE SQUARES We will divide Two Thousand Dollars, payable June 30, 1900, among those who correctly count the exact number. For instance if ten correct answers are received each receives $200, if forty correct answers are received each receives $50 and so on. It is difficult to find exact number, so correct answers will not be many. We require each contestant to send 10 cents for trial six months subscription and postage expenses, as we have no further conditions or requirements. The $2000 is an appropriation to introduce our magazine and if you look sharp you can be successful for a cash prize. Address BRADDON PUBLISHING CO., Box 1580, Philadelphia, Pa.

SEND ONE DOLLAR Cut this ad out and send to us, state number of inches across top of your buggy seat in front, from outside to outside, and we will send you this BUGGY TOP by freight, C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory, the greatest bargain you ever saw, and equal to tops that retail at $15.00, pay the freight agent OUR SPECIAL PRICE, $7.50, less the $1.00, or $6.50 and freight charges. The freight charges will average about 80 cents for 500 miles. THESE TOPS ARE BUILT TO FIT ANY BUGGY OR ROAD WAGON. You can fit them on in 20 minutes. Made from 24-oz. best rubber drill, head and back stays lined with No. 14X cloth, side curtains unlined, 3 or 4 black japanned steel bows, japanned prop nuts, wrought iron shifting rail, patent buttons; which makes it adjustable; full length back curtain with glass window, valance front and rear. ORDER TODAY. WRITE FOR FREE BUGGY CATALOGUE.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR!

Ladies or Gentlemen We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO. A. Carton Bldg., CHICAGO.

FREE

DO YOU WANT A WATCH that runs & keeps good time This watch has a SOLID GOLD laid case, handsome dial dust proof, adjusted to position, patent escapement, and highly finished. This is a remarkable watch. We guarantee it, and with proper care it should wear and give satisfaction for 20 years. It has the appearance of a SOLID GOLD one. The watch is accompanied with a 20 YEAR GUARANTEE. The cases are beautifully made by the most skilled workmen. The movement is an AMERICAN STYLE, expansion balance, quick train, and you can rely upon it that when you own one of these truly handsome watches, you will at all times have the correct time in your possession. Do you want a watch of this character? If so, now is your opportunity to secure one. WE GIVE IT FREE as a premium to anyone for selling 18 pieces of our handsome jewelry, for 10c. each; (each set with an exquisite jewel), Regular price 25c. each. Simply send your name and address and we will send you the 18 pieces of jewelry postpaid. When sold send us the $1.50, and we will send you the handsome watch. We trust you and will take back all you cannot sell. We propose to give away these watches simply to advertise our business. No catch-words in this advertisement. We mean just what we say and allow a cash commission if preferred.. You require no capital while working for us. Address, SAFE WATCH CO., P. O. Box 180, New York.

$25 Free Mail Course

In Magnetic Healing, Hypnotism, Self-Healing, Self-Hypnotism, Absent Treatment, &c.

PAY AFTER YOU LEARN.

To be well taught never pay in advance. "This school goes much deeper into these occult sciences than any other. They teach every known phase and their combined course is the most complete ever published." Address EMPIRE COLLEGE, R 27, St. Louis, Mo.

$30 WEEKLY PAY positive sure. Don't miss this chance. It is a business that just suits everybody. Address, WORTH & CO., 181 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

WANTED SALESMAN in all parts of the U. S. and Canada, yearly contracts, salary and expenses, outfit furnished, THE J. S. BERRY MF'G. CO., Conneaut, Ohio.

PILES ELECTROBOLE gives instant relief. Final cure in a few days, never returns; no purge, no salve, no knife. Remedy mailed Free. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 695, New York, N. Y.

FREE! FOR EVERYBODY.

The Champion Fisherman's Outfit.

To everyone who likes to fish, either for sport, for the family, or for the market, we will send this Fisherman's Outfit free, postage paid, if he will get up a club of three subscribers for COMFORT at 25 cents each per year in advance.

Here it is, complete, nicely packed in a box.

No. 1. One Good Size Fine Polished Brass Reel. Will wind any line in first-class style. Works perfectly.

No. 2. One Linen Trout Line. Guaranteed to safely land the heaviest trout or fish of equal size.

No. 3. One Linen Bass or Salmon Line. Large, for big gamey fish, like salmon or black bass. This line will land the biggest fish caught with bait and sinker, or trolling from boat.

No. 4. One Long Cotton Line. Good for everyday fishing, after perch, catfish, sunfish, rock bass, etc.

No. 5. One Strong Line. Complete, with hook, bob and sinker. This is a whole outfit in itself, comprising long stout line with medium-sized hook attached, and neat movable bob and sinker. With bait at hand and this line in his pocket the fisherman can start right in and try his luck.

No. 6. One Dozen Best Steel Ringed Fish Hooks (assorted sizes). These are best grades of hooks warranted, strong, sharp in points and barbs, and handy to use, anybody being able to tie their line into the ring of the hook.

No. 7. Two Imported Trout Flies. They will draw trout from deep pools when other flies fail. They are natural, brilliant in colors, strongly fastened around the hooks.

No. 8. One Imported Bass Fly. For black bass fishing, and the equal of the trout fly in excellence of material.

No. 9. One Improved Salmon Fly. Of the best pattern, and perfect shape and color, sure to rise and catch the fish.

No. 10. Two Snell Hooks and Gut. These hooks are set on long guts, and where fish cut the lines one of these snell hooks can be safely used, the gut cannot be severed, and lands the fish every time.

These artificial flies and snells alone are worth the amount asked for the entire outfit.

Given as a premium for three yearly subscriptions to COMFORT at the special trial price of 25 cents each, or sent postpaid for 50 cents cash. Don't buy fishing tackle in the stores and pay fifty or seventy-five cents every day or two.

Address PUB. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. H. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio.

PIMPLES and Blackheads removed in 4 to 6 days. Perfectly Harmless. Never fails. Send 10 cts. Specific Remedy Co., Dept. K, Cleveland, Ohio.

OPIUM and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Write DR. J. L. STEPHENS CO., Dept. C1, Lebanon, Ohio.

WE ARE

Searching for Sufferers

YOU MAY NOT FEEL SICK

BUT ALL HANDS POINT TO THE FACT YOU ARE NOT WELL AND WHETHER YOU BE MAN OR WOMAN YOU WILL SOON TAKE ON THIS AGONIZED LOOK.

WE CAN HELP YOU.

YOU DON'T NEED MEDICINE.

But you say you feel generally miserable or suffer with a thousand and one indescribable bad feelings, both mental and physical? Among them low spirits, nervousness, weariness, lifelessness, weakness, dizziness feelings of fullness or bloating after eating, or sense of "goneness" or emptiness of stomach in morning, flesh soft and lacking firmness, headache, blurring of eyesight, specks floating before the eyes, nervous irritability, poor memory, chilliness, alternating with hot flushes, lassitude, throbbing, gurgling, or rumbling sensations in bowels, with heat and nipping pains occasionally, palpitation of heart, short breath on exertion, slow circulation of blood. Don't your hands and feet become cold and clammy, do you HAWK AND SPIT and expectorate greenish colored matter? IS your urine scanty or high colored and does it deposit a sediment after standing? You have pain and oppression in chest and back, pain around the loins, aching and weariness of the lower limbs, drowsiness after meals, but nervous wakefulness at night, languor in the morning and a constant feeling of dread as if something awful was about to happen.

There Is Help for You. You Can Yet Be Happy.

I have an appliance. The only way to introduce it is to let you try it FREE. You will tell others if it helps you. It is perfectly harmless. Send us your name we are looking for real sufferers and knowing it will do you good you can cure yourself without trouble or expense. This article is perfectly safe and reliable, can be worn day and night, all of the time or part of the time and in any place or spot on the body that feels sick or shows pain—it is most marvelous acting and is the greatest God-send you ever heard of. After you use it and you feel its power you will say $25 would not have prevented me from sending for it. It acts just as well on man or woman.

THE ONLY CONDITIONS.

We send one all charges paid. It is Medical and we are obliged to put on Revenue stamps. Therefore as we furnish them entirely free we simply ask you to send us TEN CENTS for mailing, etc. We trust to your honor to tell others about the cure and know many will be sold thereby. We do not ask you to send any more money unless you want others to sell at a profit after you try it. Address,

G. O. COMPANY, Box 654, Augusta, Maine

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

SUMMER begins when the sun touches the boundary of his greatest northern declination, entering the sign Cancer at about 31 minutes past 4 o'clock in the afternoon of June 21st this year. A figure of the heavens erected for that moment at the seat of government in Washington shows the last decanate of Scorpio on the Ascendant, with Jupiter just below the eastern horizon and about to make his appearance in the east; Herschel is just below him in the Ascendant; Saturn is in the 2nd house; the Moon is in the 5th; Mercury and Venus in conjunction in the 8th near the 9th cusp; the Sun is in the 8th while Mars is just about to set below the western horizon.

The promises for the general good and prosperity of the country are reiterated in this quarterly figure and give cause for congratulation that in the midst of the turmoils of nations our progress and advancement as a nation is steady and sure. Jupiter on the Ascendant in his own domicile is strong for our welfare. It is true that Mars is in the 7th threatening some species of political strife or disorder among soldiers, mechanics, machinists, engineers, or firemen in our western regions, and probably some discontent or sedition in colonial regions or disagreement with some foreign power in the extreme west calling for diplomacy and possibly a show of determination and force for adjustment of difficulties. The quarter is likely to witness some periods of extreme heat with more than usual thunder and lightning and frequent showers especially in the last days of June and first part of July; but withal the air will be temperate and healthy. Foreign travel and pleasure excursions upon the water will be noticeably increased; more than ordinary success will attend the dealings of merchants and tradesmen in such commodities as wood, lumber, coal and mining products; unusual activity in the building trades is to be looked for, and mining industries will be much quickened.

One unfavorable feature noted is the indication of some increased mortality among men prominent in affairs of government or in the politics of the nation. A word of caution is suggested to all who are lovers of the "good things in life" or who are subject to apoplectic annoyances; and temperance and moderation should be the watch-word of such persons, especially if they are in public stations or much concerned in public affairs.

The Total Eclipse of the Sun on May 28th, this year, is an important one. It will be visible in North America, Europe and in Eastern Asia and Northern part of Africa. The central path of total eclipse passes through the northern part of Mexico, through New Orleans in Louisiana, Mobile, Raleigh, Norfolk, across the Atlantic, through Portugal, Spain, across the Mediterranean Sea, through Algeria at Algiers, and ends in Egypt near the Dead Sea. These vicinities are likely to suffer more than usually from atmospheric and terrestrial disturbances. Volcanic action and earth tremors are induced in such locations and diseases of an epidemic character may be expected thereabouts. Our sanitary authorities in the southern regions should be vigilant without ceasing for avoidance of any epidemic of yellow fever during the summer and fall of 1900. In general also, it will be wise for us all in the United States to protect our health conditions as related to the liver and bowels, and against such physical ailments as are due to disorders of these organs.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR JUNE, 1900.

JUNE 1—Friday. The afternoon of this day is the best, when purchase of goods for trade in established business may be made with good assurance of profit or advantage, but the day generally can not be recommended for beginning any new undertaking, especially if it is concerned with railroads, bodies politic, or large organizations of men or corporations; have dealings with persons of wealth, lawyers, judges and ecclesiastics.

2—Saturday. See that every moment of this day is fully employed particularly for urging all the literary pursuits; push scientific and mathematical studies vigorously, but avoid transactions concerned with houses or lands and give thy landlord a wide berth in the afternoon.

3—Sunday. A superior Sabbath day, particularly fit for all religious engagements and conducive to zealous devotional exercises.

4—Monday. Look carefully to the purse in the early hours of this day when sales are more likely to be profitable than purchases; scrutinize all expenditures rigidly; nor is this day any improvement on those of this month which have already passed for the inauguration of any new business; have no dealings with banks nor persons of station; sign no money obligations, nor make promises of financial dealings for the benefit of friends.

5—Tuesday. Improve every moment of this day, particularly for the elegant and mechanical pursuits; travel, deal in metals, machinery and cattle; consult dentists and surgeons and deal with all in the manufacturing callings; the artist, musician and all in the artistic pursuits should waste no moments in idleness or pleasure for the passing time promises unusual advantage from works now begun or executed. The first half of the day invites the matrimonial contract and musical and dramatic engagements.

6—Wednesday. Seek not wealth from dealings in real estate, nor expect to find favor with aged persons during the middle hours of this day when also baffling and disappointing conditions prevail generally, such as are likely to give unsatisfactory results from efforts made; the late afternoon gives far superior conditions and all honorable business should then be pushed vigorously.

7—Thursday. This day favors all manner of engagements in connection with strange and uncommon subjects, promoting metaphysical discourse and antiquarian researches; make applications to officers of government and corporate bodies generally for any manner of favor or advantage; concern thyself with patents or patented goods, especially if thy nativity gives favorable promises in this respect radically.

8—Friday. The forenoon is adverse for any of the elegant pursuits; do not deal in fancy goods nor engage in decoration or adornment and let all be prudent in the pursuit of pleasure; as the noon is passed, however, crowd all engagements pertaining to literature, educational matters and contracts of a commercial character; do correspondence, adjust accounts, and urge scientific studies and mathematical work, engage with printers and deal in printing materials, also such commodities as coal, wood, lumber and agricultural products; also concern thyself with mining interests and lands.

9—Saturday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday, make contracts for building and repairing, also architectural and horticultural work and deal with persons engaged as agents, trustees and all fiduciary capacities.

10—Sunday. The forenoon gives no special promise of good, being rather conducive to rashness, peevishness and excitability when the temper will need to be well guarded; the afternoon gives marked improvement and encourages associations of a temperate and social nature, promising a good degree of satisfaction from the contemplation of the elegant in literature and art.

11—Monday. One of the best days of the month, to be fully improved for all undertakings in life. If it be the anniversary of thy birthday, thou mayst reckon with more than ordinary assurance upon quite a prosperous time at this period in the life unless the nativity is radically very evilly affected. Use the day for replenishing thy stock in trade, and for dealings with bankers, brokers, judges, ecclesiastics and persons of wealth and means.

12—Tuesday. An indifferent day in nearly all respects, the morning and evening being the least favorable parts of the day; make no new beginnings in any ventures, nor seek any favor or advantage from thy superior or from public officials. The passing time is very unfavorable for persons born about the first of March, June, September, or December of past years, and a majority of them are likely to be in the midst of troublesome circumstances or to be physically "under the weather." To all such REGULUS suggests the necessity for unusual care in matters of both health and finance, particular stress being laid upon the necessity for avoidance of troubles with the liver and lungs or the bronchial system. Such persons should act very conservatively in all their transactions, avoiding new ventures and being content with existing circumstances rather than to start into new ventures. Marriageable ladies so born will be wise to avoid the matrimonial contract at this time if they desire peace and happiness in the marriage relation.

13—Wednesday. Conditions continue decidedly baffling and it is better to defer matters of much importance until a more promising time; make no contracts concerning houses or lands nor have any dealings with agriculturists, miners, or contractors; the literary pursuits are less favored than usual during the latter part of this day and mental labor is likely to be troublesome and unsatisfactory; have no dealings with printers or booksellers; the night hours are mischievous and fires and crimes are to be carefully guarded against.

14—Thursday. Keep the temper during the morning hours when also defer all kinds of contract making. The latter half of the day is the best, in which the major undertakings in life are more successfully urged.

15—Friday. A very favorable day after the morning, inviting travel, business activity and enterprise. REGULUS points to this as one of the bright days of the month in which the beginning of new undertakings in general business should be made.

16—Saturday. The forenoon is favorable for geological pursuits, for handling chemicals and dealing with railway officials and persons in public office.

17—Sunday. A day of marked mental activity but the tongue will need a bridle in the forenoon for utterances are likely to be sharp, bitter and not always truthful and quarrels are easily provoked; the balance of the day is excellent for matters appropriate.

18—Monday. This day is mischievous in a financial sense; speculators! beware of temptations; look out for the purse and have no dealings with the very aged.

19—Tuesday. Begin this day with its earliest moments, urging all pursuits concerning books or writings and dealing with all in the literary callings; let literary productions be launched, do important correspondence, travel, make contracts and urge all commercial transactions generally; the time invites the commencement of undertakings of magnitude in the fine arts and dealings in fancy and decorative goods; the day favors courtship and matrimony; give preference to the forenoon and noon hours for the transaction of business with dealers in hardware, cutlery, fire-arms, metals, glassware, brass and iron work, machinery and chemical and electrical materials and apparatus.

20—Wednesday. Having rested during the night hours in which some depressing and disappointing conditions have prevailed, resume thine efforts with the appearance of the sun for thy profit and advantage; seek money accommodations and speculate in the forenoon if thy nativity be now fairly fortunate in this particular; let the early hours be taken for purchasing stock for trade, for financial negotiations and for gaining business credit and reputation; make collections and adjust accounts.

21—Thursday. Be very cautious in the use of the pen on this day; make no contracts or bargains concerned with literary or artistic matters; sign no deeds, engage no servants nor expect much profit or advantage from any of the literary undertakings nor from dealings in wearing apparel, musical or artistic wares or productions.

22—Friday. This day encourages dealings with the laboring classes and promotes advantage from transactions with plumbers, tinners and building contractors.

23—Saturday. The forenoon of this day forbids gain or advantage from dealings in real estate or transactions looking to its improvement. The passing days are peculiarly unfavorable for persons born about the 23rd of March, June, September, or December of past years, and REGULUS particularly charges those claiming those birthdays to exercise more than ordinary care in matters of health and finance; let them particularly avoid liver and bowel troubles and the outbreak of old infirmities; let them give no cause for business ruptures, and, doing the best they can, be content even though prosperity be not so great as usual; ladies born at such times should have care that no trouble comes to the husband or lover through them and will need to exercise caution that marital or betrothal relations do not suffer serious rupture. It is no time for those born as above to make business changes or to start into any new and important undertakings in life. The afternoon is much the best part of the day, encouraging the literary pursuits and fine arts; musical, social and dramatical engagements are favored in the latter half of the day.

24—Sunday. Influences are adverse to best advancement of religious interests and church matters; offensive aggressiveness and contention are likely to mark the pulpit discourse of the day and the tendencies to quarrels and disagreements suggest patience and self-control in very walk in life. As the days advance let all practice caution for avoidance of fires, as the time gives menace of some very destructive fires involving heavy property losses.

25—Monday. A day not specially conducive to progress in any direction, though it is by no means unfavorable for any of the routine or general transactions of life.

26—Tuesday. An unpromising day; discouraging for the purse and embarrassing to the progress of enterprises; be temperate in habit and careful in diet, specially avoiding surfeits. REGULUS repeats his caution to persons born about the 23rd of March, June, September, or December of past years, for misfortunes to such nativities are easy of birth under existing conditions and disorder in business affairs, discord or bereavement in the domestic circle, and low physical conditions if not serious illness are among some of the trials induced under prevailing influences in such lives.

27—Wednesday. Urge business during all of this day; prosecute mathematical and scientific studies; deal with the intellectual classes, book sellers, publishers, printers, judges, and lawyers; attend to matters of account and travel; let the musician and artist busy themselves in their professions and all in the polite callings in life crowd their affairs to the utmost; the evening is very favorable for musical entertainment and social engagements.

28—Thursday. Drive thy business vigorously on this day, especially if concerned with the mechanical pursuits; deal with military men, machinists, surgeons, tanners and electricians; make experiments with chemicals and with electrical apparatus.

29—Friday. Be stirring early and employ every moment for thy betterment, preferences being given, if any, to such engagements as depend upon mental labor and activity; the day is peculiarly favorable for literary matters and for the prosecution of mathematical and scientific studies; the mind is unusually active and ideas clothe themselves readily and tastefully; urge correspondence, make contracts, particularly those affecting legal and educational matters; hire help and push all matters of trade and business.

30—Saturday. Seek no promotion in official station or advancement in business from thine employer; have no dealings with builders, plumbers, excavators, miners, or persons dealing in houses or lands. Let all have care during this and the next day, particularly for avoidance of fires or explosions. Conditions promote heat and electrical phenomena and combustion is easily produced. These suggestions are peculiarly appropriate for persons born about the 21st of February, 22nd of May, 25th of August, or 22nd of November of past years.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

4 BOOKS FREE The Sexual Instinct, by Wm. Kirke Ashcroft, M.D.; The Glory of Womanhood, by Louise M. Barkley, M.D.; and The Treatment of Diseases of the Skin, by Wigton Barkley, M. D.; The River of Life, by Augustus Dannart, M. D., Ph. D., L. L. D.; The Pests of the Body, by Charles Matlock, M.D. Each of these little books is a remarkably interesting treatise on the subject considered, and all four will be sent absolutely free, postpaid, to any address. SECURITY PUBLISHING CO., Washington, D.C.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED Many rich. Big lists with pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

PERFECT MANHOOD

Prof. Jules Laborde's Marvelous French Preparation of

"CALTHOS"

For Lost Manhood.

Full 5 Days' Treatment

SENT FREE

By Sealed Mail.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

Every person who is a sufferer from nervous diseases should write the Von Mohl Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, at once, and accept their offer of a five days' trial treatment free of charge. This is no C. O. D. or DEPOSIT scheme but a liberal proposition made to unfortunate sufferers by this long-established concern, which is the largest importer of specifics for nervous and sexual diseases in the world.

The Von Mohl Co. has the sole American rights for Prof. Laborde's French preparation of "Calthos," the only remedy known to advanced medical science that will positively cure nervous debility. This remedy has for years been used as a specific in the French and German armies, and since its introduction into the United States has cured many thousands of sufferers, and the remarkable success of the remedy in Europe has been repeated in this country.

In order to place this wonderful treatment in the hands of every person who suffers the mental and physical anguish of sexual weakness, The Von Mohl Co., has decided to send a free trial treatment to all who write at once. The remedy is sent by mail in a plain package, and there is no publicity in receiving it or taking it. Accompanying the medicine there is a full treatise in plain language for you to read. Take the medicine privately with perfect safety, and a sure cure is guaranteed.

Lost vitality creeps upon men unawares. Do not deceive yourself or remain in ignorance while you are being dragged down by this insidious disease. No matter what the cause may be, whether early abuses, excesses or overwork and business cares, the results are the same—premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and shrunken parts. This specific remedy will cure you at any stage before epilepsy results, with ensuing consumption and insanity. "Calthos" goes directly to the seat of the trouble, no matter of how long standing, and the patient feels the benefit of the first day's treatment. In five days the medicines sent free will make you feel like a new man.

The Von Mohl Co. often receives the most astonishing testimonials from persons who have taken only five days' treatment. They have thousands of testimonials from those who have been permanently cured after having been given up by doctors, misled and ruined in health by disreputable medical schemers, and when they had given up their last hope for health and happiness. No sensible person will permit his name to be used for a testimonial as an admission that he had any of the diseases for which the preparation of "Calthos" is a specific cure. Some irresponsible advertisers are using "made-up" testimonials, but the Von Mohl Co. invariably declines to make public the names or correspondence of any patients who have been cured by "Calthos."

Five days' treatment will be placed in your hands free of cost, and you are earnestly urged for your own sake to send for it without delay. Write to day and send your address. It is not necessary to give embarrassing details of your symptons. The book accompanying the five days' treatment will enable you to take the medicine in private and treat yourself successfully at home. It costs nothing to try this remedy. It may cost you a great deal more to let this offer go by. Write today. Address THE VON MOHL CO. 810 B, CINCINNATI, OHIO. Largest Importers of Standard Preparations in the United States.

LADIES, Send to Mrs. H.C.Fretter, Detroit, Mich., for free package ORANGE LILY. Cures all female diseases.

ASTROLOGY To prove the correctness of my Astrological System, I will give you my personal attention and send you FREE, a personal typewritten Horoscope of your life. Send your date of birth and 2c. stamp for postage. Prof. H. Edison, Astrologer, T, Binghamton, N.Y.

TRIAL Treatment FREE DRINK HABIT cured secretly. Write for booklet on the Drink Habit and its POSITIVE CURE. Mrs. May Hawkins, L.U. 181, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FREE RUPTURE CURE! If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

Women Made Beautiful

by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchless loveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., sealed for two cent stamp. Address AURUM MEDICINE CO, Dept. A. N 55 State St. Chicago.

$5.00 CASH per 1000 paid to Distribute Circulars. Enclose 4 stamps. World Adv. Assc'n, Chicago.

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich. EASTERN AGENCY 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

YOUR FUTURE LIFE COMPLETE in LOVE, MARRIAGE and BUSINESS, AS PREDICTED by ASTROLOGY. Send TIME of BIRTH, SEX & 10c. for Written Prediction. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr. E. M. Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

Mothers I can cure your children of incontinence of urine. Sample FREE. Address F. E. MAY, M. D., Bloomington, Ill.

Get Married 8,000 Ladies VERY ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, Box 608, AUSTIN, ILLS.

THE HAIR TELLS ALL If Sick send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex and 4 cts. in stamps and I will diagnose your case FREE and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

BLOOD POISON

HAVE YOU Sore throat, Pimples, Copper Colored Spots, Aches, Old Sores, Ulcers in Mouth, Hair-Falling? Write COOK REMEDY CO., 1731 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill., for proofs of cures. Capital, $500,000. Worst cases cured 15 to 35 days. 100-page book free.

A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE.

GREATEST MONEY MAKER AND MONEY SAVER EVER SEEN: NEEDED IN EVERY HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

Hundreds of dollars are wasted every year in paying for repairs which could be done by you just as well as by the person you hire. "Yes," you will say, "I could do this work if I only had the tools." You have to hire the plumber or cobbler and pay him for his time while you stand around and look on, watching him do the work which you could do as well as he, but it is always that you have no tools. We have put together the best kit of tools for repairing which was ever seen, and we will sell the entire outfit for less than half the money for which you could buy it at any store. The outfit consists of forty-four first-class tools, as shown in the above cut, viz: 1 iron last for men's work; 1 iron last for boy's work; 1 iron last for women's work; 1 iron last for children's work; 1 iron stand for lasts; 1 shoehammer; 1 shoeknife; 1 peg awl handle; 1 peg awl; 1 wrench for peg awl handle; 1 sewing awl handle; 1 sewing awl; 1 stabbing awl handle; 1 stabbing awl; 1 bottle leather cement; 1 bottle rubber cement; 1 bunch bristles; 1 ball shoe thread; 1 ball shoe wax; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 4-8 in.; 1 pkg clinch nails 5-8 in.; 1 pkg. clinch nails, 6-8 in.; 1 pkg. heel nails; 4 prs. heel plates, assorted sizes; 6 harness needles; 1 harness and saw clamp; 1 box slotted rivets, assorted sizes; 1 rivet set for same; 1 harness and belt punch; 1 soldering iron, ready for use; 1 handle for same; 1 bar solder; 1 bar resin; 1 bottle soldering fluid; 1 copy directions for halfsoling, etc., 1 copy directions for soldering all securely packed, together with directions for use, in a neat case. These tools bought at a hardware store separately would cost between $7.00 and $9.00. You can repair boots and shoes, tap and heel them, mend your harness or make a new one, mend all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, and do all kinds of leather work about carriages, etc., as well as repair and mend rubber boots, rubbers, overshoes, and all kinds of rubber made articles. The clamp is used for mending harnesses and filing saws. Has a coil spring and is made of iron. You can easily save five times the cost of this outfit in six months and make a heap of money doing little repairs for your neighbors and others. "A stitch in time saves nine," and if you have these tools in your house you can make repairs and save a great deal of money which you would pay if you let a break go or hired a man to do your repairing work for you. Every one of these tools are full sized, practical, neat and cheap. It is the only complete outfit in the market and thousands have been sold in past years for $3.00 when the outfit contained but about half as many smaller articles to people living in the country and small towns as well as in the city. This repairing outfit, weighing 20 lbs. will be sent by freight complete as above described for only $1.62 which includes a 6 months' trial subscription to this paper.

GREAT PREMIUM OFFER.—If you will get up a club of 6 yearly trial subscribers to this paper at the special price of 25 cents each, we will send you one of these repairing outfits as a present to you.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Send No Money

WE ASK NO MONEY until you have examined the machine and convinced yourself it is such a machine as was never before offered at anything like the price.

5-DRAWER GRAND.

$16.45 FREIGHT PAID...

THIS ILLUSTRATION shows our 5-Drawer, Drop Head, Cabinet Grand BURDICK Machine open for work. Head is raised and set in place, cover extended as a sewing machine table. No larger, handsomer, more roomy or convenient sewing machine cabinet made; no better device for the protection of a sewing machine head.

OUR OFFER:

MENTION SPECIAL OFFER No. 84H if you have any use for a Sewing Machine. DON'T SEND ONE CENT OF MONEY, but write your name plainly and in full, name of postoffice and nearest railroad station, and we will send this to your railroad station, prepaying all freight charges ourselves.

DROP HEAD, 5-DRAWER CABINET BURDICK SEWING MACHINE

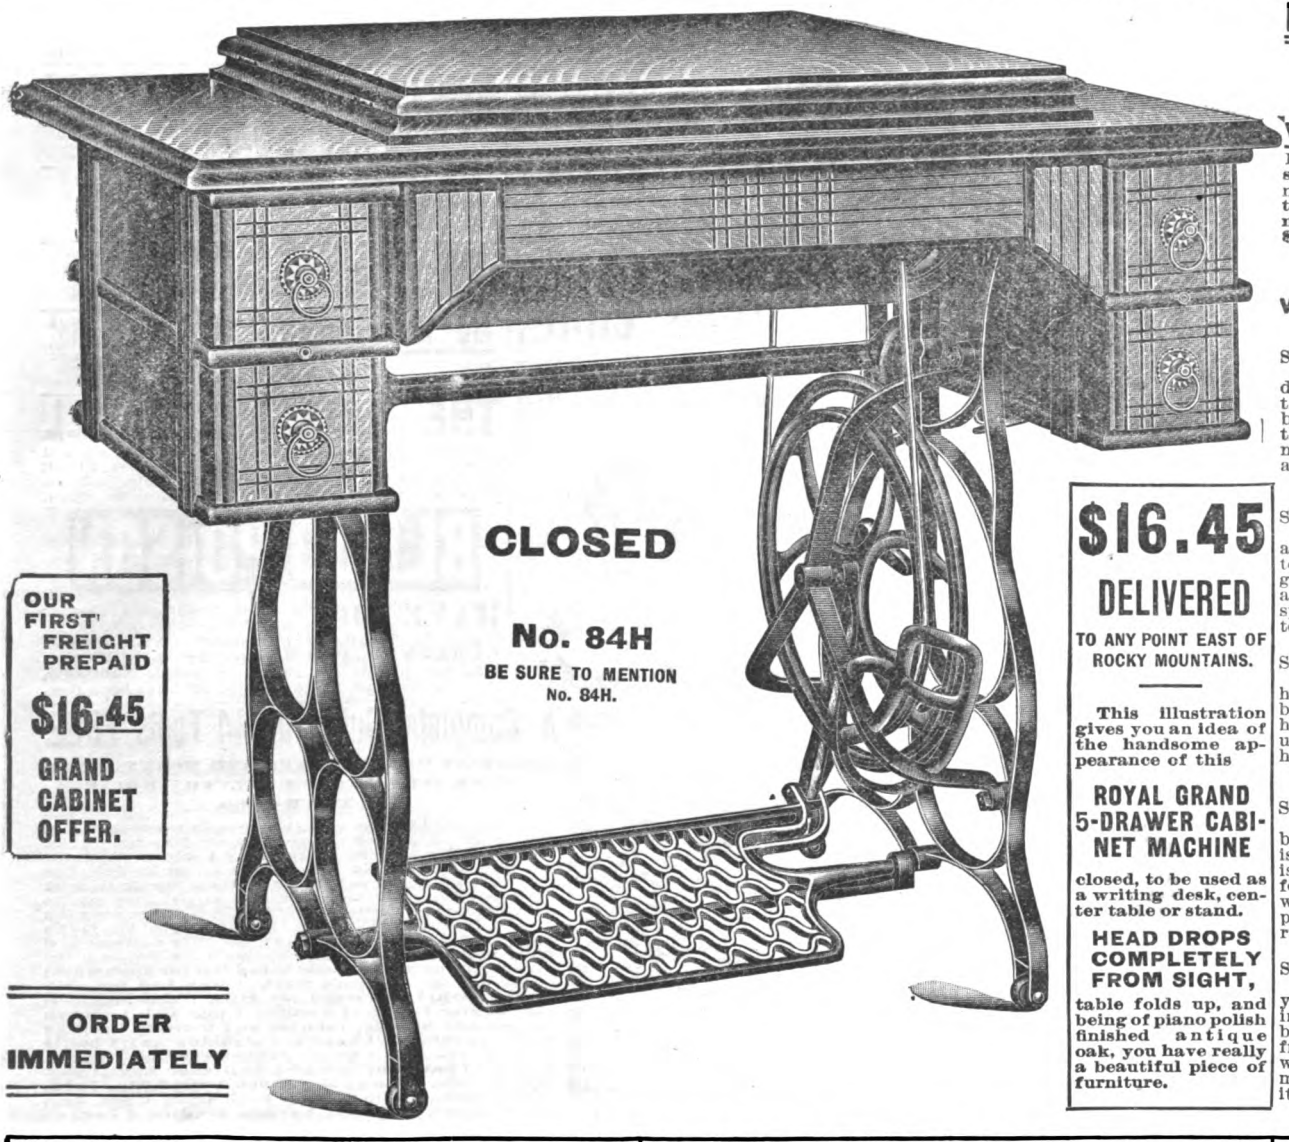
You go there and EXAMINE IT, call in any expert to examine it, compare it with machines that others sell at $40.00 to $60.00, and if everyone pronounces it in every way the equal of such machines, the LOWEST PRICE ever attempted for such a High Grade Machine, THE MOST WONDERFUL BARGAIN YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay the freight agent

OUR SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY PRICE, $16.45

IF IT IS NOT PERFECTLY SATISFACTORY IN EVERY WAY, YOU WILL BE UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO TAKE IT ....

WE SEND IT, FREIGHT PREPAID, AT OUR OWN RISK.

THREE MONTHS' FREE TRIAL. You can give this machine three months' trial in your own home, and if at any time within the three months you become dissatisfied with the machine from any cause whatever, YOU CAN RETURN IT TO US AT OUR EXPENSE AND WE WILL IMMEDIATELY RETURN YOUR MONEY.



GUARANTEED TWENTY YEARS

With every Burdick Sewing Machine we issue a written, binding, 20-years' guarantee, by the terms and conditions of which, if any piece or part gives out by reason of defect in material or workmanship we will replace or repair it FREE OF CHARGE.

To Points West of Rocky Mountains, Price will be $19.00, Freight Prepaid.

$16.45 Freight and... Collection Charges PAID BY US for the Burdick Machine in our NEW GRAND 5-DRAWER DROP HEAD CABINET

Far eclipses all previous attempts at Sewing Machine Values.

OUR FIRST FREIGHT PREPAID $16.45 GRAND CABINET OFFER.

ORDER IMMEDIATELY

$16.45 DELIVERED TO ANY POINT EAST OF ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

This illustration gives you an idea of the handsome appearance of this

ROYAL GRAND 5-DRAWER CABINET MACHINE closed, to be used as a writing desk, center table or stand.

HEAD DROPS COMPLETELY FROM SIGHT, table folds up, and being of piano polish finished antique oak, you have really a beautiful piece of furniture.

FIRST AND ONLY OFFER AT $16.45. FREIGHT PREPAID

NEVER BEFORE HAVE WE MADE THE $16.45 PRICE NEVER BEFORE OFFERED TO PAY ALL FREIGHT AND ALL CHARGES OF ALL KINDS.

WE HAVE SOLD OVER 100,000 BURDICKS in the regular grade Five-drawer Drop Head style. There are at least a few in every town. If you have not seen it, write us and we will give you the names of people in your neighborhood who have them. We mail free on request a book containing the names of thousands of people who have bought our machines, and give their praise to quality and testify to saving $20.00 to $40.00 each.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE BURDICK.

We Have Thousands of Letters to the Same Effect.

Consider They Received a Present of $35.00.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, Ill. Carthage, Jasper Co., Mo.

Gentlemen: The beautiful sewing machine came in first-class condition. My wife has tested it to her entire satisfaction. She is more than pleased with it—I might say delighted, and it is certainly the biggest value for the money we ever heard of. Two ladies examined the machine yesterday, and claimed it was exactly the same grade of machine they paid $50.00 and $55.00 for. We consider you have made us a present of $35.00. Please accept our many thanks.

Yours very truly, DR. AND MRS. ANDERSON.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, Ill. Matthews, N. C.

We have received the Burdick Sewing Machine several months ago and will cheerfully say that it is all and more than it is represented to be, and have saved $20.00 or $25.00 by ordering from you instead of getting one here. It is as finely finished as any $40.00 or $50.00 machine and has already more than paid for itself. The attachments are just splendid and it is such a convenient machine, being so easy and light to run. Very truly, MRS. M. R. MORGAN.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, Ill. Stewart, Texas.

Dear Sirs: We have given the machine we ordered from you an honest trial and it has proved more than satisfactory. It is much better than a machine we paid $44.00 for two years ago. I can't see how you can sell such a machine for the money. Our old machine cost us not less than $8.00 per year to keep it in running order. This one has not cost us a cent for repairs. Not a needle has been broken.

Your old customer, NEWTON ADAMS.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, Ill. Houtzdale, Clearfield Co., Pa.

Gentlemen: My wife insists that I write you regarding the machine bought of you, which arrived in perfect condition, and to say that she is pleased is putting it mildly. It is a perfect piece of sewing mechanism in every respect. She has tried several noted makes and the difference in them and the Burdick is the difference between a road wagon and a ball bearing bicycle. She says the Burdick is the most perfect machine she has ever seen and is noiseless, and comes near running itself. Gratefully yours, ARTHUR F. HUGHES.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, Ill. Greenbrier, Limestone Co., Ala.

I have received my sewing machine and can truly say it is just as you represented. I am delighted with it and have saved $15.00 or $20.00 in getting my machine from you. I have seen a good many machines brought around through this section by different agents, and they ask from $35.00 to $65.00 for almost any machine that they handle, and I would not today give the Burdick I got from you for any of their $65.00 machines. The Burdick is so simple, a 10-year old child can operate it. It is also a well finished machine in all respects.

Your friend, SALENA J. TAYLOR.

THE BURDICK has every modern improvement, every good point of every high grade machine made, with the defects of none. Made by the best maker in America, from the best material money can buy. Grandest 5-Drawer Drop Desk Cabinet, exactly as shown in the two illustrations, made from solid quarter sawed oak, piano polish. One illustration shows the machine closed, (head dropping from sight) to be used as a center table, stand or desk, the other open with full length table and head ready for sewing. Four side drawers, one center drawer, latest 1900 model skeleton frame. One of the most massive, most complete and most expensive sewing machine cabinets made. Carved, paneled, embossed and decorated cabinet finish, finest nickel drawer pulls, rests on four casters, adjusted treadle. Best stand made.

THE BURDICK HEAD is one of the very best high arm heads made. Positive four motion feed, self-threading vibrating shuttle, automatic bobbin winder, adjustable bearings, patent tension liberator, improved loose wheel, adjustable presser foot, improved shuttle carrier, patent needle bar, patent dress guard, patent belt controller. Head is handsomely decorated and ornamented, black enameled base, handsome transfer ornamentations, beautifully nickel trimmed.

GUARANTEED THE LIGHTEST RUNNING, most durable and nearest noiseless machine made. Complete set of attachments furnished free and our instruction book tells just how anyone can run it and do either plain or any kind of fancy sewing.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO SEE AND EXAMINE THIS MACHINE, and compare it with those your storekeeper sells at $40.00 to $60.00; and then, if convinced you are saving $20.00 to $40.00, pay your freight agent $16.45, which we agree to return to you at any time within three months if you become dissatisfied.

AS TO OUR RELIABILITY WE REFER YOU TO OUR CUSTOMERS AMONG YOUR OWN NEIGHBORS, to the publishers of this paper, to National City Bank and German Exchange Bank, New York; Metropolitan National Bank and Corn Exchange Bank, Chicago; or to any Express Company, business house or resident of Chicago.

ADDRESS YOUR ORDER .... PLAINLY TO SEARS ROEBUCK AND CO. INC. CHEAPEST SUPPLY HOUSE ON EARTH, CHICAGO, ILL.

JUNE ~ 1900

PRICE 5 CENTS

VOL XII NO. 8 MN 140

COMFORT

THE KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK AUGUSTA, MAINE. BOSTON

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Incorporated.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least two yearly subscribers (together with 50 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

☞ Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR JUNE.

Max B. Thrasher, First Prize.
Frederick E. Burnham, Second Prize.
Bourdon Wilson, Third Prize.
George Smith, Fourth Prize.
Blanche Trennor Heath, Fifth Prize.

How Lord Bartram Came Into His Title.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY MAX B. THRASHER.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE LAST mule had been dragged on board, kicking or balking, with long ears laid back in rage. The anchors had been hoisted, the prow of the boat turned out into the Gulf of Mexico, past Port Bolivar, and the propeller had begun the methodical churning which was not to cease until it had driven the steamer Atlas from Galveston to Cape Town. The Atlas had on board Texas mules, four hundred of them, bought by the British Government for transport service in South Africa.

A sailor came to the open door of the captain's cabin on the upper deck.

"Mr. Scorrow sent me to tell you, sir," the man said, raising his hand to his cap in salute, "as how we have found a stowaway among the fodder."

"What kind of a stowaway?"

"A man sir. A white man."

"Tell Mr. Scorrow to send him up here."

The windows and door of the cabin were open and the captain sat where he could enjoy the breeze which the motion of the boat produced. After the heat of Galveston harbor it was refreshing.

Two sailors came on deck with a man between them. He was a strongly built, long limbed fellow, ragged and dirty. A stubble of beard disfigured his face, but his forehead, where the sweat had washed it clean, was white.

"Well?" said the captain harshly, looking at him. "What have you got to say for yourself?"

"Nothing," said the man sullenly. "I had to get out of the state, and this was the chance which offered."

"Do you know where you are going?"

"I do now. The men below told me. I didn't when I came on board."

When the tramp spoke the captain looked at him curiously. Then he turned to the man. "You may go," he said. "Tell Mr. Scorrow I would like to see him here in about ten minutes." When they were left alone he turned to the man again.

"You are English," he said.

"Yes."

"I came from Sussex myself. Do you want to tell me how you happen to be here?"

"No."

"I can send you back to Galveston by the pilot boat, or I can work you to Cape Town and give you a chance to enlist. Which had you rather I would do?"

The man laughed rather bitterly. "It's a case of between the devil and the deep sea," he said. Then he ran his hand over his stubbly beard. "How long is the voyage?" he asked.

"About a month."

"I'll take Cape Town and the army," he said.

"You'd better. These are times when England needs her men under her own flag."

The first mate was coming across the deck. "Mr. Scorrow," said the captain, "take this man down and keep him at work among the mules until we get to the Cape."

Six weeks later the stowaway, a broad shouldered soldier with a thick blonde beard, was enrolled as Private John Benner, of Her Majesty's forces in South Africa.

* * * * * *

Lord Alfred Bartram of Nene and Stillings was smoking in his tent beside the Tugela river and talking with two of his military companions who had dropped around to see him that evening. One of the men was a viscount and the other was the son of a duke. They and Lord Bartram had gone out from England with that company of Mounted Yeomanry whose roll call of aristocrats had been covertly sneered at by the world, until the cabled lists of dead and wounded sent back from South Africa showed the world once more that the accident of birth made no difference in the way English born men fought and died.

After a little one of the men walked back to his own tent. The man who had remained was Lord Bartram's cousin, and after a little, being alone, the talk of the two men drifted back to home and those who had been left there.

"I have been thinking of Edward a great deal since I have been here," said Lord Bartram. "When we were boys at home we used to plan how we would go to the wars together, when we had grown up."

"Life is a lot different from what we plan, isn't it?" the other said.

"Yes. It is ten years this month since he went away from home, and five since we heard of his death."

The two men smoked in silence for a little while. Something, a stray dog or perhaps a water rat, rustled the grass on the rocks behind the tent.

"It has meant a good deal to you, though, his going," the visitor finally said.

"There never has been a moment since Ned went away," his lordship broke out eagerly, "that I wouldn't gladly have given up the property and the title if I could have had my brother back, an honest man—I mean a man with no doubt on his name; honest I know he was, in intention at least. Whatever could be brought against him was by accident and not by design, I know, so——"

"What!"

Both men sprang to their feet in alarm. A big, yellow bearded soldier had fallen between the flaps of the rear of the tent, flat on the ground between the two men where they had been talking. Before he could rise one of the men in the tent had pinned the fallen man down by putting a knee on his neck, while the other shouted to alarm the guard.

The man was taken away and put in irons.

"A spy," some said.

"Good God, Bartram!" his cousin said, after the excitement was over, "What is the matter? You are as white as a sheet. No wonder, though," he added. "It was enough to startle any one."

"Yes," said the other. "I am all upset."

Late that evening, after he had been left alone, Lord Bartram sent a message to the commanding general to ask permission to see the man who had been captured in the tent. The request was granted.

His lordship found the prisoner in irons, confined in a stone barn which was being used as a calaboose. "I want to see this man alone," he said to the guard.

"Yes sir. All right sir;" said the guard, holding tight in one hand the coin which the visitor had given him, while he brought his other hand to his head in salute.

"Edward!" said the visitor, when he and the prisoner were left alone together. Then, when there was no answer; "Ned!"

The man in irons looked up, at that, and rose to his feet. "Well?" he said gruffly; but there were tears in his eyes.

"What were you listening outside my tent for?"

"How did you know me?" the stranger said, ignoring the question. "Haven't ten years changed me?"

"I knew you by your finger, first; and then I saw your face sideways, against the light."

The man lifted his manacled hands and looked down to where a half of the third finger on the right hand was gone.

"Don't you remember," the other asked, "how my axe slipped when we were making cricket wickets, and I cut that finger off, and then how you told father it was your fault?"

"Edward!" he asked once more. "Tell me what you were behind my tent for. You are not a spy?"

"A spy? Who says that?" The man's eyes flashed. "Never! I have been bad enough; and don't ask me to tell you what I was there for Alf; but not that. I am as honest a soldier to my country as the Queen—God bless her—ever had."

"Thank God," said the other man. A moment later he added, "I will see the general at once and have you taken out of here. You will come to my tent to-night—your tent, in fact it will be, for you are Lord Bartram now, instead of me—and in the morning I will have a public announcement made of your return."

"Not so fast," said the other man with a little laugh in spite of himself. "You still go at things just as you did at the cricket stakes that day you lopped off my finger. I shall stay here to-night, and there will be no announcement to-morrow. You will remain what you have been practically ever since father's death, Lord Bartram."

"Never!" cried the other. "I won't allow it!"

"Easy, there," was the answer. "Do you want to make things worse than they are now? Your older brother has been dead for the last five years—that is, he has been dead so far as the world which knows you is concerned—and the memory of his bad reputation is being forgotten. Suppose I were to come back. There is a price on my head in the States, under my own name, too, for a crime for which extradition is possible.

"I didn't do it. I really didn't, Alf," he hurried to add, "but I could never prove I didn't; and besides—there are other things. The name of the House is all right yet, Alf, thanks to father and to you, and," with a little catch in his voice, "I'd rather leave it so than be Lord Bartram of Nene and Stillings."

And nothing that the younger man could say could change his determination. "You will only bring disgrace on yourself and imprisonment on me, if you persist in letting on who I am," he said. "You may get me out of this scrape, if you want to, and if it could be done, Alf, and you were willing," after a minute's hesitation, "I wish I might be transferred into your company. No one else will know me. And then after the war is over I'll settle down here to ostrich raising or diamond digging or some other reputable occupation like that, and once in a while perhaps you will come out here to hunt big game and see me.

"Just one thing more, Alf, while we're talking about this," he added. "I want to tell you that I heard what you said about me in the tent that night—I was listening—and it made a new man of me. I didn't suppose then there was any one in the world—my old world, anyway—that still trusted me."

And in the end he had his way, for the time being at any rate.

* * * * * *

The Battle of Spion Kop! Who is there who does not know about it? Who is there who has not read how the British charged again and again up that precipitous mountain side, gained the summit, held it for a night and then were swept back again?

A newspaper correspondent in his account of the battle wrote:

"Among those who were wounded was Lord Alfred Bartram. Undoubtedly Lord Bartram would have been killed outright had it not been for the devotion of one of the men of his company who threw himself in front of his lordship at a critical moment, and was killed by a blow which otherwise would have slain the officer. The name of the soldier who was killed could not be learned, but he was a powerfully built man with a full light beard."

But Lord Bartram knew the name of the man who had given his life for his own, and in time he took back to England with him this man's body, and buried it in the family vault of the gray old church at Nene, and had carved on the slab above, "Edward Wesbeach, Lord Bartram of Nene and Stillings. Killed at the Battle of Spion Kop."

THE SHADOW OF LIFE.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY FREDERICK E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

TITO Fischer and Henry Dustin, two college students, left the university early in June, 18—, with little money at their disposal, a plight in which not a few young men find themselves when the coveted diploma is finally in their hands.

A company was about to start for the Klondike, and having talked the matter over pro and con, nothing better offering itself, Fischer and Dustin joined the prospectors and were shortly enroute for the Upper Yukon.

The details of that journey are of little moment; suffice it to say that they arrived at Forty Mile Creek in due time and at once began work, meeting with indifferent success during the first few weeks, discouraging enough after reading the intoxicating reports of those who had returned with rich finds of the yellow dust.

Rumors were almost daily reaching camp of marvelous deposits located on Sixty Mile Creek, removed from the creek where they had begun mining some fifty miles. Dissatisfied with the amounts panned each day, Fischer and Dustin finally broke camp and started alone for the alleged bonanza fields, carrying their utensils, rifles and supplies sufficient to last two months.

It was evident from the very first of their prospecting in the new fields that the rumors which had reached them were not without foundation, forty dollars to the pan being no unusual find.

The two young men had been in their new quarters about a week when their work was suddenly interrupted and put an end to by a party of Indians, who surprised them one morning, appropriated everything of value in the camp, and marched them back into the mountains, compelling obedience at the muzzle of rifles. Late in the day a halt was made where there was an encampment of natives, and the two captives, ignorant of the cause which led to their removal, were thrust into a wigwam, and bound hand and foot.

During the early evening a continual conversation was carried on without the tent where they were confined; one of the Indians, evidently a medicine man, pointing now and then to the wigwam, making all manner of passes with his hands.

At daybreak an interpreter entered the wigwam and spoke briefly.

"Medicine man say you heap bad man," said he, pointing to Fischer, "sell braves black dirt for gunshoot. You die to-day."

"What do you mean?" demanded Otto, wrathfully, "I haven't been in this part of the country ten days."

"See," said the Indian, pointing to three lines which he had made in the dirt with a stick, "that many moons since, you come here bringing sledge-load of black dirt like this," he continued, displaying a handful of coal dust, "sell all the braves for big bags of sc dust. Braves put black dirt in guns; guns no shoot any more. Great Eagle, big medicine man, say you die when he see you again. Great Eagle and braves hunting; sudden he point down the stream; 'heap bad man,' said he,

$8.50 SEWING MACHINE

fully described and illustrated in our big free Sewing Machine Catalog, together with our $40 La Reine for.....$13.95
$50 Elveon for..... 16.95
$60 Newport for..... 19.95
We control our own factory, sell at lowest factory prices, allow three months' free trial, guarantee our machines 20 years and ship anywhere without deposit. Write today for Free Catalog containing rare bargains in high grade machines from $8.50 up.
THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

$900 Salary and Expenses Guaranteed
Energetic and trustworthy men and women to travel, appoint agents and make collections, for an old established corporation with $200,000 capital. Unusual opportunity. Position permanent. Rapid promotion. "Universal," Lock Box 733, Phila. Pa.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BICYCLES BELOW COST
5,000 HIGH GRADE MACHINES with best equipment must be closed out. 1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $20 '99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $13
500 Second hand Wheels all makes and models, good as new, $3 to $10. Great Factory Clearing Sale at half factory cost. We ship anywhere on trial without a cent in advance. EARN A BICYCLE distributing Catalogues for us. Many earned a wheel last year. Our 1900 proposition is even more liberal.
Write at once for our Bargain List and Special Offer. Address Dept B.O
MEAD CYCLE CO. Chicago

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address
THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. Augusta, Maine.

'Sell braves dirt for gun-shoot.' Braves run down bank and bring you to wigwam; council held last night; today you die. Great Eagle heap big medicine man say it, and his word is so."

There was no use to argue the question with redskins; the word of the medicine man counted for more with the Indians than the testimony of a thousand white men. Ready wit, alone, stood between Otto and death.

The interpreter presently took his departure and for a few moments neither of the young men spoke. It was one of those times when words are incapable of expressing the thoughts.

"How would it do to pose as medicine men?" said Fischer at length.

"It would be all right if we could perform something wonderful in their eyes," replied Dustin, "that is the important point, of course."

"There's to be an eclipse of the sun day after to-morrow," said Otto.

"Yes?"

"Suppose we were to foretell the day and hour?"

The idea was a capital one and Dustin jumped at it.

"A medicine man is a big man here?" queried Otto, when the interpreter returned an hour later with food and water.

"Heap big man," grunted the redskin.

"Can Great Eagle tell when the black round cloud goes across the sun?"

The Indian did not reply for a moment, but suddenly his face brightened as though he had recalled a forgotten event.

"No, no, only Great Spirit tell that," said he. "I see it once, many moons ago. Bring heap pack furs that winter; all braves have tobacco, wampum and blankets."

"If I tell when shadow comes again, what would braves do? let us go?"

The Indian grunted, but otherwise made no reply, shortly leaving the wigwam. Later he returned.

"Great Eagle say you no tell that," said he, "you heap bad man to say so. He say if you can, you can go home, but if you tell lies and no do so, you be burnt to death. He say you no try tell, you (pointing to Dustin) can go home when bad white man dead. He say you burnt to death, bad man tell lie, no tell when shadow come."

Fischer and Dustin, both, were deeply interested in astronomy at college and had stood high in their classes. For weeks they had been planning to figure out the exact hour and minute when the eclipse would begin in the section where they were working. The question that now confronted them was the advisability of attempting to astonish the redskins, running the risk of a horrible death through a possible error in calculations.

"Shall we attempt it?" asked Otto in German.

Dustin's response was immediate and hearty.

"I insist; we have a hundred chances of winning and only one of losing."

"But you are sure of freedom as it is, Henry."

"And I will not accept it except you share the same."

"Tell Great Eagle and the braves that we will tell the time when the shadow will pass over the sun," said Otto, turning to the savage, "to-morrow at sunset we will prophesy."

All that night Fischer and Dustin worked over the problem which rightly solved meant life. From the class book which Otto chanced to have with him when pounced upon by the Indians, the necessary figures upon which to base their calculations were obtained, and they worked with grim earnestness throughout the night, comparing notes from time to time. Four times was the problem worked out, and four times the same result was obtained.

2.37' 42" P. M. was the answer, indicating the beginning of the eclipse. The eclipse would become visible so that there could be no mistaking it a few minutes later.

The following day Fischer and Dustin noted a point on the ground where the shadow of a stake fell at two-thirty seven, and marked the place.

At sunset Great Eagle, accompanied by the interpreter came to the wigwam where the two young men were confined, and through the latter, asked Otto to prophesy.

"Lying dog," said the interpreter, "tell when the shadow will cross the sun."

"The sun casts a shadow when its rays fall on tree or stake,' said Otto, "and the child of the forest tells the hour of day by it."

Great Eagle nodded assent when the interpreter had repeated the words.

"The cloud that crosses the sun once in many moons is to pass that way once more on the morrow——"

"You lie!" said the medicine man, through the interpreter.

"When the shadow of this stake is at this point," continued Otto, not noticing the interruption, "then shall it come about, even as I have declared."

The following morning dawned fair and clear and quickly all was commotion about the encampment. Couriers were dispatched to adjacent settlements, or rather communities of savages, and by noon the Indians from the distance began to arrive, and at once preparations were commenced for a great dance which was to take place as soon as the words of the white prophet were proved false, which with one and all of the redskins was a foregone conclusion.

Slowly the minutes passed, and more slowly it seemed, the shadow of the aforesaid stake crept toward the mark which had been set up, indicating the hour when the eclipse would occur.

A few rods distant several redskins were busily engaged collecting brushwood, which they were piling about two spruce trees, distant from one another perhaps fifty feet. Nothing was said, but the two college boys knew what it meant, and they found that the cold sweat was beginning to stand out all over them, and as the moments passed the suspense became almost unbearable.

Great Eagle was rigged out in all his glory, confident that nothing could shake his words, declaring with great vehemence that no one, save the Great Spirit, could foretell such an event, and that swift vengeance would overtake the false prophets.

Five inches, four inches, three inches separated the creeping shadow and the fatal line. Confident and exultant, Great Eagle pointed with scorn to the young men and then at the shadow. As the moments passed, the braves crowded about the spot, grunting and jeering after their manner.

Presently the confusion began to subside, and as the edge of the shadow touched the line no sound was heard, save the whispering of the breeze in the spruce boughs.

Great drops of sweat stood upon the faces of the two young men as they looked upward at the sun. Great Eagle saw that they were shaken and uttered a grunt of satisfaction.

But hold! Was it imagination? Had just a suspicion of a shadow appeared on the edge of the sun?

Great Eagle placed his hand so as to shade his eyes. Other braves were following his example. Otto and Henry, alone, now calm and collected, satisfied that no slip had been made, waited.

Deeper and deeper grew the eclipse as the shadow of the moon passed on its way across the sun.

"Great Eagle foretells many wonderful things," said the medicine man, speaking through the interpreter, "but from him the Great Spirit has withheld the prophecy of the passing of the cloud across the sun. Great Eagle kneels before the white prophets, whom the Great Spirit has talked with. Great Eagle is as a papoose before a brave."

"The white prophets have been wrongfully accused and held as prisoners," continued the Indian, "let every brave do all in his power to repair this wrong done the Great Spirit's prophets. Depart to your wigwams and return with that which will best please the white man."

Scarcely had the Indian ceased speaking when the gathering of braves broke up, long before the eclipse became total.

Immediately were Otto and Henry summoned before the wigwam of the medicine man. The best in the camp was at their disposal. The choicest venison was prepared and corn bread cooked. Nothing was too good for the white prophets.

That night a great dance was held, and Fischer and Dustin were the guests of honor. In spite of the remonstrances of the two young men, the Indians came one by one and brought that which was dear to his heart; one a valuable skin; another a pony; another a string of beads.

The night passed, and with the morning came four Indian runners, drawing a sledge. Fischer and Dustin were bundled aboard and taking the trail over the mountains, they bore them, two drawing the sledge, others bearing the presents which the Indians forced them to accept.

At the stream where they had been surprised a few days previous, the young men recommenced work, and the amount of dust panned showed that there was every reason for believing that large returns would reward their efforts.

A WAY TO SOLVE A VEXING PROBLEM.

That ever difficult question, "Where to go for a vacation?" again confronts us, and a most perplexing problem it is. Northern New England, without a doubt, offers a greater variety of vacation places, including lake, mountain and seashore resorts than any other section of the country.

The hotels of this region have no equal. The methods for amusement and recreation include everything that is desired, and the easiness by which the tourist can reach his abiding place is a feature which alone speaks for itself.

A perusal of the "New Summer Resort & Tour Book" just issued by the Boston & Maine Railroad will help amazingly in selecting your summer outing place. The book has a list of a thousand summer hotels and boarding-houses, together with maps, routes, rates and stage connections, and is sent to any address, free, upon application to the General Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston. Be sure you get it before you talk vacation.

Agents, Perfumes etc. on credit. Big Profit. Express Pd. Terms free. Herbene Co., Box 4, Station L, New York.

WRITE for our Spring and Summer catalogue. American Cloak & Fur Co., Chicago, Ill.

"CASH For Acceptable Ideas. State if patented." Address THE PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

FREE Diamond, Opal, or Ruby rings, Gold Watches, Spoons, etc., will be given away free for interesting your friends in our goods. Write today for catalogue, enclosing 10 cents as advance part payment. Something New. No further cost to you. Goods guaranteed, only 10 cents needed. No peddling of trash, no taking orders. The Sodargent Co., Orange, N. J.

THE ANGEL OF SAN DIABLO.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY BOURDON WILSON.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

A CLUSTER of hovels—miners' shacks and shanties, whiskey dens and gambling hells, jacals and hasheries, and a blacksmith shop, but never a church or spire. A bedlam of noises—oaths and curses, flutter of cards and rattle of chips, popping of corks and clinking of glasses and now and then a pistol shot, but never a prayer. A little army of people—burly Americans and swarthy Mexicans, a few silent Indians, one African, and a Chinaman or two, but never a—woman. That was San Diablo.

Small wonder that the advent of "The Angel," as the dainty little woman was immediately denominated, should have created a furore in the place. She was discovered one morning by "Sheeny" Dave standing forlornly in front of the hut where the daily, or nightly to be exact, stage deposited its occasional passenger; and at first sight she set him to trembling violently, for he had been freely indulging in stimulants of late and thought he had "them" again. But as she did not resolve into either sea-serpent or gila monster, he regained courage, and approaching her, hat in hand, bowed low and gallantly proffered his services.

She did need a little assistance, she answered with a winsome smile; she expected the Reverend John Edwards, with whose family she was to live, to meet her at the stage; but he had failed to come and would the gentleman be so kind as to direct her to his residence?

Dave gasped, then pinched himself to make sure that he was awake, and with another bow, expressed his sorrow that he did not know the gent named—at least not by that name. But if she wished, he would rustle up some of the other boys and see if they knew him. She did wish this, and again bowing low he turned and hurried away. His was startling news and quickly spreading to the uttermost limits of the camp, it soon gathered a crowd of wondering but respectful men in the vicinity of The Angel. But none of these could give her any information concerning the Reverend John Edwards; there was not in the camp such a man as she described; and was she certain that he had told her to come to San Diablo?

"San Diablo!" she exclaimed; "why, of course not. San Pablo; and is not this San Pablo?"

"Not by er d—" Dave checked his tongue in time, and then he explained that San Pablo lay two hundred miles southward; that she must have taken the wrong stage when she changed at Cuencame; and that the driver must have been drunk, as Mexicans usually were when they could raise the price, or he would have discovered her mistake.

Evidently this was discomforting information to The Angel, for she looked wildly around a moment, then covered her face with her hands and burst into tears. Instantly, as one man, the crowd moved toward her, but halted as suddenly, abashed by the thought that such as they could say nothing to assuage the grief of one so refined and lovely as she. Now they drew back a distance to hold a whispered consultation, and that ended Dave again drew near to her.

"'Scuse me, Miss," he said, in his embarassment almost pulling his hat to pieces, "but it's got th' boys all broke up seein' yuh worryin' so, an' I've come ter see ef there ain't somethin' we kin do to stop them purty eyes o' your'n frum leakin'. All you've got ter do is ter stand pat 'til th' stage comes 'long back ter take yur ter San Pablo, an' I reckin we can rustle up er game er some kind ter amuse yuh 'til then."

But she sobbed the more violently; she had had only sufficient money to take her to San Pablo, where she was going to assist Mr. Edwards in his missionary work, she explained; and so—and so she was without means to pay her passage to San Pablo.

Dave retreated precipitately to report her answer to his fellows. "She's down on her luck, boys—plumb busted!" he exclaimed; "an' as gents it's our duty ter stake her, but how in h—l we're goin' ter do it gits next ter me."

"W'y, pass th' hat an' raise er pot, o' course."

"O' course not!" returned Dave, scornfully. "Yuh don't sabe her kind, Bill, er yuh wouldn't make such er loco break as that; her kind won't sit in at no game 'less'n they're 'lowed ter ante 'long with th' rest. What we've got ter do, boys," he went on, "is ter give 'er a job an' pay her fer doin' it. Now, all I kin think of that suits her shape is school-teachin', but there's d—d little show ter teach school 'thout kids ter teach, I take it."

"W'y le's go ourselves." Somebody suggested.

"Wouldn't work worth er d—n!" Dave returned, "she'd sabe th' bluff an' call us down before th' draw. But—Oh, I say, boys!" he cried slapping his leg, "she said she was goin' ter do missionaryin' down ter San Pablo, so what's th' matter with givin' her er job o' that kind? We're needin' er Sunday school ter beat the band I take it."

This suggestion met with the hearty approval of the others, and returning to The Angel, Dave laid the proposition before her. For several minutes he spoke earnestly of the camp's need of a missionary; of the boys' eagerness to have her; and he strenuously urged her to remain. She made no immediate answer, but drying her eyes stood revolving the matter in her mind. Why not stay? she asked herself. Mr. Edwards could easily get somebody else to help him, and where else could she be of greater service to the cause than in this heretofore unknown pest-hole of iniquity? She was not disturbed by the reflection that she would be the only woman in the place; she was an apt student of human nature, and one glance at the faces of those rough, lawless men told her that nowhere would she be safer than in their midst; and she ended by deciding to remain.

When Dave communicated her answer to the boys, they gave vent to their delight in a prolonged cheer, and then began devising ways and means looking to her comfort. An unused shanty of two rooms that stood alone on a hillock near the camp was assigned her as a place of residence, and it was quickly stocked with a startling variety of things, every man in camp having contributed something toward its furnishing. The poor little house was the scene of wonderful disorder when The Angel took possession of it, but under the magic touch of her deft hands, the rude interior speedily took on Sick headache is the cause of untold suffering to many women; of neglected families and unhappy homes. Pleasure is banished from the life that is subject to these attacks and yet it is possible to be free forever from such trying ordeals. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, by enriching the blood, toning up the nerves and strengthening the stomach, make sick headache impossible and restore nervous energy to the despondent sufferer.

Mrs. Fannie B. Stoffle, of Martinsville, Mo., says: "I used to have terrible sick headaches, which I had as far back as I can remember. In recent years they were getting worse. A few years ago, I took treatment of a specialist in Kansas City, but it only relieved me for a while. When I came here two years ago my health was miserable. My husband who had great faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, insisted that I commence using them. After taking a few doses I could see an improvement and my headache spells were not so severe. I used four boxes, and since that time I have not had any of those attacks and I never felt so well in my life."—From the Republican, Bethany, Mo.

At druggists or direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

HIGH GRADE BICYCLE $9

Warranted one year. No Money in advance. You examine the bicycle critically before you pay one cent. It is strictly high-grade, finely finished, fully described and illustrated in our BIG FREE BICYCLE CATALOG Write for it today. We control our own factory, specify every piece of material that goes into our bicycles and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices.

AGENTS WANTED Make big wages. We furnish bicycles to ride while taking orders. Write for special offer and catalog.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155-157 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

4 BUGGY WHEELS $6.90

HIGH GRADE, SARVEN'S PATENT, tired and banded, height 3 ft. 4 in., 3 ft. 8 in. or 4 ft. Spokes 1⅛ or 1¼ inch. For any other sizes send for catalogue. Cut this ad. out and send to us with ONE DOLLAR, state size wheel wanted and we will send them by freight C. O. D. EXAMINE THEM at your freight depot and then pay freight agent balance, $5.90 and freight charges.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

MOUTH-HARP PLAYERS! Big Money selling The New Harp-o-chord. Harp and Zither combined. 17 inches long. 10 times louder than mouth-harp alone. Easy to learn. Our fine Mouth-harp sent for 6 names harp players and 14c postage. Catalog Free. HARP-O-CHORD Co., 21 L St., Columbus, O.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller. PEASE MFG. Co., Stat'n E, Cincinnati, O.

a cheery, home-like aspect that drew looks of wonderment and longing from the boys.

This did not escape The Angel's eyes, and divining that it was their homelessness, and not innate viciousness, that impelled them to while away their idle time in the gambling hells, she invited them to spend their evenings with her. At first only a few accepted, but these finding it pleasant far beyond their expectation to be so entertained, and reporting to their fellows, the number of visitors quickly grew until the little sitting-room would be entirely filled before the evening was over. On these occasions she would talk to them of their lives, their work, and of their hopes for the future. Not once did she upbraid them for their wickedness, nor did she "preach" to them; but gently, under guise of pleasant conversation she showed them how abhorrent to her were intemperance, gambling, and the other vices with which they were afflicted. In no other way could she have so powerfully influenced them for their good, for, anxious to please her, they began weaning themselves from the things she disliked, and soon there was a perceptible falling off in the patronage of the gambling tables and saloons. The zenith of her influence was not reached, however, until Lucky Dan, the proprietor of the principal gambling house of the camp was brought nigh unto death by the knife of a murderous Mexican, and she had nursed him back to life and strength. He was now a slave to her wishes, and he immediately inaugurated a crusade against his fraternity that drove the last gambler from the place, and closed a majority of the saloons.

At this juncture The Angel concluded that the time was ripe for better things, and, with the consent of the boys, she applied to the Board of Missions for a clergyman to carry farther the good work she had so well begun. The Board responded promptly, sending the Reverend Charles Warren, a young man of much piety, learning, and sound sense, and under his direction the boys erected a rude adobe building wherein he should direct their lives heavenward. He saw the wisdom of The Angel's methods, and carefully refrained from berating the boys for their wickedness, and from picturing its awful consequences in the life hereafter; instead, he would explain to them in carefully chosen language the wrong of vice and crime, and how it sears the soul and deadens the conscience; next he would paint beautiful word pictures of the life that is free from sin; and then would close with the comforting assurance that through sincere repentance would their souls be washed pure and white.

Not long did he have to wait for results, for the boys, urged on by the tender, persuasive voice of The Angel, and led by Lucky Dan, one by one went forward and professed the deepest penitence for their past misdeeds. And at the end of six months' labor Mr. Warren was able to report that in all Mexico there was not a more flourishing mission than was his.

One Sunday morning the now quiet and orderly camp was thrown into a state of mild excitement by the arrival of a stranger whose clothes were of the regulation clerical pattern; he was met at the stage by Mr. Warren, who welcomed him with every evidence of delight, and then led him away to his place of residence. Later on in the day when the boys gathered in the church, it was to find the stranger seated beside Mr. Warren, and many were their conjectures concerning his presence there. They were not kept long in doubt. Mr. Warren presently rose, his face flushing hotly, and informed his congregation that a little surprise was in store for them. Since his coming to the camp, he went on, he had discovered that The Angel was the noblest woman in the world, and having promptly fallen in love with her, had won her promise to marry him and they were now about to be joined in holy wedlock. Immediately afterward, he and his bride would take the stage for the north, and the stranger, whom he introduced as the Reverend William Cutter, would continue the missionary work in his stead.

The boys were petrified with astonishment, and but few of them heard a word of the farewell sermon that followed; and the marriage, which came immediately afterward, was performed in a silence that was deathlike. At its end they recovered use of their muscles sufficiently to troop forward with listless, shuffling steps and silently hold for a moment the hands of bride and groom; and then they filed solemnly out of the church.

The following Sunday the Reverend William Cutter waited in vain for the gathering of his flock; not a man came, nor ever afterward did one of them darken the door of the church; and at the end of a two weeks' lonely sojourn in the place, Mr. Cutter silently folded his tents and took his departure. He was a man of much worldly wisdom.

HIS WIFE'S RIGHT HAND.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY GEORGE SMITH.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

WHEN Estelle Hebert married John Barstow the townspeople said of him, "What a fool a man is to be caught by a pretty face."

For the newly made husband was forty years of age, sedate and quiet, while his wife was twenty, handsome and vivacious.

Nevertheless, in the passing of five years the gossips found no occasion to recall their comments on the marriage, and say, "I told you so."

Then came the robbery.

Some men, if they had been so rash as to keep a thousand dollars in money in the house, and it had been stolen, would have borne the loss in silence, rather than run the risk of having people say it served him right for such carelessness, but John Barstow was as simple as he was honest. He would not have stolen any other man's money, and until after the deed was done he did not think that any other man would steal his. So he told of the loss.

The town constable made a bold search for the thief, even going to the length of a two days' journey into another state, after a man who was said to look like a tramp whom Mrs. John Peters' niece had said she saw go by her aunt's house the day before the money was stolen. The man proved an easy alibi, though, and the constable hurried home, glad to escape a possible suit against himself for defamation of character.

When it was known that Adam Bromley, a handsome, reckless farm hand who had been working for Barstow's nearest neighbor for the last six months had thrown up his job, drawn what little money was due him, and left town the next day, some few people said, "Don't you think that looks suspicious?" but Barstow had said, when he heard them, "What nonsense! Adam was one of the best neighbors we ever had. He was always the man to come here when we changed works, or if they wanted any errand here. No. It couldn't have been Adam, could it, Estelle?"

And his wife had answered, "No."

A year from that time John Barstow was robbed again, or rather, as before, money was stolen from his house. The first time it had been the proceeds from the sale of a lot of timber land; this time it was the money which had just been paid him for his spring's clip of wool.

"I'd always heard it said that lightning never struck twice in the same place," the farmer said ruefully to his neighbors when they upbraided him for his carelessness in letting this second loss be possible. "I thought I'd had my share of ill luck of that kind, and said so, didn't I Estelle, when I brought the money home and put it in the bureau?"

"Yes," said his wife, "you did." She spoke from within a smaller room, where she was fastening a long cloak about her. "I am going over to Martha's," she said when she came out of the room, "to borrow some yeast."

"It's funny," the farmer said, when his wife had gone out, to the neighbor who had come in to smoke with him, "Estelle thinks that nobody's yeast is good for anything but Martha's, and goes a mile to get it."

* * * * * * *

That night the two little children of a farm hand who not long before moved into a log house in a back lot came running home to their mother, crying, because they were frightened.

"It serves you right," their mother said, and snapped their ears. "Hasn't mother told you that you would see bogies if you stayed out too late?"

For the two had gone on and on, that afternoon, gathering wild flowers, until it would have been dark, except that there was a slim moon and the early stars.

"But mother," one child said, "we did see a bogy—a woman in a long dark cloak."

"And a man came over the wall to meet her," the other child said—"a tall man. We could not see their faces, it was so dark, but the woman said, "Take it, and go; and I wish I had never seen you. I hate you."

"Yes," said the child who had spoken first, a girl; "but when he had gone she cried, 'Come back!' and when he had come back she threw her arms around his neck."

"You better stay at home nights, after this," said the mother; and then she snapped their ears again, adding, "Next time the bogies will take you with them."

And because the woman was a stranger in the town, and as yet knew no one to gossip with, she never told any one what the children had said.

* * * * * * *

Norwegian Nils was a traveling clock tinker who kept in repair the clocks and watches of half a state. For twenty-five years he had been walking over the same route, and because he had neither kith nor kin of his own in this country he called the people for whom he worked his kindred. Twice each year he visited his friends, and the family with whom he elected to lodge over night counted itself lucky, for Nils was prized not only for his work but for his wit and wisdom, which last, people who had never seen salt water looked up to because its owner had come from over the sea.

The Norwegian loved John Barstow with the love of an old man for a younger. He had known his father and mother and home when the farmer had been a boy in it. To the farmer's house he came, one Saturday evening not long after the second robbery, and walking in announced his intention of spending Sunday there. He was a man who asked few questions for gossip's sake. "The traveling man who carries news is like the cuckoo, leaving an ill laid egg in a stranger's nest." But like the minister who went about and "heard things," the tinker acquired much information, and so, although in Barstow's house Nils never spoke of the farmer's loss, it is likely that he knew of it.

Saturday night brought rain, cold and dreary.

"I don't care if it is May," said the farmer, Sunday night. "I'm cold and I'm going to have a fire. You don't care, do you, Estelle?"

"No," said his wife, who sat by a window looking out into the wet twilight. "I'm cold, too," and she shivered. "Somebody is walking over my grave," she said, and half laughed at her own foolishness, even while her shoulders shook.

So the farmer brought in a great armful of dry wood; pine for kindlings and rock maple for body stock, and laid a fire in the brick fireplace in the sitting-room, and lighted it. Up to which drew his wife, the tinker, the hired man and hired woman, and a neighbor who had dropped in for an hour.

Last of all came the family cat, a big gray tiger cat, who twisted his supple body between the chairs, stretched himself before the blaze and lay down upon a rug.

"A cat and Whitsun night," said the Norwegian, by and by, when all had been still for a time, each thinking his or her own thoughts.

"In my country," he went on, "there is a story of cats and Whitsun night."

"What was it, tinker?" the hired woman asked.

But the tinker looked in the fire and said nothing, until the farmer said, "What was the the story, Nils? Tell it to us."

Then the traveling man began: "It is told in my country, in Norway, that once there was a wealthy miller whose mill had twice been burned down on Whitsun night. To him there came, the next Whitsun, the mill having been rebuilt during the year, a traveling tailor, offering to keep watch. The tailor chalked a circle on the floor, wrote the Lord's prayer around it, and then standing inside the circle, waited. Just when the clock struck midnight a troop of cats rushed in and hung a great kettle of pitch over the fireplace. Again and again they tried to overturn the pitch into the fire, but every time the tailor frightened them away. And when the leader of the troop stealthily tried to draw the tailor out of his magic circle, he cut off her paw with his sharp knife.

"Then they all flew howling out into the night, and the next morning the miller saw with joy that his mill was standing whole and unharmed. But the miller's wife was cowering under the bedclothes, and when the tailor went to see her she held out to him her left hand, for him to shake, and tried to hide as best she could her right arm's bleeding stump."

"What a horrid story!" said the hired woman, when the tinker had finished. "I wish I hadn't asked you to tell it."

The farmer said nothing, for a little time, and when he did speak it was to ask the neighbor if his spring crops were likely to suffer from the wet.

But the farmer's wife, when the half circle of chairs was pushed back an hour later, and the tinker said goodnight, still kept her right hand hidden beneath her apron.

FARMER DOW'S WHIM.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY BLANCHE TRENNOR HEATH.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

WIDOW Wylie, coming down the road, stopped to admire Farmer Dow's new house on which he was bestowing some last loving touches.

"Looks about ready to move into," she said.

"Jest about," he answered. "Slick as paint an' paper can make it. I calc'late to furnish it next week."

"Do tell!" She surveyed it again curiously. "I s'pose that cubilow's safe? Seems kind o' gimcracky to me."

"Sho! That's 'cause you ain't used to seein' of 'em. That's the only cubilow anywheres round here," he said proudly.

"Yes, guess likely. Well, it's real harnsome, anyhow," as she turned to go. "I do hope Mis' Dow's to home, fur I've got an arrant to her, an' I'm jest tuckered out, I declare! Dreadful warm fur the season, ain't it?"

"'Tis, fur a fact," he assented. "Reg'lar Fourth-o'-July weather."

Some way down the road stood the old house, small and weather-stained, looking like a poor relation of its more pretentious neighbor. But it made a pretty picture under the green leafmist of the great weeping willow swaying gently before it. In the yard brilliant masses of peony and flower-de-luce were laughing up to the sun that blazed from a summer-blue sky. Farmer Dow was right. It was more like July than May.

Comely Widow Wylie, whose over-plumpness made itself felt in such weather, was glad to sit down in the pleasant kitchen. Mrs. Dow dusted off an already spotless chair, and placed it by the open window for her visitor. She herself was a wirey, black-eyed woman, who never seemed to mind heat or cold.

"Here's that basque-pattern I was tellin' you about," said Widow Wylie, when she had recovered her breath. "Ef you'll clear that stand I'll show you jest how it orter go."

For awhile the two women were deep in the mysteries of biases and darts. Then Widow Wylie straightened herself and began taking the pins out of her mouth.

"I see your husbun' over to the new house," she said. "So he's calc'latin' to furnish next week?"

"He c'n suit himself!" The black eyes snapped.

"It's real harnsome," said the other. "Now, why can't ye get reconciled, Mis' Dow, an' humor his whim?"

Mrs. Dow stiffened. "I couldn't live in the house with that cubilow nohow. It's an eyesore to me."

"But you couldn't see it, once you was inside."

"Well, I sh'd alwers know 'twas there. I sh'd jest have it on my mind. Sech a silly-lookin' thing to stick on top, an' when he was

DO YOU WANT A BARGAIN IN A PIANO?

We have hundreds of Upright Pianos returned from renting by persons moving which must be disposed of at once as we cannot make room for them in our salesroom. These pianos include Steinways, Knabes, Fischers, Sterlings and other well known makes. Many of them cannot be distinguished from new yet all are offered at an enormous discount from prices when new. Uprights as low as $100. Very easy terms of payment to reliable persons. It would probably cost about $5 for freight to have one of these pianos shipped to you. Write at once for complete list and full particulars. You can make a great saving by securing one of these instruments. Every piano warranted exactly as represented. LYON & HEALY, 12 Adams Street, Chicago. The World's largest music house.

Surveying is One Way to a successful career as a Civil Engineer. Mechanical or Architectural Drafting are other stepping stones to good professions that are brought in reach of busy people by our system of instruction by mail in technical subjects. You need not lose an hour from your work or a dollar of your salary. We open a sure and rapid way for you to advance

To a Higher Position

More than 150,000 students and graduates. Courses in Bridge, Steam, Electrical or Civil Engineering, Architectural or Mechanical Drawing, Surveying, Architecture, Bookkeeping, Shorthand, English Branches. Write and mention subject that interests you.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 1190, Scranton, Pa.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85

$14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00 the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grades and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.

Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $27.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muney, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. Everybody buys—business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc., FREE. World Mfg. Co., 42 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

[We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor.]

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR!

Ladies or Gentlemen We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO. A20 Caxton Bldg., CHICAGO.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74, DETROIT, MICH.

FREE! FREE! This Beautiful TURQUOIS or LOVERS KNOT BANGLE RING. Warranted three years, with initial engraved. Send 10c. for 16 page catalogue. The Shell Novelty Co., Dept. K, 194 Broadway, N. Y.

RUPTURE CURED! WORN NIGHT and DAY. Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

SARAH BERNHARDT BEAUTY PINS.

Made popular by the famous actress, are set with Turquoise, and are the very latest thing in Beauty Pins. Send full name and address and promise to try to sell them at 10 cts. a pair, and we will mail you 12 pairs, including all the stylish patterns. When sold, send us the $1.20, and we will give you either of these SOLID GOLD RINGS FREE! Mind, these are not gold-filled, gold-laid or plated rings, which mean the same thing, but are the genuine article. WE MAKE THEM AND WE GUARANTEE THEM. Liberal cash commission if preferred. We take back Pins not sold. D. M. WATKINS & CO., 61 Fountain St., Providence, R. I.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but It Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially adapted for cleaning and polishing Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Delicate Surface. It does not scratch! It works Wonders! and a child can use it! Will clean and polish just as well when black as when new. No matter how soiled the "cloth" may become, the black will not rub off and soil the hands. Can be used until entirely worn out. A moist portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sure. Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the Century.

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents' prices and a paid three month's trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, Box 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

plannin' the house fur to suit me, too!"

"Dear me," sighed the other woman, "I only wish I'd got somebody to plan fur me, cubilow or no cubilow!"

"Yes, but 'twas diff'runt with your husban'. He alwers wanted jest what you did."

"Well, no, not alwers," thoughtfully. "But when I found we were pullin' contrary ways, I used to kind o' give in, an' then he gen'lly would, too. That's the way with men-folks oftentimes. They're too stiff-necked to speak first, but they're ready t' be obligin' unbeknownst."

Mrs. Dow's lips set ominously. "It's no use a-talkin', Miss Wylie. He c'n make his choice. I'd ruther live alone than with that cubilow—What, you ain't goin' a'ready?" as the visitor, with a glance at the clock, took up her bonnet. "Well, I'm much obleeged fur the basque. I'll baste it up an' bring it over this afternoon."

At dinner neither husband nor wife mentioned the new house. Only when he took up his hat, she said abruptly:

"You're calc'latin' t' furnish next week, 'Zekiel?"

"Yes, I be." He laid his hand on her arm. "Come over, Jerushy, an' let's see jest what we're a-goin' ter need."

"Take off your cubilow, an' I will," she said.

His hand dropped. "That cubilow's there t' stay," he said doggedly, slamming the door as he went out.

Her face darkened. In what a different mood they had planned the new house! She wished now they had been content with the little home where they had lived in peace and prosperity, with their children beside them.

It was after the children had gone away to homes of their own, that Farmer Dow thought of building a better house. "Now they're out in the world," he said to his wife, "their ideas'll grow bigger accordin'. An' I want ter put on a leetle more style ag'inst they come a-visitin' us. I c'n afford as harnsome a house as the next man, I guess! An', Jerushy, I'm goin' t' build t' suit you, fur, arter all, a house concerns women-folks most."

Mrs. Dow was greatly pleased by this deference to her wishes. The plan and site were selected, and work went on for awhile to their mutual satisfaction.

But one evil day Farmer Dow, visiting the remote country-town, saw the cupola on Judge Graham's new residence. Forthwith his mind was made up. There should be a "cubilow" on his house too.

Unfortunately his wife did not see the "cubilow" with his eyes. She opposed it strenuously, claiming the right of veto on the ground that the house had been designed to suit her. On the other hand, he insisted that this did not affect any additions he might see fit to make to please his own fancy. Words ran high, and soon there was a quarrel which grew faster than the house.

Their wills were at a deadlock over this whim of his. The husband said he would as soon tear down the house as remove the "cubilow;" the wife declared that while the "cubilow" stayed she would have nothing to do with the house. What had begun as a proof of affection remained a monument of strife, and the neighborhood wondered how it would all end.

After dinner Mrs. Dow took her sewing and went to pay a visit to Widow Wylie, who lived with her sister, Mrs. Hatch. She found them busy with their spring "making-over."

"Folks gets sick o' their winter clo'es in sech weather," remarked Mrs. Dow. "An' I hain't got a thing fit to be seen till this is done," holding up the basque. "What trimmin' would you put on it, Mis' Wylie?"

"Do' know's I sh'd put on anything. Ann Mari' Baker has jest got her patterns in, an' she says they ain't wearin' hardly any trimmin'."

"Well, I'm ruther glad," said Mrs. Dow, whose tastes were not of an elaborate kind. "Trimmin's sort o' fussy-lookin', anyhow."

The three women sat sewing and talking when Mr. Hatch came in. His wife glanced at the clock.

"What brings you home so early, Father?"

"We're a-goin' t' have some weather," he answered, "an' pooty quick too. I calc'lated this hot spell'd end that way."

"Is't a thunder-storm, think?" asked Mrs. Dow."

"Yes, an' mebby somethin' worse. Seems ter me like one o' them cyclones they tell about."

Mrs. Dow rose and looked out of the window. "My! ain't it galey—lookin! I better be a-goin' right off."

"Can't ye stay till it's over?" urged Mrs. Hatch. "Them things don't gen'lly last very long."

"No, I guess not. 'Zekiel 'll want his supper."

"You look out for him jest the same then, Mis' Dow, spite o' the cubilow?" said Mr. Hatch jokingly.

"Why, you don't s'pose I'd let him go hungry so long's we was under the same roof?" she retorted. "Ef he's a mind ter move out, that's diff'runt."

"Land! ter hear you talk, Mis' Dow!" expostulated Mrs. Hatch. "O' course you wouldn't let her husbun' live alone by himself, cubilow or no cubilow. How'd you feel ef anything was t' happen ter him?"

To this Mrs. Dow made no reply. Hastily tying on her bonnet, she set off for home, running a race with the gale.

Just as she reached the house the storm broke in a furious gust, before which half of the great willow went down with a crash. Then came the rain and lightning, and after that one incessant blaze and roar.

Mrs. Dow could not help worrying a little as she went about her preparations for supper. And the worry grew with every minute. She was not a timid woman, but this was such a terrible storm! She could not remember another like it. What made 'Zekiel late? Was he safe at "The Corner," or had he been caught somewhere on the road? She thought of Mrs. Hatch's words. How would she feel if anything happened to him?

During a lull she went to the window and looked out, but turned away uneasily at sight of the broken branches and uprooted trees. She went back to the stove, and mechanically looked at the ham and biscuits, her mind full of growing trouble. She was heart-sick and conscience-stricken. What did she care about the cubilow? If only they could be happy and united as before their foolish quarrel! He might have his whim and welcome.

Scarcely knowing what she did, she began to set the table. Supper was ready—'Zekiel's supper. But where was 'Zekiel? She looked at the two plates facing each other, and then, dropping into the chair opposite his, threw her apron over her head, and sobbed aloud.

While she sat rocking herself wretchedly, there was a trampling at the door. Running to open it, she saw two of the neighbors carrying her husband between them.

"Oh, 'Zekiel'" she cried, her mind still absorbed with the one subject, "you may have the cubilow for all me!"——

"Why, Mis' Dow," interrupted Amos Perry, "the cubilow's blowed down. That's what hurt yer husbun'."

Perry explained that on their way home, they had all three taken refuge in the new house. When the storm slackened they started again, but just then a tremendous gust tore off the cupola, striking Dow senseless.

As they laid him on the bed the injured man regained consciousness. He refused to have a doctor called, declaring he could worry through by himself, so the two neighbors went away, believing that the worst was over.

But his wife's anxiety was not so easily allayed. She sat beside him, watching the rugged face on the pillow. It seemed suddenly to look worn and gray. Leaning over him, she gently touched the hand that lay on the coverlet. He opened his eyes and smiled.

"Well, Jerushy," he said, "the Lord's took things into his own hands. You won't be pestered no more with that cubilow."

"Oh, 'Zekiel," she cried, "I don't mind the cubilow one bit now. I'd just as soon you put it up ag'in te-morrer.

"No," he said. "I calc'late we've had a clear showin'. I sha'n't never put it up ag'n. An,' Jerushy," after a pause, "any time you'd 'a' give in, I would."

"An' any time you'd 'a' give in, I would, 'Zekiel, ' she answered. He chuckled feebly.

"Well, then, ain't we a pair o' big fools?"

"'Zekiel Dow, don't you be imperdunt!" she rebuked him with a tremulous smile.

His fingers closed around the hand which was stroking his. "An' next week we'll go buy the furnichur' together," he said.

How to Cross the Ocean Cheaply and Comfortably.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ROBABLY more Americans will go to Europe this summer than ever before in the same length of time. Many of these travelers will be so fortunate, so far as this world's goods are concerned, as not to need to reckon the expenses of the trip very closely. Many others there are, though, who can hope to go across the Atlantic only as a result of strict economy. They have been saving up for this journey for a long time, and each dollar which they can properly save from the expenses of the journey means just so much farther that they can go and just so much longer that they can stay.

I do not think there will be many tourists who will be more unfamiliar with the details of ocean travel than I was the first time I crossed the Atlantic. I did not have very much money to go with, and I wanted to make what I did have go as far as it could. Things which I did might not be pleasant or desirable for other travelers to do. They may serve as hints to be copied or suggest things to be avoided.

This year will probably see special rates in steamer fares, although at the time I write it looks as if the drafting of so many steamers into the South African war service would limit the accommodations for crossing the Atlantic to a number which may cause rates to be kept up. As a general thing regular first cabin passage averages about $100 each way. In some cases it may be as low as $75, and it goes to almost any figure above $100 for special accommodations on the great New York steamers. I have crossed twice on medium sized boats, of one of the oldest lines sailing from Boston, and both times I went in the second cabin. I think if I were to go again, and did not have a great deal more money than I had before, I should still go in the same way.

The term "second cabin" explains itself. Passengers who avail themselves of this cheaper rate do not have the privileges of the first cabin, with its larger and more elaborately furnished dining-saloon, smoking room and other accessories. The second cabin is large enough, though, and fairly comfortable. Its bill of fare is much less elaborate, but the food is good and generously served. Americans who are not used to English ways of living find the fourth meal a novelty. This is a simple supper, served at nine o'clock in the evening.

The greatest disadvantage in going in the second cabin is that all of the staterooms of that class—at least on the line by which I have crossed—contain four berths. If one is going alone this means he must expect to have three strangers as room mates—in a very small room, too—for ten days. On the other hand if a party of four can be made up it is possible, unless passage is taken at the very last day, to secure a stateroom for the party. It does not follow, either, that room mates will be disagreeable, just because they are strangers. A friend and I crossed together. The two young men who were given the berths in our stateroom proved very congenial company.

An average second cabin rate of fare is $35 one way, or $65 for a round trip. The difference in the cost of the ticket between that and first class means a great deal in the way of sight seeing abroad.

Crossing in the second cabin means being restricted from certain parts of the deck reserved for first cabin passengers, but this matters very little. There will be room enough at any rate. There will be plenty of room to sit out on deck if the weather is pleasant, and a clear passage to walk round and round on the main deck for exercise or pleasure. So many times around the deck make a mile. The officers on every steamer will know the number for that particular boat, so it is easy to gauge one's exercise.

The expense of going on the large, fast boats is somewhat more than on the smaller and slower ones. If one has only a short vacation, and wishes to devote every possible moment of time to the Exposition or to sight seeing elsewhere, it may be an object to go on one of the boats which reduce the time of the trip to six days. My own preference is for the slow boats. A ten days' voyage across the Atlantic is the most delightfully restful experience I have ever had. There are many Americans, especially of the class who will care to go to Europe, who need the rest of the vacation quite as much as they need its opportunities for sight seeing.

Take plenty of good warm wraps—old ones, so that you will not be afraid of wrinkling them or of getting them wet with salt water. You will need a thick over coat or a thick shawl in crossing even in midsummer, and if you want to get the real good out of the voyage—long days and evenings of sitting or lying out on deck, where every breath is filling the system with air so fresh and bracing that its like can be found nowhere on land—take along some kind of a steamer rug. This does not mean that you need buy one of the beautiful plaids which you see in the shop windows for $10 or more. A heavy carriage robe will do, an army or camp blanket, or, best of all, a new horse blanket—one of the big square ones with no leather straps on it. This is big and warm, and will be a thing of joy through the whole voyage. You will wrap it around you when you sit in your chair, you will spread it on the deck to lie on, or for a whist party to camp down on, and you will wrap it around you, and possibly some one else—it is quite big enough for two—when you sit out on the deck in the evening.

Some one may say, "I don't want to be bothered with all that stuff when I get across." That is very true; you don't, and you needn't be. The purser of your boat can direct you to some place in nearly every port where, by the payment of a small charge, such articles can be stored against your return voyage. If he cannot, march directly to some pawn shop with them—you will find pawn shops enough in every sea port—and "shove them up the spout." Be sure you do not lose your pawn tickets, and then, when you are ready to return, redeem your wraps. A good airing the first day out will be all the care they need. The commission which you will have to pay the pawnbroker, usury though it will be, will be a small charge compared with the comfort which the wraps will be to you on shipboard.

In writing the above I have gone on the supposition that you will take passage for your return from the same port at which you landed. If not you can almost always arrange to have a package of such nature as your luggage, forwarded to you from one city to another. Quite likely it will come by mail, or, as they say in England, "by parcel post." The English arrangements of this nature are very complete and convenient. I remember once I had a large leather valise full of clothing brought to me in London by a friend, but had to leave the city before he arrived. I left orders to have the valise forwarded to me at a town more than a hundred miles away. I was greatly surprised to receive it by post, with a stamp attached. I forget just what it cost, but remember it was less than a quarter of American money.

Near the beginning of this article I said, in writing of tourists who wish to practice econ-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 16.)

HERE IS HEALTH FREE

These Four Bottles

Represent a New system of medical treatment for the weak, and those suffering from wasting diseases, or inflammatory conditions of nose, throat and lungs.

The treatment is free. You have only to write to obtain it.

Its efficacy is explained as simply as possible, below:

By the system devised by DR. T. A. SLOCUM, the specialist in pulmonary and kindred diseases, the needs of the sick body can be condensed into treatment by his four distinct preparations.

Whatever your disease, one or more of these four medicines will be of great benefit to you.

According to the exigencies of your case, fully explained in the treatise given free with the free medicine, you may take one, or any two, or three, or all four, in combination.

A cure is certain if the simple directions are carefully followed.

The medicines are especially adapted for those who suffer from weak lungs, coughs, sore throat, catarrh, grip, consumption, and other pulmonary troubles.

But they are also of wonderful efficacy in the building up of weak systems, in purifying the blood, making flesh, and restoring to weak, sallow people rich and healthy constitutions and complexions.

Female troubles and delicate children's ailments are speedily relieved.

The basis of the entire Slocum System is a flesh-building, nerve and tissue-renewing food.

Every sick person needs strength. This food gives it.

Many people get the complete system for the sake of the Food, which they themselves need, and give away the other three preparations to their friends.

The second article is a Tonic. It is good for weak, thin, dyspeptic, nervous people. For those who have no appetite, who need bracing up.

Thousands take only the Food and the Tonic.

The third preparation is a medicinal healing jelly, in a patent collapsible tube. It cures catarrh. It heals all irritation of the nose, throat and mucous membrane. It gives immediate relief. It is also a dainty application for sore lips, sunburn, rough skin, etc.

Perhaps a million people need this jelly without any of the other articles.

The fourth article is an expectorant and cough cure. The most expensive cough cure (to make) on the market. The only one that can positively be relied upon. Contains no dangerous drugs, and is absolutely safe for children. Goes to the very root of the trouble, and not merely alleviates, but cures.

The four together form a panoply of strength against disease in whatever shape it may attack you.

THE FREE OFFER.

To obtain these four FREE invaluable preparations, illustrated above, all you have to do is to write, mentioning COMFORT, in which you read this article, to DR. T. A SLOCUM, Laboratories, 96 and 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your name and full address. The free medicine will then be sent you, in the hope that if it does you good, you will recommend it to your friends.

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr. M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Watches, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Jewelry, etc., given away for selling 18 packages of Excelsior Bluing at 10c. We ask no money. Send your name and address and get outfit and premium list with instructions postpaid. When you sell the Bluing send us the money and select your premium. We Trust You. This is an honest offer. Write for outfit today.

EXCELSIOR BLUING CO. Dept. S Chicago

MIXED PAINTS 45c. We sell Ready Mixed Paints, all colors. Guaranteed highest grade made at 45 cents and up per gallon. For our handsome color card, full particulars and our easy pay-after-received terms, CUT THIS AD. OUT and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ALTHOUGH fashion demands tight dresses it does not imply exuberant rotundities, either in regard to corsage or skirt. The idea is to be harmonious in form, elegant in lines, fine in outline and devoid of exaggeration. Skirts are still very long, especially for evening wear. Skirts of tailor gowns intended for morning wear, are less long and still not sufficiently short to give an awkward appearance. Pleated skirts are worn to a large extent, giving place, however, to those of slim, soft materials, gathered all around the waist. A stylish skirt of soft nun's veiling in dark blue has the back arranged in a number of side pleats extending across the back and hips, leaving the front plain.

Some of the new sleeves are fascinating. Elbow lengths are in great vogue; relegated, however, to the fortunate ones who possess pretty round white arms. The large majority of smart mid-summer frocks have the elbow sleeve, while it is safe to say the remainder show the short sleeve finished with the under sleeve.

As the days go by the tendency to return to the style of Louis XVI. period appears to be on the increase and some very fascinating costumes are the outcome of study of old paintings of that day. A chic gown being worn at Newport is in bright beige cloth, or what is more commonly known now as Khaki cloth. The corslet and bottom of the skirt are in velvet exactly matching in color, ornamented in the richest fashion with flowers embroidered in openwork, showing the white ground through. The front of the corsage opens over a waistcoat of white guipure and is laced with flame red colored cord, the ends of which hang below the waist.

Nothing is daintier than a tunic of lace or any sheer, soft stuff coming out beneath a short bolero of velvet or embroidered satin. In the way of lace, Chantilly holds first rank, its patterns are so fine and delicate. Flowers of Chantilly or other patterns are often encrusted on Duxeuil lace which is itself made up over pink mousseline de soie.

A very Frenchy tailored gown just over, is built of blue cloth, very light in weight, the entire costume brightened by knowing touches of rich gold and white braid, showing especially on the waistcoat displayed below the jaunty bolero, the sleeves of which end at the elbow in bell-shape, and provided with a deep cuff rolling back, trimmed lavishly with the braid. The fore arm is covered with an undersleeve of white nun's veiling, gathered quaintly into a narrow wrist-band trimmed with braid. The whole effect is most attractive.

At present there is a decided rage for jewels, both mock and genuine, and in these days one must be very clever to be able to detect the difference. Never have rings been worn in such profusion. It is a mystery how one hand can carry the number of rings one sees worn. As many rings as possible are crowded on every finger of both hands, with an effect of dazzling splendor, if it is somewhat barbaric. Indeed, to such an extent has the fad grown, women are appearing in many public places absolutely gloveless, excepting, of course, in the carriage, when large gloves are worn, loose enough not to interfere with the jewels. One sees long ropes of pearls about the throats of our best dressed women and it is a matter of speculation how many of these beautiful gems are real. Pearls are now worn as commonly as coral, and of course it is only reasonable to suppose the greater number of them are composition, although even they are now so beautifully made as to defy detection without filing the stone, and cost a pretty penny. All this decoration goes to heighten the air of elegance of the up-to-date woman.

An easily adjusted belt is wide at the back and narrow in front, where it is fastened by running narrow ribbon through two metal rings and tying in a bow. Among the newest things in ties are those made from silk bandana handkerchiefs, the handsomest being those with a black center and broad border of white.

One of the features of present correct dressing is the long-waisted appearance at the front of the figure. Women generally are not careful enough in putting on their clothes to push them well down. Good corsets have a large hook which is intended to hold the underclothes in place and if one is careful to push the skirt band down and then bring your outside fancy belt down to follow this line the effect is much improved. With shirt-waists it is a pretty fashion to have a narrow belt of the material hemmed or stitched in rows; they should not be more than an inch and a half wide and should be put on to give a long-waisted effect.

The fancy for wearing black skirts with all manner of bodices is no longer considered the best form; the color of the skirt should harmonize as much as possible with the waist. An excellent plan is to have at least two waists to go with the skirt, holding forth the same colors, one much more dressy than the other, so as to provide for all occasions.

Very charming indeed, are the bodices made of tucked taffeta; the tucks are small as can be possibly made and as close together, the silk cut in bias pieces so that at each hem the tucks meet in points. These waists are tight-fitting, with a French back, and have each seam outlined with a tiny stitched strap or fancy silk braid. A lovely one of corded white taffeta in this style, has a deep yoke collar of tan tinted panne, bordered with a "feather" pattern applique in which gold thread and white silk combine richly. The seams are covered with the narrowest of gold and white silk braid, and there is a soft vest of pale blue panne set off with gold cord and the smallest of small white enamel buttons rimmed in gold; the same buttons fasten the blue velvet cuff at the wrist by means of tiny silk loops at the opposite side.

Dainty collars of embroidered batiste in tan or pure white are worn with tailor gowns most effectively. Etons of shirter's pink cloth are smartly worn with skirts of white serge and shirts of white linen or taffeta. Stitched silk hats take the place of the severe sailor. One and all hats of the least severity of style have their edges softened by a veil draped along the brim, looking as though the wearer had just thrown it back, but in reality securely pinned in place so as not to be blown about. Two veils and even three are worn at the same time; the first, next the skin, of thinnest pink chiffon; and over this one of dotted net, the topmost one of black or brown chiffon, as the case may be.

There is a strong inclination toward the return of the one-time idol, the white cotton petticoat in all its daintiness of lace and embroidery. The sight of a fresh white underskirt is a real relief after the avalanche of color we have been doomed to for so long.

A pretty and useful hat is made of natural tinted straw, in shape very much like a sailor, having a wide band of black velvet ribbon about the crown, and a large bow of the same directly on top, the loops extending each side the width of the brim. It is a hat to be worn with almost any gown and will be found very serviceable.

Smart hats are all showing the high crown, rather large crowns too, and square at the top. A hat of this shape is made of black chiffon closely shirred and having for its sole ornament a huge bow of black velvet having a handsome buckle in the center. A similar hat is trimmed with large choux of black and white tulle.

A dainty bit of millinery is small and tip-tilted over the face, the brim composed of rolls of tulle draped over with fancy straw, very soft and pliable. The crown is made of small pink roses crushed tight together, the finishing touch being given by the odd-looking rosette of black velvet placed directly on top of the crown.

To the girl who is clever at arranging her own dress accessories, the parasols of this season are an incentive for showing her capability. If she can paint on silk, let her buy a parasol in plain silk of a light yellow tint and paint on it large sprays of pink poppies and their foliage. This makes a lovely parasol and one that would cost a great deal to buy. Of course the flowers can be varied to suit the taste of the individual. Roses are lovely but most difficult to paint with success. Another effective parasol can be made from a plain silk covered frame by an application of pieces of lace, placed at regular intervals, or sharp pointed insertion, which can outline the edge.

A novel and rather pretty finish for a ribbon stock, is to put the ribbon around the neck in the usual way, bring the ends to the front and there fasten them with a gold or gilt harness buckle of the small size. The buckle is fastened to one end of the ribbon, the other end being put through the buckle and fastened with a slide or pinned, just as you would a ribbon belt. This mode of fastening is only pretty for a plain shirt worn with a tailor suit or skirt, not for a fancy silk bodice. The top of the ribbon looks better if finished with a narrow lingerie collar.

Such dainty collars, neckties, and scarfs of all descriptions as are exhibited in this spring's novelties, many of them very expensive, but fortunately an equal number that cost surprisingly little money! The shaped collar with points behind the ears can now be bought in all the different sizes, of silk, satin, or velvet, in tucks or folds, with rows of machine stitching and with lace insertion. These are finished with a little turn-over edge of lace, a bias fold of velvet of some other color than the collar, or with bands of narrow black velvet ribbon, with little bows that are fastened with jeweled buckles. Every silk or satin waist has two or three collars to wear with it, and there are a number of different shapes. In neckties there are the long ties of the polka-dotted velvet, two inches wide, long enough to tie twice around the neck and with ends finished with silk fringe or tassels. Long silk ties have the band that goes around the neck stitched, and the ends left loose, to be tied at the throat with a small bow and long ends. Taffeta ribbon ties, two or three inches wide, are tied in a bow knot at the throat and again in another bow at the bust, with the ends from the second bow left long enough to reach the belt. All these are very attractive and will make this season's waists look prettier than ever.

Lace ties are shaped like lace barbes worn by our grandmothers, or in straight pieces of different widths. They are supposed to go twice around the neck and tie in front with a bow, or may be tied like the chiffon tie, in what is called the La Valliere knot—like a sailor's knot but not pulled up to the throat. These lace ties are not a bad investment for they will cleanse and wash and are a great addition to any waist, but they will soon wear out if they are constantly being tied in a tight bow, and it is really a better plan to make a bow and sew it together, fastening one end over every time it is put on.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

SUMMER TIME

brings warm weather and cool dresses for ladies and young women. This year low neck and short sleeves will be the fashion, also necklaces of bead and pearl. We are ready in advance to furnish our customers and subscribers with our new Exposition Necklace, more popular than the Cyrano chains were ever. We can send one, carefully packed, with a three months' subscription to COMFORT for 12c. Send soon and be in style.
Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT HOME; $1.50 a day; four months work guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

Tailor Made Suit $5.98

Latest Style for Spring and Summer of 1900.

FINE ALL WOOL The suit will be made to measure by skilled tailors from Evans best all wool ALBERT CLOTH, famous for its rich bloom and beautiful weave. The Jacket is made in new single breasted style, beautifully lined with fine imported silk, elegantly silk faced and superbly trimmed with pure satin ribbon. The skirt is cut full width, is lined and interlined, has latest style back, nobby welted seams, hangs graceful and stylish. Guaranteed strictly tailor made and worth fully $10.00. Choice of black and blue colors.

SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large sample of the cloth and our big catalog containing many other rare bargains in suits from $6 to $20, and of jackets, capes and skirts all at wholesale prices. We make all grades and styles of ladies' garments and sell at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.

LADIES' SUITS FREE We give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one. Its a great chance to get a suit free. Send one 2-cent stamp to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit. Write today.

THE LOUIS R. VEHON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., Chicago.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

$83.33 Monthly Salary

payable weekly with expenses. Men or Women to represent us in their own state. Your duties to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. NO INVESTMENT REQUIRED. This is a strictly bona-fide salaried proposition. IT INVOLVES NO CANVASSING whatever. Expenses will be remitted in advance and salary forwarded directly from headquarters. State experience. Give references. Enclose stamp. CO-OPERATIVE CO., H, Star Bldg., CHICAGO.

HAIR SWITCH 65 CENTS.

WE SELL HUMAN HAIR SWITCHES to match any hair at from 65c to $3.25, the equal of switches that retail at $2.00 to $8.00.

OUR OFFER: Cut this ad out and send to us, inclose a good sized sample of the exact shade wanted, and cut it out as near the roots as possible, inclose our special price quoted and 5 cents extra to pay postage, and we will make the switch to match your hair exact, and send to you by mail, postpaid, and if you are not perfectly satisfied, return it and we will immediately refund your money.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE AS FOLLOWS: 2-oz. switch, 20-in. long, long stem, 65c; short stem, 90c; 2-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.25; 3-oz. 22-in. long, short stem, $1.50; 3-oz. 24-in. long, short stem, $2.25; 3½-oz. 26-in. long, short stem, $3.25. WE GUARANTEE OUR WORK the highest grade on the market. Order at once and get these special prices. Your money returned if you are not pleased. Write for Free Catalogue of Hair Goods. Address,

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Sudden Death

If you have heart disease you are in grave danger.

You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once.

Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

Heart Disease

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. AUSTIN ALBRO, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

A Silken Shower from a Necktie Factory.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin

REMNANTS

FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK.

ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in odd pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPULAR. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in. Bright, handsome, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast at all NECKTIE FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they have been the past season and they are now burdened with remnants of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand which we are going to give you a big trade on. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts, etc., and we can help you out now. We are going to dispose of this immense lot RIGHT OFF. Our packages contain from 20 to 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home; then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONEY doing our work and helping yourself also. Remember these pieces are carefully trimmed, and especially adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Many ladies sell tidies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great price made from these remnants. Order one sample lot now for only 25c. It would cost many dollars bought at a store. Grand Offer: If you order our great assorted lot AT ONCE, we will give you several rich, bright and beautiful stamped satin pieces; each piece contains nine square inches and being stamped by hand with a graceful design for embroidery, is a great bargain.

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped satin and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroidery silk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price we ask for the remnants; but we know if you ORDER ONE lot we will sell many in your locality, so make this liberal offer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of Plush containing 36 square inches.

BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE to all who send 25 cents for 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" the best Home Monthly now published, and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will send free with each package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ornamenting the seams of Crazy Patchwork, or for other ornamental work where Fancy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how pieces for patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join edges, etc.

The book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides directions for taking ART EMBROIDERY STITCHES, comprising the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

Remember we send one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remnants, the assorted stamped satin piece 5 Skeins Embroidery silk; 36 square inches plush, and a great 15c. book on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" all for only 25 cents. Three lots and one year's subscription, 65 cents; five lots $1.00. Address,

COMFORT, Silk Dept. B, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

1st.	For the best original letter	$3.00
2nd.	" " second best original letter	2.50
3rd.	" " third " " "	2.00
4th.	" " fourth " " "	1.50
5th.	" " fifth " " "	1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least one new Cousin into the COMFORT circle; that is, they must send one new subscriber with each letter, together with 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Parthenia Alexander,	$3.00
Carrie L. Crosby,	2.50
Jennie March,	1.00

DEAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

Again the year has rolled around to the "leafy month of June," and "all the world" is so lovely that Aunt Minerva proposes to be silent this month and allow Mother Nature to do the preaching to her crowd of cousins.

Our first letter takes us to fair Georgia and gives us a peep at a cotton plantation there. Our cousin says:

"What a happy, beautiful scene is a great white cotton field, over which are scattered numbers of negroes merrily singing and picking the fluffy white cotton as it bursts from its bole, like a chestnut from its burr! These bits of black humanity against the white background make a picture worthy the brush of any artist. The growth of cotton and the life of the negro are so closely allied that it is impossible to speak of one without mentioning the other.

"Work for raising cotton begins in February, when you will see the darkies start out shivering in the cold, frosty morning upon the bare backs of their old plantation mules, with the plow gear dangling from each side, riding to the fields to break the ground preparatory to planting. In the next scene they are shouldering their hoes and trudging off through the dewy grass to begin the hoeing; they are thus alternately engaged in plowing and hoeing during the months of May, June and July. These are busy months with the farmer, as it is a constant fight to keep the grass from outgrowing the cotton. No wonder the 'laying by of the crops' is hailed with so much delight. This happy event is usually celebrated by a grand barbecue, which is the beginning of a holiday that lasts until the middle of September, when the cotton begins to open.

PICKING COTTON IN THE SOUTH.

"By the first of October the cotton picking season is in full blast, and it continues frequently until after Christmas. Men, women and children engage in this part of the work, which is quite a social feature and more like a love feast than hard labor, particularly if watermelons are growing between the rows of cotton, as is frequently the case. Well fertilized land will easily produce a bale of cotton to the acre, and a good hand can pick from two to three hundred pounds a day, for which they are paid from thirty to forty cents. The cotton is placed in a sack hanging from the neck of the picker, and at the end of the row is emptied into baskets. At the close of the day the big farm wagon comes for the picked cotton and hauls it from the field to the gin. 'Going for the cotton' and riding back mounted high upon the tightly packed baskets is a gala occasion with the white children of the plantation. No child of the land of cotton can ever forget those rides. The setting sun, the lowing of the returning cattle, the evening song of the mocking bird, the gruesome 'whip-po' of the whippoorwill, the mournful shriek of the peafowl, the piercing screech of the owl, and the dismal croakings of the frogs through the swamps of the lowlands, together with the scent of the muscadine and the mellow fall apple, are melodies and memories that will live always in the hearts of those who have enjoyed life upon a cotton plantation.

"The last act brings us from the hum of machinery and the stifling lint room out on the platform, upon which are stacked the bales of cotton, ready to be packed high upon the wagons and hauled to the depot, where the cotton buyer stands ready to sample and buy the cotton to be shipped—not to the Eastern markets as in 'ye olden time,' but to the near by cotton mills which are rapidly springing up all over the South."

PARTHENIA ALEXANDER, Elberton, Georgia.

Here is an interesting account of a Virginia cave sent us by a cousin from that State.

"While in Fredericksburg visiting places of interest we were informed of a mysterious cave in Stafford county, and a few days later we visited the place.

"Crossing the bridge over the Rappahannock, we proceeded up the left bank of the river a quarter of a mile or more, ascended a very steep hill in the woods and soon reached the entrance of the cave, a rugged aperture, large enough for a person to enter by slightly stooping. The cave is situated on the brink of a precipitous gulch with a stream of clear water rippling through it far below.

"Entering we found ourselves in a cubical chamber about eight feet square, dug with remarkable skill out of solid rock. Some kind of picks were used, the marks of the instruments being plainly visible. Overhead is a circular opening, about five inches in diameter, reaching through to the outer crust of the earth, but partly filled with sod.

"Why, when and by whom this cave was excavated in this obscure place is an unsolved mystery. But from its location we can suppose it to have been made by the Indians, or some prehistoric American race, as a place of concealment from an enemy. Probably it had at first a very small opening, just large enough to admit a person, the opening overhead being for the admittance of air; but the ravages of time, and the frequent attacks of the relic hunter have broken off piece after piece, until the opening is now very large.

"We were told that this cave was first discovered by Capt. John Smith when exploring the Rappahannock, and that on one occasion he used it as a place of retreat from the Indians who sought his life. Years ago the 'roughs' of Fredericksburg resorted to this place on Sundays to practice their gambling. Otherwise, save as the haunts of wild animals, it is unoccupied, and stands a silent monument of past mysteries."

H. HERBERT HALL, Nomini Grove, Va.

I am very sorry to say that I must plead ignorance of the song mentioned in the following letter, but the letter is an interesting one and I give it to the cousins hoping some of them are better informed upon the subject than I.

"A short time ago I had the pleasure of visiting 'The Old Elm Tree' in the Monongahela Valley, so famous in song and story. The tree stands by the roadside in Roberts' Hollow one mile from Elizabeth, Pa. The song was written by Edward Mayhugh who was born near Pomeroy, Ohio, and emigrated to Pennsylvania with his father. The author's grandfather at one time owned a mill which stood across the road but now like the mill in 'Ben Bolt' it has fallen to pieces though the old tree still stands with 'outstretched arms,' where the author's mother with brothers and sisters played when a little girl.

THE OLD ELM TREE.

"Soon after her death he wrote the song which has been going the rounds of the press for years. Professor Bissell of Curry University, Pittsburg, set the words to music and it has been sung by many of the leading singers of the country."

JENNIE MARCH, Elizabeth, Pa.

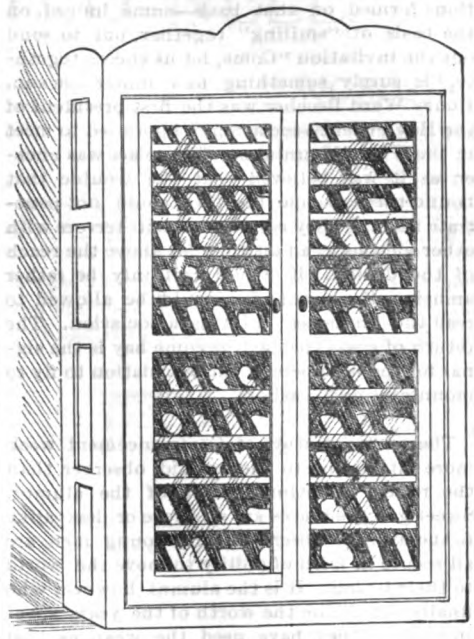
Here is a second letter from Illinois. Our Illinois cousins are very kind to us.

"The Artesian Belt is the name given to a section of country located in eastern Illinois, which derives its name from its many artesian wells. These wells average in depth from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet. A pipe or casing, usually two inches in diameter, is sunk to the required depth, and through this pipe the water is forced to the surface. A pipe two inches in diameter runs two barrels every minute; but on account of the needless waste a large number of wells have been reduced to one inch streams. This water through all seasons of the year has the same temperature, about fifty-five degrees Fahrenheit, and it contains many medical properties.

"Natural gas is known to exist in this region, as it has often been found while drilling for water, but from some unexplained reason no one has yet tried to utilize it.

"The thriving little city of Potomac is situated in this Belt and has a reputation far and near as a summer and health resort. It contains within its corporate limits one hundred and twenty of these gushing fountains. Here the weary traveler can quench his thirst and find his needed rest. The business man can find recreation and relief from his cares. The angler here finds his heart's desire fulfilled, as many of the miniature lakes, and the Middle Fork river contain vast numbers of the finny tribe; and the student who loves 'to commune with nature in her various forms' can satisfy himself by a visit to the 'Artesian Belt'."

J. F. ELLIOT, Potomac, Ill.



The collection of match safes described in the following letter is certainly unique, to say the least. I do not believe it has its equal in the country.

"DEAR AUNT MINERVA:—I wish you and all the cousins could see my father's collection of match safes. It is quite unique in our part of the country. He began about three years ago;—I don't know what put the idea into his head, but he happened to have a dozen or so on hand and in some way it came to be known among his friends—and he has a large circle—that he was making a collection of match safes and they came pouring in from all directions. He has now over two hundred safes, and some of them have quaint histories. Many have come from different parts of Europe, and one has been around the world twice, in a man's pocket.

MATCH SAFE.

One brought to him from London by a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, is in the shape of an elephant's head, made of gold, with ivory tusks and jewels for eyes. Among those specially odd in design are shoes, clams, boars, lions, cigars, crackers, quarters of a lemon, trousers with suspenders, champagne corks, pieces of chocolate, heads of Napoleon and General Grant, books, candles,—these made usually of silver, or metal, colored to look exactly like the real thing they are an imitation of, as the lemon, cracker, piece of chocolate, candle, etc. The safe made from the champagne cork is the real thing, being dug out from the flat end of the cork and a metal cover fastened on with a spring. Then there is an infinite variety of safes in the regular shape, but all ornamented differently, with heads of people and animals, conventional designs, some that look like a bundle, tied with a string,—all in silver. Then there are onyx and pearl and wooden and leather cases galore. He has had a cabinet made for them which stands seven feet high and measures forty inches across; this contains fifteen narrow, slanting shelves with a slight moulding along the outer edge, to hold the safes in place. The shelves are covered with black velvet which sets

MATCH SAFE CASE.

the cases off well, and they are arranged in a systematic manner. The case has glass doors."

CARRIE L. CROSBY, Waltham, Mass.

And now the time has come for us to adjourn for another month, so with the best of wishes for your summer plans I am, as ever,

Your loving
AUNT MINERVA

HAIR CARE.

A Book Every Woman Should Read.

Tells how Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff may be cured. Profusely illustrated with beautiful colored plates and rich half-tone engravings. Mailed absolutely free to all who write for it. To those who have not neglected their hair, the perusal of "Hair Care" will prove of great value in teaching them how to preserve its beauty against the ravages of advancing years, while to those whose hair already bears evidence of neglect and disease it will tell how the trouble may be cured and a new growth of thick, healthy hair secured.

SPECIAL NOTE.—If you have any hair or scalp trouble send a small lock of your hair to the Cranitonic Institute, 526 West Broadway, New York, state in your letter if you have itching scalp, dandruff or falling hair when our physicians will make a microscopical examination of the hair, send you a report on its condition and prescribe curative treatment free of charge. The book, "Hair Care" will be sent you free by mail. When answering this notice please mention COMFORT.

COE'S ECZEMA CURE $1 at druggists. 25c. size of us. CoeChem.Co.,Cleveland.O.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every locality. Act under orders. No experience needed. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

PLAYS Dialogues, Speakers, Amusement Books. Catalog free. T. S. DENISON, Publisher, Dept. 8, CHICAGO.

$5.00 A DAY EASY FOR ALL WILLING TO WORK. Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating. At home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Machines. Plates Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, and all metal goods No experience. Heavy plate. Modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Guaranteed. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc., FREE.

D. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, CINCINNATI, O.

KITCHEN'S "PAT." SPRING STEEL BICYCLE TIRE. With Leather Cover and Rubber Bumpers. Strong, Durable, Light, Pretty. Wheel rides easy outrunns Pneumatic tires, has less resistance against the wind. Bounds like a Rubber Ball.

No more pumping and warranted never to Puncture. A pair of wheels with said tires only weigh 8 pounds. Price $18 per pair.

How to Get a Pair for $5c. and a few hours' work. Return this coupon with $2 in registered letter and I will send you a book of eight coupons, sell the coupons to your friends for 25c. each and get your $2 back. Each friend sends his or her Coupons to me purchasing a book for themselves, and I will have received $18 for the pair of wheels, and then yours will be sent to you per Express, all ready to attach to your bike. For my Reference see rating in The Commercial Reports.

W. W. KITCHEN, Patentee and Mfr., 138 Plymouth Ave. ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Tremendous Bargain IN Crash Skirts.

This up-to-date crash skirt embroidered with white braid in effective design, like illustration, well hemmed and sewed, worth $2.00, for 79c, delivered to your door free of charge. Size up to 30 in. waist and 44 in. length. State length and waist measure and send us and we will send you this skirt by mail postpaid. The object of this wonderful offer at the low price is to make you acquainted with our house, as we are the cheapest cloak mail order house in the world, and it is to your advantage and benefit to know us.

79c

FREE—Write for our handsome Spring and Summer Catalogue No. 506 of Jackets, Capes, Suits, Waists, etc. A postal card brings it free.

We are perfectly responsible and if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the skirt your money cheerfully refunded.

M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., CHICAGO.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

MONEY given for selling our toilet soaps, or 150 premiums free. Write today for handsome illustrated Catalog. Great Northern Soap W'k's, 224 Lake St., Oak Park, Ill.

WE PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kan.

AGENTS—SOMETHING NEW

Magniphoto Enlargements from smallest negative or portrait. True to life. No Crayon or Air Brush used. Write at once for exclusive territory, terms & sample. AMET MAGNIPHOTO COMPANY, Waukegan, Ill.

I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over Postoffice, COHOES, N. Y.

$3.33 HUNTING CASE

WALTHAM COLD Filled Watches are the best. Read our great bargain: Cut this out and send it to us with your address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination before paying one cent. One beautiful 14K gold plated, double hunting case watch, stem wind and set, Ladies' or Gents' size, fitted with fine jeweled works; a guaranteed timekeeper, equal in appearance to a $50.00 gold filled watch warranted for 20 years. If satisfactory pay express agent $3.33 and charges. Address W. HILL MDSE. CO. 94A STATE ST., CHICAGO.

FAT

How to reduce it Mrs. L. Lanier, Martin, Tenn., writes: "It reduced my weight 21 lbs. in 15 days without any unpleasant effects whatever." Purely vegetable, and harmless as water. Any one can make it at home at little expense. No starving. No sickness. We will mail a box of it and full particulars in a plain sealed package for 4 cents for postage, etc. HALL CHEMICAL CO. Dept. R, St. Louis, Mo.

DO NOT SEND US ANY MONEY.

LOOK FREE

This Magnificent Solid Gold-plated Bracelet. Don't send any money—Just name and address. We will send postpaid 10 Large Handsome Stamped Linen Doilies; different designs. Sell them among your friends at 10 cts. each. Send us the $1 and we will send by return mail the magnificent Bracelet. Address AMERICAN JEWELRY CO., Corning, N. Y.

12 PAIRS of STOCKINGS or SOCKS for 10c

JUST THINK OF IT! ONE DOZEN Pairs of LADIES' or CHILDREN'S STOCKINGS or MEN'S SOCKS, assorted as desired in any size, FOR LESS THAN ONE CENT A PAIR, which, if bought in the stores would cost you from 25 cents to 75 cents per pair. For full particulars address, THE PEOPLE'S SUPPLY CO., Dept. 15, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

A PENCIL THAT WILL THINK FOR YOU.

The Great Profit Maker of the Century.

All Problems Solved. Short Cut to Results. A Quick Sum Total. No Mistakes Possible With Sunshine's Calculating Pencil.

LIGHTNING CALCULATING PENCIL.

By a Twist of the Wrist this Little Wonder Solves all Mathematical Problems as Quick as a Wink.

Here is the only reliable never-failing standby. It is the neatest educational novelty of the day. This pencil is a marvel of ingenious mechanism, and a great profit maker for agents.

You will hardly believe that this pencil can figure quicker and more accurately than you can. It will calculate anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twinkle of an eye. It gives you 144 combinations and is absolutely correct. It can't make mistakes. It is made of pure Aluminum and attached to a Faber Pencil. Fits any ordinary pencil. It has a good eraser. It protects your pencil point. It is a pencil lengthener and stays in your pocket.

Let Sunshine's Calculating Pencil do your figuring and give your head a rest. A sleepy man will get more accurate results with its aid than a wide awake calculator could get without it. Simple and solidly made. Interesting and instructive to everyone. You can't think half as quickly and accurately as this pencil does it for you. Teaches children more in one hour than they learn in a week in any other way. Simple as a clothespin to manipulate, a child can learn to work it in five minutes, it never blunders, is easy to see through. Tell your friends and teachers about this wonderful device, it's the greatest educational novelty out. Interests dull pupils as well as bright ones. Creates enthusiasm in mental calculation and helps in the most difficult subject with which both teacher and pupil have to deal. We send full directions with each pencil so you can get it ready to work as quick and easy as you open a jackknife. You can multiply quicker than an expert, a lightning calculator. Get one to-day.

The Educational Value of this Arithmetical Pencil is based on the highest Multiplication Table it contains. Every person should know it. Yet many never learn it. They are thus hindered in acquiring quickness and accuracy in mental calculations so necessary to business success. It is especially recommended to young people starting in business life and to those with neglected education. Teachers recommend it to their pupils because the use of the pencil imparts a knowledge of these figures in ⅓ of the time required by the usual methods. Even the Indian office of the U. S. government has recognized its educational merits and recommended that the superintendents of all Indian schools be supplied with samples.

SPECIAL OFFER. These Calculating Pencils sell for 25c. each, but we are anxious to show you how wonderful they are so will send one free to all who enclose 15c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great monthly, two pencils and a year's subscription for only 25c. Thousands are sold by agents. We send six pencils for 60c., twelve for one dollar, all charges paid by us. One hundred for $7 50, express not paid.

Address SUNSHINE Box L, Augusta, Maine.

COMFORT

THE KEY TO

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World

Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 50c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions.

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Guaranteed Circulation:

ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

June. Roses, brides, strawberries, presidential conventions, Paris Exposition, journeys up and down, all that makes "perfect days"—June.

These are the days when Dame Nature holds out her hand to the weary dwellers in the city and whispers "come." One of the most interesting items of a late statistical report was one that referred to the summer boarder in New Hampshire. It would seem that the old Granite State had been set up on edge for the delectation of the summer visitor. The statistics as to the amount of money he brought into the state and the improvements resulting from his presence furnished an interesting commentary on the growth of the vacation habit in America.

A bust of William H. Seward is to be presented to the territory of Alaska and placed in the capitol building at Sitka. It is a fitting tribute to the far-seeing statesmanship of the man who believed that the Pacific was to furnish our open door to a great Eastern trade. He seemed to look upon our future with a prophetic eye. He foresaw the importance to us of establishing trade with the Pacific islands and the Orient. With our canal project well under way that will shorten the Pacific route by thousands of miles, with vast possessions like Hawaii and the Philippines as resting places ere our ships reach China and Japan, with the vast export of the Alaskan gold fields, with all this fulfillment of Seward's visions it is fitting to honor his memory. Alaska was long designated Seward's Folly and the nation's refrigerator, but the diplomatic and financial advisability of the purchase is no longer questioned by even the most captious.

A great New York daily has seen in the two national conventions an opportunity to teach civics in a practical manner. Fifty boys from the High Schools of Greater New York have been selected by means of competitive essays on some topic connected with the nomination and election of the President of the United States. Twenty-five of these lads are to be taken in a special car, under charge of reliable guides, to the Convention Hall at Philadelphia on the nineteenth of June. The remaining twenty-five will be taken to Kansas City on July the fourth. This is a commendable way to interest school boys in the manner of conducting our great nominating conventions. The political machinery that runs the great parties is intricate. It is safe to say that not more than half the voters of the land understand the method of calling and electing nominating conventions. They have been a part of our political affairs since the 30's. Before that time nominations were made by legislature, by popular demand or by small party caucuses, no definite plan being employed. The nominating convention is peculiar to America but the Constitution makes no mention of such a body nor was it intended or dreamed of in the minds of the founders of the nation.

We are said to be the greatest organizers in the world. Visitors from abroad are always impressed and frequently amused at the associations, clubs, societies, and what not that flourish in this home of the free. Every pretext from poetry to potatoes and from philanthropy to frivoling is used to gather people together with a constitution, a president and dues. It remains for the American Hay Fever Association to claim the doubtful honor of being the only association in the world bound together by the common interest in a malady.

We have heard the expression "Come, let us reason together," and we know many associations formed on that basis—some indeed, on the basis of "smiling" together, but to send out the invitation "Come, let us sneeze together," is surely something new under the sun. Henry Ward Beecher was the first president of the Hay Fever Association, which used to meet in the White Mountains. This place was chosen as it was believed that the trouble that bound these people together could not penetrate there. They could discuss its terrors with other victims at an altitude far above the reach of the demon. It would certainly be rather amusing if an outsider could be allowed to read the "minutes" of this association. The return of grass that will become hay is the signal for the members of the association to fly to mountains and seashore.

There is no feature of Commencement week more interesting to the candid observer than the return to Alma Mater of the alumni. Sweet girl graduates are all more or less alike to the average observers—the young men are all secure in faith of ability to move the world to their liking. It is the alumni however who finally determine the worth of the years spent in study. They have used the weapons that education has placed in their hands and years have shown the worth or worthlessness of their preparation. They return to their school to live over again the joys of youth. They listen with pathetic attention or indifference to the orations. They know the wide gulf between theory and fact and as they hear the weighty problems of political and social economy treated as mere playthings for historical flourish they smile in kindly appreciation of the ways of youth. It is like a fleet of weather beaten storm tossed ships anchored near where some ships gay with bunting and glistening with paint are to be launched. The candid observer turns from the untried new to scan the old. What changes the years write on the faces of the alumni. But time writes no wrinkles in the heart and many a father or mother feels the years rolled up like a scroll as they listen to a son or daughter speaking from the very platform where years before they made their own "graduating oration." The June days sing no happier event among their roses than the Commencement Days.

One is struck by the frequency with which men who have attained success preach the gospel of work. The "strenuous life" is a phrase often upon people's lips. It would seem that there was a secret fear that the work of the world would be left undone unless a constant gospel of effort was preached and lived. Work for the sake of the working is a doctrine better fitted to a convict cell than to the serious consideration of a generation of strivers. Work was laid upon man primarily as a curse. He has said "evil be thou my good" and through long ages has trained himself to the point where it has become true that a man's work is the best expression of himself. In every case when it is not, it retains the old original reminder of a lost Eden and is a curse. The constant urging to effort is not necessary in most cases and when the warning is necessary it is generally useless. The great mass of Americans work too much. Many a man who has won a competence through his own efforts is really poorer in all that makes for the real value of life than the lowest salaried clerk in his employ. The capacity for enjoyment, for rest, for the calm quiet of spirit through which we learn to know our own inner nature, has been lost. "The strenuous life" has prolonged its effort until the strained nerves cannot relax. One day a snap comes and then the American malady of "overwork" claims another victim. The doctrine of "work" needs no preaching. The men who have it in them to succeed by work will do so, and any intellectual incentive furnished by such urging from those who have succeeded is unnecessary.

The trouble growing out of the charge that Senator Clark of Montana secured his seat by bribery of the legislature, and of the fact that the legislature of two states, Delaware and Pennsylvania failed to elect United States Senators, has had one logical result. The long demanded change in the method of electing United States Senators is to be brought before the people. The House has by an almost unanimous vote demanded an amendment to the Constitution providing that United States Senators shall be elected by popular vote and not by state legislations. The method of election by the state legislations grew out of the compromise in the Constitution made between the large and small states. To satisfy both in their demands that the state should be recognized as a unit and that the population of the state should also be considered, the legislative body was divided into houses. The upper house was designed to give to each state its full and sovereign authority in government, the small state being as important as its larger sister. To carry out the idea that the upper house represented states, the state legislatures were given the power to elect members of the upper house. We have long since outgrown the State Rights idea shown in this plan. There is now no fear that the states as states will lose their identity although component parts of a great nation. The most dignified of our legislation offices should be in the direct gift of the people themselves. There is no doubt that this amendment will meet popular approval for already the legislations of thirty-three states have signified their approval of it. It is more than thirty years since the Constitution of the United States has been amended. The first ten amendments were made very early in our history and in a lump in order to satisfy a popular demand that individual right should be more definitely guaranteed by the Constitution. The new amendment has been long desired by all students of our political affairs.

Our Prices ON AMERICAN 7 JEWELED GOLD FILLED WATCHES Are the Lowest

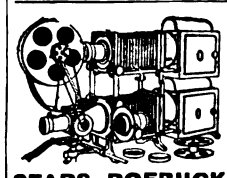
Before you buy a watch it will not cost you a cent to see our great bargain. Send your name, post office and express office address, and we will send you by express for examination a handsome

WATCH and CHAIN COMPLETE C. O. D. $4.50

Ladies or gents size, double hunting case beautifully engraved, stem wind and stem set, accurately adjusted, expansion balance; warranted a perfect timekeeper. If you do not consider it equal in appearance to any $40.00 gold filled watch and chain warranted 20 years do not accept it. If entirely satisfactory pay express agent Our Special Price $4.50 and express charges and it is yours. Our 20 Year Guarantee sent with each watch. Mention if you wish Ladies or Gents size.

DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., Dept. F 47. 225 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.



$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $13

Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ill.

CONSTIPATION the frequent cause of Appendicitis and many other serious ills should never be neglected. The objection to the usual cathartic remedies is their costive reaction which increases constipation instead of curing it. PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is the proper remedy. It acts on the Liver, and when used as directed, permanently removes the constipation. 50 cts. & $1.00 at all Druggists.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

SALESMEN WANTED. SALARY or Commission to sell to wholesale and retail trade. Position permanent. Previous experience not essential. Ruyter Mfg. Co., 179 Washington St., Chicago.

MOVING PICTURE And other Complete Public Exhibition Outfits for $23.75, $54.50 and up. $5.00 to $100.00 PER DAY (without experience) is being made by hundreds. We furnish complete Outfits, Instruction Book, Advertising matter, big posters, tickets, etc. For full particulars address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Chicago.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

★ FULL SIZE ★ ★ GOOD PAPER ★

2½ cts. SHEET MUSIC a Copy

★ LARGE TYPE ★ ★ UNABRIDGED ★

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFERED AT THIS TIME.

No.	PIANO OR ORGAN.
165	American Liberty March	Cook
101	Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step	Cook
247	Artist's Life Waltzes	Strauss
181	Auld Lang Syne. Variations	Durkee
187	Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	Pacher
215	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive	Anderson
179	Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands	Streabbog
227	Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes	Strauss
65	Bells of Corneville. Potpourri	Elson
213	Black Hawk Waltzes	Walsh
257	Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans.	Richards
221	Bluebird Echo Polka	Morrison
199	Boston Commandery March	Carter
109	Bridal March from Lohengrin	Wagner
229	Bryan and Sewall March	Noles
133	Cadences and Scales in all Keys	Czerny
1	Catherine Waltzes	Stroh
255	Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands.	Mascagni
237	Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands.	Lehr
145	Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step	Missud
217	Cleveland's March	Noles
81	Coming from the Races Galop	Wheeler
211	Corn Flower Waltzes	Coote, Jr
41	Crack Four March	Ashton
71	Crystal Dew Waltz	Durkee
235	Day Dawn Polka	Cook
163	Dewey's Grand Triumphal March	Marcel
117	Echoing Trumpets March	Noles
121	Electric Light Galop	Durkee
91	Estella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Robinson
107	Ethel Polka	Simons
155	Evergreen Waltz	Stoddard
231	Faust. Selections	Durkee
77	Fifth Nocturne	Leybach
233	Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz	Lasonde
239	Flower Song. Op. 39.	Lange
97	Fresh Life	Spindler
177	Frolic of the Frogs.	Watson
49	Full of Ginger. March Galop.	Nutting
183	Golden Rain. Nocturne	Clay
147	Grand Commandery March—Two Step	Missud
53	Greeting of Spring, op. 21	Schultze
185	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Richards
173	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes	Jewell
139	Home, Sweet Home. Transcription	Black
17	Impassioned Dream Waltzes	Rosas
153	Jenny Lind polka. Four hands	Muller
157	Last Hope. Meditation	Gottschalk
195	Leap Year Schottische	Kuhn
253	Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka.	Behr
159	Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop	Durkee
249	Lohengrin. Selections	Durkee
141	London March—Two Step	Missud
99	Maiden's Prayer, The	Badarzewska
45	March Winds Galop	Mansfield
240	Martha Selections	Johnson
207	May Breezes. Four hands	Krug
225	McKinley and Hobart March	Turner
55	Memorial Day March	Hewitt
131	Monastery Bells. Nocturne	Wely
89	Morning Dew, op. 18	Smith
61	Morning Star Waltz	Zahn
201	Music Box, The. Caprice	Liebich
137	My Love Polka	Zuchner
125	My Old Kentucky Home Variations	Cook
87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations
175	National Songs of America	Blake
135	Nightingale's Trill, op. 8	Kullak
123	Old Folks at Home. Transcription	Blake
171	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations	Durkee
219	On the Wave Waltz	Dinsmore
197	Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two step	Robinson
245	Orvetta Waltz	Spencer
9	Our Little Agnes. Waltz	Gregoire
191	Over the Waves Waltz	Rosas
79	Please Do Waltz	Durkee
193	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	Brunner
167	Red, White and Blue Forever. March	Blake
143	Richmond March—two-step	Missud
245	Rustic Waltz	Schumann
127	Rustling Leaves. Idylle	Lange
39	Ruth, Esther and Marion Schottische.	Cohen
149	Salem Witches March—Two-Step	Missud
189	Schubert's Serenade Transcription	Liszt
161	Silvery Waves. Variations	Wyman
169	Smith's (General) March	Martin
31	Song of the Voyager	Paderewski
22	Souvenir March Song of 1895 K. T. Parade	Dow
95	Spirit Lake Waltz	Simons
151	Storm, The. Imitation of Nature	Weber
73	Storm Mazurka	Keefer
109	Sultan's Band March.	Brown
209	Sweet Long Ago Transcription	Blake
115	Tornado Galop	Arbuckle
103	Trifet's Grand March, op. 182	Wedel
223	Twilight Echoes. Song without words	Jewell
113	Under the Double Eagle March	Wagner
129	Venetian Waltz	Ludovic
205	Village Parade Quickstep	Allen
7	Visions of Light. Waltz	Cook
203	Warblings at Eve	Richards
93	Waves of the Ocean March	Blake
59	Wedding March	Mendelssohn
251	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem.	Howe
119	Woodland Whispers Waltzes	Stanley
105	Zephyr Waltz.	Bragg

No.	VOICE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
236	Across the Bridge	Le Brunn
2	Annie's Love. Duet for Sop. and Ten.	Winter
27	Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni
140	Beacon Light of Home	Estabrooke
134	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet	Glover
238	Bells of Seville	H. Jude
162	Ben Bolt, of "Trilby" fame	Kneass
226	Blue Eyes	Elson
246	Boyhood Days, Chorus	Fritz
200	Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow	Carew
192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keep a Secret?	Estabrooke
214	Childhood's Happy Hours	Dinsmore
138	Christmas Carol	Turner
190	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Schumann
168	Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk	Blake
92	Cow Bells, The. Boyhood's Recollection	Grimm
250	Darling I Shall Miss You	Cohen
176	Darling Nellie Gray	Hanby
70	Dear Heart, We're Growing Old	Estabrooke
128	Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp.	Hoover
256	Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus.	Turner
50	Easter Eve. Sacred	Gounod
220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory	Hosfeld
19	'E Dunno Where 'E Are. Comic	Ewlett
72	Ellaline. Waltz song	Betts
180	Far Away	Bliss
182	Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
126	Far from the Hearthstone	Messer
152	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic	Mathiot
156	Flag, The. Quartette	Fox
144	Flirting in the Starlight	Delano
8	Flossie. Waltz Song	Cohen
138	For a Dream's Sake	Cowen
36	For the Colors. Patriotic	Wilson
66	For You We are Praying at Home	Estabrooke
166	From our Home the Loved are Going	Percy
202	Give a Kiss to Me	Percy
178	God Bless My Kind Old Mother	Jewell
204	Golden Moon	Ivan
150	Gypsy Countess. Duet	Glover
198	Heart of My Heart	Robinson
184	I Can't Forget the Happy Past	Skelly
74	In Sweet September	Temple
248	In Shadowland	Pinsuti
188	In the Starlight. Duet	Glover
28	Juanita. Ballad	May
242	Kathleen Mavourneen	Crouch
196	Killarney	Balfe
132	Kiss me, but don't say goodbye	Rutledge
130	Kiss that bound my Heart to thine	Keil
164	Larboard Watch. Duet	Williams
146	Listen to the Mocking Bird	Hawthorne
48	Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet	Estabrooke
154	Little Voices at the Door	Danks
96	Lost Chord, The	Sullivan
40	Love Ever Faithful	Bucalossi
25	Lurline, Do you think of me now?	Estabrooke
234	Margaretta	Balfe
112	Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard	Keefer
230	Memories of my Mother. Chorus	Allen
30	Mission of a Rose, The. Song	Cowen
52	Mother's Cry, A. (Salvation Army)	Adriance
172	Mother's Welcome at the Door	Estabrooke
222	Musical Dialogue Duet	Helmund
232	Must the Sweet Tie that binds	Estabrooke
76	My Home by the Old Mill	O'Halloran
110	My Little Lost Irene	Danks
170	My Old Kentucky Home	Foster
216	Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain.	Dinsmore
228	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber)	Foster
60	Old Glory. National	Woods
102	Old Sexton, The	Russell
104	On the Banks of the Beautiful River	Estabrooke
90	On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad	Robinson
160	Outcast, An. Character Song	Fritz
174	Parted from our Dear Ones	Keller
254	Picture of My Mother, The	Skelly
148	Poor Girl didn't know. Comic.	Coote
56	Precious Treasure. Song and Dance	Weiler
136	Request. Sacred	Grainger
208	Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	Knight
142	Rosemonde	Chaminade
80	See Those Living Pictures	Guth
224	Shall I Ever See Mother's Face Again?	Adriance
194	She Sleeps among the Daisies	Dinsmore
124	Softly shine the Stars of Evening	Dinsmore
210	Son's Return, The	Fritz
120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive	Hullah
10	Sweetest Song, The	Denza
32	Sweet Long Ago, The	Estabrooke
46	That Word was Hope. Waltz song	Nutting
118	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds	Davis
206	There's Sure to be a Way	Delano
158	Thinking of Home and Mother	Cohen
116	'Tis True, Dear Heart, We're Fading	Estabrooke
108	Tread softly, the Angels are calling	Turner
38	True to the Last	Adams
64	Vicar of Bray, The. Old English Song
62	Your Mother's Love for You	Koppt
252	Warrior Bold	Adams
84	What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet	Glover
58	When the Roses are Blooming Again	Skelly
86	When Winter Days Have Gone	Traynor
186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic	Tyndall
212	Why am I ever Watching	de Lasaide
218	Why do Summer Roses Fade	Barker

DON'T FORGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-five cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.

Any 10 for 25 cents.
Any 21 for 50 cents.
Any 43 for $1.00.
Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any six of the above pieces free as a premium, and for 25c will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

BROWN-EYED NELL.

WORDS AND MUSIC BY E. NINIAN.

AUTHOR OF "THE SOLDIER'S BRIDE," AND "MAMA'S IN HEAVEN."

Copyright, by N. E. BYERS.

A 50 ct. copy of above song with illustrated title page sent to any address for 10 cts. (silver). Address N. E. BYERS, Music Publisher 410 West 22d St., New York City, N. Y.

Early Singing in New England.

The old Puritans were a strange lot in some of their habits, and nothing can seem more ludicrous to the present generation than their method of congregational singing. For more than a century after the landing at Plymouth hymns were lined and then sung. Our present generation can hardly imagine the worthy dominie in the pulpit announcing the congregation would join in singing such a psalm and then the scene that would follow.

On the announcement of the hymn the congregation arose and if there were a choir in the usual gallery in the rear of the church, turned with one accord and faced the singers, who generally sang to the notes of a bass viol for harmony. A deacon in the gallery arose with book in hand, and in nasally-twanged drawl read the words of the first line of the announced hymn. Then the viol scraped a note, the singers in the choir hummed in unison, and then choir and congregation sang the line. Thus it was carried on through the whole hymn, the deacon reading each succeeding line to the end, and the choir and people loudly singing in slow measure the words given.

Somewhere about 1725 there began to be a rebellion against this method of "lining psalms," which brought about a warfare famous in its day called the fight between "note and note," which continued unabated and with all the vigor of early Puritanism in every New England settlement. Whether those engaged were singers or not, or even had musical education, mattered little, for all were partisans.

The only book of songs that was used by the earlier Pilgrims was the "Book of Psalms, Englished Both in Prose and Verse," published by Henry Ainsworth at Amsterdam in 1612. The notes were diamond-shaped, which seems to have fitly symbolized angularity of both the music and the poetry; though these rude productions really had a ring and vigor to them, characteristic of everything Puritanical. The general rule was to sing a note of "Old Hundred" to a beating of the pulse, or about a third quicker than in modern time.

Gradually new and improved books crept into use in the colony and the later ones before 1700 are better printed and better collected than the book above referred to. In the earlier days it is doubtful if the stern customs of the Pilgrims allowed women to mingle their sweet voices with the sterner notes of the men in public worship. There is nothing to establish when the present custom of mixed choirs first came in vogue in New England.

If any person desires a giant bargain in real sheet music take advantage of COMFORT'S offer on another page. It pays as much to save money as to make it. Here is a chance to save. Read it.

$6.00 per thousand paid to distribute circulars; send stamp for particulars. Nardre Advertising Co., 611 Broadway, New York.

$8.00 Per Week, at Home in our Home Employment Bus. Send stp. A. Brownell Co., Adams Basin, N.Y.

WANTED. Good Agents to sell our preparations. Address Bay State Drug & Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind.

$8 Paid Per 100 for Distributing Samples of Washing fluid. Send 6c stamp. A. W SCOTT, Cohoes, N.Y.

$1,400 MADE at home in 8 months. Particulars, 4c. UNION OIL CO., LIMA, OHIO.

$3.00 TO $10.00 PER THOUSAND PAID FOR DISTRIBUTING CIRCULARS. Send 4 stamps for particulars at once. SMITH ADV. ASS'N, STA. E, BALTIMORE, MD.

$5.00 CASH per 1000 paid to Distribute Circulars. Enclose 4 stamps. World Adv. Assc'n, Chicago.

$18 BICYCLE WHEELS FOR 25 CENTS. SEE CUT OF WHEEL IN THIS PAPER.

AMERICAN $10.00 TYPEWRITER 260 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

FREE Our Magnificent Catalogue No. 70, of Ladies' Outer Garments. Edward B. Grossman & Co., 170-172 State St., Chicago.

WHITE ROUGH STRAW SAILORS with black ribbon bands, "Knox style," only 25c. Write for free Illustrated Millinery Catalogue.—Chicago Mail Order Millinery Co., 45-53 E. Jackson Boul., Chicago, Ill.

ANGELS WHISPER Beautiful Large Picture colored. Sells quickly at 25c. Sample 12c. 9 for $1.00. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago.

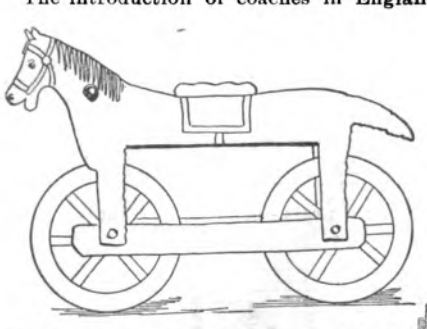
ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

CARPETS. WE SELL ALL KINDS OF CARPETS at lowest wholesale prices, about one-half retail price charged by retail dealers. Write for FREE COLOR SAMPLE BOOK, showing samples of our entire line of Carpets. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Chicago.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

"When Babbie guides her cycle through the leafy lanes of June,
Her winsome grace of form and face puts all the world a-tune;
Her presence there makes fresh and fair the charm of bush and bower,
Her smile imbues with happier hues the heart of every flower."

So sings Nixon Waterman, who has made himself famous as a writer on bicycle topics, and in connection with the L. A. W. bulletin.



Through the wide publicity which has been given the aims and objects of the League of American Wheelmen during the past year, the bicycle riders in this country are beginning to appreciate what has been done for them by that organization and what it can do for them in the future. Now it is understood that the League has worked for years, unselfishly, in the interests of wheelmen as a class, and that all the rights and privileges now enjoyed are to be credited to it. This knowledge has caused a friendlier feeling for the League and has laid the foundation for securing more support from wheelmen in the future.

On Decoration Day the League of American Wheelmen celebrated its twentieth anniversary. There are quite a number of the founders who are still members of the organization. Doubtless there are many wheelmen who will be astonished to know that the L. A. W. has been in existence so many years and the general public probably has no recollection that cycling was of sufficient importance twenty years ago to warrant an organization.

"When the time arrives, the public will buy bicycles as it buys clothes—on the actual quality of the article and not on the name-plate that it bears, and they will get much better goods for less money," says a dealer. "The public will become educated sooner or later, just as the dealer has. When he buys a wheel for his retail business he asks what tubing, rims, spokes, hubs, and other high-grade materials the wheel he is buying is made of, and he has educated himself up to the high grade maker's parts, as the rider has to the name of high grade tires. When a wheel is built of high grade materials it is bound to be a high grade wheel, regardless of the name-plate."

It has been proved many times over, that the bicycle is no "new thing under the sun." Our illustration shows what was attempted a hundred years ago. Now somebody has unearthed the fact that automobiles are old, too.

The introduction of coaches in England is credited to Queen Eleanor, who died in 1291. Later testimony, no less direct, credits the first introduction of coaches to Sir Thomas Chamberlayne, English Ambassador to the Court of Charles V. of Spain; and again to the Earl of Rutland, for whom Walter Rippon, Queen Elizabeth's subsequent coachmaker, is recorded to have built the "first coach that ever was seen in England, Anno Domini 1555." In 1829 the Britannic Review said of the steam-carriage invented by Sir Goldworth Gurney:

"This carriage, now perfected in all its parts, has been examined by a large number of enlightened persons. It has been put in movement in their presence. The simplicity of construction, its rapidity, the facility with which it is guided, and above all, the evident security, have all been noted. The result of this experiment has convinced the most incredulous that the new invention will obtain the favor of the public, and that the application of the principle on which the vehicle rests will soon extend to all sorts of carriages, and thus become a universal usage."

The time seems to have come already when Mother Shipton's prophecy "Carriages without horses shall go" is fulfilled, indeed. There are flourishing automobile clubs in England, Paris and in America, and there'll be a whole lot of automobiles whisking about the streets and highways this summer. They'll be as thick as lucky-bugs zigzagging about the surface of a peaceful mill pond in June. Most of them will be guided by drivers who know how, but some of them will not. Because one careless or ignorant driver creates trouble, lots of competent ones will be compelled to go creeping along at a snail's pace.

Notwithstanding the fact that the term "automobile" is said to be a "wretched, mongrel word, a horrible mixture of French and Latin," it appears to be the established name, covering in the widest sense of the word every form of self-moving vehicle, whether on the common road or on the rail, although its application is usually restricted to the former class. "The Automobile Club" of France and, later, of Great Britain, and now, of America, gives that word an authoritative standing that will henceforth carry much weight. Au-to-mo-bile, with the heavy accent on the third syllable.

The best definition of the automobile I have heard yet is "an elephant on doughnuts." But we shall see them everywhere this summer, while the bicycle will be everywhere.

"The Tailor and Cutter" of England, has considered the correct attire for automobile and motor riders, and suggests the following: a double-breasted reefer, cut moderately easy fitting in the body and fastened up to the throat, the neck being finished with a Prussian collar, the ends of which are placed under the top button, thus keeping it in place. Pockets are inserted in the fore part vertically, thus enabling the wearer to use them with greater ease than would be the case with the ordinary breast pocket. The material should be of herring-bone cheviot of some dark color, in order that it shall not readily show dust or oil stains. The sleeves are finished with a tab, which can be fastened so as to bring them quite close to the wrists.

A veteran tourist gives this advice to the beginner: The novice has by no means come to the end of his expenditure when he has acquired his bicycle. There are sundry things which he must procure if he desires to ride in security and comfort. Presuming that he has purchased a good machine (cheap bicycles are false economy) there remains a tool bag, pump holder, lamp, bell, cyclometer and handle bar carrier. The bag should be of large size, with internal straps or loops to prevent tools rattling; the lamp should not be too small and by a good maker, while the cyclometer is more or less a matter of fancy. A waterproof cape should always be carried, and clip attachments to secure same to back forks under the saddle can be obtained. A watch in a watch holder on the handle is a convenient luxury.

Aside from the mechanics which the management and care of a bicycle must teach one, it is almost certain to bring its owner into a closer study of nature in all her forms. As its use develops every part of the body so it also interests every side of human thought. It is said that Darwin, the greatest scientific investigator the world ever saw, in his later years lost all his taste for art, music, poetry, and higher literature, a slave to one idea.

Cycling tends to make men normal in their thinking. A one-sided man cannot ride a wheel with any degree of comfort. He must become rounded and rational.

A point worthy of special note is the use of the wheel by children. Parents should exercise a careful supervision of their children in this matter, in order that the young and rapidly growing child, the bony structure of whose limbs is not fully developed, may not use the wheel to excess. Again, it very often happens that a child is allowed to ride a wheel which is not adapted to his size, and is either too large or too small. Every day we see boys riding wheels which belong to older brothers or sisters, and sitting not upon the saddle but astride the bar in front of the saddle, the toes even then only touching the pedals at intervals and the body swaying this way and that in a most awkward manner. Such a practice is liable to do serious harm to the rider, since the bicycle should be fitted to the rider as much as a shoe or suit of clothes.

It goes without saying that the better form of recreation must be enjoyed out of doors and "close to nature." The bicycle is nature perfected by art, an art that has not subjugated man to the machine, but has made of science a recreative tonic for the joyous betterment of all.

"COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE."

To the bicycle belongs the credit of "turning the house inside out." It has called tens of thousands of men, women and children from within walls to open skies and endless highways, "green fields and running brooks," and there taught them wholesome pastimes, such as tennis, golf, boating and the like, all of which are deeply indebted to the bicycle for the increase in the numbers of their devotees.

In a summarizing way it may be said that the best evidence of what the bicycle has done for recreation is made clear by the fact that it found society composed largely of helpless figures watching a few professionals "do a turn" in various forms of "entertainment," and it induced the helpless ones to themselves become participants in all sorts of sports of an athletic nature.

"Where Babbie passes, all the fields are vibrant with delight,
The brooklets sing a song of Spring, the skies are blue and bright.
Across the hills the sunshine spills its flask of golden wine;
A newer birth has wrought the earth in beauty more divine."

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR

a man carries his keys about in his pocket, 365 chances every year to lose them never to recover them if his name is not attached in some way. A substantial steel ring with an ivory marker is a new idea. With ordinary ink your name, address, etc., can be written on the ivory tag and your keys returned to you if lost. Only a limited quantity at 4c. each. Good discount to agents and street men. Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z
C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

Drunkards

We Want All Our Readers to Know How Mrs. Chas. W. Harry Cured Her Husband.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

It takes a woman to overcome obstacles. Mrs. Chas. W. Harry, 920 York St. Newport, Ky., had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering misery and privation due to her husband's drinking habits. Learning there was a cure for drunkenness which she could give her husband secretly, she decided to try it. She mixed it in his food and coffee, and as the remedy is odorless and tasteless he never knew what it was that so quickly relieved the craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up in flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly and they now have a happy home. Mr. Harry was told about his wife's experiment and he gives her the credit of having restored him to his senses. It is certainly a remarkable remedy, cures a man without his effort, does him no harm and causes him no suffering whatever.

MRS. CHAS. W. HARRY.

Dr. Haines, the discoverer, will send a trial package of this grand remedy free to all who will write for it. Enough of the remedy is mailed free to show how it is used in tea, coffee or food and that it will cure the dreaded habit quietly and permanently. Send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 2180 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will mail a free sample of the remedy to you, securely sealed in a plain wrapper, also full directions how to use it, books and testimonials from hundreds who have been cured, and everything needed to aid you in saving those near and dear to you from a life of degradation and ultimate poverty and disgrace.

Send for a free trial to-day. It will brighten the rest of your life.

$3.50 A $25.00 Watch

in appearance. The handsomest genuine gold plated watch on the market. Double hunting case, SOLID GOLD PATTERN of engraving. Elegantly finished jeweled movement, stem wind and set and absolutely guaranteed for 20 YEARS. Cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch to you by express for examination, you examine it at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $3.50 and it is yours. Only one watch to each customer at this price. Mention in your letter whether you want GENT'S OR LADY'S SIZE and order to-day a we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only.
R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

A BIG INCOME
Can be made GIVING PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENTS in Churches, Halls and Theatres with MOTION PICTURES the new Grapho-Ampliphone, MUSICAL and Talking Combination and Panoramic Stereopticon Views. $60 to $300 PER WEEK. Pleasant employment and any man can operate them. COMPLETE OUTFITS, including large illustrated Advertising Bills (18x24), admission tickets, instruction book, business guide, etc., $39.50 and up. Most interesting and sensational subjects, just out. Will be sent C.O.D. subject to examination. Write for catalogue and copies of letters from exhibitors who are MAKING BIG MONEY with our outfits.
ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLY CO. Dept. BN, 56-58 5th Ave. CHICAGO

EARN A CAMERA, or BRACELET, or GOLD-FILLED RING,
BY SELLING 10 PINS AT 10c. EACH.
These are beautiful Gold Stick Pins, set with rubies, pearls, emeralds, etc., and are worth twice the price.
Send us your name and full address. We will then send you the pins. You sell them, return the money to us, and choose premium—a camera, bracelet or ring, or any other premium in our large illustrated catalogue.
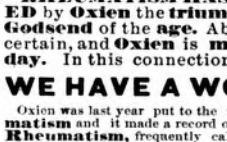
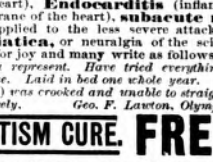
NOVELTY JEWELRY CO.
25 Bank St., Attleboro, Mass.

ALL WOOL SERGE SUIT

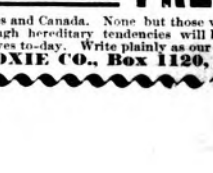


MAN'S SUIT MADE FROM PARKERS BEST BLUE SERGE CHEVIOT famous for its perfect weave and rich dark blue color. Its fine all wool, medium weight, and will positively not fade. Guaranteed equal to others $10.00 suits. $4.95
EXPERT TAILORS will make the suit in latest sack style, to fit perfect, line it with fine super gloss farmer satin, pad and stiffen it so it will always retain its perfect shape and sew with pure silk and linen thread.
SEND THIS ADV. to us and we'll send free a large cloth sample of the blue serge cheviot suit and our big book containing 50 fine cloth samples of other made to order suits from $5.95 to $20.00. We make all grades and styles of suits to order in our own mammoth tailor shops and sell to consumers at lowest wholesale factory prices. Write today.
MEN'S SUITS FREE we give suits away free and furnish a suit to wear while you are earning one, in addition you can make $2.50 to $5.00 a day while earning suit. Hundreds are doing it. You can too. SEND ONE 2-CENT STAMP to help pay mailing charges for complete outfit with which you can easily earn a suit and make big wages. Write today.
THE LOUIS R. VERON CO., 155 W. Jackson St., CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.



MORPHINE OPIUM and other DRUG Habits Cured. TRIAL FREE!
Dr. Pierce Med. Assn. 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

MAGIC DIP NEEDLE for locating Gold and Silver Ore, Lost or Hidden Treasures. Circulars and testimonials 2 cts.
P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.



FREE RUPTURE CURE!
If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

THE ELECTRICITY from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes we will give ONE BELT FREE to one person in each locality. Address E. J. SMEAD & Co., Dept. 259, Vineland, N. J.

Mid The Green Fields OF VIRGINIA,
Break the News to Mother, The Girl I Loved in Sunny Tennessee, I'd Leave My Happy Home for You, One Night in June, Because, I Guess I'll save to Telegraph My Baby, Dewey's Welcome Home, You Ain't the Coon for Me, She Was Happy Till She Met You.—Some of the latest hits, comic, pathetic, coon, love songs, and many old favorites and nearly 200 other songs with MUSIC complete, all for 10 cts. DON'T MISS THIS OFFER. Address HOME MUSIC COMPANY, STATION E, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Free
Send no money—Simply your name & address & we will send you 6 sets of Beauty Pins, (each set with an Exquisite Jewel) to sell at 25c. a set. When sold, send us the money and we will send you this magnificent SOLID GOLD shell ring, set with a Simulation DIAMOND, free. We run all risk and take back what you can not sell. If you answer this adv. today we will send you an extra SOLID GOLD plated ring, free. Maxwell Co. Dept. 210, St. Louis, Mo.

$1000 FREE
ARMOUR CHAMPION HOUGHTON LYON
Can you arrange these fourteen jumbled letters so that they will form a title to one of the best story papers in the land? IF SO YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE $1000 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. In arranging the letters use them only as many times as they appear and no letter can be used which does not appear. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the best NEW YORK STORY MAGAZINES into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. Send your solution to us plainly written on a postal card with your address in full and you will hear from us by RETURN MAIL. STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1000. A copy of this celebrated NEW YORK MONTHLY MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to every one answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer immediately. Address THE PARAGON PUBLISHING CO., 22 North William Street, New York City.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address
GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

RHEUMATISM IS DEAD!

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy for Rheumatism and it made a record of absolute cures in Acute Rheumatism, frequently called rheumatic fever, Pericarditis (inflammation of the investing membrane of the heart), Endocarditis (inflammation of the living membrane of the heart), subacute rheumatism, sometimes applied to the less severe attacks of the disease, chronic rheumatism, which swells and twists the joints and sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. In fact Oxien is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism in any form. Thousands jump for joy and many write as follows:

Received OXIEN O. K. Found it far superior to what you represent. Have tried everything I could hear of for rheumatism. For ten years I have been crippled up with this terrible disease. Laid in bed one whole year. Could not turn or feed myself and when I was able to walk on crutches (which I did for four years) was crooked and unable to straighten up, but Oxien did it and you can imagine how happy I am now. Yours sincerely. Geo. F. Lawton, Olympia, Wash., Feby. 2d, 1898.

FREE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.

This momentous offer we make in order to more thoroughly introduce this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us their word that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered entitled to free treatment. Therefore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.
THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

SOFT shell crabs are a famous dish with epicures. Possibly a few words regarding crabs will be interesting to some who know little about them except that they are "mighty good eating."

During the first year of her existence she puts off her shell several times. When she feels that she is to lose it, she gets into a hole in the sand, under some seaweed, and in a short time emerges again minus her shell, but covered with a thin fine skin. She is then what is called a soft-shelled crab, and is perfectly delicious.

The price for these crabs is from seventy-five cents to a dollar and a quarter a dozen, according to the season. They can be bought at the markets in the large cities, and are often shipped to the smaller towns. Of course this can be done with little difficulty, as they are shipped alive. They are packed in baskets in seaweed, and so get air, and enough food from the seaweed to keep them in good condition for several days.

To prepare a soft-shelled crab, take it in the hands and remove the seaweed that will cling to the claws. With a sharp vegetable knife raise the skin and remove the sand bag and then the lungs on either side. It is then dead. It isn't a pleasant operation to perform, but it is the only thing to be done and if done quickly is no more painful to the crab than to plunge it into hot water, as is done with lobsters. Prepare all the crabs in this way and lay them on a board; season with salt and pepper, roll in flour and dip in egg and then in crumbs and fry in deep fat. Be very careful to have each claw covered with the flour, egg and crumbs, and then the crab presents a very pretty appearance when nicely browned.

To serve, place in the center of a large platter a cut glass dish, which is to hold the sauce. Around this dish put a border of parsley or water cress and then place the crabs around that. This makes it an easy dish to serve, as everything is separate and can be served neatly. The sauce used is

SAUCE TYROLIENNE.

To three-fourths cup mayonnaise dressing add one-half tablespoon each of chopped capers, parsley and pickle, and two tablespoons tomato puree.

Tomato puree, by the way, is simply canned tomato, which is stewed slowly for a long time until it is quite thick and then strained.

A few words about crumbs.

Take the stale pieces of bread, ends of loaves, etc., and put in the oven. When hard enough to grate, do so, afterwards sifting the crumbs so that they will be uniform in size. Then place in a glass preserve jar and they will keep for weeks. Be careful, however, not to put on the cover of the jar or the crumbs will get moist and soon mouldy. Keep the top open, or with a piece of cheese cloth tied over it, to keep out the dust, but still to admit air to the crumbs. If coarse crumbs are desired, (called bread raspings) take the inside of a loaf of stale bread and break it up as fine as possible and put through a sieve.

When anything is to be dipped in crumbs, egg and crumbs again, dilute the egg with water. To one egg add two tablespoons cold water and mix thoroughly. This insures a smooth surface of egg and also makes the egg go about twice as far.

Now that fresh vegetables may be had by all, and as everyone uses salads to a large extent through the summer months, a few new combinations and suggestions for garnishing may be acceptable to the housewife who is always on the alert for something new, in the spring particularly, when appetites flag and it is hard to suit the fancy of the different members of the family. For those who can get the shad roe, the following recipe will be found delicious,—and for those who cannot, cold cooked veal or chicken or lamb, chopped, will do very well as a substitute.

SHAD ROE AND CUCUMBER SALAD.

Boil the roe twenty-five minutes with a slice of onion, a small piece of bay leaf, three cloves and ten peppercorns. Cool and sprinkle with lemon juice or vinegar and cut in small pieces. Slice a cucumber very thin, and then "pink" the edges of each slice, as shown in our illustration. This is done by laying the slice on a board and going around the edges with a three-tined steel fork, which cuts the little slits and so varies the edge of the slice. To serve, pile the roe in the center of the dish, place the slices of cucumber on top, pour over all some French dressing and garnish edge of dish with small lettuce leaves. It presents a better appearance served in this way than when the cucumber is mixed in with the roe.

STUFFED CUCUMBER SALAD.

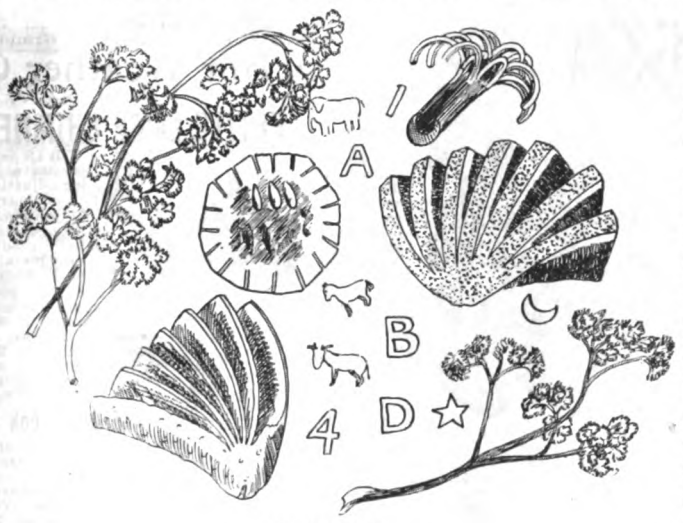
Pare cucumber and cut lengthwise in halves; remove seeds and let the shell chill in ice water for an hour. Chop together the solid part of a peeled and seeded tomato, a slice of new onion, a stalk of celery and a sprig of parsley; mix with Mayonnaise or boiled dressing and fill the halves of the cucumber, after it has been carefully dried. Serve in lettuce leaves.

It often happens that a small quantity of vegetables are left from dinner; there isn't enough to serve again, and yet nothing must be wasted. In a case of this kind, if one has a cup of string beans left from one dinner, some peas, or beets left from the day before, take these, and mix thoroughly with French dressing; arrange in a pile in the center of a platter, and around the edge place sliced fresh tomatoes, or cucumber. If one has three or four cold boiled potatoes, make a salad of them by adding some chopped onion and mixing with French dressing, and place this around the edge of platter, with a sprig or two of parsley or nasturtium leaves, instead of the tomato or cucumber.

Cold fish of almost any kind makes a nice salad, served usually with French dressing. A little flaked fish well mixed with dressing, served with a border of quartered hard boiled eggs, the whole set off by a row of crisp lettuce leaves, makes an attractive dish both to the eye and the palate, and is about as simple a dish as can be prepared.

The salad dressings most in use are the French dressing and mayonnaise, and, although we have often given recipes for these before, we will give them again, also one for boiled dressing, as there are some who do not care for oil but prefer the melted butter.

FRENCH DRESSING.



One-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper or a little paprica, two to six tablespoons vinegar and six tablespoons oil.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.

Yolks of two raw eggs; one pint olive oil; two tablespoons vinegar; two tablespoons lemon juice; one-half teaspoon salt; few grains paprica, and, if desired, one teaspoon each of mustard and powdered sugar.

Have the utensils and ingredients thoroughly chilled, the egg perfectly fresh, and there will be no difficulty in making a perfectly smooth dressing. Beat the yolks with a small wooden spoon, add the condiments and stir; then add one teaspoon vinegar, and when well mixed with the other ingredients, add the oil, at first drop by drop. When mixture thickens, the oil may be added faster. If too thick, add a little of the lemon juice, then more oil; then a little vinegar and more oil until all the ingredients are used. It is much easier if two people can make the dressing, one doing the stirring while the other slowly pours in the oil.

Now a word about the best way for keeping lettuce and parsley, in the refrigerator. Make some cheese cloth bags for just this purpose. Wash lettuce, pull apart, and then place in the bag and lay on ice. Parsley may be kept for a week, in this way, by simply sprinkling with fresh cold water once a day. If kept in water it gets heavy and loses its fresh, delicate green, and in a day or two the water has a very unpleasant odor. If kept in the ice box in a bag, and sprinkled every day, it retains its fresh color and odor for at least a week, if freshly picked at first.

GARNISHES.

Our illustration shows sprays of parsley; curled celery, which we have often described; pinked cucumber; fans made from lemon and pickle, also described sometime ago. The letters, figures and animals shown, are the little paste garnishes which are used in clear soups, in place of rice, and may be bought by the package. They are added to the soup ten minutes before it is served, which gives them time to swell a little and become soft, which they do without losing their shape.

A Self-Supporting Woman's Open Letter.

I have had so many letters from friends who heard I had gone into business, asking me to tell them all about it, that I thought it would be best to write you and have you print my answer so that all could see it. One day, in the Christian Courier I saw the advertisement of the Baird Manufacturing Co., 215 Baird Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa., saying they wanted agents for their Flavoring Powders. I first wrote the editor of the paper asking him if they were reliable, and he said they were one of the largest manufacturers in the country. So I wrote them and they started me in business with samples and things. That was two months ago, and I had never done such work before. To-day I am out of debt, living better than I've lived for a long time and I have some money in the bank. I can make from $3.00 to $5.00 a day. I've got my customers so now that I don't have to do any canvassing. They just send and ask for what they want. These flavoring powders are both cheaper and better than the old-style liquid extracts, and there is no trouble to place from one to eight flavors in each house you visit. I make this letter public in the hope that all who must earn their living, and those who want to make extra money, will do as I have done and get employment with this firm. MRS. SUSAN J.

PERFECTION CAKE TIN has removable bottom which enables you to remove without breaking the most delicate cake or pie. Bottom fits in groove; will not leak batter. We make ten styles, round, square and oblong. We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. AGENTS, write how to get free this and others of our best selling household novelties—Outfit worth $2.00—Express prepaid. Address Dept. X
HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.
This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.—Ed.

SEND NO MONEY

If you live in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan or Wisconsin, otherwise SEND ONE DOLLAR, cut this ad. out and send to us and we will send you this BIG 425-POUND STEEL RANGE, by freight, C. O. D., subject to examination. Examine it at your freight depot and if found perfectly satisfactory, the handsomest and best steel range you ever saw, equal to ranges that retail at $50.00 to $70.00, THE GRANDEST BARGAIN YOU EVER SAW OR HEARD OF, pay the railroad agent OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE, $26.50, (or $25.50 if you send $1.00) and freight charges. Freight averages about $1.25 for 500 miles.

ONE MONTH FREE TRIAL. Give this steel range one month's trial in your home, and if you don't find it the easiest heater, best baker, most economical and altogether satisfactory cook stove or range you ever used, if you find any reason to be dissatisfied, return it AT OUR EXPENSE AND WE WILL RETURN YOUR MONEY.

OUR GUARANTEE. Every steel range is covered by a binding guarantee, by the terms and conditions of which, if any piece or part gives out by reason of defect in material or workmanship, we will replace or repair it free of charge. With care it will last a lifetime. We guarantee the range to reach you in perfect order.

THE ACME STERLING STEEL RANGE is the highest grade steel range made; it embodies every good point of every other high grade range with the defects of none. Made in Chicago by the best steel range maker in America, made from the best material that money can buy and by skilled mechanics, made of heavy Wagner steel plate, 1 to 2 gauges heavier than is used in any other range made; oven plates are wrought steel, Evans' wrought construction throughout, cannot warp or break and is perfectly ventilated. Range is lined throughout with heavy fireproof, non-conducting asbestos, retaining the heat in the stove and making it the BEST, MOST ECONOMICAL AND QUICKEST BAKER MADE. Comes with removable duplex grate, for burning either hard or soft coal or wood. AT $26.50 we furnish the ACME STERLING STEEL RANGE exactly as illustrated; 6-hole, high warming closet, No. 8 oven, 16x21x14 inches; main top, 45x28½ inches; total height, 57 inches; closet 33½x14 inches. Range comes highly nickel plated and ornamented throughout, big nickel plated bands on stove edges, reservoir back, shelf and closet, heavy nickel doors, oven door bands, shields, handles, mountings, trimmings, etc., finest possible baked black enameling, strongest and heaviest bolt work made, extra large, deep, heavy genuine Standish porcelain lined reservoir. DON'T PAY YOUR DEALER $50.00 for a range until you have seen THE BEST RANGE MADE; OUR $26.50 ACME STERLING. For Cast Iron Ranges and Cook Stoves at $5.85 to $19.00, Heating Stoves at $2.75 to $20.00, write for our free Stove Catalogue. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Ed.)
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), CHICAGO.

NEW CURE FOR FITS

THAT NEVER FAILS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Fits, Spasms, Spells, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus's Dance, &c., have children, relatives, friends or neighbors that do so, or know people that are afflicted, my New Treatment will immediately relieve and PERMANENTLY CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE Bottle and try it. Sent in plain package and express prepaid. It has CURED thousands where everything else failed. My 90-page Illustrated Book, "Epilepsy Explained," FREE by mail. When writing, please give name, AGE and express and postoffice address. All correspondence professionally confidential.

W. H. MAY, M. D.
MAY LABORATORY, 94 Pine St., New York City

1200 Dollars Given Away

A	C	D
E	E	E
H	L	M
N	O	P
S	S	S
W	Y	Y

CAN YOU arrange the 18 letters at the left into three names denoting THREE WELL-KNOWN ADMIRALS of the U. S. NAVY during the SPANISH WAR? If you can make out these names you may share in THE DISTRIBUTION OF 1200 DOLLARS WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best Boston Story Magazines into every house in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out your answer, write it plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take considerable study to get the three correct names, BUT STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE 1200 DOLLARS. A COPY OF A CELEBRATED DOLLAR BOSTON MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to every one answering this advertisement. Send your answer immediately. Address: THE RIGLEY PUBLISHING COMPANY, 88 and 90 Purchase Street, BOSTON, MASS.

YOUR FUTURE LIFE COMPLETE in LOVE, MARRIAGE and BUSINESS, AS PREDICTED by ASTROLOGY. Send TIME of BIRTH, SEX & 10c. for Written Prediction. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

PIMPLES and Blackheads removed in 4 to 6 days. Perfectly Harmless. Never fails. Send 10 cts. Specific Remedy Co., Dept. K, Cleveland, Ohio.

FREE TO AGENTS

IDEAL CAKE SPOON will mix cake or bread in ⅓ time and is used in 1000 other ways. To prove its merits we will send one Sample FREE on receipt of 10c to pay for postage and our Catalogue of 800 fast selling Specialties. Easy Work. Big Profits. A. VINING NOVELTY CO., 60 Wabash Av., Chicago.

GET THIN DO YOU WANT A FREE TREATMENT & A BOOK "HOW TO CURE OBESITY"—50 portraits. Write to Loring & Co., Limited, Dept. 546, 42 West 22d St., New York City.

CHILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs, Health, Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N.Y.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr. E. M. Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

$3.50 SEND NO MONEY

For our magnificently engraved double hunting case watch of Gold alloy with extra 14 karat gold plate, equal in appearance to any 35 dollar watch. Movement is the best make, fully jeweled, duplex escapement, quick train, patent pinion, accurately regulated and adjusted and Sold with Written POSITIVE 20 YEAR GUARANTEE Railroadmen all over the country buy this watch, on account of its durability and timekeeping qualities. Our wholesale factory price is $42.00 per doz., but we will send you one sample for free inspection. If fully satisfied pay $3.50 and express charges, otherwise not one cent. State nearest express office and if Ladies' or Gents' watch. FREE with first order from each town a handsome Chain & Charm worth retail $1. Catalogue free. EXCELSIOR WATCH CO., 66 Central Bank Bldg., CHICAGO.

144 PIECE DINNER SET FREE Full size for family use, beautifully decorated & most artistic design. A rare chance. You can get this handsome dinner set and one dozen fine plated tea spoons for selling our Pills. We mean what we say & will give this beautiful dinner set absolutely free if you comply with the extraordinary offer we send to every person taking advantage of this advertisement. To quickly introduce our Vegetable Pills, a sure cure for constipation, indigestion & torpid liver, if you agree to sell only six boxes of Pills at 25 cts. a box write to-day and we send Pills by mail, when sold send us the money & we send you one dozen plated tea spoons together with our offer of a 144 piece dinner set same day money is received. This is a liberal inducement to every lady in the land & all who received the spoons & dinner set for selling our Pills are delighted. AMERICAN MEDICINE COMPANY, DEPT. G, 32 WEST 13th STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

NEW FRUIT HULLER.

PERFECTION AT LAST.

YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.

PATENT PENDING.

KEEP YOUR HANDS CLEAN.

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER

hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches. Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up. A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed. Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickel-polished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket. We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send for trial sample, which we will send prepaid for 10 cents, including 3 months' trial subscription to this paper. Send 25c. for one year's subscription and we will send one-half dozen Hullers free; or send 50c. for two years' subscription and we will send one dozen Hullers postpaid. Agents' terms sent on application. NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

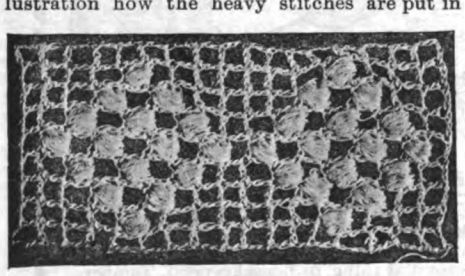
THERE must be a revival of the use of crochet trimming, for we have numberless inquiries for directions for making new designs in edging and insertion. For the benefit of those of our readers who are interested in this line of fancy work, we give some designs which we hope will prove to be new.

Crochet edging is very serviceable for children's underclothes, also for aprons, and is much daintier than the hamburg edge or lace that could be bought for a small amount of money. Of course the thread is all the expense there is to the crochet edge, and the time used in the making of same would not be put to any other use, probably, as this sort of work is usually done when one has visitors who come, with their fancy work, to spend a few hours, or else in the evening when one doesn't care to sit quite idle, but yet wants to do almost nothing, and with a simple pattern to follow, crochet work is simple and restful.

Crochet edge in fine, filmy pattern, is also much used in the chamber, for the toilet and dressing table covers, and, if liked, for the ends of pillow slips, though usually women like the hem-stitching only on pillow slips and sheets.

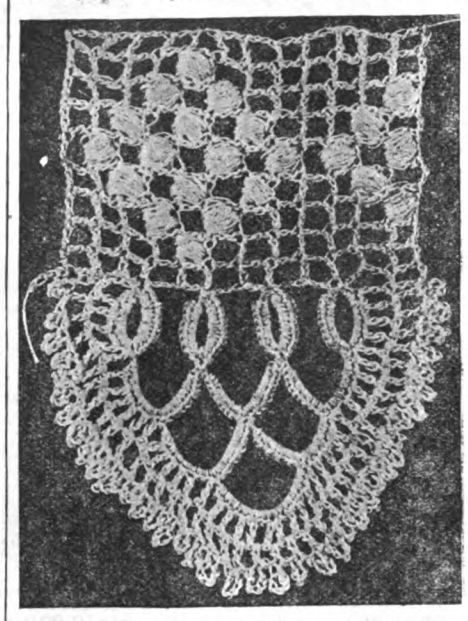
For our first illustration, use No. 30 Coat's thread.

Although this trimming looks as if it would be very hard to make the rings all in good shape, it is very simple making one half of each going across one way and finishing each one going back.



1. * Ch. 16, fasten with sc. back into 6th st; ch. 3, 12 tr. in loop, repeat from * 2 times; ch. 15, fasten back into 5th st, ch. 3; 24 tr. in loop, fasten with sc. in top of 3 ch.and around the connecting ch.forming a complete wheel.

2. * Ch. 11, fasten with sc. in top of last tr. in next wheel; make 12 tr. in loop forming another wheel, repeat from* until you have filled the next 2 wheels; ch. 13.



3. Fasten into 6th st. of wheel, ch. 3, 6 tr. in loop fasten to center of 11 ch. in last row; 6 tr. in loop, ch. 5, fasten with sc. to center st. of next wheel.

* Ch. 15, fasten in 6th st., ch. 3, 5 tr. in loop fasten to center of 11 ch., 6 tr. in loop; ch. 5, fasten in center of next wheel, repeat once from *; ch. 11, fasten in top of tr, in half wheel, 12 tr. in loop, ch. 11 repeat from * to last wheel, then fasten the 11 ch. in 13 ch. in last row, and begin next row with 15 ch.

Our next insertion is also made of No. 30 Coat's thread. Make a chain of 32 stitches,one tr. in eighth chain, 2 ch. 1 tr. third stitch of chain, repeat until you have 9 open squares; 5 ch. turn, one tr. in top of last tr. 2 ch. 1 tr. in tr. 2 ch. 1 tr. in tr. 2 ch. 1 tr. in tr. Now you have 4 open squares to make the heavy stitch; make tr. into tr., put thread over hook, with hook draw the thread over the two chain below, draw this loop up as long as the tr.; place the fore finger of right hand on the needle over the threads, repeat drawing these loops until you have done it 8 times keeping the loops up as long as the tr. then draw the thread through all the stitches, then one chain to hold them firm; 1 tr. in tr. below, then 1 tr. 2 ch. until across; 5 ch., turn. You can see by the illustration how the heavy stitches are put in between each block of heavy stitches; have 9 open squares and every time you turn make 5 ch. This pattern must be crocheted closely to look well.

You can see by our third illustration that the top is the same as the insertion and it takes one figure and one half of another to make a scallop. Begin the same as for insertion; make 3 rows, this will have one heavy stitch and 2 light stitches; then instead of 5 ch. make 12 ch. join back tightly to first ch. make 24 dc. on this loop, 2 ch. 1 tr. into first tr; go across this time making 3 of the heavy stitches; 5 ch. turn make across with 4 heavy stitches. Loop of 12 ch. on this 24 dc., 5 ch. across makes 3 heavy stitches, 5 ch. turn make across making 2 heavy stitches; 12 ch. 24 dc. 5 ch. turn make across making 1 heavy stitch; across making 9 open squares; 12 ch. 24 dc. 5 ch. across making 1 heavy stitch; across making 2 heavy stitches; before going any farther with this thread, don't break it but with another thread of same number, catch with your hook this thread into the middle of the last loop of 24 dc. make 12 ch. join into middle of next loop with a tight stitch 12 ch. into middle of next loop; 12 ch. join into middle of next loop. You cover these loops and make the three loops at the same time. On the first loop make 12 dc. 12 ch. join this ch. back into middle of first scallop you have just finished; cover this with 24 dc. then finish the scallop you left and make 12 more dc.; 12 dc. on next scallop; 12 ch. fasten back to the middle of the second scallop 12 dc. on this chain, 12 ch. fasten back 24 dc. on this; this is the last scallop on bottom, now finish the two sides of scallops left with 12 dc. on each; this brings the thread back just where you started with it; fasten and cut it; now you finish with the first thread making 1 tr. 1 ch. all the way around the scallop, next row 1 tr. 6 ch. catching the thread back into the chain to make a picot, then go across the upper part making 3 heavy stitches; this finishes the pattern.

Make a chain of 45 stitches turn one tr. back in 6 ch. 1 tr. in 3 ch. repeat to end of chain. You now have 15 open squares, this is the width and foundation of the trimming. 1st. row, 5 ch. 1 tr. in top, tr. in last row * 2 ch. tr. repeat until you have 7 open squares 2 tr. in square, 1 tr. in top of tr. 7 more open squares, 5 ch. turn.

2 Row, 6 open squares, 10 tr. 6 open squares.
3 " 5 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 5 open squraes.
4 " 4 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 4 open squares.
5 Row, 3 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 3 open squares.
6 Row 2 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 5 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 2 open squares.
7 Row 3 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 3 open squares.
8 Row 4 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 4 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 4 open squares.
9 Row 5 open squares, 7 tr. 2 ch. 7 tr. 5 open squares.
10 Row 6 open squares 10 tr. 6 open squares.
11 " 7 open squares 4 tr. 7 open squares.
This finishes the first figure.
12 Row 5 open squares 4 tr. 3 o. s. 4 tr. 5 o. s.
13 " 5 open squares 7 tr. 1 o. s. 7 tr. 5 o. s.
14 " the same as 13th.
15 " 2 o. s. 10 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 10 tr. 2 o. s.
16 Row 3 o. s. 9 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 9 tr. 3 o. s.
17 " 6 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 6 o. s.
18 " 3 o. s. 10 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 10 tr. 3 o. s.
19 " 3 o. s. 10 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 4 tr. 1 o. s. 10 tr. 2 o. s.
20 Row 5 o. s. 7 tr. 1 o. s. 7 tr. 5 o. s.
21 " same as 20th.
22 " 5 o. s, 4 tr. 3 o. s. 4 tr. 5 o. s.

This finishes the second figure; you will see in the last is used o. s. for open square: they are all made with treble and 2 chain. These two figures are used alternately; be sure to keep the trimming the same width, making 5 ch. every time you turn so the squares will be even.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Our Spring overhauling of stock shows a few hundred cards of Darning Cotton on hand, 48 yds. on each card, several shades: tan, black, white, drab, etc. One card, 3c.; four cards, 10c., all mailing charges paid by us. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES
Female Troubles, Stooping Posture, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset.

We have over 15,000 letters like this:
Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.
Your Brace did all you said about it and more for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, lung disease, stomach and other ills to which women are subject. MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain sealed envelope. Address
The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27, Salina, Kansas.
Every woman should have this Brace.

TRIAL Treatment FREE Mrs. May Hawkins, L.U. 181, Grand Rapids, Mich.

DRINK HABIT cured secretly.
Write for booklet on the Drink Habit and its POSITIVE CURE.

SEND US ONE DOLLAR Cut this ad. out and send to us with $1.00, and we will send you this NEW IMPROVED ACME QUEEN PARLOR ORGAN, by freight C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest freight depot, and if you find it exactly as represented, equal to organs that retail at $75.00 to $100.00, the greatest value you ever saw and far better than organs advertised by others at more money, pay the freight agent OUR SPECIAL 90 DAYS' OFFER PRICE, $31.75, less the $1.00, or $30.75, and freight charges.

$31.75 IS OUR SPECIAL 90 DAYS' PRICE Less than one-half the price charged by others. SUCH AN OFFER WAS NEVER MADE BEFORE.

THE ACME QUEEN is one of the most DURABLE AND SWEET-EST TONED instruments ever made. From the illustration shown, which is engraved direct from a photograph, you can form some idea of its beautiful appearance. Made from solid quarter sawed oak, antique finish, handsomely decorated and ornamented, LATEST 1899 STYLE. THE ACME QUEEN is 6 feet 5 inches high, 42 inches long, 23 inches wide and weighs 350 pounds. Contains 5 octaves, 11 stops, as follows: Diapason, Principal, Dulciana, Melodia, Celeste, Cremona, Bass Coupler, Treble Coupler, Diapason Forte and Vox Humana; 2 Octave Couplers, 1 Tone Swell, 1 Grand Organ Swell, 4 Sets Orchestral Toned Resonatory Pipe Quality Reeds, 1 Set of 37 Pure Sweet Melodia Reeds, 1 Set of 37 Charmingly Brilliant Celeste Reeds, 1 Set of 24 Rich Mellow Smooth Diapason Reeds, 1 Set of 24 Pleasing Soft Melodious Principal Reeds. THE ACME QUEEN action consist of the celebrated Newell Reeds, which are only used in the highest grade instruments; fitted with Hammond Couplers and Vox Humana, also best Doige felts, leathers, etc., bellows of the best rubber cloth, 3-ply bellows stock and finest leather in valves. THE ACME QUEEN is furnished with a 10x14 beveled plate French mirror, nickel plated pedal frames, and every modern improvement. We furnish free a handsome organ stool and the best organ instruction book published.

GUARANTEED 25 YEARS. With every ACME QUEEN ORGAN we issue a written binding 25-year guarantee, by the terms and conditions of which if any part gives out we repair it free of charge. Try it one month and we will refund your money if you are not perfectly satisfied. 500 of these organs will be sold at $31.75. ORDER AT ONCE. DON'T DELAY.

OUR RELIABILITY IS ESTABLISHED If you have not dealt with us, ask your neighbor about us, write the publisher of this paper or Metropolitan National Bank, or Corn Exchange National Bank, Chicago; or German Exchange Bank, New York; or any railroad or express company in Chicago. We have a capital of over $700,000.00, occupy entire one of the largest business blocks in Chicago, and employ nearly 2,000 people in our own building. WE SELL ORGANS AT $22.00 and up; PIANOS, $115.00 and up; also everything in musical instruments at lowest wholesale prices. Write for free special organ, piano and musical instrument catalogue.
Address,
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.), Fulton, Desplaines and Wayman Streets, CHICAGO, ILL.
(Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

FREE Clairvoyance. If sick or ailing send now, name, age, sex, lock of hair and 2 stamps to DR. D. Hinkly, X10, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FREE CURE for ASTHMA
Trial Package of three special medicines Free. DR. W. K. WALRATH, Box 505 ADAMS, N. Y.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

REMNANTS OF SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

We have purchased, at recent wholesale auction sales several large lots of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure splendid bargains. These remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the finest quality of Ribbons in the market, of different widths, in a variety of fashionable shades; in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bonnet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bows, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Satin Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of our lady friends.

We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors. No remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3044, New York City, N. Y.

Free Send no money

EARN THIS HANDSOME BROCADED DRESS SKIRT.

This is a very stylish and handsome black skirt, with a full 3 & three quarter yard sweep. It is made in a handsome variety of all over large leaf brocade woven BRILLIANTINE; a durable and stylish material for dress skirts lined with a patent black rustling cloth. 7 in. interlined bias velveteen bound bottom. We will send this to any one for selling 2 doz. sets of our Ladies Gold plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set, (each pin set with a magnificent Rhinestone Jewel.) Send us no money. Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you this beautiful DRESS SKIRT for your trouble. We trust you & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. We'll send you a SOLID GOLD plated Jewel set Ring, free, if you write to-day.
The Maxwell Co., Dept. 121 St. Louis, Mo.

FOR 10 CENTS to introduce our catalogue—3 Club ties or 3 Shield Bows or 2 Band Bows, for ladies or gentlemen, or one ladies' stock collar. Finest patterns. Latest styles. M. Philipp Neckwear Mfg. Co., 33 Lispenard St., New York.

OPIUM and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Write DR. J. L. STEPHENS CO., Dept. C1, Lebanon, Ohio.

THE HAIR TELLS ALL

If Sick send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex and 4 cts. in stamps and I will diagnose your case FREE and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

A Hot Weather Comfort.
THE NEW
PETITE LAMP CHIMNEY STOVE.

IN USE ON THE CHIMNEY.

THIS is a very useful device (made of brass) for adjusting on the top of an ordinary lamp chimney, for cooking purposes. It is readily adjustable to any chimney. It will readily support any ordinary metal plate, or pan, or dipper, in which to do the boiling or cooking. For many purposes this Lamp Chimney Stove is far superior and a thousand times more convenient than an expensive oil or vapor stove. For the Dining Room in Summer, shops and offices, it is unsurpassed. For the Sick Room it is indispensable.

And Only Look at the Price,

10 cents each, carefully boxed, and postage paid. Or 20 for a dollar, which is just 5 cents each, and delivered free, either by mail or express, to agents. You only need sell four out of your 20, to get your money back. All you sell of the other sixteen, will be clear gain to you. You cannot do better than invest a dollar.

☞ No such useful article was ever offered before at such a ridiculously low price.

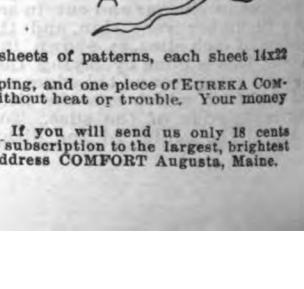
This paper 3 months on trial and sample stove only 10 cents.

Club Offer. Send us a club of two yearly subscribers at 25c. each and we will give you two stoves as a premium.
SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

The Victoria Stamping Outfit.



More Artistic Patterns for the Money than were ever Dreamed of.

It has been our special pleasure to select designs for this collection for our artistic friends. Illustration A shows a floral and ribbon design which can be used for almost anything the dainty worker has use for. The flowers are best executed in Kensington stitch, the ribbon may be either simple outline, outline filled in with feather, herring-bone or cat stitch, or, what is still more effective, the long and short stitch. Illustration B is a dainty little design for monograms or what-nots.

Note the sizes of the designs named below and the number of sheets of patterns in this outfit.

1 Very Handsome Centerpiece of Carnations, 17x17 inches.
1 Pretty Corner-piece of Pansies and Leaves, 6x6 inches.
1 Design of Strawberries and Leaves for Doily, 5½x6½.
1 Design Orchid and Leaves for Scarf Corner, 6½x10.
1 Clover Design for Doily.
1 Design for Baby's Bib, Rosebuds and word Baby, 4x4.
1 Design for Cheese Doily, 3½x6.
1 Design for Souvenir Case with Motto, 5½x6.
1 Design for Shoe Bag, 5x10.
1 Design for Shaving Bag with Motto, 6x6.
4 Fruit Designs for Fruit Plate Doilies, 3½x3½.
1 Design for Carving Cloth, 11½x15½.
1 Design for Tumbler Doily, 4x4.
1 Pretty Corner Design for Tea-cloth, Jewel Work, 9x9.
1 Design for Table Doily, 8x8.
1 Design for Water Bottle Doily, 6x6.
4 Designs for Butter Plate Doilies, 3½x3½.
1 Cut Work Doily Design, 5x5.
1 Very Pretty Design for Corner, Battenberg Work, 7x7.
1 Design for Border with Corner, 5x16.
1 Floral Corner Geranium, 6½x6½.
1 Design Water Lily for Doily.
1 Floral Wreath for Monogram or Handkerchief Case, 5x5.
1 Design for Tray Cloth, 7x15.
1 Design for Centerpiece, Maidenhair Ferns, 9½x9½.
1 Rosebud Doily, 7½x7½.
1 Alphabet for Towels or Table Linen, 1½ inches high.
1 Design Centerpiece, Pansies, 10x10.
1 Pansy Doily, 6½x6½.
1 Alphabet for Handkerchiefs or Fine Linen, 1 inch high.
1 Border for Flannel Work, 3½ inches wide, and 29 other designs for embroidery of every description too numerous to mention here.

The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 9 sheets of patterns, each sheet 14x22 inches in size. As good as can be made.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA COMPOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

A SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER TO EVERY LADY. If you will send us only 18 cents we will send you one Outfit, all charges paid and make you a trial subscription to the largest, brightest and best illustrated monthly paper for 3 months, postpaid. Address COMFORT Augusta, Maine.

TALKS WITH GIRLS.

CONDUCTED BY
COUSIN MARION.

With a June greeting, my dears, and a cluster of rare days to give to each of you as a welcome in the first month of summer, let us sit down together under the roses and talk over our letters of mutual interest.

The first is from Ethelyn, Rolla Mo., and she asks for Cousin Marion's address. For her benefit, as well as others, let me say it is "In care of COMFORT" but Cousin Marion cannot answer personal letters unless upon some urgent matter that cannot be otherwise answered. This will explain why a good many personal letters from the cousins have never been answered.

J. F. T., Griffin, Mo.—We cannot give the address.

B. Sun, Hallock, Mo.—The lady does not always give the man an engagement ring, but it is often done, and is quite appropriate. Of course, it is nothing so elaborate as the one she receives from him.

Ignorance, Fairburn, Ga.—Minutes of a Sunday School should be written as minutes of any meeting, though they would necessarily be briefer, as the proceedings are not those of ordinary organized meetings. You will have to get details from some one on the spot. (2) "Not at all," or "It is not necessary" make very good replies to the usual "I beg your pardon." Use your own judgment.

Lygia, Neenah, Wis.—A man who says he loves a girl and yet will not call on her because he does not like the lady she is visiting, is a very sorry sort of lover, and you ought to drop him quick and hard.

Sunflower, Albert, Kans.—Merely bow your acknowledgment to the thanks of a man who has done you a favor if you haven't any words handy. There is no rule for this sort of thing, and "woman's wit" should tell you the right thing to say at the right time. (2) Exercise, sunshine and careful dieting are the best cure for oily skins and their attendant evils.

Marguerite, Springfield, Ills.—You did quite right in not inviting your escort in after 10.30 P. M. (2) It is quite correct for the man to ask if he may call. (3) The young man is just a little "fresh" possibly, but he did not exceed the limit in asking you, in your place of business, if he might go with you to the entertainment.

Meta, Portland, Ore.—There is no rule as to who begins conversation after an introduction. (2) Why should a young lady hold her "beau's hat during church?" Is she afraid some good deacon will steal it? (3) It is very common, very vulgar, almost disreputable, to bow to a man on the street whom you do not know. (4) What kind of cards do you mean?

Glory, New Haven, Conn.—Don't remember anything about your other letter. (2) A man has no right to pay your car fare when he happens to meet you in a car, but if he insists, you will have to submit. Car fare etiquette is rather vague as yet. (3) Accept the invitation to dinner if you want to go with the man. (4) Don't stop to talk with a man on the street, but ask him to walk along with you. If he is a gentleman he can't refuse. (5) I am surprised to learn that you know so little about kissing the young men. (6) Do not the best class of New Haven girls flirt with college boys? If they do, then you may.

D. C., Lacona, N. Y.—I cannot give you the addresses of the cousins.

Ernestine, Meeker, Minn.—Have nothing to do with matrimonial advertisements. (2) By all means accept the young man who is making love to another girl if you want to be unhappy ever after.

May, Vinton, La.—You had better let somebody fix your hair who knows how to do it right. Bay rum is not hurtful to the skin. It smarts a little, but that is all.

Dish Washer, Cascade, Ia.—The best thing a fifteen year old can do is to think about something more improving to her mind, her manners and her spelling, than "beaus" are.

Virgie, Higginsport, O.—Hope you will have a lovely birthday and a whole lot more of them. It's nice to be born in June, isn't it?

Rose Bud, Ponca, Neb.—Of course, don't notice the strange man who speaks to you. (2) Don't know anything about winks, except that they are disreputable. (3) "Good night" is usually the best thing to say at the gate when a "fellow" takes you home. (4) Two young ladies may go to a dance at a hall, unaccompanied except by a chaperone. Dance only with men you know.

Rose Leaf, Bellville, Texas.—There is nothing for you to do with the young man who made love to you and married another girl, except to smile and show him you are glad you are not his wife.

A. L. A., Mt. Vernon, Texas—A napkin may be put beside a plate or under it, or in front of it, or fancifully folded in a glass before. (2) You seem to be a very warm and true-hearted girl, of good principles, good sense and good will. Under the circumstances I think you could put the other man out of your life, and in your devotion to the man who wants to marry you, find that after all life was well worth the living. Try it and see if I am not right.

Myrtle, Rosewell, Ida.—Write to Mr. J. Litt, Opera House, St. Paul, Minn., for the information you seek.

Generosity, Ben Hur, Cal.—It may be right enough, but it is not expedient for a woman of thirty to marry a boy of nineteen. Your other questions indicate plainly that you should wait at least five years, and then you will have learned their answers by experience.

Blue, Goliad, Texas.—Tell the man you can not marry him, if you do not love him. (2) You may write to one man while accepting the general attentions of others.

Scared Rabbit, Augusta, Ga.—There's nothing on earth the matter except a silly notion you have taken. Throw it aside and have a good time with your young friends, boys and girls. The more you think about it the worse it will become, so forget it.

Dark Eyes, Kalispel, Mon.—You can only learn where manuscript may be sold by sending it to editors. (2) There is no recipe for rosy cheeks. Consult your family physician.

Mattie, Norton, Kan.—School girls should not be writing to the young men. Nor should sixteen-year-old girls be receiving presents from them.

Amy, Farm Ridge, Ills.—You have the right to the first dance with your escort, but you should relinquish your right to the young lady who is your guest. (2) The lady should be helped out of the rig before the horse is tied. (2) Yes, it is proper to ask the young man to call.

Blue Eyes, High Point, N. C.—Settle it as you will between yourselves, but do not take the man you do not love. Return him his presents, of course.

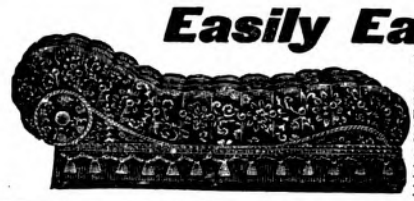
Estelle, Cheyenne, Wyo.—Put it all out of your mind, I won't say your heart—firmly and irrevocably. It may be very hard, but it is your only salvation, and his. If he is as honest as you are, and as good, he will do as you do, and your combined strength will conquer in the end.

Golden, Oakland, Cal.—Ease and grace of expression is a born faculty, and cannot be acquired. Difficulties may be conquered to some extent by systematic training. (2) Your vocabulary may be enlarged by reading, and by carefully looking up the derivation and meaning of all words you do not know. It is a good thing to read, say a page of a standard author, and then rewrite it from memory, noting the difference in the words used by him and by yourself. Ask the principal of your public schools what is the best book on composition.

Miss Jane, Mico, Miss.—Of course, ask your beau to go walking when the others go. Why not? (2) It is not right for a girl to see a man, at any place, to whom her parents object.

I will say to J. H. C., who is not a cousin, that no man has a right to take his hat off to a lady on the street or elsewhere unless she has bowed or spoken to him. A man who does so should be chased out of town.

Now, dears, I have answered all your questions, and I am glad to notice that you do not ask so many at once as you did. May the first month of summer be all roses to you, and may we meet again in July. By by.



COUSIN MARION.

A POCKET MIRROR.

See yourself as others see you. One of our large imitation aluminum covered pocket mirrors for the boys and girls at school, for the teachers, for men in the woods. Just 5 cents for one with our latest premium supplement.

Golden Moments, Augusta, Maine.

Easily Earned. No Money Required. Samples FREE.

You can earn this splendid Couch, 76x28 in., extra large, upholstered in three colored figured velours, tapestry or corduroy, best steel springs, deeply tufted, very heavy fringe, worth $13 in any retail store, by selling only $13 worth of our High Grade Toilet Soaps or Perfumes among your friends and neighbors at 25c per box or bottle. We trust you for the Soap and Perfume. Our handsome illustrated Catalogue showing 150 other valuable premiums, including Bicycles, Watches, Cameras, Guitars, Rockers, Silverware, Tea Sets, etc. Sent Free

Don't miss this wonderful offer. Write today.

BULLOCK, WARD & CO., Dept. 28 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

X-RAY Latest pocket curiosity. See your fellow, best girl or any object through clothing, wood or stone. 35c each. R. E. X-Ray Co., Philadn., Pa.

SPANISH NEEDLES, GOLD-ometers, etc., for gold hunters and treasure seekers. Latest improved. Circulars 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

A BIG OFFER 50c. MADE IN A MINUTE! If you will hang up in the P. O., or some public place, the two show bills that we send, we will give you a 50c. cert., and send it in advance with samples and bills. This will trouble you about one minute, and then if you want to work on salary at $50 or $100 per month, let us know. We pay in advance. GIANT OXIE CO., 125 Willow St., Augusta, Me.

DO NOT SEND US ANY MONEY.

LOOK FREE This Magnificent Solid Silver plated Bracelet. Don't send any money—just name and address. We will send postpaid 10 Large Handsome Stamped Linen Doilies; different designs. Sell them among your friends at 10 cts. each. Send us the $1 and we will send by return mail the magnificent Bracelet. Address Empire Jewelry Co., C, Lock Box 857, Corning, N. Y.

Sent Free to Everybody!

The COMFORT HAMMOCK.

As a Reward for a little friendly service.

BOYS AND GIRLS:

Here's a happy hint for Summer,
And verily it is a "hummer."

We have 17,300 strong, perfect, Oriental, Hammocks, which for the next sixty days we shall place on the Free List, upon the conditions specified below. This will enable every one who is willing to render us a little service, to secure one absolutely free. These Hammocks are over 8 feet long, every one is tested to carry 300 lb. dead weight, is supplied with strong, white metal rings at the ends.

No home, picnic, camping, or outing party is complete without one. To recline in one of these health-giving articles in some cool nook after the day's work is done, or on a Sunday afternoon, is to repose in the lap of luxury.

Now to every one who will get up a club of 4 subscribers for this paper at the special trial price, 25 cents per year each in advance, we will send one of these Hammocks FREE, we paying all express and mailing charges. By showing a copy of this great paper to your neighbors, friends and acquaintances, you can easily get up a club in one evening; for with its many improvemens and new original copyrighted departments, now needs only to be seen to be appreciated. To those who do not care to go to the trouble of getting a club we will send our paper for one year, together with one of these Hammocks (all express and mailing charges paid by us) upon receipt of 97 cts. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

GUARANTEED BICYCLES

$13.75 and $15.75

WRITE FOR FREE BICYCLE CATALOGUE.

The above illustration, engraved from a photograph, shows the new 1900 model, flush joint Acme King Bicycle. Every bicycle will be exactly as shown in illustration, with the exception of the sprockets, which come in a variety of patterns, and the handle bars, which are furnished in either up or down turned, as desired. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

SEND NO MONEY CUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT OUT AND SEND TO US, mention Special Offer No. 169H1, say whether you wish gents' or ladies' bicycle, whether 22 or 24-inch frame, and we will send you this the highest grade 1900 model Acme King or Acme Queen Bicycle by freight or express, C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it thoroughly at your nearest railroad station, call in any bicycle expert to examine it and if you find it exactly as represented, perfectly satisfactory, pronounced by everyone a strictly high grade 1900 model wheel, the greatest bicycle bargain ever offered, the equal of any bicycle made, regardless of price; if you are convinced that you are saving from $20.00 to $30.00 and getting such a bicycle as you could not get elsewhere at anything like the price, PAY YOUR RAILROAD AGENT OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE, $15.75 and freight or express charges, which average from 50 to 75 cents for each 500 miles.

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL.

After you pay the railroad agent our special offer price of $15.75, give the bicycle ten days' trial, during which time compare it with other bicycles that sell at double the price, and if you are not still satisfied that you have saved $20.00 to $30.00 and that you have the greatest bicycle value ever furnished, you can return the bicycle to us, at our expense of freight or express charges both ways, and we will immediately return your money.

OUR CHALLENGE OFFER. ORDER THIS, OUR 1900 MODEL ACME KING OR QUEEN BICYCLE at $15.75 and you can then order a bicycle from any other house or houses advertised in this or any other paper, let the different bicycles come to your railroad station to be examined, examine and compare them side by side, and if our bicycle is not pronounced by everyone at least $10.00 cheaper in price and $20.00 better in quality, you can return it to us at our expense.

OUR BINDING GUARANTEE WITH EVERY ACME KING AND ACME QUEEN BICYCLE, we furnish a written, binding, one-year guarantee, which accompanies every bicycle, by the terms and conditions of which if any piece or part gives out within one year, by reason of defect in material or workmanship, we will replace or repair it free of charge.

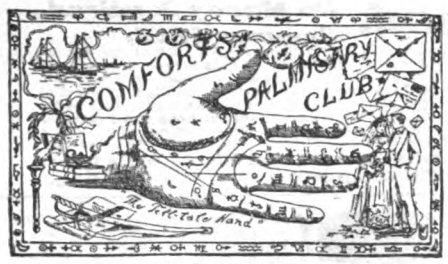
THE ACME KING AND ACME QUEEN BICYCLES are made by one of the best bicycle makers in America. They are the equal of bicycles that retail everywhere at $50.00. They are made from the best material that money can buy, made on the very latest lines, newest models for 1900; they embody every new improved and up-to-date feature of every other high grade bicycle made, with the defects of none. They have the latest one-piece hanger, flush at every joint, flush cluster seat post, expander seat post and handle bar, 22 or 24-inch frame made from 1⅛-inch cold drawn seamless tubing, connections are all the finest steel forgings and stampings, handsomely finished; has the very latest arched crown, handsomely curved, shaped and finished; handsome tapering fork. They have the very latest diamond frame in the gents' style, the very latest handsomely curved drop frame in the ladies'. The wheels are the highest grade 28-inch, fitted with genuine Hercules spokes, full finished. The very best air seasoned rock elm rims are used, very best large size hubs, made from bar steel, heavily nickel plated. The cranks are made from the finest forgings, the bearings from tool steel hardened in oil, accurately trued to gauge. Sprockets are made from selected forgings, heavily nickel plated and they come in a variety of handsome patterns. We furnish with these bicycles at our special $15.75 price our own special high grade, season guaranteed, Seroco single tube tires, a pair of the highest grade tires made, complete with tire repair outfit. The bicycle is fully equipped with high grade chain, high grade ball-bearing adjustable pedals, full padded saddle, up or down-turned handle bars, tool bag, pump, wrench, oiler and tire repair kit. The bicycles are beautifully finished, handsomely decorated and ornamented. They come regularly in plain solid black, highly enameled, which makes by far the richest appearing wheel. We also furnish them in green or maroon with striped line ornamentation when so desired. All usual parts are heavily nickel plated on copper.

AT $8.00 TO $12.00 we sell cheap, unguaranteed wheels, the equal of those widely advertised in this and other papers and in catalogues, at $14.00 to $20.00, by Chicago houses and others. At $13.75 we furnish our Acme Jewel Bicycle in the latest model for 1900, gent's or ladies' size, with complete equipment, all covered by a written one-year binding guarantee, the equal of bicycles that retail everywhere at $25.00 to $35.00.

OUR SPECIAL FREE BICYCLE CATALOGUE COVERS OUR ENTIRE LINE OF BICYCLES AND BICYCLE SUPPLIES AND ALL AT THE LOWEST PRICES EVER QUOTED.

DON'T DELAY YOUR ORDER A DAY OUR SPECIAL $15.75 PRICE WILL HOLD GOOD ONLY UNTIL OUR PRESENT STOCK IS DISPOSED OF. Address,

YOU CAN MAKE $500.00 BETWEEN NOW AND FALL TAKING ORDERS FOR our bicycles at a profit of $5.00 to $10.00 on a wheel. Order an Acme King or Queen at $15.75 and you can sell it the day you get it at $20.00 to $25.00, continue the work during the season and you can sell from 50 to 100 bicycles, underselling every dealer in your section, and make for yourself at least $500.00.



$15.75 IF YOU ORDER IMMEDIATELY. WE CAN ONLY GUARANTEE OUR SPECIAL $15.75 PRICE ON OUR HIGH GRADE, 1900 MODEL, flush joint Acme King and Acme Queen bicycles until our present stock is exhausted. If you wish to take advantage of our special offer price and get a bicycle at $15.75, the equal of bicycles that sell everywhere at $40.00 to $50.00, you should place your order immediately.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS ABOUT OUR BICYCLES. Last year we sold nearly 50,000 bicycles. At least a number of our wheels went into every community. Some of your neighbors are riding our bicycles. Ask them if they found the bicycle they bought of us last year perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented and much cheaper than they could buy elsewhere. Consider that our wheels have been greatly improved, and our prices have been greatly reduced. If you have any doubt about our ability to furnish a better wheel for less money than you can buy from any other house in Chicago or elsewhere, write to some friend in Chicago, and ask them to come and examine our wheels and then examine the wheels offered by other houses, and if they don't write you that you can save from $5.00 to $20.00 on a bicycle by buying from us, we will not expect your order.

AS TO OUR RELIABILITY we refer by special permission to the National City Bank and German Exchange Bank of New York, the Metropolitan National Bank or Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago, or to any railroad company, express company, business house or resident of Chicago and customers in every town in every state in the union.

DO NOT order our Acme King or Queen at our special $15.75 price unless you expect to accept it and pay the railroad agent our special offer price of $15.75 and freight charges when received, if you find it exactly as represented, perfectly satisfactory, and a far better wheel for the money than you could possibly buy elsewhere. We are anxious to receive your order; we know we can save you money, but we only want to hear from those who are ordering in good faith, who mean business, and who understand that $15.75 and freight charges must be paid to the railroad agent before they can receive the bicycle. The railroad agent will not deliver this bicycle to you until you have paid him our special offer price, $15.75, and express or freight charges, but we will return your $15.75, and all railroad charges, if, at any time, within ten days, you become dissatisfied for any cause whatsoever and return the bicycle to us.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (INC.) CHEAPEST SUPPLY HOUSE ON EARTH. CHICAGO, ILL.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to COMFORT PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unle-s the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

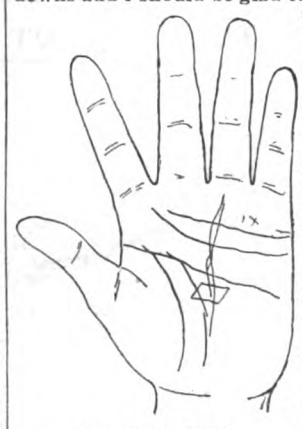
Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

SOME of the hands which I am to read this month are excellently taken, while others are so dim that it is almost impossible to read them. The first two were sent both as impressions and photographs so that one helps the other.

"Charlotte Elizabeth" has a good hand, although it indicates a person of nervous temperament and sensitive disposition. The life line is broken at about the age of thirty-five in the right hand, but in the left it is much better. If she is a left-handed person, no significance would attach to this, but if not, she will have either a severe illness or some accident at the age indicated by the break, with a decided change of life thereafter either in location or in purpose. If she has an illness, she will recover from it and everything will go on much better afterwards. She is a person who believes in herself and her own capabilities and has the courage to carry out whatever she thinks is for the best, even in the face of opposition. She will have more or less opposition from friends in whatever she undertakes, especially during the first half of her life, but she will not allow this to interfere with her progress and will carry out whatever she undertakes. She has a great love for the beautiful and has some talent for art or music, although I do not think she has developed these as much as she might. She would do well as a painter or photographer, either. She loves all bright, sunny and pleasant things, but she would set her standard high and will often be disappointed in her friends. She would be inclined a little toward extravagance, would be fond of dress and luxury. The marriage lines are not well marked on either hand and I can distinguish but one; this will take place as late as thirty-five, I should say and perhaps will have something to do with her change of life at that time. The marriage will not be of very long duration. She is fond of home and will never travel very extensively, being so domestic in her tastes. An island appearing on the Mount of Apollo is not a good sign, indicating danger of some loss of reputation or popularity. At the same time, it may mean only hereditary weakness of some sort. "Charlotte Elizabeth" would have excellent success on the stage if she were to adopt that vocation, as she has many gifts which would make her successful there.



CHARLOTTE ELIZABETH.

"Catherine" has very different hands from the ones just read, the lines being more deeply marked and indicating quite a different character. The life line is too deeply marked to indicate perfect health, although strengthened by an inner line along its worst part. "Catherine" will marry not far from the age of thirty and will outlive her husband, in fact, she will live to be seventy or more, as will "Charlotte Elizabeth." "Catherine's" hand is exceedingly pliable, indicating an artistic nature and showing a great deal of tact. There is an enormous star in the middle of the hand on the head line, indicating some strange good luck in middle life and some strange fatality. There is danger, however, that she will become the plaything of the man she loves, although it is also an indication that she is remarkably true and trustworthy and that she will become worth quite a fortune sometime by her own merits and exertions. She, too, has all the signs which would indicate great success on the stage, although she lacks the perseverance that would take her to the degree of success she might otherwise win. She will travel in whatever walk of life is hers and her marriage will be a happy one. She is very ambitious, but self controlled and good tempered. She has a great deal of tact in dealing with others and a peculiar faculty of winning friends. On the whole she has an excellent hand, full of promise and with some remarkable lines.

CATHERINE.

"C. O. Debarred" sends smoked paper impressions which have not been treated with fixative and are therefore very badly blurred, but I will do the best I can with them and if they are not satisfactory she must have other impressions taken correctly. The hand seems to be a strong one in many particulars denoting a good constitution and long life. There is a line of Mars inside of the life line denoting a great deal of combativeness and ability to make her own way in the world. This line repairs and mitigates the evil effects that may be indicated on the life line and gives to its possessor great success in arms if the subject be a male and great ability to cope with the world if she be a woman. One palmist says that there is always a love affair at the age which it begins. I cannot quite see on this impression where it begins, but I should judge that there was a love affair where it started and one that did not turn out well. I think there are two marriages indicated, one not far from twenty and one about fifteen years later. There will be some very great protection from injury between twenty and twenty-five and from that will come influences that last throughout the life. This is a strange life with many ups and downs and I should be glad to see the hand itself instead of the impression of it, if it were possible.

C. O. DEBARRED.

"Zella" wants to know what a conjunction of the head and life lines denotes. If they are united at the top with many fine lines intermingling they denote a lack of self confidence and that the subject has been very much under the influence of other people during youth; they also denote ill health during the time which the life line is united to the head. If on the contrary the head line sweeps down the hand and unites with the life line at the lower end it is a very bad sign indicating disgrace and suicide. This conjunction however is very rare.

Another wants to know what it means if the head line is broken under the Mount of the Sun in the left hand and not in the right. Nothing. In order to have it signify anything this sign must appear in both hands when it would mean that some serious trouble connected with the affections occurred with reference to a person of the Apollo type, or it might mean death by heart disease at the age indicated. Two marriage lines of equal length and shape would indicate two marriages when they appear under the fourth finger and are corroborated by marriage lines on the fate or life line, otherwise they mean engagements only. The fate line rising on the Mount of Venus and descending to the head line would come through the person's own efforts aided if by anyone, by some woman. Stopping at the line of head it means that misfortune will arise either from some bad calculation, or from some brain trouble.

The fate line is one of the most important lines to read in palmistry as it affects every other line and mount on the hand and is also affected by them. If it is absent from a hand it indicates an insignificant life.

Digitus

Book of Gold Mines Free!

A prominent Denver publisher who is familiar with every phase of life in the Cripple Creek (Colorado) gold camp has just published a volume which he styles "Cripple Creek Illustrated." The book contains nearly 100 views of the big gold mines of the camp, a correct map, and in fact a world of information. Full reports of ore mined, dividends paid, etc. The edition cost $1000 to issue. To introduce his big illustrated weekly family paper (founded 1890) he will send you a copy of "Cripple Creek Illustrated" and his paper 13 weeks on trial for 25c. Clubs of 5, $1. Stamps taken. Latest mining news and western stories. Mention our paper when you write and address, Illustrated Weekly, Denver, Colorado.

Women who suffer with ailments peculiar to their sex, from stooping shoulders, weak back and general ill-health or lack of strength and vitality, will be interested in the advertisement of The Natural Body Brace in another column. Husbands and friends of such women will be interested in it also. The company's high standing and pleasing business methods are vouched for by the leading banks throughout the country and by many thousands of customers. Satisfaction is guaranteed by the fact that the full purchase price is refunded to anyone not pleased after 30 days' trial. The Brace is comfortable and invigorating. It brings light step, graceful figure, and good health. It enables a weakly woman to walk, work, ride a wheel or play tennis or golf, with ease and pleasure. It is free from all the objectionable features of other supports and treatments. It does away with pessaries. We suggest that you read the advertisement and write at once for free book and full particulars.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

PILES ELECTROBOLE gives instant relief. Final cure in a few days, never returns; no purge, no salve, no knife. Remedy mailed Free. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 695, New York, N. Y.

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE! Control whom you wish. Make others love and obey you. Cures diseases. Makes fun by the hour. New and instantaneous method. Quick as a flash. YOU can learn it. Success sure. Mammoth illustrated LESSON and full particulars FREE! Send address at once. Prof. L. A. Harraden, - JACKSON, MICH.

SEND NO MONEY

If you live within 1,000 miles of Chicago, if over 1,000 miles, SEND ONE DOLLAR. Cut this Ad. out and send to us, and we will send you by freight, C. O. D., subject to examination, this GENUINE WAVERLY, new pattern, handsomely colored, decorated 200-piece Semi-Porcelain Dinner Set. YOU CAN EXAMINE IT at your freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, and THE GREATEST VALUE YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay the freight agent our Special Offer Price.... $6.45 and freight charges (or $5.45 and freight charges if $1.00 is sent with order.) THIS SET CONSISTS OF 100 PIECES of Genuine Waverly Semi-Porcelain White China Ware with full color decoration of handsome floral design in green, blue or brown, as desired. Very latest shape, three fired, will not craze, chip, crack or wear, hard as flint, practically indestructible. The following 100 Full-Size Pieces Complete Set: 12 soup plates, 12 5-inch plates, 12 7-inch plates, 12 coffee cups, 12 saucers, 12 individual butter dishes, 12 4-inch fruit plates, 1 8-inch platter, 1 12-inch platter, 1 7-inch baker, 1 8-inch baker, 1 8-inch covered dish, 1 pickle dish, 1 sauce boat, 1 covered butter dish, 1 sugar bowl, 1 extra bowl, 1 large pitcher, 1 medium pitcher. Freight will be about 50 cents for each 500 miles. YOU WILL SAVE ONE-HALF IN PRICE. ORDER NOW. DON'T DELAY. WRITE FOR FREE CROCKERY CATALOGUE. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (INC.), CHICAGO. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich. EASTERN AGENCY 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio.

WED 5,000 WANT TO MARRY; many rich. LISTS and PICTURES FREE. WALTER McDONNELL, C 21, Chicago, Ill. WISELY

WE are giving away Silk Waists for a little work. Address, NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., New Haven, Conn.

ADDRESS The National Supply Co., Detroit, Mich., for their liberal offer to Boys and Girls.

$25 mail course in magnetic healing, hypnotism, &c. Free. Pay after learning. Empire College, St. Louis, Mo.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED Many rich. Big lists with pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

Get Married 8,000 Ladies are VERY ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, Box 508, AUSTIN, ILLS.

MORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Painless, permanent Home Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

Solid GOLD OR SILVER plated Bracelet sent free to LADIES GOLD plated Dress with an exquisite jewel.) Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postmoney & we will send you the fully engraved & the lock opens trust you & will take back all paid. When sold, send us the to-day. The MAXWELL CO. Bracelet. The chain is beautiful with a dainty little key. We anyone for selling 6 sets of our Pins for 25c. a set; (each pin set the pins you cannot sell. Write DEPT. 535 St. Louis, Mo

HAIR LIKE THIS

We will forward FREE To any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address Lorrimer & Co., 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

Those suffering from Leucorrhœa, Irregularities of the Monthly Period, Change of Life or any of the diseases common to women, have at last a positive cure for their ailment. One Full Treatment Absolutely FREE to patients. Woman's Guide to Beauty and Health, a handsome book, beautifully illustrated, which should be in the hands of every woman in the land, sent free of charge, by addressing FALLOPIA LYNN CO., Dept. 37, St. Louis, Mo.

FREE

DO YOU WANT A WATCH that runs & keeps good time This watch has a SOLID GOLD laid case, handsome dial dust proof, adjusted to position, patent escapement, and highly finished. This is a remarkable watch. We guarantee it, and with proper care it should wear and give satisfaction for 20 years. It has the appearance of a SOLID GOLD one. The watch is accompanied with a 20 YEAR GUARANTEE. The cases are beautifully made by the most skilled workmen. The movement is an AMERICAN STYLE, expansion balance, quick train, and you can rely upon it that when you own one of these truly handsome watches, you will at all times have the correct time in your possession. Do you want a watch of this character? If so, now is your opportunity to secure one. WE GIVE IT FREE as a premium to anyone for selling 18 pieces of our handsome jewelry, for 10c. each (each set with an exquisite jewel). Regular price 25c. each. Simply send your name and address and we will send you the 18 pieces of jewelry postpaid. When sold send us the $1.80, and we will send you the handsome watch. We trust you and will take back all you cannot sell. We propose to give away these watches simply to advertise our business. No catch-words in this advertisement. We mean just what we say and allow a cash commission if preferred. You require no capital while working for us. Address, SAFE WATCH CO., P. O. Box 180, New York.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

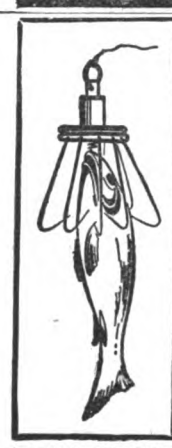
for selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc., etc., and will send you six of our 25c. Plasters which you are to sell and return the money ($1.50) to us and we will send you all charges paid, the elegant Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single value, $3.00; 1 Genuine, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; 1 Cake Perfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 654, Augusta, Maine.

Develops the Bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck, softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figures and matchless loveliness to VESTRO Harmless, permanent, NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivaled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photographs, testimonials, etc., sealed for 2-cent stamp. Write to-day. AURUM MEDICINE CO., Dept. A. S, 55 State St., CHICAGO.

62-PIECE DINNER SET FREE for selling 20 pounds of our QUEEN BAKING POWDER.

Our inducements are enormous. To every purchaser of a pound can of our Queen Baking Powder with a bottle of Vanilla Extract, box Wash Blue, package of Pepper, cake of Toilet Soap and a box of Polishall, we give free a beautiful Royal Blue Pitcher and 6 Glasses to match. To the lady who sells 20 pound cans Queen Baking Powder with the above mentioned articles we will make a present of a handsome 62-piece Dinner Set. We also have Coffee, Teas, Spice, Extracts and Baking Powder offers with valuable premiums to agents We also give cash commission. Write to-day for our illustrated plans and premiums, it will pay you. We pay freight and allow agents time to deliver goods before paying for them. AMERICAN SUPPLY CO., 119 and 121 Locust St., Dept. 57, St. Louis, Mo.



$1000 IN GOLD FREE

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

14	5	23	25	15	18	11
23	1	19	8	9	14	7	20	15	14
3	8	9	3	1	7	15

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

Each one of the above three lines of figures spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out the names of these three cities, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take an entire evening to solve the three names, but STICK TO IT AND TRY TO GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000. A copy of this high-class ONE DOLLAR MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to everyone answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer in immediately. Address ROBINSON PUBLISHING CO., 24 North William Street, New York City.

—THE— EAGLE CLAW,

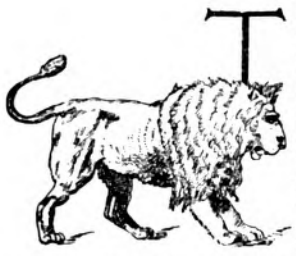
A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.



A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 12, Eagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

THE moon overtakes and passes the sun, forming what is called the "New Moon", at about nineteen minutes after eight o'clock in the evening of 26th of June this year. At the moment of meeting, the 20th degree of Capricorn will be rising and the 13th degree of Scorpio will be on the south meridian. Saturn will be nearly an hour above the eastern horizon in the ascending sign Capricorn, where he is in his dignity; Herschel will be in the 11th house in the moon's node and Jupiter will be in the 10th near the 11th cusp in his own sign; Mercury and Venus, nearly together, are just about to pass down in the west; the sun and moon have already set only a few degrees away from Neptune, and Mars is in the 4th house.

As in the figure for the summer quarter given last month, the benevolent Jupiter holds powerful sway in shaping conditions and events to the great good of our Nation and the prosperity and welfare of the whole people. In the language of the books "the ruled people shall continue to thrive and be fortunate and successful under his government" during the period of the lunation.

Saturn ruler of the Ascendant and rising indicates some marked improvement in real estate matters and particular activity in the building trades; fruitfulness of the earth and favor to farmers.

Mars in the 4th, however, threatens some harm around the 8th and the middle ten days in July. It will be reasonable to look for quite a heated term with probability of much electrical phenomena and unusual thunder and hail storm in certain sections in those days, which may detract somewhat from the general good promises as to vegetation. Good care is suggested in the days indicated for avoidance of physical ills arising from intemperate use of ice water or other cold drinks and carelessness as to diet. For this year there will be more discomfort and sickness from ailments of the stomach and liver than for many years. Intemperate use of stimulating foods and drinks will be attended with more then customary mischief and apoplectic troubles will be more dangerous than usual.

Some very important engagements and developments in the dramatic, artistic and musical world are likely, and marriage of some one high in these professions invites public comment. There will be more pleasure seeking than usual in July, unusual travel upon the water, and likewise an increase of mortality from drowning. Let all pleasure seekers have unusual care in this respect.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR JULY, 1900.

JULY. 1—Sunday. A day inviting patience, forbearance, rest and quiet.

2—Monday. Bright and prosperous are the conditions of this day; authors and artists may claim this as their own; publishers and dealers in poetical works and art productions should improve every moment; the intellectual pursuits are particularly favored; the mind is clear and active, the imagination lively, and activity and cheerfulness are generally noticeable; the conditions give special activity in dealings in fancy goods, jewelry, perfumes, silks, and articles of beauty and adornment; tailors, watchmakers, jewelers and workers in wax have happy influences; make thy journeys, take recreation and seek pleasure and amusement; the day promises happy marriage to those assuming the relation at this time, unless the individual nativities are radically evil in this respect. Persons born about the 25th of January, 16th of May, 28th of July, or 18th of November, of past years, are particularly favored on this day and should not waste a moment but push all their engagements with vigor, especially if they find their avocations among the elegant classes.

3—Tuesday. Ask no favors from thy landlord, nor look for much benefit from dealings with contractors or any persons engaged in the dirty avocations of life; indecision and forgetfulness will be common faults; make no beginnings in any matter of consequence.

4—Wednesday. Independence Day. One of the superior days of the month. Improve every moment, notwithstanding it is a holiday; be active in all matters of an intellectual and literary character; travel and make engagements in all ways possible.

5—Thursday. Baffling circumstances attend the prosecution of business relating to fancy and ornamental goods, musical merchandise and also the pursuit of the fine arts; beware of making any matrimonial engagement at this time nor expect much enjoyment from the pursuit of pleasure or amusement.

6—Friday. Urge business vigorously during this day; increase thine efforts in the prosecution of business such as concerns house or lands; deal in such commodities as coal, iron, petroleum, wood, lumber, lead, wool and grain and with discretion in mining and railroad stocks, provided thy nativity is favorable also in this respect at this time; make contracts for building and repairing; deal with persons engaged in fiduciary capacities; enter into shipping contracts and engage help.

7—Saturday. This is an excellent day for pushing matters connected with art, music, fancy goods, articles of dress and the beautiful and elegant in life; ask favors from thine employer.

8—Sunday. This day is peculiarly fortunate for religious affairs, though the evening should be given the preference in such matters. Persons born about the 5th of January or April, 8th of October or 6th of December, of past years, are likely to be in the midst of baffling circumstances at this time and will need to exercise more than usual care in matters of diet and also in their business associations and enterprises. They should not inaugurate any new ventures at this time, but act very conservatively in all their undertakings.

9—Monday. Put a bridle on the tongue in the forenoon, cultivate patience and avoid excitement and inflammations of the body; also have care in handling fire or combustibles as some unusual losses from fire are indicated at large in these passing days; give preference to the afternoon for all kinds of literary work and for dealing with persons in the intellectual callings; also for making commercial contracts of consequence.

10—Tuesday. The forenoon is the best part of this day for business engagements of any kind, though but little encouragement can be given for any transaction pertaining to lands or buildings; keep out of underground places and be watchful against fire.

11—Wednesday. A day not specially conducive to progress in any direction, though it is by no means unfavorable for any of the general transactions of life; the evening is less propitious than usual and musical, dramatical, and artistic callings will be adversely affected.

12—Thursday. Do not seek promotion in official station nor any advancement in business from thine employer; be watchful of the purse and avoid taking risks in the commercial world. Persons born about the 11th of January, 1st of June, 12th of July, or 3rd of December, of past years, will need to exercise extraordinary care for avoidance of controversy and litigation in their business affairs; should be watchful against any inflammatory complaint and see that they are not hurt by vicious animals and that no loss comes from fire or explosion.

13—Friday. Another of the superior days of the month and REGULUS advises his friends to engage actively in the prosecutions of their several callings; begin important work of all kinds whether in mechanism, trade, or the fine arts; the forenoon is best for commercial ventures and dealings with persons of wealth and refinement.

14—Saturday. Have caution in all thy business engagements of the forenoon; do not deal in real estate nor make contracts for building or repairs; sign no papers of consequence, nor expect much permanent progress in any undertaking; the middle hours of the day are the best. Persons born about the 11th of January, 1st of March, 30th of May, 14th of July, 2d of September, or 1st of December, of past years, are likely to be more baffled and disappointed in conducting their affairs at this time, and should not make beginning in any important transaction. Business ventures now presenting themselves to such persons are not to be relied upon as they are not destined to work for the advantage of persons so born and will prove delusive and exhaustive of the worldly substance.

15—Sunday. Not particularly promising for a Sabbath day, though the middle hours of the day are the best; do not expect any advantage or satisfaction from thy dealings with the aged in the evening.

16—Monday. Push all regularly established business on this day but do not make beginnings in new ventures; deal with government authorities or persons in authority in the middle hours of the day.

17—Tuesday. Commercial men will find the middle hours of this day the best, when all general business should be pressed. It is not a good time, however, for the execution of writings, particularly those concerned with real estate, nor for promises or agreements relating to literary or educational matters. Persons born about the 4th of February, 6th of May, or the 8th of August or November, of past years, are likely to be unusually disturbed or anxious over writings, contracts or matters of account, or have mental or nervous excitements or baffling annoyances in correspondence or their affairs generally while those born about the 5th of April, 9th of October, or 8th of December, or June of past years have now more agreeable and profitable correspondence; effect more satisfactory engagements and contracts and should improve the time to push their important literary ventures. Persons born about the 6th of January or December or the 9th July, of past years should have unusual care just at this time for avoidance of hurts or losses from machinery, fire, and vicious animals.

18—Wednesday. Be early astir; be active and diligent in business and urge all honorable pursuits to the utmost, giving preference to the early hours for thy dealings with chemists, surgeons, manufacturers, iron and brass workers, bakers and all persons in the mechanical trades, also for all literary engagements and dealings with persons in such avocations.

19—Thursday. Quite a favorable day for the agricultural classes also for engaging with landlords and in matters connected with lands and houses; the afternoon and evening are particularly recommended for the elegant pursuits and for important engagements of a dramatic, musical or social nature.

20—Friday. Make no contract in the morning and be very careful in the use of the pen, postponing correspondence until the afternoon. Literary matters are adversely affected in the forenoon.

21—Saturday. Ask favors of persons in authority during the forenoon but keep a watchful eye upon the purse as needless or unprofitable expenditures are quite likely to be invited.

22—Sunday. An excellent day for the improvement of the mind and for proper appreciation of the merits of literary and scientific productions; pulpit efforts are likely to be eloquent and effective.

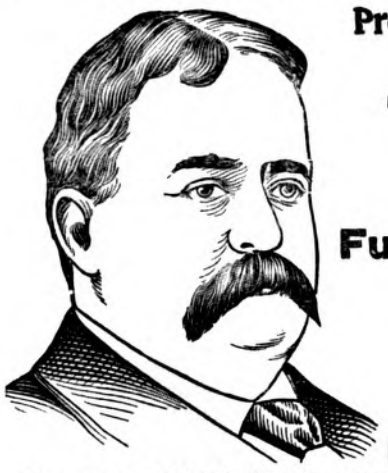
23—Monday. The forenoon hours are the best and all general business should be prosecuted with vigor therein, but as the afternoon advances baffling influences interfere with realization of best results from engagements of those later hours.

24—Tuesday. For authors, musicians and artists, this is an especially fortunate time as it is also for matrimonial engagements; let all engaged in the polite arts improve every moment, urging and realizing from their several pursuits; purchase goods for trade also all articles of dress, adornment, or decoration, also musical merchandise, dramatic appurtenances, artists' materials etc. The day is generally one of the best ones for all the honorable undertakings; make beginnings, open new stores and in every way push thy commercial enterprises.

25—Wednesday. A day not specially conducive to progress in any direction, though it is by no means unfavorable for any of the general transactions of life.

26—Thursday. Begin this day with the sun and urge all manner of business to the utmost. It is the merchant's own day, and also very fortunate for every honorable pursuit; buy goods for trade, speculate in legitimate ways and apply for favor or money accommodations during the forenoon.

27—Friday. Do not abate thine efforts of yesterday, but press all manner of business especially of literary or artistic nature; give preference to the afternoon for transaction of business concerned with hardware, cutlery, metals, glassware, brass and iron work and chemical and electrical apparatus; and experiment in chemistry or with machinery.



28—Saturday. Give preference to the forenoon of this day for the active pursuit of all general business and particularly such as is concerned with houses and lands and for the purchase and sale of such commodities as coal, iron, petroleum, wood, lumber, lead, wool and grain; the afternoon is adverse in a commercial sense; do not speculate nor waste thy means for needless or unsatisfactory expenditures. Persons born about the 20th of February or May, or 25th of August are cautioned against losses and property shrinkages likely to result here from speculative investments and unwise expenditures; while persons born about the 21st of January, 22d of March, or 24th of July, September or November, of past years, have improved finances and a much better degree of success in life this year and near this time.

29—Sunday. Specially conducive to mental eccentricities and indulgences in the imaginative and marvelous in literature. Social matters are somewhat unpleasantly affected at this time in the lives of persons born about the 27th of March, 1st of October, or 23rd of December of past years and more than ordinary care should be had for avoidance of any kind of intemperate indulgences.

30—Monday. Guard well the temper on this day and be not drawn into disputes and controversies; avoid travel and be wary of entering upon new undertakings now presenting themselves; sign no contracts of consequence and be cautious in the use of the pen.

31—Tuesday. Push all business to the utmost in the forenoon hours when buy goods for trade and deal with banks and persons of wealth; the elegant pursuits are not favored during the noon hours, but the late afternoon and evening invite mental efforts and all intellectual engagements.

PERFECT MANHOOD

Prof. Jules Laborde's Marvelous French Preparation of

"CALTHOS"

For Lost Manhood.

Full 5 Days' Treatment

SENT FREE

By Sealed Mail.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

Every person who is a sufferer from nervous diseases should write the Von Mohl Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, at once, and accept their offer of a five days' trial treatment free of charge. This is no C. O. D. or DEPOSIT scheme but a liberal proposition made to unfortunate sufferers by this long-established concern, which is the largest importer of specifics for nervous and sexual diseases in the world.

The Von Mohl Co. has the sole American rights for Prof. Laborde's French preparation of "Calthos," the only remedy known to advanced medical science that will positively cure nervous debility. This remedy has for years been used as a specific in the French and German armies, and since its introduction into the United States has cured many thousands of sufferers, and the remarkable success of the remedy in Europe has been repeated in this country.

In order to place this wonderful treatment in the hands of every person who suffers the mental and physical anguish of sexual weakness, The Von Mohl Co., has decided to send a free trial treatment to all who write at once. The remedy is sent by mail in a plain package, and there is no publicity in receiving it or taking it. Accompanying the medicine there is a full treatise in plain language for you to read. Take the medicine privately with perfect safety, and a sure cure is guaranteed.

Lost vitality creeps upon men unawares. Do not deceive yourself or remain in ignorance while you are being dragged down by this insidious disease. No matter what the cause may be, whether early abuses, excesses or overwork and business cares, the results are the same—premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and shrunken parts. This specific remedy will cure you at any stage before epilepsy results, with ensuing consumption and insanity. "Calthos" goes directly to the seat of the trouble, no matter of how long standing, and the patient feels the benefit of the first day's treatment. In five days the medicines sent free will make you feel like a new man.

The Von Mohl Co. often receives the most astonishing testimonials from persons who have taken only five days' treatment. They have thousands of testimonials from those who have been permanently cured after having been given up by doctors, misled and ruined in health by disreputable medical schemers, and when they had given up their last hope for health and happiness. No sensible person will permit his name to be used for a testimonial as an admission that he had any of the diseases for which the preparation of "Calthos" is a specific cure. Some irresponsible advertisers are using "made-up" testimonials, but the Von Mohl Co. invariably declines to make public the names or correspondence of any patients who have been cured by "Calthos."

Five days' treatment will be placed in your hands free of cost, and you are earnestly urged for your own sake to send for it without delay. Write to day and send your address. It is not necessary to give embarrassing details of your symptoms. The book accompanying the five days' treatment will enable you to take the medicine in private and treat yourself successfully at home. It costs nothing to try this remedy. It may cost you a great deal more to let this offer go by. Write today. Address THE VON MOHL CO. 826 B, CINCINNATI, OHIO. Largest Importers of Standard Preparations in the United States

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

LADIES, Send to Mrs. H.C.Fretter, Detroit, Mich., for free package ORANGE LILY. Cures all female diseases.

ASTROLOGY To prove the correctness of my Astrological System, I will give you my personal attention and send you FREE, a personal typewritten Horoscope of your life. Send your date of birth and 2c. stamp for postage. Prof. H. Edison, Astrologer, T, Binghamton, N.Y.

BLOOD POISON

HAVE YOU Sore throat, Pimples, Copper Colored Spots, Aches, Old Sores, Ulcers in Mouth, Hair-Falling? Write COOK REMEDY CO., 1731 Masonic Temple, Chicago. Ill., for proofs of cures. Capital, $500,000, Worst cases cured 15 to 35 days. 100-page book free.

Mothers I can cure your children of incontinence of urine. Sample FREE. Address F. E. MAY, M. D., Bloomington, Ill.

$50 IN GOLD FREE.

The very stylish dandy that appears in this advertisement represents a flower that grows wild in our yards and fields. We are going to give away $50 IN GOLD to those who are able to send us the correct name of this flower. WE DO NOT WANT A CENT OF YOUR MONEY, and there is only one condition attached to this offer, which will not take one hour of your time. When you have made out your answer send it to us on a postal card, AND YOU WILL HEAR FROM US BY RETURN MAIL. It may take you an entire evening to solve this question, but STICK TO IT AND TRY AND GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $50, as we are going to give it away, and you might as well have your share as not.

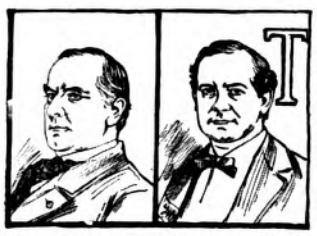
The Metropolitan and Rural Home,
225 William St., New York City.

AN ALL ROUND CONVENIENCE AND MONEY MAKER.

HANDY AS A POCKET IN A SHIRT. HOLDS PENCIL IN POCKET, PREVENTS ITS ROLLING ON SLANTING DESK. A PERFECT PENHOLDER, EJECTS PEN AUTOMATICALLY. A Perfect Pencil Extension and Rubber Protector.

Made of Aluminum, light as a feather—looks like silver and will always wear the same—does not soil hands and will not corrode or rust.

The price of these Holders with pencil is ten cents each, but we want them introduced quickly and make the following



SPECIAL OFFER. Enclose only 6c. for a three months' subscription to Family Herald and we will send free one sample holder, a nice rubber tipped pencil and best steel pen, also full particulars how to make honest dollars.

EXTRA SPECIAL OFFER. Send 25c. for a year's subscription and we send half dozen rubber tipped lead pencils which you can sell for 30c., half dozen Pen and Pencil holders sell for 30c., half dozen best steel pens sell for 6c., total retail value of goods given you free 66c. and we also send full directions and instructions how to start and carry on a most profitable business without capital.

Our Aluminum Combined Pen and Pencil Holder is a Brand New Article, novel and useful in a good many ways. Makes money for the dealer and agents, and pleases all who buy and use it. Is a quick seller. Any one can sell it, in fact it sells itself when and wherever properly shown. Is used by LADIES as well as GENTLEMEN and is a prime favorite with TEACHERS and SCHOOL CHILDREN. Use it once and you will not be without it. Order a sample and you will surely want a dozen, which is only enough to go around in an ordinary family with a few extra for friends. By sliding it on an ordinary lead pencil it makes a perfect pen holder. When used as pen holder it is automatic, ejecting the pen by sliding either way on pencil. Makes a fine desk tool as it can be used either as a pen or pencil and will not roll even on a moderately slanting surface. Greatest tool for school desk. Does away with pencil or pen holder as we have both in one. As a Pencil Holder it has no equal. It will hold pencil perfectly in vest or inside coat pocket or any other place which is not too thick for clasp to go over. Always on your pencil. Stays wherever you place it. No matter if your pockets are full of holes; it holds your pencil securely. Anyone can sell these holders in fact they sell themselves. Send to-day, don't delay. Address FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

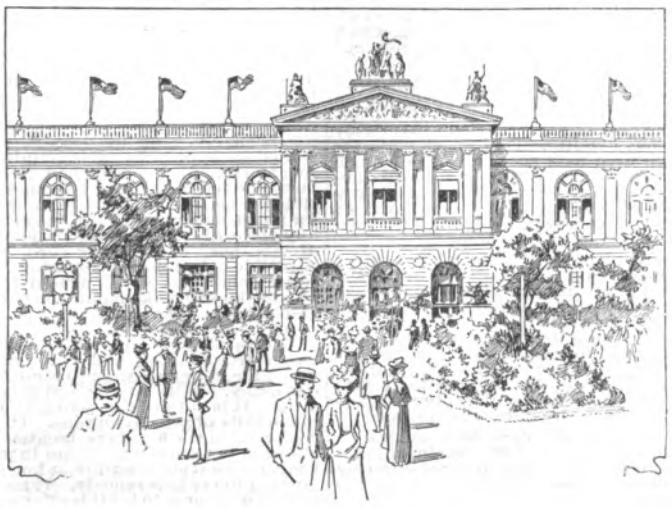
How The Conventions Will Meet.



WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

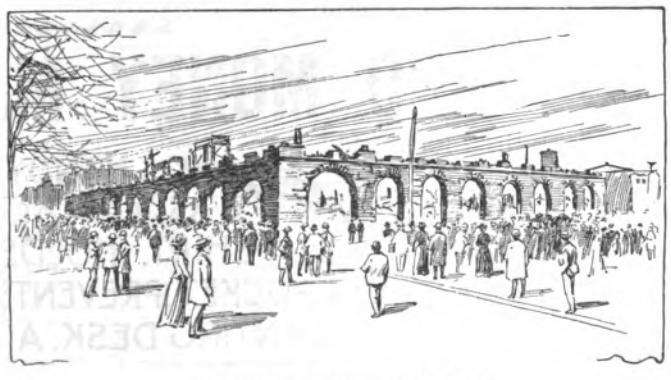
THERE is no American who lives that does not feel his blood tingle as the quadrennial contest approaches which elects another President of the United States of America. The greatest and most powerful office on earth is to be filled and it will interest all readers of COMFORT to know by just what method this is done.

Our Presidents are not elected directly by the people but under the Constitution indirectly. That is, in each state there are nominated sets of electors for whom the citizens vote; and on a given date these electors meet and vote for a President and Vice President. The returns are then made up and sent by messenger to Washington. In due course of time both houses in Congress meet in joint convention and with the presiding officer of the Senate acting as Chairman, the envelopes are opened and vote of the states announced alphabetically. Tabulation is made and announcement of the people's choice made in due and legal form.

Then the convention dissolves and at a later date the President is inaugurated (on the 4th of March, following) in front of the capitol at Washington and enters his duties for four years. Ever since the Constitution was adopted there have been two parties of great strength as there is in this country. The Revolution brought out many men of talent and great popularity and Washington, Jefferson, Munroe and the Adamses were nominated and elected rather on public wish than party lines. In fact, in the earlier days the candidate receiving the largest number of votes in the Electoral college became President, while the next lower was usually accepted for the second place.

THE PHILADELPHIA BUILDING.

It was not until the time of President Jackson that party organization became perfected and the present system of voting for electors who tacitly agreed to vote in the college for party nominees developed. Up to that time electors were free to vote for whom they pleased after due deliberation, although it was always practically known whom they favored.



HON. PERRY S. HEATH.

For some time after the party leaders in Congress met in caucus and designated whom the standard bearers should be for each party.

Free speech and dislike of dictation brought about party conventions which now vote as representative of each party until choice is made by each party of a candidate. In almost every state the modified Australian ballot system prevails and party organization is recognized in the formalities which have to be gone through. So that the custom which gradually grew up of organizing now exists in legal form and gives a definite state and legality to all nominations made, where formerly was no responsibility.

In the present system each of the great parties has a National Committee which is formed by giving each state one member. They conduct, through their chosen chairmen and small executive committees, the whole campaign for their respective parties. Their existence is for four years and their delegations to the National conventions select their successors in each state.

The committee meets and decides on the claims of the residents of various cities and finally votes in what city the convention shall be held and its date. The call is then issued inviting all voters agreeing in certain principles set forth to elect delegates to this National Convention. In each state four delegates-at-large and two delegates from each congressional district are selected with alternates. Thus the representation of each state in the convention is just double its representation in the House and Senate.

THE BURNED KANSAS CITY HALL.

On the date appointed the conventions meet and organization is made. In due time nominating speeches are made and ballots taken. Finally the party's candidate for President is announced and then follows a similar process for selection of a candidate for Vice President, who are nominated on a platform supposed to represent the principles of the party and which are read in the convention.

After the convention has adjourned a chosen committee is sent to announce verbally to the candidate the result. He thanks them and later declares himself in a "letter of acceptance," which announces his ideas. When both parties have gone through this process the campaign commences.

SECRETARY C. F. DICK.

Conventions are the rallying places of great political leaders and their followers from all over the Union. For days and nights the streets of the convention city are ablaze with color and lights and echo to the tread of marching political companies and delegations; and to the blare of trumpet and boom of cannon. In no other place can be found the excitement and enthusiasm of an American city during a National convention in its limits.

A Republican convention elects its candidates on a simple majority but the Democrats adhere to what is called the two-thirds rule, which requires a two-thirds vote to make a choice. Since the days of the heroes of the Revolution few of our great statesmen have been selected as candidates. A person generally of less talent but more "available" is selected. That means a sensible, vigorous and "magnetic" man, not too well known, is sought out. Once in a while a wave of enthusiasm brings out a war hero as a candidate.

All the important National conventions have now been arranged for—May 9, the Populist at Sioux Falls, S. D., and on the same date the middle-of-the-road Populists at Cincinnati. June 19, the Republican at Philadelphia. June 27, the Prohibitionists at Chicago. July 4, the Democratic at Kansas City, Mo., and on the same day the American Political League at Boston. President McKinley is certain of a nomination by acclamation by the Republicans; while Mr. Bryan seems equally certain of a similar honor from the Democrats. In neither party does there seem to be a choice for a candidate for the second place.

There is a present chance that Admiral Dewey or some other "Gold Democrat" may obtain sufficient following to prevent the necessary two-thirds vote; but at present writing this seems unlikely.

The Republican convention will meet in the building in which the International Export Exhibition was held last year. The city from its proximity to other large centers, will be over crowded. Chairman Hanna, who conducted the last campaign for McKinley so successfully, may not be physically strong enough to conduct this summer's work, in which case his mantle will undoubtedly fall on the shoulders of Hon. Perry S. Heath, the able Assistant Postmaster General and experienced politician; or, on those of Representative C. F. Dick, who is the Secretary of the Republican National Committee and long identified with the conduct of Ohio politics.

On the Democratic side the management will practically be the same as in the campaign of 1896, should Mr. Bryan be nominated. If, however, by any chance any other person should receive the great honor, Chairman Jones will retire and some friend of the nominee's be appointed.

The convention hall at Kansas City in which the Democrats are to meet July 4th, was burned to the ground on the morning of April 4th. The building is to be immediately rebuilt and will undoubtedly be ready for the convention. Our sketch is from a photograph taken of the ruins. This convention is the first one ever held west of the Mississippi Valley and will attract vast attention and probably attendance, although Kansas City is not a "hotel town." It is anticipated there will be an attendance of not less than thirty thousand visitors while the hotels cannot contain a third of this number. It is felt that it will be unique in spectacular appearance and demonstration.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS.

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

How to Cross the Ocean Cheaply and Comfortably.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

omy, "each dollar which they can properly save in the expenses of the journey." There are some economies which do not save, in the long run. No one can get the best results from travel—whether the results desired be profit or mere pleasure—unless in good physical condition. It does not pay to economize by eating food which is unpalatable or lacking in nourishment, and it is no saving to walk in order to save car or carriage fare, until one is too worn out to study intelligently the things which one has come to see. Better see fewer things and get all the good there is in them.

For this reason I would have a steamer chair while crossing the ocean. The steamer's deck will be provided with a plentiful supply of canvas camp stools and more or less comfortable small, folding, wooden chairs, but the long folding steamer chairs on which, when put in position one can lie almost as comfortably as on a couch, are private property. These can be bought in the large shops of any city, and usually in small shops near the ocean steamer wharves. The prices range from about $2.50 upwards. If you have your own chair you have to give it away when you get to port, or have it stored or pawn it, as you do your wraps. I have always been able to hire one after I got on board, of one of the stewards, paying him about five shillings, $1.25 of American money. If you have a chair and give it away, give it to one of the stewards. He will make it a source of income in the way I have mentioned. In any case do not neglect to give these men something in tips in the course of the voyage. The sum need not be large. A quarter now and then will go a good ways and bring back ten times its value in service. This is not extortion. It is a legitimate part of your traveling expenses, and should be reckoned with beforehand as such.

But speaking of steamer chairs, one more word. I cannot imagine anything more delightful to look forward to or back upon, than to lie on a blanket-spread steamer chair for ten long restful days, with nothing to look at but water and sky.

Some one may say, "But I shall be too seasick to find anything delightful." Perhaps so, but not surely. You may not be sick at all, or at least, not enough to amount to anything if you do not give way to it. I have never yet been seasick enough to cause me to lose any one of the four meals of every day I have been on board ship. This may in part be my good fortune, but I do not believe it is wholly that. I always take some simple laxative medicine for two or three days before sailing, and on the day I go on board am moderately careful what I eat and drink. Eat all you want to, but don't mix too many kinds. Don't drink beer at all nor too much whiskey.

I have found that if I am going to be sick at all—and I imagine this would hold true of other people—it will be when I first get out of my berth on the first morning at sea. The air of a state-room is always bad, at best, at that time, and any one is lucky who can stay in the state-room that first morning long enough to dress, without becoming sick. And like many other things, nausea is easier to start than to stop. Experience has taught me when I go to bed the first night, to put my clothing in the berth, or so near it that I can reach it easily. Then, in the morning, I dress me just as completely as I am able, still lying in the berth; then get down onto the floor, hustle the last two or three hitches which cannot be made in the bunk, and make a dash for the open deck. Don't stop to wash; you can come down for that later. Stay in the open air for half an hour. If you feel at all squeamish get out where you can face the wind—there is pretty sure to be enough of it—and stay there. Don't go to the extreme bow or stern of the ship; you will feel the motion a great deal worse there—and I do not believe you will be seasick long. Don't worry if your toilet is not quite perfect. No one will notice it. Most of the people on deck at that time—probably they did not hurry out into the air as you have done—will be too much occupied in leaning over the railing, to look at you, and if they do cast a glance at you between gulps will be too disgusted at your not being sick, too, to distinguish whether you have on clothes or a meal sack. I cannot imagine anything more aggravating than to be seasick and see some one else who is not.

Another thing, don't brace yourself against the motion of the vessel as if it were an enemy. Rather try and feel that it is a great, strong friend under whose protection you are glad to be. Too many inexperienced sailors, when they feel the steamer roll, or sink in the trough between two gigantic waves, instantly brace themselves stiff as posts in opposition. Don't do that. Let your knees bend and your body sway a little. Go with the motion, and not against it, and you will not only ward off seasickness, but you will learn to enjoy one of the greatest pleasures of a sea voyage; and come to know that the great ocean is a loving friend and not a buffeting foe.

AGENTS! Send for free sample PREPAID of our Patent Bake Pan. Immense seller. Big pay. 40 others new and catchy. Rundell Mfy., Watkins, N. Y.

1 YEARS FREE TRIAL THE UNIQUE CORNISH PLAN

OF SELLING PIANOS and ORGANS has spread over the entire civilized world and has been the means of building up a vast business

PIANOS $155 All latest Musical Attachments.

Over a Quarter of a Million Satisfied Customers attest the honesty of this modern method of piano selling. We Warrant our Pianos and Organs for 25 Years. Back of that Warranty is a business worth over a million dollars.

FREE Our Souvenir Catalogue for 1900 is one of the most comprehensive musical books in the trade. The frontispiece is a masterly reproduction in colors of an oil painting representing St. Cecilia and the Angelic Choir. This catalogue is sent, postpaid, together with a novel reference book—"The Heart of the People"—and our latest special offers, free. The catalogue describes all our pianos and organs. It tells about for Pianos, Imitates ACCURATELY Harp, Banjo, Guitar, Zither, Mandolin, etc., while the famous patent Combination Multitone Reed Action make the CORNISH Organs unequalled in tone—reproduce the power of a full orchestra.

The Cornish Patent Musical Attachment

A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10 on the list price in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20 on the list price of a CORNISH PIANO.

Send for particulars of the Cornish Co-operative Plan showing how you can make money working for us, or a Cornish Piano or Organ Free

References: Your bank, our bank, any bank.

ORGANS $25 Cash or Easy Payments.

CORNISH & CO., WASHINGTON, N. J.

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS

Reversible LINENE Collars and Cuffs.

Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods. No Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mail, 30cts. Send 6 cts. in stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. K, Boston, Mass.

RUBENS DANTE TASSO MURILLO ANGELO RAPHAEL

$2.00 a Year. Free Patterns to Subscribers.

Toilettes LEADING FASHION PAPER

5000 Illustrations and 100 Colored Plates a year. Shopping and Family Guide. Special offer to Clubs. AGENTS WANTED. Lucrative for Teachers and others. 170 FIFTH AVENUE, N. Y.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN, VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO AND ORGAN Self-Taught, without Notes, by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first Instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address E. C. HOWE, 439 Bay State Bldg., CHICAGO

Brass Band Instruments, Drums, Uniforms, & Supplies. Write for catalog, 445 illustrations, FREE; it gives information for musicians and new bands. LYON & HEALY, 23 Adams St., CHICAGO.

SEND NO MONEY WITH YOUR ORDER, cut this ad. out and send to us, and we will send you OUR HIGH GRADE DROP CABINET BURDICK SEWING MACHINE by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest freight depot and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, equal to machines others sell as high as $60.00, and THE GREATEST BARGAIN YOU EVER HEARD OF, pay your freight agent Our Special Offer Price, $15.50 and freight charges. The machine weighs 120 lbs. and the freight will average 75 cents for each 500 miles. GIVE IT THREE MONTHS' TRIAL in your own home, and we will return your $15.50 any day you are not satisfied. We sell different makes and grades of Sewing Machines at $8.50, $10.00, $11.00, $12.00 and up, all fully described in Our Free Sewing Machine Catalogue, but $15.50 for this DROP DESK CABINET BURDICK is the greatest value ever offered by any house.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS by unknown concerns who copy our advertisments, offering unknown machines under various names, with various inducements. Write some friend in Chicago and learn who are RELIABLE AND WHO ARE NOT.

This shows the machine closed and used as a center table, stand or desk.

THE BURDICK has every MODERN IMPROVEMENT; EVERY GOOD POINT OF EVERY HIGH GRADE MACHINE MADE, WITH THE DEFECTS OF NONE. MADE BY THE BEST MAKER IN AMERICA FROM THE BEST MATERIAL MONEY CAN BUY. SOLID QUARTER SAWED OAK DROP DESK CABINET, PIANO POLISHED. One illustration shows machine closed, (head dropping from sight) to be used as a center table, stand or desk; the other open with full length table and head in place for sewing. Four fancy drawers, latest 1899 skeleton frame, carved, paneled, embossed and decorated cabinet finish, finest nickel drawer pulls' rests on 4 casters, ball bearing adjustable treadle genuine Smyth iron stand. Finest large High Arm head, positive four motion feed, self threading vibrating shuttle, automatic bobbin winder, adjustable bearings, patent tension liberator, improved loose wheel, adjustable presser foot, improved shuttle carrier, patent needle bar, patent dress guard, head is handsomely decorated and ornamented and beautifully Nickel Trimmed. GUARANTEED the lightest running, most durable and nearest noiseless machine made. Every known attachment is furnished and our Free Instruction Book tells just how anyone can run it and do either plain or any kind of fancy work. A 20-YEAR BINDING GUARANTEE is sent with every machine. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING to see and examine this machine, compare it with those your storekeeper sells at $40.00 to $60.00, and then if convinced you are saving $25.00 to $40.00, pay your freight agent the $15.50. WE TO RETURN YOUR $15.50 if at any time within three months you say you are not satisfied. ORDER TODAY. DON'T DELAY. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.—Editor.)

This illustration shows the machine open, ready for use.

Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (Inc.) Chicago, Ill.

JULY ~1900

PRICE 5 CENTS

VOLXII NO.9 MN 141

COMFORT

THE KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK AUGUSTA, MAINE. BOSTON

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Incorporated.

SUN.	MON.	TUES.	WED.	THURS.	FRI.	SAT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
29	30	31	F. Q. 4	F. M. 12	L. Q. 18	N. M. 26

Telling one of Comfort's Prize Stories.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least two yearly subscribers (together with 50 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

☞ Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR JULY.

George Smith, First Prize.
F. E. Burnham, Second Prize.
Burton McPhail, Third Prize.
Katherine Stagg, Fourth Prize.
Harold Grantham, Fifth Prize.

HIS COMRADE.

A Story of the Philippine War.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY GEORGE SMITH.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE city of Iloilo, in the island of Panay, is, to Manila, the most important sea-port in the Philippine Islands. As the harbor of Iloilo furnished safe anchorage for American gunboats it was easy to keep the city garrisoned, but the mountainous character of the island itself made it difficult for the troops to make progress against the insurgents who had taken refuge in the interior.

The two other seaports of Panay are Concepsion and Capiz. A plan had been formulated by the American commander in Panay to send gunboats from Iloilo to each of these ports, bearing strong detachments of troops, and then from these points three columns of soldiers were to march simultaneously inland from the three ports, to concentrate upon Pasi, the insurgent headquarters near the center of the island.

It was necessary for the success of this plan that it be undertaken with the greatest secrecy possible, and that the destination of the gunboats when they left Iloilo be not suspected.

* * * * * * *

Two petty officers on shore leave from the gunboat Cassandra had been lingering to laugh and talk with a handsome mestiza woman in the half breed quarter of Iloilo. One of the men had left the house and was waiting in the street.

"Come along, Johnson," he said impatiently.

"Go on! I'll catch up with you!" the man in the house shouted through the open door. Alone with the mestiza woman he stretched out his arms to her.

"Ramona!" he said.

The woman raised her hand and waved him back.

"No, senor," she said.

"Promise to marry me, before I go!" he said.

The woman raised her beautiful eyes and looked the officer in the face for a full minute.

"Yes;" she said at last.

A moment later the man was running down the street to overtake his companion. The two men were comrades in the Pacific, just as they had been schoolmates and friends back in America.

"Johnson," said the man who had started on ahead, after the two officers had walked side by side in silence for a little way, "don't make a fool of yourself."

"You mind your own business," said the man called Johnson, with an oath, "and I'll mind mine."

After all, they reached the quay before the Cassandra's boat was ready to put off for the ship, and waited there, surrounded by the crowd of natives, half-breeds, Spaniards and Americans who gathered there at the waterside at that hour. A mestiza peddler selling native fruits approached the two men and tried to make them buy. Flint heard the man say to Johnson, "I have some finer fruit a little farther down the quay, which I would like to show the senor." A few words added in a lower tone and quickly, Flint did not catch, but when he looked around again, a few minutes later, he saw Johnson several rods away, and the native talking to him eagerly. Afterwards he remembered this.

A week later the plans for the expedition against Pasi had been perfected. Two gunboats had quietly slipped out of the harbor of Iloilo in the darkness, and had headed northward. They would reach their destination the next night, and at midnight the three separate companies would start inland. Flint and Johnson were to go with the detachment from Iloilo. The latter had obtained shore leave in the evening and was to join the troops in the city.

In the confusion of disembarking and starting in the darkness Flint was the only man who noticed that Johnson did not report. Perhaps he would not have noticed his absence either had it not been that after he had landed and was waiting on the quay for the line to form, a mestiza, the fruit seller of the week before, passing close to him had crushed a scrap of paper into his hand. When he came where he could see, the officer read the words scribbled on the paper:

"Flint—I have cut it all. You'll say I am a fool. May be. Anyway it's done. Please do one thing for me. Try and make it as easy for mother as you can, when you go back home. She cares for me. Tell her I was killed, if you can, not that I ran away. If—you know who I mean—back home there had been different, perhaps I wouldn't have done this. It's no use now, though. J.—"

The troops lined up and marched out of Iloilo for Pasi, just as at the same time the other columns were marching from Concepsion and Capiz. Four hours ahead of the force from Iloilo the man Johnson had gone, speeding over the same line of march, following the route laid out for him to the camp of the insurgent leader.

* * * * * *

Two days before the movement against Pasi was begun a little, wizened, old Montes man had died in his hut in the mountain fastnesses of Panay. This man's home, like those of all his tribe, had been an armful of dry palm leaves thrown over three sticks stuck into the ground; his only clothing had been a rag of cocoanut fibre cloth tied about his loins. He had never heard of God, or America. To this man Spaniards and Americans were all one,—white heathen—and yet this man's death was destined to make succeed or fail the plans of men who never would even know of his existence.

He was no chief of his tribe, but only a Montes man; but being dead, by the sacred law of his tribe some one must be slain to bear his spirit company to that other world, of which they knew nothing except that no person could enter it unattended.

("We found that the Monteses had a number of peculiar ideas. Among other things they believed that when one of their number died he needed company to prevent his growing lonely on the long journey which lay before him. Accordingly the relatives of a dead person were expected to sally forth, armed with lances or long machetes, and endeavor to supply this want by killing the first human being whom they met." Dean Worcester's book on the Philippine Islands.)

For two days and a night the sons and brother of the dead man had traversed the forest, and the freshly sharpened points of their lances had been dampened only by the dew. Their journey had brought them through the defiles of their own mountain country, down into the low land, across a river, and into the forest beyond it.

And there, walking stealthily down a path beneath the trees, lighted by moonlight which filtered through the branches, they met, face to face, a white man hurrying up from the sea.

A minute later the law of blood had been appeased, and the Montes men had turned back, eager to reach their homes and the feasts which their women would have prepared for them against their coming. They cared not if the man they had killed be white or black, Spaniard or American. He meant nothing to them but the necessary sacrifice to satisfy a rite; the performance of a duty.

There, in the path, a few hours later, the soldiers found the Officer Johnson's body. Flint, at the head of a reconnoitering party sent on ahead, found it.

"He was one of our scouts," one man said, looking down at the dead body, "who pushed too far ahead, and was killed."

Flint did not dispute the statement; but he sent all the men away for a few minutes, to see if they could get any trace of the enemy.

When he was alone with the dead man, he knelt down beside him and thrust his hand inside the soldier's blouse.

"I thought so," he said to himself, as he drew from beneath the jacket a paper from the mestiza woman in Iloilo commending the bearer to the insurgent leader as a man who had valuable information to impart.

"Thank God," he said, "we came in time!" and then, looking down again at the dead man, "Poor fellow! God knows, perhaps he did not mean to do it. This cursed climate gets into a man's head so he doesn't half know what he is doing."

Then, looking to see that the men were not yet coming back, he dug a little hole beside the path, and tearing the two letters into bits, dropped the pieces into the hole, pushed the earth back and stamped it down upon the fragments.

When the men came back, bringing with them a Montes spear which they had found by the path, he said, "Take up the body on a litter of sticks, and carry it back until you meet the troops."

And so it came about that when, weeks afterwards, back in a New England town a widowed mother put on deeper black because her son, a soldier in the Philippines, was dead, the grief of it to her heart was softened because the commander of the American forces in Panay at that time had caused to be written to her, "Your son was killed at the head of his company, in a daring scouting expedition."

And Flint, his comrade, remembering the words in the letter, "Try and make it as easy for mother as you can," never added anything to make the commander's statement more explicit.

DOCTOR RUPPEL'S PATIENT.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY F. E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

AT that time Philip Craig occupied Room 27 in the Studio Building on St. James Street. A hundred or more students and teachers of the Conservatory lived there and on the whole managed to live a happy, Bohemian sort of life.

Craig was a man of peculiar temperament—highly nervous, imaginative and withall a gifted psychic.

One evening late in the fall of '87 four young men were passing a social hour with Craig; all were connected with the Conservatory. Craig was seated at the piano, delighting his friends with a masterly rendering of Gottschalk's Last Hope. No sound was heard save the music of that exquisite song which has entranced so many; the interpretation was perfect, the running passages dropping from the tips of his fingers like pearls, stringing themselves together as they fell. The lights burned dimly and no face was distinctly visible. The air was heavy with the perfume of roses and a slight odor of violets was noticeable.

Suddenly, while Craig was executing the final trills and cadenzas, his face paled so perceptibly that those present noted it, though as stated above, the lights were dim; a tremor shook his frame and with a despairing cry he fell into the arms of those who had sprung to his assistance.

A physician was hastily summoned and Craig was immediately placed in bed, the doctor affirming that the young man's case was very grave. And such it proved to be; for from that hour Craig's mind was a blank as far as the past was concerned. He was as a babe just born into the world, the past, nothing, the future a wonderland of possibilities. In an instant he had lost all past learning, and his cunning at the keyboard had vanished. Strangely enough, his command of language was not impaired in the least. Physicians said that there was absolutely no hope of the past coming back to him, and Craig, who knew no past, was content for a season to let the matter rest so.

"Make the best of a bad matter," said one physician, discussing the case with one of Craig's friends, "have him begin life over again; he is yet a young man and the manner in which he grasps thoughts indicates that learning again will be an easy matter."

And so Craig did begin life over again, studying the same branches that claimed his attention twenty years previous, and resuming his work at the piano as a pupil at the bottom of the ladder.

Years passed, and Craig made rapid progress, hastened, no doubt, by the hope held out to him by one physician—that with the knowledge at his command that was his when the veil was drawn, that past would declare itself once more.

Constantly were trifles coming to pass that seemed to have a close connection with Craig's earlier life, and they all tended to strengthen the doctor's and his own conviction that some day the curtain hiding the past would be drawn one side.

Many changes had taken place at the Conservatory during the past ten years; naturally all the former pupils were gone, and only two of the old professors remained. It was from the latter that Craig's physician learned when Craig, according to their recollection, stood again in his art as he stood that memorable night when he was stricken. It was then that Dr. Ruppel attempted to restore the past to Philip Craig.

Through diligent inquiry, Dr. Ruppel learned of the whereabouts of one of Craig's friends who was with him that night in the fall of '87. From him the other three were located, and his proposed method of restoring Craig to himself was duly made clear to the four.

Plaintive music and the odor of roses and of violets caused Craig's eyes to light up, and at such times he said that he could almost penetrate the mist that obscured the past. This susceptibility was greatly increased at night when the lights burned dimly. Dr. Ruppel believed that these phenomena bore directly upon the case and its final mastery, and presently he made use of them, with what results will be shortly seen.

It may be well to state just here that Craig knew nothing of the elaborate arrangements through which Dr. Ruppel hoped to bring about the restoration of his patient.

Questioning the four gentlemen who were with Craig that night, Dr. Ruppel was enabled to put Craig's former room in the Studio Building in much the same condition it was at that time.

It was the twenty-third of November, decidedly raw and wintry. A little after seven o'clock that evening, four gentlemen might have been seen walking rapidly up St. James Street, all earnestly engaged in conversation. Before the Studio Building they halted and were shortly admitted and shown to the room which Dr. Ruppel had arranged. The doctor was already there.

"Gentlemen," said the physician, "we may expect Herr Craig at precisely eight o'clock. Be seated in much the same positions you were in when he was stricken in this room. I scarcely know the part I shall take this night. He may not notice me at all after meeting with you; if not, I shall remain silent. I hope that such will be the case."

On the piano stood a vase of roses and violets were on the mantel. The lights were dim and those present scarcely discernible.

A light rap at the door told of the coming of Craig. The doctor retreating behind the portieres, one of those present threw open the door.

As Craig stood before the open door, the perfume of the flowers reached him. In a bewildered way he placed his hand on his forehead, a smile slightly parting his lips.

"Come in, Phil," said the one who had

TEN WEEKS FOR 10 CENTS.
That big family paper, The Western Weekly, of Denver, Colo. (founded 1890) will be sent ten weeks on trial for 10c; clubs of six 50c; 12 for $1. Special offer solely to introduce it. Latest mining news and illustrations of scenery, true stories of love and adventure. Address as above and mention COMFORT; stamps taken.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.
Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85
$14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50
Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00
the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grade and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ills.

RUPTURE CURED!
WORN NIGHT and DAY. Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN, VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO AND ORGAN Self-Taught, without Notes, by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first Instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address E. C. HOWE, 439 Bay State Bldg., CHICAGO

BOYS AND GIRLS
Watches, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Jewelry, etc., given away for selling 18 packages of Excelsior Bluing at 10c. We ask no money. Send your name and address and get outfit and premium list with instructions postpaid. When you sell the Bluing send us the money and select your premium. We Trust You. This is an honest offer. Write for outfit today.
EXCELSIOR BLUING CO. Dept. S Chicago

$83.33 Monthly Salary
payable weekly with expenses. Men or Women to represent us in their own state, to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. NO INVESTMENT REQUIRED. This is a strictly bona-fide salary proposition. IT INVOLVES NO CANVASSING whatever. Expenses remitted in advance and salary forwarded from headquarters. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. Give references. Enclose stamp. Address CO-OPERATIVE CO., 508 Star Bldg., CHICAGO.

$5.85

Im. 17 JEWELED adjusted, patent regulator, stem wind and stem set, genuine NATIONAL SPECIAL movement. Ladies or Gents' size. WARRANTED 20 YEARS. 14K. Gold plate hunting case, elegantly engraved. Fit for a king. No better watch made. Must be seen to be appreciated. Special Offer for next 60 days, send your full name and address and we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent $5.85 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and charm sent free with every watch. Write at once as this may not appear again.
NAT'L MFG. & IMPORTING CO. 334 Dearborn St., B 318, Chicago, Ill.

opened the door, "here we are waiting for you, old fellow. There is the piano and we are famished for a breath of the divine music. Favor us, Phil."

As one in a dream, Craig advanced to the piano, his eyes sparkling with a strange brilliancy. Seated at the piano he looked restlessly about the room for an instant. Touched a chord and modulated into another key, closing with a brilliant cadenza.

Nervously Craig quitted the piano, striding across the room and turning the lights still lower, returned to the instrument, stooping over the roses and violets as he passed.

Once again Craig touched the keys, solemnly and with an intense feeling that inspired his hearers with a conception of music which they had never known in the past. It seemed as though he were searching for a chord which he was unable to sound at once; from key to key he passed, modulating through a series of chords which revealed the master's hand. Suddenly he bent forward and with a wonderful cadenza that startled his hearers, Craig swept the keyboard, and pausing—gently touched the opening chord of Gottschalk's Last Hope, after passing the introduction.

Never before that night had Craig played with such brilliancy and passion. It seemed as though he were of some other world and that he was communing with them in the language of the soul. His rendering of Gottschalk's famous composition was something never to be forgotten.

Those who saw Craig's face said that he was as one transfigured, and the wonderful light in his eyes became more wonderful as he played.

When he had finished he sat for a moment with bowed head. He was weeping.

"I have seen the past," he said at length, "I have seen it—and it has vanished once more."

Dr. Ruppel failed in a measure, but in the measure that he succeeded, he brought joy and peace to Philip Craig. Craig was asked one evening why the Last Hope was his favorite composition.

"Because its strains open the portals guarding the past," he said, "and I am permitted to know for a brief period the peace and happiness of those departed days."

Of an evening one who chances to pass Philip Craig's home may hear the sorrowful strains of the Last Hope, Craig's fine tenor voice carrying the melody, but though the first part breathes of peace, the closing measures are of despair—that fateful curtain is hiding Craig's past.

Dr. Ruppel has made a deep study of Philip Craig's case during the past two years and his conclusions, though by no means to be accepted as absolutely true deductions, seem logical.

"The brain is composed of countless millions of minute cells," said the doctor, discussing Craig's case one evening, "as doubtless you already are aware; these cells are constantly being awakened to activity through the occurrence of events. These awakened cells constitute the mind, and the ability to quicken the same cells after the event has passed, constitutes the memory. Ordinarily these cells are more or less easily aroused and the past comes before the mind again, but through over-taxing of the brain, these cells may become diseased and fail to readily respond; the resulting condition is commonly called a poor memory.

"In the case of Philip Craig, over-work produced a complete collapse of the functions of the brain. The past vanished in an instant and Craig realized the past no more than a new-born babe. At the same time, however, these same cells were not absolutely dead. Under certain conditions these could be aroused and these conditions were fulfilled that night when I conducted my first practical experiment in the Studio Building.

"The odor of roses and violets disturbed these cells; the tones of the piano still more; the bringing together of those who were connected with the past increased their susceptibility: finally, at the most favorable moment—when the lights burned dimly, as they did that night when the curtain was drawn, hiding the past, all of these agencies acted at once. The cells which were quivering with life, yet unable to respond under the influence of any one of these factors, awoke—the mist hiding the past vanished and Craig beheld the past once more. While the music of that masterpiece lasted the cells continued to respond, but as the tones died away the cells relapsed into their lethargy and the past faded from view.

"Strangely enough," continued the physician, "certain cells governing his command of language were not impaired in the least, save during the first few weeks following his collapse in '87. This peculiarity is undoubtedly due to the fact that these cells had not been taxed to so great an extent, and consequently had little or no part in the paralysis which affects the rest."

"But how do you account for the fact that Craig studied and learned again?" asked one.

"That is easily answered," replied the physician, "the cells which made up the past, embracing memory of events and study, comprised but a fractional part of the millions of cells at Craig's disposal. Additional study and the memory of things subsequent to that memorable night, merely meant the bringing into activity of new cells.

"Philip Craig's case I consider hopeless, so far as his ever being able to permanently recall the years prior to '87. Those cells in use at that time are too seriously affected to return to their former state. Gradually will it become more and more difficult to arouse them to activity until finally they will utterly fail. Craig's experiences during the past two years indicate that such will be the case."

Philip Craig has told much of his past to a stenographer during these periods when he was able to see his past, and these records have proved a source of much pleasure to himself. Presently they will be the only evidence of his earlier life at his disposal.

THE MAN WHO SHIVERED.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY BURTON MCPHAIL.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

It WAS grandfather's night for telling a story and early in the evening the young people, and older ones, too, gathered about the old fire-place, confident that a pleasant hour was in store.

Before the great logs which grandfather persisted in burning, though the old-fashioned fire-place was an affair of half a century or more ago, a dozen great apples spluttered, sending forth their delicious odor as their color deepened.

"A true story," said grandfather, removing his pipe from his mouth.

"A real true one," interrupted Tom, cracking a walnut.

"Yes, Tom, a real true story," replied the story-teller, "a story of early days, long before the days of the railroad and telegraph; when the swiftest messenger was the horseman.

"There was to be an execution at Portsmouth; a young woman was to be hanged and the sheriff's warrant read 'during the noon hour.' There was a serious doubt in the minds of those conversant with the evidence as to the guilt of the prisoner, and the day prior to the execution a horseman was dispatched to Concord, bearing a paper signed by every merchant and all the leading men of Portsmouth, praying for a pardon, or at least a reprieve.

"At twelve o'clock the horseman started for Concord, thirty miles away, mounted upon a swift horse, expecting to see the governor and return during the evening. Night came, however, and as the evening passed and he came not, apprehension was felt lest some mishap had occurred which would prevent the return of the messenger in time to stay the hand of the sheriff.

"Midnight having passed, and no news of the horseman received, a second paper was circulated and signed by those who had affixed their signatures to the first."

"Did they wake the people up in the middle of the night?" queried Tom.

"Yes, Tom, and there wasn't a soul of them that grumbled.

"At four o'clock in the morning the second horseman started, digging his spurs into the horse's sides and quickly leaving the town behind. Twenty miles away he learned the reason of the non-return of the first horseman; found that he had been thrown from his horse and seriously injured, lying unconscious at a farmhouse. Without pausing he rode onward and at seven o'clock was at the capital, being admitted at once to the executive's private room.

"At eight o'clock he had received the governor's decision in the form of a reprieve for the prisoner, and at five minutes past the hour he was mounted again and away.

"Meantime the morning was passing at Portsmouth and preparations were being made for the execution and at ten o'clock all was in readiness for the final scene.

"Anticipating possible delay in the return of the messenger, some one suggested that men be stationed at intervals along the road toward Concord within sight and shouting distance of each other, so that the looked for good news might be sent along the line faster than the horseman could carry it. And at eleven o'clock a line of men reached from the prison-yard down the Concord road for a distance of three miles.

"Within the prison the sheriff was hastening preparations, as was his legal right, so that the execution might take place precisely at the hour of twelve, though at any time during the noon hour would have fulfilled the state's command.

"At quarter of twelve the solemn procession, made up of those who were to witness the execution and the prisoner, started for the prison-yard and three minutes later the young woman was on the scaffold, the clergyman speaking with her for the last time.

"'Wait until the hour of one before carrying out the sentence,' pleaded a citizen, 'word from Concord must arrive by that time, sheriff.'

"The cold March wind blew sharply across the prison-yard and the sheriff shivered.

"'I'm cold and hungry,' said he, adjusting the black-cap, 'and I'll allow no wench to interfere with my comfort. I spring the trap at twelve o'clock.'

"Meanwhile, the messenger was galloping over the road, making every effort to reach Portsmouth before the noon hour had come. The long ride showed plainly its effect on the animal, and as he plunged onward, he staggered from time to time, but as often as he faltered his rider drove the spurs into his flanks and the grim battle against time was more grimly pressed.

"At ten minutes of twelve he was within four miles of the prison; five minutes later the last of the long line of men that reached down the Portsmouth road saw him coming, saw him wave the reprieve as he passed mid a cloud of dust, and the good word flew ahead of the rider.

"'He comes! Reprieve!'

"From man to man the word was shouted and at last, just as the bells were ringing the hour of twelve, the man at the prison-gate rushed in and announced the coming of the reprieve.

"He announced it, but the word came too late, for scarcely had he entered the prison yard when the sheriff sprung the trap—the woman was dead.

"Suddenly, at the word of the sentry, the sheriff was seized with a terrible chill; he shivered so that he nearly fell from the scaffold. Mechanically he carried out the remainder of his duties, shivering more violently as the minutes passed.

"A week passed and the sheriff continued to shiver and shake, and physicians were unable to abate it. Added to this, a hunger which he was unable to satisfy, continually gnawed at his stomach.

"At the store he ordered the best of dinners and they were duly prepared, but though he ate heartily, they failed to satisfy the craving. He arose from the table with a full stomach, but the hunger remained.

"The spring passed and summer came, but the summer sun failed to warm the sheriff who could not wait; on the hottest days he crept to the store, a heavy overcoat buttoned closely about him: shivering he came and shivering he returned, a wreck of a man.

"One morning late in the fall of the same year of the execution, he entered a store intent upon purchasing provisions; two men were conversing.

"'Sheriff Parton made a sad mistake when he swung that woman into eternity, Robert,' said one, standing so that he failed to see the entrance of the ex-sheriff.

"'Yes, it is true,' said the other, likewise ignorant of his coming, 'Turner, who was fatally injured last night has confessed to the deed——'

"'Sh!,' said the other catching sight of the sheriff.

"The man who shivered had opened his lips to give his order, but the words froze upon them. A fearful chill seized him; he buttoned his coat more closely about him, turned without purchasing and crept home. A week from that day he was a dead man. Physicians affirmed that he had shivered so long and violently that the heart finally ceased to perform its work."

While grandfather had been talking the fire had grown brighter, and when he had finished it was uncomfortably warm about the fireplace, but somehow every one shivered just a little as he resumed his pipe, and Tom stirred the fire.

LOST—A SEVEN ROOM FLAT.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY KATHERINE STAGG.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HERE, Bird!"

"Yes, dear!"

"Well, what do you think? The stupid old business is settled? and we can start for home. Aren't you jolly glad?"

"Indeed I am, dear!"

"I have tickets for the St. Paul, and she sails the day after tomorrow."

And Ned Bentley picked up his fluffy little wife and waltzed her around the room. It was a rather undignified performance; but they were so young, and manifestly so happy that even the typical stern British matron might have forgiven them their antics. When they were quite out of breath, Ned, handsome, tall, debonair, deposited his laughing partner on the divan and struck an attitude before her.

"I've just made ten thousand dollars clear out of this trip—that was a totally unexpected windfall; and, although we have been married a year and have had to live in hotels, now, at last, we are going back to dear old New York, and best of all to our own little flat, our home that has been waiting three months for us. I think with all that, I've got a right to be somewhat foolish."

"Well, if being foolish is your way of showing gratitude, I'll have to try and bear up under it, I suppose." And she laughed mischievously. No wonder they called her Bird, for her laugh was a tinkling, gay little ripple that was well calculated to make anybody foolish about her.

"You have no idea how funny it seems to me that we have a flat of our own all furnished and ready to live in, and that I've never seen it," said Ned. "It will seem like a discovery, or a Christmas present, won't it, dear?"

"It will seem like home, Ned, our home. And say, Ned, I have the loveliest Turkish corner fixed up in the back parlor, and everything is done but hanging the pictures. I left some of your pastels to be framed just around the corner; I wonder if the dealer thinks I'm dead. And listen, Ned, I'm not going to be like some women, I am going to let you smoke in any room in the flat."

"Sensible little girl! and I will buy you new curtains whenever the smoke ruins those in use. So that jumps one of the first hurdles in married life. But seriously, dear, I know we are going to be absurdly happy, the only thing I am afraid of is that you will be lonesome and get homesick for your Western friends."

"Well, Ned," she answered, "if New York is just one quarter as nice as you think, I ought to like it. Remember, I was only there four days, and only think how busy I was; it all seemed very big and very grand, but, to tell the truth, I was so rushed, my poor little feather brain—you know that is Dad's favorite name for me—was in such a whirl that I hardly remember anything. No, Ned, I am not afraid of being homesick, but I am going to confess one thing; when I got your cable to come over to London as your business would keep you longer than you thought, and I had hurried so to get our home ready for you, and then to think of leaving it and coming across all alone! Well, dear, then I did break down and cried awfully and for fully twenty

Pain in the Joints

A slight indefinite pain in the joints is the first sign of Rheumatism. When you feel this warning sign take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the progress of the disease will be arrested. This remedy acts directly on the blood and nerves and has cured hundreds of cases of rheumatism that have been declared hopeless by physicians.

Such a case was that of Mrs. Mary Rixton, of Barryville, Sullivan Co., N. Y. She says:

"About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism. I suffered acute pain and much inconvenience. Physicians were unable to check the disease, and I was directed to a similar case, which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. My son bought me some of the pills and the first box did me so much good that I procured another box and those two boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured me."

At druggists or direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.
50 cents per box; 6 boxes $2.50.

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR

a man carries his keys about in his pocket, 365 chances every year to lose them never to recover them if his name is not attached in some way. A substantial steel ring with an ivory marker is a new idea. With ordinary ink your name, address, etc., can be written on the ivory tag and your keys returned to you if lost. Only a limited quantity at 4c. each. Good discount to agents and street men. Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$10.00 TO $50.00 PER DAY is being made by young men giving public entertainments with our complete Talking Machine, Stereopticon and Moving Picture Outfits, $23.75 and upwards. Experience unnecessary. For full particulars, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully; remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74, DETROIT, MICH.

WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

minutes. Ned, I was sorry that—that I had ever left home," her voice broke ever so little, but Ned's arm was around her in a second, and she gave a contented little nestle as he answered, "Poor little pigeon! it was abominably rough on you, but I couldn't do without you any longer, and I will try awfully hard to make up to you for that bad twenty minutes. And say, dear, it hasn't been much better since we have been here together, that confounded business has monopolized me so entirely that I have had to neglect everything else. By the way, dear, it occurred to me last night that I had forgotten just what street our flat is on."

"Why, it's," she replied quickly, then suddenly stopped with a little pucker of the eyebrows, "oh yes, it's—let me see—oh bother, I never could remember figures; it's uptown, right near the Park, you can see the trees from the windows," she concluded triumphantly.

"Well, Mrs. Birdie, that is within five miles of knowing where it is."

"Now don't you make fun of me, or I'll never remember; I'm not sure, but I think it was in—in fourteenth street," looking at him somewhat doubtfully.

"And you could see Central Park from the windows?"

"Oh, yes, I know it was Central Park because the agent spoke particularly about that, and how nice it was in the mornings to take your sewing or a book and sit under the trees."

"Hm-m," Ned seemed a trifle abstracted, "I suppose the agent frequently did that."

"Oh, Ned, it is the dearest little flat——"

"Yes, dear, and so—" he coughed; "go on; and——"

"Everything is so convenient and handy; right within reach."

"Yes, it generally is in a New York flat."

"Well!" she seemed a little uncomfortable. "What is the matter? You look cross as a bear."

"Nothing; oh, nothing! Have you remembered the number of the street yet?"

Very timidly, "Isn't it fourteenth?"

"Fourteenth Street is nearly three miles from Central Park. Perhaps it was one hundred and fourteenth."

"No; now I come to think of it, I am almost sure it had a five in it."

"Perhaps you remember the agent's name."

"It was something like Nelson or Wilson or Rawlston—or—but, Ned, I would know him in a minute; I have a splendid memory for faces."

A rather quizzical expression was in Ned's eyes as he said, "Well, never mind bothering about such an insignificant thing as figures. Just get out the lease, dear, and then we will know in a minute."

A look of real dismay came into the blue eyes, and the next words came hesitatingly:

"Why, Ned, I always try to be careful about important things, so after our furniture and everything arrived from my parents—you know they insisted on buying everything and sending it on; they said I was too young to be trusted to buy furniture, the idea! Well, when I got your cable, I paid three months rent in advance, and then I thought how likely one is to lose things traveling around as I knew we would be over here, so I took the lease and the rent receipt and your letters, Ned, and I locked them all up in the dearest little secret closet inside another closet; and, Ned, here is the key!" and she held up a diminutive bit of brass triumphantly.

A peal of laughter rang through the room, and presently Ned managed to say, "My child, you are certainly original; do you realize that now we find ourselves the proud owners of a handsomely furnished apartment situated 'somewhere' and that the only clue to the location of that somewhere is securely locked up in the said apartment?"

"Oh, Ned," she was almost crying, "but you know so much about New York, don't you think you could find it if I described the house to you?"

"New York people are generally so absorbed in developing variety of character that we don't waste much on our architecture. Why, dear, I've lived in a street for five years, and if they took down the curtains from the parlor windows, I would try and get into the wrong house. Now, don't cry, little woman, when we get to New York we will advertise for it, and we will probably find it somehow." It took some nerve, but Bentley was equal to it, and spoke with all the easy confidence of things coming his way that is so thoroughly American.

"But, Ned, it seems so funny to advertise a flat being 'lost,' just as if it were a pocket-book or—or a dog!"

"Yes; as soon as the situation really dawned on me I quite made up my mind to consider it only from the humorous point of view. You know, dear, a man is apt to become so concentrated on the wild game of money making that sometimes he is forgetful, too, of things he ought to remember; and, whether we find our little flat or not, I shall always consider this key the memento of a very funny adventure. And say, little woman, with this key I pledge myself never to leave you again in such a brutal fashion. If I can't make money when and where I can take you, I just won't make money."

"And you don't blame me, Ned, after all?"

"Not a bit!"

* * * * * *

Ten days later there was rather a dramatic moment in the main corridor of the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Edward Bentley, after having been to all the principal newspaper offices, and leaving carefully worded advertisements to be inserted in the next day's issue, returned to meet his wife and go to dinner. Mrs. Birdie strenuously objected to having her name appear in print concerning the matter, so, after much deliberation and the rejection of many ways of expressing the dilemma, the result they arrived at was so obscure and mysterious that it was seriously thought to be the cipher of a gang of burglars. Of this effect, however, young Bentley was happily ignorant.

It was snowing as he crossed from the Herald Building, and as he turned into Thirty-fourth street he smiled to himself at the thought of the childishness of his pretty feather brain. As he emerged from the storm doors, he was amazed to see his wife conversing easily with a tall, prosperous looking individual.

Birdie saw him immediately and with perfect self-possession introduced "Mr. Wilkinson, this is my husband. Isn't it odd, Ned, meeting our agent here almost as soon as we had arrived? I was just telling Mr. Wilkinson that we were coming for the keys of our apartment in the morning, and he has so kindly consented to come here and go with us, so we can inspect it together and see if everything is all right."

"It's very kind, I'm sure!" murmured Ned.

"Delighted to have met you Mr. Bentley," said the agent, "but you must pardon my abruptness, as I am half an hour late now for an appointment. Ten o'clock to-morrow. Good evening," and he disappeared in the crowd. Ned looked half dazed as he said, "And didn't you tell him?"

"Certainly not," replied his wife, "you know, I told you I never forgot a face, and the minute I saw him I remembered his name. And Ned, don't laugh at me, but I am almost sure that the street is one hundred and fourteenth and the number is five, I think."

"Well, my dear Mrs. Bentley, I will never laugh at you again; and as we are in several thousand dollars' worth of furniture, suppose we celebrate by having the best dinner we can order. What do you say?"

"I say 'yes'. And let's have it quick."

Down Grade From Lanesville.

A Fourth of July Story.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HAROLD GRANTHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE PEOPLE of Lanesville held that the Fourth of July celebration, bonfire and fireworks, should be at their end of the town; while those of Rochester, the center village, though smaller in population, claimed that the proper place was the square in front of the Rochester town-house. Through some chicanery a town meeting was called and comparatively few of the Lanesville men learned of it until it was too late to attend, and at this meeting it was voted to have the celebration at Rochester Center. Naturally, the result was a widening of the breach which had been growing more and more apparent during the past ten years.

The young men and boys of Rochester entered heartily into the work of collecting barrels and boxes for the fire, but those of Lanesville kept aloof, and it was generally understood that the celebration, so far as the bonfire and fireworks were concerned, would be a Rochester celebration, and Lanesvillites would remain strictly at home.

John Hendricks, the station agent at Lanesville, one of the most popular young men in the village, was so incensed at the action of the town, that he made an oath that he would go to bed as soon as the seven o'clock train had gone on the night before the Fourth, and lie there until sunrise on the morning following the celebration. Hendricks was a man of his word and he had never been known to break it.

In order to understand what occurred on that memorable night, the reader must know something of the topography of the country separating Rochester and Lanesville. The two villages were some five miles removed from each other, Lanesville being situated upon much higher land, reached from Rochester by a carriage road marked by several steep hills, and by rail, a heavy grade beginning below Rochester and ending somewhat above the Lanesville station. Close to the station was John Hendricks' home, where he lived with his mother and sister Helen.

True to his word, Hendricks retired as soon as the last train for the night had gone, arranging with the baggage-master so that the duties of the morrow might be attended to, and before the nine o'clock bells rang he was asleep.

Helen spent the evening with friends and before she realized how time was passing, it was eleven o'clock. There being no young men present to escort her home, the walk proved a lonely one. Part of the way being through the woods, it is not to be wondered at that she was nervous, and listened intensely at the least sound, the breaking of a twig or the flutter of a nightbird. Suddenly a nervous chill passed over her, for distinctly she heard voices by the roadside.

"I hid that keg of giant powder in the center of the pile, Tom," said one, "and when the fire reaches it there will be an explosion that will shake the town, and if there are not a hundred of those cursed Rochester beats laid out, then my name is not Jim Temple."

For an instant the girl stood still; then, realizing that it was for her to act, would she avert the impending disaster at Rochester, she noiselessly crept to the other side of the road and swiftly sped homeward. The hands of the clock pointed to twenty minutes of twelve as she entered the house; at twelve o'clock the bonfire was to be lighted.

"John!" she said, ascending to her brother's room and shaking him with all her might, "wake up! wake up, I say! Jim Temple has hidden a keg of giant powder in the pile at Rochester; it is twenty minutes of twelve!"

In less than thirty seconds Hendricks was on his way, and clearing the stairs at two bounds, ran to the station, thinking to wire the agent at Rochester, but as he ran it occurred to him that at that hour of the night there was no operator at the Rochester key. Close upon this came another thought and as he bounded across the rails he determined to act upon it.

Upon the siding stood a passenger coach, left there the previous day; a wooden bar thrown across the rails prevented it from rolling down the grade onto the main line.

Throwing the switch, Hendricks ran back to this car, and tossing the bar to one side, stepped aboard just as the wheels began to turn. Slowly at first, then faster and faster, past the switch and down the grade, until it was rushing on and on at a rate that was a revelation to Hendricks, familiar as he was with railroading. With both hands he gripped the brake, slung from side to side as the car rounded the curves in the road, staring ahead into the darkness, wondering the while what would be the end of the frightful ride.

He saw the mass of people surrounding the heap of barrels as plainly as though he were one of them; he could see, as it were, the lighting of the fire, and then he saw a catastrophe so horrible that his blood seemed to stand still for a moment in its circling race; he saw the burning brands being hurled among the bystanders with terrific force, men, women and children being torn to pieces by the fearful explosion. He saw all this and wondered if his wild ride would be crowned with success.

Clink, clink, clink, sounded the rails as the wheels passed over them, and wist, wist, wist, sang the telegraph poles. At one point it seemed as though the wheels on one side had left the rails as the car shot around a sharp curve and then, as the straight rail to Rochester was struck, Hendricks saw the lights of the village a mile and a half away.

Bracing himself Hendricks now applied the brake, a shower of sparks answering the mighty effort. On and on the car sped, pounding the rails as though enraged at being checked in its mad rush. Each instant the switch-lights at Rochester were becoming larger and though the car was gradually coming to a stop, it was still an unsettled question which would win—strength or momentum.

Over the first of the switches the wheels pounded and Hendricks, bracing himself for a final effort tightened the brake one more notch, and setting it ran through the car and down the steps, ready to leap as the car passed the station.

How he managed to keep on his feet Hendricks never knew but somehow he contrived to and as he ran across the square where hundreds were awaiting the burning of the fire, he shouted for a clear road, and he got it.

"Drop that torch!" he shouted to the man who was about to light the fire, "drop it, I say!"

"What for?"

"Because I tell you to," said Hendricks, slipping his hand into his hip pocket, seeing that the man was not inclined to obey, "drop it, or I'll blow out your brains!"

"What is the trouble here?" demanded the constable, advancing, "why are you interfering?"

"Because I don't want to see you all blown to atoms; there's a keg of giant powder somewhere in that pile."

A short search revealed a cask of the infernal stuff and as it was rolled out a cheer was sent up that was heard across the river, more than two miles away.

Somehow the finding of the powder chilled the ardor of the people and it was decided not to burn the pile that night. One by one they returned to their homes, Hendricks availing himself of the constable's hospitality, all thankful that no horror had ushered in the Fourth.

The story of Hendricks' daring ride quickly spread through the village and the following morning, Hendricks having returned to Lanesville, a meeting was called in the square and by a unanimous vote it was decided to transfer the entire heap of barrels and boxes to Lanesville, nearly every man who owned a horse offering to assist in carrying them thither; the fireworks likewise to be displayed at the same place.

Meanwhile Temple and his companion were being rounded up and before noon they were lodged in jail; two weeks later they were behind the bars with a long sentence staring them in the face.

The celebration at Lanesville proved a booming success, nothing in past years approaching it. A few days after the Fourth, Hendricks received a letter from the superintendent of the railroad informing him that a more responsible and better paid position was awaiting him at one of the main offices. "A man who can keep his wits about him and do the only thing that can be done, acting on the spur of the moment, we deem worthy of advancement." This was the closing sentence of the superintendent's letter explaining the appointment.

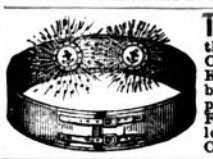
St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr. M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Our Spring overhauling of stock shows a few hundred cards of Darning Cotton on hand, 48 yds. on each card, several shades: tan, black, white, drab, etc. One card, 3c.; four cards, 10c., all mailing charges paid by us. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

IF you are like an idle wheel in a machine, receiving power and passing it along unchanged, learn to originate, to plan. Increase your power. Take a Technical Course by Mail Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Architectural and Mechanical Drawing, Surveying, Stenography, etc. 60 Courses. Write and name your choice. International Correspondence Schools, Box 1190 Scranton, Pa.



GIRLS BOYS WRITE for GRAND CATALOG and learn what YOU GET for selling our Pure Fruit Gum to friends. A beautiful Ring, SOLID GOLD plate, for selling only one box. No Address Money Required. GARFIELD GUM CO., Box O, MEADVILLE, PA.

Brass Band Instruments, Drums, Uniforms, & Supplies. Write for catalog, 445 illustrations, FREE; it gives information for musicians and new bands. LYON & HEALY, 25 Adams St., CHICAGO.

FREE TO BOYS AND GIRLS. Telescopes, Cameras & other premiums for selling two doz. 18 K. ROLLED GOLD COLLAR BUTTONS at 5c. Send your name and address & we forward postpaid 2 doz. buttons. When sold send us $1.20 & get your premium. HENRY BUTTON CO., DEPT. 122, CHICAGO.

THE ELECTRICITY from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes we will give ONE BELT FREE to one person in each locality. Address E. J. SMEAD & Co., Dept. 259, Vineland, N. J.

SENT FREE

Solid GOLD plated Bracelet sent free to LADIES GOLD plated Dress with an exquisite jewel.) Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins post-paid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you the fully engraved & the lock opens Bracelet. The chain is beautiful with a dainty little key. We trust you & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. Write to-day. The MAXWELL CO. DEPT. 535 St. Louis, Mo.

OR SILVER anyone for selling 5 sets of our Pins for 25c. a set; (each pin set apart) and we will send you the chain & address & we will send you the pins post-paid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you the Bracelet. The chain is beautiful with a dainty little key. We trust you & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. Write to-day. The MAXWELL CO. DEPT. 535 St. Louis, Mo.

RIDER AGENTS WANTED One in each town to ride and exhibit sample 1900 bicycle. 1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $20 '99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $11 500 Second-hand Wheels all makes and models, good as new, $3 to $10. Great Factory Clearing Sale at half factory cost. We ship anywhere on approval and trial without a cent in advance. EARN A BICYCLE distributing Catalogues for us. Many earned a wheel last year. Our 1900 proposition is even more liberal. Write at once for our Bargain List and special offer. Address Dept. B, 6 MEAD CYCLE CO., Chicago.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT., Augusta, Maine.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

Sudden Death If you have heart disease you are in grave danger.

You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once.

Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

Heart Disease

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. AUSTIN ALBRO, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Cayuse Hoof Prints in the Foot Hills.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

A CAYUSE is a northwest Indian pony. He is a rough-coated, sleepy-eyed, square-headed extraction of the bronco type, laying no claims to beauty or a family tree, having a pedigree of doubtful origin, and a tenacity of life that is astonishing. He is one of nature's thoroughbreds.

The whole race of the undersized horse on our western prairies is claimed by some to have originated from the small Spanish horse used by De Soto and other of his countrymen, in their early expeditions in the New World. Whether this has been satisfactorily proven, or whether they are as much a native of this continent as the now extinct buffalo, is not essential to this narrative.

As compared with our bronco, I believe the cayuse will withstand a much harder winter, and as much abuse as the former. One thing is certain, they are hard and vicious buckers.

I remember, while in town one afternoon, seeing a larger crowd than usual, perched along the top of the C. P. R. corral. On being told that a band of some two hundred horses had just been driven in from the range, I galloped over, knowing that in a cow-town, if there is one place more than another where one can find fun and plenty of it, it is in the vicinity of a dusty corral, filled with a surging mass of biting, squealing, kicking, untamed horseflesh. Casting the bridle reins over my horse's head, I joined the "rooters" at the top of the ten-foot fence.

Three cow-punchers had just roped and thrown a chestnut mare, preparatory to saddling. It seemed, that in drunken arrogance the night before, Dry-Creek Jack a pony buster from over the border, had boasted of coming up to show "them Canadian fellers" how to ride. In consequence, the wildest horse in the bunch had been selected on this the following morning, to make that rough rider "take leather"—a term used when one is obliged to grab the horn and cantle of his saddle to prevent being thrown.

While the animal was having an ugly looking curbed-bit forced between his teeth, Jack had been pointed out to me, although I could only distinguish through the dust a bluish flannel shirt, open at the throat, and a pair of white goat-skin shaps. After the saddle was firmly in place, and a big handkerchief tied tightly over the pony's eyes, the ropes were loosened, and the horse allowed to rise, which she did with awkward agility. The gate was then thrown open, and a mounted man dragged the half-strangled, reluctant horse out of the pen, at the end of a raw-hide riata. Our rider promptly swung into his seat, the noose was thrown over the pony's head and as the blinder was raised clear of her eyes she started with a succession of stiff-legged jumps toward the town, even before her rider was fairly seated. This horse was what is termed through the west a running bucker. Of course there followed a wake of laughing, guying, insinuating "jolliers," only too eager to vent their coarse wit on this rough rider, who without a doubt was a better man in the saddle than any one of them.

Two mounted men rode on either hand to prevent the unruly animal from traveling sidewise into a building or telegraph pole. Jack was riding with reckless ease, and as the two reached the railroad crossing we were unprepared to see him nearly unseated as the horse threw herself into the air, landing end for end upon the opposite side of the track.

Down the one and only thoroughfare of the town they madly tore, bucking at every other jump and nearly running over an almond-eyed son of China, who was heavily laden with a neck yoke of dripping water pails for the kitchen of the Cargyle House, close at hand. Along the front of these hotel and store buildings were broad, canvas covered verandas, having a plank flooring on a level with the road, thus forming a sort of covered sidewalk the entire length of the street. Just before reaching this the mare stopped bucking and developed a sudden burst of speed, which threatened to leave the guardians well in the rear. Apparantly without reason, she made straight for the end of this piazza, notwithstanding the efforts of her rider to prevent it. As she struck the boards there was a wild scramble among the ever present loafers, who tipped over chairs and each other in their haste to make room for the fiery-eyed intruder. She bucked into the middle of a fallen chair, sending the pieces in all directions, frightening her into more determined endeavors to dislodge the rider and causing the proprietor to swear unmercifully as the seat scaled through the open door and landed on his shin.

Down the covered porches she bucked, followed by an excited mob of men, watching for the outcome of this uncommon bit of horse play, many of whom would not have turned to look at an ordinary bucking-match. The two cow-boys, with trailing lariats, galloped abreast of him, ready at a moment's notice to rope the horse at the first sign of trouble. They were entirely unprepared for what happened, however.

The horizontal supports for the porch roof of an outfitting store were much lower than those of the previous building. The animal in her flight, bucked directly under one of these and the sound as Jack's head came in contact with it, was distinctly heard by us all. Though still hanging on, he had evidently lost control of his body, and settled down into the heavy California saddle which was the pride of his heart, limp as a rag. It was the work of a moment for one of the men to rope that horse, and for the other to ride alongside and lift the now reeling and unconscious fellow from his unsafe position.

That is busting a horse; and it knocks all the pluck and spirit out of him as well as the rider, though not always in like manner. A by-stander remarked at the time that he would not give a big copper Canadian cent for a horse broken in this manner.

In marked contrast was this to the breaking in of my own saddle-pony. Such a picture he made that wet morning in May down at Collins' corral, when I first laid eyes on his satin-like bay coat! What indignation gleamed from his usually sleepy eye, and what expression vented itself in that wrathful switch of his impatient tail! Of course I wanted him, but so did others. A man named Fox was about to break him, and in a more scientific method than the one mentioned above. The horse was vainly trying to break from the hateful raw-hide, which choked, stretched, and hummed like a fiddle-string with the tension. In his short five years of life he had felt that rope but once before—when a hot branding-iron seared the flesh on his left shoulder, forever leaving an ugly O T as a means of future identification. It was Sunday, and the few spectators watched the pair with no little interest. Fox evidently understood what he was about, and during the whole proceeding kept talking to his pupil in low soothing tones. It took some time for the animal to realize that one of his former enemies now meant him no harm; but he finally allowed Fox, after much patience and perseverance, to caress his glossy neck and broad, intelligent forehead. The man next called for a light riding-whip with which he alternately stroked and slapped the pony from head to foot, gradually increasing the force of the blows without actually hurting him. To this also the horse soon ceased to object, and even consented to having the bottom of each hoof hammered with a stone. It took him longer to become accustomed to the empty meal-bag with which his trainer pelted him; though he at last stood quietly, not minding it in the least.

In the meantime, the lasso had given place to a leather halter, with a long lead rope attached. With this rope, his head and tail were secured closely together on the right side, which checked his wild endeavors to rear and buck as he was forced about the corral by Fox and his whip. After transferring the process to the left side, the horse was thoroughly conquered, having learned his lesson well—to submit to the will of man. He was then saddled, and Fox called for volunteers to ride him, assuring us the horse would not buck; but we noticed he was averse to trying it himself. As no one seemed anxious for the opportunity, and as I wished to purchase the horse myself, and did not care to see a regular bronco buster spoiling Fox's good work, I consented to mount him. His wild, untamed nature had been subdued however, and after riding him a few times about the corral, I made a trade with the owner, and that afternoon took him up to our camp on the buttes. The whole proceeding had taken less than an hour, and was the most wonderful bit of horse-taming ever witnessed by the majority of us. Two days previous this same horse had nearly killed a man who was crossing the corral in which he was penned. He proved the gentlest animal in our outfit, with many other traits that a horse should have.

Afterward, when I was encamped far to the north on Nation river, he would come to the tent, morning after morning, frequently thrusting his nose through the canvas fly for sugar, which he never failed to receive.

Nothing so endears a horse to one as this life together on the trail. You share its dangers and responsibilities in common.

You depend upon your horses for the safe conduct of yourself and outfit. They in turn rely on you to select for them a camp site where good feed and water are plentiful. They also expect of their master to look well to the condition of their backs, and to see that the pack-saddles and loads do not gall and chafe them.

Ofttimes it was necessary on the trail to pack my riding-horse in order to save the back of one of the pack animals. It was laughable to note the utter dejection expressed in every line of his body on the mornings that I approached with the saw-buck pack-saddle instead of the usual one in my hand. Frequently through the day he would call to our notice his displeasure at the unyielding load with dissatisfied grunts.

He keenly enjoyed rounding up and chasing in the rest of the band who left their grazing each morning with the greatest reluctance. He was a splendid traveler, though not particularly fast; but while hunting strayed horses in the rough country I have been in the saddle from six-thirty in the morning until nine at night, and he seemed little the worse for his hard day's work.

That pony would traverse a log lying across a slough with the accuracy and precision of a trained tight-rope walker, for water was distasteful and the swimming of rivers was for him an abomination to the flesh.

It is said that all horses, but more especially a buckskin, having a black line beginning at the root of the tail and running the entire length of the back, are uncommonly tough, but I consider that term would apply to most cayuses. Their long shaggy coat is well adapted to protect them from the fierce winter, typical of the Canadian northwest, and they will pull through and endure hardships that would kill an eastern or less sturdy horse, twice over. A few weeks' feeding on the young and tender bunch grass in the spring, puts them in prime condition again.

I once overheard an old-timer remark to a tenderfoot who was complaining that his five-year-old was not tough: "Any hoss that'll pull through five winters on that there range," (pointing to the buttes above the town) "is a tough hoss and don't you forget it." I believe he was telling facts.

Two of these ponies, during last year, carried me faithfully and well, over a thousand miles of the roughest kind of territory—across bare divides and rocky summits and through deep, dark pine forests, where it was hard for them to rustle food. In the swampy country there were trails many miles in extent, and knee-deep with clinging spongy mud, through which they were compelled to wade and worry.

Often it became necessary to brave icy currents of greenish glacier-water, and finally to make the ascent and hurried crossing of the Cascade Range. At one time we were obliged to make sixty miles and to travel all one night, to which duty they responded nobly. It was inspiring, that ride in the moonlight across the Pacific divide. Glaciers and snow-capped summits guarded the trail on either hand, while under the cliffs far below us roared a boisterous little stream, the Sus Kwa (Bear River.)

Later we entered Hazelton, at the head of canoe navigation on the Skeena River, where our tired horses obtained a well-earned rest. Our journey was finished and we parted there.

Never will I forget those long, reckless gallops in the cool of the morning, looking for lost stock, on the ranges above the Frazer's canyons, or the longer, slower rides across the country with our pack-train.

How vividly it all comes back again—the wierd call of the coyote just at dusk, the flickering light of the camp-fire on the ghost-like tent, the crunch, crunch of the feeding horses close by or the inquiring "nicker" of a strayed one, coming from the mist on the meadow.

Perhaps he is calling for me now!

HERE IS HEALTH FREE

These Four New Preparations comprise a complete treatment for nearly all the ills of life. The Food-emulsion is needed by some, the Tonic by others, the Expectorant by others, the Jelly by others still, and all four, or any three, or two, or any one, may be used singly or in combination, according to the exigencies of the case. Full instructions with each set of four free remedies, represented in this illustration.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Slocum System is medicine reduced to an exact science by America's foremost specialist, and our readers are urged to take advantage of Dr. Slocum's generous offer. When writing the Doctor please mention Comfort.

THESE FOUR REMEDIES

Represent a New system of medicinal treatment for the weak, and those suffering from wasting diseases, or inflammatory conditions of nose, throat and lungs.

The treatment is free. You have only to write to obtain it.

Its efficacy is explained as simply as possible, below.

By the system devised by DR. T. A. SLOCUM, the specialist in pulmonary and kindred diseases, all the requirements of the sick body can be supplied by the FOUR remedies constituting his Special Treatment known as The Slocum System.

Whatever your disease, one or more of these four medicines will be of benefit to you.

According to the exigencies of your case, fully explained in the treatise given free with the free medicine, you may take one, or any two, or three, or all four, in combination.

A cure is certain if the simple directions are carefully followed.

The medicines are especially adapted for those who suffer from weak lungs, coughs, sore throat, catarrh, grip, consumption, and other pulmonary troubles.

But they are also of wonderful efficacy in the building of weak systems, in purifying the blood, making flesh, and restoring to weak, sallow people rich and healthy constitutions and complexions.

Female troubles and the many ailments of delicate children are speedily relieved.

The basis of the entire system is a flesh-building, nerve and tissue-renewing food.

Every invalid and sick person needs strength. This food gives it.

Many people get the complete system for the sake of the Food, which they themselves need, and give away the other three preparations to their friends.

The second article is a Tonic. It is good for weak, thin, dyspeptic, nervous people. For those who have no appetite, who need bracing up.

Thousands take only the Food and the Tonic.

The third preparation is a medicinal healing Jelly, in a patent collapsible tube. It cures catarrh. It heals all irritation of the nose, throat and mucous membrane. It gives immediate relief. It is also a dainty application for sore lips, sunburn, rough skin, etc.

Perhaps a million people need this jelly without any of the other articles.

The fourth article is an Expectorant and Cough Cure. The only one that can positively be relied upon. Contains no dangerous drugs, and is absolutely safe for children. Goes to the very root of the trouble, and not merely alleviates, but cures.

The four together form a panoply of strength against disease in whatever shape it may attack you.

THE FREE OFFER

To obtain these four FREE invaluable preparations, illustrated above, all you have to do is to write, mentioning COMFORT, in which you read this article, to DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your name and full address. The free medicine will then be sent you, in the hope that if it does you good, you will recommend it to your friends.

A POCKET LUXURY

Is a tortoise shell comb in a neat and fancy case, always handy and useful; good for men, women, school children and the soldiers. We will send one with our great catalogue of thousands of bargains for only six cents. Address, Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

FREE EXAMINATION Express Charges Paid

Before you buy a watch it will not cost you a cent to see our great watch bargain. Cut this out and send to us with your name and address, and we will send you by express for examination a handsome WATCH AND CHAIN C.O.D. $4.50. Express charges paid. Double hunting case beautifully engraved, stem wind and stem set watch, fitted with richly jeweled movement, finely adjusted and guaranteed a correct time keeper, with long gold plated chain for ladies or vest chain for gents. If you consider it equal in appearance to any $40.00 gold filled watch and chain bearranted 20 years, pay the express agent $4.50 only and the watch and chain are yours. Our 20 year guarantee sent with each watch. Mention if you wish Ladies or Gents size.

DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., 225 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

$100.00 PER MONTH and expenses paid the right man for selling our famous Poultry Food. For full instructions, FREE, address LAMBERT FOOD CO., Dept. 37, Parsons, Kas.

A Bona-Fide Offer!

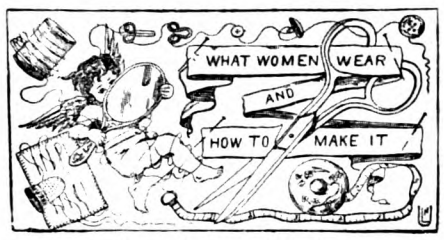
$3.00 Daily. Easy. No Failure.

HARNESS RIVETER—New Principle. Complete Repair Shop in one tool; every horse-owner buys. To start you we will send FREE a complete canvassing outfit "worth $1" for 25 cents to prepay packing and shipping charges. Mammoth catalogue of fast sellers free.

O. S. LEWIS MFG. CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.



The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially adapted for cleaning and polishing Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Delicate Surface. It does not scratch! It works Wonders! and a child can use it! Will clean and polish just as well when black as when new. No matter how soiled the "cloth" may become, the black will not rub off and soil the hands. Can be used until entirely worn out. A moist portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sure. Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the Century.

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents' prices and a paid three month's trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, Box 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

IN spite of dull, heavy skies the summer's fashions embrace all the thin stuffs with more than usual affection and are unquestionably lovely. The most modest of dressers should have several linen and cotton gowns of various weights and textures. An odd application of materials is the combining cloth of gold, heavy gold braid, and even tiny bullion fringe with white linen and pique, and yet it's the newest wrinkle and considered most chic.

Skirts shirred across both hips as well as the back are very popular and becoming to slender figures. Of course heavy materials cannot be made up in this way. It is prettier in soft fabrics like chiffons, mousseline de soie, berege, etc. With this style of skirt the collarless bodice and elbow sleeve are the correct accompaniments, with very frequently the dainty undersleeve as a finish. Sleeves are usually snug from shoulder to elbow and perfectly devoid of trimming, but from elbow to wrist all sorts of elaborations are indulged in. A pretty sleeve has a small puff set directly at the elbow, and a second one at the hand where it droops to the fingers. Another novel sleeve has a plain, tight upper arm, the lower arm entirely laid in tiny frills about one inch wide. The effect is very pretty. A favorite sleeve is snug to the elbow where it is set off by a loose square cuff, underneath which is an undersleeve of daintily embroidered muslin finished with a narrow band at the wrist.

There is a craze just now for Chinese jewelry in all of which jade appears first and foremost, probably because it is supposed to bring all sorts of good luck to the wearer. Jade bracelets of a beautiful green are worn by up-to-date girls, while pendants of jade are worn on the chatelaine. The most unique among these novelties, perhaps, are the belts composed of Chinese characters in silver applied to black velvet.

Can you imagine anything more fetching than a dear little tight-fitting coat of flowered silk, built exactly like a military coat, worn with a frou-frou lace skirt? The coat is double-breasted and has a deep, flat collar of lace like the skirt, while the elbow sleeves with their deep ruffle, have under sleeves of white tucked chiffon as a finish.

Smart little Etons of taffeta or velvet, short-sleeved and collarless, are worn with skirts of chiffon or muslin laid in the narrowest of tiny frills from the waist to the foot of the skirt. Separate skirts must match, or at least harmonize as much as possible with the shirt waist or those of fancier build. A skirt of creamy nun's veiling or alpaca may be worn most effectually with any of the light, dressy blouses now so much in vogue, and present a really much more attractive tout ensemble than the dark skirt, which has a way of cutting the lines of the figure directly in two.

A new belt which seems particularly chic, consists of satin, is leather lined, with a buckle at the back and a safety-pin attachment at the lower side for securing the belt to the skirt. The fastening was effected by a tiny extra strap inside the belt, so that the end of the latter was passed simply through a cross-band and the buckle which held the fringed scarf in place had all the appearance of buckling the belt also. This leather lining of silk and ribbon belts is a feature worthy of attention. In some cases the leather exceeds the ribbon in width. The most attractive of these are in light colors, grey or fawn; the ribbon facing of moire, and the buckle covered with leather. The large cut steel and silver buckles are still to the fore.

Pure gold jewelry grows more and more in favor. By "pure gold" must be understood that curious greeny gold, which I understand is the precious metal practically unalloyed. One says "As yellow as gold," but unalloyed gold it seems is really not yellow but a pale yellowey, sage green. To my taste it is not so attractive as the deep yellow gold, even if it is less pure.

Tulle bows are made so excessively full and of such crisp tulle that they flare out into rosettes; they are frequently chenille spotted, but sometimes have their edges of ribbon. They are not so becoming as the softer bows, though they probably look smart on people whose faces are large enough to overcome them.

Stiff corsets are unknown in Paris. French corsets are always supple and bendable, and this accounts for the ease of French figures, which are never tightened except at the waist, leaving the bust and hips quite free. The English figure is usually tightened too much at the bust and hips, which gives too straight a look to the figure rendering every movement stiff and uncomfortable. Let any girl lace her corsets only at the waist and let her select them as soft and light as possible, and then see if her figure be not as graceful in shape as the most graceful and elastic French figure. No tight, straight-down, even lacing will ever make a pretty figure. If the corset cannot be made expressly to suit the figure, then let it be laced only in the middle of the waist. Even then no corset should be worn by girls until they are well along in their teens. Remember, the softer the corset the easier it will be and the tighter it may be laced at the waist without feeling uncomfortable. This is the only way to mould the figure without injuring the health.

Tiny little tucks are used in a variety of ornamental ways, and serve as a perfect host in themselves. They are little more than pipings and are thus most amenable of adjustment and are easily made to assume the outlines of yokes, corselets and boleros, not to mention epaulette sleeve-caps. Stitching is also used in most extravagant elaborations, and never fails to lend an air of originality to the most commonplace gown.

Artistic applications of embroidered cloths promise to be a distinct feature of the season's trimmings, white and ivory tints being much in favor for the purpose. For example, a bodice cut in the small round decolletage La Mode is pleasant in effect, is filled in with two or three flat collars, facing upwards, of white cloth, stitched over with those little raised French knots, and show a piping of black velvet. Embroidered panne is also considered of excellent merit; more particularly white or one of the delicate pastel shades stitched with black. The speck of black is always a relieving note and grows upon one's affections gradually.

Now that our dresses are made to fit so tightly over the hips, well-fitting underclothes are a necessity. The French idea is to have chemise and petticoat made in one. The upper part is cut to fit the figure without the least vestige of fulness, and then below the hips it widens into the ordinary petticoat. These garments have merely a strip of lace or ribbon to support them across the shoulders and fasten down the center of the front to just below the waist.

Here we are all wearing our hair on the very top of our heads. In Paris it is worn in a chignon low in the back of the neck. The hair in front is waved and rolled back from the face, and the chignon itself is loose and large. In the evening bunches of roses and violets nestle in the hair, but in the daytime it is worn quite plain.

The new colored handkerchiefs are very pretty. In blue, pink and mauve they are charming, and of course they must match the gown with which they are worn. They are embroidered in white in pretty open patterns. Embroidered muslin collars and cuffs are coming in again, too. These are edged with lace, and worn over a colored foundation.

The African empire blouse is the most popular novelty for country wear. It is made of fine quality Khaki cloth, the seams being piped with red cord. It has a deep turn-down shirt collar, with red bone buttons down the front, and an expanding pocket on the left side of the front at the fulness; this pocket is also piped with red. The same idea is carried out in fawn glace silk and scarlet satin pipings or narrow silk Russian braid and has proven to be a very attractive addition to the toilette. Apart from this, the shape of the blouse is the most comfortable that has ever been introduced, as there are no shoulder seams, the yoke being shaped out and fitted to the shoulders in the same manner as a milk-maid's yoke. In this way the weight of the clothing is very evenly distributed, and the wearer consequently enjoys a greater amount of freedom than is experienced in an ordinary ready-made blouse, which has a tendency to drag across the fulness of the figure unless it is cut properly.

Dame Fashion is now prophesying that brides will soon discard gloves altogether. They are certainly a nuisance, more especially if the bride is inclined to be nervous, for who ever heard of gloves coming off easily just when they are especially wished to. The bride of today wears very little jewelry; wedding gowns are in themselves so elaborate that additional ornamentation of this kind would give an overdressed appearance. Original brides are discarding the traditional orange flower and wearing myrtle, white heather, lily of the valley, or, if they possess a flower name, their own especial flower.

A Fourth of July Celebration.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE most original, unique and amusing celebration of the Fourth of July which has yet been evolved, was that gotten up last summer in a country place in northern New York. A house party had been planned for the day, and as the invited guests approached the house from the railroad station their first view of the old homestead showed them "Old Glory" floating from its roof, and flags in the place of curtains at every window. The sound of the piano playing the prelude to the "Star Spangled Banner" met their ears, and as the loaded wagon stopped at the door a group of thirteen young girls upon the piazza, each adorned with tri-colored ribbons and waving an American flag, broke into the words

"Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light."

All greetings ceased at the sound, the occupants of the wagon sat still in their seats, and not a sound broke the stillness until the grand old hymn was finished and then such a babel of cheers, clapping and hurrahs as went up from listeners and singers alike as nearly caused a stampede of the horses.

Below, on the wide green lawn, was a queer sight. Half a dozen Jersey calves, each blanketed with a flag, frisked about with uncouth gambols at the command of a youth clad in jacket, trousers and cap of the national colors.

Dinner was served on the wide veranda, and the table, with its white cloth, blue dishes and centerpiece of scarlet flowers, and the buttonhole bouquets consisting of one red and white carnations tied with blue ribbon, which lay at each plate, carried out with great success the national color scheme of the day.

The traps which took the party for a ride in the afternoon had awnings of flags, all the horses which drew them were blanketed and adorned with the national colors, the reins striped red, white and blue, and the whips gay with bows and streamers of the same colors.

A POCKET MIRROR.

See yourself as others see you. One of our large imitation aluminum covered pocket mirrors for the boys and girls at school, for the teachers, for men in the woods. Just 5 cents for one with our latest premium supplement.

Golden Moments, Augusta, Maine.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES

Female Troubles, Stooping Posture, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset.

We have over 15,000 letters like this:

Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.

Your Brace did all you said about it and more for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, lung disease, stomach and other ills to which women are subject. MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain sealed envelope. Address The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27, Salina, Kansas

Every woman should have this Brace.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm for selling 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, and a large Premium List. No money required.

BLUINE CO. Box 418, Concord Junction, Mass.

ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. "Physician" Box 86, Augusta, Maine.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. MEN and WOMEN At Home or Traveling

Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. Everybody buys—business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition. New Plan, etc. FREE. World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

[We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor.]

Free Send no money

EARN THIS HANDSOME BROCADED DRESS SKIRT.

This is a very stylish and handsome black skirt, with a full 3 & three quarter yard sweep. It is made in a handsome variety of all over large leaf brocade woven BRILLIANTINE; a durable and stylish material for dress skirts lined with a patent black rustling cloth. 7 in. interlining bias velveteen bound bottom. We will send it free to any one for selling 2 doz. sets of our Ladies' Gold plated Dress Pins for 25c. a set, (each pin set with an opal-like jewel.) Send no money. Simply send your name & address & we will send you the pins postpaid. When sold, send us the money & we will send you this beautiful DRESS SKIRT for your trouble. We trust you & will take back all the pins you cannot sell. We'll send you a SOLID GOLD plated Jewel set Ring, free, if you write to-day.

The Maxwell Co., Dept. 121 St. Louis, Mo.

BARGAIN SALE Remnants of SILK RIBBONS

BEAUTIFUL SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

To close out our tremendous large stock of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, which is the largest in quantity, value and variety in New York City, we have marked the prices way down. These are the most beautiful Silk Ribbons in the East, and at this remarkable mark-down sale we are making an unprecedented and unparalleled BARGAIN OFFER. These beautiful Silk Ribbons were recently purchased at wholesale auction sales at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure unheard of bargains. We are overstocked and must sell them at a greatly reduced price from their real value. These ribbons are really very fine ribbons. Please do not judge them by our MARK-DOWN PRICES. They are bought in very large quantities at wholesale auction sales, and we generally buy for spot cash all the ribbons a mill has. We have bought as high as $8,000 worth of these beautiful Silk Ribbons at one time, and they are certainly of most excellent value. We are anxious to sell a lot of these rare Silk Ribbons in every neighborhood, as their beauty and value at OUR CUT PRICES will sell lots of them to your lady friends.

Now, remember, these remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the finest quality of Ribbons in the market, of different widths, in a variety of fashionable shades; in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bonnet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bows, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Satin Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of our lady friends.

We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors, no remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods.

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address

PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3044, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

RHEUMATISM IS DEAD!

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy for Rheumatism and it made a record of absolute cures in Acute Rheumatism, frequently called rheumatic fever, Pericarditis (inflammation of the investing membrane of the heart), Endocarditis (inflammation of the living membrane of the heart), subacute rheumatism, sometimes applied to the less severe attacks of the disease, chronic rheumatism, which swells and twists the joints and sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. In fact Oxien is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism in any form. Thousands jump for joy and many write as follows:

Received OXIEN O. K. Found it far superior to what you represent. Have tried everything I could hear of for rheumatism. For ten years I have been crippled up with this terrible disease. Laid in bed one whole year. Could not turn or feed myself and when I was able to walk on crutches (which I did for four years) was crooked and unable to straighten up, but Oxien did it and you can imagine how happy I am now. Yours sincerely, Geo. F. Lawton, Olympia, Wash., Feby. 9th, 1898.

FREE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.

This momentous offer we make in order to more thoroughly introduce this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us their word that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered entitled to free treatment. Therefore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.

THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

1st.	For the best original letter	$3.00
2nd.	" " second best original letter	2.50
3rd.	" " third " " "	2.00
4th.	" " fourth " " "	1.50
5th.	" " fifth " " "	1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least one new Cousin into the COMFORT circle; that is, they must send one new subscriber with each letter, together with 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Fanny Turner Randolph,	$3.00
J. M. W. Smith,	2.50
Belle T. Osborne,	2.00
Orma V. Eaves,	1.50
C. C. Tindall,	1.00
Mrs. J. C. Adams,	2.00
Cecilia A. M. Blake,	1.50

DEAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

July is not usually considered to be a time for serious contemplation, but the thought comes to me as I write how many well-known men and women have left this world in the short space of a year. Horatio Alger, Grant Allen, Robert A. Ingersoll, Major Logan, Bishop Newman, Mrs. E. D. N. Southworth, Mrs. Kate Sprague (daughter of Salmon P. Chase), Cornelius Vanderbilt and our Vice-President, Garret A. Hobart. These are only a few out of the long list, and doubtless my readers can supply many more. How fast the scenes around us change! If this world were all how sad would be our lives!

Our first letter today is well adapted to the season, for it tells of the delights of cray-fishing. But we will let its author speak for herself. She says:

"I think I have never seen anything about cray-fishing in your paper, so will send a description of it.

"On the plantation in the springtime cray-fishing is our favorite amusement. Two miles from our residence are the woods, and running through them is a network of small ditches and bayous, and here the cray-fish abound. We arm ourselves with tin pails and poles. Instead of hooks as in ordinary fishing, we tie a small piece of salt meat to the end of the string. We take also small dipping nets, just as in crabbing, and now the merry crowd is ready to drive to the scene of action. It is very picturesque, with the great shady cypress and oak branches waving overhead and the wild bamboo canes, palmettoes and ferns growing all around. Each one chooses what seems to be a good place on the bank of some bayou, though in wandering up and down the banks of these sluggish streams, one has to be careful to avoid the venomous black land and water moccasin snakes, which according to their nature creep among the dead leaves and tangled underbrush, or slip with a soft splash into the water from which they are never far away. Often they lie along the boughs of the moss laden trees which meet over the bayou, and the fisher has to see that none of these ugly neighbors are near.

"When he is satisfied that he has the premises to himself, he throws in his line and waits for a first bite, which is indicated by a rapid drawing and jerking of the string as the cray-fish backs off with the meat toward his hole in the mud. The fisher then gives a gentle pull and with the aid of his net generally succeeds in landing one or two fine old fellows. They resemble a lobster somewhat, but are very much smaller. They are usually of a dull brown color, but occasionally you see a bright red one. With their protruding black eyes which roll around in every direction, their long, white whiskers and wildly waving claws, they present quite a ferocious appearance and care must be taken in handling them for sometimes they pinch very badly.

"These queer little fish dig round holes on the banks of bayous and stay in them during winter. With the spring they come up and build around these holes odd shaped little chimneys of mud, often a foot above the ground. What these fortifications are intended for no one knows. Here in Louisiana the cray-fish are considered a great delicacy, especially by the French, who make of them a delicious soup called bisque. They can be found in other southern states, but are not generally eaten."

FANNY TURNER RANDOLPH, Bayou Goula, La.

Now let us leave the hot, July sunlight and revel for a while in the cool darkness of a limestone cave.

"This part of Kentucky is a limestone region and is noted for its many large caves. The Mammoth Cave, Proctor's Cave, Grand Avenue Cave and the Colossal Cave, are all within a radius of fifty miles of this place, but the one which I shall attempt to describe has a history hitherto unpublished. It is known as the Rhoton Cave, and is situated in a picturesque woods and hilly country, about six miles east of Tompkinsville. Its dimensions are phenomenal, and there are many branches from the main cave leading off in all directions. Exploring parties have traveled in this great underground opening many miles without reaching the end, and the extent of all its grandeur and expanse is yet unknown.

"This cave first came into notice about thirty years ago, by being occupied by a band of 'wild-cat' distillers. Far away in the interior is a spring of pure water, near which they built and operated their distilleries, regardless of the numerous futile attempts of the revenue officers to break up and capture the band together with their distilling outfits; and not until they got tired of the business did they vacate the cave and leave the country.

"The most notable feature of this cave is a huge chamber, far back from the entrance, which presents the appearance of having been, at some remote period, the habitation of human beings. In the center of this chamber is a square stone with length, breadth and height about four feet and smooth on the top. It appears to have served as a dining table; for on it were found shell bowls, shell spoons, and knives made of both stone and bone, besides other articles supposed to have been used in the culinary art of some race dim ages ago. Scattered over the stone floor of the chamber may yet be seen the bones of buffalo, bear and other animals long since extinct in this part of the world.

"In another chamber of the cave, upon a shelving rock, was found a well preserved skeleton of a human being of giant stature, and on its walls may be seen numerous characters and hieroglyphics carved in the rock. These are supposed to represent the written language or dialect of some extinct race. Numerous stone articles characteristic of the warfare of a barbarous race have also been found here." J. M. W. SMITH, Tompkinsville, Ky.

I have here an account of the murderous assault on William Goebel, which every American deeply regrets, but as there is nothing in the letter which we have not already read in the newspapers, it is not worth while to print it.

Anna E. Brientall, from Lancaster, Pa., sends me a story which I cannot use, but return thanks for it.

Now let us wander through the great prison described below, and imagine, if we can, how we would feel if stone walls confined us in this lovely July weather.

IOWA'S State Penitentiary is visited by thousands of people each year. The large excursion boats that plow the Mississippi river during the summer months bring upon some days five or six hundred visitors, eager and curious to be shown the details of prison life. The door fee of twenty-five cents goes toward the book fund, and so rapidly does this fund accumulate that a library numbering now over ten thousand volumes, well assorted and carefully catalogued, is at the service of every inmate of the prison.

"This is the oldest penal institution in the State of Iowa. It is located on a plateau in the eastern end of Fort Madison in full view of the approach either by rail or river. It was built in 1839, with a capacity for one hundred and thirty-eight prisoners. The present cell house contains over five hundred cells, the late additions being of steel. The warden's residence is in front of the prison and is a handsome stone building with broad steps and wide veranda.

"Massive walls of stone enclose a square measuring four hundred feet on each side. In the center of this square is an artificial lake and a handsome fountain: the remainder is sodded and dotted profusely with beds of choice flowers which are constantly renewed from the greenhouse near by. Each day five hundred silent men, clothed in the striped garb of the penitentiary, pass by all this beauty on their way to and from their work. Who can tell the influence exerted upon them by the daily sight and sounds of this lovely spot! All about this square are built the great shops, and the sounds of hammers, saws and forges tell of the busy work within. The tool contract employs one hundred and fifty men, the chair company fully as many; the state shops, where sewing, knitting and mending are done; the magnificent new building completed in 1899, and occupied by the Pearl Button Manufactory, are all of interest to the visitor.

"Passing from the noise and confusion of machinery we stop at the hospital, then into the great dining hall with its hundreds of laid places. The wooden benches upon which the men sit while eating are as white as scrubbing can make them. We watched the great army of men march in lock step, under many guards, in to their dinner. Then we saw the fine cold storage room, and the large rotary oven. In the chapel services are held at nine o'clock each Sabbath morning. This service is obligatory but the Sunday-school in the afternoon is not, although most of the men prefer to attend. The buildings are all heated and lighted by electricity, the plants for which are operated within the walls. There are no idlers in this busy hive, and many learn here trades which help them, when their time is up, to earn an honest livelihood.

"Should a man die within the walls, and his body be unclaimed by friends, it is given a resting-place on a high hill north of the walls, beneath which rolls the mighty Mississippi river, as restless, changeful and turbulent as have been the lives of those whose bodies now lie so quietly beneath the trees on the green hill." B. T. O.

The following description of a Fourth of July celebration in Georgia reminds me strongly, in all but the barbecue, of similar celebrations which I have witnessed in the small towns of the New England states. Verily, we are all brothers and the same love of country thrills us all.

"In the small country towns of Georgia the Fourth of July is celebrated with much enthusiasm. For some days before great preparations are in progress for its observance. A committee is appointed by the Confederate Veterans and the local Militia, whose duty it is to prepare a fitting program for the occasion, consisting of speeches, music and a big barbecue.

"Early on the morning of the Fourth the town is thronged with people from all parts of the county. The gray-haired veterans who charged with Gordon, and the pretty country maidens are there, the good old mothers with their soldier sons who are members of the local militia are there, with the fire of patriotism and love of liberty burning as brightly in their hearts as in those of their forefathers in '76. A more congenial and happy crowd could not be found. They listen to the words of the orator of the day, sometimes being moved to tears and then to laughter; they thrill with patriotism as the band plays the Star Spangled Banner, Dixie and the Bonnie Blue Flag, and at the close of the literary exercises the assemblage repairs to the shade of the beautiful oaks, where a bountiful dinner is spread to which they do ample justice.

"As the evening shades draw near in every direction can be seen the 'good old country folks and the laughing lads and lassies going back home, to dream of pleasures enjoyed during the day."

C. C. TINDALL, Jesup, Georgia.

Now here is a letter, and a nice letter, too, from away out in the wilds of Texas—Montgomery, Texas, is the address, but unfortunately our cousin gives me no name but "Lelia", so I cannot write to her.

"You will probably remember me as an old subscriber, for COMFORT was the first paper I ever took, earning the money to subscribe. I can truly say it has greatly improved since. I pick it up now and find it a paper of news, and that in plain condensed form. I am a teacher away out in the country where Bible study is sorely needed. There was no Sunday school till I came to live here six months ago. I had been raised in a good sized town a strict Sunday school scholar and teacher all my life, and felt I couldn't live without it, my sister being the day teacher here, so we banded to organize a school and church. A move for a new house was carried out, the neighbors assembled, and built seats. We now have eighty-four members. How is that for a country school, ten miles from nearest town?" LEILA.

The two following letters are two of the June prize letters which were unavoidably omitted from that issue.

The next letter speaks for itself and needs no comment from me, but I cannot refrain from saying that "it makes the heart go forth greatly" in pity to think of a human soul put in a blind body with a brain so torpid or disordered that it has no way of expressing itself but by music. What a comfort it is to know that there is another world where such poor stifled souls may expand in beauty.

"To many of the cousins the name of 'Blind Tom' is doubtless familiar, so wide-spread is the reputation of this singular child of Nature; but perhaps not many have enjoyed one of the interesting entertainments given during the early days of his musical exhibitions. His individual genius lay in his imitative power, and in all other respects his mind seemed singularly dark. A young slave down in Dixie, previous to the Civil Strife, Tom, in consequence of his sad misfortune, had ever been a privileged character upon his master's plantation; and with an inherent love for music the blind boy would often grope toward the house from whence the sweet notes of the piano reached his ear, and listen with rapt delight to the performances of his young mistress.

"One day, it is said, the lady was greatly surprised while absent from the music room to hear not only the notes of her instrument but also the excellent rendering thereon of her most difficult selections. Hastening thither she beheld idiotic Tom in her accustomed seat, his head thrown back, eyes rolling from side to side, and every feature expressing thorough delight at the success of his musical reproductions. It was a startling revelation to the household, and the result was that Tom, from an obscure, country slave, suddenly became a noted musician and traveler, drawing crowds wherever he went.

"It was during the early part of the Civil War that this strange creature, making a tour of the South under the guardianship of his master, visited my native city. He was then about eighteen years old, tall, angular, ungainly; his sightless eyes as they restlessly rolled from side to side showing only balls of white in a setting of ebony blackness; in every feature a typical African with the unmistakable signs of a 'mind diseased.'

"Having visited Washington, D. C., immediately before Secession, and there heard the great political orators of the day, Tom reproduced with remarkable accuracy their animated speeches, carefully duplicating the individual peculiarities characterizing each.

"Curious and wonderful indeed were his musical performances, the most remarkable being a piano solo entitled: 'The Battle of Manassas' of which Tom was the reputed composer. From the treble notes came sweetly the far-away sounds of the Confederate bands, as they advanced, playing: 'The girl I left behind me,' while the bass sonorously represented the Northern host, heralded by the strains of 'Yankee Doodle.' Nearer and nearer drew the opposing armies; louder grew the respective national airs; then came an ominous lull, followed by a single boom! and the contest had begun. What a perfect pandemonium of sounds next followed! The roar of artillery, the roll of musketry, the call of the bugle were in turn imitated; while occasionally 'Dixie' and the 'Star Spangled Banner' came floating from the South and North; the audience, meanwhile, listening in breathless interest. At last the uproar ceased, and the ungainly musician, awkwardly bowing and scraping, retired amid loud and prolonged applause.

"The close of the war brought Tom his freedom, but it is doubtful if his prosperity increased. Speculative greed is said to have actuated those of his own race who quickly constituted themselves his guardians, and poor Tom was the sufferer. He is now well advanced in years and there are no more exhibitions of his genius; but we will hope that the declining days of this dusky child of Nature may be gently soothed by Nature's music and tenderly guarded by Nature's God."

MRS. J. C. ADAMS, Beaufort, S. C.

Now for a bit of description of the beauties of Nature.

"Wisconsin is noted for its numerous lakes, and the one I am about to describe ranks high among them.

"Early in this century there arrived here two men from the East who took up claims bordering on the lake, which was then without a name. One of them wished to name it Big Foot, on account of its shape, and for a number of years it was known as such; but the surrounding scenery recalled to the other man his far-away home among the lakes of New York, and he finally caused this name to be changed to its present one, Geneva.

"It is entirely surrounded by forests of natural growth that are now laid out in parks, in which are towering elms and oaks of immense size. Many of them have been cut down to make way for buildings, and these have been found to have passed the century mark by many years. Springs bursting out from almost unheard of places are among the curiosities, and a sudden rise in the ground recalls to your mind the fact that a long departed Red Man sleeps beneath.

"Many of the parks are private, but there are six of them which are open to the public, and of these the most popular is Kayes, situated in a valley on the south side of the lake. It is a favorite family resort of aristocratic Chicago people, the distance from the city being about seventy-five miles.

"Fishing is great sport here, as there is an abundance of every kind of fresh-water fish. During the month of June the lake is a moving mass of a kind of fish known as the cisco, and swarms of flies called by the same name hover over the lake in colonies like mosquitoes. These are used as bait for catching the fish.

"The dwellings here are largely of antique designs, and on some of the highest points are built hospitals for the insane; commodious hotels fitted up with all available comforts are to be found at every park; electric railways are now being run to the lake and there is about to be constructed a line that will reach from central Illinois.

"What is said to be one of the oldest towns in the northwest is that of Geneva, a dilapidated looking place of about three thousand inhabitants. In early days this was the only trading place for many miles around, and it was nothing then for a man or woman to drive one hundred miles to do shopping at Geneva, with only an ox team for conveyance. And yet the remaining old settlers delight in telling of 'those happy early days.'"

CECILIA A. M. BLAKE, Woodstock, Ill.

The St. Lawrence river has been often described, but nevertheless its wonders seem ever new and fresh with every return of summer.

"No better season of the year than the present could be chosen for a trip through the far-famed Thousand Islands to Montreal, the metropolis of Canada, and to quaint old Quebec. Starting from Clayton, we took the steamer for Montreal, through the famous rapids of the St. Lawrence. Our steamer passed successfully Round Island and Thousand Island Park and made its first stop at Alexandria Bay. Short calls were made at Brockville, Prescott, and Morrisburg, and then the Long Sault Rapids come into view. These rapids are nine miles in length, and contain the heaviest swells on the river. Near the foot of the rapids is the noted Indian village of St Regis. The next entered are the Coteau rapids, two miles in length, but very swift in places. A few miles further down are Cedar rapids and the Split Rock Rapid, the most difficult of all for navigation. Then come the Cascade Rapids, with their white crests, near the foot of which, as we pass close to an island on the left, is the swiftest current in the river. We soon passed under the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge and were dashed through the Lachine Rapids, the last and most exciting. Shortly after we reached Quebec and while there visited the spot where the American General Montgomery fell in trying to capture the city in 1775 and the Plains of Abraham where the great battle was fought which resulted in the defeat of the French.

"On our return we visited Montreal and saw a few of the principal objects of interest, including the great French Cathedral of Notre Dame, which in size, in its magnificent altars and valuable paintings, is probably the finest cathedral in all Canada. Our trip up the elevator to the top of Mount Royal, which commands a view of nearly the entire city, was quite exciting. The great monument to the English Admiral Nelson was next seen, and then we turned our faces homeward."

MAGGIE WILSON, Chaumont, New York.

Here is a description of a sight which would be novel enough to most of us.

IN the long lane that stretches past my home there may be seen each Sabbath morning a procession, one might call it, they come so constantly—of grotesquely attired people wending their way to church. It takes these Russian Polanders but a short time to learn and copy American customs, for those who have been here four or five years are dressed almost like Americans, ride in buggies and drive some really beautiful horses. But those who have lived in this country only a short time, especially the women, are dressed in every conceivable manner. Some wear—regardless of the season—wool, some bright colored lawns and calicoes, and one whom we often see is attired in dirty, white challie, bedecked with ribbon of many colors, while on her head she wears a yellow straw hat trimmed with a wreath of faded flowers.

"The women wear heavy, high-heeled boots, skirts that reach nearly to their ankles and thick, spotted wool coats to their knees. Some wear on their heads large red and white figured handkerchiefs, while others glory in the possession of many colored shawls. Boys not more than six years of age are clad in full-length trousers, shirts and suspenders—miniature men.

"These are the latest arrivals and some of them walk several miles through snow or dust, rain or sun, to be present at the morning service. Consequently their church is largely attended, while a wedding has but little attraction for them.

"When these people first come to the New World many of them are really cruel; they will seldom go for a physician if a very old woman or a small child falls ill. 'No good; can't work,' they say. One man came to town for a pine box, in which to bury a child; he had three others made. He said: 'Got three more childs sick; all goin' to die, have boxes ready.'

"But wishing to appear as well as Americans they soon adopt, to a certain extent, our mode of living and dressing."

ORMA V. EAVES, Bremond, Texas.

And now good by for a month.

AUNT MINERVA.

DO YOU PLAY THE VIOLIN?

If so try our new importation of Violin Strings, from one of the best Makers in Europe. Full set of four strings, A. E. G. D. or 4 of any letter for only 10 cents, Stamps or Silver.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

$8 Paid Per 100 for Distributing Samples of Washing fluid. Send 6c. stamp. A. W SCOTT, Cohoes, N. Y.

COE'S ECZEMA CURE $1 at druggists. 25c. size of us. CoeChem.Co., Cleveland, O.

WE are giving away Silk Waists for a little work. Address, NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., New Haven, Conn.

$3.00 To $10.00 PER THOUSAND PAID FOR DISTRIBUTING CIRCULARS. Send 4 stamps for particulars and contract. SMITH ADV. ASS'N, STA. 2, BALTIMORE, MD.

WANTED. Good Agents to sell our preparations. Address Bay State Drug & Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.

$5.00 CASH per 1000 paid to Distribute Circulars. Enclose 4 stamps. World Adv. Asse'n, Chicago.

$3 PAID PER 1000 for distributing circulars. Enclose stamp. Star Ointment Co., Tyrone, Pa.

RUPTURE CURED while you work. You pay $4 when cured. No cure, no pay. ALEX. SPEIRS, Box 530, WESTBROOK, MAINE.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every locality. Act under orders. No experience needed. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

WE PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kan.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n 32, Cincinnati, O.

PHOTOS COPIED, 1 BUTTON 10c or 3 for 25c. Photos 20c, 50c, 75c & $1.00 doz. Photo returned uninjured. Elegant work. Sample Photo (our selection) & 10 Cat. 3c. 4 Samples 10c Stamp Photos, Watch Free. Sunbeam Photo Co. Dep. CD, Buffalo, N. Y.

FREE CURE for ASTHMA Trial Package of three special medicines Free. DR. W. K. WALRATH, Box 505 ADAMS, N. Y.

X-RAY Latest pocket curiosity. See your fellow, best girl or any object through clothing, wood or stone. 35c each. B. E. X-Ray Co., Philada., Pa.

SPANISH NEEDLES, GOLD-ometers, etc., for gold hunters and treasure seekers. Latest improved. Circulars 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

for selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc. etc., and will send you six of our 25c. Plasters which you are to sell and return the money ($1.50) to us and we will send you all charges paid, the elegant Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single value, $2.00; 1 Genuine, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; 1 Cake Perfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address

THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 654, Augusta, Maine.

COMFORT

THE KEY TO

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World

Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 50c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Guaranteed Circulation:

ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

The International Conference of the Christian Endeavor Society meets this month in London, Eng. The record of the meetings must be read in order to appreciate the phenomenal growth and influence of this organization.

Fourth of July! Our gunpowder circles the world in honor of Freedom's birthday. It is true that part of the circle has been blazing all the year in order to create an interest in our birthday and that in other parts the powder to celebrate must pay a duty of fifteen per cent. But these are minor sounds beside the screeching of our eagle. We have so much more room to make noise in that we must per force make more noise. We sometimes have a few doubts about being right but we never have any about going ahead. For that reason we have a glorious Fourth and we are proud of it.

Since 1899, Andrew Carnegie has given over $7,000,000 towards the founding of libraries. It is a somewhat peculiar fact that Mr. Carnegie will not give a cent towards the support or maintenance of hospitals. It seems to be his idea that the advancement of the world can only come through the young and strong. Whatever can be done to benefit the active workers of the world he does. It shows a touch of the extreme scientific theory that future ages will consider it no kindness to the world at large to prolong life that ceases to be a pleasure to itself or a profit to the world. We can be scientific in the abstract and see that "survival of the fittest" may mean the development of the race, but the average humanity can not hold this theory in concrete. For that reason hospitals are likely to be well supported even though Mr. Carnegie systematically refuses to give money to them.

The miniature has become fashionable again. These dainty little portraits are a revival of a form of art very popular in the early part of the eighteenth century. Many young women artists are making large sums of money in depicting nineteenth century graces in eighteenth century manner. One wonders in looking at miniatures of famous beauties if the type of beauty has really changed as much as would appear by placing an old miniature beside a modern "Gibson Girl". The sloping shoulders have become square and erect, the pensive air has become piquant or pert—in fact the whole face and figure are changed. The cover of the popular novel, Janice Meredith, is ornamented by a charming miniature and much curiosity has been aroused by it. Many people have thought it a reproduction of an old colonial miniature and have questioned as to the original. It seems that an artist friend of the author, Paul Leicester Ford, heard the heroine of the novel described. Gradually as Janice was portrayed by the author she became a reality in the mind of the artist and the beautiful miniature was the result.

We may listen to the bird music of the summer with the feeling that some few points have been gained in the struggle to protect these little brothers of the air. Only a short time ago the most optimistic of their friends felt that our song birds and wild birds would fast become exterminated by the cruel fiat of fashion. Attempts to stop the use of birds for millinery purposes by appeals to women seemed useless. The New York State Legislature in its last session passed an act to protect the birds. To find the feathers of wild or song birds in any one's possession was to have that person guilty of a misdemeanor. At about the same time the Lacey Bill passed the House. This humane measure prohibits the importation of birds from one state to another or their passage from one state through another except as the laws of that state admit. These laws are just and righteous. It is rather a sad fact that it has been necessary to appeal to a body of men in order to place mercy above millinery. It is true that many of the best women of the land have worked hard for the passage of this bill, but it is no less true that it is the vanity of women that has forced legislation on this subject.

A recent peculiar phase of public feeling has shown itself in an attempt to revive the whipping post as a method of punishing certain forms of crime. Delaware has always retained her whipping post. The system has found warm advocates in this country. The claim is made that we are weakly sentimental in our modern ideas of the treatment of criminals, and that whipping is the natural punishment for wife-beating and for brutal treatment of other varieties. Fear of results has never proven a restraining motive with the criminal class. If this were not so murder would cease, but even the certainty of loss of life does not prohibit the crime. In the seventeenth century there were over two hundred offences punishable with death in England, yet crime was of more frequent occurrence than to-day. Severe punishment brutalizes those who receive it. It does not correct or restrain. The English parliament recently refused to pass a bill re-establishing whipping as a punishment. Many reputable papers have advocated this. The spirit of brutality that seems to follow war has infected both England and America. This revival of the whipping post idea has resulted. People are not civilized through their skin but through their heads and hearts. Where no other means of punishment are available the whip may find a temporary place. England and America are not in the same scale of civilization as Russia and China. To revive the whipping post is to confess that our boasted superior humanity and civilization are but names.

Two statues that are to be sent from America to the Paris Exposition are arousing somewhat unfavorable comment for different reasons. A statue of Lafayette in bronze is to be presented to the French government. Over $100,000 has been raised for this work and many people are asking what is to be done with that sum of money. Competent authorities declare that $50,000 will provide a statue of bronze. The answer made to this criticism has been that silver and gold are to be added to the composition. The thought that prompted the collection of money and the presentation of the statue was a most admirable one. The name of Lafayette is dear to every American. His influence, his youth, his bravery and the romantic incidents of his life after he returned to France combine to make of him an ideal hero. It is to be deplored that any mismanagement of funds or carelessness in expenditure has called forth criticism of what was primarily a gracious act. The "gold statue" has also aroused a fair degree of interest and a larger degree of criticism. This statue is to be exhibited by a firm who have had the casting made of nearly two hundred thousand dollars' worth of the yellow metal. They are to call the statue "The Typical American Girl," and for the model have selected the popular actress, Miss Maude Adams. It is said that other stage favorites offered as high as $20,000 for the privilege of acting as a model. Miss Adams is of slight, undeveloped figure—in fact, only her charm of manner saves her from the epithet "scrawny." As it is people say "spirituelle." Now the modern American girl is an athletic young woman at home, on the golf links, the tennis ground, the wheel, or on horseback. She is actually almost as tall as the leading illustrators in black and white make her. To place such a tiny little lady as Miss Adams as a type of this young Amazon is the height of absurdity. The "Golden Girl" should bear a faint resemblance to the average young American woman. Miss Adams does not—and so the protest rises.

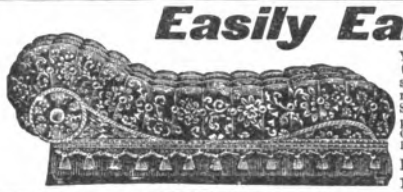
In these days when it seems the fashion to deplore the want of artistic culture in this country and to depreciate our art, our literature and our music, a strong contrary opinion is appreciated. There are people who refuse to believe that we are as crude and commercial as our ultra refined critics would strive to make us appear. A generous spirited man, Mr. Hurley of Brooklyn, is making a most practical demonstration of his belief in American art. He has been known among artists for years as a generous and intelligent patron of American art. In that time he has made one of the finest collections in America of representative and contemporary American pictures. Every prominent American artist is represented by from one to three and four specimens of his best work. Mr. Hurley next conceived the idea of hanging this valuable collection of pictures in the public schools of the city. He sends his men and hangs the pictures, leaving them for about a month. During this period the people of this vicinity are given the opportunity to view the collection. In one of the High Schools short art lectures were given by two of the most prominent artists represented in the collection. These men made rapid sketches in oil and explained the method of work, afterwards presenting the pictures to the school. During the summer Mr. Hurley proposes to place the collection in some vacation school in the crowded part of the city where the people have no opportunity to see Nature. The work is a noble one in many respects. To the more cultured portions of the community it demonstrates the fact that modern American art need not fear comparison with the best work of foreign artists. It makes a deep and lasting impression upon the children who for a whole month are face to face with all that is best in the art life of the country. It brings a glow of brightness and hope to the dwellers in city slums and does a missionary work as far-reaching as it is subtle and intangible. Back of all the altruistic thought is the sound Americanism of the man who believes in American art and shows his belief in the way that our critics claim is our standard—by paying for it. All honor to the man who can be practical and philanthropic at one and the same time. Some thousands of American children will grow up with an admiration for American art and an appreciation of it that dates to the time when this magnificent collection of Mr. Hurley's adorned the walls of their schoolrooms.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.



$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12
Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ill.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. ART INSTITUTE, Lima, Ohio.

"CASH For Acceptable Ideas. State if patented." Address THE PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

Easily Earned. No Money Required. Samples FREE.

You can earn this splendid Couch, 76x28 in., extra large, upholstered in three colored figured velours, tapestry or corduroy, best steel springs, deeply tufted, very heavy fringe, worth $13 in any retail store, by selling only $13 worth of our High Grade Toilet Soaps or Perfumes among your friends and neighbors at 25c per box or bottle. We trust you for the Soap and Perfume. Our handsome illustrated Catalogue showing 150 other valuable premiums, including Bicycles, Watches, Cameras, Guitars, Rockers, Silverware, Tea Sets, etc. Sent Free

Don't miss this wonderful offer. Write today.

BULLOCK, WARD & CO., Dept. 28 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

★ FULL SIZE ★ ★ GOOD PAPER ★

2½ cts. SHEET MUSIC a Copy

★ LARGE TYPE ★ ★ UNABRIDGED ★

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFERED AT THIS TIME.

No.	PIANO OR ORGAN.
165	American Liberty March	Cook
101	Ancients Abroad. March—Two Step	Cook
247	Artist's Life Waltzes	Strauss
181	Auld Lang Syne. Variations	Durkee
187	Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	Pacher
215	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive	Anderson
179	Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands	Streabbog
227	Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes	Strauss
65	Bells of Corneville. Potpourri	Elson
213	Black Hawk Waltzes	Walsh
257	Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans.	Richards
221	Bluebird Echo Polka	Morrison
199	Boston Commandery March	Carter
109	Bridal March from Lohengrin	Wagner
229	Bryan and Sewall March	Noles
133	Cadences and Scales in all Keys	Czerny
1	Catherine Waltzes	Stroh
255	Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands.	Mascagni
237	Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands.	Behr
145	Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step	Missud
217	Cleveland's March	Noles
81	Coming from the Races Galop	Wheeler
211	Corn Flower Waltzes	Coote, Jr
41	Crack Four March.	Ashton
71	Crystal Dew Waltz	Durkee
235	Day Dawn Polka	Cook
163	Dewey's Grand Triumphal March	Marcel
117	Echoing Trumpets March	Noles
121	Electric Light Galop	Durkee
91	Estella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Robinson
107	Ethel Polka	Simons
155	Evergreen Waltz	Stoddard
231	Faust. Selections	Durkee
77	Fifth Nocturne	Leybach
233	Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz	Lasalde
239	Flower Song. Op. 39.	Lange
97	Fresh Life	Spindler
177	Frolic of the Frogs.	Watson
49	Full of Ginger. March Galop.	Nutting
183	Golden Rain. Nocturne	Cloy
147	Grand Commandery March—Two Step	Missud
53	Greeting of Spring, op. 21	Schultze
185	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Richards
173	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes	Jewell
139	Home, Sweet Home. Transcription	Slack
17	Impassioned Dream Waltzes	Rosas
153	Jenny Lind polka. Four hands	Muller
157	Last Hope. Meditation	Gottschalk
195	Leap Year Schottische	Kahn
253	Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka.	Behr
159	Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop	Durkee
249	Lohengrin. Selections	Durkee
141	London March—Two Step	Missua
99	Maiden's Prayer, The	Badarzewske
45	March Winds Galop	Mansfield
240	Martha Selections	Johnson
207	May Breezes. Four hands	Krug
225	McKinley and Hobart March	Turner
55	Memorial Day March	Hewitt
131	Monastery Bells. Nocturne	Welty
89	Morning Dew, op. 18	Smith
61	Morning Star Waltz	Zahn
201	Music Box, The. Caprice	Liebich
137	My Love Polka	Zichrer
125	My Old Kentucky Home. Variations	Cook
87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations
175	National Songs of America	Blake
135	Nightingale's Trill, op. 81	Kullak
123	Old Folks at Home. Transcription	Blake
171	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations	Durkee
219	On the Wave Waltz	Dinsmore
197	Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step	Robinson
245	Orvetta Waltz	Spencer
9	Our Little Agnes. Waltz	Gregoire
191	Over the Waves Waltz	Rosas
79	Please Do Waltz	Durkee
193	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	Brunner
167	Red, White and Blue Forever. March	Blake
143	Richmond March—two-step	Missud
245	Rustic Waltz	Schumann
127	Rustling Leaves. Idylle	Lange
39	Ruth, Esther and Marion Schottische.	Cohen
149	Salem Witches March—Two-Step	Missud
189	Schubert's Serenade. Transcription	Liszt
161	Silvery Waves. Variations	Wyman
169	Smith's (General) March	Martin
31	Song of the Voyager	Paderewski
22	Souvenir March Song of 1895 K. T. Parade	Dow
95	Spirit Lake Waltz	Simons
151	Storm, The. Imitation of Nature	Weber
73	Storm Mazurka	Keefer
109	Sultan's Band March.	Brown
209	Sweet Long Ago Transcription	Blake
115	Tornado Galop	Arbuckle
103	Triffet's Grand March, op. 182	Wedel
223	Twilight Echoes. Song without words	Jewell
113	Under the Double Eagle March	Wagner
129	Venetian Waltz	Ludovic
205	Village Parade Quickstep	Allen
7	Visions of Light. Waltz	Cook
203	Warblings at Eve	Richards
93	Waves of the Ocean March	Blake
59	Wedding March	Mendelssohn
251	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem.	Howe
119	Woodland Whispers Waltzes	Stanley
105	Zephyr Waltz.	Bragg

No.	VOICE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
236	Across the Bridge	Le Brunn
2	Annie's Love. Duet for Sop. and Ten.	Winter
27	Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana	Mascagni
140	Beacon Light of Home	Estabrooke
134	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet	Glover
238	Bells of Seville	H. Jude
162	Ben Bolt, of "Trilby" fame	Kneass
226	Blue Eyes	Elson
246	Boyhood Days, Chorus	Fritz
200	Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow	Carew
192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keep a Secret?	Estabrooke
214	Childhood's Happy Hours	Dinsmore
138	Christmas Carol	Turner
190	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Schumann
168	Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk	Blake
92	Cow Bells, The. Boyhood's Recollection	Grimm
250	Darling I Shall Miss You	Cohen
176	Darling Nellie Gray	Hanby
70	Dear Heart, We're Growing Old	Estabrooke
128	Don't drink, my Boy, to-night. Temp.	Hoover
256	Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus.	Turner
50	Easter Eve. Sacred	Gounod
220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory	Hosfeld
19	'E Dunno Where 'E Are. Comic	Eplett
72	Ellaline. Waltz song	Betts
180	Far Away	Bliss
182	Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
126	Far from the Hearthstone	Messer
152	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic	Mathot
156	Flag, The. Quartette	Fox
144	Flirting in the Starlight	Delano
8	Flossie. Waltz Song	Cohen
138	For a Dream's Sake	Cowen
36	For the Colors. Patriotic	Wilson
66	For You We are Praying at Home	Estabrooke
166	From our Home the Loved are Going	Percy
202	Give a Kiss to Me	Percy
178	God Bless My Kind Old Mother	Jewell
204	Golden Moon	Ivan
150	Gypsy Countess. Duet	Glover
198	Heart of My Heart	Robinson
184	I Can't Forget the Happy Past	Skelly
74	In Sweet September	Temple
248	In Shadowland	Pinsuti
188	In the Starlight. Duet	Glover
28	Juanita. Ballad	May
242	Kathleen Mavourneen	Crouch
196	Killarney	Balfe
132	Kiss me, but don't say goodbye	Rutledge
130	Kiss that bound my Heart to thine	Keil
164	Larboard Watch. Duet	Williams
146	Listen to the Mocking Bird	Hawthorne
48	Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet	Estabrooke
154	Little Voices at the Door	Danks
96	Lost Chord, The	Sullivan
40	Love Ever Faithful	Buculossi
25	Lurline, Do you think of me now?	Estabrooke
234	Margaretta	Balfe
112	Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard	Keeler
230	Memories of my Mother. Chorus	Allen
30	Mission of a Rose, The. Song	Cowen
52	Mother's Cry, A. (Salvation Army)	Adriance
172	Mother's Welcome at the Door	Estabrooke
222	Musical Dialogue Duet	Helmund
232	Must the Sweet Tie that binds	Estabrooke
76	My Home by the Old Mill	O'Halloran
110	My Little Lost Irene	Danks
170	My Old Kentucky Home	Foster
216	Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain,	Dinsmore
228	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber)	Foster
60	Old Glory. National	Woods
102	Old Sexton, The	Russell
104	On the Banks of the Beautiful River	Estabrooke
90	On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad	Robinson
160	Outcast, An. Character Song	Fritz
174	Parted from our Dear Ones	Keller
254	Picture of My Mother, The	Skelly
148	Poor Girl didn't know. Comic.	Cooke
56	Precious Treasure. Song and Dance	Weiler
136	Request. Sacred	Grainger
208	Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	Knight
142	Rosemonde	Chaminade
80	See Those Living Pictures	Guth
224	Shall I Ever See Mother's Face Again?	Adriance
194	She Sleeps among the Daisies	Dinsmore
124	Softly shine the Stars of Evening	Dinsmore
210	Son's Return, The	Fritz
120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive	Hullah
10	Sweetest Song, The	Denza
32	Sweet Long Ago, The	Estabrooke
46	That Word was Hope. Waltz song	Nutting
118	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds	Danks
206	There's Sure to be a Way	Delano
158	Thinking of Home and Mother	Cohen
116	'Tis True, Dear Heart, We're Fading	Estabrooke
108	Tread softly, the Angels are calling	Turner
38	True to the Last	Adams
64	Vicar of Bray, The. Old English Song
62	Your Mother's Love for You	Koppt
252	Warrior Bold	Adams
84	What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet	Glover
58	When the Roses are Blooming Again	Skelly
86	When Winter Days Have Gone	Trayne
186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic	Randall
212	Why am I ever Watching	de Lasaide
218	Why do Summer Roses Fade	Barker

DON'T FORGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-five cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.

Any 10 for 25 cents.
Any 21 for 50 cents.
Any 43 for $1.00.
Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any six of the above pieces free as a premium, and for 25c will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

THE PEERLESS MAIDEN.

GAVOTTE.

ARTHUR M. COHEN, OP. 349.

Copyright, MDCCCC, by THE AMERICAN MUSIC CO., Philadelphia, Pa. Used by permission.

MUSIC OLD AND NEW.

"Dido and Eneas" one of the earliest English musical plays, written several centuries ago by D'Urfey and Tate, was recently performed in London by musical students under the direction of Ellen Terry's son, Gordon Craig. At the same time Sir Arthur Sullivan was directing the performance of "The Mikado" in the Royal Opera House in Berlin. This is bringing into immediate notice the vast difference of styles of old and modern opera.

In many musical articles COMFORT has plainly shown its readers how fickle the popular taste in music is; and how rapidly music set to any given idea wears itself out. But it will be noticed that standards of any line of music always hold the public heart and are never entirely forgotten.

When COMFORT entered the musical line we decided to print only the best and highest class of music. That which will stand the test of time only is accepted. Every copy of the beautiful sheet music in our offer is standard both in music and make-up. It is full sheet music almost given away and if not satisfactory your money comes back although the amount about pays mailing expenses. We want to introduce it to you and your friends. Read the offer now.

When you are thinking of the great cost of sheet music at stores, give up that idea and economize by taking advantage of COMFORT'S music offer on another page. It's almost a free present of the best sheet music.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS.

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.

Please mention COMFORT when you write.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THERE is an old idea which has often been used at church socials and small parties, which with a slight variation might be used again as a novel and easy way of entertaining a small or medium sized party of more or less musically inclined people. The idea referred to is that of the "Art Gallery," which contains "Study of Fish in Oils," represented by a box of sardines; "A Bridal Scene," represented by a bridle hung up; "The Flower of the Family," a sifter full of flour, etc. The variation of the idea would be to have musical terms and phrases represented in the same way.

A small musical club worked this out with great success at one of its meetings.

As we came into the room each lady was given a card, jaggedly cut, on which was written the name of some familiar musical work or composition, as, for instance, the "Messiah," the "Spring Song," The "Melody in F," the "Fifth Symphony," etc., and each gentleman was given a similar half card on which the name of a composer was written. Then the search for partners began. Sometimes composer and composition would match but the jagged edges of the cards would not; sometimes the cards fitted together, but the composer and his work were not properly mated; so the hunt for partners was not as simple as it appeared to be at first. As soon as the companion for the evening was found, the couples went, three or four at a time, into an adjoining room, where each person was handed a sheet of foolscap on which were twenty-eight numbers, one on each line, and a lead pencil. In the center of the room was a large table on which there was a motley collection of objects numbered from one to twenty-eight. No one was allowed to remain in the room over ten minutes, and no talking was permitted; so every one set to work at once to guess what musical terms or phrases the articles on the table represented, and to write down his guesses on the paper in his hand, opposite the corresponding numbers.

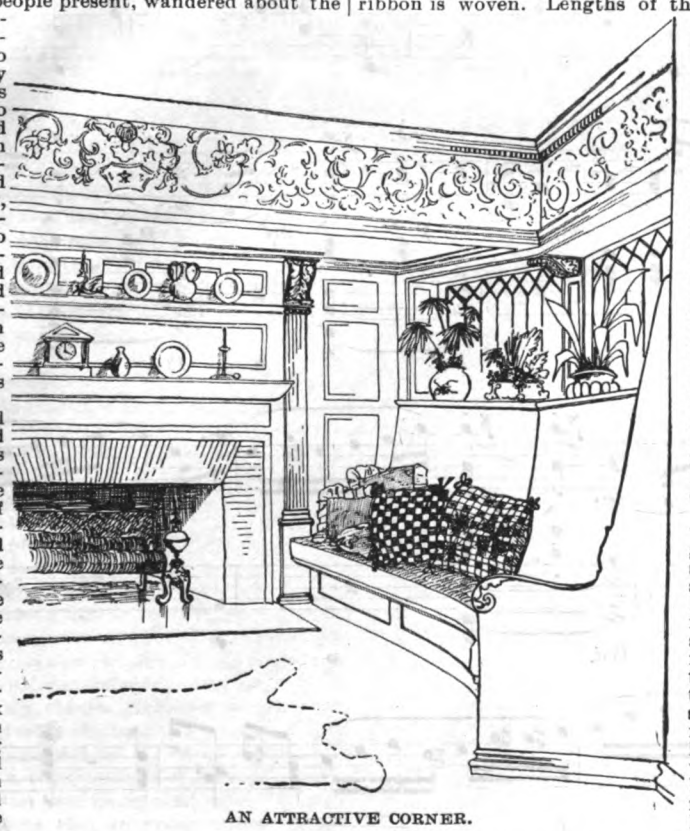
The ten minutes up, we gave our papers to the doorkeeper, keeping our fancy pencils as souvenirs, and went back into the parlors. But before re-entering them each one had a name pinned upon his back, and spent part of the evening trying to find out what musical celebrity he or she was—for Patti, Paderewski, Aus der Ohe, Nordica, Maurel, Tamagno, De Lussan, Emma Eames, Melba, and Maud Morgan, several noted violinists, singers and composers, besides a number of local musicians, choral and orchestral leaders well known to the young people present, wandered about the rooms, trying to discover who they were by the remarks made to them and about them by the assembled company, who attempted to be very mystical and very learned in their conversation about the musical celebrities present.

When all had returned their papers to the doorkeeper there was a wait of a few minutes and then the judge announced the names of the prize winners. Copies of a well-known musical work were given to the young lady and young man who had made out the most complete lists of the objects on the table. During the evening an informal musical programme had been rendered, and, of course, some dainty refreshments were served, with the accompaniment of instrumental music. The articles on the table were:

1. A quire of paper.
2. Three little dolls dressed alike and looking alike.
3. A carpenter's brace.
4. A watch.
5. A razor.
6. The chin rest from a violin.
7. A card on which was written XL.
8. A name written on a sheet of paper.
9. A pair of apothecary's scales.
10. The base taken from a table bell.
11. A peck measure with two beets.
12. A heavy string.
13. A flatiron with the letter B on its face.
14. A cardboard letter C hung from the gas fixture.
15. A lump of tar.
16. A pipe stem.
17. A large half-tone engraving.
18. A bank note.
19. A baby's shoe with an O on the sole.
20. A stout cane.
21. A love letter which starts out bravely, but has a large blot half way down the page.
22. A necktie.
23. A box of iron.
24. A door key.
25. A pocket rule.
26. A twenty-five-cent-piece with a black court plaster dot pasted on it.
27. A small bunch of flowers and a lock of hair tied with a ribbon.
28. A circular piece of cardboard cut into three equal pieces.

The musical terms these things were supposed to represent were:

1. A choir.	11. Two beats in a measure.	21. Accidental.
2. Triplets.	12. Chord.	22. Tie.
3. Brace.	13. B flat.	23. Bar.
4. Time.	14. High C.	24. Key.
5. A sharp.	15. Pitch.	25. Measure.
6. A rest.	16. Stem.	26. Dotted quarter.
7. Forte.	17. Half tone.	27. Natural.
8. Signature.	18. Note.	28. Thirds.
9. Scales.	19. Solo.
10. Bass.	20. Staff.



One of the readers of this column has sent in a suggestion which she calls the "Charity Box." She says:

"At house cleaning time is a good chance to start this. Have a box ready, and when looking over the wardrobe put in all the garments that the children have outgrown, or which for any other reason you would lay aside. If possible, put in good repair and have all clean, and then at any time you have a call to help the poor, you know just what you have to give, and where it is. If you have not time to repair them, possibly a friend would gladly do it for her share of kindness."

The same one suggests the following way of cleaning bottles: Cut potato parings very fine and fill the bottle with same; let stand a day or two when they will ferment and remove all the stains, leaving the inside of the bottle as clean as when new.

We have seen a number of new covers for soft pillows recently—one of which is made of dark blue and white checked gingham, the checks measuring an inch across. The illustration shows a sofa pillow with one of these covers, and though it is small, it gives an idea of the shape of the figures, which are made of No. 12 Dexter cotton yarn, white, and the cover is just as pretty after having been laundered as when first made, which is one thing, at least, in its favor. On the outside all around the darkest squares are crossed and a short stitch taken over the center of all the stitches; a row of these stars are between each large figure, and the center of the pillow is the same. In the large figures there are two patterns used; in each corner the round figure is made; between each corner are made three of the other pattern. The foundations of each of these patterns are the same, the foundation is first made, and before making any of the stitches stretch the cloth onto embroidery rings; this is the only way you can keep the work smooth. For the ruffle and back use plain gingham to match the square that is blue and white mixed; one-half yard of the check makes two tops if 32 inches wide and 1 1-2 yard of plain makes back and ruffle for two pillows. Each of the large figures uses nine of the white squares; be sure and start the corners with white checks.

Another cushion, also shown, is made of inch wide satin ribbon in two colors,—crimson and white having been used in our model. The children in the Kindergarten make mats of colored strips of paper in the same way this ribbon is woven. Lengths of the ribbon are cut to go entirely across both sides of the cushion to be covered, and then are woven in and out until the entire cover is made. Bunches of the two colors of ribbon are made for each corner of the cushion. A very beautiful combination is of yellow and white, but of course it is exceedingly delicate.

AN ATTRACTIVE CORNER.

For those who use a great many sofa pillows, and who have a feeling that they are always re-covering them to keep them presentable, the new handkerchiefs will be a blessing for one can have three or four pillows covered with them and yet not feel that they are rushing a good thing too much.

These handkerchiefs are of China silk, square, and printed with a design which has a border three or four inches deep of a plain color,—red, navy blue, purple or green; the center is of white with polka dots in it of the color used in border. The handkerchief has a narrow stitched hem. The pillow is laid on the handkerchief cross-wise, so that the four corners all meet in the center on one side and the edges are simply sewed up, over and over, with silk to match the border, and the thing is complete, showing a polka-dotted surface on one side the pillow, and a dark color on the other. A pillow may be covered in twenty minutes and when the cover is soiled can as easily be removed, washed and put back. These handkerchiefs cost fifty cents each, and while not of very heavy silk, would stand three or four washings before breaking out. They are of the right size to cover an eighteen-inch down pillow.

This illustration shows the machine closed, to be used as a center table, stand or desk.

SEND NO MONEY Cut this advertisement out and send to us and we will send you this, OUR HIGH GRADE DROP HEAD CABINET EDGEMERE SEWING MACHINE by freight, C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, equal to the highest grade sewing machines advertised by other houses at $20.00 to $30.00, and as good a machine as you could buy from your dealer at home at $30.00 to $40.00, the greatest bargain you ever saw or heard of, pay your railroad agent our SPECIAL OFFER PRICE OF $12.75 and freight charges. Give the machine three months' trial in your own home and we will return your $12.75 any day you are not satisfied.

This illustration gives you an idea of the appearance of the High Grade, High Arm Edgemere Sewing Machine, which we furnish at $12.75 in the handsome 5-drawer drop head oak cabinet illustrated.

OUR $12.75 EDGEMERE SEWING MACHINE is covered by a binding 20-year guarantee, is made by one of the best sewing machine makers in America, has every new and up-to-date improvement, very high arm, positive four-motion feed, is very light running, does any work that can be done on any sewing machine made. It comes in a beautiful solid quarter-sawed antique oak, drop head cabinet, as illustrated. Cabinet is beautifully finished, highly polished and decorated with a complete set of the finest colored floral marquetry designs.

WE FURNISH THIS SEWING MACHINE COMPLETE with a big double set of attachments and accessories, instruction book and our 20-year binding guarantee, as one of the highest grade, high arm, 5-drawer marquetry decorated, drop head cabinet machines made. ORDER TO-DAY. DON'T DELAY. We can only guarantee this special $12.75 price until our stock on hand is gone. (Sears, Roebuck & Co. are thoroughly reliable.)—Editor.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO.

ALUMINUM AND AGENTS SPECIALTIES Write for particulars and CATALOG FREE. A. VINING NOVELTY CO., 60 Wabash Av. CHICAGO.

ARE YOU ASHAMED OF YOUR FACE? LOVELY face, beautiful neck, can be had by all who send five FREE 2-cent stamps for postage, wrapping, etc., of a large trial size of our Great Beautifier; we will also send a package of Arabian Sachet and a booklet on beauty, all free. Goodwill Chem. Co., Room 223, Wamsley Bldg., Balto., Md.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

A BIG OFFER 50c. MADE IN A MINUTE! If you will hang up in the P. O., or some public place, the two show bills that we send, we will give you a 50c. cert., and send it in advance with samples and bills. This will trouble you about one minute, and then if you want to work on salary at $50 or $100 per month, let us know. We pay in advance. GIANT OXIE CO., 125 Willow St., Augusta, Me.

SPECIAL SUMMER BARGAIN SALE OF BOOKS!

In order to stimulate trade and to keep our force busy during the usually dull summer months, we have decided to offer our full line of standard and popular books by well-known authors for a limited time at a tremendous reduction from regular prices. From now until October 1st, 1900, therefore, but not thereafter, we will fill orders for all books hereafter enumerated at the extraordinarily low prices here quoted. All books will be sent by mail post-paid, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction. Each is complete in itself. Please examine the list carefully and send your order for what you want:

No. l256-263. Popular Cyclopædia, 8 vols., per set..32 cts.	No. a53. Grace Darnel, by Miss M. E. Braddon.....3 cts.
No. l47-58. Charles Dickens' Works, 12 vols., per set48 cts.	No. a54. Allan Quatermain, by H. Rider Haggard..3 cts.
No. l104. Leatherstocking Tales, 5 vols. in one....22 cts.	No. a56. Lady Latimer's Escape, by C. M. Braeme.3 cts.
No. l41. East Lynne, by Mrs. Henry Wood.....5 cts.	No. a57. Allan's Wife, by H. Rider Haggard.....3 cts.
No. l42. Jane Eyre, by Charlotte Bronte.....5 cts.	No. a58. The Sign of the Four, by A. Conan Doyle..3 cts.
No. l43. John Halifax, Gentleman, by Miss Mulock.5 cts.	No. a59. Pretty Miss Smith, by Florence Warden...3 cts.
No. l44. The Woman in White, by Wilkie Collins...5 cts.	No. a60. Christie Johnstone, by Charles Reade.....3 cts.
No. l45. Lady Audley's Secret, by Miss Braddon....5 cts.	No. a61. A Dark Night's Work, by Mrs Gaskell.....3 cts.
No l46. The Three Guardsmen, by Alex. Dumas....5 cts.	No. a62. The Tragedy of Lime Hall, by C. M. Braeme.3 cts.
No. l106. Adam Bede, by George Eliot.....5 cts.	No. a63. Sybil Brotherton, by Mrs. Southworth.....3 cts.
No. l107. Vanity Fair, by W. M. Thackeray.....5 cts.	No. a64. The Risen Dead, by Florence Marryat.....3 cts.
No. l108. The Last Days of Pompeii, by Bulwer.....5 cts.	No. a65. Sweet Is True Love, by "The Duchess"...3 cts.
No. l109. Put Yourself in His Place, by Chas. Reade.5 cts.	No. a66. At Bay, by Mrs. Alexander.....3 cts.
No. l152. Dora Thorne, by Charlotte M. Braeme....5 cts.	No. a67. At War with Herself, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.
No. l219. Tempest and Sunshine, by M. J. Holmes...5 cts.	No. a68. The Mystery of No. 13, by Helen B. Mathers 3 cts.
No. l220. Inez, by Augusta J. Evans.....5 cts.	No. a69. The Haunted Hotel, by Wilkie Collins.....3 cts.
No. l221. 'Lena Rivers, by Mrs. Mary J. Holmes.....5 cts.	No. a70. Cranford, by Mrs. Gaskell.....3 cts.
No. a41. Uncle Tom's Cabin, by Mrs. H. B. Stowe...5 cts.	No. a71. A Fatal Temptation, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.
No. a1. The Scarlet Letter, by Nathaniel Hawthorne.3 cts.	No. a72. The Gold Bug, by Edgar Allen Poe.....3 cts.
No. a2. The Mystery of Colde Fell, by C. M. Braeme.3 cts.	No. a73. The Man in Black, by Stanley J. Weyman..3 cts.
No. a3. Under the Red Flag, by Miss M. E. Braddon.3 cts.	No. a74. Ghost of Riverdale Hall, May Agnes Fleming.3 cts.
No. a4. King Solomon's Mines, H. Rider Haggard...3 cts.	No. a75. Beyond the City, by A. Conan Doyle.....3 cts.
No. a5. Around the World in Eighty Days, by Verne.3 cts.	No. a76. Lady Ethel's Whim, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.
No. a6. The Corsican Brothers, by Alex. Dumas.....3 cts.	No. a77. The House of the Wolf, Stanley J. Weyman.3 cts.
No. a7. Lady Grace, by Mrs. Henry Wood.....3 cts.	No. a78. The Mystery of Cloomber, A. Conan Doyle.3 cts.
No. a8. Averil, by Rosa Nouchette Carey.....3 cts.	No. a79. The Haunted Homestead, Mrs. Southworth.3 cts.
No. a9. The Black Dwarf, by Sir Walter Scott....3 cts.	No. a80. She's All the World to Me, by Hall Caine..3 cts.
No. a10. A Noble Life, by Miss Mulock.....3 cts.	No. a81. The Artist's Love, by Mrs. Southworth....3 cts.
No. a11. The Belle of Lynn, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.	No. a82. Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, by Maclaren.3 cts.
No. a12. The Black Tulip, by Alexander Dumas....3 cts.	No a83. The Heir of Brandt, by Etta W. Pierce....3 cts.
No. a13. The Duchess, by "The Duchess".....3 cts.	No. a84. Homestead on the Hillside, Mary J. Holmes.3 cts.
No. a14. Nurse Revel's Mistake, by F. Warden.....3 cts.	No. a85. Heiress of Hendee Hall, Etta W. Pierce...3 cts.
No. a15. Merle's Crusade, by Rosa Nouchette Carey..3 cts.	No. a86. The Shadow of a Sin, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.
No. a16. A Study in Scarlet, by A. Conan Doyle.....3 cts.	No. a87. The Light that Failed, by Rudyard Kipling3 cts.
No. a17. Rock Ruin, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens.....3 cts.	No. a88. Lord Lynne's Choice, by C. M. Braeme....3 cts.
No. a18. Lord Lisle's Daughter, by C. M. Braeme...3 cts.	No. a89. The Broken Engagement, by Southworth..3 cts.
No. a19. The Armorer of Tyre, Sylvanus Cobb, Jr...3 cts.	No. a90. The Haunted Chamber, by "The Duchess"..3 cts.
No. a20. Mr. Gilfil's Love Story, by George Eliot...3 cts.	No. a91. The Toll-Gate Mystery, Mary Kyle Dallas..3 cts.
No. a21. A Scarlet Sin, by Florence Marryat .....3 cts.	No. l217. A Pleasure Exertion, Josiah Allen's Wife...1 ct.
No. a22. The Sea King, by Captain Marryat.....3 cts.	No. l224. Gable-Roofed House at Snowdon, Holmes..1 ct.
No. a23. The Siege of Granada, by E. Bulwer Lytton.3 cts.	No. l225. Crime and the Curse, by Mrs. Southworth...1 ct.
No. a24. Mr. Meeson's Will, by H. Rider Haggard...3 cts.	No. l226. Hinton Hall, by Mrs. May Agnes Fleming..1 ct.
No. a25. Jenny Harlowe, by W. Clark Russell.....3 cts.	No. l227. The Surgeon of Gaster Fell, A. Conan Doyle.1 ct.
No. a26. Beaton's Bargain, by Mrs. Alexander.....3 cts.	No. l228. Glen's Creek, by Mrs. Mary J. Holmes.....1 ct.
No. a27. The Squire's Darling, by C. M. Braeme....3 cts.	No. l229. The Wife's Victory, by Mrs. Southworth....1 ct.
No. a28. The Russian Gypsy, by Alexander Dumas..3 cts.	No. l230. What Gold Cannot Buy, by Mrs. Alexander.1 ct.
No. a29. The Wandering Heir, by Charles Reade....3 cts.	No. l231. Missing—A Young Girl, Florence Warden..1 ct.
No. a30. Flower and Weed, by Miss M. E. Braddon..3 cts.	No. l232. Maiwa's Revenge, by H. Rider Haggard.....1 ct.
No. a31. No Thoroughfare, by Dickens and Collins.3 cts	No. l233. A Troublesome Girl, by "The Duchess".....1 ct.
No. a32. The Great Hoggarty Diamond, Thackeray.3 cts.	No. l234. Moat Grange, by Mrs. Henry Wood.....1 ct.
No. a33. The Surgeon's Daughter, by Walter Scott.3 cts.	No. l235. Story of a Wedding Ring, by C. M. Braeme.1 ct.
No. a34. Hilda; or, The False Vow, by C.M. Braeme.3 cts.	No. l236. Her Manifest Destiny, Amanda M. Douglas..1 ct.
No. a35. Grandfather's Chair, by N. Hawthorne....3 cts.	No. l237. Clouds and Sunshine, by Charles Reade....1 ct.
No. a36. A Trip to the Moon, by Jules Verne.....3 cts.	No. l238. The Lawyer's Secret, Miss M. E. Braddon...1 ct.
No. a37. The Pioneer's Daughter, Emerson Bennett.3 cts.	No. l239. Two Kisses, by Charlotte M. Braeme.....1 ct.
No. a38. A Little Rebel, by "The Duchess".....3 cts.	No. l240. Sir Noel's Heir, Mrs. May Agnes Fleming..1 ct.
No. a39. Master Rockafellar's Voyage, Clark Russell.3 cts.	No. l241. The Pearl of the Orient, Sylvanus Cobb, Jr..1 ct.
No. a40. The Heiress of Hilldrop, by C. M. Braeme..3 cts.	No. l242. From the Earth to the Moon, Jules Verne...1 ct.
No. a42. Hickory Hall, by Mrs. E.D.E.N.Southworth.3 cts.	No. l243. Mildred Trevanion, by "The Duchess".....1 ct.
No. a43. Meeting Her Fate, by Miss M. E. Braddon.3 cts.	No. l244. Wall Flowers, by Marion Harland.....1 ct.
No. a44. In Durance Vile, by "The Duchess".....3 cts.	No. l245. The Last of the Ruthvens, by Miss Mulock..1 ct.
No a45. Danesbury House, by Mrs. Henry Wood...3 cts.	No. l246. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, by Stevenson.....1 ct.
No. a46. The Twin Lieutenants, Alexander Dumas.3 cts.	No. l247. Falsely Accused, by Mrs Ann S. Stephens..1 ct.
No. a47. Repented at Leisure, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.	No. l248. A False Scent, by Mrs. Alexander.....1 ct.
No. a48. The Red Hill Tragedy, by Mrs. Southworth..3 cts.	No. l249. A Modern Cinderella, by C. M. Braeme.....1 ct.
No. a49. Aunt Diana, by Rosa Nouchette Carey.....3 cts.	No. l250. Caramel Cottage, by Mrs. Henry Wood.....1 ct.
No. a50. Treasure Island, by Robert L. Stevenson..3 cts.	No. l253. The Poison of Asps, by Florence Marryat..1 ct.
No. a51. A Rogue's Life, by Wilkie Collins.....3 cts.	No. l254. Little Old Man of the Batignolles, Gaboriau.1 ct.
No. a52. Lady Diana's Pride, by C. M. Braeme.....3 cts.	No. l255. Under the Lilacs, by Charlotte M. Braeme..1 ct.

☞ Any of the above books will be sent by mail post-paid upon receipt of the special prices quoted. Please order by the numbers, being careful to precede each number by the letters a or l, as given above. If the numbers are plainly written it will not be necessary to give the titles. Customers will observe the economy in postage and stationery secured by ordering a number of books at a time. These special prices will hold good only until October 1st, 1900, therefore all orders must be sent before that date. We refer to the mercantile agencies as to our reliability, as we have been established nearly 25 years, and are well known. Address all letters:

F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, 23, 25 and 27 City Hall Place, New York.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin

REMNANTS FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK.

A Silken Shower from a Necktie Factory.

ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in odd pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPULAR. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in. Bright, handsome, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast at all NECKTIE FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they have been the past season and they are now burdened with remnants of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand which we are going to give you a big trade on. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts, etc., and we can help you out now. We are going to dispose of this immense lot RIGHT OFF. Our packages contain from 99 to 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home; then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONEY doing our work and helping yourself also. Remember these pieces are carefully trimmed, and especially adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Many ladies sell tidies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great price made from these remnants. Order one sample lot now for only 25c. It would cost many dollars bought at a store. Grand Offer: If you order our great assorted lot AT ONCE, we will give you several rich, bright and beautiful stamped satin pieces; each piece contains nine square inches and being stamped by hand with a graceful design for embroidery, is a great bargain.

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped satin and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroidery silk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price we ask for the remnants; but we know if you ORDER ONE lot we will sell many in your locality, so make this liberal offer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of Plush containing 36 square inches.

BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE to all who send 25 cents for 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT" the best Home Monthly now published, and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will send free with each package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ornamenting the seams of Crazy Patchwork, or for other ornamental work where Fancy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how pieces for patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join edges, etc.

The book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides directions for taking ART EMBROIDERY STITCHES, comprising the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

Remember we send one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remnants, the assorted stamped satin piece 5 Skeins Embroidery silk; 36 square inches plush, and a great 15c. book on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to "COMFORT," all for only 25 cents. Three lots and one year's subscription, 65 cents; five lots $1.00. Address,

COMFORT, Silk Dept. B, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

CHILDREN are always fond of ices. I once heard a very pat story on this point, which will bear repeating.

The mother of two bright boys said to them one morning: "We are going to have ice cream for dinner to-night, when the minister and his wife will be here. Now please don't act as though this were an unusual thing, but as though you had it every day." Accordingly, when the ice cream was served, the children, being specially anxious to please their mamma, shouted out at the top of their lungs "We have it every day! we have it every day!"

At a luncheon not long ago, the dessert was frozen pudding, and it was served in cantaloupe, which was a new idea to some of the guests. Small nutmeg cantaloupes were used, one-half served to each guest, on a doiley-covered plate, and the center was filled with the frozen cream, making a delicious combination and very attractive one—easy to serve and easy to eat.

At this season of the year ices and cold desserts of all kinds appeal to the palate; hygienically speaking, they cannot be recommended for the final course of a dinner, as they reduce the temperature of the stomach and thus retard digestion; but how refreshing they are, and, when eaten slowly they are also nourishing. The different kinds of frozen dishes are called Water Ice—which is fruit juice, sweetened, diluted with water and frozen. Sherbet, which is water ice to which is added some dissolved gelatine or the beaten whites of eggs. Frappe, which is water ice frozen to the consistency of mush. Punch, which is water ice to which has been added spirit and spice. Sorbet, which is, strictly speaking, frozen punch—the name usually given to a water ice where several kinds of fruit have been used. Ice cream, of two kinds—the first which is thin cream, sweetened, flavored and frozen, and the other which is a custard foundation, flavored and frozen. Mousse—which is heavy cream, beaten until stiff, sweetened, flavored, placed in a mould, packed in equal parts of salt and ice and allowed to stand for three hours.

We have some delicious recipes which we hope will be new to at least some of our readers.

RASPBERRY ICE.

Four cups water, one and two-thirds cups sugar, two cups raspberry juice and two tablespoons lemon juice. Make a syrup by boiling the water and sugar twenty minutes, cool, add raspberries mashed and squeezed through double cheese cloth, and lemon juice. Strain and freeze.

CURRANT ICE.

Four cups water, one and one-half cups sugar, two cups currant juice. Prepare same as raspberry ice.

MILK SHERBET.

Four cups milk, one and one-half cups sugar, juice of three lemons. Mix the juice and the sugar, stirring constantly while slowly adding the milk; freeze.

PINEAPPLE FRAPPE.

Two cups water, one cup sugar, juice of three lemons, four cups ice water, one can grated

ROMAN PUNCH.

pineapple, or one pineapple shredded. Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar fifteen minutes; add pineapple and lemon juice, cool, strain, add icewater and freeze to a mush, using equal parts of salt and ice. If fresh fruit is used, more sugar will be needed.

ROMAN PUNCH.

Four cups water, two cups sugar, one-half cup lemon juice, one-half cup orange juice, one-half cup tea infusion, one-half cup rum. Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar twenty minutes, add fruit juice and tea and freeze to a mush; then add the rum and continue the freezing.

SORBET.

Two cups water, two cups sugar, one grated pineapple, one and one-third cups orange juice, one-half cup lemon juice, one quart Apollinaris. Prepare and freeze same as pineapple frappe.

VANILLA ICE CREAM I.

One quart thin cream, three-fourths cup sugar, one and one-half tablespoons vanilla. Mix the ingredients and freeze.

VANILLA ICE CREAM II.

Two cups scalded milk, one tablespoon flour, one cup sugar, one egg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one quart thin cream, two tablespoons vanilla. Mix the flour, sugar and salt, add the egg slightly beaten, and milk gradually; cook in double boiler twenty minutes, stirring constantly at first; when cool add cream and flavoring, strain and freeze.

COFFEE ICE CREAM.

One quart cream, one and one-half cups milk, one-third cup coffee, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, yolks of four eggs. Scald the milk with the coffee, add one cup sugar; mix yolks of eggs with one-fourth cup sugar and salt; combine mixtures, cook over hot water until thickened, add one cup cream and let stand on back of range twenty-five minutes; cool, add remaining cream and strain through double cheese cloth; freeze.

BROWN BREAD ICE CREAM.

Three pints cream, one and one-fourth cups dried brown bread crumbs, seven-eighths cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Soak the crumbs in one quart cream, let stand fifteen minutes, rub through sieve, add sugar, salt and remaining cream and freeze.

FROZEN PUDDING.

Two and one-half cups milk, one cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, one cup thick cream, one-fourth cup rum, one cup candied fruit—cherries, pineapple, pears and apricots.

Cut the fruit in pieces and soak several hours in brandy to cover, which prevents the fruit from freezing; make a custard of the milk, sugar, salt and eggs, strain, cool, add the cream and rum and then freeze. Fill a brick mould with alternate layers of the cream and fruit and pack in salt and ice and let stand two hours.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE.

One quart thin cream, one box berries, one cup sugar, one-fourth box gelatine, two tablespoons cold water, three tablespoons hot water. Wash and hull the berries, sprinkle with sugar and let stand one hour; mash and rub through fine sieve, add gelatine, which has been soaked in cold and dissolved in boiling water; set in pan of ice water and stir until it begins to thicken. Whip the cream and fold into the mixture, put in mould, cover and pack in salt and ice and let stand four hours.

ICE SERVED IN CANTALOUPE.

Raspberries may be used instead of strawberries—otherwise using the same ingredients as above.

COFFEE MOUSSE.

Make same as strawberry mousse, using one cup boiled coffee in place of the fruit juice.

FROZEN CHOCOLATE.

Melt two squares chocolate, add one-half cup sugar, a few grains salt and one cup boiling water; boil until smooth and then add three cups scalded milk. Cool and freeze. Serve in glasses with beaten cream.

We have had several requests for the recipe for Elderberry Blow Wine, which we gave a year ago.

Gather the flowers of the elderberry and let them stay on the stems over night; then shake them off onto a paper and pack them solidly into a quart measure.

Pour three gallons boiling water on nine pounds granulated sugar, and add the quart of blows; when cool, add one yeast cake. Let the covered crock stand in a cool place, and stir with a wooden spoon every day for a week; then strain, add three pounds raisins cut; let stand five or six weeks (in the cellar, preferably) then strain again, add one pint best whiskey and bottle, putting a raisin into each bottle.

In the New England States the blows are in condition to gather about July first.

As it is exceedingly hard to keep this wine from turning sour, while it is in process of making, it is a good idea to taste of it before adding the whiskey, for if it is sour, you will only waste your whiskey by adding it. It is a good plan to stir it once a week, when it is in the cellar, and taste of it, also, and if there seems to be a tendency toward sourness, add the whiskey and bottle at once, without waiting for the full time given in the recipe. If it should happen to sour don't throw it away, but keep it in the crock, covered with a piece of cheese cloth instead of the crock cover, and it will make excellent vinegar. When this wine is ready for use, it tastes not unlike sweet sherry, and is a beautiful amber in color. After once having bottled, it will keep indefinitely, improving with age.

HOW ONE OF OUR LADY READERS MAKES A GOOD LIVING.

I have noticed the different ways in which some of your readers have been making money, and I wish now to give my experience. I am selling Baird's Non-Alcoholic Flavoring Powders, never making less than $3 a day, and I oftentimes clear over $5. These powders are much cheaper than the liquids and they go twice as far. From one to eight different flavors can be sold at most every house for flavoring ice cream, custards, cakes, candies, etc., and they give to any delicacy in which they are put that richness of flavor so common to the fruits and flowers they represent. Guaranteed to be perfectly healthful. I have not any trouble selling them, as everyone who sees them tried buys them. By writing to Baird Mfg. Co., 237 Baird Bldg., E. E. Pittsburg, Pa., they will give you full particulars and give you a start. I give my experience, hoping that others who are in need of employment can do as well as I have.

A CONSTANT READER.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

SALESMEN WANTED. SALARY or Commission to sell to wholesale and retail trade. Position permanent. Previous experience not essential. Ruyter Mfg. Co., 179 Washington St., Chicago.

YOU MAKE $5.00 A DAY EASY!

Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating. At home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Machines. Plates Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles and all metal goods. No experience. Heavy plate. Modern methods. No toys. We do plating, make outfits, all sizes. Complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. The Royal, new dipping process, quick, easy. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc., FREE. D. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, CINCINNATI, O.

SELF-SEALING PIE TIN has a crimped rim which holds both crusts firmly together and prevents the rich juices from escaping. Crust will always bake crisp and brown. We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. AGENTS, write how to get free this and four of our other best selling household novelties — Outfit worth $2.00 —Express prepaid. Address Dept. X HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash. This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.—Ed.

A Hot Weather Comfort.

THE NEW

PETITE LAMP CHIMNEY STOVE.

IN USE ON THE CHIMNEY.

THIS is a very useful device (made of brass) for adjusting on the top of an ordinary lamp chimney, for cooking purposes. It is readily adjustable to any chimney. It will readily support any ordinary metal plate, or pan, or dipper, in which to do the boiling or cooking. For many purposes this Lamp Chimney Stove is far superior and a thousand times more convenient than an expensive oil or vapor stove. For the Dining Room in Summer, shops and offices, it is unsurpassed. For the Sick Room it is indispensable.

And Only Look at the Price,

10 cents each, carefully boxed, and postage paid. Or 20 for a dollar, which is just 5 cents each, and delivered free, either by mail or express, to agents. You only need sell four out of your 20, to get your money back. All you sell of the other sixteen, will be clear gain to you. You cannot do better than invest a dollar.

☞ No such useful article was ever offered before at such a ridiculously low price.

This paper 3 months on trial and sample stove only 10 cents.

Club Offer. Send us a club of two yearly subscribers at 25c. each and we will give you two stoves as a premium.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

A Gift to Agents - 7 Articles Free

OUTFIT FREE

1. Rotary Cake Cutter.
2. Griddle Greaser.
3. Wonder Egg Beater.
4. Kettle Cleaner.
5. Ideal Cake Spoon.
6. Knife Sharpener.
7. Acme Table Mat.

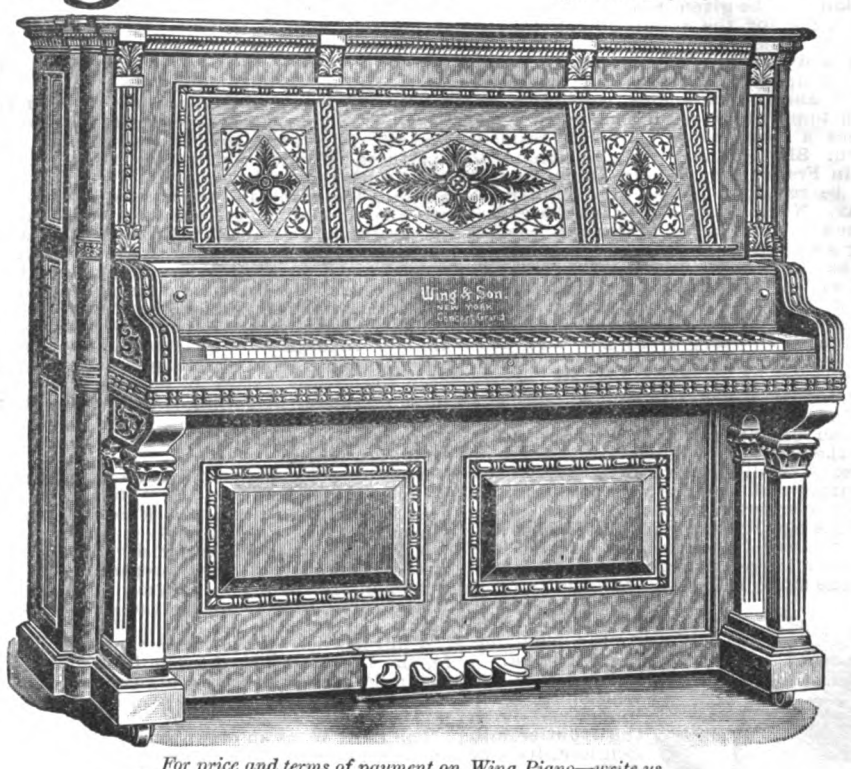
To introduce our large line of New Household Specialties and Aluminum Ware we will send FREE this Outfit consisting of our 7 best sellers worth $1.00 to any person willing to act as our agent. No experience necessary. All we require is a deposit of 25c in stamps to prevent others taking advantage of this generous offer, this amount deducted from first order. Will you accept this offer? Write quick.

A. VINING NOVELTY WORKS, 58 & 60 Wabash Av., Chicago.

The Wing Piano

STYLE 29.
CONCERT GRAND UPRIGHT

No other Piano made equals this in style and design of case.



The usual way to buy a piano is from a retail dealer or agent. We do not sell our pianos in this way. We supply our pianos direct from our factory to retail purchasers. We do not employ a single salesman or agent, and we have no salesroom except our factory. We transact all of our business and ship all of our pianos direct from our factory. As our expenses are small, a very small profit pays us.

No matter how far away you live our improved system of doing business makes it actually more convenient and more satisfactory to buy a piano from us than to buy one from a local dealer in your own town or city.

Over 30,000 Wing pianos have been manufactured and sold in 32 years (since 1868).

Every Wing Piano is guaranteed for twelve (12) years against any defect in tone, action, workmanship or material.

Everyone who intends to purchase a piano should have our complete catalogue. We send it free on request.

For price and terms of payment on Wing Piano—write us. Old instruments taken in exchange.

I should like to say a few words about your pianos and manner of doing business. No one is doing themselves justice in not availing themselves of your most liberal terms. The tone, touch and durability of your pianos cannot be questioned. The instrumental attachment pleases every one who hears it and allows a combination of effects which cannot be equalled.

ALBERT DRAEGERT,
Thornbury, Iowa.

The piano I bought of you in December is giving us the very best of satisfaction. In tone, touch and workmanship it is certainly extra fine. The strangest part of it seems to be that you can sell such an instrument for such a low price.

F. D. GREEN,
Perry, Lake County, Ohio.

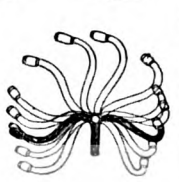
SENT ON TRIAL FREIGHT PREPAID. We will send this piano or your choice of 23 other Wing Pianos on trial, to any part of the United States, all freights paid by us. We will allow ample time for a thorough examination and trial in the home, and if the piano is not entirely satisfactory in every respect we will take it back at our own expense. There is no risk or expense to the person ordering the piano. No money is sent to us in advance, we pay all freights.

THE INSTRUMENTAL ATTACHMENT

imitates perfectly the tones of the Mandolin, Guitar, Harp, Zither and Banjo. Music written for these instruments, with and without piano accompaniment, can be played just as perfectly by a single player on the piano as though rendered by a parlor orchestra. The original instrumental attachment has been patented by us and it cannot be had in any other piano, although there are several imitations of it.

WING & SON, 319-321 E. 12th St., NEW YORK

1868—32nd Year—1900.



BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

THE Touring Club of France is made up of wheelmen, a great many of whom are residents of other countries. There are a number of members in this country. The Touring Club of France is an organization corresponding to the League of American Wheelmen in the United States, and comprises over seventy-five thousand active members. The annual membership fee is five francs for persons living in France and six francs for non-residents. There are delegates of the Touring Club of France at New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities in the United States. All that is necessary for an American wheelman to do in order to become a member of the Touring Club of France is to fill up one of the printed forms of application, get it endorsed by two members of the Touring Club and send it with a postal order for six francs to the "Secretary of the Touring Club de France, No. 10 Place de la Bourse, Paris." The Secretary will, if desired, send the card of identity and badge of the organization to any United States consulate or Banking House, or to the care of any transatlantic steamship company, to await the applicant's arrival in France. If preferred, the card and badge can, of course, be sent to any address in the United States, but considerable time can be gained by having them sent to the port of arrival in France or to some address on that side of the water.

Any American wheelman who takes the pains to become a member of the Touring Club of France will enjoy the advantages of cut rates at hotels and freedom from custom house and other formalities and annoyances in case the trip be extended beyond French territory into Belgium, Italy or Switzerland, and owing to the efforts of the Touring Club, the French Government has accorded to foreign wheelmen custom house privileges and exemption from the road tax on cycles.

A NEW ADJUSTABLE HANDLEBAR.

The American member who is going over to France for a trip on the bicycle should have his wheel crated for the voyage. This will cost about $1.00 and the rate charged by the steamship company varies from $2.50 to $3.50 for a crated wheel. Should the wheelman not intend to remain in France over three months, he should make a declaration to that effect upon his arrival, and a certificate of such declaration will be given him. Twelve cents must be paid for the stamp affixed to this declaration, which the tourist should carry with him and be prepared to produce whenever called upon to do so by the police or municipal authorities. This certificate exempts the tourist from the French cycle tax of six francs a year imposed on all resident wheelmen. Should the wheelman intend to remain in France longer than three months he will be required to pay the regular six francs tax. No duties whatever are charged at the French custom house to foreign cyclists bringing wheels with them which bear visible signs of having been used.

The roads in France are the best in the world, but the grades are steep, and brakes are strongly recommended. There are sign posts with distances at every crossroad, and dangerous hills or turnings are indicated by warnings fixed on iron posts, for the special benefit of cyclists. First-rate maps compiled especially for wheelmen by the Touring Club of France, may be had on application at very reasonable prices at the Secretary's office, No. 10 Place de la Bourse. The diminutive little hand book of the touring club for the year 1900 contains the list of over seven thousand cities, towns and villages in France, with the names and prices of the best hotels or inns in each; the distance from the nearest railroad or telegraph station; the name of the "mecanicien" or cycle repairer, and the distance by road to the next important town.

SECTION OF NEW DOUBLE TUBE TIRE.

American wheelmen who intend to cross the frontier into Belgium, Italy or Switzerland should by all means become members of the Touring Club of France, for by a special agreement, accorded by the customs authorities of those countries, all bona fide tourists with cards of identity of the Touring Club of France, with the bearer's photograph and signature, and the maker's number of the bicycle, are exempted from all customs dues whatever, and can circulate freely without being subjected to the police annoyances sometimes enforced.

The rules of the road for wheelmen in France are very simple. Lighted lamps must be carried at night, and all cycles must be provided with bells. "Scorching" is prohibited in Paris and in most of the towns, but any pace is permissible on the main roads. All the railways in France, and most of the tramways, are obliged to accept bicycles as regular baggage and be responsible for any of them. The cost of transportation for a bicycle unpacked, accompanied by the rider, is only twenty centimes (four cents) no matter what may be the distance.

American wheelmen arriving by French steamer at Havre, by German steamer at Cherbourg or by American steamer at Southampton and thence to Dieppe would do well to send their trunks on to Paris and then mount their wheels for a delightful run through Normandy. The inns and hotels are fairly good as to sleeping accommodation, and the food is excellent. The secretary of the Touring Club of France and the delegates of that association are always glad to answer inquiries from American wheelmen who may be members of the Touring Club.

An inventor named Goss, mentioned by a Paris paper, proposes to adjust a harp of suitable dimensions to the frame of a bicycle between the rider's knees. Each harp string, or wire, would be provided with its own hammer, and the hammers would be operated by the spikes on a revolving cylinder, a music box cylinder in fact. The last mentioned portion of the apparatus would derive its movements from a special sprocket chain from the pedals.

"How often one hears it said by a rider who has exposed his machine to some severe and unnecessary strain, 'Oh, if a machine is any good, it ought to stand that,'" said a veteran dealer. "But there can be little doubt that in a large number of cases the root of the injury lay in some unfair usage to which no importance was attached at the moment. A case came under my notice of a machine of high grade which was roughly used for a considerable time, its experiences including one or two collisions with fences, which, however, did no discernible damage. But one fine day its owner returned minus two front teeth, left on a country road owing to a tube having given way. It must be remembered that the margin of safety in a bicycle is extraordinary small, and that the risks arising from the abuse of it are remarkably great."

A bicycle fitted with a novel form of tire has just been exhibited in Australia. It is a combination of the solid with the pneumatic, and it may be regarded as a pneumatic tire, having exceedingly thick walls at the tread—the portion which comes in contact with the ground. In section the rim is nearly a complete circle, and is filled with an ordinary pneumatic tube. Its outside circumference, however, is cut away and the metal bent outward to form two projecting parallel cheeks. The channel, or slot, between these contains a solid block or strip of India rubber, one side of which constitutes the tread, while the other is in contact with the pneumatic tube in the interior of the rim. In this way the inventor has aimed at combining the unpuncturable quality of the solid tire with the resiliency of the pneumatic. He further contends that, if the inside tube is by accident damaged and inflated, the bicycle is not rendered useless, and becomes practically a solid tire machine, since the solid strip has projecting flanges which catch on the outturned edges of the rim, and prevent it from being forced right into the slot, although unsupported by the pneumatic tube.

It is well every now and then to clean the bearings of your wheel thoroughly with paraffine oil. Squirt the paraffine all through the apertures by which you usually apply oil, and then, with the machine raised, give the wheels a spin. The crank and the hubs of both wheels are what should be particularly looked after. Be careful, however, that none of the oil reaches the tires. It is a good plan sometimes to give your chain a soaking in paraffine and afterwards work the links between your fingers and so drive out all particles of dust.

The habits of self-reliance and quick action are not capable of high-class cultivation in every person, but no matter how badly one has been slighted by Nature in her distribution of these qualities, bicycling will develop them. Alertness and quick comprehension are in some degree characteristic of almost every rider of experience.

According to observation, there is such a thing as the bicycle face. It is full of intelligence and always displays a wideawake countenance.

Milwaukee with characteristic energy, has already commenced work preparatory to the National Meet of the League of American Wheelmen. July 10-15 are the dates decided upon.

A bill has been presented in Congress asking for the appropriation of five million dollars for the improvement of public highways.

Rim-brakes for bicycles were invented in 1872.

The L. A. W. as an organization, has a world of work to do along the lines of securing better highways, cycle paths and wheelmen's rights. During the score of years since it was organized it has done much, yet its work is only fairly begun.

The League band, or button, or pin, should be a bond of good fellowship. It is this friendly tie that must measure the strength of the organization.

There is no vehicle so useful and no means of exercise so enjoyable, so beneficial to the health, so easily within the reach of all, so convenient in so many ways, as the BICYCLE.

A double tube tire can always be repaired permanently, because the patch is applied directly to the air tube where you can see that the repair is properly made. It requires but a moment and no exertion, to remove a portion of the outer case and expose the inner tube for repair.

AGENTS GOOD PAY, Largest Line. Best Sellers. Finest Goods. All Prices, 5c to $1. 27 Cooking Flavors, 24 Perfumes, 6 Colognes, Creams, Powders, Inhalers, Remedies, Household, Toilet Goods. Select any. Big Profit and Premiums beside. Express allowed. CREDIT GIVEN. AGENTS TERMS FREE. Herbene Laboratories, Box 54, Station L, New York.

$13.75 SEND NO MONEY If you live within 800 miles of Chicago, if further, send $1.00; cut this ad. out and send to us, state whether you wish GENTS' or LADIES' BICYCLE, also color and gear wanted, and we will send you this HIGH GRADE 1900 MODEL ACME JEWEL BICYCLE by express C. O. D., subject to examination. You can examine it at your express office, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, THE MOST WONDERFUL VALUE you ever saw or heard of, equal to bicycles that retail as high as $40.00, if you think you can sell it at $10.00 profit any day, pay the express agent and express charges, OUR SPECIAL PRICE, $13.75, or less $1.00 if sent with order. While our Special Bicycle Catalogue, mailed free for the asking, shows all bicycles below all other houses, stripped bicycles at $5.00, $6.00, $7.50, $8.00 and $9.00, the new 1900 Cincinnattus complete at $11.75, yet OUR ACME JEWEL at $13.75 is by far the greatest bargain ever offered at the price. It is covered by a BINDING GUARANTEE, strictly high grade, latest of everything. Famous Belden Hanger, fine equipment. Guaranteed Pneumatic Tires, high grade Saddle, Pedals, Handle Bar, Tools and Toolbag. Enameled black, green or maroon. IF YOU WANT ANY OTHER BICYCLE advertised in this paper or in any catalogue, write us, and we will save you at least $2.00 to $10.00 on it. You can make $500.00 this year selling this bicycle at $25.00. Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. (INC.), CHICAGO.

A Porto Rican Fourth of July.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

FOURTH of July in Porto Rico. How odd it sounds to American ears! And odder still it must have seemed to the natives of the little town of Guayama in that island—that is, if they lavished any thought upon the matter—to realize that they were, for the first time in their lives, taking part in a United States National holiday.

They did not, it is true, make night hideous with their noise and hulla-ba-loo, as is the custom at home. Their learning proceeds but slowly, and they are not yet educated up to that point. But they rallied promptly in the plaza at 5 A. M., when summoned there by the discharge of several packs of giant fire crackers, sent off for their benefit by the American postmaster of the town, and it was funny to a Yankee to see how utterly ignorant they were of the dangerous properties of these same crackers. The boys made several attempts, when one failed to explode at once, to pick it up and secrete it in their clothing, and it was only when one of them was nearly blown out of this life by a tardy cracker that they learned their lesson and desisted. Ten minutes later the whole town was awake and poured into the streets en masse, and en masse they remained there, regardless of meals,

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best collection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a FREE present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over Postoffice, COHOES, N. Y.

TAKE ORDERS FOR GROCERIES and get a 112-Piece Dinner Set, Furniture, Couch, Skirt, Tea Set, Sewing Machine, etc., Free; also cash commission given. NO MONEY REQUIRED. WE PAY FREIGHT. American Supply Co., Dept. 57, Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

$3.50 A $25.00 Watch in appearance. The handsomest genuine gold plated watch on the market. Double hunting case, SOLID GOLD PATTERN of engraving. Elegantly finished jeweled movement, stem wind and set and absolutely guaranteed for 20 YEARS Cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch to you by express for examination, you examine it at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $3.50 and it is yours. Only one watch to each customer at this price. Mention in your letter whether you want GENT'S OR LADY'S SIZE and order to-day as we will send out samples at this reduced price for 60 days only. R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago. Please mention COMFORT when you write.

THE HAIR TELLS ALL If Sick send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex and 4 cts. in stamps and I will diagnose your case FREE and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT HOME; $1.50 a day; four months work guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE! FOR EVERYBODY, The Champion Fisherman's Outfit.

To everyone who likes to fish, either for sport, for the family, or for the market, we will send this Fisherman a Outfit Free, postage paid, if he will get up a club of three subscribers for COMFORT at 25 cents each per year in advance.

Here it is, complete, nicely packed in a box.

No. 1. One Good Size Fine Polished Brass Reel. Will wind any line in first-class style. Works perfectly.

No. 2. One Linen Trout Line. Guaranteed to safely land the heaviest trout or fish of equal size.

No. 3. One Linen Bass or Salmon Line. Large, for big gamey fish, like salmon or black bass. This line will land the biggest fish caught with bait and sinker, or trolling from boat.

No. 4. One Long Cotton Line. Good for everyday fishing, after perch, catfish, sunfish, rock bass, etc.

No. 5. One Strong Line. Complete, with hook, bob and sinker. This is a whole outfit in itself, comprising a long stout line with medium-sized hook, a tached, and neat movable bob and sinker. With bait at hand and this line in his pocket the fisherman can start right in and try his luck.

No. 6. One Dozen Best Steel Ringed Fish Hooks (assorted sizes). These are best grades of hooks warranted, strong, sharp in points and barbs, and handy to use, anybody being able to tie their line into the ring of the hook.

No. 7. Two Imported Trout Flies. They will draw trout from deep pools when other flies fail. They are natural, brilliant in colors, strongly fastened around the hooks.

No. 8. One Imported Bass Fly. For black bass fishing, and the equal of the trout fly in excellence of material.

No. 9. One Improved Salmon Fly. Of the best pattern, and perfect shape and color, sure to rise and catch the fish.

No. 10. Two Snell Hooks and Gut. These hooks are set on long guts, and where fish cut the lines one of these snell hooks can be safely used, the gut cannot be severed, and lands the fish every time.

These artificial flies and snells alone are worth the amount asked for the entire outfit.

Given as a premium for three yearly subscriptions to COMFORT at the special trial price of 25 cents each, or sent postpaid for 50 cents cash. Don't buy fishing tackle in the stores and pay fifty or seventy-five cents every day or two.

Address PUB. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

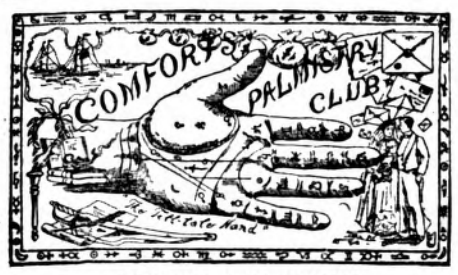
$1000 IN GOLD FREE

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

14	5	23	25	15	18	11
23	1	19	8	9	14	7	20	15	14
3	8	9	3	1	7	15

FOR BRAINY PEOPLE

Each one of the above three lines of figures spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out the names of these three cities, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take an entire evening to solve the three names, but STICK TO IT AND TRY TO GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000. A copy of this high-class ONE DOLLAR MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to everyone answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer in immediately. Address ROBINSON PUBLISHING CO., 24 North William Street, New York City.



$5.22 UTILITY SET FREE.

Copyright, 1900.

YOU sell only 7 Oxien Electric Plasters which we send free on sale. They will prove that there is a sure cure for long standing Malaria and Rheumatic diseases, lame back, coughs, colds and all kindred complaints as well as a preventive. This marvelous Utility Set is needed in every family. Any one of the articles is worth all the whole lot costs you in time of trouble. You do not have to pay out any money to get the Complete Combination of 15 Handy Tools. There are nine separate articles but with the different uses the combination tool can be put to it really makes 15 tools and household articles. They consist of one Genuine Swedish Razor Steel Bread, Slicing, Butcher, Cook and Carving Knife, over a foot long, warranted, retail, $1.00; one English Steel Ladies' Blue Enameled Handle Pocket Knife with Gilt Etching and Two Blades, retail, 50c.; one Pair Hold Fast Pruning Shears which will cut and hold the flower or bunch of grapes so it can be dropped into the basket; for trimming trees, shrubs, vines, etc., retail, $1.37; one Combination Tool consisting of a Corkscrew, Can Opener, Ice Chisel, Nut Cracker, Flat Nose Plyer Wrench, Glass Cutter and Pincher; worth its weight in gold, retail, 50c.; one Pair 6 inch Nickle Plated Patent Brass Bolt Shears, fully warranted, retail, 75c.; one Magnetic Tack Hammer for picking up tacks, nails and small articles, retail, 35c.; one Genuine Swedish Kitchen Knife, warranted to hold an edge as well as a razor, retail, 25c.; one Gimlet, guaranteed to bore the hardest wood, retail, 25c; one Samson Nutmeg Grater, having a receptacle in the end to hold the nutmeg, to keep it from losing its strength, retail, 25c. Aggregating more than a Grand $5.00 Combination, some part if not all of which will certainly be found valuable nearly every hour in the day, and certainly every day in the year to nearly every man, woman and child. The Pruning Shears are invaluable for cutting strawberries and other fruits as they hold the berry, bunch of grapes, etc., after cutting, as illustrated in above cut. The Nut Cracker and Combination Tool is a wonderful invention also. We can only supply fifty thousand of these outfits and we expect the demand will reach a hundred thousand—so advise your entering your order now for a free set if you want one—and everybody does, for the orders are simply pouring in in a deluge, express style.

To Get This Set Free. All you have to do is to send to us at once for seven Oxien Electric Plasters. We send them, all charges paid, and instruct you how to sell them quickly at 25c. each. After you have sold the seven plasters you send the money, $1.75, to us and we will immediately ship you, all charges paid, this Combination Housewife Utility Set carefully boxed and safe delivery guaranteed. Send at once; some sell seven plasters in seven minutes. Address THE GIANT PLASTER CO., Box 1328, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

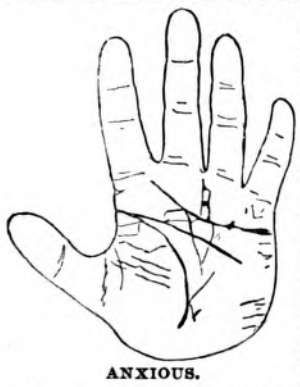
Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to COMFORT PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.



Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

SEVERAL members of this club have written in asking how to read hands. In the first place it is necessary to have a good book on the subject and to study it thoroughly. COMFORT'S Palmistry Guide is the best elementary book on the subject ever printed. When the student gets beyond this, Cheiro's Book of the Hand, which may be bought at Brentano's, Union Square, New York, or Heron Allen's Manual of Chirosophy, which may be had by sending to the same place, are probably the best, although there are several books which claim to be more or less exhaustive on the subject. Then when you have studied these books and have experimented on your friends' hands and verified what you have found in the books by them, you can begin to read the hands of strangers.

You should not read a hand that has just been pulled out of a tight glove and you should have a good light to read by, if possible a reading glass which is a magnifying glass as it will bring out the minor lines in the hands. The hand should not be too hot nor too cold and should be held in an oblique position so as to throw the best light upon it. The fingers should not be brought back, but should rather be brought up a little. The morning is the best time to read the hands. Always take the hand you are to read and hold it firmly in your own, then examine it carefully and silently until all its indications are quite clear in your own mind. This will take a little longer, but it is far the better way.

Examine first, the line of life; see what effects health and the great events of life have upon the condition of the subject; next look at the phalanx of will which is on the thumb and see how far it is controlled by logic or reason. Examine the thumb thoroughly, remembering that if it is large, the subject will be sensible, intelligent and careful in regard to affairs of the heart. Note the tips of the fingers, whether they are smooth, and whether the joints are developed evenly. Notice whether the fingers are long or short. These things will come to you after examining a number of hands so that you will readily note the difference. You will see whether the hands are soft or hard and you will notice what mount or mounts govern the subject and how these are governed by primary or secondary lines. Take next the line of fortune and notice whether it is broken or crossed by other lines. If so, search on the mounts for signs to show the cause and indications of these breaks. Examine carefully the lines of head and heart and all secondary lines with whatever signs may modify them. Be careful to notice whether a sign means a record of a past event or a prediction of a future one. If it is clear and well colored it is close at hand; if it is just visible beneath the skin, it is of a future event. It takes some practice to determine between these past and future lines, but only care and study can bring them out clearly.

ANXIOUS.

Look carefully at the worry lines, stars, crosses or any other signs and search the mounts and principal lines for their explanation. If the Mount of Jupiter is good it will often counteract the evil indications of a sign and if the Mount of Mars is well developed, there may be any amount of resignation which will give calmness and happiness even with bad conditions. After you have examined all these points notice what signs are contradicted and counteracted by these and then draw your conclusions, then tell the exact truth as to what you see, do not try to please people and withhold anything from them. Tell them the truth and in that way you will gain a reputation for yourself.

"Anxious" sends an impression which has not been very carefully attended to with fixative, but I think I can read it. She has a good hand indicating a pleasant, equitable disposition, fond of bright, pretty things, music, poetry and dress. She will make a good wife, as she has domestic qualities strongly developed. She is high and noble in her ambitions and her life will be successful in the main. She will have one cross to bear early in life and there will be some other circumstances about the time she is twenty which will not be pleasant, but in the main her life is free from trouble. She will not probably live to be much over fifty, though part of the impression is somewhat blotted and I may be wrong. She will marry not far from the age of twenty-five and happily. This marriage will last for fifteen years or so and she will marry again some ten or more years after that a man of some wealth and position. Her health will be good during the greater part of her life, although I think the latter part will be broken up somewhat by physical troubles. I think her first husband will be a dark man and her second inclined to be fair, at least that is the indication I see here. She will have two children by her first marriage. If she went into business, she would be fairly successful, although she is more the kind of a woman who should be taken care of than one who should work for herself. On the whole, she has a very good hand indeed with few bad indications.

Mrs. C. Jackson sends a pencil sketch of the most peculiar hand I have ever seen, at least that is the impression I get from the pencil sketch which may not be absolutely correct, but if the hand from which this was drawn is like the impression, it is a most peculiar one and I should say a very bad hand. The subject will be inclined to melancholia and even suicide. There is danger of insanity which will end the life at about the age of fifty. The fate line disappears in the middle of the hand, showing that there will be some loss of fortune or health at that time. It does not appear again, but the upper part of the hand is broken up by many fine lines indicating troubles of many sorts. I will have the hand reproduced in order that the students of COMFORT may note its peculiarities and see the reproduction of a very peculiar and bad hand.

MRS. C. JACKSON.

Someone writes asking what is the difference between via lascivia and the girdle of Venus. The via lascivia is often confounded with line of liver, but it is quite a separate line. It betokens cunning and faithlessness, increases the ardor and warmth of the passions, and if it reaches the mount of Mercury it is an indication of good luck; stars on this line are indicative of riches after serious struggles to gain them; if a ray joins this line to line of Apollo it is a doubly sure indication of wealth. Ancient chirosophists called it a "line of lasciviousness," but this is only true if it runs across the mount of Venus.

The girdle of Venus is fortunately not universal, for, taken as a whole, though it gives energy to a good hand, in a bad or weak hand it indicates a tendency to debauchery of the worst kind. There have been many and serious discussions among modern chirosophists in regard to this sign, but the most reasonable solution ever known, and in fact, in some very few cases proved, was arrived at by Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton who was a most earnest student of the science; he asserted that the evil characteristic of this sign should only be accepted where the hand was generally bad in expression, and there were other concomitant signs, inasmuch as the girdle encloses the intellectual mounts and therefore intensifies them, giving ardor and enthusiasm to their expression. The favorable influence of the line is more certain if it is clear and goes over to the mount of Mercury. Subjects with this sign in the hand are very nervous, even to hysteria, impatient and irritable according to the influence of Saturn; if mount of Saturn and finger rule, the brain power is augmented and the subject becomes very impressionable, showing great aptitude for mysticism and occultism generally, which if not restrained, would develop into a high mediumistic order. We frequently find great talent for romantic literature, and the development of an intense nature—that is, exhilarated by pleasure (as we express it)—mad with joy and completely crushed by grief.

If the ring is cut by a stray line on the mount of Apollo it denotes loss of fortune and debauchery. This is not likely to be found except in an otherwise bad hand.

Digitus

TO ACQUIRE GOOD HAIR.

Every man and woman should know how to acquire and retain a good head of hair. Many preparations for the cure of dandruff, falling hair and premature baldness are advertised but generally they have but a temporary effect. They are compounded without knowledge of the cause. These troubles all come from a parasite in the roots of the hair. The cure and removal of this pest is accomplished by Cranitonic Hair Food, which not only preserves the hair and restores it to a natural color but feeds the growth and by killing the parasitical disease renders the scalp and hair healthy. The result is a new growth of strong, lusty hair. A small cake of shampoo soap for this purpose with directions will be sent prepaid to anyone writing to Cranitonic Hair Food Co., 526 West Broadway, New York City, if you will say you saw the offer in COMFORT.

SUMMER TIME

brings warm weather and cool dresses for ladies and young women. This year low neck and short sleeves will be the fashion, also necklaces of bead and pearl. We are ready in advance to furnish our customers and subscribers with our new Exposition Necklace, more popular than the Cyrano chains were ever. We can send one, carefully packed, with a three months' subscription to COMFORT for 12c. Send soon and be in style.
Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

AMERICAN $10.00 TYPEWRITER
AGENTS WANTED. 260 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

WRITE for our Spring and Summer catalogue. American Cloak & Fur Co., Chicago, Ill.

A Porto Rican Fourth of July.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

through the entire day.

An elaborate programme had been prepared for the celebration, and posters announcing it had been scattered broadcast through the town. Queer enough it was to see a big American eagle, with his motto, "E. Pluribus Unum," heading the long announcement in the Spanish language.

At 5.30 the band paraded the town, marching through all the principal streets for the purpose of awakening the sleepers. But sleepers there were none, and if there were any laggards who still remained in bed, certain it is that they stayed there for the remainder of the day, regardless of the tumult.

As all Porto Ricans are good Catholics, a holiday would not, with them, be properly observed unless there were some religious observance; so the next thing on the programme was the celebration of Mass in the Cathedral. Then came a procession headed by thirteen young ladies of the town bearing American flags, and also carrying among them one large one closely folded. These were followed by the bands, the soldiers, and the prominent citizens. Arrived at the cathedral the procession stopped while the young girls delivered to two men in waiting at the door the folded American flag. These men quickly bore it to the roof, there flung it to the breeze from the top of a flagstaff, liberating from its fluttering folds a

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.)

THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and forty-six popular songs, sentimental, pathetic and comic, with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses, and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

CHILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs, Health, Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N.Y.

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR!

Ladies or Gentlemen We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO. 80 Caxton Bldg., CHICAGO.

OPIUM and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Write DR. J. L. STEPHENS CO., Dept. C1, Lebanon, Ohio.

TRIAL Treatment FREE DRINK HABIT cured secretly. Write for booklet on the Drink Habit and its POSITIVE CURE. Mrs. May Hawkins, L.U. 181, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Painless, permanent Home Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

FREE RUPTURE CURE!

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y, and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

FAT How to reduce it Mrs. L. Lanier, Martin, Tenn., writes: "It reduced my weight 21 lbs. in 15 days without any unpleasant effects whatever." Purely vegetable, and harmless as water. Any one can make it at home at little expense. No starving. No sickness. We will mail a box of it and full particulars in a plain sealed package for 4 cents for postage, etc. HALL CHEMICAL CO. Dept. R, St. Louis, Mo.

A BIG BOOK OF FUN FREE!

We have just issued a new book of The Latest Fun. Right up to Date. It contains the best things of the age. The best of the Drummers' Stories, the cream of the Newspaper Humorists and the quaint Ghost Stories told at the Village Store. There was never before such an aggregation of Hilarity encompassed between the covers of one book. It is fully illustrated by some of the most side-splitting, button-bursting pictures ever printed. If you get this book we guarantee that you will be on good terms with yourself for a good long while. "Throw Physic to the Dogs." Get this book as a tonic and it will brace you up more effectively than a hundred dollars spent for medicine. We intended to sell this book for 25 cents a copy, but decided to give all a chance to have some fun without costing much, so we offer it postpaid for only two two-cent stamps. Here is a parttal list of the contents:

What She Really Did.	Natural History. (The Lion)	Under the Summer Moon.
Where a Bob-Tailed Dog Came In.	Judia Knew Herself.	Ephrum Wade's Standby in Haying
The Tragedy on Skates.	Gave Up the Job.	Best Way out of a Row.
A Birthday Gift.	Natural History. (The Elifant)	A Canine Experience, or, the Value of Advertising.
Mr. Hasbeen on Summer Drinks.	Lord She Was Thin.	Inducements to Marry.
Pleasant Dreams.	The Returned Klondiker.	His Seventh Wife.
Stabbed in the Dark.	The Church Social.	The Ballard of William Pell.
Highly Recommended.	We'd Better Stop Eating.	Old Nick's Story.
I Teach a Sunday School Class.	He Mixed Those Answers Up.	A Bad Investment.
The Punkin Holler Nine Quits.	Mother's Nervous Fit.	White Mice are His Plague
The Help-Ladies Assembly.	Her First Assignment.	Pa Shows How to Kill Chickens.
Cow-Boys.	The Fair and Cattle Show.	Mr Shivvers Tries Heroic Treatment.
Johnny's Equivocal Speech.	Our Summer Visitors.	Rubbing It In.
English as She is Wrote.	A Night of Terror.	His Whipping Letters.
Spoiling for a Trade.	Came the Hobo's Way.	Almost a Tragedy.
The Fire at Simms.	The Boy on the Farm.	The Country Going to Ruin.
The Burden of Bonaparte.	The Bear and the Reporter.	The Reason Why.
Not What He Seemed.	Revenge is Sweet.	Buyin' a Feller.
Put to the Test.	When Mother Sits Down by the Fire.	Coulda't Help It.
Eggs at Fancy Prices.	The Retired Burglar.	Microbe Professor's Theory.
Hairless and Tagless.	Mrs. Tagger's Needlework.
The Squire's Decision.

In order that all may make merry and that we may further extend the sale of our popular publications, we will send this great book of TWENTIETH CENTURY FUN, with all the pictures, a large quarto, 64 page, Twenty-Five Cent Volume for only four cents in stamps. Don't miss this chance, but send now. Address all orders HEARTHSTONE PUB. HOUSE, 58 DUANE ST., NEW YORK.

Sent Free to Everybody!

The COMFORT HAMMOCK.

As a Reward for a little friendly service.

BOYS AND GIRLS:

Here's a happy hint for Summer,
And verily it is a "hummer."

We have 17,200 strong, perfect, Oriental, Hammocks, which for the next sixty days we shall place on the Free List, upon the conditions specified below. This will enable every one who is willing to render us a little service, to secure one absolutely free. These Hammocks are over 8 feet long, every one is tested to carry 300 lb. dead weight, is supplied with strong, white metal rings at the ends.

No home, picnic, camping, or outing party is complete without one. To recline in one of these health-giving articles in some cool nook after the day's work is done, or on a Sunday afternoon, is to repose in the lap of luxury.

Now to every one who will get up a club of 4 subscribers for this paper at the special trial price, 25 cents per year each in advance, we will send one of these Hammocks FREE, we paying all express and mailing charges. By showing a copy of this great paper to your neighbors, friends and acquaintances, you can easily get up a club in one evening; for with its many improvemens and new original copyrighted departments, now needs only to be seen to be appreciated. To those who do not care to go to the trouble of getting a club we will send our paper for one year, together with one of these Hammocks (all express and mailing charges paid by us) upon receipt of 97 cts. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CUTS STEEL AS A DIAMOND CUTS GLASS.

Every Housekeeper Needs One. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" sharpens all Table Cutlery, Scythes, Mowing Machines, Corn Cutters, Grain Cradles, Brush Hooks, Knives, etc. Shoemakers and Butchers use them. 200,000 now in use. They are practical and durable, do perfect work. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" cuts steel as a Diamond cuts glass, and sells fast with agents at great profits; sample sent free if you enclose 18c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE. Will send one dozen by express for $1.25, easily retails for 25c. each, more than one hundred per cent. profit. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

TALKS WITH GIRLS.

CONDUCTED BY COUSIN MARION.

Here's a midsummer greeting to you, and I hope you are all feeling as nice and cool as everybody ought to be in the summer time and nobody ever is, unless she lives in the Arctic regions. However, it only makes us warmer to talk, so let us get down to answering letters.

The first is from Pansy of Owensboro, Ky., who asks too many questions at once, but I'll answer some of them. (1) Don't quote but write something of your own, however simple, in the birthday book. (2) I should think all guests at a birthday party would bring presents, but it is not obligatory. (3) Eat cake from your hand. (4) You should play for people when asked, using your own judgment as to how much you will play.

M. E. B., Elmwood, Neb.—All your questions have been answered a dozen times in this column.

Modesty, Charlottesville, Va.—Write a note to the young man releasing him from the engagement and the private interview will follow. (2) To avoid being flattered unpleasantly by a man, avoid the man.

Constant Reader, Sioux City, Ia.—You can get all copyright information with blanks by writing to Chief, Copyright Division, Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.

Happy Lucy, Trenton, O.—Marry the young man, of course, if he wants you to, but it would be better if your ages were reversed. Still four years difference isn't very much.

Topsy and Collie, Marion, Ia.—You must not meet young men by "accident" and it makes you very common to stroll with one. (2) Any druggist will tell you. (3) Moles are dangerous things to fool with. Better talk to your physician.

Miss Hope, Monroe, Utah.—Having three "beaus" and being unable to tell which one of them you are "in love with" would indicate that you ought to wait five years.

S. X. L., Galena, Mo.—You have the everlasting problem of the human heart to solve and I can't help you. Don't marry at all if you don't love the man who wants you and do love the man who does not want you. (2) Let your girl friend know what you think of the young man not good enough for her.

Pansy, Berwick, La.—For the thousandth time let me say that girls of fourteen have no business having young men company.

Wallflower, Jamestown, N. D.—It would cost as much to print a few copies as many, and you could not have it done as you wish except at great expense.

Myrtle, Duval, Fla.—Don't worry about the young man; if he wants you to know anything about himself he will write to you. Postage is cheap.

Unhappy, Richmond, Ind.—Write to the young man explaining your situation exactly, and ask him to call on you in your own home. If you ever expect to win him you will have to tell him all about yourself, and why not now? You are old enough to be a little more rational.

A Flirt, Malvern, Ark.—Really I can't answer a sixteen-year-old girl who asks a lot of questions about "beaus", confesses to be engaged to three men and spells "which" "w-h-i-t-c-h".

Violet, Westport, Pa.—Yes, it is the lady's place to dismiss her escort who stops to talk at the gate, when she thinks he has stopped long enough. She does not send him away; she goes away herself and he can stay there a week if he wants to. (2) It is somewhat unconventional, but you might go to the train to see the brother of your most intimate girl friend.

Teddy, Chicago, Ill.—Yes it is quite correct for a young man to go to church with you, meeting you casually on the way. (2) Public dances are not nice always, and though very respectable people may go to them it is best only to dance with young men you know.

Anxious, Xenia, O.—Write manuscript on letter size paper, in typewriting. Submit all the chapters of your serial at once, unless the publisher has arranged to take a chapter a week. Editors buy whatever their publications need. Acceptance of an article means buying it, but if it is much of an article it is well to know what the price is to be.

Lock Box, Ossawatomie, Kans.—It is high time to dismiss a young man when he insults you. And don't ever make friends with him again, either.

Dolly, Chicago, Ills.—Yes, you may ask a young man for a "friendship heart" to add to your collection. (2) Ask him to give you back your ring. If he is a gentleman a simple request is enough.

Blue Eyes, Siesta, Ills.—Address a letter to a young man as "Dear Friend" or "Dear Mr. Blank".

Lonely Life, Neosho, Mo.—By all means do not marry the young man who is unable to give up drinking whiskey, unless you want to ruin your whole life and bring yourself a whole train of woes.

Sunbeam, Greenport, Miss.—You are too young. Wait four or five years. (2) Decline the further acquaintance of the man who winks at you.

Katie, McNair, Miss.—Stage life, even as a singer, is hard and full of temptations, but it is not all bad by a good deal. What it would cost to train your voice would depend upon a good many things.

Pattie, Duval, Fla.—Stop the correspondence if the young man expects you to do all the writing. Do as you please about the other man.

Black Eyes, Windhurst, Kans. You have asked questions enough, dear, to fill a column with answers, and I don't know which one you most want answered.

Sunbeam, Rheinhardt, Texas.—Introduce the man to the lady always. In introducing two or three or more men it is not necessary to mention the lady's name each time. (2) I do not know whether it is etiquette or not to thank the young man who gives you an engagement ring. It seems like you ought to be thankful, though, doesn't it? (3) Thank your escort for his courtesy, but don't do it formally, or in any set words. (4) Write your acceptance or declination "in return for an invitation".

O. M., Colorado Springs, Col.—When your brother comes home, give a tea and invite all the girls to meet him. That will save wear and tear on him and please them. I have heard before of girls who liked other girls who had handsome brothers.

Maude, Esparto, Texas.—Sorry, but there is not space to publish a parlor game.

Unhappy One, Tax, Ga.—There is no way to know if a person loves you except by his telling you so, and if he does not, there is no way on earth to win his love. Don't you know that you or he or anybody cannot control the heart? You have my sincerest sympathy.

That is all, my dears, and I will say good-by and God bless you till we meet again.

COUSIN MARION.

Old-Time Calendar for July.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

On the fifteenth of July occurs the festival of Saint Swithin. This Swithin was one of the very early bishops of Winchester and seems to have been a man of more than usual humility, for he requested that he should be buried in the churchyard rather than in the cathedral, which was the usual resting place for deceased bishops. Long afterward, when he had been canonized, the monks attempted to move his body into the cathedral choir but were interrupted by a violent rain storm which continued for forty days, when they abandoned their attempt. This probably gave rise to the belief referred to in Poor Robin's Almanack for 1697:—

"In this month is St. Swithin's Day;
On which, if that it rain, they say
Full forty days after it will,
Or more or less, some rain distill.
This Swithin was a saint, I trow,
And Winchester's bishop also,
Who in this time did many a feat,
A Popish legends do repeat;
As woman having broke her eggs
By stumbling at another's legs
For which she made a woeful cry,
St. Swithin chanc'd for to come by,
Who made them all as sound or more Than ever that they were before."

And in a later Almanack, he says:

"If it rain on St. Swithin's Day
I've heard some ancient farmers say
It will continue for forty days,
According to the country phrase.
'Tis a sad time, the lawyers now
And doctors nothing have to do
Likewise the oyster woman too."

This last line refers to the fact that oysters used to come in, in London, on St. James' Day, July twenty-fifth, and there is a popular superstition that whoever eats oysters on St. James' Day will have plenty of money for the rest of the year.

Another old rhyme says:—

"July to whom, the dog-star in her train, St. James gives oysters and St. Swithin rain."

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

MONEY given for selling our toilet soaps, or 150 premiums free. Write today for handsome illustrated Catalog. Great Northern Soap W'ks, 224 Lake St., Oak Park, Ill.

$25 mail course on Magnetic Healing, Hypnotism, &c. Free. Pay after learning. Empire College, St. Louis, Mo.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio.

NEW CURE FOR FITS

THAT NEVER FAILS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Fits, Spasms, Spells, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus's Dance, &c., have children, relatives, friends or neighbors that do so, or know people that are afflicted, my New Treatment will immediately relieve and PERMANENTLY CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE Bottle and try it. Sent in plain package and express prepaid. It has CURED thousands where everything else failed. My 90-page Illustrated Book, "Epilepsy Explained," FREE by mail. When writing, please give name, AGE and express and postoffice address. All correspondence professionally confidential.

W. H. MAY, M. D.

MAY LABORATORY, 94 Pine St., New York City

FREE Clairvoyance. If sick or ailing send now, name, age, sex, lock of hair and 2 stamps to DR. D. Hinkly, X10, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LARGE CIGAR Firm wants permanent Agents everywhere $15 per WEEK TO BEGINNERS. EXPENSES ADVANCED. SAMPLES FREE. ADDRESS with stamp, C BOX 1310, CHICAGO

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich. EASTERN AGENCY 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

MARRY National Matrimonial club, private list 2c. Many worth $50,000. BOX 1363, Denver, Colo.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED Many rich. Big lists with pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

MAGIC DIP NEEDLE for locating Gold and Silver Ore, Lost or Hidden Treasures. Circulars and testimonials 2 cts. P. & M. Agency, Box 209, Palmyra, Pa.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr. E. M. Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

HAIR LIKE THIS

We will forward FREE

To any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address Lorrimer & Co., 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

$1200.00 IN GOLD FREE.

THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

ACDEEEHLMNOPSSSWYY

We will give $1200.00 in Gold to any person who will arrange the 18 letters printed above into three names denoting three well-known admirals of the United States Navy during the Spanish war. Remember we do not want one cent of your money. There is only one condition, which will take less than one hour of your time, which we will write you as soon as your answer is received. In making the three names, the letters can only be used as many times as they appear above and no letter can be used which does not appear. After you have found the three correct names you will have used every letter in the eighteen exactly as many times as it appears. The money will be paid. Should more than one person succeed in finding the three correct names, the $1200.00 will be equally divided. We make this liberal offer to introduce one of the very best Boston Story Magazines into every house in the United States and Canada where it is as yet unknown. Try and Win. It may take considerable study to get the three correct names, but stick to it. We allow your friends to help you. A copy of a celebrated Dollar Magazine will be sent you free anyway. If you make the three names and send them to us at once, who knows but what you will get the gold? Anyway, we do not want any money from you and a contest like this is very interesting. As soon as we receive your answer we will at once write you and notify you if you have won the prize. We hope you will, as we shall give the $1200.00 away anyway. Do not delay. Write at once.

RIGLEY PUBLISHING CO., 166 Oliver Street, Boston, Mass.

REMEMBER WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY.

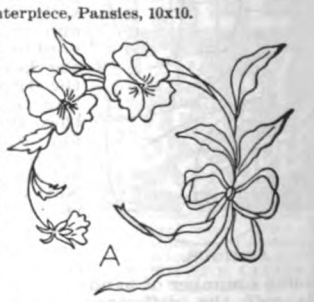
The Victoria Stamping Outfit.



More Artistic Patterns for the Money than were ever Dreamed of.

It has been our special pleasure to select designs for this collection for our artistic friends. Illustration A shows a floral and ribbon design which can be used for almost anything the dainty worker has use for. The flowers are best executed in Kensington stitch, the ribbon may be either simple outline, outline filled in with feather, herring-bone or cat stitch, or, what is still more effective, the long and short stitch. Illustration B is a dainty little design for monograms or what-nots.

Note the sizes of the designs named below and the number of sheets of patterns in this outfit.

1 Very Handsome Centerpiece of Carnations, 17x17 inches.
1 Pretty Corner-piece of Pansies and Leaves, 6x6 inches.
1 Design of Strawberries and Leaves for Doily, 5½x6½.
1 Design Orchid and Leaves for Scarf Corner, 6½x10.
1 Clover Design for Doily.
1 Design for Baby's Bib, Rosebuds and word Baby, 4x4.
1 Design for Cheese Doily, 3½x6.
1 Design for Souvenir Case with Motto, 5½x6.
1 Design for Shoe Bag, 5x10.
1 Design for Shaving Bag with Motto, 6x6.
4 Fruit Designs for Fruit Plate Doilies, 3½x3½.
1 Design for Carving Cloth, 11½x15½.
1 Design for Tumbler Doily, 4x4.
1 Pretty Corner Design for Tea-cloth, Jewel Work, 9x9.
1 Design for Table Doily, 8x8.
1 Design for Water Bottle Doily, 6x6.
4 Designs for Butter Plate Doilies, 3½x3½.
1 Cut Work Doily Design, 5x5.
1 Very Pretty Design for Corner, Battenberg Work, 7x7.
1 Design for Border with Corner, 5x16.
1 Floral Corner Geranium, 6½x6½.
1 Design Water Lily for Doily.
1 Floral Wreath for Monogram or Handkerchief Case, 5x5.
1 Design for Tray Cloth, 7x15.
1 Design for Centerpiece, Maidenhair Ferns, 9½x9½.
1 Rosebud Doily, 7½x7½.
1 Alphabet for Towels or Table Linen, 1½ inches high.
1 Design Centerpiece, Pansies, 10x10.
1 Pansy Doily, 6½x6½.
1 Alphabet for Handkerchiefs or Fine Linen, 1 inch high.
1 Border for Flannel Work, 3½ inches wide, and 29 other designs for embroidery of every description too numerous to mention here.

The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 9 sheets of patterns, each sheet 14x22 inches in size. As good as can be made.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA COMPOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

A SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER TO EVERY LADY. If you will send us only 18 cents we will send you one Outfit, all charges paid and make you a trial subscription to the largest, brightest and best illustrated monthly paper for 3 months, postpaid. Address COMFORT Augusta, Maine.

AN ALL ROUND CONVENIENCE AND MONEY MAKER.

HANDY AS A POCKET IN A SHIRT. HOLDS PENCIL IN POCKET, PREVENTS ITS ROLLING ON SLANTING DESK. A PERFECT PENHOLDER, EJECTS PEN AUTOMATICALLY. A Perfect Pencil Extension and Rubber Protector.

Made of Aluminum, light as a feather—looks like silver and will always wear the same—does not soil hands and will not corrode or rust.

The price of these Holders with pencil is ten cents each, but we want them introduced quickly and make the following

SPECIAL OFFER. Enclose only 6c. for a three months' subscription to Family Herald and we will send free one sample holder, a nice rubber tipped pencil and best steel pen, also full particulars how to make honest dollars.

EXTRA SPECIAL OFFER. Send 25c. for a year's subscription and we send half dozen rubber tipped lead pencils which you can sell for 30c., half dozen Pen and Pencil holders sell for 30c., half dozen best steel pens sell for 6c., total retail value of goods given you free 66c. and we also send full directions and instructions how to start and carry on a most profitable business without capital.

Our Aluminum Combined Pen and Pencil Holder is a Brand New Article, novel and useful in a good many ways. Makes money for the dealer and agents, and pleases all who buy and use it. Is a quick seller. Any one can sell it, in fact it sells itself when and wherever properly shown. Is used by LADIES as well as GENTLEMEN and is a prime favorite with TEACHERS and SCHOOL CHILDREN. Use it once and you will not be without it. Order a sample and you will surely want a dozen, which is only enough to go around in an ordinary family with a few extra for friends. By sliding it on an ordinary lead pencil it makes a perfect pen holder. When used as pen holder it is automatic, ejecting the pen by sliding either way on pencil. Makes a fine desk tool as it can be used either as a pen or pencil and will not roll even on a moderately slanting surface. Greatest tool for school desk. Does away with pencil or pen holder as we have both in one. As a Pencil Holder it has no equal. It will hold pencil perfectly in vest or inside coat pocket or any other place which is not too thick for clasp to go over. Always on your pencil. Stays wherever you place it. No matter if your pockets are full of holes; it holds your pencil securely. Anyone can sell these holders in fact they sell themselves. Send to-day, don't delay. Address FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

THE Lunation or New Moon from which we make our deductions this month occurs at about twenty-five minutes of 9 o'clock in the morning of July 26th, Washington Time.

At that moment the middle degrees of Virgo will be rising and the 15th degree of Gemini will be on the south meridian. The conjoined luminaries are found in the 11th house in close trine and parallel with the great benefic Jupiter in the 3rd house and also having the benevolent rays of Herschel. Mars is close to the south meridian in the 10th house, where also Venus and Neptune are located. Saturn is in the 4th house.

In general the indications of the figure bear out those given by the quarterly figure and give promise of favorable conditions of health and welfare of the people. The great benefic Jupiter, so powerfully supporting the luminaries and Mercury ruler of the scheme, is promising of wholesome atmospheres and general health, though some exceptions may be noted for certain localities, generally in our more heated southern regions.

Mars in the 10th shows some discord to the ruling elements of the government and indicates some lawlessness if not lynching in the southern regions. Typhoid and malarial fevers are likely to be more severe in those sections and yellow fever will need to be more than usually guarded against. Let the best attention be given to these classes of diseases by our medical brethren for they will be obstinate to overcome if permitted to gain headway.

Mars in Gemini and opposed by Saturn from the 4th may give unusual detriment to growing crops, as extreme heat, thunder and lightning and high winds will be mischievous. Mercury and Mars with Jupiter indicate good trade and gain thereby and that the people shall much delight in knowledge and be ingenious in the arts and sciences. There are indications of a marriage in some one of the families of the high executive authorities of the government.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR AUGUST, 1900.

AUGUST 1—Wednesday. Hold fast the purse-strings in the forenoon as the inclination for needless and unprofitable expenditures will be strong. Let the attention be given to literary matters, printing, publishing, and educational enterprises; do important correspondence, especially with public corporations, government officers, and in business pertaining to patents, trade-marks and copyrights. Travel, remove thy residence, and crowd all commercial engagements. These suggestions apply with peculiar force to persons born about the 30th of March, 1st of August, or 2nd of October, of past years.

2—Thursday. Affairs commenced at this time will prosper. Give preference to the forenoon for transactions of business pertaining to hardware, cutlery, firearms, metals, glassware, brass and iron work, chemicals and electrical materials and apparatus, also with persons in the ingenious and mechanical trades. The day is also strongly recommended for dealing with real estate men, plasterers, plumbers, gardeners, nurserymen, cattle graziers, dealers in agricultural implements, farmers, lumbermen, miners, building contractors and generally all persons engaged in the dirty and laborious occupations.

3—Friday. Be not rash in word or deed in the middle hours of this day nor have dealings with mechanics, dentists or surgeons; the early hours encourage the prosecution of the elegant occupations or polite arts, and dealings in artistic goods; the evening will disappoint thee in new ventures and is best employed for routine work only.

4—Saturday. Do not look for a favorable outcome from thine efforts in the middle hours in the elegant pursuits nor should the day be taken to prosecute business concerned with artistic or decorative wares, wearing apparel, or furnishings of any kind; the afternoon is by far the best part of the day and should be given the preference for important ventures where practicable.

5—Sunday. This day is unusually benevolent, particularly encouraging pulpit efforts and inviting communion with the poet, musician and artist and giving special appreciation of the beautiful in religion, nature and art.

6—Monday. Seek favor from thine employer in the morning when also make applications to officials for favor or advantage. The day is not a good one, however, for beginning any new venture of consequence.

7—Tuesday. A singularly evil day. Begin nothing of importance on this day if thou wouldst have it progress rapidly or meet with ultimate success; do not buy any lands or houses nor make any contracts for improvement of same. It is unfortunate for a birthday anniversary and good care and watchfulness of health and circumstances will be advisable for several months to come. Like caution is urged upon all persons born about the 19th of March, 20th of June, 21st of September, or 20th of December, of past years, and these latter persons will be wise to keep out of dangerous places as much as possible in these passing days of August and carefully avoid becoming overheated or being hurt by vicious animals or machinery.

8—Wednesday. Do not expect much profit or advantage from the elegant avocations or from dealings in artistic or decorative goods in the forenoon of this day, and the day otherwise is only an indifferent one.

9—Thursday. Choose this day for urging all honorable business to the utmost; for buying goods for trade and money transactions generally, preference being given in all cases to the first half of the day for the most important moves in the directions indicated; postpone correspondence in the evening.

10—Friday. Conditions are decidedly baffling on this day, and it is better to defer matters of much importance until a more promising time; make no contracts concerning houses or lands nor have any dealings with agriculturists, miners or contractors; do not expect any favor from thine employer and be sure to keep a civil tongue between the teeth, especially under any degree of excitement.

11—Saturday. Push business of all kinds, consult thy dentist, engage in surgery, experiment in chemistry, trade in cattle or metals, and travel; deal in such commodities as coal, iron, petroleum, wood, lumber, lead, wool, and grain, and with discretion in mining and railroad stocks if thy nativity likewise favor; make contracts for building and repairing; deal with machinists, engineers, miners, also persons in fiduciary capacities; have more care in the afternoon when no purchases should be made for purposes of profit.

12—Sunday. A day in which the musical portion of religious worship will be unusually happy and effective; the day conduces to unusual enjoyment of the elegant in literature and art and renders courtesies between the sexes particularly agreeable.

13—Monday. The forenoon is very unfavorable for most undertakings prompting quiet rather than exertion and urging caution in all acts, the avoidance of disputes or controversies and as much as possible all danger of accidents and hurts; let the tongue be kept well under control; the late afternoon mends the adverse conditions somewhat and mental efforts and literary productions will be more satisfactory than usual.

14—Tuesday. Do not expect much profit or advantage from the elegant avocations or from dealings in artistic or decorative goods in the forenoon of this day, and the afternoon invites losses unless extreme care is had in all kinds of speculative ventures.

15—Wednesday. Another of the very excellent days of the month which should be fully improved for urging all honorable undertakings; bargain for lands and houses; make contracts for their improvement and deal with aged persons, the agricultural classes, and mechanics; surgical operations and chemical experiments succeed; consult thy dentist; travel and trade in cattle, machinery, hardware and cutlery.

16—Thursday. Begin early and improve every moment of the forenoon in the pursuit of art, music, and in the elegant avocations generally; deal in fancy goods and engage in business pertaining to decoration, adornment, furnishings, and dramatic goods or entertainments; avoid the laborer and the mechanic in the afternoon.

17—Friday. An unprofitable day; ask no favor from persons in authority, especially in public office and avoid travel; do not purchase any stock for trade in the afternoon, and look out that thy pennies do not take wings fruitlessly.

18—Saturday. Give preference to the early morning hours for all engagements of a literary character, but have no dealings with corporations or organized bodies or any officers of government; the afternoon is the best part of the day.

19—Sunday. A fairly favorable day for success of pulpit efforts.

20—Monday. An especially active day, though caution is advised against too much haste; beware of a too ready tongue in the middle hours when disputes and mental hurts are likely; conditions are conducive to combustion and fires and explosions are likely to be more frequent and destructive at this time.

21—Tuesday. The early part of this day is the best and should be specially improved for literary and decorative work; let the artist and musician vigorously urge their several pursuits and plan their labors of the passing time; the day is indifferent in other respects.

22—Wednesday. One of the best days of the month; be up with the Sun and urge business vigorously throughout the day; buy goods to sell again, open new stores and deal with banks and monied institutions; solicit advantages from real estate men of wealth and generally from persons of prominence or distinction. REGULUS advises his friends to lose none of the golden moments of this day but to push all honorable transactions with more than ordinary assurance of success. If this be the anniversary of thy birthday, or if born about the 18th of April or 22nd of October of past years the above suggestions are particularly applicable.

23—Thursday. The inventive faculties are now unusually acute and some remarkable discovery is likely at this time; educational enterprises are favored and literary and intellectual matters are prospered; do important correspondence in the forenoon; avoid thy landlord during the middle hours of the day when more disappointing conditions prevail generally.

24—Friday. Choose the afternoon for dealing with farmers and produce men concerning farm and garden products; make arrangements for repairs and minor improvements to houses or lands, but do not execute any conveyance of title to real estate or mining stocks; employ the evening for asking favors of aged persons.

25—Saturday. Do not speculate or loan thy money or credit during the first two-thirds of this day nor make any large purchases of goods for trade; use the afternoon for forwarding thy ventures of a manufacturing or mechanical nature, when also deal in cattle, machinery, chemicals, glassware, cutlery and hardware.

26—Sunday. The mind inclines toward the elegant in literature and the imagination will be specially active; the musical portion of religious worship will be particularly successful.

27—Monday. In the early forenoon conditions frown upon the transactions pertaining to houses and lands and do not promise profit or advantage from dealings of such character; as the forenoon advances, however, let every energy be put forth in prosecution of all honorable business, especially of a commercial or financial nature; buy goods for trade; solicit accommodations from banks and other monied institutions, and deal with judges, churchmen, and other persons of prominence and station.

28—Tuesday. Keep thy tongue under restraint during the early hours of the day when dealings with manufacturers, machinists, engineers, carpenters, chemists, etc., are best postponed for a little; the day otherwise is fairly favorable for the general transactions of life.

29—Wednesday. Let all business pertaining to lands and houses, with the exception of furnishings and decorations, be pushed on this day; deal with contractors, miners, farmers and generally with aged persons; the day is more than ordinarily fortunate for the prosecution of literary and scientific pursuits, dealings with book publishers, printers, and mathematicians; sign deeds, engage servants, travel, remove and vigorously push all general business.

30—Thursday. Improve this time for making applications for favors or advantages from officers of great corporations, public officials or from thine employer.

31—Friday. The day is particularly favorable for musical or artistic professions or speculations and for the pursuit of the elegant occupations generally; dealers in fancy goods, jewelry and articles of dress and adornment should urge their business on this day with increased vigor, making very important trades and engagements and buying goods for trade; the manufacturing classes, especially of decorative wares, are also particularly favored.

A Porto Rican Fourth of July.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13.)

thousand tiny reproductions of itself which had been there concealed. These floated to the ground whence they were picked up and appropriated by the delighted crowd. Those who failed to procure one of these little flags were supplied from a stand on the steps of the town hall, and for the remainder of day the Stars and Stripes were everywhere to be seen.

From ten to eleven speeches were the order of the day, delivered from the balcony of the soldiers' quarters. Among other notable features of this part of the entertainment was the reading of the Declaration of Independence in Spanish by a Spanish gentleman.

Next the boys were made happy by the distribution among them of five hundred bunches of fire crackers, accompanied, it is true, by instructions and cautions as to their use; and at two o'clock the games began. It is useless to try to describe those games; every American citizen knows of the tub race, the sack race, the potato race, the three-legged race, the greased pig, the high jumping, etc. These were followed by native games, but truth compels me to state that they were not entered into with any enthusiasm, as the American games had won the public favor.

At 4 P. M., came the children's ball, and at 7.30 was the grand parade of the day with torches. The fireworks followed this, and the day ended with a grand ball which carried the festivities far over into the wee sma' hours of next day.

Thus ended the first Fourth of July for these new citizens of the United States, and it is safe to say, judging from the wild enthusiasm of the people, that it will not be the last.

FEW people outside sporting circles have any idea of money which goes to prize fighters. The receipts at the recent Coney Island battle between Jeffries and Sharkey were $66,848. Two-thirds of this went to the fighters, Jeffries, as winner, getting seventy-five per cent., or $33,423, and Sharkey $11,141. Both fighters have also a one-third interest in the pictures of the fight, and it is figured that at least $500,000 will be derived from this source, giving Jeffries and Sharkey at least $150,000 in addition to the purse.

SOMETHING over 911,000,000 railway tickets were issued last year in Great Britain, exclusive of season tickets and workingmen's weekly tickets. Up to within a few years most of the railway tickets came from private factories in London and Manchester, but recently the larger railways have set up establishments of their own for printing their tickets, pasteboard is specially made for this purpose and it is cut up into blank tickets, each one to be printed afterwards. It would seem as though it would be far less work to print them on large sheets and afterward have them separated by machinery.

MAKING pearl buttons out of milk is an industry of a creamery in New York State. All of the product of this creamery is used for buttons, and the owners are able to give the farmers a good price for their milk. In preparing the button material the milk is placed in a large vat and mixed with rennet. It is kept at a temperature of one hundred degrees until it is of the proper consistency. Then a fine white powder is added and the whole thoroughly cooked for an hour. After this the whey is separated from the curds and the solid parts are packed in barrels and shipped to a button factory to be moulded into the desired shape.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

A CASE OF PERFUMERY FOR YOU.

We have a great quantity of perfumery in cases which we wish to give to our friends without expense. It is most delicate and lasting and combines the various perfumes and fragrance of the flowers. Placed in a bureau drawer will impart delicious odor to all clothing, kerchiefs, etc. Sweeter than the mignonette. Send us four cents pay for shipping expenses and will send it with copy of our illustrated bargain book.
S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

I CURE CANCER

When I say I cure Cancer, I do not mean merely to cure them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a permanent cure. I have cured the worst cases—those that were called hopeless. I cure Cancer without the aid of the surgeon's knife, and in a soothing and painless manner. Because others have failed is no reason why you should endanger your life by this malignant affliction. Send at once for full treatise and letter of advice FREE
DR. A. J. MILLER, ST. LOUIS, MO.

FREE WE GIVE YOU A WATCH FREE
Address AM. MED. CO., STA. O, N. Y. CITY.

LADIES Send two cent stamp for catalogue of Household Necessities. Best goods only. The Specialty Supply Co., 1133 Broadway, New York.

YOUR FUTURE LIFE COMPLETE in LOVE, MARRIAGE and BUSINESS, AS PREDICTED by ASTROLOGY. Send TIME of BIRTH, SEX & 10c. for Written Prediction. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

Get Married 8,000 Ladies VERY ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, Box 608, AUSTIN, ILLS.

ASTROLOGY To prove the correctness of my Astrological System, I will give you my personal attention and send you FREE, a personal typewritten Horoscope of your life. Send your date of birth and 2c. stamp for postage. Prof. H. Edison, Astrologer, T, Binghamton, N.Y.

Mothers I can cure your children of incontinence of urine. Sample FREE. Address F. E. MAY, M. D., Bloomington, Ill.

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE!
Control whom you wish. Make others love and obey you. Cures diseases. Makes fun by the hour. New and instantaneous method. Quick as a flash. YOU can learn it. Success sure. Mammoth illustrated LESSON and full particulars FREE! Send address at once. Prof. L. A. Harraden, - JACKSON, MICH.

YOUR FUTURE FULLY REVEALED by Astrology. Success in Love, Business, Marriage, Domestic Affairs, etc., all correctly treated. My patrons are astonished and satisfied. My works are correct. To prove it, I will send you a personal typewritten trial horoscope of your life FREE. Send me your date of birth and 2 cts. for postage. Prof. J. H. Martin, Box 707, Austin, Ill.

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

Those suffering from Leucorrhœa, Irregularities of the Monthly Period, Change of Life or any of the diseases common to women, have at last a positive cure for their ailment. One Full Treatment Absolutely FREE to patients. Woman's Guide to Beauty and Health, a handsome book, beautifully illustrated, which should be in the hands of every woman in the land, sent free of charge, by addressing
FALLOPIA LYNN CO., Dept. 37, St. Louis, Mo.

Develops the Bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck, softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figures and matchless loveliness to VESTRO Harmless, permanent, NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivaled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plained women Full particulars, photographs, testimonials, etc., sealed for 2-cent stamp Write to-day. AURUM MEDICINE CO., Dept. A.N, 55 State St., CHICAGO.

BLOOD POISON

HAVE YOU Sore throat, Pimples, Copper Colored Spots, Aches, Old Sores, Ulcers in Mouth, Hair-Falling? Write COOK REMEDY CO., 1731 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill., for proofs of cures. Capital, $500,000. Worst cases cured 15 to 35 days. 100-page book free.

A PENCIL THAT WILL THINK FOR YOU.

LIGHTNING CALCULATING PENCIL.

By a Twist of the Wrist this Little Wonder Solves all Mathematical Problems as Quick as a Wink.

The Great Profit Maker of the Century.

All Problems Solved. Short Cut to Results. A Quick Sum Total. No Mistakes Possible With Sunshine's Calculating Pencil.

Here is the only reliable never-failing standby. It is the neatest educational novelty of the day. This pencil is a marvel of ingenious mechanism, and a great profit maker for agents.

You will hardly believe that this pencil can figure quicker and more accurately than you can. It will calculate anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twinkle of an eye. It gives you 144 combinations and is absolutely correct. It can't make mistakes. It is made of pure Aluminum and attached to a Faber Pencil. Fits any ordinary pencil. It has a good eraser. It protects your pencil point. It is a pencil lengthener and stays in your pocket.

Let Sunshine's Calculating Pencil do your figuring and give your head a rest. A sleepy man will get more accurate results with its aid than a wide awake calculator could get without it. Simple and solidly made. Interesting and instructive to everyone. You can't think half as quickly and accurately as this pencil does it for you. Teaches children more in one hour than they learn in a week in any other way. Simple as a clothespin to manipulate, a child can learn to work it in five minutes, it never blunders, is easy to see through. Tell your friends and teachers about this wonderful device, it's the greatest educational novelty out. Interests dull pupils as well as bright ones. Creates enthusiasm in mental calculation and helps in the most difficult subject with which both teacher and pupil have to deal. We send full directions with each pencil so you can get it ready to work as quick and easy as you open a jackknife. You can multiply quicker than an expert, a lightning calculator. Get one to-day.

The Educational Value of this Arithmetical Pencil is based on the highest Multiplication Table it contains. Every person should know it. Yet many never learn it. They are thus hindered in acquiring quickness and accuracy in mental calculations so necessary to business success. It is especially recommended to young people starting in business life and to those with neglected education. Teachers recommend it to their pupils because the use of the pencil imparts a knowledge of these figures in ⅓ of the time required by the usual methods. Even the Indian office of the U. S. government has recognized its educational merits and recommended that the superintendents of all Indian schools be supplied with samples.

SPECIAL OFFER. These Calculating Pencils sell for 25c. each, but we are anxious to show you how wonderful they are so will send one free to all who enclose 15c. for a six months' subscription to SUNSHINE, the great monthly, two pencils and a year's subscription for only 25c. Thousands are sold by agents. We send six pencils for 60c., twelve for one dollar, all charges paid by us. One hundred for $7.50, express not paid.
Address SUNSHINE, Box L, Augusta, Maine.

—THE—EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 12, Eagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

PARIS EXPOSITION.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THAT every reader of COMFORT would like to go to the great Exposition at Paris goes without saying; but so many cannot that we think it a pleasure to give just a few ideas of the magnificent fair that is now open at the French capital and to which so many of our American friends are already wending their way; a number which will be greatly increased the present month, which will probably see the largest number of our countrymen in Europe that has ever been there.

We all know that the first really large world's fair was held in the Crystal Palace in London way back in the early fifties. At that time Queen Victoria and Albert, the Prince Consort, were instrumental in making this first great exposition a fair in which the whole world was interested. While there were many large exhibitions after that, and many that had the ambition to call themselves World's fairs, it was not until 1867 that an exhibition worthy of the name was held. In that year Napoleon III. gave to the world the famous Paris Exposition, which outstripped any attempt that had been held up to that time. Nine years later, in 1876, the United States entered the arena and with the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia surpassed even the magnificence of the French Exposition.

Not to speak of the minor fairs which have attained more or less celebrity in different parts of the world, the next great occasion was the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 to celebrate the discovery of America. So great was the expenditure of money, and so lavish the display, and so vast the whole conception that no such display will ever be again attempted; and that, in its line, it will forever be peerless in its magnificence.

UNITED STATES PAVILION.

The present exposition is the work of the French people and is superb. Unfortunately the many political questions that have arisen among nations during the past two years have somewhat interfered with the entire success of the scheme; but that it is notable as a wonder among such exhibitions cannot be doubted. Not only is Paris of itself a city worth seeing, but it seems especially designed for successfully handling large fairs of this sort. At one and the same time enthusiastic and eminently artistic, the French people with a pride akin to vanity have a fair which they present to the world as a climax of the combination of art and utility.

It would be difficult to give any full idea of the architecture and beauty of the many buildings which crowd the space on both sides the river Seine. A new bridge named after Alexander III. in compliment to the Russian Government, connects the two sections. It can only be said that as a whole the exhibition is much like its predecessors, the most notable fact being that the United States ranks next to France itself in the extent and importance of its exhibition, and far surpasses the other nations of Europe.

Of all the buildings in the present fair none have caused so much comment as the entrance, or as it is called the Porte Monumentale, which is surmounted by the statue La Parisienne, which is shown in the initial cut of this sketch. The whole view is delightful and ranks as a great piece of architecture and artistic effect. Notwithstanding that its position in the Place de la Concorde surrounds it with gigantic monuments and buildings of National repute, the work is so well conceived that it seems almost marvelous in its beauty.

A word about the statue, which has caused so much indignation. Those of our readers who visited the Chicago fair will remember the female statue, bearing on her armored bosom the words "I will" can remember it as a work intended to symbolize Chicago itself. In the present instance the same idea has been carried out; but instead of a classic female there has been given to the world a woman in stays and petticoats, instead of the conventional Greek attire. Place this somewhat brazen-looking young woman on a pedestal above the arch, and you have the idea of the shock which has been given to the artistic sense of the French. Notwithstanding the violence of the criticisms which have been hurled at this lady who is supposed to symbolize the hospitality of Paris to her guests from all parts of the world, the statue is in place and probably will remain there to the end of the chapter, no matter how violent the criticism.

THE MONUMENTAL GATE.

The buildings for exhibits, the government buildings, the exhibits themselves all rank highly and are well up to our own World's Fair. The French themselves say that it is not fair to compare the two as their own artists should have the credit of designing the Chicago builings, rather than the comparatively few Americans who were called for that purpose. The sketch of the United States Pavilion gives an idea of the different government buildings, which are built in architecture generally characteristic of the countries represented. Fifty nations participate in this show and while in a sense the fair may not equal Chicago's in immensity, there is no doubt in the minds of experts that it is really a more representative exhibition of each country's real manufactures and resources than any that has ever been held. Its acreage is also larger than the Chicago Fair, but it would be impossible to make an exhibition that would so totally surpass its predecessors in novelty and wonderful effects as did that in Chicago.

There is no less than thirty-six entrances to this exhibition. The polychromatic gate near the Porte Monumentale is designed to accommodate the holiday and Sunday crowds and is a marvel of electrical effect. It is intended principally for night effects when it can light no less than 3200 incandescent lamps and over 40 arc lights.

As would be expected in France much attention has been paid to the art displays. The two palaces of art, of which we show the smaller, are intended to be permanent structures and are beautiful in their architecture and build, as will be seen at a glance. There is no Midway Plaisance, but in its place are the usual "side shows" which will interest and captivate visiting Americans, whose patronage is looked for above all other nations.

"Old Paris" has been recreated for this especial occasion and nothing can exceed its historic interest. It is like stepping back into the middle ages. Quaint steep roofed houses, narrow cobble-stoned streets lined and filled with men, women and children dressed as in the fourteenth century and living in every respect in the manner of that day, make it a combination of novelty and artistic gifts which could not be found outside France. No wonder that the national pride of that country is aflame at this vivid reproduction of middle age life, faithful in every jot and tittle in historic accuracy.

THE PETIT PALACE OF ART.

And so on the visitor will find himself in Swiss, Japanese, Chinese, and colonial villages giving accurate life pictures of the every day life of foreign nations. Indeed, this idea of living villages of foreigners was made popular at Chicago and reaches its perfection in Paris.

To close this brief sketch with a word for America let us say that America's exhibit was opened more promptly than any other and commands the most attention. So rapidly has America come to the front in two years as a great nation of the world that everything pertaining to the Great Republic commands interest and attention from every foreigner, who sees in our nation the Giant of the West aroused from his sleep. The Old World is startled by our government exhibitions of postal service, weather bureau and the military and naval arms, which heretofore have been looked upon much as we would look upon accounts of Filipino armament. We may safely conclude this article by saying that nothing has ever been such an object lesson to Europeans as the tremendous strides in progress that our country has taken; nor has anything ever been public that could have been such an intense source of national pride and glory, as has the Paris Exposition of the present year.

A GIRL'S AGE OF IDLENESS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THERE is a certain period in the life of the average girl—the daughter of fairly well-to-do parents—when the tendency to idleness is very strong. This period comes at the time when the girl completes her education, whether at school or college, and is thrown for a while almost wholly upon home resources and opportunities. The temptation is strong to fall back upon her status as a child in the home; to suffer herself to become a kind of privileged dependent, adding to the intimate and peculiar demands of the child a certain new and not easily definable claim as guest and Lady Beautiful. The latter feature of her status is hard to describe, but can be readily understood by any family in which the daughter has suddenly developed from a school-girl into a young lady, without any definite idea or purpose as to future employment of time and energy.

This period, then, falling usually between the eighteenth and twenty-second years, might be called the average girl's age of idleness. It is generally devoted to social activities and some mild form of mental knitting, like dabbling in art, music, or French conversation. It is also commonly admitted to be the girl's time for matrimonial manoeuvering, and a good deal of social life is considered essential to the success of this important quest.

It is evident, therefore, that the mother of the family receives, and can expect, but little domestic assistance from her daughter during this universally recognized and accepted age of idleness. The girl's residence is at home, but her life, her real interest, is not there. Her mother admits, of course, that she is in a sense a domestic burden, but feels nevertheless that she is a burden to be proud of, like the towering bear-skin cap of a drum-major. Indeed, the attitude of the whole family toward the idle girl tends to confirm her in her idleness.

Now this seems to me to be a wholly wrong and unfortunate state of affairs. I fail to see why the age of idleness is an inevitable or even necessary stage of the average girl's life. I deny that it essentially betters her in any way, or increases her chances of future happiness. On the contrary, I am quite sure that the idle girl loses somewhat in character and equipment by her idleness, that she is seldom really contented, and that her chances of matrimony are not a whit better than those of the girl who is too busy to go seeking them—if they are as good.

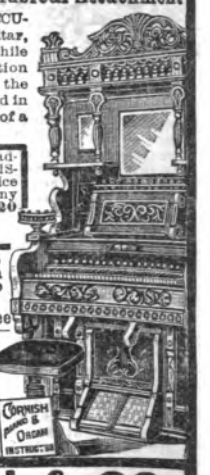
If I might be permitted to suggest a change of programme for the idle girl—just a tentative change, we will say, to be abandoned if it did not prove of superior advantage—I would recommend, first, an identification of life and interest, during the years preceding matrimony or entrance upon life's permanent work, with the affairs of the home. The return to the status of childhood should at least be complete. Even the child is expected to, and does, make itself useful in the home, and especially to the mother, as soon as it is old enough to be intelligently serviceable. The daughter of the house herself was practically helpful before she became a young lady, with matrimonial expectations—or dreams. Why should she cease to be helpful, and become idle, and remote in her interests and activities, after she graduates from school and becomes a young lady? Is there something derogatory to young ladyhood in sharing the burden of domestic service? Will the washing of dishes and making of beds so rob a girl's hand of its lovely qualities that no desirable young man will seek it in marriage? One would surely think so, from the prejudice of the idle girl against domestic helpfulness. Is not all this mere self-indulgent nonsense? Is it any more a help to true loveliness of character or person than it is a promoter of matrimonial opportunities?

Besides an identification of life and interest with the affairs of the home, I would recommend to the idle girl a course of progressive study and practical equipment in the line of her chosen or preferred life-work. This, of course, might necessarily take her away from home. If so, well and good. Let her seek her equipment wherever she can best obtain it. But if her ambition and her hopes lie in the direction of home life, of wifehood and motherhood, there is no better place than her own childhood's home to prepare for it. Only let her be always eager to widen her horizon, by reading, by investigation, by application of advanced methods to her own home-work, by every avenue that leads out into the newer fields. She belongs to the later generation; it is her duty to be a pioneer in her own home of the spirit and methods of the advanced age.

Let the idle girl renounce the age of idleness, in which the world seems willing to indulge her, and become the industrious girl. Whether she stays at home, or goes away to fit herself still further for some chosen employment, or enters at once upon that employment, let her give up the foolish notion that idleness graces womanhood or even ladyhood, or that truly worthy men admire the hands which others' ministering drudgery has enabled to grow soft and white. There is nothing lovelier under heaven, in man or woman, than the evidence of faithful service; and surely every young man with character enough to appreciate woman's true mission in life, will be more seriously drawn toward the girl who shows the spirit of service than toward her who spends the vigor of her youth in a kind of butterfly idleness.

AMBITIOUS BOYS AND GIRLS.

Here is a chance for you to earn money quickly by selling for a big wholesale house Fine Jewelry to Friends and Neighbors. No cost to you to make the trial. The firm will send you the goods on credit, and one-half the amount you sell you keep for your trouble; the other one-half you send to the firm. They take back all goods not sold so you run no risk. A Camera or Fine Watch as extra premiums to those who sell the goods quickest. Be first in your town to send your name and address with two references to King Harvard Co., Chicago, Ill., and they will send the goods by mail prepaid. Mention COMFORT when you write.



1 YEARS FREE TRIAL
THE UNIQUE CORNISH PLAN
OF SELLING PIANOS and ORGANS has spread over the entire civilized world and has been the means of building up a vast business

Over a Quarter of a Million Satisfied Customers

PIANOS $155
All latest Musical Attachments.

attest the honesty of this modern method of piano selling. We Warrant our Pianos and Organs for 25 Years. Back of that Warranty is a business worth over a million dollars.
FREE Our Souvenir Catalogue for 1900 is one of the most comprehensive musical books in the trade. The frontispiece is a masterly reproduction in colors of an oil painting representing St. Cecilia and the Angelic Choir. This catalogue is sent, postpaid, together with a novel reference book—"The Heart of the People"—and our latest special offers, free. The catalogue describes all our pianos and organs. It tells about for Pianos, Imitates ACCURATELY Harp, Banjo, Guitar, Zither, Mandolin, etc., while the famous patent Combination Multitone Reed Action make the CORNISH Organs unequalled in tone—reproduce the power of a full orchestra.
The Cornish Patent Musical Attachment

A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10 on the list price in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20 on the list price of a CORNISH PIANO.
Send for particulars of the Cornish Co-operative Plan showing how you can make money working for us, or a
Cornish Piano or Organ Free
References: Your bank, our bank, any bank.
ORGANS $25 Cash or Easy Payments.
CORNISH & CO.,
WASHINGTON, N. J.
ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS

Reversible LINENE Collars and Cuffs.
Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods.

No Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mail, 30cts. Send 6 cts. in stamps for sample collar or pair of cuffs. Name size and style.
REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept K, Boston, Mass.
RUBENS DANTE TASSO MURILLO ANGELO RAPHAEL

AGENTS WANTED.
$2.50 Sample Outfit FREE.

$1.10 Postpaid
Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets; a perfect fit and Nature's own remedy for backache, nervousness, indigestion, headache, liver and kidney trouble; complexion tonic, salve and soaps. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes for falling Hair.
GEO. A. SCOTT,
Room 12, 842 B'dway, New York.

$2100 in Premiums.
No Lottery. It costs nothing for our customers to compete. Our clothing catalogue with large cloth samples and our lithographed carpet catalogue showing Carpets, Rugs, Art Squares and Draperies in their real colors, both free. Express-age paid on clothing—freight paid on carpets; also lining furnished free, and sewing free. Address this way:
JULIUS HINES & SON, Baltimore, Md. Dept. 389.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

FREE Our Magnificent Catalogue No. 70, of Ladies' Outer Garments. Edward B. Grossman & Co., 170-172 State St., Chicago.

ANGELS WHISPER Beautiful Large Picture colored. Sells quickly at 25c. Sample 12c. 9 for $1.00. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago.

FREE Write for free illustrated catalogue. Chicago Mail Order Millinery Co., 45-53 Jackson Bldv., Chicago.

FREE Illustrated summer catalogue of jackets, suits, etc., M. Philipsborn, 138 State Street, Chicago.

ADDRESS The National Supply Co., Detroit, Mich., for their liberal offer to Boys and Girls.

$1.98

AMERICAN WATCH
Cut this out and send address and we will send you C. O. D. for examination, EXPRESS ALL PAID
one beautiful 14k gold plated watch, stem wind and set. A guaranteed timekeeper. Boys' or Gent's size. Equal in appearance to a $35 gold filled watch; warranted for 20 years. If satisfied pay agent $1.98. Ladies' or Misses' size Watch, EXPRESS PAID, $2.98.
W. HILL MDSE. CO.
92 State St., CHICAGO.

AUGUST~1900

PRICE 5 CENTS

VOLXII NO.10 MN 142

COMFORT

THE KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK AUGUSTA, MAINE. BOSTON

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Incorporated.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thu.	Fri.	Sat.
..	..	..	1	2	3	4
5	6	7	8	9	10	11
12	13	14	15	16	17	18
19	20	21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30	31	..

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least two yearly subscribers (together with 50 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

☞ Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR AUGUST.

Charles Edward Barns, First Prize.
Howard Marcus Strong, Second Prize.
Sargent Kayme, Third Prize.
Mabel Breverton, Fourth Prize.
F. E. Burnham, Fifth Prize.

THE MAN OF DOOM.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY CHARLES EDWARD BARNS.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE great practitioner delivered the death-sentence with more firmness than brutality, but he meant it; and after all, men on the verge of eternity are best informed of their nearness to the grave. He said:

"Go home, draw up your will and make your peace with God. You haven't two days to live!"

The man of doom took it very calmly, turning away with a resigned gesture, and readjusting his clothes. "I knew that it was pretty bad, doctor," he murmured humbly, "but I didn't think I was so close to death as that." Then with his waxen face uplifted appealingly, "Are you sure, doctor, quite sure?"

"You need not take my word—go ask any reputable physician what chances of life there are for a man with a broken neck. Nothing on earth can save you. The slightest jar or shock will bring about paralysis, coma and death. It may come in a minute, in an hour or in a day; but come it is bound to, and then off you go, painlessly to be sure, but certain as truth. That's all. Good morning!"

But the wan face thrust itself up again, staying the brusque expert. "Just a moment, doctor. You spoke of my going home, drawing up a will and making my peace with God. That's all right for a man who has a home, who has something to bequeathe, and who is not already reconciled to the decree of his Maker. As for me, I have no home; and aside from the paltry clothes I wear nothing to bequeathe, and I am resigned. But, doctor," he gathered closer, laying a thin hand upon the fleckless broadcloth of the practitioner's shoulder, "does my case interest you very much—you know what I mean—enough, let me say, to make my skeleton worth anything to science?" He saw the calm calculating glance beneath the shaggy brows and it encouraged him. "Because, if so, doctor, I will sit right down here now and make a will bequeathing it to you—for some slight consideration which will make my last hours easier."

The scientist resumed his seat. "Something I never did before," he mused, "but as your case is of great interest to the medical fraternity, and the museum of the college where I lecture would be enriched by such a gift, I suppose there is policy in your proposition." He began writing on the broad pad. "The consideration?" he drawled. "Well, how will fifty dollars do?"

"It is a good deal for a man who has but a day or two to live," moved the other.

"Well, your case is worth it to the college, so here is your check. Sign the document here, please. Get the money, find a comfortable spot and take things as cheerfully as you can. Be sure to send me your address. That's all. Very busy this morning. Good by!" He clasped the thin white hand as if he knew it was for the last time on earth, then hurried out, leaving the doomed man with the check to 'Bearer' fluttering in his trembling hand. After all there was solace in the thought that for the remaining two days of his life he could spend twenty-five dollars a day with reckless impunity, clear of conscience and contented of mind. Slowly, lest the jar or shock come too soon, the man with a broken neck saunters toward Fifth avenue.

Passing the Waldorf-Astoria, the wanderer was seized with a desire to taste a little of the luxury which had been all life long denied him. He moved on into the magnificent hostelry, impelled by an unseen power, seating himself before the crested stationery in the writing-room, where he wrote simply, "Dear Doctor. This is my address. You will find me here when—" he paused, then added with a perceptible shiver, "you know!" and signed his name. Then he cashed his check at the bank in the hotel, and sat down to the most lavish dinner of his life.

What luxuries! What wines! What a palace for the delight of the gourmet by nature, pauper in purse! With the passing of every course a new glory descended upon him—a new desire to live. Resignation to an untoward fate gave way to a keen passion to cling to the moments preciously to the last. He assumed the imperturbable calm of a general in the midst of battle, for well he knew that the slightest shock or start meant his death. And after all, was it not a worthy place to die, with a morsel of grouse on his fork and a delicious draft of the sparkling wine of sunny France upon his smiling lips? He gazed out upon the broad avenue and saw Life—Life as they live it who contemplate the world over white damask and through plate glass, Life written in great golden capitals—and he longed to live.

After the repast the dreamer sauntered into the Moorish room and set down to Arabian coffee and flat Turkish cigarettes of exquisite flavor; and through the smoke-rings, emblems of eternity and of the nothingness of worlds, he grew philosophic. Doomed as he was, he made up his mind to die gloriously, with a half-column article in the morning papers and a scientific disquisition in the medical reviews by the great specialist. Fame at a bound, glory in martyrdom to a fall off the roof during sleep! The waiter took the handsome tip, thinking it strangely inadequate to the attire of the individual. "That's so," mused the man of doom, "I must not go to my death in these miserable toggeries. I'll go and see what I can do." He knew that credit with a tailor, with head and shoulders already within the tomb was out of the question, and his funds were running low with the sweetness of a few mortal hours' extravagance. On the way toward Broadway he saw a famous physician's name on a door-plate, and recklessly passed in for an interview.

The practitioner looked at him in astonishment after examination and said, "Why, man, I cannot understand why you are not dead. It is contrary to all known laws. You are surviving by miracle. The slightest shock will kill you. You have not a day to live." The doomed man assumed a resigned air, then suggested leaving his skeleton to the doctor for a consideration—say, a hundred dollars. The eminent practitioner was only too glad to get one of the most amazing cases on record, paid over the hundred and kept the will in evidence. The man of doom then went back to the first doctor, returned the fifty and left word that he had made another will, "revoking all others." Then he spent the remaining fifty dollars in rehabilitating himself from the skin out.

The sun rose on the doomed man's last morning, finding him still at the Waldorf surviving on the best. He calculated that his end would come about four o'clock of that day, and gauged his expenditures accordingly. When four o'clock came, it found him seated at one of the cafe's window-tables loaded with shimmering silver and cut glass. Five o'clock came, then six and still no harbinger of the end, so as he was utterly broke, he went out to find another great practitioner.

He found one in the person of the president of a great medical college, and the same affair of the will was repeated, save that this great medicus was so stupefied with surprise that it was not a dead man who spoke to him that his amazement cost him two hundred dollars, for which he received a last will and testament. Honestly the doomed man returned to the former and left one hundred dollars in cash, with instructions to destroy the former will, as another making other disposition of his skeleton had been duly signed, sealed and delivered. Then he resumed the Waldorf as a fitting Golgotha, studying the blase, imperturbable insouciance of the swell to the manner born, to whom nothing is new and no sensation untried. If the roof had fallen in or the floor opened it would not have stirred him the slightest and even his dinner check, which has given more than one millionaire sudden heart-failure at the Waldorf, only caused a smile of saintly benignity. Three days passed, the hundred dollars was gone, and then the doomed man went forth to hunt up another eminent physician.

But the physicians had now put their heads together, and instead of ostracising the man with the broken neck, competition became keen. He had no more than made a will for four hundred dollars, revoking all others, and repaying the former two hundred, than his mail became crowded with inducements to make new wills at an advance figure, and some from cities afar. The matter got into the newspapers and the doomed man was spotted at the Waldorf as a distinctly new sensation, with a score or two ever pressing upon him "to be in at the death", some even offering to assist the demise by various surprises calculated to shock. But the man with the iron nerve simply enjoyed life day after day and week after week, living at the rate of fifty thousand dollars a year merely for the slight inconvenience of making a new last will and testament on an average of three times a week. Then he met a lanky, sombre individual with diamonds on his underclothing—a western mining millionaire who was the most miserable man on earth. The latter stared hard at the doomed man one evening in the cafe, then came forward, excusing himself by affirming that the man with the broken neck was the image of the miner's brother, who, alas, after some catechising over a cold bottle at the doomed man's expense, was discovered to be a sojourner in a Montana jail awaiting hanging, although innocent of any crime.

"If he has money," drawled the man of doom, "what's the matter of a substitute?"

"They do those things in China, I believe, but not here, unfortunately for my brother and me. I think I could pay about a million dollars to do that trick."

"I'll do it for half the sum," said the doomed man quietly. "You see, the doctors say I'm a goner anyway, so what's the difference? With half the money I'll marry some sweet, deserving little woman, leaving her comfortable for life. With the other half I'll order built a granite mausoleum so solid that all the doctors in Christendom cannot break in and get at me, inscribing over the door, 'Here lies the Eternal Mystery. Cursed be he who moves my bones!' It's all as easy as falling off a roof in sleep and breaking your neck as I did. You say that I am the counterpart of your brother now in the shadow of the gallows. With diplomacy and a little hush money the substitute can be easily made and your innocent brother saved. There now!"

"Come to my room," whispered the millionaire guardedly, leading the way.

No sooner had the pair passed the threshold of the magnificent apartment than a beautiful young girl rushed forward, crying, "Oh, Uncle George! Is it really you?" And throwing her arms about the newcomer's neck, she kissed him passionately.

"One moment, my fair young friend," interposed the man of doom. "That you mistake me for your Uncle George confirms the rumor of our likeness, but I'm not your Uncle George and one more shock like this and I am a deader. Now let's get down to business!"

In the presence of the daughter, who did the writing in the case, the whole matter was arranged, the contract for the grand mausoleum was signed and then came the article concerning the legacy. "I don't know that I have any relatives on earth of whom I think enough to leave a quarter of a million dollars. But here!" the man of doom glanced across to the gentle daughter who had given him the deepest heart-stir he had ever suffered in his life. "Even if I survive to go to the gallows, I have but ten days to live. I want to get all the joy I can out of life while it lasts. I have now for some days enjoyed everything that a man has a right to enjoy, except the love of a sweet, good woman. If your daughter, sir, will marry me and allow me to make her as happy as a doting husband may for the remainder of my life, I'll leave her the quarter of a million and an honest name."

"Oh," interposed the blushful one in great agitation, "I'm already engaged—to a young bank clerk back home. We're to be married in September."

"In no wise will my project interfere with yours, my dear young lady. On the contrary, think what a neat little sum for a wedding-trip around the world for you and your young man! Oh, it is very little to ask. I will be very good to you. I am a doomed man. I will save your father's only brother. Is it too much to ask?" he pleaded.

"Come back to-morrow," she faltered after a few moments. "I will think over it."

"Heaven bless you, my young friend!" invoked the doomed man, pressing his lips fervently to the trembling fingers. Then he went away.

The next day at high noon the pair were married, and that afternoon started on the strangest wedding trip on earth.

A month later a pale, cadaverous-looking stranger sauntered into the Waldorf cafe and sat down opposite the millionaire from Montana. "Well," he said calmly, "here I am, you see." The western miner gave a gasp and turned purple, speechless. "You observed," continued the quiet man, "they can't kill me. I was pronounced dead all right, and was so to all intents and purposes of the law. But the next day I came to and was set free on the promise of fifty thousand. cash. You see, my neck having been broken once, refused to break again and I was merely made unconscious. By the by, sir, where is my wife?"

"She is here," said the millionaire in sepulchral tones, trembling violently.

"And her uncle, your distinguished brother?"

"I sent him to Australia for a few years." He puffed at his perfecto nervously. "What do you propose to do with your mausoleum which is now building?"

"Cancel the contract, or, failing in that, remove it to Broadway and open a Cafe de la Mort on the Parisian plan. Great idea, eh?"

The millionaire drew a deep breath. "Say, you beat the Devil himself, you do," he drawled. "Do you think you will ever die? Can nothing kill you?" It was said as if the speaker now had a supreme wish for the other man's demise.

"I doubt it, unless it be unrequited love, sir, seeing that neither the medical fraternity nor the law can kill me. But here: where is my wife? I want to see my wife—" He leaned forward and gazed into the face that had assumed a deathly aspect again. "Why, what has happened?" he pursued, half rising as if he apprehended a catastrophe. "Quick! Tell me. Is she not here with you?" The millionaire had collapsed in the great arm chair. The man of doom arose, then the swish of silken skirts and the familiar odor of orris assailed him. He turned, beholding the darling of his heart standing like stone at his right, gazing upon him as on Death himself in the flesh. The man rushed forward; but, recoiling with a strange cry the bride forbade him with a look of supremest tragedy.

That moment of terrible silence was broken by the coming of a tall, fine-featured young man who stopped short, then clenched his hands and advanced to the man of doom. "Sir," he demanded, "who are you? What does this mean? What do you want of my wife?"

The man of doom grew rigid. "Your—your what?" he moaned, scarce audibly.

"My wife, sir! Do you understand—my wife!"

The listener turned to the scarlet statue at his right. "Dear one," he groaned, "is this true, is this true?" Then catching her faint nod, added, "Since when?"

"Since the very hour—that the doctors—pronounced—my uncle—dead!"

With that a mighty transformation took place in the shrunken attitude before them. It was like the snuffing of a candle, for the light of a life went out, the face turned a leaden hue, the head fell back with a creaking sound and the wasted form melted in a heap on the floor like a wax image in the midday sun.

It was the one supreme shock that the doctors had long predicted. Science and the law were defied; but love was greater than all.

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr. M. M. Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

$1,000 SALARY PER YEAR!
Ladies or Gentlemen We have shared the general prosperity of the country, and we now need one or two permanent representatives in each state to look after our interests, manage our agents, and attend to collections. This position involves no canvassing and is a bona fide weekly salaried position, with all expenses paid, to the right party. It is mainly office work conducted at your own home, with an occasional trip out among the agents. No investment required. Also three salaried vacancies in the traveling department. Enclose references and self-addressed stamped envelope to PROVIDENCE CO. 91 Caxton Bldg., CHICAGO.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled, Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 151 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

$100.00 PER MONTH and expenses paid the right man for selling our famous Poultry Food. For full instructions, FREE, address LAMBERT FOOD CO., Dept. 37, Parsons, Kas.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we furnish the work and teach you free; you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully; remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 74, DETROIT, MICH.

WE EXCEL and UNDERSELL ALL!

Electric Carriage Lights,	$4.35
$15 Telephones, complete,	5.95
Telegraph Outfits,	2.75
$8 Medical Batteries,	3.95
Battery Table Lamps,	3.00
Electric Railways,	2.95
Electric Necktie Lights,	.75
Miniature Electric Lamps,	.30

Agents Wanted. Send for New Catalogue, just out.
OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.
Headquarters for Electric Novelties, Supplies, Books.

$5.00 A DAY EASY FOR ALL WILLING TO WORK. Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating. At home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Machines. Plates Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, and all metal goods. No experience. Heavy plate. Modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Guaranteed. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials etc., ready for work. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc., FREE.

D. GRAY & CO., PLATING WORKS, CINCINNATI, O.

TEN DAYS TRIAL

We ship our wheels anywhere on approval without a cent deposit and allow 10 days free trial. You take absolutely no risk in ordering from us.
1900 MODELS best makes $10 to $18
'99 & '98 MODELS high grade $8 to $13
1000 Second Hand Wheels, all makes and models, good as new, $5 to $10. Great factory clearing sale at half factory cost.
AGENTS WANTED in every town. We furnish wheel and start you. You can make $10 to $50 a week as our agent. Write at once for catalogues and our special offer.
MEAD CYCLE CO. Dept. B. 0 Chicago.

THE YELLOW RUN TIE-UP.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HOWARD MARCUS STRONG.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ZENOS Quintin affixed his euphonious name to the lease and became my tenant for a period of twelve months. He asserted that he was a celebrated composer, but his name and compositions were alike unknown to me.

It was the composer's intention, so he stated, to live entirely alone. He had a daughter at school, and a son out west, but neither of them had an ear for music—a fact I no longer wondered at after listening to the sounds that issued at all hours from the little cottage across the field.

To Zenos Quintin, outside of music there was but one subject of interest—carrier pigeons. I remembered this fact the moment my gun recoiled; but it was too late; the bird lay at my feet. Hastily picking it up, I strode into the house, feeling thoroughly ashamed of my wanton slaughter.

A second examination of the bird revealed something of decided interest. To one of its tail-feathers was attached a section of quill, and within the quill was a tiny scrap of paper. The writing upon the paper was in such minute characters that a glass was necessary to enlarge it to reading size.

This is what I saw:

"Ttl hhl eeo shw weR aaur
gdn iwG sae btt uei rrt
isq eou dfi aYc tek † † †."

And it was a cryptogram that bade fair to frustrate all my attempts at solution. However, after the evening meal, I sat down to the puzzle, and at bedtime the secret writing was no longer a mystery. Taking the first letters of each of the words, then the second, and lastly, the third, I made out the following:

(1) "The swag is buried at
(2) the headwaters of Ye—
(3) llow Run. Get it quick. † † †"

What a sudden unfolding of dark possibilities this was. Could the message have been intended for my neighbor? Did this explain the occupation of his son? Was the musician himself simply a fence? What was the proper thing for me to do—inform the authorities, or do a little investigating on my own account? I determined upon the latter course.

The following afternoon I rode to Yellow Run, two miles distant, and dismounting, climbed up to the spring which gives rise to the little stream.

Just to the left of the basin, which had been hollowed out by the water, I discovered three tiny crosses, made of bark-stripped twigs and planted in a bed of leaves. There could be no mistaking the sign. The treasure was undoubtedly buried near that spot.

At that moment the flutter of something white among the trees caught my eye. As I quickly drew back, a young woman stepped out from the deep shadow and gazed about as if awed by the solitude. Then moving directly to the spot marked by the three crosses, she fell to digging up the leaves and soft loam with a small garden trowel. After a few moments' work, she struck something that gave forth a clear, metallic sound. With an exclamation of delight, she redoubled her efforts, and soon had a small iron chest exposed to view.

"Young woman!" I cried, starting out of the underbrush; "young woman, what are you doing here?"

With a frightened scream she sprang to her feet and turned upon me a pair of widely dilated blue eyes. Professionally—M. D. '95—I thought she was going to faint, and hastened to lend her some support; but wrenching herself away, she sank against a tree, and continued to regard me with a look of absolute horror.

"Who are you?" I demanded sternly.

Slowly her lips formed two inaudible words. Then with a quavering voice she said: "I'm Dorcas Quintin."

"A daughter of Zenos Quintin?" I persisted.

She nodded her curly head and looked the picture of misery.

My suspicions were confirmed—a family of thieves.

"How long have you been at Glen Cottage?" I questioned.

"Two weeks," she answered. "I think I'd better go back now."

"This gives me great pain, my dear young woman," I said; "but it is my duty to inform the authorities of all that Providence has seen fit to make me the humble means of bringing to light. You—"

"Well, I guess you've chinned about long enough," growled a hoarse voice at my back.

I whirled about and confronted the muzzle of a pistol. At the same instant the young woman screamed for help; but I could not move my eyes from the deadly weapon.

"Now come over and tie this one up," said the man in front of me.

Instantly my wrists were seized and tied behind my back. I was then pushed against a tree, several yards of rope were wrapped around me. When the job was completed, I could move neither hand nor foot.

There was the sound of digging for a time, some hard breathing and muttered curses, then the twigs snapped, and two men passed me, bearing between them a heavy iron express-box. Instantly I recalled the daring express robbery which had occurred on the railroad, several miles away, a few months previous.

A smothered sob reached my ears, and I struggled in vain to turn my head.

"Why, Miss Quintin," I cried, "have they strung you up, too?"

There was no answer, but continued sobbing.

"For Heaven's sake, speak?" I called. "Are you injured?"

"Not—not much," came in a weak voice; "only the rope is cutting my wrist."

"This is damnable!" I fumed. "To think of their treating you in such a manner. Can you see me?"

"No, I can't see you—I don't want to see you—I hate you! I'll make father move to-morrow."

"O come now," I said; "the whole thing was such a mystery."

"Well, you needn't have taken me for a thief," came the angry retort from the other side of the spring.

"But how did you know of the treasure?" I asked.

"Of course you think we're all thieves," cried Miss Quintin, indignantly; "but a stray pigeon flew down in our yard, and I caught it. It had a note fastened to one of its feathers, and I wanted to see if it was true."

"Remarkable!" said I. "How did you make it out? I got one, two."

"A child could have read it," she answered sharply. "So it was intended for you!"

"No," I said with emphasis; "the whole thing was an unfortunate jumble."

As the shadows of night began to fall, the air grew cold, and our situation was almost unbearable. A little sob came from my fellow captive and my heart ached for her.

"Dear Miss Quintin," I ventured, "don't cry. Some one will find us. I wish that I could come to you."

"I don't want you to come near me," she said with chattering teeth. "I hate you—O how I hate you!"

She was rapidly approaching a hysterical condition, so I thought it best to subside. Suddenly I was startled by a trampling through the leaves.

"Is it a bear?" wailed Miss Quintin.

At that moment my dog jumped up against me, barking joyously. How I thought of the heroic dogs of fiction! Some had untied hard knots with their teeth, or summomed aid for their endangered masters. Alas, Waif was not of that thrilling breed. He had eaten my meat and shared my easy chair, but he didn't even offer to go home and raise the alarm.

"I think we'll die here," moaned Miss Quintin.

"Pshaw! Dorcas, be brave. You'll be laughing about it to-morrow." And I whistled to keep down the twinges of pain.

"No—I sha'n't be laughing—and don't you call me Dorcas." The voice floated over with increased energy.

That was my cue. Anything to keep her mind off her sufferings.

"Dorcas, dear," I began soothingly, "some day you will learn to appreciate me. I am young, unmarried, and my practice is——"

"Bah!" exclaimed the young lady in a tone of disgust.

The darkness was appalling. The wind surged through the dry leaves, and a feeling of utter despair settled down upon us.

"O, a light!" cried Miss Dorcas, suddenly. "I see a light coming; shout to them."

And how I shouted! Thomas said it was "fit to wake the dead." A moment later he severed our bonds, and we were free. It was sometime, however, before we could bear the pain of moving our stiffened joints.

"Go ahead with the light, Thomas," I said; and catching up the young wonan, prepared to follow; but to this mode of procedure she objected strongly.

At last we found where my horse was tied, and I lifted Miss Quintin into the saddle.

"How did you know to come here, Thomas?" I inquired on the way home.

"A bit of paper on your desk, Sir," he replied. "The housekeeper found it, with something about the headwaters of Yellow Run. She got uneasy and sent me to look for you."

"It was my translation of the message that she found," I explained to Miss Quintin; but she failed to notice the remark.

Upon our arrival home, we found the housekeeper and the old musician in earnest consultation. He had become frightened at his daughter's long absence, and had started out in search of her.

Under the influence of one of Jannet's good suppers, we soon thawed out, and before good-night was said, Miss Quintin had forgiven me and we parted the best of friends. And that was but the first of the many pleasant evenings that I spent in the society of Zenos Quintin and his very charming daughter.

The mystery of the express robbery was never cleared up. We could only suppose that the real thief had released several birds, each bearing the same message to his pals. One of these pigeons I shot; another flew down among the Quintins' birds, and the others evidently reached their proper destination.

Zenos Quintin is at present engaged upon the composition of a wedding march. Further than that I can say nothing; for Dorcas is entirely too modest to be married for publication.

Elena, and the Governor of Cebu.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY SARGENT KAYME.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

RAMON had heard the news down at the water front, where he had been helping to load hemp; and he had told Elena.

The cachilas, white men, the Americanos, had come to Manilla in a fleet of great gray ships. There had been a battle. The Spaniards had been beaten, and now the Americanos were to own the land.

Neither Ramon nor Elena knew where the Americanos lived, except that it was somewhere on the other side of the world, from which, strange to say, they did not fall off. Some one had told Ramon once, that in that far off country the water turned to ice of its own accord, and men walked on it. That was another mysterious thing; and sometimes of a summer evening, as they floated across the bay of Cebu in Ramon's banca, they said how strange it would be if the blue water of the tropic sea around them was suddenly to grow hard, so they could leave the banca there and walk to where the plumy tops of the palm trees were nodding on the shore.

It was not of this they talked, to-night, though, but of something much more wonderful still, which Ramon had heard. A man who sailed on the boat onto which Ramon had helped load the hemp had told him that in the country of the Americanos there were no slaves and that, if the Americanos were to own the islands—so people in Manila said—there would be no slaves in Cebu.

This was what meant so much to them. For Elena was a slave, although few of the free born women of Cebu—none of them, Ramon thought—were more winning to look upon than she.

Ramon was free, a native of the island of Bohol, from which he had come two years before to work in Cebu. Now that he had come to know Elena, and love her, he said he would never go back to his former home unless he could take her with him as his wife; but a laborer in Cebu, or in any of the islands for that matter, can earn oh, so little wages, even when there is work; and the price which the woman's master asked for her was high.

The bay where the banca floated that evening in the twilight was so beautiful. Who would have thought that one day could have made such a change as the next day did?

Elena crept out alone the next night and looked at the water. The bay was just as beautiful, the air as clear and the sky as blue, but to the girl who stood looking at it, everything was black. Everything would always be black after that day, she thought.

It had been a feast day in Cebu, the day when the holy image of Santo Fino de Cebu, which had fallen from Heaven hundreds of years before, so the people said, was to be carried through the streets that the people might see it and offer prayers and be blessed.

First there had come big floats, on which were richly dressed likenesses of the apostles. The floats were pushed along by coolies, hidden except for their bare feet by the draperies which had been hung about the platforms.

Then, after the apostles, came fifty little girls all dressed in white, drawing by a long white rope a little car trimmed and heaped with flowers, from out of which rose a pedestal on which the holy relic rested; a tiny image, with a sweet child's face.

Now Elena, when she had seen the flower decked car coming near to the place where she and Ramon were standing in the street, dropped on her knees, as the other women did, to pray; and because the strange news which the man in the hemp boat had told Ramon was still the chief thing in her mind, she said aloud, "Oh, blessed Heaven-child, send the Americanos here to make me free."

But when the procession was quite gone past a handsome mestiza woman who had been kneeling beside Elena, sprang to her feet and pointing to the girl still kneeling, cried to a man who stood behind her:

"The cat! She prayed to have the wicked Americanos come!" and struck Elena on the cheek.

Then the man who was with the woman, because Elena was only a slave, struck her also, and said an ugly word.

If Ramon had had a knife he would have killed the man, but having none he could only strike him with his fists, again and again, until the man fell in the street, and the screams of the woman brought his friends.

Ramon was seized by the guards and beaten that day in the public flogging place, and after that was thrown into the prison beneath the tribunal. If he did not die from the beating he would likely be killed, or at least would never be free again. This was why the whole world, once so beautiful, looked black to Elena.

A week passed, and a month, and then two months. Ramon was still alive. Elena knew that because a woman who worked for the wife of the prison keeper had told her so, but no word came from him to her and she could send no message to him.

Then, one day, a strange thing happened. Three great gray ships came slowly and majestically into the harbor of Cebu, and rested there.

Soon small boats were dropped from the big ships' sides, and in them men were brought to the shore, where they formed in line, and came marching up the street to the tribunal.

Elena knew then that the Americanos had come, and although the streets were nearly empty, now, because some of the people had hid, and shut their houses tight, she went out and stood in a place by which she knew the troops must pass.

First there came a company of brown clad men, marching steadily, and then more men dragging a queer little gun, which did not look half so terrible, she thought, as the cannon in the water front fort, which had grown rusty because they had been there a hundred years.

Then came, walking alone, a man who from his strong but kindly face, and from the dignity of his bearing, quite as much as from his uniform and the deference of the officers behind him, Elena knew must be the chief of the Americanos.

She had not meant to do any such thing. It was only after she had seen the general's face that the thought came to her, but then, before any one could have stopped her, she had flung herself in the street before him, and clasping her arms about his knees was crying out to him for Ramon to be freed. Herself she had no thought for then.

To a young officer who had sprung to his leader's side the general said, gently, "Take her away, and find out what is the matter. Let me know later."

That was why, not many days after that, Ramon and Elena saw each other again, in the tribunal for the first time for two long months, and heard the new governor who had come with the Americanos tell the interpreter to say to them, "You both are free. Go, and learn to be good citizens of the United States."

Then, to an officer who had said something to him in a low tone, the general said, "No matter. Offer her master a fair price for the woman, and tell him it is that or nothing. I may not be governor here for long, but while I am, by the Continental Congress I'll do all I can to root out slavery here."

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Our Spring overhauling of stock shows a few hundred cards of Darning Cotton on hand, 48 yds. on each card, several shades: tan, black, white, drab, etc. One card, 3c.; four cards, 10c., all mailing charges paid by us. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm for selling 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, and a large Premium List. No money required.
BLUINE CO. Box 418, Concord Junction, Mass.

GUITAR, MANDOLIN, VIOLIN, BANJO, PIANO AND ORGAN Self-Taught, without Notes, by Figure Music. Big illustrated Catalog of Self-Instructors and Instruments sent FREE. We ship the first Instrument in each locality at a big discount, simply to advertise our goods and establish a trade. Address E. C. HOWE, 439 Bay State Bldg., CHICAGO

FREE EXAMINATION Express Charges Paid

Before you buy a watch it will not cost you a cent to see our great watch bargain. Cut this out and send to us with your name and address, and we will send you by express for examination a handsome WATCH AND CHAIN C.O.D. $4.50. Express charges paid. Double hunting case beautifully engraved, stem wind and stem set watch, fitted with richly jeweled movement, finely adjusted and guaranteed a correct time keeper, with long gold plated chain for ladies or vest chain for gents. If you consider it equal in appearance to any $40.00 gold filled watch and chain warranted 20 years, pay the express agent $4.50 only and the watch and chain are yours. Our 20 year guarantee sent with each watch. Mention if you wish Ladies or Gents size.
DIAMOND JEWELRY CO., 225 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE!

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life giving wonders. We send two boxes absolutely free all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver, they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments, they are suitable for dining table use or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as by magic if you use these pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money making agency proposition where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address
THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT., Augusta, Maine.

A WAX TRAGEDY.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY MABEL BREVERTON.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

WHEN Allan Ames went to board at No. 60 Brown Avenue, he was much annoyed to find out that the keys of some of the rooms were alike. Remembering this, however, he was not so much surprised as he would otherwise have been, on returning home late one night to find his room already occupied. An old man was sound asleep in his bed. He looked so tired, and seemed to be resting so peacefully, that Allan let his wrath at the intrusion cool down, and being a good-natured fellow, prepared to pass the night on a very comfortable sofa which stood in the room.

In the morning the stranger appeared to be sleeping soundly, without having stirred from the spot in which he lay the night before. Allan thought this was rather queer, and so he shook the old man by the shoulder. The sleeper made no response. His face was shaded, and almost buried in the pillow, but a sudden impulse made Allan bend down and examine it. It was a wax figure. And this was what he had passed the night on the sofa for! He resolved to get even with the wax figure maker who sat at the table next him, for playing him such a joke.

That morning, when he came in to breakfast, all the boarders looked up at him inquiringly. They were evidently in the plot, too, but Allan looked wholly unconscious.

"How did you sleep, Mr. Ames?" inquired the main conspirator with a look of innocence as bland as he had ever put into the face of the most inane of his own wax figures.

"Finely," replied Allan, "I spent the night at my aunt's, out of town, and I've just run up from the train to get a bite of breakfast here before going to the office."

The wax figure maker's face fell, in spite of his efforts to conceal it. Every one present looked disappointed. After breakfast, Allan hastily left the dining-room.

"Never mind, we'll work it to-night all right," said Mr. Moulton, the owner of the image, to his nearest neighbor, who had been his chief help, "but we must hurry up now to take that figure out of his bed."

The pair rushed up stairs to do so, but found the image gone, and the bed looking as smooth as if it had never been touched.

A few days later, the quiet neighborhood of Brown Avenue was startled by the news of a strange disappearance in Allan's boarding house. An old man who for many years had been a quiet occupant of No. 60 was one morning nowhere to be found. Days passed, and he did not appear. Suspicions of foul play began to be current. Accounts in the newspapers of a man in Chicago who was murdered in a lodging house by some of the other inmates, for the sake of his money, and whose body was found by the police hidden between the walls, served to make No. 60 the center of unpleasant speculation.

At last the matter reached the ears of the authorities, and they decided to make a thorough search of the premises where the old man had lived. The landlady alternated between tears and wrath as she showed the inspectors and detectives over her house. As a matter of fact, they did not believe that any untoward event had occurred there, but performed the task of searching merely to satisfy the Chief of Police who had ordered it. No. 60 had always had an excellent reputation, and was occupied by people of undoubted respectability.

They had been through all the rooms in the house except that of the wax figure maker, and stopped to look around in it before leaving. It was situated directly underneath Allan's room, and had a wide fireplace in it, with a big chimney which connected with a similar fireplace in the room above. There had evidently been no fire there for a long time, and this fact caused one of the detectives to stop short, and look again, when he saw a little pile of displaced soot upon the hearth. Stooping down, he looked up the chimney. An exclamation escaped him, as he suddenly drew back and pointed at the place. The others came and looked up, also, and last of all, the landlady. What she saw made her faint away.

After she had been carried out, the search party held a little consultation together.

"We'll have to have ropes and hooks to get the body down," said one.

"That's so," replied the leader, "two of you stay here, lock the door and remain near. Do not let any inkling of the discovery leak out, or let any one in the house suspect anything until I have reported to the chief. The rest of you go and get the necessary things to get the old man's body down from the chimney."

It was then nearly time for those of the boarders who worked in down town offices to come home to dinner. Allan returned at the usual hour, and went directly to his room. It would have been worth a good deal to the two detectives at watch in the hall below if they could have seen up through the floor, and around corners, to what he was doing.

In due time the men returned with ropes and hooks. The leader of the party made ready to go up the chimney. Putting his head into the fireplace, he looked up; then drawing back, with an expression of intense amazement he motioned to the others to look where he had. They did so, and saw nothing. The body of the old man was gone. No amount of after-search in all the nooks and crannies of the chimney gave the least clew as to its disappearance.

So chagrined were the men at the way in which they had been mysteriously outwitted by some unseen agent, that they had but one wish, and that was to conceal the whole affair. The landlady also was of course extremely anxious that people should not know her house had been searched, and a body found in it which afterwards disappeared, and so it happened that the tragedy of Mr. Moulton's chimney did not leak out. In order to keep an eye on the premises, however, two of the detectives came to board at No. 60, but no one suspected their purpose.

The whole matter would have quieted down had not the Chief of Police ordered more active efforts to clear up the mystery. The detectives began to be afraid that they would be discharged from the force unless they did something soon.

"I think we had better arrest that wax figure maker on suspicion," said one, "to be sure, there's not the slightest doubt of his being an honest man, but the body was found in his chimney, and he's the only one we can have the least excuse for suspecting,"

"That's so," replied the other, "and since it's to be done, the sooner the better. Why not to-night, when he is in his room after dinner?"

"That would do. We could take him quietly then."

The two speakers did not notice Allan. He seemed to be buried in a newspaper at the farther end of the room, but his ears were remarkably keen.

That night Mr. Moulton was seated alone in his room, when a knock came at the door. He opened it, and saw Allan. Scarcely had the two been seated and chattering together for fifteen minutes before another knock came, and this time the two detectives entered. When they announced their errand the wax figure maker was utterly overcome.

"Before you arrest this gentleman on suspicion merely," interposed Allen, "why don't you make sure that you have good grounds?"

"Good grounds, young man! What better ground would you want than we have? You know how old Mr. Grinnell disappeared from this place without leaving a trace of his whereabouts, and how, when we found his body up the chimney here, it afterwards disappeared almost under our very eyes."

"That certainly is astonishing. Do you think you would know the body if you saw it again?"

"Couldn't mistake it. I saw the man's white hair, and noted the outline of the nose and chin distinctly."

"Would you be so good as to look up the fireplace once more," said Allan, "and show me just where it was. I cannot believe you saw aright."

One of the men did so, and drew back almost paralyzed with astonishment. Stepping up to the chimney Allen reached his arm up as far as he could and pulled something down. A human body tumbled onto the hearth.

"The very same!" exclaimed one of the detectives, "hair, nose, everything, even the—" Suddenly the man stopped short. Allan picked the body up and set it in a chair.

"My lost wax figure!" almost shouted Mr. Moulton in his excitement, as he rushed at the image, "but oh, how dented and marred! Where did it come from? Why, I left it in your bed, Mr. Ames, the night you were at your aunt's. It's a joke we always play on every newcomer here."

Before the detectives had time to speak Allan opened the door of a room adjoining and in walked old Mr. Grinnell, looking well and happy.

"I've been having a delightful visit down in the country, gentlemen," said he. "I hear there's been some little anxiety about me. Too bad! My young friend here has been having me pass the time at an aunt's of his, and for some reason of his own he coaxed me to go down there without telling anybody a word about it."

"I didn't like spending the night on the sofa," said Allan, "and I couldn't help noticing the strong family likeness between your artistic wax figure here, Mr. Moulton, and our friend Mr. Grinnell. It struck me that if he should mysteriously disappear, your image might play his part pretty well, in some situations at least."

The wax figure maker only groaned. Finally he managed to say feebly:

"I thought you'd only pull it out of your bed, or go and have a little fuss with the landlady about it. That's what most of 'em do."

"No," said Allan, "I let it have my berth for the night, it looked so tired and seemed to be sleeping so soundly."

The two detectives retired without having performed the errand upon which they had come. The Chief of Police gave Allan a sharp reprimand for causing them to waste their time in watching the premises of No. 60, but as long as no harm came of it, he afterwards had a good laugh with them over the matter.

When the landlady was shown the bottom of the mystery, however, she displayed but little sense of humor—so little, in fact, that now jokes of all kinds are unpopular in her house.

THE SHADOW OF A ROMANCE.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY F. E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1900, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

THE little seamstress who plied her needle twelve hours a day and six days a week in the little room at the north end of a Broadway tenement house at the corner of Fourth Street, heard a slight sound at her window just as the night was deepening of a fall day. Peering out, she was startled to see a miniature box creeping along the gutter, pushed forward by a long stick. Within this box was a bit of paper, and on this paper was written, in an almost illegible hand:

"This has been a nice day."

The seamstress uttered a wee bit of a scream and banged the window. She was unused to masculine attentions and as the chirography was unmistakably of that gender, she conducted herself differently than many another younger and less sedate damsel. She reasoned with herself, pronouncing her neighbor, who by the way she had never seen, a most audacious personage, yet with all his presumption, a very civil individual who had in no manner insulted her.

The following day, having much work to do, she gave the note of the previous evening only a passing thought now and then, and it was not until the evening was at hand that her thoughts seriously turned to the matter; possibly not then, had not she heard much the same sound at her window that aroused her before. Looking out she saw the same box in the gutter, the long stick with a hook at the end resting beside it. Just then the wind almost carried the accompanying note into the street below, and on the impulse of the moment the seamstress did an unheard of thing—reached far out of the window and rescued the greeting, retreating in confusion to her room.

"Good evening, Miss——

I'm a well meaning soul,
Don't be afraid of me."

Life was monotonous at best with the seamstress, plying her needle hour after hour, week in and week out, and in spite of herself she was glad of the break in the usual order of events, or rather non-events, and instead of closing the window, she hastily scribbled three words on a slip of paper, depositing it in the box, which still remained outside the window.

"I am not."

The message was brief, but it evidently pleased her neighbor, for she heard him chuckling a moment later when he had withdrawn the box. When the box arrived the following evening at the usual time, her heart was touched and a suspicion of a tear might have been seen lingering on her lashes.

"I am sorry you work so hard;
it isn't right. Good night."

No one had seemed to care in the past how hard or how long she worked, and the discovery of one who sympathized lightened her heart and won her confidence. Her reply was brief, but friendly, possibly something more.

"You are good to say so——
Better to think so.
Good night."

Thus the days passed, each day the brighter for the thought that when evening came a kindly word would be sure to come from the neighbor whom she had never seen and who persisted in keeping himself in seclusion. Somehow the sewing did not seem so irksome and life seemed more worth the living.

One evening the expected message failed to appear at the usual time and the little seamstress noiselessly opened the window and looked toward the window whence came the box. Suddenly she drew back with a shiver which was unaccountable, considering what she beheld—a well-shaped man's arm, stretched out in act of pushing the box along the gutter. That was the first that she had seen of her neighbor.

The seamstress was sewing one morning when a sudden and alarming thought occurred to her. Why did she find herself thinking so frequently of her neighbor who greeted her so pleasantly each evening? Did she love him? Was she beginning to care for this individual who professed to be interested in her welfare? Like a wave the color mounted to her brow, and the answer was a decisive—yes.

Thus far had her new found friend evaded all attempts at conversing or meeting with him. Being a woman, the seamstress chafed at his moderation in declaring himself; being a woman, she did not await his pleasure. An incident which occurred of a moonlit night hastened the solving of the mystery.

The seamstress was seated in her room one evening, too weary to retire after a peculiarly busy day. The hours slowly passed, and as midnight approached the full moon shed its rays more directly upon the window. Without, the winter wind shook shutters and sash, blowing the dry snow into little drifts, though it had fallen two days previous. Suddenly the seamstress shivered, drawing her wrap more closely about her. She knew not the reason for it, but the fact remains that she did so.

As the clock struck the hour of twelve her horrified eyes beheld a hand creeping past the casement of the window, without the pane; a hand deathly white and uncanny. A forearm followed; then a head and shoulders; and finally a misshapen body; a creature unlike any human being, crouching, creeping, cringing as the window rattled.

Petrified with fright, the seamstress sat motionless, her eyes starting from their sockets. Then the apparition paused, seemed to glance in at the room, turned and slowly retreated, vanishing as silently as it had come.

The uncanny occurrence completely unstrung the seamstress and the following day she was unable to accomplish much work. She wanted to talk with some one of the apparition, but fearing ridicule, she kept the matter to herself. At twilight, however, the customary note having arrived from her neighbor, she wrote a more or less lengthy account of her experience of the previous night, asking what he thought of it all.

"Best leave such things alone."

Such was the brief reply received a few moments later. It was cold comfort and the seamstress was deeply grieved; not only grieved, but angry. Her response was a hearty banging of the window, more expressive than a ten-page protest.

The following evening the message failed to appear and the seamstress bitterly repented her hastiness; no word coming the second night, she shed not a few tears. A week passed, and still no word, all was as silent as the grave on the other side of the partition.

One morning the seamstress chanced to meet her landlord on the street, less than a block removed from the latter's residence. The suspense was growing unbearable, and she asked him who occupied the room adjacent to her own, the one on the south.

"Bless your soul, Miss," said he, dropping his voice, "nobody lives there, leastwise, nobody human; it's haunted; nobody has lived there for two years, since a young man up and killed himself one night. It——

"Why, confound it, what's the matter? What makes you so pale?"

The next instant the seamstress was a senseless heap of humanity in the landlord's strong arms, and he was bearing her homeward, and shortly he was mounting his own steps.

It was two months before the seamstress was able to leave the landlord's home where she had been near death's door from brain fever. The landlord's sister had successfully nursed her back to convalescence and the former had shown himself a close second, employing the best of physicians and purchasing the most costly delicacies.

"You have been very good to me, Mr. Poole," said the seamstress one morning when she was well on the road toward health, "I fear I can never repay you the half."

"Oh, yes, you can," said the bachelor, Mr. Poole, "never is a long time, Miss Fairchild; I am willing to wait."

The seamstress blushed, smiled and said: "A patient waiter is no loser."

Support Yourself While Learning a Profession

We can qualify you in a few months to maintain yourself while learning to be a Mechanical Engineer, Electrician, Architect. Write for our new circular, "Support Yourself While Learning a Profession." Sent free.

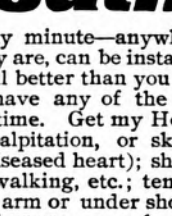
INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 1190 Scranton, Pa.

200,000 students and graduates. Send for circular, stating subject in which interested.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS.

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Prussian army contains only one officer raised from the ranks.



THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and forty-six popular songs, sentimental, pathetic and comic, with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses, and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

AGENTS GOOD PAY. Largest Line. Best Sellers. Finest Goods. All Prices, 5c to $1. 27 Cooking Flavors, 24 Perfumes, 6 Colognes, Creams, Powders, Inhalers, Remedies, Household, Toilet Goods. Select any. Big Profit and Premiums beside. Express allowed. CREDIT GIVEN. AGENTS TERMS FREE. Herbene Laboratories, Box 54, Station I, New York.

I WAS DEAF AND FRANTIC WITH HEAD NOISES I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, over Postoffice, COHOES, N. Y.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

High-Arm

$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12

Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-5, Chicago, Ill.

Sudden Death

If you have heart disease you are in grave danger. You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once.

Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

Heart Disease

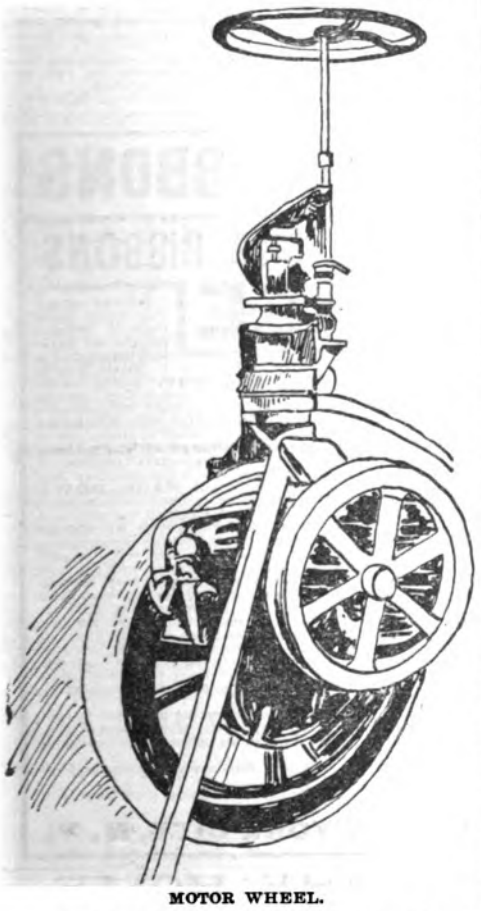
choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. AUSTIN ALBRO, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.



ONE of the newest vehicles is a sort of combination bicycle, tricycle and automobile, which is called a "gyroscope," an illustration of which is herewith shown.

The front wheel serves the double purpose of driver and steerer, and being subjected to greater strains than the two rear wheels, is constructed much more substantially. All levers for controlling the machine are conducted along the steering bar to within easy reach of the operator. The brake is worked by foot pressure, the tread being so set as to enable the operator to exert direct force, bringing the vehicle to a full stop in three times its length.

In the accompanying illustration, taken from the Cycle and Automobile Trade Journal, is shown a ten-horse-power "motor wheel" for heavy truck work. This device consists of a wooden wheel driven by a two-cylinder gasoline motor, suspended on one side of the wheel. The wheel is placed between the two sides of a heavy yoke or fork, on one side of them the motor is hung, the other side being devoted to the gasoline tanks. The steering is done by means of a hand wheel, shaft and gearing, and the controlling lever is conveniently placed. The application of this motor to any light or heavy vehicle is well within the ability of an average machinist, and consists simply in removing the front wheels and axle, and substituting the "motor wheel." The Company is now turning out these wheels in sizes varying from one to ten horse-power. That the automobile is already becoming a prominent factor in the economy of public transportation is evident.

The plan of a national highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, so long the dream of cycling enthusiasts, has since the advent of the automobile, been receiving no little attention throughout the country. The Automobile Club of America has taken up the matter and at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, the trans-continental automobile road was formally launched. General Miles representing the War Department, and General Roy Stone, head of the Department of Road Inquiry, were present and expressed sympathy with the movement. Automobilists believe that the highway should be built independent of existing roads and the expense borne by the United States, aided by the states through which the road passes.

Akron, Ohio, is the proud possessor of the first automobile patrol wagon in this country. It is of electric type, being driven by two six-horse-power motors, capable of a maximum speed of twenty miles an hour. The battery is of forty cells and one charge will carry the vehicle twenty-five miles. The steering is accomplished by means of the wheel in front, a lock on the steering shaft enabling the vehicle to run straight without watching. An electric headlight and an electric alarm gong give warning of the approach of this modern accessory of the up-to-date municipal department, while a smaller light in the top of the wagon gives ample illumination for the interior. In order to prevent accidents on steep grades three systems of brakes are used. The complete vehicle weighs five thousand eight hundred pounds, and in actual service has been run through mud six inches deep, with as many people on it as could be seated.

MOTOR WHEEL.

A self-propelled invalid's chair is the latest development of the electromobile. It was designed by a physician of Toronto, Canada, and carries a four-horse-power motor and sufficient battery capacity for a fifteen mile run at a rate of four and a half miles an hour.

The advent of the self-propelled vehicle has brought to the front accessories similar to those in use in connection with the bicycle, but larger, stronger and more powerful. Thus there are now on the market, tires, rims, pumps, lamps, bells, chain, bodies, enamel, and so on ad infinitum—all especially adapted for the fitting or furnishing of the automobile.

An automobile authority advises those who are contemplating buying horseless vehicles to put in a week or two managing a motor tricycle. "It is a splendid preparation for better things, and a week's actual experience on the road is infinitely better than a month's theoretical study."

As bicycles have already passed the experimental stage for military use, it appears probable that the next step will be motor-boats. These were given a trial at the last German manoeuvers and proved very successful. It is now reported that German firms are rapidly manufacturing army bicycles and motor-boats.

According to experts, the neglect of bearings is a prolific source of injury to bicycles. A loose bearing causes extra friction and extra strain. The machine runs badly and wears out much more quickly. An overtight bearing is almost as bad. A bearing should be adjusted until there is absolutely no side play. The act of securing the nuts, however, sometimes overtightens the bearings, and for this reason the wheel should be spun after the nuts have been tightened. If the wheel stops at all suddenly it is a sign that the bearing is overtight, and it should be simply slackened.

GYROSCOPE MOTOR TRICYCLE.

In badly-shaped and ill-adjusted saddles and the desire to "scorch" lie all the hidden dangers of wheeling and a more sensible appreciation of the sport, coupled with better wheels, better saddles and the dissemination of a little practical commonsense has worked wonders with the wheelwoman, and bicycling is now fast regaining much of its former popularity. An uncomfortable saddle should never be ridden, no matter how much it is recommended by one's friends.

Despite the legion of instruction books that have been published and the number of schools for learning to ride the bicycle, one still sees a great many women making the same old mistakes. They do not sit upright on the machine with the shoulders thrown back, the chest out, and the head erect. Not only is this the most graceful position for riding, but it is also the most healthful. Common sense and vanity are united in this point. The woman who rides with her head and shoulders bent forward over the handle bars is not only hopelessly ungraceful, but deprives herself of the healthful advantages of the exercise, for cramped lungs cannot breathe properly and the heart labors in this position.

The adjustment of the saddle, says a recent writer in Harper's Bazar, is quite as important as its shape. It should not be tipped forward so as to throw the weight towards the handle bars, nor back so that it becomes necessary to hold one's weight from sliding away. It should bear the body upright so that no effort or extra pressure is necessary to keep from sliding off. In fact, it should be a seat rather than a saddle and as comfortable as possible.

Nothing can be more dangerous than riding with the saddle post too high. The correct reach can easily be tested by sitting upright on the saddle with one pedal down at its lowest point. With the leg straight the arch of the foot under the instep should rest naturally on the pedal—that is, without leaning the body over to lengthen the reach, nor bending the knee to shorten it. It is important also that the saddle be adjusted far enough forward so that one sits directly over her work; nothing is more tiring than riding a bicycle with the saddle too far back or too low. In either case the muscles bend too much and the muscles of the legs soon become exhausted. If the saddle is too far back it is necessary to lean forward in the ungraceful and unhealthy position of the "scorcher" in order to reach the handle bars.

Brakes should always be used on bicycles for women, and those which clutch the tire firmly, so as to stop the wheel in a short distance, are particularly desirable. Too much use of the brake, particularly when the wheel is going fast, wears out the front tire, but it will be found very useful in dismounting hurriedly. For the ordinary dismount the bicycle should be slowed up and the weight thrown over to the left foot when the pedal is at the bottom of its circle. As it begins to rise the weight of the dismounting rider will check the progress of the wheel and she can step quietly to the ground. It is not necessary to jump off or to fall off; if the wheel is stopped properly either with the brake or by the use of the body's weight, one can step off just as gracefully and with as little danger as she steps off a curbstone.

Not one woman in ten leads a wheel properly, and for that matter, very few men do either. Most women lean over and with considerable effort push the machine with one hand on each handle bar, but this makes them bend the body uncomfortably or they are so close that the idle pedal constantly strikes their shins as they walk alongside of the bicycle. To avoid this some of them lead a wheel by one handle bar, but it is obviously impossible to guide it properly in this way; others put the right hand on the saddle and the left on the bar.

The correct method, however, is different from all of these. The wheel should be grasped by the center of the handle bar, with the fingers turned up and divided around the head-post. This way of leading keeps the machine further away from the body, so as not to interfere with walking by it, and at the same time guides it most easily. Instantly that it swerves too close or too far, the front wheel is lifted from the ground and the idle bicycle immediately recovers its balance.

It is really surprising how many women find it difficult to mount a bicycle properly. Instead of taking it at the proper height, they insist on having the pedal too low when they put their weight upon it, and the result is that the wheel does not get enough start before they are on the saddle, the other pedal will turn past the "dead center", the wheel stops and they are forced to jump off again hurriedly.

The right pedal should be fully two-thirds of the way up to mount properly, and the whole weight should be kept on that pedal until it has dropped half way down in its course. Then the machine will start ahead quickly before one takes the saddle, and its force will be enough to carry the left pedal around past the top of its turn and the other foot's pressure on that at once gets the wheel under full headway.

HERE IS HEALTH FREE

These Four New Preparations comprise a complete treatment for nearly all the ills of life. The Food-emulsion is needed by some, the Tonic by others, the Expectorant by others, the Jelly by others still, and all four, or any three, or two, or any one, may be used singly or in combination, according to the exigencies of the case. Full instructions with each set of four free remedies, represented in this illustration.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Slocum System is medicine reduced to an exact science by America's foremost specialist, and our readers are urged to take advantage of Dr. Slocum's generous offer. When writing the Doctor please mention Comfort.

THESE FOUR REMEDIES

Represent a New system of medicinal treatment for the weak, and those suffering from wasting diseases, or inflammatory conditions of nose, throat and lungs.

The treatment is free. You have only to write to obtain it.

Its efficacy is explained as simply as possible, below.

By the system devised by DR. T. A. SLOCUM, the specialist in pulmonary and kindred diseases, all the requirements of the sick body can be supplied by the FOUR remedies constituting his Special Treatment known as The Slocum System.

Whatever your disease, one or more of these four medicines will be of benefit to you.

According to the exigencies of your case, fully explained in the treatise given free with the free medicine, you may take one, or any two, or three, or all four, in combination.

A cure is certain if the simple directions are carefully followed.

The medicines are especially adapted for those who suffer from weak lungs, coughs, sore throat, catarrh, grip, consumption, and other pulmonary troubles.

But they are also of wonderful efficacy in the building of weak systems, in purifying the blood, making flesh, and restoring to weak, sallow people rich and healthy constitutions and complexions.

Female troubles and the many ailments of delicate children are speedily relieved.

The basis of the entire system is a flesh-building, nerve and tissue-renewing food.

Every invalid and sick person needs strength. This food gives it.

Many people get the complete system for the sake of the Food, which they themselves need, and give away the other three preparations to their friends.

The second article is a Tonic. It is good for weak, thin, dyspeptic, nervous people. For those who have no appetite, who need bracing up.

Thousands take only the Food and the Tonic.

The third preparation is a medicinal healing Jelly, in a patent collapsible tube. It cures catarrh. It heals all irritation of the nose, throat and mucous membrane. It gives immediate relief. It is also a dainty application for sore lips, sunburn, rough skin, etc.

Perhaps a million people need this jelly without any of the other articles.

The fourth article is an Expectorant and Cough Cure. The only one that can positively be relied upon. Contains no dangerous drugs, and is absolutely safe for children. Goes to the very root of the trouble, and not merely alleviates, but cures.

The four together form a panoply of strength against disease in whatever shape it may attack you.

THE FREE OFFER

To obtain these four FREE invaluable preparations, illustrated above, all you have to do is to write, mentioning COMFORT, in which you read this article, to DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your name and full address. The free medicine will then be sent you, in the hope that if it does you good, you will recommend it to your friends.

TEN WEEKS FOR 10 CENTS.

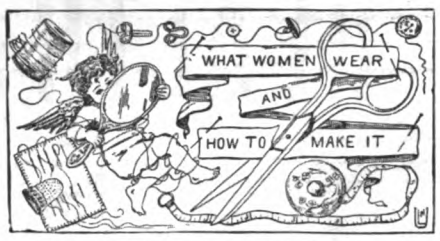
That big family paper, The Western Weekly, of Denver, Colo. (founded 1890) will be sent ten weeks on trial for 10c; clubs of six 50c; 12 for $1. Special offer solely to introduce it. Latest mining news and illustrations of scenery, true stories of love and adventure. Address as above and mention COMFORT; stamps taken.

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best collection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a FREE present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. | MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.



Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $288 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful SELLER. Everybody buys-business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. Write Today for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc., FREE. World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

[We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor.]

THE ELECTRICITY from the batteries will turn a needle through your table or hand. Cures Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney disease, weak and lame back, etc. For advertising purposes we will give ONE BELT FREE to one person in each locality. Address E. J. SMEAD & Co., Dept. 259, Vineland, N. J.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE majority of women would gladly sacrifice a little style to comfort in the matter of exposing the throat. A stiff linen collar is not the acme of comfort in warm weather and anything in the way of soft neckwear is apt to find a welcome by sensible women. A pretty way to finish the neck of a silk shirt waist made of scarlet and white striped China silk, is to cut the neck square, and finish the opening with a flat band of the silk so folded as to show only the white stripe. At each side is a narrow fall of Valenciennes lace. The soft tie is of plain white silk stitched with a fold down the center finished in the same way.

This model will be found ideal for organdies, lawns, ginghams, or any soft material. A narrow little piping of soft silk is used as the finish on the neck of a number of the new gowns, which are collarless. Around the throat may be worn with becoming effect several rows of pearls or coral, or a narrow band of black velvet ribbon tied in a bow at the back.

Handkerchief bodices are extremely popular. A sweet one has the yoke of tucked white surah attached to a full lower portion over which is a draped bolero effect in front. A folded girdle extends all around the waist, much higher at the front. Over the shoulders is a large shawl collarette made of the border of the handkerchief, the fringed edges forming the trimming. The upper portions of the sleeves are plain, the lower portion being formed by the flowered material.

Stunning indeed are the new Heptonette rain garments and dust cloaks, so far surpassing all that have gone before in that line that comparisons are not to be made. The material is somewhat different from the cravenette and much lighter. They are of English manufacture and not to be duplicated in this country. They are in shape very much like a man's Raglan, large and loose differing only at the back when a curved center seam, finished with a broad stitched band takes away the loose effect and renders the garment wonderfully graceful. These cloaks are very light weight and are being worn on all occasions when any sort of wrap is necessary, and will be worn during the fall and winter over the usual outer garment, as a protection from rain or dampness.

The Ladysmith has so taken the fancy of the smart girl that the usual sailor is very seldom seen and is not considered the modish hat of the season. The Ladysmith is seen in a variety of forms, made so by various arrangements of the brim. Sometimes the brim droops all around. Sometimes it droops at the front and sides, rolling at the back and often it rolls gently all around. The usual decoration consists of a folded scarf of flannel, of whatever color desired, (the preference given to brilliant blues and reds) while a binding of the same finishes the brim.

ACCORDION PLEATED LIBERTY SILK.

The separate waist is as popular as ever, but there is a slight difference in the manner of wearing them, the usual black skirt being considered somewhat passe, unless the waist is made of wash material. To be perfectly correct it is considered quite necessary to wear a skirt of the same color, or, at least some light toned color to harmonize. The wash waist is independent in its habits and combines itself most naturally with skirts of all sorts. White is the preferred color, for waists of lawn, organdie, or silk. Yokes and stiff collars are things of the past. The collarless waist is one of the newest fads, the fronts are arranged in many fanciful ways, sometimes full, cut out square and daintily trimmed with lace and ribbon; sometimes almost plain, with the fronts laid surplice-wise across each other, the edges bordered with lace, etc. With these a little chemisette is sometimes worn, but the loose open neck is usually preferred. It is an easy matter to vary these waists by their trimmings. Small tab ends extending from the edge where they close are one form; tucks, hemstitching, open work, appliques of lace and embroidery alternate bands of insertion and ribbon or silk, and various other little touches afford the means of very pleasing changes. Much of the beauty and style of a waist, and, in fact of an entire gown, depends upon the arrangement of ties and belts. The stock has been metamorphosed into a most beautiful confection; now a mass of the finest lace with dainty colors peering through the meshes; now of soft folds of panne or satin, with long ends fastened by rosettes hanging loosely down the front of the garment, or worn fastened at one side. Berthas are very much in vogue and one form is the graceful fichu. If the fichu is short, the ends are tied in a small knot on the bosom; if long, they are fastened at one side, or allowed to fall naturally their full length. The fichu is so much in favor that the effect is often sought in the same material as composes the garment itself.

Very attractive are the house jackets of china silk in all the light colors, made up in Kimona fashion with the back and side seams slightly curved, imparting an air of grace not given by the regular Kimona. Bands of lace, usually an inch wide intersect the jacket from hem to shoulder, at regular intervals, as well as the sleeves which are usually loose and open. A soft frill of lace finishes the throat and is jaboted down the front, where knots of ribbon are set to tie it together. Lace, in the heavy varieties, is applied flatly to a number of the newest dressy toilettes. Lace richly strewn with turquoise, coral, amethysts, pearls and rhinestones gives a touch of elegance to the simplest gowns, and is usually applied to the bodice in some telling way.

The collarless Eton or bolero is one of the most comfortable fashions of the season, and one which appeals to the home dressmaker at once. A modish little garment of this sort is made up in white broadcloth, with no back seams, and having the rounded fronts. The edges are finished by an inch wide band of gold braid set on as a binding, while a small gold cord finishes the low neck and wrists. A row of small, round gold buttons set off the front.

A short mess jacket of marine blue broadcloth smartened by stitchings of white and a set of brass buttons is worn with a skirt of white pique laid in side pleats.

YANKEE CITRON.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

THE GOVERNMENT is trying very hard to introduce the cultivation of the citron in California and Florida, but a difficulty has arisen, owing to the fact that the process of preparing the fruit for market is secret. Indeed, it is kept so close, being peculiarly an Italian art and known only to the few who have handed it down from father to son, generation after generation, that all efforts made to get the recipe up to now have been unsuccessful. Doubtless the Department of Agriculture would be willing to pay a handsome price for it.

The finest commercial citron comes from Corsica, and up to within the last few years all of the fruit that came to the United States was imported in a preserved state. At the present time, however, it arrives merely pickled, and is preserved afterwards. Of course, it is only the rind of the fruit that is utilized, and the pickling consists simply in saturation in brine. Two concerns in New York City and two in Chicago turn out the bulk of the citron sold in this country, employing skilled Italians to do the preserving. How the thing is done they will not tell.

The government has introduced the citron into California and Florida by distributing buds of the plant, with instructions that they be grafted upon orange or lemon stumps. They will grow well in either case, inasmuch as both orange and lemon belong to the same citrus family, but the draft upon the lemon does best. The citron plant is a low straggling bush, the branches of which take root and soon form a dense thicket. When the fruit has reached full size, it sometimes weighs as much as five pounds. Inside, it is divided up into segments or "figs" just like an orange, and the spongy rind is very thick.

The nature of the process for preserving citron is understood in a general way; it is the essential details that are lacking. The rinds are first soaked in fresh cold water to rid them of the pickling salt, after which they are boiled to make them tender and soft enough to absorb the syrup into which they are next put. They must be soaked in eight syrups of different strengths, beginning with the weakest, and this performance requires eight days, because the absorption of sugar must be very slow in order to be thorough. Next they are boiled in syrup of extra strength, and finally they are candied, to cover the peel with a layer of sugar crystals, and dried on wire netting.

An arrangement has been made with one of the manufacturing concerns in New York by which one hundred pounds of California citron peel are to be placed in its hands for preserving, with a view to ascertaining whether the American-grown article is equal to the Corsican. In order to be a success, our citron must be as good as the foreign brand, of course; otherwise, proof that it could be produced in this country on a commercial scale would be of no value.

CALENDAR SUPERSTITIONS.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

IT WAS on the fifteenth of August the feast of the Assumption fell when Bishop Hall tells us that it was customary to pray for a blessing upon herbs, plants, roots, and fruits. This custom is referred to in the following old lines:

"The blessed Virgin Marie's feast has here his place and time:
Wherein, departing from the earth, she did the heavens clime;
Great bundels then of hearbes to church the people fast doe beare,
The which against all hurtful things the priest doth hallow theare."

There was an ancient custom of giving presents of little knives on St. Bartholomew's Day, August twenty-fourth, probably in memory of the knife wherewith the saint suffered martyrdom, since it dates too far back to have its origin in the famous Massacre of Saint Bartholomew that occurred in The following weather proverb refers to this season of the year:

"All the tears that St. Swithin can cry,
St. Bartholomew's dusty mantle wipes dry."

ON the banks of the small and large streams flowing to the coasts of Maine are laborers who have an art peculiarly their own. As the logs are floated down they are hooked into a certain station where are men, under direction of one wood cutter, who with their axes cut into each log a mark which signifies to whom the log belongs.

These marks are often letters or hieroglyphics and are very quickly and skillfully done, the more essential part being the depth of the cut, so that in the rubbing and scraping the logs necessarily undergo on their way to the sea the marks will not be effaced.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE. $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

CURES
Female Troubles, Stooping Posture, Inflammations, Internal Pains, Tired Feeling, Backache, Weak Lungs, Nervousness.

TRIAL FREE.

It will make you comfortable, buoyant, happy—give you ability to work and enjoy life. It is simple, wholly external, adjustable to any figure. Worn with or without corset.

We have over 15,000 letters like this:

Chandler, Okla., July 27, 1899.

Your Brace did all you said about it and more for me. It has saved me a big doctor's bill and brought me good health, which I had not had before in 25 years. My troubles were dropsy, headache, lung disease, stomach and other ills to which women are subject. MRS. L. B. DICKINSON.

Write today for particulars and illustrated book mailed free in plain sealed envelope. Address
The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27, Salina, Kansas.
Every woman should have this Brace.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z
C. P. CORY & CO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

MORPHINE Laudanum, Opium and kindred Drug Habits permanently cured. German discovery. Home Method. Free Trial Treatment on application. Berlin Remedy Co., 2 East 42d St., New York.

ARE YOU ASHAMED OF YOUR FACE?
LOVELY face, beautiful neck, can be had by all who send five FREE 2-cent stamps for postage, wrapping, etc., of a large trial size of our Great Beautifier; we will also send a package of Arabian Sachet and a booklet on beauty, all free. Goodwill Chem. Co., Room 223, Wamsley Bldg., Balto., Md.

LADIES I Make Big Wages —AT HOME— and will gladly tell you all about my work. It's very pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. This is no deception. I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c. stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

HAIR LIKE THIS

We will forward FREE
To any address, full information how to grow hair upon the baldest head, stop hair falling, cure weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scanty parting, scurf, dandruff, itching scalp, and restore gray and faded hair to its natural color. Enclose 2 cent stamp for sealed package. Address Lorrimer & Co., 331 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially adapted for cleaning and polishing Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Delicate Surface. It does not scratch! It works Wonders! and a child can use it! Will clean and polish just as well when black as when new. No matter how soiled the "cloth" may become, the black will not rub off and soil the hands. Can be used until entirely worn out. A moist portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sure. Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the Century.

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents' prices and a paid three month's trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.
SUNSHINE, Box 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

BARGAIN SALE of Remnants of SILK RIBBONS

BEAUTIFUL SILK RIBBONS ALMOST FREE

To close out our tremendous large stock of Remnants of Silk Ribbons, which is the largest in quantity, value and variety in New York City, we have marked the prices way down. These are the most beautiful Silk Ribbons in the East, and at this remarkable mark-down sale we are making an unprecedented and unparalleled BARGAIN OFFER. These beautiful Silk Ribbons were recently purchased at wholesale auction sales at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure unheard of bargains. We are overstocked and must sell them at a greatly reduced price from their real value. These ribbons are really very fine ribbons. Please do not judge them by our MARK-DOWN PRICES. They are bought in very large quantities at wholesale auction sales, and we generally buy for spot cash all the ribbons a mill has. We have bought as high as $3,000 worth of these beautiful Silk Ribbons at one time, and they are certainly of most excellent value. We are anxious to sell a lot of these rare Silk Ribbons in every neighborhood, as their beauty and value at OUR CUT PRICES will sell lots of them to your lady friends.

